ing of Chriſt, they all were in one note, That he was worthy to die. The Prophet obſerves that there was unity amongſt all the blinde watchmen of Iudah: They are all ignorant, ſayes he, they are all dumb dogges, they cannot bark, ſleeping, lying downe, loving to ſlumber, they all looke to their owne way, every one for his gaine from his quarter, Iſa. 56 10, 11. This is an unity the world is full of, nay and hell is full of, like the unity of Sodom againſt Lot, the men of Sodom compaſſed his houſe round, both old and young from every quarter, Gen. 19. 4. This is a Deviliſh unity, this is no true unity. True unity is in Bono, no matter how many are of one mind, and of one heart, and of one accord, if it be not an union in good, it is faction and no union, as Tertullian told the Marcionites when they brag'd of their Churches, forſooth they were the Church, ſaith hee, Waſpes have their ſwarmes: ſo when wicked Miniſters ſhall cry, The Church, the Church, I ſay, theſe are ſwarmes of Waſps, I do not mean ſuch a unity: when it is not in good, the greater the unity is, the leſſe union is indeed.

Secondly, I do not mean neither, that Miniſters ſhould thus hang toge- 2.
ther in one, that if one be a Boanerges, a ſon of thunder, another ſhould be ſo too. For Miniſters may be different in different auditories. Husband-men ſow their ſeed according to the diverſity of their ground; the Phyſician tempers his Phyſick according to his Patients conſtitution: as long as people are of ſundry diſpoſitions, ſo certainly the Miniſters manner of preaching may be various. And therefore I do not mean ſuch an unity neither, that all Preachers ſhould be moulded alike; nay, the ſame Miniſter may and muſt differ from himſelfe, ſometimes come with cordials, ſometimes with corraſives, to ſing of mercy and judgment, to preach comfort to whom comfort, and vengeance to whom vengeance belongs, to ſome he muſt give milk, to others ſtrong meat. Paul had a rod as well as the ſpirit of meekneſſe. Zacharies Paſtor was to have two ſtaves, the one called Beauty and the other cal'd Bands, Heb. 13: 14.
and ſo he was to feed the flock, Zach. 11. 7. A Chirurgian hath ſkin tents as well as ſuppling oyle. The Apoſtle Paul when he was to deal with Elymas the Sorcerer, he ſet his eyes on him, and called him the child of the Devill; but when he was to deale with Sergius Paulus he was mild with him. Our Saviour Chriſt preach't the acceptable yeere of the Lord to ſome, and to other ſome as though he were not the ſame Preacher, he had nothing but woes in his mouth. There were two mountaines in Canaan, there was the bleſſing on mount Gerizim for ſome, and the curſing on mount Ebal for others.

Againe thirdly, we do not mean that all Miniſters ſhould be the ſame in 3.
gifts and parts, and meaſure of knowledge and ſanctification; for that can never be looked for, every Pariſh can never be provided for alike. Starres are of different magnitudes, ſome ſtarres are greater, ſome leſſer: The Angels are not all of one rank, ſome are ordinary Angels, ſome Arch-angels, ſome are Principalities, ſome are Dominions, ſome are Thrones, Col. 1. 16. and may be, thoſe that are meaneſt, ſo they be godly, and ſent of God, may do as much good as thoſe that are more excellent; nay more, convert more, awaken more, ſettle more: for it is not they that work, but God by them who is not tied unto Organs, unity is not hindered by diſparity. Paul calls Epaphroditus who was much inferior to him, his brother, and companion in labour, and fellow ſouldier, Phil. 2. 25. Though Clement were a Miniſter much meaner then he, yet he calls him his fellow-labourer, Phil 4 3. Though Tychicus came never ſo much ſhort of him, yet he terms him his fellow ſervant, Col. 4 3. 7. So that there may be unity for all this, and a gratious ſympathy and agreement betweene Miniſters, though of never ſo different parts; ſo they be ſincere and cordially minded to do good.

You will ſay then, What is that unity that muſt be among Miniſters?

1. I anſwer 1. They muſt be all competently endued with ability for the work of the Miniſtery, all muſt agree in this, that they be able men in ſome meaſure. Hee hath made us able Miniſters of the new teſtament, 2 Cor. 3. 6. able to preach to the conſcience, able to do it with power and might, able to divide the word aright, able to give every one his portion in due ſeaſon. They are none of Gods Miniſters that are not able men, that are not able to teach and apply, to be the mouth of God unto the people, and the mouth of the people unto God, that are not able to ſeek that which was loſt, to bring again that which is driven away, to bind that which is broken, to ſtrengthen that which is ſick. Thoſe that are not able to do this, they are blind guides, Idol-ſhepheards, and no miniſters. Paul ſayes, that a miniſter muſt be able by ſound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainſayers, Tit. 1. 9. Faithfull men, able to teach others, 2 Tim. 2. 2. This was one of the ends that Chriſt aſcended up on high, that he might give gifts unto men for the miniſtery, as one Apoſtle ſpeaks, Eph. 4. 8. and ſo as it followes, He gave ſome Apoſtles, and ſome Prophets, and ſome Evangeliſts, and ſome Paſtors and Teachers. All Miniſters ſhould agree in this, that they be able.

Secondly, they muſt be all ſent of God, though a man be never ſo able, yet if he be not ſent of God, he is not a Miniſter. Private Chriſtians many of them have excellent abilities, as the text ſayes, I am perſwaded of you, my brethren, that ye are all full of goodneſſe, filled with all knowledge, able to admoniſh one another, Rom. 15. 14. he ſpeaks of private Chriſtians: I ſay, they are able many of them, and there is very great uſe of their abilities too, for the good of their families, for the good of Chriſtian Communion, and the like; yea, it is a ſhame that private Chriſtians living under good means of grace, do not grow able to teach. When for the time ye ought to be teachers, yee have need that one teach you againe which be the firſt principles of the oracles of God, Heb. 5. 12. Mark, he ſhames private Chriſtians that do not grow able to teach. But yet this is not enough to make miniſters; true miniſters agree all in this, that they are ſent of God. How ſhall they preach except they be ſent? Rom. 10. 15. I have not thruſt in my ſelfe for a Paſtor, ſayes Jeremy. They are intruders and no miniſters that cannot prove their commiſſion from God, as the authour to the Hebrews ſayes, No man takes this honour to himſelfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron, Heb. 5. 4. Chriſt himſelfe alledged this to beare out his Miniſtery, He hath ſent me to preach deliverance to Captives. Woe be to thoſe of whom the Lord ſhall ſay, I have not ſent theſe Prophets, and yet they run. It will be ſaid to them one day, as to the man without a wedding garment, Friend, how cameſt thou in hither? The want of this is the reaſon that ſo many Miniſters make no more conſcience of their duty; they make no conſcience of taking paine, of ſtrict preaching, of preſſing the word upon peoples hearts, of uſing all manner of means to root out ſinne in their Pariſh, becauſe they have no diſpenſation from God committed unto them: if their conſciences were charged with this, it would make them do otherwiſe then they do. The want of this is the cauſe that the miniſtery of many is impotent, they may preach all the dayes of their lives, and not one ſoule turned unto God, but themſelves and their works periſh together; whereas Miniſters that are ſent, make the Devils roare, and fleſh and blood chafe, their Sermons are linkes of iron to bind Nobles, and Princes, and ſtubborn hearts. The want of this is the reaſon why ſo many Miniſters are ſo vile in the peoples eyes, people care not a whit for them, dare drink and be drunk in their company, dare talk of their roguery before them; as Ammon before Jonadab, Jonadab aſk't him what he ailed he was ſo ſad? O, ſayes he, I would fain lie with my ſiſter Tamar, 2 Sam. 13. 4. He knew before whom he was; if Jonadab had been a godly man, he durſt as well have eaten his owne tongue, as have told him his baſe luſt. A godly man the very preſence of him would have made him aſhamed, and to have bitten in his lips. When a Miniſter is unſent of God, no body does reſpect him out of conſcience, they care not for his words: whereas when a Miniſter is ſent, this makes him as an Angel of God, when others call him all to naught, the conſcience of many will plead for him, as we ſee there of Jeremy, O this man is not worthy to dye, for he hath ſpoken unto us in the Name of the Lord, Jer. 26. 16. There's never a ſent Miniſter, but if he come in trouble, except peoples conſciences be ſeared with a hot Iron, they will ſpeak for him in their boſomes: Alas! why is he put downe: Why is he impriſoned? Why is he oppoſed? He hath ſpoken to us in the Name of the Lord. So that this is the ſecond wherein all miniſters ſhould agree, they ſhould be all ſent of God, not contenting themſelves with the calling of man, without being alſo called of God.

have

Thirdly, they muſt all agree in the matter that they preach; the ſame word is delivered unto all Miniſters to preach. Preach the word, 2 Tim. 4. The ſame Goſpell, the ſame Truths, the ſame Duties, the ſame Commandments, the ſame Promiſes, the ſame threatnings: Ye know there is one God, and one Faith and one Baptiſme, one Lord Jeſus Chriſt; there is but one way of life, one gate to heaven, one ſalvation, one Bible: Now every Miniſter muſt agree in this: You know all men are by Nature the children of wrath, in a damned eſtate; now all Pulpits ſhould agree in this, every Miniſter labouring to bring their people to a ſight of their miſery by ſinne; every Miniſter ſhould ſhew his people what curſed creatures they are, untill they be converted and renewed; every Miniſter ſhould preſſe the evill of ſinne, and open the wiles of Satan, the guilt of the conſcience, the ſpiritualneſſe of the Law, the neceſſity of humiliation, and repentance, and amendment of life, that there is no mercy but in Chriſt, no ſalvation but by Chriſt, except people take him to live in their hearts by faith. All Miniſters ſhould let their people know the terror of the Lord, the ſtrictneſſe of Gods judgements, the inſeparable connexion of mercy and a godly life, that no prophane perſon can enter into Gods Kingdome; no hypocrite, no meer civill man; that a forme of godlineſſe will not ſerve turne, that none but Saints ſhall ſtand at Chriſts right hand at the laſt day. All Miniſters ſhould preach what a narrow path there is to Paradiſe, and how few there be that find it, that ſaving grace cannot ſtand with the reigne of the leaſt luſt, that people muſt be pure and holy, what ever the world thinks of pureneſſe, and preciſeneſſe, and ſtrictneſſe, yet without this no fleſh ſhall be ſaved. If all Pulpits ſounded with theſe truths, and all Miniſters cried theſe aloud, and would lift up their voices like a trumpet, and not ſpare, what a land ſhould we have? The want of unity in this matter, is the cauſe that wickedneſſe does ſo much abound: a drunkard, a whoremaſter, a mockworme may come to a Sermon, and go away with hope that he ſhall have peace. When Miniſters make the Pulpit a ſcaffold, in which like maſters of Defence they play their prizes, blazon their owne wits, deſcant upon their Text, as though the Scripture were a rattle for children and fooles to ſport with, toſſing it to and fro, hither and thither, as boyes at a Tennis; when they go about to amaze their hearers, to mount aloft, to be in their high phraſes, and coyned words, more like Mimicks and Comedians then Miniſters; when they ſearch into moth-eaten Friers, affect Allegories, would faine be thought Linguiſts, and interlace a many of allegations of Latine and Greeke ſentences, which a Schoolboy might do with a Polyanthea: or if they ſpeak plain, they ſkim the truth of the Scriptures, and never dive deep to the edifying of the ſoule. May be they will preach good morall matter. But a man may go to hell, though he do as they teach; people may heare them a thouſand times, and no man made to cry out, What have I done? They preach of repentance, but then they open it ſo ſlightly, that a man may repent as they ſay, and be damned: they preach of faith in Christ, but they make it so broad, that thousands have it and sinke into the bottomlesse pit with it: they preach that sinne must be forsaken, and a good life must be led, but they handle it in that wise, that their hearers may doe as they say, and yet have no more grace then a reprobate, nor so much neither. Now beloved, the unity among brethren should be this, to agree in the right matter of preaching, that the Word may be carved to all, as their need is, that they may see their own cases, that they may understand the wiles of the Devill, the fallacies of their own evill hearts, the counterfeits of faith and repentance, and new obedience, and that they may not be consened with them. This is the third thing.

4. Fourthly, they should all agree in the true manner of preaching. That which our Saviour sayes of hearing, Take heed how ye heare, Luk. 8. 18. he meanes of preaching too, let your Ministers take heed how they preach. Beloved, we that are the Ministers of God, we are to labour to turne Lions into Lambs, and to transforme the heart of man to bread, new creatures unto God: and therefore it is not every kinde of preaching will serve the turne.

1. 1. Then Ministers should agree in preaching with the demonstration of the Spirit and of power, as Paul sayes, not with the wisdome of words, lest the crosse of Christ be made of none effect, 1 Cor. 17. 9. 2. If we should preach wit, and learning, and eloquence, then the death of Christ would be of no effect, that is, no man would be converted. Christ would be offered to none; therefore we must preach nakedly, to smite the naked word into mens consciences, that they may see. Thus saith the Lord against their sinfull courses, thus saith the Lord of their estates, this reproofe is from the Lord, this threat is from the Lord, thus saith the Lord, you are a wretch, this is thy sinne, and this is thy cursed condition, and it is the Lord and not I that does affirme it. It is said of Christ, that he preacht with authority, and not as the Scribes, Matthew 7. 29. What is to come with authority? When a man speaks from God to the consciences of men, as when a Constable comes in the name of a King, I charge you in the Kings name; this is to come with authority. Therefore we should not come with the affection of wit or of reading, of fine and filed speaking. You will say, What, would you have us be foolish in our preaching? I answer, Never object so, for it is the foolishnesse of preaching, that saves them which beleeve, 1 Cor. 1. 21. as one sayes, we must preach Christ crucified in a crucified phrase. The world would have gewgaws, and garish garnishings: and why so? because the naked Word is contrary to flesh and blood; like to some eyes, they must have their silks and their cypresses to look upon the Sun by, forsooth the Sun beams are too glorious and shining otherwise. Pedestria oratio, as Jerome speakes, a Minister must have a foot-speech, and not speak a horseback, with trappings, and tassels, and deckings. Though this be foolishnesse to some, yet it is wisdome to them that are of God. We speak wisdome to them that are perfect, 1 Cor. 2. 6. Mark, they that are perfect will accept it to be wisdome, it is foolishnesse onely to children and fools, and such as are not able to discerne. God will have his mercies hidden under homely out-sides, that men that will stumble at them may; as men hide treasure under straw; as the woman of Bahurim hid the two Worthies of Israel in a well, under a course sack. Can gallant preaching make people pluck out their right eyes, and deny their owne selves and wayes? No, no, when the heart sees it hath to doe with God, nothing but this will pull it downe; away then with our own affections, let us labour to come with God into our pulpits, that people may see God dealing with them.

2. 2. Ministers should agree to preach differencingly, to distinguish between the precious and the vile, the clean and the uncleane, as we must not bruise the broken Reed, but deale gently with it, so we must not give Childrens bread bread unto dogs, Mat. 15.29. we muſt not caſt our ſeed into fallow ground: but we muſt let the fallow ground feele our ploughes tearing: we muſt not fling pearls before ſwine, nor bitter arrows againſt Chriſt his Lambs. This were as if we ſhould call for ſnow in Summer, and raine in Harveſt. No, no, a whip for the Horſe, and a bridle for the Aſſe, and a rod for the fools back, Prov. 26.3. If people be like Mules that will not underſtand, we muſt put in a Bitt into their mouthes: If people will have their owne wayes, our word muſt be fires, and hammers, and axes, and cheſils, and ſwords, and ſpears, that their bellies may tremble, and rotteneſſe may enter into their bones.

You will ſay, Why then belike we muſt have nothing in our mouthes but hell and damnation.

I anſwer, No, nothing but hell and damnation for the naught.

You will ſay, That will drive them to deſpaire.

Why then let it: it were well if we had our people there, they muſt deſpair before they come to mercy, as Hezekiah ſayes, O Lord, I am oppreſſed, doe thou comfort me, or undertake for me, Iſai. 38.14. People muſt be oppreſſed with our Sermons, we muſt lay load and burdens on their conſciences, or they will never be fitted for comforts and Chriſts undertakings. True, the ſervants of the Lord muſt be gentle unto all men, 2 Tim. 2.24. and ſuffer the wickedneſſe of all very patiently, praying if at any time the Lord will give them repentance, that the Devill may let them goe. Nothing but hell and damnation is not good, we muſt not be like James and John, that would needs be calling for fire to come down from Heaven to conſume the Samaritans: no, we muſt be long-ſuffering, but yet we muſt not let a wicked man live, but we muſt give him his deaths wound by the ſtab of the Word, leſt his blood be required at our hands.

3. Miniſters ſhould agree in preaching with all their ſtrength conſtantly, and duly, not quadrageſimall Sermons onely, or the like: but the Apoſtle commands Miniſters to preach in ſeaſon and out of ſeaſon, 2 Tim. 4.2. It is a wicked cavill of ſome, and it is the Devill that doth ſuggeſt it, Is it not good to cloy the people, is it not faire to preach once a Sabbath? muſt we have two, and a week day, too? This is over-much, this is unſeaſonable, that people ſhould trudge, and runne to Sermons when they ſhould be at their Callings. Well, be it ſo, that it is out of ſeaſon, we muſt preach out of ſeaſon too, all will be little enough. I am ſure the Prophet Haggai the Word of the Lord came to him twice in one day, Hag. 2.10, 20. Auſtin uſed conſtantly to preach twice a day, as appeares in his ſecond Sermon upon the 88. Pſalme: nay in one place he ſayes he preached thrice. Doe not wonder my deare Brethren, ſi bodie ter Sermocinatus ſum, that I have preached three times this one day. And he addes this beſides, that it was not without cauſe, in his 33. Sermon to his brethren in the Wilderneſſe. Nay, the ancient Fathers preached every day in the yeare, as it is well known to them that are uſed to read them. Chryſoſtome in his Homilies upon Geneſis, ſhewes this almoſt in the beginning of every Homily. And one time perceiving his hearers ſomewhat ſow, O (ſayes he) every houre in the day is ſeaſonable for you to heare, nay the night is not unſeaſonable. Paul prolonged himſelfe unto midnight, ſayes he, Act. 20. I pray did the time hinder him? No, though he were for a journey the next day, yet he would not think much to breake his nights reſt. Another time preaching by candle light, O, ſayes he, doe you ſee this ſame Lamp? take away the oyle, you put out the light, even ſo it is with the gifts of the Spirit, the dulneſſe of our hearing, the littleneſſe of our profiting at once, our readineſſe to decline except we be pricked forward, our aptneſſe to forget God, the commandment of having the word to dwell richly in us, the duty of meditating in it day and night doe plainly enforce this preaching.

You will say, If Preachers should preach often, it would be but prating; we cannot preach often and soundly.

I answer, it is false: for all that I see, the ablest Divines have preached the most often, as Calvin, and Luther, and Wickliff and others, and Mr. Greenham; nay, Austin, preached ex tempore that Sermon of his upon the 95. Psalme; it seemes that he expected his brother Severus to come and preach for him: but his friend failing to come, he preached himselfe, as Dr. Don relates the story: So Basil also preaching two Sermons upon the works of God that he made in the six dayes, Gen. 1. confesses he had no more premeditation then that very morning when he began to preach them. Thus many holy men by setting themselves to be instant in Gods harvest time, have had such a doore of utterance opened unto them to speake the mystery of Christ, that like wise Scribes, they could, as occasion was offered, bring forth out of their Treasuries, new and old. They that cry downe often preaching, what ever colour they would seem to have, be such as would cover their owne shame by backbiting the diligence of any of their brethren. Like the Fox in the Fable, that because he wanted a taile himselfe to hide his owne filthinesse, perswaded the other beasts to cut off theirs too, pleading forsooth, O it is cumbersome, and weighty, and ye were better be without; but the truth was, it was only to hide his owne deformity, which were it once in fashion to be without tailes, should never be espyed. A worthy Divine cites an excellent admonition of Hierom to Calphurnius, upon the like occasion to this, That if he wanted teeth himselfe, he should not be envious against them which were able to eat. Beloved, I do not urge an equality of labour upon all; but this is most certaine, that we are bound every one of us, to honour the Lord with all our strength, and to study the edification and salvation of our peoples soules with all our might. It is a shame that ever our people should meet together at Church, and we not take compassion upon them, to quicken them with some word of exhortation or other. The Evangelists note of our Saviour, that when he saw a company about him, he had compassion on them and taught them, Mar. 6. 34. Whereupon was his Sermon in the mount, but because he saw a company about him? Whereupon was that Sermon of our Saviour, Mat. 13? It was because there was a company of people afore him. Certainly, if we had compassion on our people, we would do so too: If we were not too worldly and dead hearted our selves, as we are, we would never plead against it. Many talke much of the Fathers, O the Fathers, the Fathers, and they do not love these upstart Divines, but it were well they would learn of the Fathers. Tertullian sayes, there was never any publick meeting in his dayes, but before the Congregation was dissolved, they were fed with a Sermon. Nay, Babington, a reverend Bishop among us, That a Minister can no more enter into the Congregation without a Sermon, and not to be guilty, then Aaron could enter into the Congregation at any time without death, in case he sounded not his Bells when he entred.

4. Fourthly, they should agree in seeking of the Lord for a blessing on their labours, they should be earnest with God in the behalfe of the people. Alas! how can they expect to convert any men unto God? For when we preach, what do we do? We do but as Gehezi, who brought Elisha's staffe, to raise the dead child. Poore man! he could not raise it: for though he had Elisha's staffe, he had not Elisha's spirit: So, my brethren, we do but bring our Masters staffe, and therefore we should intreat him to send downe his Spirit; otherwise the dead cannot stand up. We trim up a Sermon, and put case we trim it well, nevertheless what is this? but as the rigging of the ship, and what will that do except the wind blow? So we should pray that the winde should blow upon our sails, and then the ship shall go indeed, as our Saviour

Christ

Christ sayes, *The wind bloweth where it listeth, Joh.*3.8: The wind is free. When we have preached all that ever we can, yet the wind is free, whether it will blow or no. The Spirit of God, is not tied to blow upon our endeavours, that they may have good successe. What are Organs without breath? What is Pauls planting or Apollos watering, without Gods giving of the increase? The Apostle tells us it is just nothing, 1 *Cor.*3.7. As a Divine makes the similitude; when one heard what admirable victories Scanderbegs sword had wrought, he would needs see it; and when he saw it, sayes he, This is but an ordinary sword, alas, what can this do? Scanderbeg did him wonder, I have sent thee my sword, but I have the Arme that did all by it. So, beloved we have Christs sword, but we have not Christs Arme, and therefore let us pray him, that he would together with our preaching, reach forth his arme, and that will do our people good; without this, poore Preachers as we all, we may cut at mens sins, but they will never off without him. We may shew people the great things of the Gospel, we may invite people to come in, to lay hold on eternall life, but O for Christs Arme! and therefore we should study as much how to pray, as to preach. The want of this is that which marres all. May be we preach well, but we are not earnest with God to give a blessing, we do not bewaile the sins of our people, we do not lay to heart the things that provoke Almighty God, we do not get into the case, wherein God may prove all our pains.

5. Fifthly, Ministers should all agree in the watching over the soules of men. Preaching to and praying for our people, is not the whole of a Ministers duty; but we should observe our people, and watch over them, as the Apostle sayes; Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit your selves, for they watch for your soules, Heb. 12. 17. And indeed how can we preach to the purpose, except we watch them that are committed to our charge? as Solomon sayes, *Be thou diligent to know the estate of thy flocks, and looke well to thy Herds, Prov.*27.23. This was Pauls course to enquire into the estate of the people, how it fared with them. This was the newes that he asked after, his desire was to know how grace went forward in the Ephesians hearts: I heare of your faith, sayes he, *Eph.*1.15. It seemes he had been asking of it. Thus Epaphras told him of the Colossians estate. Thus he learned by some of the house of Chloe, the state of the Corinthians. Nay, all men will enquire and hearken after the health of their friends; parents, if their children be at the University, they will listen after them how they go on in learning: So should the Angels of every Church, they should listen what courses are in their towne, what sinnes break out, what corruptions appeare, what proficiency the good ones make, who grow, who decline, who stand at a stay, who go aside, and waxe worse and worse, that they may shape their preaching accordingly, that their words be fitted in their mouth, that they may ape their rebukes, their exhortations, their uses answerably. For then will their Sermons be like Apples of Gold in pictures of Silver. It is no curiosity in Ministers to be inquisitive into their peoples courses. It is the Objection of ill-minded ones, say they, What need Ministers busie themselves? they must have their tell-tales, we can do nothing but they must heare of it. O beloved, we can never preach fruitfully if we stop our eares with wax, and will not listen what our hearers do.

6. Sixthly, Ministers should agree in ordering their owne conversations aright, it is but a folly else to be a Minister, we do but make repentance dearer, and at a higher price. *A Bishop must be blamelesse, as the Steward of God, not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, nor to filthy lucre, Tit.*1.7. It is a double wickednesse for a Minister to be wicked, to be a company keeper, to be a pot-companion, as God said to Aaron, Whosoever he be of thy seed in their generation, that hath any blemish, let him not approach to offer the bread of his *God, Levit.*21.17. We cannot never do good, if we blemish our selves with vice. True it is, the efficacy of the Word and Sacraments do not depend upon the quality of the Minister: the seed sowne in good ground may grow, though the sower had a dirty hand; Gold is gold, though it be in the hand of a thiefe; yet such is our weakneſſe, that they are weake to us. People are apt to reſpect the Word and Sacraments the leſſe, when they ſee the Miniſter is not holy, as we ſee in Elias wicked ſoones, for men abhord the offerings of the Lord, 1 Sam.2.17. Their eyes muſt be taught as well as their eares. Thoſe things, ſayes Paul, which ye have heard and ſeen in me, do, *Phil.*4.9. Except with Thomas in another caſe, they ſee, they will not believe. Let a Miniſter be never ſo godly, he ſhall do good little enough. The Prophet Eſay, though a holy man, yet he complaines he laboured in vaine. Now if a godly man can do but little good upon the moſt, much leſſe can a wicked Miniſter. A true Miniſter muſt be able to ſay as Gideon, Look on me, and do likewiſe, as I do, ſo ſhall ye do, *Judg.*7.17. Miniſters muſt be examples unto the flock, 1 *Pet.*5.3. Firſt caſt the beame out of thine own eye, and then ſhalt thou ſee clearly to caſt out the moate out of thy brothers eye. As it is ſaid of Ezra, Ezra had prepared his owne heart to ſeeke the law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach in Iſrael, Ezra 7. 10. Our Saviour Chriſt did and taught, as Luke ſpeakes. This is the courſe of a Miniſter indeed, to do his owne Sermons. When a Miniſter does not do what he teaches, this makes him a vile perſon; nay, this makes him ridiculous, like Lucians Apothecary, who had medicines in his ſhop to cure the cough, and told others that he had them, and yet was troubled with it himſelfe. With what a forehead canſt thou ſtand in a Pulpit, and publiſh the lawes of God, and to undertake the charge of ſoules? that when thine owne nakednesſe appeares, when thy tongue is of a larger ſize then thy hands, thy Miniſtery is divided againſt it ſelfe, thy courſes give thy doctrine the lie, thou ſayeſt that men muſt be holy, and thy deeds do declare thy mouths hypocriſie, thou doeſt more miſchiefe then an hundred others, as Peter ſayes of wicked Miniſters, Many will follow their pernicious wayes, 2 Pet. 2. 2. one Miniſter ſhall have many followers. A good Miniſter ſhall hardly get two or three to follow him. But when a Miniſter is wicked, he ſhall have many that will follow him. From the Prophets of Jeruſalem, prophaneneſſe is gone forth into all the Land, Jerem. 23. 15. If the ſprings be tainted, that taint runnes forth into all the ſtreames. People thinke themſelves ſafe on an Alebench, when they have gotten the Parſon with them; this hardens their hearts a thouſand times more. But a true Miniſter is a godly man. Now when Miniſters agree in godlineſſe, this is another branch of this unity.

7. Seventhly and laſtly, Miniſters ſhould agree in concord and in amity, even as all deare fellow ſervants, as Paul ſayes of Epaphras, the Miniſter of the Coloſſians; As ye alſo learned of Epaphras our deare fellow ſervant, who is for you a faithfull Miniſter of Chriſt, Coloſſ. 1. 7. Being to write to the Coloſſians, ye ſee what a tender care he hath of Epaphras, hee labours to commend him to his people, that they may regard him the more. It is an horrible ſin when one Miniſter will gird at another that is faithfull, and that in the preſence of ſome of his people. This helpeth the Devill to harden peoples hearts againſt him, that he cannot do the good that otherwiſe he might do; when other Miniſters will revile him, and traduce him, and ſpeak filthy words, ſuch as their malice doth prompt them with, Paul did not thus. When he knew Timothy was to go to Philippi, he does moſt dearly commend him unto them. O ſayes he, I have no man like minded, who will naturally care for your eſtate, *Philip.*2. 20. So our Saviour Chriſt, how much did he countenance and backe John the Baptiſts Miniſtery, to the encouraging of all that heard him? Among them that are borne of women, there hath not riſen a greater then John Baptiſt, *Mat.*11.11. Oh it is an excellent thing when Miniſters do not envie one another, when they love one another, and will live together in blessed Harmony: Thus you see what this unity should be.

one

The Reasons of this point, why Ministers should all agree thus, and be all as one, are,

First, because this makes Ministers amiable in their peoples eyes, it commendeth their Ministeries unto the consciences of their hearers, as the Prophet Isaiah sayes, How beautifull upon the mountaines are the feet of him that bringeth glad tidings, the publisheth of peace, &c. Isa. 52. 7. You will say, How is that? How comes his feet to be beautifull? It follows in the 8. vers. Thy watchmen shall lift up their voice, with a voice together shall they sing. Marke, that was it that made his feet beautifull; because all the watchmen were of one note, they sung with one voice together: look as one preach'd, so preach'd another, one did not pull downe what another built up, one did not preach more pleasing doctrine to the flesh then another, but they all sung in one tune, they all were of one heart. 1.

Secondly, as it makes the Ministery more beautifull and comely, so it makes it the more powerfull, when the Ministers are all of one mind in the Lord, when they all draw one way, all walke by the same rule, all set themselves to doe good, and to promote one anothers good. I say, this makes the Ministery more powerfull and profitable. The Apostle speaking of an ignorant man coming into the Church to heare the Minister preach, he shewes how powerfull the word may be unto him, 1 Cor. 14. 25. O sayes he, the secrets of his heart are made manifest, and so falling downe on his face, he worships God: that is, the Sermon is made effectuall unto him, and turnes his wretched heart. But observe now, how this comes to passe, the Text shewes in the foure and twentieth verse, it is by reason of the unity of the Ministers, He is convinced of all, he is judged of all; that is, all the Ministers were of one note, they all were in one consent, one did not preach looser doctrine then another, one told him he was a very wretch, and another told him he was a very wretch, and a third convinced him he was a very wretch; all had a blow at him: O thought he, I, I, I am a very wretch indeed, this burst his heart. If he could have heard any one of them preach easier doctrine, may be that would have given his conscience some foolish ease, and so the man had gone away never the better, but when he was convinced of all, and judged of all, this strikes him dumb. So, beloved, when a man can go into no Church, but every where he is met with, all the Ministers condemn him, all their lives condemn him, and all their Sermons condemn him to the pit of hell, and he can fetch no comfort no where; if the man belong to God, this is the readiest way to beat him downe, and subdue his heart. On the contrary side, when a man is wounded at one Ministers Sermon, by and by he drops into another, and there he catches hold of some ease: this makes him go on in his sins, and to blind his eyes against the truth. It is a great stumbling block unto the people this very thing. 2.

Thirdly, as it makes the Ministery more powerfull, so it brings more glory unto God. As it is said of John the Baptist, that when our Saviour did commend him, and made the people see, that he was of Johns mind, and that he held the same Tenets, and that he would not speak against a tittle that John had delivered, but testified his unity with him, and made it appeare what a reverend esteem he had of him; saith he, He is a Prophet, and more than a Prophet. Ye shall see how this brought glory to God. The Text saith, when the people heard this, and the Publicans, they justified God, being baptized with the Baptisme of John Luk. 7. 29. 3.

The use of this is, first, to condemn such as envy their fellow-Ministers, and will not be in the unity of minde and heart, and life with them. In the most, the Proverb is too true, Figulus figulo invidet, One Potter hates another, ther, one Tradesman envies anothers custome, so, one Minister, another: If there be a Minister that desires to powre out his soule in the doing of good, in the taking of paines, in the discharging of his Conscience, there are some that will envy such a one, their hearts rise up against him; nay, not only so, but the worst enemy that Jeremy had, was Pashur, one of his owne Coat, Jer. 20. 2. The forest adversary that Amos had, was Amaziah, a Priest of Bethel, who would never leave heaving at him untill he had gotten him away, Amos 7. 12. and why so? because he would not preach such pleasing Doctrine as he. Forsooth, the Land was not able to beare Amos his words, he preaches as if he would feare people out of their wits. He preaches Schismatically, and as if he loved to be singular. The chiefe Priests were furious against our Saviour Christ, because his Ministery was more blest then theirs was, nay, they hated him more then Pilate. Pilate a very Pagan, his Conscience told him he found no fault in him, Why, what evill hath he done? Their envy against Christ was palpable, that he did discover it. He knew that for envy they had delivered him unto him. So when all the Countrey know in their Consciences that such and such teach the wayes of God sincerely, set themselves to reform our sin, and so save soules, nay, the very drunkards you shall hear them say, I, I, he is a good man, Gods blessing on his heart, he tells us our faults, we may do what we list for all such and such, but he tells us of our faults, and God helpe us to amend them, and when they are sicke, they would rather have such a Ministers prayers, then twenty of other Ministers, that will soothe them up, and be haile fellow with them: Whereas there be many of our owne Coat, that are implacable against a Minister, that labours to be faithfull. How contrary is this unto the Rule? The Ministers of God should be all one, and if one be godly, all should be, if one painefull, all should be so, if one preach home to the Conscience, all should do so, they should all live as brethren. What sayes our Saviour Christ? Ye are the Salt of the Earth, but if the Salt hath lost its savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be troden under foot of men, Mat. 5. 13. That is, Salt may season others, but if it have lost its savour, nothing can salt it.

A Minister is of an excellent calling, appointed to season mens hearts, but if he have lost his savour, he can never truly be seasoned again, nothing can doe him good. An evill Minister is a more desperate forlorn man than any else.

Use 2. Secondly, Another use is, that all that are the Ministers of God would be hence stirred up to be all of one mind, all drawing one way, all bending our forces to one and the same end, the glory of God, and the salvation of our people. It's a fine comely thing to see any Brethren in unity. Behold how good and how pleasant it is for Brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head that ran down upon the beard, even Aarons beard, that went down to the skirts of his garment: as the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountaines of Zion, for there the Lord commanded his blessing, even life for evermore, Psal. 133: 1, 2, 3. I say, this is a very comely thing, to see any brethren to dwell together in unity, it is like the perfume of Aaron, that made all his garments fragrant sweet, it is like the dew of Hermon and Zion, that made all the ground fruitfull, this is that which hath the Lords blessing annexed to it, it is an excellent meanes unto eternall life. As the Apostle saith, If there be any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellow-ship of the Spirit, if any bowells and mercies; Fulfill ye my joy, that ye be like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Philip. 2, 1, 2. If it be so necessary for Brethren to be united, how much more for Brethren in the Ministery? of all men, Ministers have most reason to be of one minde, because we are to teach union unto others.

Besides,

Besides, if we desire to do what we are commanded to do, we shall have enemies enough in the world. Our Tribe is a hated Tribe. Of all offices, the office of a reproover is the most unwelcome. Paul was counted an enemy, because he told the Galatians the truth. Micaiah was hated because he did truly prophesie Ahab. People love their lusts, as their maques, yea, as themselves: and of all men we are most hated. Every man is believed in his own profession but we. People do not hate Lawyers that make them a good garment, nor a Shoo-maker that makes them a good Shooe, nor a Cook that makes them a good Feast, nor a Physician that makes them a good potion, none good Lawyer that makes them a good sute, though their doe but provide for the body, and yet we that provide for peoples soules, if we make them a good Sermon that would save their soules for ever, so they would obey it, we are hated for our labour. Ergo, when Moses came to speak of Levi, that were the Ministers of Israel, he prayes God, that God would deliver them out of the hand of their enemies, Lord smite through the loines of them that hate him, Deut. 33.11. I say we have many enemies in the world, and therefore we had need hang together. Who ever he be that odes it, we should stick close together. Our message is hatefull, and therefore we had need to be all of one mind. If he would not preach in a stile vile flesh and blood, and therefore we had need all joyntly to obey it, otherwise how do we thinke that we shall perswade any other?

Force, the more united the more strong. O if we would all joyne forces in one, we might make all our Brethren quake, all the wicked round about, their very hearts would be ready to faile them, if every pulpit did squeeze them. If they could come in no Church, but they were made to sit upon thornes, I verily believe, few would have any heart to go on in their evil doings.

Thirdly, another Use is, how we see it is a very usefull and profitable thing, that one good Minister should now and then come and help another, and preach for another, that our people may see our consent, that we all preach the same thing, and that is not our private preaching, but all the Ministers that are of God, are out of the same mind. This made the Apostle, wheresoever he was to write to a people, that he knew would be somewhat backward to believe him, he would joyne other Ministers with him, as consenting together with him. And so when he wrote unto Timothy, he would not do it for he knew that he did not need, he knew the faithfulnesse of his heart. But when he write to the Corinthians, where false Apostles had been, and had made many of them to doubt, he joynes Sosthenes with him, as it were confirming the same thing, 1 Cor. 1.1. when he wrote to the Galatians, he told them he had Peter on his side, and Barnabas and James and Cephas and John, and how the Apostles gave unto him the right hand of fellowship, Gal. 2.1,9. He writing to the Philippians, joynes Timothy with him, Phil. 1.1. And so writing to Philemon about a thing that though he hoped Philemon would do, yet because he knew he might have many carnall reasons against it, he joyns another with him, Philem. 1. This is of very good use, when one good Minister comes and backs another Minister, for as it were, then if any sufferer that make as if the way to heaven were called strait by people, how they other Ministers will come, and confirming it, make it good. Lastly, O how love such a Doctrine alive, and they hope there will be more of that minde: so when they hear a strict Minister, that delivers the Word to them as it is, and as they shall find it at last day, only this is so uncouth that they hope that it is but the opinion of their precise Minister, and that no body else is of his mind. Now when God shall bring a cloud of witnesses for it, it is of very good use. I confesse that when a Minister speaketh the truth, though no body else come to it, if on beside him, he shall be a witness against all the people that will not believe and yeat at the voice of his preaching. Noah condemned all the world, albeit there were none but he: But yet sympony and agreement, and the consent of the

Use 3.

Ministers of God is an Ordinance of God, which it may conveniently be

[illegible]

[illegible] I have spoken of this second point of Doctrine, of the unity of Ministers, To the Angel of the Church in Sardis. I acknowledge this point is not so much for the generall profit of you all, but you must bear with me, for handling of it, we shall come now to you ere long. For am sure, if any portion of Scripture may do us good, in these dead times, the preaching of this Epistle may. And yet it is not for mine to speak unto the Ministers of it by any means, I may provoke my self, and my Brethren to the abounding in the duty of the Office, and of Faith, and Love, and Zeal, for the further spreading and furtherance of good.

REVEL. 3. 1.

And unto the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write, These things saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven Starres, I know thy workes, that thou hast a name, that thou livest, and art dead.

And unto the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write.

WE have had two Doctrines from hence, concerning Gods Ministers: I told you there is one more, and then I have done, and so am prolix. The Doctrine is this,

That a Minister may be in such case that the people are dead, that they were more dead in their sins, then they are for number, profit, in severity, in severity, [illegible]

By the Minister may be in the text. The point is very clear from this place: The Lord being to reprove the people here of Sardis, for their deadness in Religion, he directs his speech to their Minister, To the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write, &c. Why, Lord, that has a name, that he lives and art dead.

He accuses the Minister for the deadness of the Church that was committed to his charge, he reckons the Church, but he speaks to the Minister. You will say, How do we prove that he means the Church? I answer, there be three places that do answer the same. The one is, Revel. 1. 4. There John writes, that he intends to write to the Churches, for all that in the inscription of every Epistle, the Minister only be named, John to the seven Churches in Asia, he writes to the Church in Sardis, he mentions it to the Church, and not only to the Minister. A second place is Revel. 1. 11. what soever thou seest write in a Book, and send it unto the seven Churches which are in Asia, unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamus, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea. The third is, the conclusion of every Epistle, Who so hath an ear, Revel. 3. 6. and so it is at the conclusion of every Epistle, to all the rest of the Churches, and therefore the Holy Ghost intends to reach the Church of Sardis of deadness. I know thy works that thou art dead, though he directs it to the Minister of the Church, it is that that concerns him, and that may be laid to his charge, and that he is guilty of, that the people are dead. That is, they are dead-hearted people, and they are dead in sin. Thou hast gifts, thou hast not use to do what they should, and therefore they be dead. Now we are to consider in this Ministry and that for two reasons, because they be unprofitable. Now you see the Doctrine is very plain in the words. The good or bad estate of a people depends much upon the Ministry. Commonly we see it all out as the Prophet Hosea ſaid, like people, like Prieſt, Hoſ. 4 9. Like ſhepherd, like ſheep. Such as the builder is, ſuch is the building, as is the Husbandman, ſo is the husbandry. This we may finde throughout all theſe Epiſtles, where the Miniſter is commended, the people are commended, where the Miniſter is taxed, the people are taxed. And therefore they ſtand and fall together, they ſwim and ſink together, a wicked Miniſter, a wicked people, an ignorant Miniſter, an ignorant people; and ſo a good Miniſter, the people either are a good people, or elſe they are Monſters; Nay, if the Miniſter be good, though the world in his Pariſh be never ſo wretched, yet he hath a good people, the Church of God in his Pariſh, is very good, commonly.

Well then, we have gotten our point out. The Miniſter may be in fault that the people are dead; I do not ſay, it is alwayes thus. For firſt, the Miniſter may be lively, and yet the people dead, the Lord tells us that Ezechiel had a ſtiffe hearted people, Ezek. 2. 4. and yet he was not to be blamed, themſelves were in all the fault. So Iſaiah had a dull hearted people: All the day long have I ſtretch'd out my hands to a diſobedient and gain-ſaying people, Rom. 10. 21. and therefore I do not ſay it was alwayes thus.

Nay, Secondly, ſometimes the people are the cauſe of the Miniſters deadneſſe. The Jewes hardneſſe of heart under the Miniſtery of Jonas, was the cauſe why Jonas had no heart to go unto Niniveh. O thought he, if Iſrael will not heare me, much leſſe will Niniveh heare me. Thus the people deaded Jeremiah at one time, that he had little or no heart to preach for a ſeaſon. Then I ſaid, I will not make mention of him, nor ſpeake any more in his name, Jer. 20. 9. Thus Ezekiel was deaded a while, by his people too; I came to them of the Captivity at Telabid, and I ſate where they ſate, and remained there aſtoniſht among them ſeven dayes, Ezek. 3. 15. The Lord was fain to rowze his heart up, and to tell him he would require their blood of him, before he could pluck up a good heart to preach livelily among them, the people deaded him. Nay more,

Thirdly, ſometimes the Lord locks up his good Miniſters, and ſuffers them to be ſtraitned in their utterance, and other gifts. May be the people are ready to lay all the blame upon their Miniſters. Oh how tongue-tied are they, and it is their negligence, and torpor: Whereas it is for the peoples ſinnes. Thus the Lord lockt up Ezekiel, for the peoples ſins. I will make thy tongue cleave to the roofe of thy mouth, and thou ſhalt be dumb and ſhalt not be to them a reprover, for they are a rebellious houſe, Ezek. 3.26. Nay, Fourthly, Sometimes peoples ſinnes are the cauſe why their Miniſters are quite dead, and have no life at all in them, the Lord ſends fooliſh Miniſters among them, meerly becauſe of their ſinnes. So it was in Hoſea's time The Prophet is a foole, the ſpirituall man is mad, for the multitudes of thy iniquity, Hoſ. 6.7. Marke, they had fooles for their Miniſters; fooles, beſotted Miniſters, giddy Miniſters, Miniſters that were wilde, and like mad men; you will ſay, theſe were the cauſes of much ſin to the people: No, ſaith the Text, the peoples ſinnes were the cauſe of ſuch Miniſters. The Prophet is a fool, the ſpirituall man mad, for the multitude of thine iniquity. Theſe foure exceptions then there be of the point. Otherwiſe the point is too true, that the Miniſter may be in fault that the people are dead.

You ſee here the Church of Sardis was grown dead, and the Lord faults the Angel of the Church for it. I know thy works, that thou art dead. The like is ſaid of Laodicea. Laodicea was grown horrible lukewarme, no zeale of God, they were neither hot nor cold, and the Lord imputes it to the Angel of Laodicea: I know thy workes, that thou art neither hot nor cold, and therefore I will ſpue thee out of my mouth, Revel. 3.14 15.16. The ſame is ſaid of the Church of Epheſus, that they had left their firſt love, and yet the Lord hit the Angel in the teeth with it, I have ſomewhat againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt left thy first love, Revel. 2. 4. Beloved, the last day I spake of the Ministers concord and unity, to the Angel of the Church, all the Ministers should be as one man, as if they made up one and the same Angel. And therefore our Saviour Christ made choice of Brethren, and Kinsfolks, Simon and Andrew his Brother, James and John his Brother. St. Peters Bark is a fisher-boat, not a man of War, it is not furnisht with mortall Engines, but onely with nets to catch fish. If Peter were reproved for drawing upon Malchus, what reproofe had he bin worthy of, if he had drawn up any of his fellowes? this was the Theme that we spake of the last day. Now then let us speake of the influence that a Minister hath in his people, he may be the cause of his peoples deadnesse, if he do not take heed. And this he may be three wayes; first, by his not preaching; secondly, by his dead manner of preaching; thirdly, by his dead manner of Life and Conversation.

First, I say, by his not preaching; ye know the Word of God is the word of life, Phil 2. 16. The word is that which quickneth the heart, as David saith; Thy word hath quickned me, Psal. 119 50. Now when Ministers do not preach it, this deads peoples hearts; We see this in those places where the due preaching of the Word is wanting, people are dead to all goodnesse, nay, they that had some quicknesse in them before, do lose them more and more. As Solomon saith, where there is no vision the people perish, Pro. 29. 18. that is, where preaching is defective, the people die, they are spiritually dead in trespasses, and in sins. Can a man live without bread, or without food? no more can people live without constant preaching. The word is the bread of life, now when this is not broken unto people, they must needs die. Mark how Zachary describes them that are without preaching, They are such as sit in darknesse, and in the shadow of death, Luk. 1 79 that is, they are blind, and ignorant, and livelesse, dead while they live, they are wicked and abominable, in the power of Satan, under the wrath of God, strangers from the life of God; such Ministers as do not preach constantly, they are soule-murtherers, they are guilty of their peoples blood, they do not give them that which should quicken them up unto eternall life; they should quicken them up unto newnesse of life, but they do not; they should powre in the words of eternall life into their hearts, but they do not; people are naturally dead to prayer, and dead to communion with God, and dead to all holinesse, they have no heart to pureneſse and righteousnesse of walking, and such Ministers do not study to revive them.

Secondly, as a Minister may be the cause of his peoples deadnesse by his not preaching, so he may be the cause of their deadnesse by his preaching, when the manner of it is dead. Preaching may be dead in the manner of it, seven wayes.

First, When it is too generall, when they preach only in generall. That which we say is very good, for the generall, but we do no apply our selves to every particular mans Conscience, this deads peoples hearts. Beloved, it is particular Preaching that does people good; When Nathan told David, thou art the man, 2 Sam. 12 7. This stirred Davids heart. When Peter had said to his hearers, Ye have crucified Christ, Act. 2. 36. This prickt them to the heart. Generall preaching cannot quicken. First, because generalls cannot act. Nihil est singulare in, as we say. It's onely a particular, works. Let a man preach home and in particular, and this wil work on the hearers. This made Michah a powerfull Preacher, when he preached particularly to his peoples Conscience. Truly, I am full of power by the Spirit of the Lord, and of judgement, and of might, to declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin, Mic. 3. 8 this made him a powerfull Prophet to quicken up his people, because he told every man his sin, and smote every mans conscience for his transgression. No man is stirred till he feeles his case laid open, till he sees the the Minister beates upon him, and hit him, till the Minister treads hard upon his toes, he will never cry out.

Secondly, Generall preaching leaves the Sermon to the people to apply it; now the people will never apply it while the world stands. Nay, David himselfe would not apply, as long as Nathan dealt with him in generall, as long as Nathan was speaking of a man in the clouds, a rich man that had wronged a poor man, Davids heart was as whole as a fish, till he came to Thou art him. Now he cryes out, I have sinned. Nathan was fain to make application: For David would never have done it else. Will a manly Boy ever whip himselfe? the Master may lay the rod before him, but except the Master lay it on, he will goe scot-free if he can. The words of the Wise are as goads and as nailes fastened by the Masters of Assemblies, Eccles. 12. 11. Mark, the Masters of Assemblies must fasten them into the post, lay the nailes by, the post it self will never knock them in; So, though the Sermon be never so good a naile; yet he must knock it in, the people will never doe it. The Prophet Jehu must come and say to Jehoshaphat, Shouldst thou help the ungodly? Wrath is upon thee from the Lord, 2 Chr. 19. 2. He fastened in the naile, though Jehoshaphat were a good man, yet the Prophet knew he would not doe it. Nay, people are so farre from applying the word unto themselves, that they will apply it to any body else rather than to themselves, the Minister met with such a one to day, there was a lesson for him: But none will say, this was for me, and I am a vile wretch, and vengeance hangs over me, unlesse I doe amend, and therefore certainly generall preaching is a dead manner of preaching.

Thirdly, Generall Preaching is confused, when Ministers tell people they must repent, and believe, and serve God, and be godly, and carry themselves well, in all their places and callings. When they doe thus in generall, this is like, as if the trump should give an uncertaine sound, like the noise in a battle, a confused noise, as the Prophet speakes, Esa. 9. 5. Like the confusion in Ephesus, Great is Diana of the Ephesians, they kept a great stir, Act. 19. 32. the Text saith, The Assembly was confused, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together, so while we preach onely in the generall, Great is the Lord Jesus Christ, and we are great sinners, and great is the need of repentance, but we neither tell the people how, nor when, nor who, nor what: may be our Sermons may keep some pudder in mens Consciences, but people have no distinct edification, they goe away and say, O it was a very godly Sermon, I pray God give us grace to follow it! But no man is the better. They hear admirable things about repentance, but they are not taught how to goe about it, there they are at a losse. They remember gracious things about the serving of God, and about a good Conscience, and the like. But they know not how in the earth to set about these things to any purpose: if ever we would quicken our peoples hearts, we must let them see distinctly, the will of God concerning them, the particular meanes, and helps, and signs of it, the particular motives, and arguments to it, the particular circumstances of it, the particular hinderances, lets, and impediments of doing of it, and you can never doe the will of God, as long as ye doe thus and thus, and this course will break your neck, this practise of yours will be your utter undoing: when people hear distinct preaching, this doth them good, if any thing will. Generall Preaching is like the setting of good Physick before the patient, without giving him directions for the taking of it.

Fourthly, Generall Preaching is deceitfull, Est dolus in generalibus, as we say, there is deceit in the generalls, we Preach that people must love God, and fear him, and thank him, and they must be new men, and they must leave their sinnes, and they must pray, and heare the Word, and they must doe every thing to Gods glory. Now mark what deceit there is in such preaching as this, this is in the generall: People goe away and deceive themselves in the particular. They think they serve God, and they love God, or else they were not worthy to live, they think they say their prayers every day, and that they are thankfull unto him, they never eate their meat, but they say grace, they never recover out of sickneſſe, but they bleſſe God; whereas if he should deale with theſe men in particular, it would appeare, they are haters of God, they are graceleſſe and unthankfull wretches, they never prayed true prayer to God in all their lives, hence it is that people generally like a generall Minister, Why? they can goe along with such a man and be heare whole. But now if a particular Minister should come and tell them they are worldly, and mockers of God and all goodneſſe, as they are in very good deed; they cannot abide him, they would say, Wherein? Such were the Jewes under the cleerly Ministery of the Priests. When Malachy deals particularly with them, saith he; Ye have deſpiſed the name of the Lord: Wherein ſay they? Mal. 1.6. Ye have wearied the Lord with your words: Wherein, ſay they, have we wearied him? Mal. 2.17. Ye have robbed God: Wherein have we robbed him, ſay they? Mal. 3.8. Your words have been ſtout againſt the Lord, yet their anſwer was, Wherein have we ſpoken ſo much againſt the Lord? Mal. 3.13. Odds nids! albeit Priests had taught them only in generall, and therefore when the Prophet came to deale particularly with them, and told them what vile courſes they took, they cryed, Wherein? and whereof? And why doe you say so of us? He was forced to come to particulars. Otherwiſe they would have gone away and bleſſed themſelves.

Fiftly, Generall Preaching lets people ſee their ſinnes if they will. But beloved this will doe no good, if we let you ſee your ſinnes, if you will, we muſt make you ſee your ſinnes. Son of man, cauſe Jeruſalem to know her abominations, Ezek. 16.2. We muſt not only let you underſtand, if ye will, it is ſaid of the good Priests, that they cauſed the people to underſtand, Neh. 8.8. Naturally people love their owne ſelves and their luſts, and they will not ſee them till they needs muſt, they doe not love to be preciſe, they will not willingly yeild that they muſt be ſo ſtrict, and ſo mortified, as the Lord Jeſus will have them, if they mean to be ſaved, and therefore if they can put it off, they will, ſhew them there is a difference between people and people, ſome are the people of God, and ſome are the children of the devill, ſome are the redeemed of Chriſt, and ſome have nothing to doe with Chriſt, ſome are clean, and ſome are unclean, though we ſhew them the difference between theſe two, they will ſhut their eyes if they can. Generall preaching does no more, it ſhewes them theſe things. But may be neither the Miniſter nor they will ſee for all that, now we muſt cauſe them to diſcern whether they will or no, if we can. They ſhall teach my people the difference between the holy and profane, and cauſe them to diſcern between the unclean, and the clean, Ezek. 44. 23. that is, tell them this is unclean, and this is clean, ſuch and ſuch perſons are prophane, and ſuch are holy: Hold it before their eyes, cauſe them to diſcern, this is the way to quicken mens hearts. Now Generall preaching does not doe thus. It onely puts the truth before men, that they may ſee if they will, but if they will not, it does not urge them, this deads our people, and does them no good, for people will not be awakened, as long as they can ſhift it.

Sixtly, Generall preaching is a-loft and a-looſe off, particular preaching is the moſt cloſe, and the moſt plain, and the moſt ſenſible preaching of all, if any preaching will ſink into peoples heads, this will: it makes the truth even ſenſible after a ſort, as King James ſaid of a Reverend Biſhop of this Land, that is now dead and gone: This man, ſaith he, Preaches as if death were at my back. So a preſſe Preacher preaches, as if death were at a mans back, as if judgement and hell were at a mans back, he brings the point home to the soules doore. Generalls preach to [illegible] Generalls preach to plained Arist. Mo. Lib. 1.

ſouls

ignorant people are most lukely saved. For plainely live seven yeares under a generall Teacher, and be never the bolder, such is Mistery breeds only swimming knowledge, it does not lay the Truth at every mans doore, may be they get knowledge, but their knowledge does them little good. It is said of the good Levites, that they taught the people the good knowledge of the Lord. Now (I say) Where such a knowledge of the Lord, as made the people good, they laid the truth at every mans doore, they preached to the people as if death were at their backs. They did lively teach them, and sensibly informe them, this did them good. Generall preaching is like an Arrow shot at rovers, that does not hit the mark, as if the Minister should lay his Sermon on his Cushion, and never dare to open his people before them. Alas, Brethren! if people did not taste the poison at their mouth, and like Scorpions in their sides, and swords in their bellies, they will feel nothing, in a reached preaching, where we make more shame to the faces of sinners, when we preach to them, and if they saw, when we set out Christ, as if he were palpable, so manifest, this gathering as to them, as Paul did to the Galatians, Who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, and crucified among you? Gal. 3. 1. as if he had preached Christ to them, yea even as if he had told him before their eyes, and therefore he asks, they were well bewitched that they could not see him, that ye should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, boughes. Then preach against drunkennesse, and intemperance, and malice, and hatred, and tale-bearing, and lying, and covetousnesse, and making of slaves, it is very good to preach against these things; and we must too, and let them know they are far from the Kingdome of God that live in these or any other such lusts. But this is only to strike at the boughes. If we would awake the consciences indeed, we must preach deeper than so. The axe it laid at the roote of the trees, Matt. 3. 10. Saith the Baptist, a lively Preacher; now the Text shewes he did not only strike at the boughes, but he laid his axe at the roote of the tree. When Ministers preach only good Morall matter, this kind of preaching does not quicken.

First, because Morall preaching does not hit all, many are very Morall people, that have not the power of grace in their hearts. True, this may hit some. Paul told Felix of his intemperance, and how that there was a day of judgement to judge all such persons, this made him tremble. Felix trembled, saith the Text, Acts 24. 25. I say, Morall preaching may startle some, but it does not startle all. Many Heathens have been sober and temperate, and true in their speeches, and just in their dealings, and loving in their carriages, and painfull in their callings, as Paul saith, they have done by Nature, the things contained in the Law. Now ye know the Heathens are without grace, and are not acquainted with God, neither have they any communion with God, Powre out thy wrath upon the Heathen, that know thee not, Jer. 10. 25. Mark, they have no communion with God, they do not know Jesus Christ, nor the mysteries of the Gospel, so that a man may be very finely morall, and yet be without grace. Now there are Preachers should continue preaching such good Morall matter, as would go very well with their own hearts, though they have no grace.

Secondly, Morall preaching (though that it does hit, it does them indeed some good, but) it does them no true good, it never quickens them up unto to [illegible] it never [illegible] their lives, and so reforms them a little, but it never converts them; neither does it put them into Jesus Christ. Let a Preacher have never so much morall preaching, if he do not give over [illegible] upon it, this servant his heart, what does he say? Why then I will be sober, and [illegible] from Drunkenness, and [illegible] and I can tell you this is very rare too. But suppose it be, all may go to hell for all that. Suppose we do make all our [illegible] which we can [illegible] with Christ. No, no, a man must [illegible] and [illegible], and be made [illegible] himself, so must [illegible] and [illegible] to Christ, or else [illegible] he be cursed condition [illegible] the [illegible] of Heaven, that Christ may be all in all to him, that he may be led by the Spirit of Christ, and guided by the word of Christ, that he may [illegible] the [illegible] of Christ in Christ, that his mind may be [illegible] with Christ, and his [illegible] affections daily be inlarged to be [illegible] like unto Christ, and to live unto God in such. Now Morall [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Quarter-point Morall preaching absolutely, or [illegible] Morality is a very good thing. Who will not commend [illegible] that the [illegible] of his house, that he walked before God? Gen. 20. 5. We know how the Lord himself [illegible] of it, who will not say, but that the young man in the Gospel was a very commendable man, that had observed all these from his youth? Mark, the Text saith, That Christ, in some sence, did love him, Mark 10. 21. Now I told you Nicodemus was what an excellent thing Morality was. Said he, if thou wilt wash off thy sins, and be righteous, be meanes Morall righteousnesse towards men; if thou wilt shew mercy to the poore, (or as he God will lengthen thy tranquillity, Dan. 4. 27. The Prophet Esay tells the Moabites, what a deale of good they might do to themselves, selves, if they would but be morally honest: saith he, Take Counsell, execute Judgement, hide the out-casts, let mine out-casts be with thee, Esay. 16.3. 4. If thou wilt be kind and loving to my people, thou shalt fare the better. When the King of Babylon punished the wickednesse of Tyre, the Lord rewarded them very richly for it. I have given him the land of Egypt for his labour, saith God, because he wrought for me, Ezek. 29.20. Morall goodnesse is commended of God, as well as spirituall goodnesse in Jesus Christ; Nay, it is needfull that Ministers should insist very much in pressing of Morall duties, and the Godly are to be willing to hear such Sermons, to look to just dealing, to Civill honesty, to Justice between man and man; how aboundant is the Scripture in urging this Theame! It is thought by some, there is no Divinity in this, and such a Minister is not deep enough, and why does he stand so much upon such things as these, which the light of nature calls for? But these doe greatly erre, the Holy Ghost is carefull to urge such duties as these; to be honest. walke honestly towards them that are without, saith the Apostle, 1 Thes. 4.12. Let us walke honestly as in the day, saith he, Rom. 13.13. Provide things honest in the sight of all men, Rom. 12.17. Nay, honesty, civill honesty between man and man is a sweet thing, the Apostle himselfe brings it, among other things, as a testimony of his sincerity: we trust we have a good conscience in all things willing to live honestly, Heb. 13.18. O it is an excellent beauty to a servant of Jesus Christ, when his Moralls are sound, and exemplary, and there cannot be any thing that will make the profession of Religion odious in the eyes of the world, then want of Morality, when Christians faile palpably in their Moralls. May be such a one thou wilt think, comes farre short of thee in grace, in the knowledge of good, in the beliefe of the Truth, in a spirituall insight into the Mystery of Christ; O then count it a shame that he should goe before thee in the keeping of his Word. There cannot be a greater dishonour unto God, then when a naturall man shall be able to accuse thee of any dishonesty in any kind. The Spirit of God lets it downe as a great shame upon Sarah, that Abimelech, a Heathen man, should be able to reprove her; Thus was she reproved, saith the Text, Gen. 20.16. When Jacob perceived that his Sons had sinned against morall honesty, there in the matter of Shechem: O, saith he, ye have made me to stink among the Inhabitants of the land, Gen. 34.30. Ye have troubled me, saith he, it was a great grief of heart to the good man, he knew this would be a great dishonour to God, as well as a shame unto himselfe, & therefore God forbid I should speak against a Ministers speaking for morality.

Yet, Beloved this know, that this is not enough, a man may profess the name of Christ, & think verily that he believes in Jesus Christ, & be a very admirable Morall man, & yet never quickned up to the grace of life. St. Paul shewes this plainly in himselfe. I might have confidence in the flesh, if any other man might trust to that, I might, being circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the Tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews, as touching the Law a Pharisee. Phil. 3.4.5.6.9. if any fine-carriaged man under heaven could hope he is right, I could before my conversion. I was admitted into the Congregation of Christ by the Sacrament of circumcision: I was born in the true Church of God, I had godly Parents, I was of the Common-wealth of Israel, Nay, I was a Pharisee, which was so admirable a strict order, that after his conversion, he was not ashamed to be still called a Pharisee. I am a Pharisee, and the son of a Pharisee, sayes he, Act. 23.6. He cals himself a Pharisee still: Nay he was zealous, & concerning the righteousnes of the Law, he was a very blamelesse man; so that if any fair carriaged man under Heaven were right, he was right. But the truth is, S. Paul confesses that when God came to open his eyes, he findes that he was a dead man, a vile wretch: he shews he had gone there to hel for all this, if God had not converted him. So that morality is a poor thing. And yet people make it their Idoll & trust to it, & think certainly they are the children of God, certainly they shall have mercy, certainly they shall to heaven. And how many Ministers make this to be true Religion and preach nothing but this? This then is another way, whereby Ministers do leave a dead Congregation by moral preaching.

Thirdly, a flat preaching, is, when there is no keennesse in our Sermons, when we do not strive to stagger mens consciences that are to be staggered. When a man goes in a track, preaches true doctrine, though it were to be wished that more Ministers would do thus: This does not hunt the heart out of its owne starting holes: this Ministery leaves people dead. It is said of our Saviour Christ, that the people were astonished at his Doctrine, Mat. 7.28. he stun'd their consciences, he set them at a stand: so if a Minister would quicken, he should labour to set the wicked at a stun. Ye know, every wicked one gets somewhat or other to hang on, to hope they shall not be damned for all they are no better, Now when a Minister sets himselfe to put his hearers to a stun, still to startle conscience in an astonishing manner, to flash the bare truth into the soule, and to make men see their bad estates, this is quickning preaching. But when a mans Ministery is co'd, there is nothing to stun the heart, their heart may have its starting holes for all it, his Ministery does not labour to meet with them, this leaves people dead; a Minister that still goes on in a track, can never looke to quicken.

First, because a good Minister must make Conscience to bring out new things, as our Saviour Christ speaks: The Kingdome of Heaven is like unto an Housholder, that bringeth out of his treasure things new and old, Mat. 13.52. that is, though he bring none but the old things that were brought before, yet still he brings them forth as new: He labours to keep the Word still new unto the heart, the reason is this, when people have once been convinced of the truth, presently it growes stale to them, & so they are subject not to be quickned by it at all. O this we knew before, & so the heart makes little or nothing of it. I knew this before. Now when the Ministery of the Word darts it in a-new, and makes it look still with a fresh look upon the conscience, this is a quickning Ministery. Like a a man that keeps his Barrell still fresh, when a man gives the drinker still fresh from the Barrell: so when a Minister preaches still fresh from the Word. But when a Minister doth not do thus, he is like a man that gives one liquor that hath stood a great while in the Cup, it growes dead.

Secondly, Because a good Minister must go further and further, or else he cannot quicken. My meaning is this, the more people are convinced by the Word, the more subtilties still the heart doth devise; the more word is in the Conscience, the more wiles the heart mints, the Devill also prompting thereunto: so that if a Minister do not follow mens hearts still further and further, this will leave the people dead. The reason is this, Because when the heart hath once invented a wile to maintaine its own hopes for all the same truth, we may preach the truth all the dayes of our life, it will never quicken that mans heart: because still when he heares that truth, he hath a wile lying by him that still defends himselfe from it: so that there is necessity for a Minister to go further and further. The word of God is a deep mine, there is no bottome, a man may still dig deeper and deeper, Thy judgments are a great deep, Psal. 36.6. When the Minister besieges the heart, he is to dig round about it, and dig deeper and deeper. Still as the heart bears it selfe, he is to come with more and more supplyes out of the Word against it. It is a strange thing to see how deep Ministers have gone, and yet people arme themselves against the Word of God and are not converted by it. Tell them they must be new creatures, they confesse it, & though they be none, yet they have many faire colours to hope they are: Tell them of Communion with God and fellowship with his Son Jesus Christ, and heavenly-mindednesse, and hatred of all sin, love to universall obedience, plucking out their right eyes, looking at the Glory of God, not to trust in their performances: to goe out of themſelves; People make a ſhift to have ſomething to anſwer all; All theſe things they hope they have done, in ſome meaſure. Now when Miniſters go on and on, and do not go further and further, this leaves ſuch people dead. It is ſaid of a Preacher that is wiſe, that he ſtill teaches the people knowledge. Because the Preacher was wiſe, he ſtill taught the people knowledge. Eccleſ. 12. 9. That is, people could never come to him, but ſtill he made them know more and more. You will ſay, how can a Preacher doe thus?

out

I anſwer, if a Preacher be well ſtudied in his owne heart, and in the Book of God, this will help him to doe. For ſtill as he ſees further into his owne heart, ſtill he will ſee further into the Word of God, and he will more and more light. It is ſaid of Chriſts Miniſtery, That it is the light ſhining up, Mat. 4. 16. So, this is a true Miniſtery indeed, when the light ſprings up in it. Yee know in a Spring, the water ſtrengthens more and more; now when a Miniſter goes on in a track, and does not doe thus, this is a dead Miniſtery. This is the third thing, Viz. Preaching leaves people dead in hell.

Fourthly, Cold preaching too; when a Miniſter preaches coldly, when the Word floweth coldly from his mouth, when cold hides the affection and power of the Word from the people by the coldneſs of his uttering of it. Beloved, the Word is full of affections; what a deale of affection is there in all the Truths of the Goſpel; they are all ſteept in the warm blood of the Son of God, there is affection in the promiſes, they proceed from the tender bowels of God: Affection in the threatnings, they ſhine from the infinite wrath of God againſt ſin; The Word of God is hot. Jer. 23. 29. Now when a Miniſter ſhall preach the Word coldly, he preaches this Word otherwiſe than it is: He does as much as in him lies, to hide the affectionateneſſe of the Word from the peoples hearts. Suppoſe that two were all on fire, would ye not count the man a ridiculous man, that ſhould come to them, and tell a ſtory? Sirs, let me tell you a thing, there is a great fire in the Town, and I verily thinke it may burn all the Town, and you ſhould do well to go and quench it: This man tels us ſo indeed, but would you not count him a fool, for telling us ſuch a thing, in a cold careleſſe manner, as if it were a ſmall matter? Nature teacheth us another mouth in ſuch a caſe. Fire, fire, help, O help, for the Lords ſake, water, water, in all haſte. Alas alas, we are undone quickly, run for ladders, run for buckets, run for your leathern ſhal you and villaine, run apace for hook, hook and the like. Thus nature teaches to deliver ſuch a truth that does ſo nearly concerne us, affectionately. So it is here, Brethren, what weighty things does the Word contain? Truths that our very bowels ſhould yerne, and we ſhould powre out our affections in the Pulpit, that we may ſhew by our delivery, what they are. Now, when this is not done, the deads peoples hearts they ſleep quiet at a Sermon, though they heare of matters of life and death, eternall life, ſalvation and damnation. Yet they ſit like blocks in their ſeats, as though it were no great matter. Why, they heare one ſtanding in the Pulpit, as though he were ſaying his leſſon; wicked people will not believe they are going to hell, though we tell them they will not believe the wayes of Jeſus Chriſt are ſo good as they are, though we tell them. It is a pretty ſtory of Demoſthenes, when one told him that he was beaten and miſuſed by ſuch a man, it ſeems he told it very dreamingly, and coldly, ſhewing no affection at all. Why, ſaith Demoſthenes, hath he beaten thee? I do not believe it. Nay ſaith the man, and ſo the man was as it were in a great paſſion, I am ſure thus and thus he did to me, and do not you call this beating? Nay, ſaith Demoſthenes, now I believe he hath beaten thee indeed. Now you ſpeak as ye had been beaten, as ye ſay. So when a Miniſter preaches unto people in a dreaming manner, though the things be never ſo weighty, yet they will not believe them. He ſaith in a cold manner, that Drunkards are in a bad caſe, and ſuch and ſuch perſons are in a ſad condition, and ſaith, yee muſt repent, or you will all periſh; but people heare him ſpeake ſo frigidly of theſe things, that they will not enter into their hearts. If theſe things were preached as they ſhould be, it would make people quake. It is ſaid of our Saviour, That when he was teaching, the Diſciples hearts burned within them, Luk. 24.32. 'Did not our hearts burn within us, when, &c. Keckermun makes that to be the meaning of St. Matthew, where he ſaith that our Saviour taught with Authority, and not as the Scribes; that is, ſaith he, he did not preach coldly, but with life and zeale, and this went with Authority.

Now the manner of preaching is cold two wayes, and ſo dead.

Firſt, when it flowes not from the heart, for then it is unlikely that ever it will goe unto the heart. Pectus facit eſſe diſertos. The heart is the beſt Oratory, as Paul ſaith, What do you weeping and breaking my heart? Acts xx. 18. they ſpake ſo heartily, and affectionately, and meekingly to him, this burſt his very heart. In the 17 of Acts the 16 verſe, it is ſaid, Pauls ſpirit was ſtirred in him, to ſee all Athens given to Idolatry: He was inwardly moved in his own heart, in his preaching unto them Now if you look into the 34 ver. of that Chapter, how this quickned ſome there; Dionyſius, and Damaris, and ſome others cleaved unto him: that is, he preached ſo movingly, that he made their very ſoules cleave unto him, Why? he ſpake from his heart. There be many clamorous Preachers, ſaith Calvin, who declame againſt the ſinnes of the people, and thunder againſt them; nay as though they had a great deale of zeale; and yet never move a jot, becauſe themſelves have a dead heart, and a ſecure heart, the people ſee through their actings, that they are not moved themſelves, and therefore this does not move them neither: when people can ſee through a Miniſter, that he doth not preach once of his own heart, this deadeth their hearts; God bad Ezekiel eate the Book, &c.

Secondly, The manner of preaching is cold, when the Sermon is not delivered in a lively manner, when he preaches dully and bluntly. The Apoſtle ſhewes in the firſt of the Coloſſians, that Epaphras did a great deale of good in his Miniſtery at Coloſſe. Now in the 4 of the Coloſſians and the 13 verſe, the Apoſtle ſaith, he was a zealous Preacher; I beare him record, ſaith he, that he hath a great zeale for you. But when a Miniſter hath a cold delivery, this is a great hinderance to the Word.

You will ſay, how can this be? Is it not the ſame word whether preached coldly, or with heat? Yes it is: But the Word hath two things in it: firſt, the bare naked truth: ſecondly, the fatherly affectionatenesſe of God in the ſame. Now a zealous Miniſter, lets the people, in ſome meaſure, ſee both; but a dull Miniſtery holds out the one, and hideth the other. Againe, though the Word only converts, it is not the Miniſter that workes, but the Word; yet the Miniſter is appointed of God to be a meanes to draw peoples attentions to the Word. Now when he does it in a cold manner, the people are the more apt to let fall their attentions, and not mark it. Thus you ſee how a Miniſter may be guilty of the deadneſſe of his people two wayes, firſt, by his not preaching at all, Secondly, by his dead manner of preaching.

There is one more yet remaines, and that is, Thirdly, by his dead life and converſation, an evill life in the Miniſter, makes preaching ſeem vile, when he makes it appeare by his courſe, that he makes no conſcience of framing his life according to his own teaching: Is ſtrict in the Pulpit, and diſſolute in the ſtreet: I confeſſe many are ready to quarrell with the lives of their Teachers without cauſe, as the falſe Apoſtles with Paul, as though he were carnall, 2 Cor. 10.2. But when a man will be a Miniſter, and yet walk like men hating to be reformed, and running into the ſame exceſſe of riot with others; how doth this hinder peoples hearts, and deadeth the Doctrine it ſelfe? It makes preaching ſeeme but a toy. When a man will ſeeme to perſwade to that which he neglects himſelf, and to cry out againſt that, of which himhimſelfe doth make a common practiſe. Let no man deſpiſe thee, ſayes Paul unto Timothy. You will ſay, how ſhall that be? Be you an example unto them that believe. 1 Tim. 4.12. But I am prevented of time. There is nothing that more deads a mans Miniſtery than this, when the people know in their Conſciences, that the Miniſter is as vile as one of them. Let him preach never ſo excellent things, they will ſay, alas, alas! We know he loves his penny, he loves the pot, he is not right, no more than one of us. But I am forced to give over.

The Uſe of this is, Firſt, Is it ſo, that a Miniſter may be the cauſe why the people are dead? Then here we ſee the reaſon why the Devill is ſo buſie to poyſon Miniſters. He knowes, if he can poyſon them, he can quickly poyſon all the Pariſh well-near. Simon, Simon, Satan hath deſired to ſift thee, Luke 22.3. When Joſhua was exerciſing the office of the High-Prieſt, Satan ſtood at his right hand, Zech 3.1. The devill is like the Syrians. O ſayes he, fight neither againſt ſmall nor great, ſave only againſt the King of Iſrael: If they could ſlay him, they knew they ſhould quickly take his Army; ſo if the devill can take the Miniſter, he cares not if he can make him a Worldling, or a Drunkard, or a Drone, or a Pluraliſt, that is it he deſires. The deading of one Miniſter, deads an hundred others, if he can be a lying ſpirit in a Miniſters mouth, he is able to deceive two hundred at once. Uſe 1.

Secondly, Here we ſee that Miniſters, of all men, ſhould have a care to be quickned. For if we be not quickned, Brethren, our guiltineſſe is very great, we ſhall involve many others in our ſinne: It will goe hard with every private perſon that is dead to all goodneſſe: He cannot be ſaved, he cannot eſcape the ſecond death. How then can a dead Miniſter eſcape, that hath not onely his owne deadneſſe to anſwer for, but alſo the deadneſſe of all his people? What ſayes the Lord to the Miniſters of the dead Churches of Sardis, Repent, repent, ſayes he, leſt I come againſt thee, as a thief, in an houre before thou art aware. Rev. 3.3. And therefore let us be awakened, that we may be quickned. Beloved, the times now are very dead, and we that are the Miniſters of the Church have let this deadneſſe in, our not being watchfull, our not being lively and ſtirring in our places, our not being quickned: O what wrath hangs upon us, if we doe not labour for life, that we may communicate it unto our people! The common deadneſſe up and down ſhould be an argument unto us to excite us. When Eliſha ſaw the badneſſe of the Church in his dayes, he was very earneſt to have the ſpirit of Elias doubled upon him, 2 Kings 2.9. We have need of a double ſpirit of the good Miniſters of God that were before us, the dayes doe require it, never was there more deadneſſe than now is. There are not many that profeſſe holineſſe at all, but of them that doe: O how many are dead, and without life! Now who ſhould be a meanes to quicken people but we? Uſe 2.

Thirdly, This ſhould teach good people to pray for their Miniſters: the more quickned the Miniſters be, it is the better for them. But if they be dead, the infection will deſcend down into you. When Paul and Silas went out to preach, the Text ſayes, They were commended by the brethren to the grace of God, Acts. 15.40. Uſe 3.

Fourthly, This ſhould be an exhortation to us of the Miniſtery, that we would take heed unto our ſelves and to all the Church of God that is committed unto our charge: That we would rouze up our ſelves, and ſpecially now, when there was never more need. When the children of Iſrael were about to goe back againe into Egypt, the Text ſayes, how Moſes and Aaron fell on their faces before all the Congregation of Iſrael, to beſeech them to forbear, Num. 14.5. They were ſo mightily affected with the peoples ſinne, that they fell upon their faces before them. Q. d. For the Lords ſake, and for your own ſouls ſake, take heed of this ſinne. What? will you pull all Uſe 4.

heaven about your eares? Will you provoke the living God against you? O my Brethren, take heed what ye doe, so we should doe, we should labour to be affected with our own and our peoples deadnesse. We should call upon them to be quickned. O be quickned, the Lord will not endure a dead people, get life if ye be wise, it is but a folly to have a name to live, except ye be alive indeed.

Now the way for us to quicken our people is, First, if we be good our selves. When Jehosaphat would encourage the Levites to quicken up the people, Sayes he, The Lord shall be with the good, 2 Chron. 19. 11. He will blesse your labours, he will strengthen your Sermons to doe good, though not to all, for the greatest part are not of God, yet unto his people; Nay, if we were good indeed, we might have hope to doe much good; as it is said of Barnabas, He was a good man, and much people were added to the Lord, Acts 11. 24.

Againe, Secondly, we should be earnest with God to quicken all our hearts, that so we may the better quicken our Brethren, as Christ sayes to Peter, When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren, so we should desire God to quicken us, that we may quicken our brethren, that we may wash out hands of our people. What an excellent comfort was that unto Paul, When he could take his people to record, that he was pure from the bloud of all men, Acts 20 26.

Thirdly, We should mark which of our people are dead, Ezek 8. 9. And then think, what are not we guilty of his deadnesse?

Fourthly, Let us lay about us soundly, that we may not be guilty of their sinnes in any kind.

Use 5. Fifthly, Another Use is to let us see, what a great danger Ministers are in, they may be guilty of all the evil in their Parish if they doe not their duty, which is a great thing to doe, they have all the sinnes of their Parish lying at their doore, this should keep us from security and from pride, many grow proud that they are Ministers, but alas! They know not what an Office they have that doe so. Our very calling should make our hearts tremble and quake to think what a charge is imposed upon us. This made Moses and Aaron and many a good man more, so fearfull to enter upon this Function. No man taketh this honour unto himself, saith the Apostle (meaning no godly man, no man in his right wits, no man that well advised what he doth) but he that is called, Heb 5. 4. as our Saviour Christ saith, Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that he would send forth labourers into his Harvest, Matth. 9. 38. ἐκβάλῃ, so it is in the Originall, that he would thrust forth labourers into his Harvest, q. d. God will have no good labourers, since those that are good are not over-forward to enter into the Ministery, as a Father sayes, it is a burden that the very Angels shoulders would tremble under, as the Apostle said, Who is sufficient for these things? If there were no other Argument but this in the Text, it might keep all Ministers hearts in the world, least we be guilty of our own deadnesse, and of others also.

Note.

Another Use should be to the people, that they would be forward, and willing to heare, and greedy to drink in the Word of life. The want of this is the deading of many a Ministers heart. I was in much bitternesse, saith Ezekiel, but the hand of the Lord was strong upon me, Ezek 3. 14. that is, I had had no heart at all to preach, but that the hand of the Lord was exceedingly assistant unto me: whereas the forwardnesse of people is a great meanes to quicken up their Ministers. When the whole City flocked in to heare Paul, though the wicked were mad at it, the Text saith, He grew bold, Acts 13. 44. 45. When the people crowded in upon our Saviour, that he had not so much as time to eate bread, Mark 3. 20. the Text shewes that he so bestirred himself there, that his own Kinsfolk thought he had been mad, verse 21.

REVEL. III.

And unto the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write: Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, &c.

WE have done with the Inſcription, And unto the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write. We come now to the Subſcription, and that is in theſe words: Theſe things ſaith that he hath the ſeven ſpirits of God, & the ſeven Stars; Which words containe a deſcription of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, from whom this Epiſtle is ſent unto the Church, and he is deſcribed very gloriouſly, to the intent that what he ſayes, may be the more reverently and ſeriouſly regarded. The Deſcription ſets forth two admirable properties and royalties of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; Firſt, That he hath the ſeven Spirits of God, that is, he hath the Holy Ghoſt, to give to whomſoever he pleaſe. Secondly, That he hath the ſeven Stars, that is the Paſtors and Miniſters of the Church. Chriſt hath them all in his hand, to ſend them, to gift them, to aſſiſt them, to preſerve them, to vouchſafe them to a people, or to take them away, as he liſts; and the Miniſters are called Stars, becauſe they are to ſhine in the firmament of the Church.

Firſt then, the firſt royalty of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, is, that he hath the ſeven Spirits of God: by the ſeven Spirits of God, he means the Holy Ghoſt; you will ſay the Holy Ghoſt is but one Spirit. By one Spirit we are all baptized into one body, 1 Cor. 12.13. There is one Body and one Spirit, Eph. 4.4. Through him, we both have an acceſſe by one Spirit unto the Father, Epheſ. 2.18. The Spirit of God is but one. Ye know there is but one God, in three perſons: one Father, one Sonne, one Holy Spirit. There be three that beare record in Heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghoſt, and theſe three are one, 1 Joh 5.7. there is but one Father, and one Son, whom the Apoſtle there calls the Word, for ſo he is often called in the Scripture. The Word was made fleſh, that is, the Sonne of God was made fleſh: ſo there is but one Holy Ghoſt, one holy Spirit. Why then does the Text here ſay of Chriſt, that he hath the ſeven Spirits of God?

I Anſwer, ye may know that the Revelation uſes peculiar phraſes, auguſt, and myſticall. Now the reaſon why John ſpeaks thus in the plurall number, is;

Firſt, becauſe he alludes to the manner of his Viſions; now in his Viſions, the holy Ghoſt was thus repreſented unto him, as ye may ſee, Rev. 4.5. where he ſaw ſeven Lamps of fire burning before the Throne, which are the ſeven Spirits of God. So Again, Rev. 5 6. Where he ſaw a Lamb, as it had been ſlaine, having ſeven horns, and ſeven eyes, which are the ſeven Spirits of God, ſent forth into all the earth. So that this is one reaſon why he calls the Holy Ghoſt the ſeven Spirits of God, becauſe he ſpeaks after this manner, of the Viſion that he ſaw.

Secondly, another reaſon is, becauſe he was to write to the ſeven Churches of Aſia. Now he ſpeaks of the Holy Ghoſt in the ſame number, becauſe that one and the ſame Holy Ghoſt, is ſeverally and intirely powred upon them all. The Spirit of God was in Epheſus, and the Spirit of God was in Smyrna, and the Spirit of God was in Pergamos, and ſo in Thyatira, and ſo in Sardis and Philadelphia, and Laodicea: and therefore he calls him the ſeven Spirits of God, though he be but one and the ſame Spirit.

Thirdly, he calls him the ſeven Spirits of God, by a common Metonymie, of putting the effects for the cauſe, becauſe there be many and ſundry gifts and graces of the holy Spirit of God; the number ſeven being put to ſignifie the perfection of them, and the univerſallneſſe of them.

Now

Now that the ſeven Spirits of God, are nothing elſe, but that one and the ſame holy Spirit of God, is plaine, out of Rev. 1.4,5. John, to the ſeven Churches in Aſia: Grace be unto you, and peace from him, which is, and which was, and which is to come, and from the ſeven Spirits which are before his Throne, and from Jeſus Chriſt, which is the faithfull witneſſe. Which words are St. Johns ſaluting of the ſeven Churches in Aſia, wherein he wiſhes them all grace from the bleſſed Trinity, 2.d Grace be to you and peace from God the Father, & from the holy Spirit of God, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the faithfull & true witneſs: Calling the Father, which was, and is, and is to come, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the faithfu & true witneſs, & the Holy Ghoſt, the ſeven Spirits of God. It is the very ſelf ſame ſalutation that Paul uſes in all his Epiſtles, in effect; ſaving that, this is more full, and more lofty and auguſt. Now then by the ſeven Spirits of God, he cannot mean any creature or creatures, as Angels, or ſo: but he muſt needs meane the holy Ghoſt, becauſe he prayes for grace from the ſeven Spirits of God, which no creature is able to give. Yee know, God only can give grace, God only is the Author of all grace: He only can juſtifie, and ſanctifie, and quicken, and give a man eternall life, as James, Every good and perfect gift commeth from above, James 1.17. It were Idolatry in John, to wiſh to the Churches grace from the ſeven Spirits of God, if he meant by them any Angels, or any other creatures. We might worſhip the Angels, if they were able to give us grace. we might pray to them, and ſerve them, and feare them, and adore them, if they could be the Authors of grace to us. Now this is Idolatry. Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him only ſhalt thou ſerve, Matth. 4.10. Of him, and through him, and to him are all things, to whom be glory for ever, Amen Rom. 11. 36. Yee know it is the glory of God to be the Cauſe of all grace. Now what ſayes God? I am the Lord, that is my Name, and my glory will I not give to another. Iſa. 42. 8. Well then you ſee what is here meant by the ſeven Spirits of God, even the holy Ghoſt himſelfe, that one and the ſame holy Spirit of God. Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, that is, theſe things ſaith Chriſt, that hath the holy Spirit of God, to give him to whomſoever he pleaſes.

Not as though that were all, that Chriſt hath the holy Spirit of God, for ſo Paul had the holy Spirit of God, I ſuppoſe alſo that I have the Spirit of God, 1 Cor. 7,40. So Peter and David, and all the Saints, all the people of God have the holy Spirit of God, nay, a man is dead in treſpaſſes and ſinnes, and is a meer carkaſſe, like a dead body without a ſoule, that hath not the holy Spirit of God, therefore that is not all the meaning of it, that Chriſt hath the holy Spirit of God, for ſo all the children of God have him, and are quickned by him up to all goodneſſe: But Chriſt hath the holy Spirit of God, that is, he hath him to give to whomſoever he pleaſes.

But it may be objected, Is it not God the Father that gives the holy Spirit to all his poor children?

I Anſwer, Yes, it is very true, he hath him to give to whomſoever he is pleaſed to give him, for the Holy Ghoſt is his Spirit as well as Chriſts, he flowes from them both. And therefore ſaith our Saviour, How much more ſhall your Heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to them that aske him? Luke 11. 13. So that the Father gives the holy Spirit to whom he will, but it is in Chriſts name, Chriſt is the ſtore-houſe of this gift. When the Father gives his holy Spirit unto any man, it is onely in Chriſts name, as himſelf ſpeaks: The Comforter which is the Holy Ghoſt, whom the Father will ſend in my name, He ſhall teach you all things, Joh. 14.26. Mark, it is onely in Chriſts name.

Doctrine. Well, now we ſee the point, That Chriſt onely hath the Holy Spirit of God to give to whom he pleaſes: If any poor creature would fain have the holy Spirit of God to be in him, he muſt come to Chriſt for him. Though the barrell be never ſo full of good Wine, yet when it is hoopt round about, if one would have have any, he muſt draw it at the tap: ſo, Beloved, the Lord hath hoopt himſelfe up from men, he hath cloſed himſelf up from all men, by reaſon of mens ſins, he hath ſhut himſelf up, no man can have any of his holy Spirit, but he muſt come & draw it at the tap: he muſt come to Jeſus Chriſt, the Lord vents himſelf only in him, as Chriſt ſaith, he that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath ſaid, Out of him ſhall flow rivers of living water. What is that? this ſpake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him ſhould receive, Joh. 7. 38. 39. Mark, Chriſt is the tap, ye muſt come to him by true believing, or ye cannot receive any of Gods holy Spirit. He only hath him to give to them that do embrace him. From him proceed all the graces of the Spirit that any men do enjoy. This is his Royalty, as being the only King and Head of the Church, and the opened fountain, that all that would be ſaved muſt repaire unto. He is the beginning of the Holy Ghoſt, the Holy Ghoſt proceedeth from him, as he is the Son of God, & as he is man, he is anointed with him. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, ſaith he, Luk. 4. 18. Ho, every one that would have him, come unto me, for him. Away with your ſins & take me, abhor all your own wayes, ſee what damnable Creatures ye are in your ſelves, whither your luſts and corruptions carry you, what will become of you, if ye go on in your own paths? if ye would have grace, and mercy, and life, and ſalvation, come to me. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, to poure him upon you, that ye may be ſaved. I ſay, Chriſt is anointed with him, the Lord hath given him his Spirit in abundance, he hath enough ſpirit to infuſe into all that lay hold upon him, as John ſaith, God hath not given the Spirit by meaſure unto him Joh. 3. 34. No, he hath the holy Spirit without meaſure, he hath all ſtore of ſpirituall graces to afford to them that lack, a treaſurie of all heavenly bleſſings, to inrich all his poor diſtreſſed Members.

The Reaſons of this Point, why Chriſt only hath the holy Spirit of God, to give where he will, are three:

Firſt, Becauſe there is none but he, that God is well pleaſed in. God is Reaſ. 1. out with all the Sons of men, by reaſon of ſin and wickedneſſe, they are all baſe full unto him, they are odious in his ſight, & the whole world cannot make him and them friends again, that ever he ſhould give them grace and favour, much leſſe his holy Spirit. There is none in whom God is well pleaſed but in his Son. This is my well-beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed. Father, and Holy Ghoſt both came and reſted upon him, ſaying, This is the only He, in whom I am well pleaſed, Mat. 3. 16. 17. 9. If ye get him to be your Advocate, take him, and come unto me with him, then I will be friends with you, hee may helpe you with reconciliation with me, he may get me to give you my holy Spirit, I am well-pleaſed in him, and in none but him. This is one Reaſon, ſo that Chriſt only can put his holy Spirit into thy heart, and ſo ſend thee to his Father, As Paul put a loving mediating letter in Onefimus his pocket, and ſo ſent him to his Maſter: then he will be well-pleaſed with thee, when thou haſt Chriſts Letter of commendation about thee, then thou maiſt go to God from day to day, and be accepted with him: None can do this for thee but only Chriſt, he onely can put a mediating Letter in thy hand, he only can give thee the interceſſions of his holy Spirit. Thouſands goe to God in many duties from day to day, & becauſe they are without this, Chriſt hath not given his holy Spirit, therefore they are not accepted, God is not pleaſed with them, they pray without his Spirit, they cry God mercy without his Spirit, they ſeek to enter in without his Spirit, and ſo they are not admitted. Now when a ſoule comes to Chriſt, God is well-pleaſed with Chriſt, and therefore Chriſt can give him his love-token, Chriſt can give him the holy Spirit, and ſo he ſhall be admitted into favour with God. God is well-pleaſed in him. As Pharaoh was in Joſeph, and therefore Joſeph could preſent his Brethren unto Pharaoh, Gen. 47. 2. If any body elſe had preſented them, they ſhould never have found favour, but Joſeph could put acceptance upon them. Pharaoh was well pleased in him : So God is well pleased in his Sonne, and therefore he can do it, and none but He.

Reas. 2. Secondly, Another Reason is, Because the Holy Spirit of God will never enter into man more, except Gods Justice be satisfied God is resolved he will not put up those indignities that men offer unto him, except they bring with them one, in whom his wrath is appeased. As Saint John sayes, The Lambe slaine hath seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God, Rev. 5. 6. That is, he hath satisfied Gods Justice, and therefore he hath the holy Spirit of God so given, the holy Spirit of God will go to those men that he hath satisfied Gods Justice for, I say the holy Spirit of God will not go to any man, without satisfaction ; if any one will shew him satisfaction, then the Spirit of God will say, I will go where you will have me, onely let me have satisfaction. Now Beloved, Christ onely can say to the holy Spirit, come along with me to this man, here's a satisfaction unto Justice, therefore he onely hath the Spirit at his dispencing. And therefore if any man would have Gods holy Spirit, he must bring the Lambe slaine with him to God. Lord here I have a Lambe slaine, and now let me see thy face, now let me have thy Spirit, as David said to Abner, bring me Michol, or never thinke to see my face, 2 Sam 3. 13. q.d. never come to mee, except thou bring me my Michol with thee. The bringing of Michol with him, this might help him to see the Kings face. So, beloved, when a man getteth the Lord Jesus Christ, and brings him with him to God, this may help him to Gods holy Spirit. Bring him along with thee, and thou shalt see my face, thou shalt have my holy Spirit. Neither will God send thee his holy Spirit, neither will the holy Spirit come to thee otherwise. Christ only hath him to give, Have Christ and have him.

Reas. 3. Thirdly, another Reason is, why Christ hath the holy Spirit to give, because he is flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone, and we may go to him : he is the fittest to have him to give, because he being man aswell as we, we may make bold to go to him : My brethren, we are not able to go to God for any thing, much lesse for his Spirit, we are not able to look upon him immediately, as a man is not able to look upon the Sun beames in their strength, specially if he have sore eyes : But let him get a Scarfe, or a Cypresse, and now he may. Now the the Sun-beames will shine upon him through the Cypresse, and not hurt him. The Scarfe is able to convey unto him the Sunne-beames, without dazling of him. So, beloved, Christ is able to convey the holy Spirit of God into any man, our sore Consciences may look up to God thorough him, he moderates Gods looke, he can make us looke God in the face, in a comfortable manner. Now we may ask any thing of him, even his holy Spirit, and he will give him, as the Apostle sayes, By him we have boldnesse, Eph. 3. 1. 2. O, beloved, they are great things that we need. We have need of such great matters, that when the Conscience is awakened, it can have no hope to obtaine, that God should pardon such vile wretches as we, that he should accept of such poore services as our, that he should love such filthy ones as we are, that he should give us a Kingdome, and his own holy Spirit to enliven us, to establish our hearts, to be an earnest of Heaven to us : how can we hope he will give us such infinite mercies ? Now the Lord hath put all these blessings into the hands of his Son Jesus Christ, that is flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bones. Now we may boldly go to him for them. As Moses when his face shone, Aaron was afraid to come neare him, Exod 34. 30. Therefore he put a vaile over his face : Now Aaron and others were able to come nigh him ; so before, none were able to come to God for any thing, but now the Lord hath put a vaile of flesh upon himselfe by incarnating his owne Son, now we may make bold.

Use 1. The Use of this, is, First ; Is it so that Christ hath the seven Spirits of God ? Then, what hath he not ? He is an all-sufficient Saviour. He is Gods steward,

God

God hath put all the goods into his hands. Nothing can be asked of any thing that is good, but by coming unto him; all things are delivered to me of my Father, Mat. 11. 27. That is, I have as my Father hath Favour, Pardon, Mercy, Grace, Comfort, Heaven it self, yea and his holy Spirit and all: have the distributing of them all. He is the Treasurer unto whom we must go for all: we are to go to him for all manner of good things, as Joseph's Brethren must all receive of him, Gen. 42. 6. whatsoever things are ready, or that you have need of, have it all of him, for he is God's Steward, put into his hand for us, and no more than enough in him; he is the top Hierarch of God's Blessings and Graces, and Spirit that ever was. He is the Lord-Treasurer of Heaven and Earth, and whosoever hath any one would have Corn, they must go to Joseph for it, they must not come into Egypt but for a peck, or a gallon, precisely because and in the name of Joseph, as God hath Lord sends all that will have any thing of mercy, but in his Name, saying, Go to my Son, ye shall not have one drop of mercy but in my Son, my dearly dearly beloved Son, says he, look to your receiving all, or nothing at all from him. Look only him; be ruled by him; bow down and look to him alone as he bids you; strive anger him, and all things go cross unto him; if your hearts be not right, if your minds will not off from the world and other things, and bow down and unto him; if ye slight him and suffer vain thoughts to draw away your affections and thoughts and devotions from him, there is no other door for you to salvation but only by believing in his Name, he hath all the seven Spirits of God, no spirit of grace at all hath any but only of him, as the Rock, that Moses smote and out ran the glory of Gods goodness to the world, but only for him.

Use 2.

Secondly, Another use is this, that Christ the seven Spirits of God are not without excuse before be with but the holy Spirit of God. Christ in the Gospel gives and yet how few will seek him of Jesus Christ? Ask of Christ, says he, I will give you come unto me, that ye might have life, Joh. 5. 40. Christ would raise unto me, I would make you dead hearts to live, I would quicken you to all goodness, I would pour my holy Spirit upon you, any thing you will not come to me for it. This makes out all our excuse, when Christ hath given Spirit fully for all that have a mind to him, and will but make use of him, and go to this very day have gotten you Gods holy Spirit? God appoints you not the Spirit of supplication to pray, but to stir up your hearts to, enlarge your desires, to enable to wrestle with God in any purpose, no spirit, no gracious stirring in you. When you look on the divine of God, or hear Sermons but the holy Ghost does not help you to make the application, to bring to operation, to convert your souls to God, to take off your hearts from earth, to set to all holy duties, void of all lively graces, dull to every good thing, even as the body without the spirit is dead, so is the spirit of the World dwelling in most men, tying and binding them to the things here below, and will not let them move and reach after the things of heaven, whereby they cannot turn from sin, nor work the works of God. Rare is that man, and very few are which the holy Spirit of God remaining in him in any measure, if people were asked whether they have the Spirit of God, yea or no, I dare say the most dare not answer, No, they have not, they never felt any thing of Divine grace, their carnalness and unspiritualness of heart in all the Ordinances of God, their unacquaintedness with God, their unsuitableness and unlikeness unto him, their unwillingness in all the ways of piety, plainly shews the case to be; and they will not yield unto Christ that they might have life, and the Spirit of God, that they cannot draw, an idle heart cannot be diligent and strong with God, but upon the holy Spirit of God, which Christ hath appointed for this end to distribute to all especially to be a dispenser of the Spirit, and therein is the fault, want of the Spirit every where, where, in all Towns and Parishes, and yet hardly any will come in. Certainly, this is the condemnation, that men intend their pleasure, and their profits, and every outward thing and never seek to Jesus, to have the holy Spirit of God.

For first, many of us have hard hearts that cannot melt at our own sinnes, nor the publick provocations whereby God is provoked, nor the generall calamities of the Church: our hearts are like a stone, and we are not affected, not can be affected, no relenting at the Word, no bleeding in any other good duty, nothing moves us: the Spirit could soften, yea, and take the stone away, and Christ sayes he would give him unto us, if we did desire him, I will put a new spirit within you, and take the stony heart out of the flesh, Ezek. 11. 19. He hath spirit enough in him to do it, and yet we will not sue to him but in a feigned manner, and so a hard heart possesseth us still, which mars all our family-duties, and all that we do in the publick assemblies: nothing comes of all that we do. If our foolish hearts would come downe to be fervent after Christ, this might be remedied. He hath the seven Spirits of God for the nonce. But a spirit of slumber bewitches us, and nothing can awaken us to this very day. Never was there a more hard-hearted time, never more hard-hearted Christians, stupified, and past feeling, wishing indeed the things mought be mended, but never putting forth our hand to have them mended.

Secondly, scarce any of us can pray, but in a blunt-hearted wise: our prayers never stirre between, never give so much as a lift to any of our Lusts, neither are they any whit answerable to the miseries that are on us, whether Personall or Nationall: the Spirit could help us, and enlarge us, as Paul sayes of the good Romans, Ye have received the Spirit of Adoption, whereby ye cry, Abba Father, Rom. 8. 15. And Christ hath this Spirit in his hand, to give. But we would rather fit woulding and yawning than be down on our knees before God. Every one almost hath heavy things that he is conscious of, terrible guiltings, horrible misgivings, selfe-condemnings, uncertainties about his latter end, doubtfulnesse whether any thing be sound, yea or no; and yet no heart of prayer, no strainings after Christ to have the holy Spirit of him. Nay, tittle tattle is preferred before comming about Christ: and every idle businesse more takes up our thoughts, then how we may enjoy Jesus Christ.

Thirdly, where is the man well-nere, that is holy? some indeed are civill, and not very many, no, not of them that would be held for professors. For what Civill Honestie is there, when people are palpably proud, and palpably covetous, and palpably malicious, and spightfull, and envious? but put case many be civill, yet holinesse is hardly any where to be seen. Where are any that are mortified unto sin? Crucified to the world? Pilgrims on earth, heavenly minded? taken up with God? The Spirit indeed is a Spirit of holinesse, Rom. 1. 4. And Christ hath him to give, but he cannot have our custome: We are not thirsty after such matters.

Fourthly, Where is the Communion of Saints? a Theme I spake of the last Sabbath day. We are all like unto Ephraim, Ephraim hath mixed himselfe among the people, Hos. 7. 8. that is, they had no Communion of Saints there among them. They were a mish-mash people, there was a Chaos and a confusion and a medly among them. If there be any that beare the name of Saints: They are like Lambes feeding all alone in a large place. Like Israel when they were scattered, Psal. 44. 11. Lambes without flocks: Birds without mates: as if they were all frighted a sunder. No Communion of Saints, no Communion of graces, nor duties, nor hearts, nor affections. I confesse if we had the holy Spirit of God, it would make a Communion among us: As Paul sayes, The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the Communion of the holy Ghost be with you all, Amen, 2 Cor. 13. 14. He would make a Communion among us, and Christ hath him too, and there we might have him, but we care not for him; which is a moſt fearfull thing; a ſigne of horrible deadneſſe and liveleſneſſe in good: as it is with the boughes of a tree, when they are dead they fall off, but they hang together as long as they are alive. Though communion of Saints be an Article of our faith, yet we let it die. we ſee in nature, if we fling any meat to a Hen, preſently ſhe clucks for all her Chickens to have part: So, look what graces we get, we ſhould impart what we can: the Lord hath appointed mutuall giving good example unto one another, edifying one another, exhorting one another, admoniſhing one another, comforting one another, conferring one with another, ſupplicating one with and for another. As it is ſaid, Luke 5 10. That Simon, and James, and John were partners in their fiſhing, looke what fiſhes they caught, they divided among one another; ſo Chriſtians ſhould be partners. What they get at a Sermon, they are to impart; what they get in Prayer, or at Sacraments, or in afflictions; there be others that ſhould be partners with them: As the Apoſtle ſayes Looke not every man on his owne things, but every man alſo on the things of others, Phil. 2. 4. O ſayes he, if there be any fellowſhip of the Spirit, thus it muſt be, that is, the Spirit would breed this fellowſhip and communion among you. Now, beloved, where is this holy Spirit to be had but in Chriſt? I ſay, we are without excuſe, if we doe not get the holy Spirit of God, becauſe Chriſt hath him for us, if we would reſort to him, and therefore we can have no plea.

hath

Firſt, We cannot plead, we have no need of the holy Spirit of God: what need we have him, as long as we believe there is ſuch a one? Is it needfull we ſhould have him? I, that it is; why elſe did God make his Sonne to be the diſpenſer, and the diſtributer, and communicater of him? O, beloved, the Lord hath done this becauſe we cannot be ſaved without the holy Spirit of God: would we be regenerated and born again? we cannot without the Spirit: That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit, Joh. 3. 6. We can never be ſpirituall without the Spirit of God: none but ſpirituall men and women ſhall enter into the Kingdome of God. Drunkards, and Adulterers, and Lyers, and Muck-worms, and better men then they, are carnall men. Now to be carnally minded is death, but to be ſpiritually minded, this onely is life and peace: So that we cannot plead that.

Again, We cannot be juſtified without the Spirit of God. Ye may ſay, O, we hope to be juſtified only by Faith in Chriſt, true, but if ye have not the Spirit of God, ye have no faith; none have true faith in Chriſt, till firſt they have the holy Spirit of God, and therefore it is called the ſpirit of Faith, that is, a ſpirit inclining a man unto Chriſt; bowing of the minde, and heart, and ſoule, to all heavenly things in Chriſt, no man can be juſtified without this, as Paul tells the Corinthians, But ye are ſanctified, ye are juſtified in the Name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of God, 1 Cor. 6. 11.

Againe, Ye cannot have free-will to doe the will of God without the holy Spirit of God. I confeſſe, by nature no man hath free-will: I, but if ye be not more than nature, ye cannot be ſaved. Ye muſt have free-will to all the wayes of God, or ye cannot be ſaved. Now ye never can have this without the Spirit of God. Can ye mortifie every wicked luſt? Can ye reſiſt the Devill every day? Can ye keep out the world, and ward off the temptations of the fleſh? Ye can never doe it while the world ſtands, in a holy courſe, without the holy Spirit of God. Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty, 2 Cor. 3. 17. Mark, there is free-will to all theſe things: That man hath liberty to doe ſupernaturall things, that hath the Spirit of the Lord, and no man elſe.

Againe, Ye are none of Chriſts, if ye have not the holy Spirit of Chriſt: that is the Mark he brands all his ſheep with, as a man ſayes, when he heares tidings of any of his ſheep, ſaith he, If they be mine, they have ſuch a mark: they have an A. and a B. on the left side, or so. Sayes Christ, If they be mine, they have my Spirit, if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his, Rom. 8. 9. Hereby we know that he abideth in us, saith he, by his Spirit which he hath given us, 1 Joh. 3. 24. So that we have heard of the Spirit, and therefore he cannot be our plea, that we have no need. We have such need of Gods holy Spirit, that we cannot be saved without the having of him.

Secondly, We cannot plead, we know not where to have him. For Christ saith, he hath him to give to all that will receive him. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, saith he, Esa. 61. That is, he is poured upon me, that he may run down upon all them that come to be my members. If Christ indeed had not come, if God had not made him Vehiculum Spiritus, if God had not put his Spirit upon Christ, like water in a Fountaine, to run out upon all that will hold their hearts under him, then we might have some excuse. Lord! we know not where to have the Spirit. But the Lord hath told us where we may have him. We may have him in his Son Jesus Christ.

Thirdly, We cannot plead, we cannot tell how to have him: For as ye know where to have him, so ye may know how to have him too. And ye all do know, if we had a heart, we may have him four wayes.

First, By the hearing of the Word: You will say, ye have heard the Word many times, yet ye never received the holy Spirit yet. I answer, that is certaine, but it is because ye did not come to it with a greedy yerning heart, with an open eare, and a willing mind to be guided by it. For if ye came thus with this mind, ye should quickly have the Spirit. Could tell me any thing, I doe not, Gladly desire this of me, I doe protest any thing in me, I doe sincerely desire to leave in Gods abuse to the Word, I dare say, thou shalt not be one quarter of an houre without the Spirit, as Christ saith, Turne ye at my reproofe, behold, I will poure out my Spirit unto you, Prov. 1. 23. You will say, this is strange, and have I heard so many Sermons, and never got the Spirit yet? I, you never heard Sermons with an honest heart. You shall see, Cornelius and his company got the Spirit at the first Sermon that they heard, when Peter preached, the holy Ghost fell upon all those that heard the word, Acts 10. 44. How so? Ye may read there in the Text, Sayes Cornelius, we are all here present before God, to heare all things that are commanded thee of God, ver. 33. Now, if we have the Word duly preached, and we get not the holy Spirit of God, we are without excuse.

Secondly, By Prayer: If we did pray faithfully unto God, we should have the holy Spirit, as Christ sayes, If ye then that are evill can give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to them that aske him? Luke 11. 13. You will say, ye have prayed many a time and often, and yet ye finde no such thing, and no marvaile, when ye make but a two prayes only by the by. But if ye mainted your businesse, from day to day, if ye would seek for him as for life, and look upon it as more necessary than life it self, then ye should quickly speed. But then ye will give God the bible, and the Lame, and your heart run a whoring after other things. Heaven is not the ayme of all your prayers, and finally, the Lord knowes a hollow heart, and he will shew, he denyes it. Now if ye have his Spirit, then ye will desire him above all things, and labour after him above all things, and use all meanes for him. The Spirit of God is a great gift, and we must know, it is a signe of one of your estate, and therefore ye must seek him out of all things. They that seek him doe not goe drowsily to work.

Thirdly, By repentance, this is another fruit of the holy Ghost, as the Lord saith, Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heale your backslidings, Jer. 3. 22. What follows? Behold we come unto thee, for thou art the Lord our God, &c. Then ye shall have the Spirit upon you, ſaith he, verſe 28. Never think to have Gods holy Spirit, and live after the fleſh, or goe on in a formé, or a careleſſe way; not onely drunkenneſſe and whoredome, and capitall ſinnes, keep him out, but any other luſts and corruptions, that the heart clings unto. Rest you hearer then, let your drowſie doings paine you at the heart, let all your ſecurity, and unbeliefe, and luke warmneſſe, whereby ye part ſtakes with God, lye all theſe be a burden unto you, and you heavy laden with them 30. This is the way making for the Spirit of Gods comming in.

Fourthly, Take no denyall, let not ill ſucceſſe beat you off, this is that which thruſteth back thouſands: They find little ſucceſſe at the firſt, and ſo they give over. But, Beloved, this is it, howſoever we find cold ſucceſſe in our holy labours at the firſt, yet we muſt goe on, though we doe not find our luſts die, though we doe not find that ſpeeding in Prayer that we could wish, that prevailing in our endeavours that we doe deſire, yet ſtill we are to goe on, and ſtill waite upon God, in abounding in our care, untill the Lord grant us better ſucceſſe. The hard ſucceſſe that we have, muſt not hinder us, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due time we ſhall reap, If we faint not, Gal. 6.9. That is, let us not be diſcouraged with hard ſucceſſes, or any other ſuch like thing: certainly if we goe on, we ſhall ſpeed. When the wiſe-men came ſeeking for Chriſt at Jeruſalem, they had no good ſucceſſe there, they did not find him there, yet they would not return back without him. But they went downe to Bethlehem, and ſought for him there. When the Church had ſought Chriſt in her bed, ſhe had no ſucceſſe for that time. I ſought him, ſayes ſhe, but I found him not, Cant. 3.1. What, would ſhe give over becauſe of her bad ſucceſſe at the firſt? No, ſhe trudged out into the lanes and ſtreets, ſhe enquired of the watch-men and ſtill ſhe had little or no ſucceſſe. But the Text ſaith, ſhe would never give over, till ſhe lit upon him. Beloved, we muſt take heed of this. It is the impatience of mens hearts, if they cannot find a bleſſing at firſt daſh, they will ſeek no further, then they ſtrike into a former, or a worſe condition. In the firſt of Haggai, ye may read, that when the Jewes had been hindered by Cambyſes, from building of the Temple, for a fit, they gave over: Becauſe they had no ſucceſſe, they would build no more, but fell a building their own houſes, ver. 4. Ye know it was their ſinne, and the Lord plagued them for it. Therefore, Brethren, it muſt be our care, although we doe not ſpeed at the firſt, not to ſlacken, or give out: As Iſaac would ſtill be digging Wells, he digged one, and that had no ſucceſſe; ſo he digged another, and that had as bad; ſtill there fell out ſtrife, what then? Did he give over ſo? No, he never would have done, till the Lord gave him a Rehoboth, a Well that there was no ſtriving about, Gen. 26.22. So, we ſhould never be quiet untill the Lord give us his holy Spirit; though we doe not feele his workings in us at the firſt, no bad ſucceſſes, though never ſo many, ſhould make us weary: But ſtill we ſhould goe on, a ſeeking of the holy Spirit of God. Thus, as we know where to have the Spirit of God, namely in Chriſt, ſo we know how too, and therefore we are without excuſe, if we ſuffer our ſelves to be void of Gods holy and bleſſed Spirit; this is the ſecond uſe.

Thirdly, Another Uſe, is, to you that doe indeed complaine of great want of the Spirit: Here you ſee where ye may have ſupplies, even from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he hath the ſeven Spirits of God. Then labour to know Chriſt more and more: This is the way to have more and more of the Spirit, as the Apoſtle ſaith: That the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of glory, may give unto you the Spirit of wiſdome, and Revelation in the knowledge of him, Epheſ. 1.17. Get the knowledge of Chriſt more and more, and thus the Spirit ſhall come to thee more and more. It is ſaid of the Indian Gymnoſophiſts, that they would lye all the day long, looking upon the Sun in the Firmament, Firmament, so should Christians doe, they should lye looking upon Christ, the more Spirit still they shall have, if they doe so.

Firstly, May be ye want Spirit to make you know the Lords will, you find your selves backward from day to day a little or no heart to Gods Commandements, look up to Christ, and say, Lord there is enough Spirit in Christ, and perfection for all them that doe want, and would have the same; O give me to stand together with him, as he sayes, I will put my Spirit into you, and cause you to walke in my Statutes, Ezekiel 36.27. Look up to me, I will doe this for you.

Secondly, May be, ye want strength, ye have many temptations, and ye have no strength to resist them, they come in upon you like the breaking in of waters; may be, yee are tempted to denyall, and to say yee have nothing in you, sometimes ye are tempted to give over all, saying, it is but a folly, I shall one day be damned, and I were as good give over now as to doe it afterwards, when it will be worse, and ye have no strength to hold out; sometimes ye cannot meditate, ye cannot pray, ye are faine to break off in the midst, with base fearer, with security, and vain hopes; you are tempted to doe as the world does, and ye have no strength to oppose them: Look up to Christ, ye know the Spirit of Christ is a Spirit of power, and strength, 2 Tim. 1.7. and he hath him for you: Look up to him then, and cry for his strong Spirit. Who knows (may be) you may be able to say in the end, as Paul does, I can do all things through Christ that strengthens me.

Thirdly, May be, ye want boldnesse to call God your Father; ye are in a quandary, whether ye should call him so or no; ye are afraid he is none of your Father, and that ye are none of his adopted ones; yet still but blaspheme him to call him your Father, or to expect of him a childs portion: Look up to Christ, he hath such a Spirit in him, whereby ye may cry, Abba Father, Gal. 4.6.

Fourthly, May be, ye want life and quickning, you find your selves very dead, even as the Church of Sardis in this place; I know thy works, that thou art dead. Look up to Christ as here he bids thee, he hath the seven Spirits of God, and hath that which will quicken thee. Christ himself, when he was naturally dead, he was quickned by his own Spirit, 1 Pet. 3.18. That very Spirit can quicken thy spirituall deadnesse, to every good word and work. His Spirit is life, and that will make thee lively; though thy heart be little better than a Timber-logge in duties, yet if that Spirit get within thee, it will make thee agile, and active in every good thing. Is it a horrible thing to see how little Christians know of Jesus Christ, though they have been thought to know Jesus Christ so long a time, yet they do not know him. Christ takes this very ill, as he told Philip, Have I been so long time with you, and hast thou not known me, Philip? John 14.9. Christ could be even angry with him, for learning him no better: what little spirit is there in Christians now adayes! a signe, though they have been a long time learning Christ, yet they hardly know him. For if we knew him, Brethren, we could not be at enmity with the holy Spirit.

We do not look up to Christ.

You will say, What is it to look up to Christ in all your wayes?

I Answer, It is to follow Christ, as where John said, Behold the Lamb of God that takes away the sinnes of the world, The Text sayes, That two of his Disciples went away and followed after Jesus, Joh. 1.36, 37. O thought they, is he the Lamb of God, does he take away the sinnes of the world? we will follow him then. John bade them look at him, and they followed after him, that is, they looked at him indeed, as a man looks at one whom he followes: when a man so looks up to Christ, that he followes him; when a man sees him his only meanes to be happy, and godly, and in the favour of God, the only meanes to doe well, and to be well, and desires indeed to follow after him, this is to look up to Christ, when a man labours sincerely to follow the counſell and direction of Chriſt, in all his wayes; He bids him to deny himſelf, and that is the thing that he labours for; He bids him to repent of all his ſinnes, and to ply himſelfe to all Gods holy paths, and to rely upon him for ſtrength and acceptance, and mercy and pardon, and every bleſſing. What ever thing he looks for at the hands of God, he ſets himſelfe to follow Chriſts counſell, & to expect it in him. If he ſees his ſins, he looks up to Chriſt, and there he ſees his death to defray them; when he ſees what power they have over him, he looks up to Chriſt for his Spirit to ſubdue them, in the uſe of all thoſe means that he hath appointed; Prayer, Meditation, Watchfulneſs, Striving, Purpoſing, Endeavouring, and Fighting againſt all the luſts of his fleſh. And wherein ſoever he failes, he labours to be humbled, and yet to look ſtill up to Chriſt, for forgiveneſſe, and more help againſt another time: This is to ſee the Son of God. Every one that ſees the Son hath everlaſting life, Joh. 6.40. This is to look up to Chriſt, to beleeve in Chriſt, to have Chriſt, to be in Chriſt, to dwell in Chriſt, and Chriſt in him.

counsell

But you will ſay, I am afraid I never lookt up to Chriſt then, I never yet had him, for I have not his holy Spirit; how ſhall I know whether I have the holy Spirit? I anſwer, firſt, I will tell thee, what be not ſignes; and then ſecondly, what be ſignes.

Firſt, What be not ſignes, there are foure ſignes that people take to be ſignes, & are not: Firſt, a civill life, when a man is a merciſull man, kinde to the poor, quiet & peaceable among his neighbours, gentle, affable, courteous, well-conditioned: Theſe are no ſignes of having Gods holy Spirit; True, they are very commendable, and they that have the Spirit of God muſt have them, and better than them. But a man may be without the holy Spirit of God, and yet have all theſe; Paul ſhewes that the very Barbarians ſhewed him no little kindneſſe, they kindled him a fire, though they were meer naturall men, Acts 28. 2. Our Saviour Chriſt ſhewes that ſome are chaſte by nature, that are born ſo; ſo, many are temperate by nature, and loving by nature, and meek by nature, patient by nature; therefore theſe are no ſupernaturall graces, theſe are no ſignes of the holy Spirit.

Secondly, the profeſſion of Religion: This is no ſigne of the holy Spirit neither; for many profeſſe they know God, and yet are Reprobate to every good work, Tit. 1. 16. That is, many profeſſe Religion, they will heare the Word, they will have prayers in their families, they will be of the better ſide in their Pariſh where they are, if there be any godly ones, they will be of their company, if they can, and ſeeme to do as they do, and yet they have a carnall heart, they do very good works every day, but they have a Reprobate and unapproved heart in them. They do not do them right.

Thirdly, Every kinde of repentance is not a ſigne neither, we read that Pharaoh confeſſed his ſin, and deſired the prayers of Gods people, Exod. 9. 27. Saul wept for his ſins, 1 Sam. 24. 16. Judas made reſtitution: Eſau ſought repentance with teares. The world thinke certainly theſe were ſignes of Gods Spirit; no, no: They were onely common effects of the Spirit. The wicked may in a ſort repent of their ſinnes, and beat them downe too, but the truth is, they do not mortifie them. Like as if a man ſhould come into a garden, and ſee how a mole hath caſt up the earth, and made a foule ſtirre in the Alleyes, and in the Garden knots, if he tread it only downe with his foot, and do not kill the Mole, anon after it will be as bad as before: ſo, many wicked men may do, they may beat downe their ſinnes every day, but they riſe up ſtill as bad as before; now they beat them downe, and then their luſts like the Mole, caſt up again. Thus the Mole is not killed. This is no ſigne of the Spirit. But a godly heart, he kils the Mole, he mortifies his ſin, indeed new Moles may breed, and caſt up again; but he rids his ſoul more and more.

Fourthly. Every kinde of faith neither, is not a ſigne of Gods holy Spirit, ye know the ſtony ground believed, Luke 8.13.

Secondly, Now, for thoſe ſignes that be. Firſt, when a man is ſoundly convinced of his ſins; This is an act of Gods holy Spirit, Joh. 16.8. When a man hath the unction from the Holy one, The Text ſayes, that abides for ever where it is, The anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, 1 John 2.27.

Secondly, When a man hath had a ſound prick for his ſins, this lets in the Holy Ghoſt, as Peter told his hearers, That were prickt in their hearts, Act 2. 37. he told them they ſhould receive the Holy Ghoſt.

Thirdly, When a man hath had an unſatisfiable deſire of reconciliation with God, as it is ſaid of Paul, that when he was rightly toucht by the Spirit indeed, he could neither eat nor drinke, Acts 9. 9. he could not be quiet till Ananias came and told him he was reconciled with God.

Fourthly, When a man is another, and a new creature; Whoſoever is in Chriſt is a new Creature, 2 Cor. 5.17. the Spirit of God, where-ere He is, He is a new ſpirit, and He carries with him a new heart, Ezek. 36. 26. He works a thorow-change, and he renews minde, will, and affections, inclinations, memory, appetite, members and all: He does not only new-plaſter them over, but he pulls a man quite down, and builds him up a new habitation of God, as Chriſt told the Centurion, If I come, I will heale thy ſervant, ſo, if Chriſt do once come with his Spirit into any mans heart, he heales it, he works a mighty mutation in that man into another man, as Paul tels the Corinthians, Ye were drunkards, but now ye are waſhed, ye were railers, ye were adulterers, ye were covetous, ye were unrighteous, But now ye are waſhed, 1 Cor. 6. 9. 10. 11. As Paul ſayes, I was a blaſphemer, and I was a perſecuter, but bleſſed be God, now I have obtained mercy. Now I am not the man that I was; I was a lyar, but now, bleſſed be God, I have the lip of truth; I hated them that were godly, but bleſſed be God, now they are the deareſt people to me in the world.

Fifthly, when a man does ſupernaturall good things; naturall good things, a naturall man may do, without the holy Spirit of grace: when you ſee a man lift up a hundred, or two hundred pound weight, you will ſay, I, this he may do by nature; But if you ſhould ſee a man lift up five thouſand pound weight, you will ſay, there is more than nature in him: ſo, beloved, when you ſee a man loves ſin and comes to be vaine, and cannot abide to be ſtrict; if he be ſtrict a little, he is ſoone weary of it, and layes it aſide; you may know this man hath not the Spirit of God in him: but if ye love holineſſe, and hate every evill thing; then nothing humbles you ſo much as ſin, nothing takes you up ſo much as how to pleaſe God; now ye may know the Spirit of God is in you, Why? This is above Nature. This is another Uſe.

Laſtly, Hath Chriſt the ſeven Spirits of God, to give them to all that will come to him; then what may Chriſt ſay to them that are contented without him, that have no care at all to come at him, that like not his government, that will not draw water at his Well? He hath taken paines to procure a ſtock of grace for them, to provide Merits enough for them, a ſalve broad enough for all their ſores, Spirit enough to poure into all their hearts; and when he hath done all this, they regard other things more than him. Truely, he may ſay as David did, when he was told of Nabals churliſh anſwer, Surely, in vaine have I kept all that this fellow hath in the Wilderneſſe, 1 Sam. 25. 21. Even ſo may Chriſt ſay: Surely, in vaine have I ſuffered for theſe men; in vaine have I come out of my Fathers boſome for them; in vaine did I dye upon the croſſe: They will have none of my ware, they reſpect not my graces, they will not come at me for my holy Spirit.

Revel.

REVEL. 3. 1.

And unto the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write: Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, and the ſeven ſtarres; I know thy works, that thou haſt a name, that thou liveſt, and art dead.

Theſe things, ſaith he, that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, and the ſeven Stars.

THeſe words containe the Deſcription of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, from whom this Epiſtle is ſent unto the Church in Sardis, and in particular to the Miniſter there, who is here called the Angel of the Church in that place. And the deſcription does conſiſtance in two Royalties of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt:

Firſt, That he hath the ſeven Spirits of God, that is, he hath the holy Ghoſt, and all his ſpirituall graces in his hands, to give to whomſoever he pleaſes, for the quickning of them, and the ſanctifying of them, that if any of his members want ſpirit, or any ſpirituall good, he hath it for them: Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeven Spirits of God: This we handled the laſt day.

Now we proceed to the ſecond Royalty of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, That he hath the ſeven Starres, he ſpeaks of the ſeven Churches of Aſia; Chriſt hath all their Miniſters in his hands, and he calls them Stars.

Firſt, Becauſe the ſtars do direct: It a great help when Mariners can ſee a ſtarre in a dark night. When Paul and they that ſailed with him could ſee neither Sun nor Star, the company were without all hope of comming ſafe to Land. Acts 27.20. they knew not what to do, when there was not a ſtarre to be ſeen: The ſtars ſerve for direction in the night: So good Miniſters are for direction unto people, they ſerve to direct people to Chriſt. Like the ſtar in the Eaſt; When the wiſemen ſaw the ſtarre, they rejoyced with exceeding great joy, Matth. 2. 10. that ſtar directed them to Chriſt, it went before them all the way, and ſhewed them where to finde Chriſt: ſo a poore ſoule rejoyces to finde a godly Miniſter; O thinks he, he is a ſtarre to direct me to Chriſt.

Secondly, Becauſe the ſtars do ſhine; ſo good Miniſters do ſhine forth, and hold out a light, to give light to them that ſit in darkneſſe, and in the ſhadow of death. Ye are the light of the world, ſayes Chriſt, Matth. 5.14. When a man ſits in a darke houſe, he cannot ſe to do any thing, but if one come and open a window, or a caſement, and letteth in light, now he may ſee to go about his buſineſſe: ſo, Beloved, people that dwell in darke pariſhes, where no ſound Miniſtery of the Word is, they know not what to do to be ſaved: they erre, they wander, they grope, they ſtumble and fall, they ſee not how to be godly and happy for evermore. But when a faithfull Miniſter comes, now light is let in, and thoſe that have a minde to go to heaven, now they may ſee the way thither, ſo that in this ſenſe too, Miniſters are ſtarres.

Thirdly, Becauſe ſtarres have influence upon theſe inferiour bodies, as God ſayes of the Pleiades and Orion, which are a company of ſtarres in the heavenly Orbe. Canſt thou binde the ſweet influences of the Pleiades, or looſe the bands of Orion? Job 38.31. the ſtarres have influences into things here below. The Pleiades open the earth, they make herbs and flowers grow, the Spring is when they ariſe once, Trees begin to ſprout, and the plants do wax green; Orion, it produces cold, the Winter comes when that ſhewes it ſelfe; the ſtarres have a great influence into ſublunary bodies, ſo it is with Miniſters. Bad Miniſters are like the ſtarres of Orion, they ſerve to coole peoples hearts, and dead them to all goodneſſe. But good Miniſters are as the ſtarres of Pleiades, no ſoule can have any minde in him to that which is good, but they do exceedingly helpe and further, they quicken the heart, they warme and fructifie the ſoules of Gods Elect.

Again, the ſtarres do hang high; ſo the Miniſters of Chriſt are ſet high; they hang high, that all the people may have the benefit of their gliſtering. Zachary calls them the Prophets of the moſt High, And thou childe ſhalt be called the Prophet of the moſt High, Luke 1.76. But I have handled this point in effect, when I ſpake of Miniſters being Angels, and therefore I will omit it now. Thus ye ſee the Miniſters are ſtarres. Now he calls them ſeven, becauſe he ſpeakes of ſeven Congregations; Epheſus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. Seven Churches, ſeven Congregations, and every one had their ſeverall ſtars. Whence we ſee that every Pariſh ſhould have a particular faithfull Miniſter. Paul appointed Titus, to ordaine Elders in every City, Tit. 1.5. The Apoſtles ordained Paſtors, and Elders in every Church, Acts 14.23. So it was in the time of the Law, as the Text ſayes, Moſes of old time hath in every City them that Preach, being read in the Synagogues every Sabbath day. Acts 15.21.

The Reaſon is, firſt, becauſe thoſe Townes that have not a faithfull Miniſtery in it, generally do all periſh. I do not deny, but ſome ſoules in ſuch blind places may come otherwiſe to be converted and ſaved, but generally they periſh for ever, that live in ſuch places: as the Evangeliſt ſayes of Galile. True, they had ſorry Prieſts, but they had not a faithfull Miniſtery. Sayes he, The people ſate there in the region and ſhadow of death, Matth. 4.16. that is, till they had a better Miniſtery, they were in a damnable eſtate. So that it is a pittifull thing, when any Towne or Pariſh are without a faithfull Miniſtery, no ſtarre of Heaven ſhining among them.

Secondly, becauſe when people have no faithfull Miniſter of their owne, generally they care not for removing of their dwelling, neither will they go a mile or two for the meanes, they content themſelves with what fare they have at home, though it ſtarve them to death: Like the people under the falſe Prophets, they liked them well enough. My people love to have it ſo, Jer. 5.31. Nay, they love ſuch Prophets better than them that would deale plainly with them; Nay, there be many, that when they have a faithfull Miniſter at home, will be ſneaking out to a drunken Miniſter abroad, they would rather live under ſuch a one.

Thirdly, Another Reaſon why every Church ſhould have its particular ſtar, every Congregation had need of a faithfull Miniſtery of their own: Becauſe if there be any godly ſoule, or any one that deſires the ſalvation of his ſoule, and lives under a blinde guide, he cannot go out without giving very great offence, it will be thought a giddineſſe, and a ſlighting of their owne Miniſter at home; now if every pariſh had a ſound Miniſtry in it, this would not be: When people came out of every Pariſh round about unto John, they had no Paſtor of their own, but they came flocking unto John, no queſtion but this bred heart-burning againſt John: I, and ill-will againſt thoſe people, that would not be ſatisfied with what teaching they had in their own Synagogues. Now, I ſay, if every Pariſh had its ſeverall ſhining ſtar, this would not be.

Fourthly, When ſome Pariſhes have their ſtarres and many have not; this caſts in a bone of diſcord between Miniſters, for they that are idle, and vain, and ſcandalous, will envy them that ſpend themſelves in giving light. Again, the people of ſuch Pariſhes have many times occaſion of converſing together, and falling into one anothers company. Now how will this harden one anothers hearts, when people ſhall ſay, Gods bleſſing on our Miniſters heart, he does not meddle or make with us, we may doe what we will for all him! Who would dwell in ſuch a Pariſh as yours is? We heare he keeps a horrible

ſtirre

ſtirre with you, he will not let you alone, you cannot be merry now and then, but you are ſure to hear of it: He is ſo ſtrict forſooth, and ſo preciſe, you muſt have preaching fore-noon and afternoon, and there is ſuch adoe to get preciſe Conſtables, that you cannot be quiet. What a wofull thing is this? How does this harden the Countryes hearts?

The Uſe of this is; firſt, This ſhewes what a miſerable thing it is, when a Land is darkened, that hath but a few ſtarres, may be here one, and there one, but moſt places are in darkneſſe, and have none: Beloved, this is a ſigne of the wrath of God. God is wroth with ſuch a land, and poures his wrath upon ſuch a people, as the Prophet ſayes, Through the wrath of the Lord of Hoſts, is the land darkned, Eſa. 9.19. Uſe 1.

Again, Secondly, you that have your ſtars ſhining among you, how are you to bleſſe God, when there are ſo many places in the world that have none! Suppoſe the Harveſt ſhould be comming, and the earth hath great need of rain, to plump up the eares, the Corne is quite ſpoiled for want of rain: If it doe not rain, Alas! our Corn will be burnt up, and prove little worth. Now if God ſhould raine upon your fields, and not upon your neighbours; your Cloſes and Leizes have raine, but on the other ſide of the hedge there is none: What a ſpeciall mercy is this unto you? As God ſayes, I have cauſed it to raine upon one City, and cauſed it not to raine upon another; one piece was rained upon, and the piece whereupon it rained not, withered, Amos 4.7. is not this a great mercy to the owner of that ground where the raine falls, and does not fall elſewhere? So, my Brethren, you that have the ſpirituall raine in your particular Pariſhes, what a mercy of God is it unto you? When ſo many Pariſhes have not one drop of it. Uſe 2.

Againe, Thirdly, let us take heed leſt thoſe few ſtarres that yet be, ſet upon us, and ſo we be all in darkneſſe, we have a little raine yet, here and there ſome. O let us repent and be more forward to bring forth more fruit, if we continue to provoke God with our unfruitfulneſſe, as we doe, that little ſhall be taken away from you. When Gods Vineyard in Judah became barren, and brought forth no grapes, but wild ones: What ſayes God? I will command the clouds, that they rain no rain upon it, Eſ. 5.6. q. d. I will take away all the rainy clouds: Ye ſhall have clouds ſtill, but they ſhall be clouds without raine, ſtarres without light and heat, Miniſters that ſhall doe you no good; this is a fearfull caſe, and yet God will bring it upon us, for a certain, if we doe not take heed. Uſe 3.

There be ſix ſignes of all the ſtarres vaniſhing away, that God will take away thoſe few ſtarres, thoſe few godly Miniſters away that are left.

Firſt, When people will not walke in the light, while they have the light. As our Saviour Chriſt ſayes: Yet a little while is the light with you, walke while ye have the light, leſt darkneſſe come upon you, Joh. 12.35. q. d. Ye have the light, a little while the Lord lets you have it, he lets it ſtay with you a little while longer, but if ye will not walke in the light, the light ſhall be gone, and ye ſhall be in darkneſſe, this is an evident ſigne that the light will ſurely away from us: What a deale of light is yet held before our faces, and ſcarce any have a heart to walke in it! When ſervants are idle, and will not mend their cloathes, in the day time at ſpare houres; why ſhould the Maſter allow them any candle? So, we have a day among us, and people will not beſtirre themſelves, they goe all rent and tattered in their garments, they care not for doing of their buſineſſe, therefore the Lord will allow them no candle, he will put out all the lights.

Secondly, When people grow deader and deader, when they forſake their firſt love, they were once more earneſt for heaven, more tender in conſcience, more eager for good things, more lively in Prayer, more zealous in holy duties, but now they abate and ſlacken, they are told of it, and yet they doe not amend, when it is once come to this passe, the Lord will remove the faithfull Ministery of his Word. To what end should he let it stay any longer? as Christ sayes to Ephesus, Remember from whence thou art falne, and repent, and doe the first workes, or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of its place, except thou repent, Rev. 2. 5. This is another signe of the Ministeries departing away from us, candle and candle-stick will away, for we will not amend. We have been told of our formality, we have heard whole Sermons against our lake-warmnesse, and against our declinings; and yet nothing will fetch us up again. We will not think soundly from whence we are fallen, we will not be perswaded to doe our first works, our hearts are grown senseless, and nothing can pluck them up, therefore how can we hope but our candle-stick will be removed, and quickly too?

Thirdly, When people wax wearie of Gods Ordinances, they are even cloyed with them, like the Israelites there in Amos, When will the new Moon be gone, that we may sell corn? When will the Sabbath be over, that we may set forth wheat? Amos 8. 5. a. b. Here is such adoe with Lectures, and Sermons, we can hardly have time for our Markets; such adoe with the Sabbath, it is so tedious, so irksome, we are not able to hold out; Prayers in the Family come so fast about, and duties come so thick, we have hardly any space for our other businesses; Ministers require so much of us, Sermons are so strict, Sacrifices are so often, we can have no breathing: Thus people are cloyed, they are full fed, they care not much if they had lesse, nay, some will not stick to say it, and others that in their hypocrisie will not say it, yet they have no stomach, no appetite, there is so much Word, that they are not able to digest it, neither have they any mind to concoct it; therefore mark there what follows: Behold! The dayes come, saith the Lord, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord, ver. 11. that is, you are more afraid of a famine of bread, ye would be more troubled if you had no bread to eate, nor liquor to drink, you care not so it be not that famine. But think what you will, I will send you a worse famine than that, a famine of hearing of Gods Word. Ye shall have Preaching little enough? little enough food for your soules; seeing ye will be filthy, ye shall be filthy; seeing ye will be heartlesse towards heavenly things, ye shall be heartlesse, ye shall be hardned, ye shall be let alone, and the blind shall lead the blind, and both shall fall into the ditch; the wicked shall lead the wicked, wicked Ministers the wicked people, and both shall perish together! And then though ye would never so faine have a Sermon that may come to the Conscience, ye shall be long enough before ye shall heare it: Ye shall starve for want of spirituall knowledge: Starved to death for want of life: Seared in your sinnes, ye shall have no Sermons to dispossesse you of Satan, no teaching to purge your hearts, to humble your soules before God, or to Minister the Spirit unto you; ye are weary of the sound Ministery of the Word, therefore ye shall not be troubled with it. This then is another signe that God will take away those few Stars that are yet remaining. And then, woe be to you.

Fourthly, When there are hardly any sonnes of peace, that the Ministers peace may light upon, then the Lord bids them pack away: Like the Market-folkes, when they see their Commodities lie upon their hands, they take up their Commodities, and goe home; O, say they, people will give nothing, they will not give our price, we and our children will have them for our own selves, rather than we will part with them for nothing; so they goe away: So, Gods Ministers goe away, when the Market is dead, no customer will come to their stalls. So Paul and Barnabas went away from the Jewes, Ye put off the word from you, and therefore, lo, we turn unto the Gentiles, Acts 13. 46. a. b. Ye will have none of it, we have offered it to you, and we were bid to doe ſo, but ye put it off from you, therefore fare ye well: Dye in your ſinnes. So people now put off the Word of God, our Doctrine ſinks no where almoſt; one puts it off from him, another puts it off from him: Like as the Cities of the Philiſtims did with the Ark, The men of Ekron, they cryed out, and doe you bring it to us, And ſo the men of Aſhdod ſaid, and it ſhall not abide with us, 1 Sam. 5.7. Every one put it off, they would have none of it.

bid

Fifthly, When people oppoſe; they are ſo farre from repenting at the preaching of the Word, that they fall to oppoſe, and to miſ-uſe the bringers of it, as the Jewes did Saint Paul. The Text ſayes, He ſhook his raiment at them, and ſaid unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads, and away he went, Acts 18.6. When people lay their heads together how they may have out the Miniſter, many times God gives them leave for to doe it, that they may bring evill on their own heads, the Lord lets them have their curſed wills, to their own utter deſtruction and condemnation.

Sixthly, When God hath ſent all his Miniſters that ever he means to ſend: He ſent one Miniſter, and they would not heare him, he ſent another after him, and they would not hearken to him neither, a man would wonder, ſurely God will ſend no more; well, may be God in his great goodneſſe ſends another good man, and he does what he can, but the people will doe wickedly ſtill. Yea, but when God hath ſent all that he meanes to ſend, now he will ſend no more; as God did with Judah; I have ſent unto you all my ſervants the Prophets, riſing up early and ſending them, ſaying, Turne from your evill wayes; but ye have not inclined your eare unto me, Jeremiah 35.15. When God had ſent all, then he would ſend no more.

You will ſay, How can this be a ſigne? When God hath ſent all that he meanes to ſend: who can tell that?

I Anſwer, Beloved, God may ſhew it plainly, that he hath ſent even all that he meanes to ſend; when he blocks up the way, that more cannot be ſuffered to come to us, than thoſe that are come, when ſuch courſes are taken, that ne're a faithfull one more is permitted to enter. When Gods faithfull ones are forbidden to preach, as Paul ſayes, They forbid us to preach. When people will have Roſhur's and not Jeremiah's. When there be Lawes made, Look ye ſpeake no more in his name. When they ſay to the Seers, ſee not, and to the Prophets propheſie not. When the good Levites are made to goe away, and to leave their owne places, as it was in Jeroboams time, 2 Chron. 11.14. Again, When the ſhadowes wax long, it is a ſigne that the Sun is going down.

The Reaſon why God will take away all his Starres when matters are come to this paſſe, is, Firſt, becauſe it is but loſt labour, and Coſt caſt away, to adminiſter Phyſick to ſuch patients whoſe diſeaſes are deſperate. My Brethren, God is a wiſe Phyſician, and he knowes whom he hath to deale with: When he ſees men rend in pieces his Preſcripts, and pull off his plaſters, and vomit up his wholſome potions, that he gives them for their good; he gives them up for gone, he will be their Phyſician no longer. This was the reaſon why God did leave Judah, Thy diſeaſe is incurable, Jer. 30.12.

Secondly, becauſe it is not onely loſt labour, but it is worſe than loſt, to let ſuch people have the Miniſterie of the word: It makes them much worſe. Why ſhould ye be ſmitten any more? Ye will revolt more and more, Eſa. 1.5. why ſhould ye be preacht to any more? Ye will, &c.

Thirdly, becauſe if men will needs goe on in their ſins, God would rather they ſhould doe ſo without his Word, than with it: As a husbandman, if the ground be ſtarke barren, he would rather never plough it, and ſow it with ſeed, than to have it barren after the ſeed ſown; when people will needs be wicked, God would rather have them doe all their wickednesse out of his sight, than in it, I will cast you out of my sight, Jer. 7.15. God cannot abide to look upon a people, that will have their owne wayes; they anger him more, when they commit all their wickednesse under his Word. God looks towards a people when he sends them his holy Word, he looks upon them to doe them good, he looks towards them in pity, and calls them to repentance, that they may finde favour with him, and therefore, if they doe evill now, this provokes him more a thousand times. A drunkard where the word is truly preached, an Adulterer there, a muck-worm there, a proud person there, a prophane wretch there; I say, this angers him more a thousand thousand times. The times of ignorance God winked at, Acts 17.30. If your sinnes were committed in blind parishes, God would winke at you, in a manner, that is, your damnation should be lesse. God would excuse you himselfe in some measure. Alas! poore Creatures, they know not what they doe; let them have lesse hell, they doe not deserve so many plagues; he winks at the wicked that live without his Word: But you that live under the Word, he cannot winke at you. He will punish you to the full. O. Beloved, above all things the Lord cannot abide that people should be wretched and vaine under his Word: But I will passe over this point. Thus ye see they are seven Starres, every Congregation had its Starre, every Church had its Minister.

be

Doctr. Now in the next place, we see here that Christ hath these seven Starres. These things saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven Starres. Christ hath the seven Starres. Christ is said to have the seven Starres, in five respects.

First, in respect that they have their Mission from him, Secondly, in respect they have their Commission from him, Thirdly, in respect they have their Abilities from him, Fourthly, in respect they have their Successe from him, Fiftly, in respect they have their Protection from him; of these in their order.

First, they have their Mission from him. It is Christ that sends forth all true Ministers: As my Father hath sent me, so send I you, Joh. 20.21. It is Christ that sends Ministers to the Church, as he told Jerusalem: Behold I send unto you Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes, Mat. 23.34. He called the twelve, and began to send them forth by two and two, &c Mat. 6.7 So he called the seventy and sent them also, Luke 10.1. so it is Christ that sends Ministers to this day. True, the Church does ordaine them; I, but if they be not sent by him too, they are intruders. Now when he sends them, they are his Ministers, though it be the Church that puts them into Orders. As it is with a true Constable, though the Parish chuse him, yet he is the Kings Officer and does things in the Kings name; so it is with every true Minister, Christ hath the sending of him, he is the Minister of Christ, as the Apostle sayes; Let a man so account of us as the Ministers of Christ, 1 Cor. 4.1. And therefore look what we doe in our Office, we doe it in his name. As he said, In the name of Jesus Christ, rise up and walke: So we say unto Gods Elect; In the name of Jesus Christ, rise up and walke. In the name of Jesus Christ, repent of all your wicked wayes, and Believe; and though the world will not stirre at our speech, yet they that are elected of God doe stir: they are none but the Reprobate, that lye still in their sinnes; sometime or other we get all the Elect for to hear us.

The Use of this is; first, for comfort to us that are true Ministers; Christ hath the sending of us, therefore certainly he will be with us in all his errands, the world may be against us, we may meet with many wolves: Behold! I send you as sheep among wolves; people may threaten and speak their words against us, a foot and a halfe long; what need we care for all their great Speeches, as long as Chriſt ſends us? Chriſt will be with us for the good of his Elect, in all the courſe of our Miniſtery, be it ſhort or be it long: We ſhall be uſefull to them, what ever the world do: if there be any that belong to God, we ſhall finde them out, no matter for others. Chriſt will be with us in the Pulpit, in the priſon, in the dog-hole, if ye would put us into it, as Chriſt told his Miniſters, Goe and teach all Nations, Baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghoſt, and lo I am with you to the end of the world Matt. 28. 19, 20. This is our comfort that Chriſt will be with us, & this is the Elects comfort, they ſhall be ſure to finde him with us in our Miniſtery.

great

Uſe 2. Secondly, If Chriſt hath the ſending of us, we muſt bee ſure we do his meſſage, that we perform the work he ſends us to do, every meſſenger ſhould doe thus, nay, Chriſt himſelf did thus, I ſeek not mine owne will, but the will of the Father which hath ſent me, Joh. 5. 30. If a Merchant ſhould ſend a ſervant beyond Sea, to be a Factor for him, if that ſervant ſhould go and trade for himſelf, to get monies for himſelf, and an eſtate for himſelf, and neglect his Maſters buſineſs, he may look for a cold welcome home: So when Chriſt ſends us to be Factors for him, to ſee what Soules we can gain unto him, if we ſhould now ſeek our ſelves, how to be rich, how to be ſome-body in the world, how to get preferment, & ſo leave his buſineſs undon; we may look for a cold welcome home, when we ſhall be brought before God. Certainly, if Chriſt ſends us, we ſhould minde his worke, glorifie Chriſt, labour to reveale Chriſt, to winne Soules to Chriſt, this is our buſineſſe to do. When David ſent Huſhai to Abſalom to be a Factor for him, we ſee how well he did the meſſage, he turned the counſell of Achitophel into fooliſhneſs, he marred that wicked wretches plots, he did all for David: So we ſhould do all for Chriſt, we ſhould labour to turne the devills plots into fooliſhneſs, to undermine Satan, and where God hath any to ſave, we ſhall prevaile.

Uſe 3. Thirdly, If Chriſt hath the ſending of us, we muſt give him account when we have done. When Chriſt had ſent his Diſciples to preach, they returne again, and gave him account of what they had done, Luk. 10. 17. Lord even the Devils are ſubject unto us. Lord I have done thus & thus, I have declared all thy whole counſell, I have kept nothing back, I have done thy meſſage, and ſuch and ſuch have heard me, but ſuch & ſuch will not heare me. A meſſenger is bound to give an account unto him that ſends him: nay the devill himſelfe is turned to give an account; when the Lord ſent him to tempt Job, he came again, & told what he had done, Job. 2. 1. when the children of Dan ſent ſpies to ſearch the land, they came and gave up their account. The very devill may teach us this leſſon, to go and give Chriſt account of what we have done. We ſee there how they that had received the Talents, how they came and gave in their account, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

Uſe 4. Fourthly, Another Uſe is to you; what a great mercy is this, that Chriſt ſhould ſend unto ſuch as you be? If Chriſt had ſent unto you, when ye had fought him and turned unto him, it had been very much: but that he ſhould diſpatch meſſengers to you, when ye had not a thought of him, nay, when ye ſinned againſt him, O what a great mercy is this! It was a great kindnes, that Joſeph would ſend unto his Father, & his brethren, & bid them leave all, and come into the Land of Egypt, & willed them that they ſhould not care for their ſtuffe, for the beſt of the land of Egypt ſhall be yours; ye know, his Brethren were unkinde unto him. Beloved, Joſeph, was never ſo unkindly dealt with by his Brethren as Chriſt hath been by us, and yet that he ſhould ſend to ſuch wretches as we are: O leave all, and come unto me, regard not your ſtuffe, regard not your profits, never trouble your ſelves with this thing & that thing, for all the beſt of heaven ſhall be yours. O what an infinite kindneſs is this! when he will ſend ſuch treaſures of his to us, by his Miniſters. As Joſeph filled his Brethrens ſacks with corne, which they carryed to their Fathers houſe, in Canaan, to preserve them alive till they came over to Egypt: So the Lord Jesus Christ hath put his spiritual treasures into a sack, and given them his Ministers to dispense them to their brethren, to nourish them; and preserve them, untill they come home to him: he fils his Ministers sacks every week for us, they come with sack fuls of heavenly & divine truths every week to us, with sack-fuls of food to feed our soules unto eternall life, and when that is spent, he sends us every Sabbath more, and therefore how should we esteem a true Minister that comes to us from Jesus Christ? He is one of a thousand, as Elihu speakes, If there be a messenger with him, an interpreter, one of a thousand, to declare unto man his righteousnesse, then he is gracious unto him, Job. 33. 23. 24. that is, then is God gracious to us indeed; such a one is one of a thousand, such a one declares to us our righteousnesse, he brings to us the righteousnesse of Jesus. This the Lord Jesus Christ sends unto us, when he sends us a true Minister, he sends us an excellent Present, even his owne righteousnesse and merits, and the glad tidings of Peace, how we may live and be saved: So that we should be thankfull unto God, that Christ sends to us his Ministers, with such precious things. If the King should send to any one of us but five pound, O how would we wonder at it, who ever were the messenger, we would bid such a one welcome, & what I doe the King take notice of me? such a poore man as I? who would have thought that ever he should send such a token to me? what a condescending is this? I tell thee, if the King should do this for thee, thou wouldest make very much of it, and talke of it too, where ever thou commest; nay, it would make thee glad, & a very joyfull man, & it would make thee think thy selfe highly preferred, O beloved, and what a horrible shame is this, that the King of Kings, and the Lord of Lords should send a messenger to us every day almost, not with five pounds a peice to every one of us, but with all the riches and treasures of heaven, to enrich us for ever, to make us happie for ever, blessed that ever we were born, & yet that we should not be affected hardly! My Brethren, we that are the Ministers of God, we come with heavenly & glorious things every day from our Lord Jesus Christ: though we have them but in earthen vessels, yet they are things that the whole world is but drosse and dung in comparison of, and therefore think how ye should come to Church; think how ye should come to hear Sermons: Now I come to hear a message from Christ, now shall I heare an Embassadour from heaven, that will break open Christs Letter patent, & peruse from Jesus Christ, a Counsell from Christ, Directions from Christ concerning the framing of my life, Lessons from Christ, how I may come to glory. O saies the Apostle, He hath given to us the Ministery of reconciliation: to wit, that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himselfe, not imputing their trespasses unto them, and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now then we are Embassadours for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us, we pray you in Christs stead, be reconciled unto God, 2 Cor. 5. 18. 19. 20. Alas poore creatures, God & you are out, yee are enemies of God, by your evill works, the wrath of God hangeth over you, wrath for all your sins, wrath for your Drunkennesse, wrath for your Covetousnesse, wrath for your carnall courses; ye lye under the wrath of God, wrath that will damne you, and undoe you for ever. Now the Lord of Heaven and Earth hath sent you Heralds of Peace: we come Embassadours from the Lord of all glory, we have the word of Reconciliation: the word that we Preach, will make God and you friends, if ye will beleeve it. O, we pray you in Christ his stead consider of it, be reconciled unto God, heare our message, imbrace our Embassage! O do not slight what we say to you, we speak to you from Christ, receive it not as a word only from our mouthes, but as indeed it is, the Word of the great God. This is the only Word that can make God and you friends. O how highly does it concern you to submit hereunto!

How will you this judge the world, that the Ministery of the Word, is no more regard

regarded or heeded! When God sends his Ministers unto people, and because forsooth their flesh and blood does not like it, they look little after it: Whereas this contains Eternall life, and if ye reject this, ye reject eternall life. I beseech you judge what I say: Do you meet with a reproofe, that crosses your corrupt lusts? I pray you reason the case thus with your own Souls. O let me not put off this reproofe, it reproves me of my drunken doings, it reproves me of my security, it reproves me of my sins; if I put it off, I put off the word of reconciliation: This is one of those truths, that comes to reconcile me to God: I stand out in rebellion, & defiance against God, if I do not take it home. So of any other passage of the Word. Still when the Prophets would speak unto the people, this was their voyce, The Lord sent me; so saies Isaiah, the Lord sent me, and Jeremiah too the Lord sent me. When they refused to hear what he said: O saies he! Surely the Lord sent me to speak them unto you. Now would think it were enough to stir the corruptions in the hearts of men, to put off any Sermon, any rebuke, any exhortation of Christs Ministers, when they know the Lord sends them. May be, the Minister is an poore a creature as one of us: O but remember who sends him, and Christ saies, He that heareth you, heareth me, and he that despiseth you, despiseth me, and he that refuseth me, refuseth him that sent me, Luk. 10. 16.

Secondly, He hath them, that is, he hath the giving of them their Commission, as they have their Mission from him, so they have their Commission from him too. They are not onely messengers but Embassadors. This Commission hath two things, first the Heads of their Embassage, that Christ sends them to treat of. 2ly the Authority of this Embassage, that Christ invests them with.

For the first, the Heads of their Commission, Christ hath the appointing of them, what they shall treat of and they are five; First, they shall preach the Word, Go and Preach the Gospel to every Creature, Mark. 16. 15. Secondly, to remit the sin of all them that do embrace the Gospel, Joh. 20. 23. that is, to pronounce all the Promises of the Covenant of Grace, and in particular, forgivenesse of sins to all true penitent and believing Soules. Thirdly, to administer the Sacraments of the New Testament, to all the said persons, for whom the promises of Eternall life do belong, for the assuring of their hearts concerning all the things of the Kingdome of God, to them in particular. Fourthly, for to build up the Church of God, for the perfecting of the Saints, and the edifying of the body of Christ, until they all come &c. Eph. 4. 12. Fifthly, that the Kingdome Heaven upon all that have an evill heart of unbelief to go on in their sinnes, and not to hear to the Scriptures of Jesus Christ, Matth. 16. & in divers other places. These are the Heads of their commission that Christ will have them treat of in their Embassage unto us.

Secondly, now for the Authority that he invests them with, it is not an earthly authority to jet, and to raunt, or to domineer as the great ones of the world do, Lords over Gods heritage, 1 Pet. 5. 3. no, saies Christ, It shall not be so with you, But he that is greatest among you, he shall be the least of all, Luk. 22. and therefore I do not here speak of any earthly authority: No, the Authority that Christs Ministers have, and they it from him, is a spirituall Authority; namely, not onely to preach, and to declare forgivenesse of sins, and to administer the seales of the covenant, and to build up the Saints, & to denounce wrath and damnation to all that continue in their unregenerate estate through impenitence and unbelief, but to do all these things with his very Power and Authority, to have an Office under Christ for the doing of whatsoever he saies, be the very mouth of Christ, & that which they do according to their commission from him to stand firme & good for ever & ever. I will give power to my two witnesses, Rev. 11. 3. The Lord hath given me power &c. over all, saies the Apostle, 2 Cor. 10. 8 You will say, this is a great power indeed (all the Kings & Potentates of the earth have not so great power as this) this is a power of life & death, not naturall, nor temporary, but Spirituall and eternall; this is a power not over mens Bodies, but over their Soules, not in small matters, but either for salvation or damnation. This is a great Commission, how come they by such a great one as this is? O sayes Christ, I am able to invest them with as much as this comes to; For all power is given unto me in heaven and earth, Mat. 28. 18. q. d. I am able to furnish you with all authority and power, go you in my name, and preach you in my name, in my name bid people repent and beleeve, in my name open Heaven to all that doe obey, and shut it upon all that doe disobey, and I will make it good.

Use. 1. The use of this is, First, have the Ministers of Christ such a Commission from Christ? then they are the greatest Embassadours that ever were, or can be. Embassadors of earthly Kings have a great Commission, they represent the Kings person from whom they come. Alas, what are they to these? they come, about petty things, about civill peace, or war, and yet they are Lord Embassadors, they are Lords by their places, they are much respected among men. O then what great Embassadors are the Ministers of Jesus Christ, that represent the King of Kings person, that represent the person of the Lord of Lords, that come to Treat of peace between God and Man, or of open Hostility between the Creator and the Creature? as Paul sayes, Now then we are Embassadours for Christ, 2 Cor. 5. 20. as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christs stead, be reconciled unto God, that is, we have a very great commission, we represent the person of our Lord Jesus Christ, we come to treat with you about eternity, according as you heare us, or heare us not, so it will be with you unto all eternity; O consider what we have to do, you are enemies unto God from the womb, as long as your sins do remain, ye are enemies still, we come to set you at one again. Ye know the condition, ye know what the heads of our commission be, if you will not hearken unto them, and submit, ye are damned for ever; if ye doe, blessed and happy are ye for evermore; was there ever such a great Embassage as this? as the Apostle sayes, To make known the mystery of the Gospel, for which I am an Embassadour in bonds, Ephes 6. 19. 20. q. d. though the wicked and blind world, look upon me as a Schismatique, and a malefactor, and cast me into the prison, and here I am in bonds, they see no such thing in me, as an Embassadour of the great God, yet the truth is, though I be in bonds, they shall know it one day to their cost, who I was, and what a commission I had, and what it is to slight it, and put it off. I am an Embassadour of the mystery of the Gospel, though I be in bonds.

Use 2. Secondly, Have some Ministers such a commission from Christ? then let them learn how to behave themselves in their function. My Brethren, Christ hath committed unto us the custody of his own power, and authority, and therefore we are to exercise it in his name, our commission is to charge the great men of the world; Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high minded, 1 Tim. 6. 17. True, we are your servants for Jesus his sake, and we are to be humble, and to wait upon men of lowest degree, and to condescend unto men of meanest capacity, and there is a time when we should for love take no notice, but the truth is too, we have power to charge and command, These things command and teach, 1 Tim. 4. 11. These things speak and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Titus 2. 15. We must not betray the power and majesticall simplicity of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. We have Christs own power and authority in our ministery, and therefore we are to command you in his stead: as ever you will answer Christ before his Tribunall at last day, neglect not those things, which we preach to you from him. Now we command you, Brethren, in 2 Thes. 3. 6. the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw your selves from every brother that walks disorderly, and not after the Tradition which he received of us. True, we are inferiors to Kings, and Princes, and Magistrates, and the Nobility and Gentry of the land: There be thousands & thousands that are our Betters in all civill respects, but our Embassage is above all.

The

The Lords own Power and Authority goes through the miniſtery, as a Trunk. As, the King may ſend a Command to the greateſt Nobleman of the Kingdome by the hand of a mean man; and he is to hearken to it: though the meſſenger in himſelfe be his underling, yet his meſſage is above him, and he looſes his head if he deſpiſe it. So, Beloved, we are over you in the Lord, that is, in regard of our meſſage. Though we be your inferiours, and ſome of you be our betters, and we are to ſtand with Cap in hand to you; yet ye looſe your ſoules, if ye will not heare us, and obey our Embaſſage. We muſt not bow to your humours, nor make the Spirit of Chriſt in the Goſpell to bend and comply with humane luſts. If Princes and Potentates were by, we muſt not ſpare their ſinnes. Nathan deales roundly with King David; Thou art the man. Jehu, with King Jehoſaphat, Wrath is upon thee from the Lord, becauſe thou haſt holpe the ungodly. We muſt let all the world know that Chriſt whom we preach, is above them all, we muſt not proſtitute Chriſts Scepter, nay, not to a Monarchs foot. If we be men-pleaſers, we are not the ſervants of Chriſt. We muſt not ſuffer Chriſts word to be bound, whoſoever is our hearer, whether high or low. We defie popiſh Divinity, that exalts their Antichriſtian Clergy above the civill Magiſtrate. Bellarmines Martin is but a feyſted ſlory. But yet in this ſenſe we are above all the Kingdomes of men, as God ſayes, Behold I have put my words in thy mouth, and lo I have ſet thee this day over Nations and Kingdomes, to plant and to root up, to build and to throw downe. Jer. 1.9.10. Let no man think we are ſaucy though we reprove the greateſt of you all, as long as we doe it in Chriſt, and from Chriſt, we are the mouth of the Judge of quick and dead, and he will make our words good; The meaneſt Sergeant in the Kings name dares arreſt the greateſt Duke. So, my Brethren, we come in the Kings name, in Chriſt his name, and therefore we muſt not be afraid of your faces. As Paul told Philemon, I have great authority in Chriſt to command thee, that which is convenient. Philem. 8. We have great authority to command every one of you, to do your Duties towards God and man. We have Chriſt for our Authour, and therefore he will be a wall of Braſſe to us. We are his Embaſſadours, and therefore our Meſſage is with great power.

Thirdly, Have we this Commiſſion from Jeſus Chriſt? Then this may ſerve to condemne all ſuch as doe not obey our Miniſtery. Though we have all this authority, the very power of Chriſt himſelfe in our mouthes, that equally binds King and Begger; Yet who obeys our commands? who ſtirres? who repents? who ſubmits himſelf unto our commiſſion? we have called for humiliation, but no man will humble himſelf: We have cryed for reformation, and amendment of life, but no man relents; we have read our commiſſion every week unto people, we ſhew them our Letters Patents from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and they are counted as idle tales by the moſt. O what an indignity is this unto our Lord Jeſus Chriſt! we are his Embaſſadors, and your ſtanding out againſt us, is not againſt us, but againſt him, and he will repay it. O, ſayes the Apoſtle, If any man obey not our word, By this Epiſtle, note that man, 2 Theſſ. 3.14. &c. note him with a brand of infamy, note him as a Rebell againſt Jeſus Chriſt, look upon him as a wretched miſerable creature; take heed of him, avoid him, withdraw your ſelfe from him, point at him, yonder goes a wretch, that will not obey the voice of his Teacher, excommunicate him from your company, have as little to doe with him as you can. Be ye ſhie of ſuch a man, certainly there is great wrath hangeth over him. So, Beloved, if any obey not our Word, note ſuch perſons, note ſuch Pariſhes, note all ſuch families, the wrath of heaven hangeth over them, their ſtubbornneſſe, and hardneſſe of heart is not againſt us, but againſt the Lord. Theſe are notorious Townes, notorious people, that have Chriſts Embaſſadours among them, and yet will not be obedient, and yet how is our Embaſſage made nothing of! If Kings onely, and Printes, and Lords, and great men should make nothing of it, we should not so much wonder, because they are greater men, then those that God sends his Embassage by, and yet if they were wise, and knew what they did, they durst not doe as they doe; but every base fellow stops his eare, and hardens his heart, against the God of Heaven and earth, and will not obey our word: Nay, men can hear their sinnes ripped up, and the Anathema's of Christ spread before their faces, and not blush. They can heare that those very sinnes they live in, doe separate from God, doe adjudge them to hell, and shew them to be under the blacknesse of of darknesse, and the sentence of damnation, they can see it shown them out of the word, which they cannot deny for their hearts; though they would never so faine, and yet they will not repent nor returne that they may have mercy. Not one drunkard will leave, not one Mocker leave, not one Covetous person, not one graceleſſe wretch leave, they will have their own wayes, doe the Ministers of God what they can. We can get none to be awakened, none quickened, none stirred, none startled to any purpose. Setting aside here one and there one that truly obeyd the voice of Gods servants, the whole Country lying in ignorance of God, in the privation of his Spirit, unreconciledneſſe with heaven, voidneſſe of faith, emptineſſe of grace and life, the nakedneſſe of an outward profeſſion, having no true quickning within, nay, the most in groſſe wickedneſſe, drunkenneſſe, company-keeping, unrulineſſe, disorder, uncleannesſe, laſciviouſneſſe, covetouſneſſe, mocking at the pure in heart, malicious alienation of spirit against the holy wayes of God. Nay since we have spoken to them in the name of the Lord, yet none will hearken to any effect that their soules may live.

{ Use 4. Fourthly, Therefore, I pray you let me adde one use more; doe but consider, how the Lord taketh this at our hands, that his Ministers are thus vilipended. They are in more danger of their liberty for reproving, then the wicked for committing of their sinnes. Are his Ministers his Embaſſadours? then he will never endure that his Embaſſadours shall be abuſed. When the King of the Ammonites had abuſed David Embaſſadours, that he sent him in love, 2 Sam. 10. Ye know what it cost, it cost about 40 thouſand mens lives. The Romans slew the Illyrians, and the Tarentines, for miſusing of their Embaſſadours, and as Cicero sayes, Our Ancestors sayes he, for this very thing destroyed all Corinth. For alas how could Princes deale with one another, if Embaſſadours should not goe safe, and be hearkened unto? Therefore Embaſſadours must be regarded. When Scipio Africanus took a ship full of Carthaginians, though he meant to ſlay all they had, yet when they said they were Embaſſadours, he would not meddle with them. True, they were not, they did but counterfeit, that so they might escape. But yet you may see how inviolable Embaſſadours were, the least indignity offered to them was punisht as if it had been offered to the person of that Prince, that they did sustaine. Well then, how doe we think will the Lord take it at peoples hands, that his Embaſſadours are abuſed, and disobeyed, that people will not diligently come to them, and acknowledge their errands, and yeild obedience to him? no Nation under heaven hath had more Embaſſadours from Heaven then we have had, and though some have hearkened to them, yet for the most part, they meet with Ammiriſh dealings, they are disfigured, and mocked, and laded with indignities, denyed to deliver their meſſage, every paltry raſcals complaint admitted against them, none walke in so much danger as they, none more shot at, then they, scarce any will beare them and submit to their Embaſſage, and those few that doe, are counted the onely factious people, and peſtilent fellowes in the land. O what wrath is there against us for these things! For this very cauſe, the Lord plagued all Judah, even because they would not liſten to Gods Embaſſadours that he sent to them early and late, as the Prophets speakes. Jer. 29. 17, 18, 19. Thus saith the the Lord of Hoſts; Behold I will ſend upon them the ſword, the famine, and the Peſtilence, and will make them like vile Figs, that cannot be eaten they are ſo evill, and I will perſecute them with the ſword, with the famine, and with the Peſtilence, and I will deliver them to be removed to all the Kingdomes of the earth, to be a curſe, and aſtoniſhment and an hiſſing and a reproach, among all Nations whither I have driven them. Mark now; What is the reaſon, why God would doe thus? Becauſe they have not hearkened to my Word, ſaith the Lord, which I ſent unto them by my ſervants the Prophets, riſing up early and ſending them, but ye would not hearke, ſaith the Lord. This was the reaſon, why God would plague them ſo grievouſly, becauſe they would not liſten to his Embaſſadors, that he ſent them for their good. The like we read of the ten Tribes: the Lord powred his vengeance on them too, for this very reaſon, becauſe they would not heare his Embaſſadours, therefore the Lord caſt them out of his ſight, and flung them away from being his people, and he would never be their God more; the place is, 2 Kings 17. 13, 14, 15. The Lord teſtified againſt Iſrael and Judah, by all the Prophets and Seers, ſaying, Turne ye from your evill wayes and keep my Commandments and my Statutes, according to all the Law which I commanded your fathers, notwithſtanding they would not heare but hardned their necks, like to the neck of their Fathers, and did not believe in the Lord their God, and they rejected his Statutes and his Covenant, that he made with their Fathers. Mark, this was the cauſe why the Lord was ſo angry with them, and removed them out of his ſight, becauſe they would not doe as his Embaſſadours did command them in his name. Now as God hath let out his fury upon them for not attending to his Embaſſadours, ſo he hath done, and daily doth and will yet more doe upon us. For though for temporall Judgements God be patient and forbearing, beyond all admiration, we feele yet no Sword, no Famine, no Peſtilence, we may be aſtoniſht to ſee how long-ſuffering he is. O if we had the grace to conſider of it, nevertheleſſe the Lord is effuſing out upon us the very dregs of his Cup, he ſets us up for his eternall ire, he hath done converting of our hearers, he hath done bleſſing of our Sermons, he hath made us Loammies, and Lorhamahs, and mixed us into a generation of his wrath. You who e eyes God hath opened, whoſe hearts God hath inclined unto him, whoſe Conſciences God hath purged and Sanctified and made you Saints; Bleſſe him and praiſe his holy name, and make more of his infinite grace and goodneſſe. For it is to be feared God will now adde no more to your number, he delivers people now to a reprobate ſenſe, he reſolves to be revenged on our land in fire and brimſtone, for the contempt of his glorious Goſpell, that hath been preached ſo long a time. He lets men fill up the meaſure of their ſinnes, that thoſe that are filthy may be filthy ſtill, thoſe that are drunkards may be drunkards ſtill, thoſe that are ſed with their luſts, ſhall be ſo ſtill, to the intent that he may bring upon the world all the fierceneſſe of his ſpirituall and everlaſting wrath, and that he may revenge the quarrell of his Covenant, and the ſcorne of ſo many Embaſſadours, whom he hath ſent unto you, and ye would not hearke. O that this might move ſome of your ſoules, that ſo ye might prevent this dreadfull Judgement, and be pluckt out like Brands out of the Burning.

Fifthly, Another Uſe is, Are Gods Miniſters, his Embaſſadours? then they muſt Preach no mercy at all unto ſuch as wilfully ſtand out againſt Jeſus Chriſt. When Antony was a Rebell, O ſayes Tully, it is not fit to ſend him Embaſſadours of Peace, to treat with him of Peace; as Theſeus ſaid unto; Go ſayes he, tell Creon, Theſeus offers thee a gracious offer; yet I am pleaſed to be friends, if thou wilt ſubmit. This is my firſt meſſage: But if this offer prevaile not, look for me to be up in Armes. So, Beloved, Gods offers of peace have been made already, again, and again, and they have been rejected: Now his Embaſſadours muſt cry, Armes, Blood and fire, and pillars of ſmoak. At the first God dealt with us, as Tullus with his Enemies, Qua verbis componere potuit, armis non decrevit: as long as he could reconcile them with his word, they should not have his blowes: So the Lord hath dealt with us, at the first he perswaded us with the promises of his Word, now seeing no more can be gotten in that way, he will have his Minister lay the axe at the roots, to hew down, and to destroy, and to slay people with the sword of his lips. Doe not wonder, when we preach hell and damnation to all rebellious soules; You will say, here is nothing but judgement, Preachers send us all to the deuill, they preach as if they would drive us to despaire: they should put in, Except we repent.

firſt

I Answer, It is enough now to understand it; when the Gospell hath been a long time in a place, Gods Embassadours must hold out the black-flagge: when Tamberlane had hung out his White flagge, and that would not doe, and his Red flagge, and that would not doe neither; then he hung out his Black flagge; Now look for no mercy. So, Christs Embassadours should doe. When Paul knew that the Gospell was contemned in Corinth, the white and red flagge had ceased to doe good; You see how he hung out his black one. Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the Kingdome of God? Be not deceived, No idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor railers, nor covetous, shall ever inherit the Kingdome of God, 1 Cor. 6.9,10. He does not put in now, Except ye repent, no, no, now look for no mercy. So the Apostle John; The fearfull, and unbelievers, and whoremongers, and lyars shall be cast into the lake that burnes with fire and brimstone, Rev. 21.8. he does not put in, Except ye repent: If we should be ever putting in, Except ye repent, and concluding with mercy upon condition of repentance, what would hard-hearted people say? O we had a terrible Sermon to day, but the Preacher gave us comfort in the closure, he had a sweet bit at the last, and thus they heale all again. Nay, when people grow once to be stubborn, then Prophets have been so farre from putting in Except ye repent, or any other term of mercy, that they used to meet with the peoples presumption of Repentance. So Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, and others, they threaten destruction to the wicked, and they adde this above all, Though they cry for mercy, nay, though they fast, and could get Noah, and Samuel, and Job, and Daniel to pray for them, yet they shall have no mercy: q. d. Ye think to avoid these judgements, by repenting another day; no, no, when ye cry for mercy, ye shall not have it. When a Nation, or a Parish, or any people grow perverse, and have rejected the sweet tenders of mercy, Gods Embassadours are to look upon such wretches as rebels; no indenting with them more, no termes of peace more, as the Law sayes, With Pirates, and Traytors, and Rebels, the Law of Armes is not to be observed, as Bullin speaks, they have broken the league, as Florus speaks: when Spartacus the Rebell, desired an Embassage of Peace, he would faine have Crassus contract a league with him, Crassus scorned the motion; when Tatfarinas that egregious Robber and Traytor, sent an Embassadour with treaty of Peace to Tiberius the Emperour, Tiberius took it with indignation, that he should be so sawcy with him. No Embassage of peace is to be made with rebellious wretches; we need not put in, Except ye repent, when we are to deale with such; No, no, when ye grow once to despise reproof, see you to that. True, if ye doe repent, who knowes what God will doe? Though Crassus would not parlee with Spartacus about peace, yet when he did repent indeed, he received him to mercy. So will God doe with you. But in the mean time, know that the God of Heaven is at defiance with you, all the curses in his Book, are directed against the face of you. Ye have played the deaf Adder, against the gracious tenders of mercy from day to day, and therefore see your damned condition. The Embassadours of Christ have not one tittle of mercy for you, if we could see you melt, and cry out, and down on your knees, and your hearts turne, and your spirits fall down before God, then we might say something unto you; Therefore, Brethren, if the Ministers of the Gospel do daily Preach more and more judgment, do not think much, they ought so to do.

Sixthly, and lastly, one Use to you that feare God, & beleeve his Embassadors and are be-sought by them. Let me say to you, as the Prophet Isaiah said, Who is among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voyce of his servant, that walketh in darkenesse, & no light? let him trust in the name of the Lord, & stay upon his God, Isa. 50. 10. that is, Be of good comfort, though all the world, and all the Devils in hell be against you, yet be of good cheare; what though ye meet with never so many temptations, and feares, such a fogge of them, that ye can see no light, yet it shall assuredly go well with you. Though others have not come in at the preaching of the Word, ye have. Howbeit others will not reform, will not see the Lords hand lifted up, they will not acknowledge their sins and sinfull doings, and damned case, yet ye have. Ye have seen it, and fled in time to the throne of Grace, and have sought the Lord, according as Gods Embassadors have directed you out of his Word, ye have feared God, & obeyed the voyce of his servants, though others make a mock of such as will be ruled by Preachers, Tush, they shall not curbe me, sayes one, and they shall not controll me, sayes another. What, does he think to lead me in a string? Yet ye do feare God, and ye dare not stand out against the Preaching of his servants, ye desire that ye may ever practise their Word, and lead your lives according to it, whose ever others do. Bee of good cheer, sayes the Prophet, The Lord is your GOD, and do ye stay your selves on him. The Doctrine that God hath sent unto you by the Ministery of his servants, is the only Doctrine of Salvation, and therein ye shall finde Eternall life.

REVEL. 3. 1.

These things, saith hee, that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven Starres.

THese words are the Subscription of the Letter unto the Angel of Sardis, containing a description of Christ, from whom the Letter is sent. Now Christ is here described according to the matter in hand, from two royalties of his, first, That he hath the seven Spirits of God, that is, he hath the giving of the Holy Ghost, and all his gifts and graces, to whomsoever he pleaseth. Secondly, that He hath the seven Starres, that is, he hath the disposing of the Ministers of the Church. And this, I told you, is to be meant divers wayes. Christ is said to have the Ministers of the Church five wayes. Fifth, he hath the sending of them, they have their Mission from him. Secondly, he hath the delegating of them, they have their Commission from him. Thirdly, he hath the gifting of them, they have their Abilities from him. Fourthly, he hath the prospering of them, they have the Success of their labours from him. Fifthly, he hath the keeping of them, they are put into a place, continued, or removed, they have their liberty from him, and when they are put downe or silenced, it is he that does do it.

The two first I have handled already, first, that he hath the sending of them; Secondly, that he hath the delegating of them. I come now to the third, He hath the gifting of them; Look what good gifts and abilities they have, they have them all from him. As Paul sayes, He hath made us able Ministers of the New Testament, not of the Letter, but of the Spirit, 2. Cor. 3. 6. and this was one of the ends of his Ascension, as the Apostle sayes, He ascending up on high, and led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men, Ephes. 4. 8. that is, this was one end of his ascending up to Heaven, that he might send down gifts unto his Church. Now what gifts does he meane? True, he sends gifts to all his true Members, but he meanes the gifting of his Ministers, as it followes: And he gave some Apostles, and some Prophets, and some Evangelists, and some Pastors, and Teachers, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the worke of the Ministery; and so forth verse. 11, 12.

Doctr.

And the truth is, it is not without cause; for of all men, we that are the Ministers of Jesus Christ, have need of singular and rare gifts and abilities.

First, to open the Scriptures: The Scriptures are a great deep, and they have under the Letter, much admirable spirituall matter encouched, and many things are hard in them as Peter sayes, and a Minister is to open them, and to give out the sense, as it is said of the Priests, They read the Law distinctly, and gave out the sense, and made the people to understand the Reading, Nehem. 8.8. Now if a Minister have not gifts from Jesus Christ, what madde work will he make? the Scripture will be a clasped Book unto him, and a Fountain sealed up. Like the Philistines, that in three dayes could not expound Samsons Riddle. It is said of Christ, that he opened the Scriptures, Luke 24.32. The Scriptures are shut, and contain Mysteries folded and lapped up, now the Minister had need of abilities to open them.

Secondly, to Teach; as a Minister is to open the Scriptures, which requireth great gifts: so, he is to teach the people out of them, to draw Doctrines out of the same, & this requireth great gifts too, to informe the judgment, to let out the light of the Word, to scatter the beames of the Sun of righteousnesse abroad, to dispell the darknesse of meos minds, to shine round about them in spirituall knowledge. This is a work of much ability, as the Apostle speaks to Timothy, The things which thou hast heard of me, the same commit thou to faithfull men, who shall be able to teach others, 2 Tim. 2.2. & therefore it is called Prophecying: Despise not Prophecying, that is, despise not Teaching; a man had need of a speciall gift, to be able to Prophecy, so, if a man would be a Teacher; When Nicodemus would expresse what an able Teacher Christ was, sayes he Thou art a teacher come from God. A man had need to be one that hath been with God, that would teach aright. There is a gift of fitnes & aptnes, without which a man cannot do it. The servant of the Lord must be apt to teach, 2. Tim. 2.24. The Apostle tells us, there be heapes of naughty Teachers in the world, a good teacher is a rare man, it cannot be without all wisdome, as he sayes, Teaching every man in all wisdom, Col. 1.28. We are to teach people the learning of the holy, how to know God, how to feare him & love him. We are to teach people, how to pray, how to walk in all holinesse & righteousnesse of living: the great things of Gods Law, the deep things of the Spirit, the mysteries of Eternall life, to open the wiles of Satan, the mistakes of the hearts of men, the many by-wayes of the soule; ye know sin is covered over with pleasures & profits, & carnall reasons, and evasions, and we are to lay it out naked, as indeed it is. Gracious and godly courses seem grievous, & irksome, and uncouth, and vile, and needlesse, and we are to discover the inward pleasure, and commodity, and necessity and glory of them, and therefore we have need of abilities.

Thirdly, to Convince; ye know how the heart does use to put off the Word; and if it meet with a doctrine, or a reproof, or a precept, that it does not like, it will deny it, it will cavill and carp; O, it is false, as Johanan and others said to Jeremiah, It is false, you do not say true, we will never beleeve it. When we paint out a drunkards damned estate, he is ready to gainsay it, or an adulterers, he is ready to except. people contradict such passages of the Word, as are against their lusts, and they give us very little better then the lye, many times, therefore a Minister should be able to convince, that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort, & to convince the gain-sayers, Tit. 1.9. When people are subject to condemn us for harshnesse, and hard sayings, and that we do not preach discretio enough, we must be able to use found speech that cannot be condemned, Tit. 2.8. When a Minister preaches weakly, Sermons are like wide nets, or rotten threads, that the Birds may get through or break, this is not able preaching, as Zwinglius said of Carolostadius, when he heard him disputing weakly against consubstantiation, O, sayes he, I am sorry that so good a cause should have such a weak defendant. It is said of Apollos, that he mightily convinced the Jewes. Stephen, the University-men there that came buddling about him, they were not able to withstand the Spirit, and the wisdome by which he spake, Act. 6. 10. It is the promise of our Saviour, I will give you a mouth & wisdome, which all your adversaries shall not be able to gainsay, or resist, Luk. 21. 15.

Fourthly, to move the affections, Ministers have need of abilities to move the affections of their hearers; not only to informe their judgments, but also to work upon their affections, not only to inlighten their understanding, but also to stirre up their hearts, as Peter sayes, I think it meet as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stirre you up, 2 Pet. 1. 13. A Minister is to stirre up his people, to stir their hearts & affections: he may preach a wholsome Sermon, & the hearers be like Mill-posts, and not stirred a jot: Paul laboured to stirre affections too: Knowing therefore the terrours of the Lord, we perswade men, 2 Cor. 5. 11. that is, we labour to work upon your affections; and therefore Christ sent a Seraphim with a live coale unto the Prophet Isaiah, to touch his lips, Esa. 6. & he had need of live coales in his lips, to fire the affections of his auditory. So he sent the Holy Ghost down upon his Apostles in fiery tongues, without this the information of the judgment is little worth. Religion consists more in the will and the affections of men, than in any other faculty of the soule. I confesse the Minister must shine too, I, but he must heate too. John the Baptist was a burning and a shining light.

Fifthly, To speak Pro re natâ, a Minister hath need of extemporary abilities; sometimes he shall be called before Councills, he preaches such doctrine as angers the world, and therefore he is in danger to be had before Councills, and therefore he had need to have an extemporary faculty, that he may answer as he sees cause, as Christ sayes, when they deliver you up, take no thought, how or what ye shall speak, for it shall be given you in that same houre, what ye shall speak, Matth. 10. 19. Sometimes to preach upon shore warning, as Augustine did, when he relyed upon his Brother Severus, to Preach for him, he not coming, he was faine to go up extempore himself, and so he preacht upon 93 Psalme: So, when there was a suddaine judgment of God that fell out there in Hippo, though Augustine had Preacht twice that very day before, yet he went up again, and Preached the third time: O, sayes he, do not wonder, my deare Brethren, Si bodie vir Sermonem, &c. do not wonder that I preach thrice this same time, it is not without cause, &c. Again, a Minister may be put upon it as Philip was by the Eunuch, concerning the meaning of a place of Scripture to speak of it at first sight, & a Minister must not only have this knowledge in his note-book, but in his lips, that is, to be in a readinesse upon very occasion. His lips must preserve knowledge, Mal. 2. 7. Sometimes he may come amongst his people, he may light upon their company by chance: now if he have not good abilities, he cannot do the part of a Minister. As Paul sayes, I long to see you, to impart unto you some spirituall gift, Rom. 1. 11. A Minister when he sees his people, he should be a well-stored man, to impart some spirituall thing or other to them, a word of Instruction, a word of Exhortation, a word of Admonition, when he does but see them, he should be able to drop something among them.

Sixthly, To observe seasons, to be able to make choyce of speciall Texts for speciall occasions. For howsoever all Scriptures are full of Divine & Heavenly truths, yet some Scriptures fit some persons & some occasions better than others. some. Aarons bells must be wisely rung, sometimes in one tune, sometimes in another, as occasion serves. A Minister is to change his note, as the circumstances stances do require. A Steward in a family must have as well wisedome to Minister every one his portion in due season, as fidelity to dispence his Masters goods. A word fitly spoken is like apples of Gold in pictures of Silver, Prov. 25. 11. The very Heathen man commends much a seasonable, when a man speakes in due season. St. Paul had this gift in all his Preaching, to ponder all circumstances, who, and what, and where, and when, and how. I made my self a servant unto all, sayes he, that I might gain the more. To the Jewes I became a Jew, that I might gain the Jewes: to them that are under the Law, as under the Law, that I might gain them that are under the law. To the weake became I as weake, that I might gain the weake: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all meanes save some, 1 Cor. 9. 20, 22. So believed, we true Ministers of God, and we have need of abilities to fit our Doctrine to the present times and occasions and persons, that we may profite hearers. When the Apostle came to Athens, he spoke his Text according to the present time: He found an Altar with this inscription, To the unknown God, & so he spake of that, Act. 17. 23, 24. He took occasion from Idolatrie to speak of the God of Heaven and Earth &c. When our Saviour Christ saw the woman of Samaria coming to draw water, he took opportunity to preach unto her the living water, Joh. 4. 10. Ministeriall gifts are for this very purpose, as the Prophet sayes, The Lord hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season, Isa. 50. 4. It is noted of Christ, that when he saw the people coming to him, he entered into a ship, and sate down, and taught them, O generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell? Mat. 3. 7. And when you make boast to be sincere Professors, you are to be wrung by the ears; repent, or else you'l to hell. All this was done to one purpose. So when a Drunkard comes in your way, you should (in a holy manner) say unto him, Weepe and howl ye drunkards, See what God sayes of you: to whom is it a burden unto you? See what the Scripture sayes of your courses, ye shall never inherit Gods Kingdom, nor (as the Apostle speaks) So when Whoremongers step in your way, you should (in a holy manner) say unto them, Whoremongers and Adulterers God will judge you one day. This is like the former and the latter Raine. There is a season when the ground hath need of it. So when a Minister observes the season, then the word comes, when the soule hath need of it. It comes pat, as we say. Then people may see a speciall providence in it: I see a speciall providence of God that the Minister should speak of such a Theme this day, that he should be so sensible of my sin, when a man hath been envying then reviling the Church, and Ministers &c. of it again. When a man hath been swearing and lying, then he comes in & tells the drunkard, and hears of that very sin, and the danger of it, to the damnation of the commanders of it. When a man hath been devising evill, then he comes in & tells him of his evill ripenesse, and all his secret lusts are discovered, and he can say with the Psalmist, Thou devisest evill, the Lord knows your wicked imaginations, ye are thinking to be revenged, but God will have revenge on you, you are minded to go to such a place of villany, but the Lord will find you out. This is preaching in season. So when a close covetous man comes to hear the Word preached, he meets with his sin in every case, his secret corruptions are discovered, mine and mine, in every point of my wounds, this is to preach a word in season. Or when a gifted Minister meets with a holy soule, that hath received gifts from God. Daily inquires, that God should guide him in every businesse. Now, Beloved, it is Christs glorious gift to his Ministers, to make them able to know a season, and how a man Use 1. ...The use of this is first, to let us see what a Minister had need to be furnished with, and withall, that he speaks a wise word. He must be a wise man that would be a Minister. It requires more then common wisedome to catch soules, when the devil hath so many out-offs, so many devices, so many strong holds for the soule to obey the word, so subtill to invent excuses, so crafty to thrust away the truth. There is some wisedome required to catch fishes, and birdes, and

vermine;

termine how much money to catch men? ... for their money?
The best of us all may blush to think how unfit we are to be Ministers. O how should we bestir us, if by any of us in any suitable measure ... And when we have done our best, we had need to go home, and down on our knees, and cry shame on our selves for not doing better.

Secondly, If Ministers are hooks of Christs Ministers that are not gifted for this mighty work. Will he send a foole on such a weighty message as this? ... Pro. 26. 6 Hee that sendeth a message by the hand of a foole, cutteth off the feet, and drinketh damage. Proverbs 17. 10 A wise man, if a man have a businesse of any great importance, he had not need to employ a foole for it, lest he suffer great damage by it, is all one As if one should chop off ones feet, and then bid him go on our errand. O, Beloved, preaching of the Gospell is a work of infinite importance, the humbling of mens hearts, the Convincing of Consciences, the converting of mens Souls, these are great businesses, doubtlesse the Lord ... that Christ sends at his charge. True, all Christs Ministers have not alike gifts, some have greater gifts then other some have, but he that hath ... to build up the called, to judge all things, to stop the mouths of gainsayers, to lay to the charge, to shew unto men the things belonging to their peace, to give the Saints their due, and the wicked their due. ... meer man, passing expedient hand shall be visible only, nothing seen or ... watch neither, but the Ministry will single him out and give him his ... upon him that cannot find him out in any measure, he is none of Christs Ministers. Surely he will not send so great a message by so foole a hand, but either he makes him wise to understand else the errand without his knowing, and ... Thirdly, Then my Brethren, hence we learn whither we goe for gifts, if we would be enabled to our calling, let us goe to Jesus Christ, there dwells the fulness of Spirits in his hands, he can make our influences strong, and our light and heat mighty, he can give us gifts of boldnesse to reason with men face to face. He can open our stammering tongues, that we shall have liberty in speaking. He can make our tongues to be unloosed. He can make us meet partakers of adoption unto Sonne-ship of children unto obedience. If we want knowledge in the mysteries of Christ, he can make our wants known unto him, and he will instruct us. If we want words he can make them flow unto us. If we want affections he can purge away our corruptions and fire our hearts and lips. When the Apostles were to ... holy Ghost, as they waited for gifts, ... should Paul ... ...

should seeme, when he had the spirit in him, this was his wont, he shook himself as at other times, he used to stirre up the Spirit in him; so we should stirre up the Spirit in us, we should rouze up our gifts, like sparkes out of the ashes, and bestirre our selves soundly; remisse thing of them, lest them warpe and wane.

Vse 3. Again, We should labour to relye more upon Christ, we trust too much to our notes; but, O if we could trust more to Christ, that's warmest matter that comes down from heaven in the speaking, not that we should leave all without study, till we come into our Pulpits: No, prepare as much as we can. But then, if we would trust in Christ for his present assistance, and yearn up to him for prompting, it would make our Ministery more lively. When a Sermon is an effect of Faith, that's it that does most good: then Christs Spirit Preaches, and not we, as the Prophet David sayes, The Spirit of the Lord spoke by me, 2 Sam. 23.2.

Again, This should teach the people of God, if they would have their Ministers inabled indeed, to doe their soules good, that they should pray for them, that Christ would more furnish them. How often does the Apostle tell the people, that Ministers might have greater gifts, if they had a heart? O sayes he, Pray for me, that I may have utterance, and that I may speak boldly, to make known the mystery of the Gospel, Ephes. 6.19. a. d. If ye have a heart to pray, I doe verily think that I shall be the more inlarged a great deale. Our Chariot drives the more heavily, because is wants the wheels of your Prayers; and the truth is, God uses to punish people thus, that because they are dead and dull, and have no heart, and are weary of the Word; therefore he withholds them from the Minister, on purpose to plague them both again, as God told Ezekiel, Son of man, thou shalt be dumb, and when thou wouldst reprove, thou shalt be tongue-tyed, thy tongue shall cleave to the roof of thy mouth: Now mark the reason, why? For they are a rebellious house, Ezek. 3.26. Mark, it was long of Judahs sinnes, that the Prophet Ezekiel was tongue-tyed and locked up: An excellent Minister, and yet straitned for the people's sinnes.

O, Beloved, I will tell you what would enlarge our hearts and our gifts towards you: First, if you would more flock to the Word, and attend. It is said in Matth. 5.1,2. That Christ seeing the multitude, He opened his mouth, that is, he was the more inlarged to Preach, upon the sight of such a great auditory. Who would not cast his net amidst multitudes of fishes? The Text sayes, When Christ saw the multitudes, he had compassion on them. So, if Ministers could see all their Parishioners in, all that might hear; the sight of such a multitude would stirre up pity. O would we thank, O what a goodly company is here! O it is pity but they should have some wit, O if I could win some of you. There may be a lack in this thing, and we must take heed of it too, lest we be tickled with flockings, or discouraged with thin Pewes. This is pride, but yet there is a truth in this. What a shame is it, that there should be fewer of our own Parish every Lecture day, than of strangers? Is it not just with God to make the house dry, when the Children care not for sucking?

Secondly, If God had more among you to be saved, as God said to Paul, concerning Corinth, Be not afraid, speak, hold not thy peace, I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee, I have much people in this City, Act. 18.10. This opened Pauls mouth, this made him finde abundance of assistance from Christ, because God had much people there.

Thirdly, If you would hear with alacrity, & with a ready and a greedy minde: When Cornelius and his company were all listening, and earnest to hear, and so hearken, O say they; Speak Peter, we are all here before God, to hear every thing that speakest. Then Peter opened his mouth, Act. 10 33.34. But when people look dully, and blockishly, and sit sleepily and drowsily, as though they were weary of hearing, and cared not whether they heard or no; Nay,

this

this is the reaſon why the Devils inſtruments are ſo bold to oppoſe the Miniſters of God, they ſee they are not much cared for, none but here one, and there one, a ſort of preciſe fools: whereas, if people would be eager to hear over all the land, they durſt not meddle with them, as it is ſaid of our Saviour, The Chiefe Prieſts & the Scribes ſought to deſtroy him, but they could not finde what they might do; For all the people were very attentive to heare him Luk. 19.48.

Fourthly, if ye would be fruitfull in obedience, and in learning, this would put life into our Prayers at home, this would quicken our labours and paines in the Pulpit; the very hope of having fruit, made Paul very eager to come to Rome, Rom. 1.13. The very thought that the people are gracious, and godly, and fruitfull, carries the Preacher beyond himſelf. Nay, its ſtrange to conſider, how, when the Miniſter knows he hath but one underſtanding judicious hearer, one gracious Soule in his Pariſh, it prouokes him very much, it makes him look about him the more, a great deale. How much more, when there be many ſuch? But when a Pariſh is ſenſeleſſe, and heavy, and froward, it is unſpeakable to conſider how it ſtraitens a Miniſter. Let a man be to pray in a meeting, where they be graceleſſe, and dull, and hardly any almoſt, godly, he cannot tell what to ſay almoſt, he is not himſelf. Whereas, if he were to pray among them that he knows can ſavour gracious things, there he hath more liberty to let out himſelf.

REVEL. 3. 1.

Theſe things ſaith he, that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, and the ſeven Starres.

And the ſeven Starres.

THey have their gifts and abilities from him. Now I proceed on to the fourth; That he hath the proſpering of them: They have the Succeſs of their labours from Jeſus Chriſt. Chriſt bids us preach, Repent, repent, but it is he that muſt give Repentance; So, Paul preached to Lydia, and had good ſucceſſe, for the text ſhewes how ſhe was converted by his Miniſtery: But, it was God that opened her heart. As Rebeccah dreſſed the Veniſon, but Iſaac gave the bleſſing. So we may cook the Word for you, but the bleſſing is in Chriſts hands, as the Apoſtle ſayes, We are Miniſters by whom ye Believed, even as the Lord gave to every man, 1 Cor. 3.5. that is, when we preached among you, we had good ſucceſſe; you believed. What? as we would our ſelves? No, Alas we would faine have had you all to Believe: but, even as the Lord gave to every man, the ſucceſſe was as he would; ſo to ſome he gave only conviction by the word, to ſome onely knowledge, to ſome good reformations, to ſome a true faith. It was as he was pleaſed to give to every man. So when he preached unto other Gentiles he confeſſes, looke what good ſucceſſe he had, he had from Jeſus Chriſt. I will not dare to ſpeake of any of thoſe things which Chriſt hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient by word and deed, Rom. 15.18. That is, as who ſhould ſay, That the Gentiles did heare me, that they were brought to obedience in word and deed, that I had ſo good ſucceſſe in my labours, God forbid I ſhould ſay or thinke it was my doing, I dare not ſay ſo for a world. No, no, it was Chriſt, and he alone that did worke by me as his poore Inſtrument. I have all my good ſucceſſe from him. The ſucceſſe is meerly as he will. If he will be pleaſed to give ſo good ſucceſſe, Peter ſhall convert 3000 at one Sermon. But if he be pleaſed to deny a good ſucceſſe, the Prophet Eſay ſhall preach in the reigne of 4 Kings, about fourteſcore yeares, and convert hardly one, as he ſayes to Iſrael, as the Apoſtle quotes him; All the day long I have Doctr.

ſtretched

stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and a gain-saying people. Rom. 10. 21. All successes are of God, and therefore much more success here. Let it be in any calling. As for example, Fishing; that when a man goes a fishing, he finds good success, this is of God. Simon and his company toyled all night and took nothing. But when Christ came and gave them good success, then they inclosed a great multitude of fishes, two ships full of fishes at one draught, Luke 5. 7. So when a man runs, who shall get the Goale; the man may run, but whether he shall get the Goale, that he cannot tell. When a man fights, the man may fight, & he the better man of the two, but whether shall overcome, that is uncertain unto them; the success is of God, as Solomon saies, The race is not to the swift, nor the battaile to the strong, nor riches to the wise, time and chance happens to them all, Eccl. 9. 11. That is, not as though the swift doe not sometimes get the race, and the strong the Victory, and wise men riches; yea they doe many times; namely, when God gives success, otherwise they doe not. How many times doe men goe about businesses and in all likelihood, they might doe well; yet how often doe they not? The Lord will have us see, that success is from him.

Now if it be so in outward things, how much more here, in other things? the work is more in the mans hands, and the thing is traceable to him, but it is not so here: We may labour to convert Soules, but this work is not in our hands, the using of the meanes, the Lord Jesus Christ puts that into our hands; but the doing of the deed, the success is only from him.

Reas. 1. First, Because we are nothing in this work. We may be something at other works, we may study, and in an ordinary providence we may make a Sermon. But when we come to Preach, it is not an ordinary providence that will make us to convert soules; no, here we are nothing; Paul may plant, and Apollos may water: Now mark what followes, he does not only say, it is God that gives the increase, Paul may plant, and Apollos may water, but God gives the increase, 1. Cor. 3. 6 That is, all their success and all the fruit of their labour is from God: That is not all he sayes, but in the 7. verse, sayes he, Neither is he that planteth any thing, nor he that watereth any thing, but God that giveth the increase. As if he should say, as excellent gifts as these men had, they did nothing in this work, the whole success is of God. Beloved, we can but set before you, life and Death, we can but tell you, thus ye will be damned, and thus and thus ye may be saved; but it is God that must blesse this unto you, otherwise we can doe nothing. We may Preach our hearts out; and yet you'l go hell; doe we what we can, except the Lord breake your carcere. Elisha's man could lay his Masters staffe upon the child, but the child stirred not, till Elisha came himself, and then the child was raised. So we can but lay our Masters staffe upon your dead soules, But except our Maker come himself, we're a dead soule will finde us: what is all our Preaching, and dressing up of our Sermons, like the ringing of the Bells, that's nothing except the wind blow. The Spirit of Christ is the wind, except he blow upon you, we are nothing: the trumpeting on the Organs is nothing, but when the breath comes, then there is musique: So, we may keep adoe to trade your hearts, but till God breath into you, there is nothing done. True, the preaching of the Gospel is a very powerfull thing; I, when Christs arme goes along with it, it is the sword of the Spirit, but if the Spirits arme be not with it, we may brandish it here every week, and doe little: as Scanderbagge said: One hearing what mighty feats Scanderbaggs sword had done, sent for it, and when he saw it, he made nothing of it: Is this the Sword that hath done such great exploits? What's this Sword more than other Swords? O, sayes Scanderbagge, I sent thee my sword, but not my arme, thus did I handle it. So, my Brethren, the word which we preach, is but Christs sword, God sends you his sword many times, when he keeps his arme to himself, and so nothing is done. So then, we are nothing, and therefore all ſucceſs is of Chriſt. Firſt, our wills are nothing to do it, we may will to do you good, but Converts cannot be made by our wils, as the Evangeliſt ſayes Joh. 1. 13. Secondly our paines & labours are nothing, we may labour and take paines, but look Iſa. 49. 4. Thirdly, our gifts are nothing; who had better gifts than Chriſt had, as he was man? & yet that would not do it, Joh. 12. 38. Fourthly, our Prayers are nothing, they may do ſomething, ſometimes, but except God be pleaſed to give ſucceſs, they are nothing. Jeremiah prayed, Jer. 14. 7, 8, 9. yet the Lord told him, that ſhould not do it, ver. 11.

and

Secondly, the Converſion of Soules, is a ſupernaturall work, we that are Miniſters, preach to make men new creatures, to turn Leopards into Kids, as if we ſhould preach to make Blackamores white, the dead alive, which is a work for God alone to do, and therefore the ſucceſſe muſt needs be from him. Alas, what are we able to do? as the Apoſtle ſayes, You are Gods Warmanſhip in Chriſt Jeſus, created to good works, Ephes. 2. 10. We are his inſtruments, that's true indeed, but ye are his workmanſhip, you are the Epiſtle of Chriſt, adminiſtred by us, written not with inke, but with the Spirit of the living God, 2 Cor. 3. 3. The Epiſtle of Chriſt, but miniſtred indeed by Chriſt, his is the hand, we are but the pen; when we bid you repent, and beleeve, and be holy, and godly, and heavenly-minded men, deny your ſelves, be dead to the world, & alive to God, come out of Satans power, come into Chriſts Kingdom: It is like Ezekiels bidding of the dead bones to gather fleſh, and ſtand up living men. All the ſucceſſe muſt needs be of God. Reaſ. 2.

And therefore what does this teach us? The Uſe of it is, Firſt, That we that are the Miniſters of God, can but make tryall whether we can convert our people, or no, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, proving, if at any time, God will give them repentance, 2 Tim. 2. 25. ſo it is in ſome of your Bibles, ſo, we muſt make proof: we muſt try; come into the Pulpit every week, and try, ſharpen our nailes as ſharp as we can, and ſtrike them as farre in as we can, and ſo try, oftep try, as the wiſeman ſpeaks in another caſe. In the morning ſow thy ſeed, and in the evening let not thy hand reſt, for thou knoweſt not whether ſhall proſper, this, or that, or both, Eccle. 11. 6. So Ieremiah did, he would try: firſt, he went to the poorer ſort, to ſee whether they would hearken unto him; when he had no ſucceſſe there, then thought he, I will try the great men, I will get me to the great men, Jer. 5. 5 we ſhould make aſſays, we do not know, may be God will give us good ſucceſſe, we muſt make aſſays, as it is ſaid of Paul and Silas, That they aſſayed to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit ſuffered them not, Act. 16. 7. O thought they, here be a great many ſoules in this Countrey, we will try, whether there be any for Chriſt, yea, or no. Indeed, they found that they had no ſucceſſe in their attempt. But they made an aſſay though. Uſe 1.

Secondly, This teacheth us to wait, though we have not ſucceſs preſently, yet we ſhould wait, all ſucceſs is from Chriſt, and therefore it is fit we ſhould wait for it, & therefore a Miniſter is commanded to be patient, The ſervant of the Lord muſt be gentle to all men, apt to teach, patient, 2 Tim. 2. 24. 2 d. He hath not the ſucceſs in his own hands, to have it when he will; no, though he do no good yet, nor yet, he muſt be patient, He is not apt to teach poor people elſe, except he be patient, as he is not fit to teach a dull Schollar, that is over-haſty. And therefore, my Brethren, though we have loſt all our labour hitherto on the moſt of you, yet now again we ſpeak to you, come, will ye yet go to heaven? Come are ye yet in the mind to hearken & obey? We come to you once more, will ye yet, &c as Ieremiah ſayes, Wo unto thee, O Ieruſalem, wilt thou not be made clean? When ſhall it once be? Jer. 13. 27. Beloved, we are dull Schollars in Religion, and people are hard to take their learning in this kind, and therefore if we would be apt to teach, we muſt be patient, what though we ſee no good? yet, this muſt not make us out of heart, or to grudge our paines, we muſt be patient ſtill, we are to think, may be the next time I preach, God will give Uſe 2.

me good successe; Esaiah and Paul gave not over, though they had cause to complain.

Use 3. Thirdly, This may serve to condemn all the world, whither the Gospel comes, and specially us hereabouts, that do not let Ministers have any good successe; you will say, How do I make this use of it? If all the Ministers successe be from Christ, then one would thinke, this were an excuse unto people.

I answer, no, the meaning of the Doctrine is this, that the people are so contrary to the Word, such enemies to the wayes of Jesus Christ, that a Minister can look for no successe, except the Lord turn their hearts. This is the meaning of the point. Does this excuse you? what does your enmity against Christ & all goodnesse afford you any excuse? nay, this aggravates your sin. Now this is the meaning of it. As Saint Paul, when he spake, how little successe he and all the rest of his fel-ow-Apostles had, he layes the blames upon the people; All the day long I have stretched out my hands unto a disobedient and a gainsaying people, Rom. 10. 21. So the Prophet Esaiah, from whom these words are taken, complaines of the unfruitfulnesse of his Ministery, as being the peoples fault, & therefore he complaines of them unto God; Lord who hath believed our report? Esay. 53. 1. The conscience of man knows this to be true, for he knows he sins wilfingly, & he knows he would not do otherwise, he daily feeleth Gods Spirit paling him to good, and telling him he ought to live thus and thus, and yet he is loath and will not, he inclines the other way, and rather would do as he does, then as he knows God would have him. What is this but contempt? and indeed this is the great sin of this land, the contempt of the Gospel, people count it not a precious, but a tedious thing. Never merry world (say some) since we had so much Preaching: as if the Sun shone to bright, like the Israelites who stumbled at the plenty of Manna: Nay, they are a kin to the Devils, who asked Christ if he were come to torment them; they account the Gospel a torment, because it crosseth their lusts, and lets in so much light. These can spend dayes and nights in vanity, but an houre at a Sermon is tedious: if they had any delight in the Word, they would not care though their Minister stood somewhat long. Though Zachary stayed long in the Temple, yet the people waited for him till he came out, Luk. 1. 21. they marvelled indeed he stayed so long; yet the Spirit of God notes, that they waited for him. But our people sit upon thornes at a Sermon, though they can lye soaking at an ale-bench as though they sate upon soft cushions. The Onions of Egypt have a better taste with them, than the Quails of the Wilderness. They had rather live at the Hogs-trough, than in their Fathers house. With the Gadarens they prefer their Pigges before our Saviour Christ. O say they, we cannot live by Sermons; Sermons are too holy and strait for them. Bid them take up Christs yoake, they care not for it, except it were wider. The Ministery hath no successe at all with them unto any purpose. What a thing is this, Brethren! Whence is it that we regard the Gospel no more? The truth is, people know not their damned estate, neither wil they believe it, though we tel them nay, they care not whether they hear it or no. But if they knew the goodnesse of it, they would run from East to West for it: drunkards, & worldings, & such rabble, knew their fearfull estate, the Minister should be as welcome to them, as bread to the hungry, or a pardon to a Theife. So that ye see this condemneth them deeply, that the Word hath no success with them. Thus ye see, the Ministers of Christ have all success from Christ, if any one soule come in at their teaching, it is an evident signe, it is of Jesus Christ; for otherwise people hold off, some hold off altogether, others yeeld a little way, but will not yeeld full out; if a man yeeld to us indeed, it is meerly by Jesus Christ.

Doct. Now I will shew you, that as a Minister hath all his good successe of his labours from Jesus Christ. So if he be a true Minister of Christ, Christ uses to give him good successe. When Christ put Peter into the Ministery, He told him,

From

From henceforth thou ſhalt catch men, Luk. 5. 10. That is, as I have made thee a Miniſter, ſo thou ſhalt have good ſucceſſe. They ſhall have ſome good ſucceſſe as we ſee in the parable, though three parts fell into hard ground, yet ſome fell into good ground, Mark. 4. 8. Nay, though Chriſts Miniſters come into the moſt deſperate places that can be, as we read in the Acts of the Apoſtles, notwithſtanding the places they went to were deeply rooted in Idolatry & full of perſecuting Jewes, & they were ready to be ſtoned to death, the people were ſo mad againſt their Doctrine; yet they never Preached any where, but they had good ſucceſs with ſome. When Paul came to Theſſalonica, the text notes, ſome of them believed, & joyned in Company with him. Act. 17. 4. When he came to Athens, though ſome mocked, & ſome hung in ſuſpenſe, like Neuters, that were neither fiſh, nor fleſh howbeit certain men clave unto Paul & believed, Act. 17. 34. So when he came to Rome, Though ſome ſtood out, yet ſome were perſwaded, Act. 28. 24. Yea when Philip came to Samaria, though it was a Towne, that was bewitcht, full of ſorcery & witchcraft, & they had even given their ſoules to the Devill (A Miniſter could hardly come into a worſe Town,) yet the people gave heed to thoſe things that he ſpake, Act. 8. 6. Nay, the context ſhewes he had marveilous good ſucceſs; the Lord maketh that precious account of the Miniſtery of the Goſpell, that he never beſtowes it upon any place, where he hath not ſome Elect; other bleſſings God beſtowes more promiſcuouſly, Reprobates have as great plenty as others; All things come alike to all: But this bleſſing he gives to no place, where he hath not ſome to ſave. Either ſome in the Towne, or ſome there abouts.

The Uſe of this is, firſt, Here we are to enquire then what may be the reaſon that Chriſts Miniſters have ſo little ſucceſs now adayes. Firſt, ſome Miniſters have the leſſe ſucceſſe by raiſing up of others that have greater. As Calvin after Luther. Luther had admirable ſucceſs for a time, and then when Calvin came, he did increaſe, and Luther did decreaſe. So John obſerved of himſelf, he had admirable ſucceſs for a time, but when Chriſt came, John had the leſs; He muſt increaſe, but I muſt decreaſe. Joh. 3. 30. Again, it may be peoples unthankfulneſs, for the Miniſtery of the Word. When people have had the Word a long time, and yet they will not obey it, may be, God ſayes to them as he did to the Fig-tree, Never fruit grow on thee more, while the world ſtandeth. Then God ſends Eſay, to make the heart of the people fat. Then Jeremiahs errand is moſt an end to pluck up and to pull downe. Then John is to ſay, He that is filthy, let him be filthy ſtill. Then Hoſea cryes, Ephraim is joyned unto Idols; let him alone. Uſe 1.

Thirdly, Some Miniſters may be, have the leſſe ſucceſs, for their owne fadle in not ſpreading of the net, when their preaching is little better then reading. True, it may be, a man may be converted by reading, as Luther ſayes he was, And John Huſſe by reading Wiclifes booke. Auſtin ſayes he was converted by reading the 13. of the Romans & the 14. verſ. There is a bleſſing that may be looked for by reading, Bleſſed is he that readeth, Rev. 1. 3. But this is very rare. There may a fiſh or two hang on the net, being let downe on a heape, but that is a chance. No, no, it is not the net lapped up together that bringeth in the draught, but hayled out at length & ſpread all abroad, this cloſeth in the fiſh. So, it is the ſpreading of the Word, the ſtretching of it out upon every ſoule preſent; this is the way to catch ſome, when a Miniſter labours to hit all.

Fourthly, Some Miniſters may be unſucceſſefull for not preaching roughly enough. Beloved, our times are knotty times. Rough hewing is needfull. Now people had need heare of hell and damnation, and wrath, and vengeance, againſt their ſinns, Some ſave with feare, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, plucking them out of the fire, Jud. 23.

Fifthly, Again, May be, a Miniſters ſucceſſe is not ſeen, may be, he is ſucceſſe ceſſefull, though he ſhall not live to ſee it, as Chriſt ſayes, One ſowes, and another reaps, Joh. 4.37. as the Prophets ſowed, and the Apoſtles reapt: So, Beloved, we may ſow now, and thoſe that come after us, may be, they ſhall be the reapers. The preſent age, now may ſow ſeed for the ſucceeding. Aliorum ſerit, qua alteri proſunt ſæcula. As they of China make their diſhes; the fathers lay them into the earth, and the third generation after takes them out. Though we do not ſee our ſeeds to come up; may be, we meet with no harveſt, this may be our comfort, if we can but ſow for others afterwards to reap. Let us have a care of ſowing many a man that now heers the word, and now is brought up under a good teaching Miniſtery, though yet he do not obey it, who knowes what God will do? may be, God may caſt him into ſome horrible affliction yet before he dyes, and fling terrour into his Soule, and then what we have delivered may do him good: And therefore we ſhould never lin ſowing, though we never ſee the Harveſt: this ſhould be our comfort, that the ground hath the ſeed. Let us ſtill powre in good precepts and examples into our people; Parents into their children, Maſters into their ſervants, Miniſters into their hearers; ſet God alone with it, when, and what, and where the Harveſt ſhall be.

Laſtly, Some Miniſters are not godly, and then how can they looke for good ſucceſſe? as God ſayes, If they had ſtood in my Counſel, and cauſed my people to hear my Words, then they ſhould have turned them from their evill way, Jer. 23. 22. I dare not ſay abſolutely, that a carnall Miniſter ſhall never have good ſucceſſe in his Miniſtery. As if a Miniſter ſhould conclude he were a good man, becauſe God hath bleſſed his labours; No, that is not a good argument: for, Firſt, It is the Word that converts, and not the perſon of the ſpeaker; I dare not tye God to the goodneſſe of any mans perſon. God, as he is a Creator, he is a wiſe God, and can write well with a bad pen, and cut well with a blunt naughty knife.

Secondly, Such may be ſent of God, and gifted for the Miniſtery, and therefore for all that I know, they may be an Organ of converſion ſometimes.

Thirdly, Paul rejoyced that Chriſt was preached by the falſe Apoſtles, though it were but of envy, Phil. 1.15,16,17,18. you will ſay, how could he rejoyce in that? that was a wicked manner of Preaching. Why ſurely he could not rejoyce in it, but that he did think that it might doe ſome good.

Fourthly, This muſt be thus, or elſe no man can be aſſured of his ſalvation: For, if a carnall Miniſter cannot be the meanes of converſion, then no man converted by him can be aſſured &c.

Fifthly, They may ſay at laſt day, Lord, Lord we have Prophecyed in thy name, and in thy name have we caſt out Devils, and yet Chriſt will ſay unto them, I know you not, &c.

Sixthly, Why elſe does our Saviour Chriſt bid people heare the Scribes and Phariſees, but that he implies, they may be a meanes of good to them.

Seventhly, Judas was ſent out to Preach, Matth. 10. 4. Chriſt ſaid to him as well as to the reſt, When ye go, Preach, ſaying, The Kingdome of Heaven is at hand, ver. 7.

Eightly, Experience hath found this to be true, ſome godly ſoules have confeſſed this very thing, that ſuch as now they ſee to be palpably carnall, have been the meanes of their converſion, &c. Many helpt Noah to build his Arke, that periſhed in the waters. God may make the crowing of a Cock, to be a meanes of awakening Peters Conſcience. The temptations of the Devill, to be the meanes of Luthers quickning: and therefore, I do not ſimply affirm that carnall Miniſters cannot convert. But this I ſay, It is a very rare thing, as Chriſt ſayes, If the blind lead the blind, both ſhall fall into the ditch, Matth. 15. 14. So if a Hypocrite lead a hypocrite, the Drunkard lead the drunkard, &c. It is a woe to a Pariſh, when their Miniſters are not godly: Woe to the City

ſayes

ſayes GOD, Zeph. 3.1. Why ſo? Her Prophets are light perſons, Vers. 4. Woe to ſuch Townes whoſe Miniſters will go to the Alehouſe, whoſe Miniſters will keepe company, and be haile-fellow with every vain fellow, whoſe Miniſters will embrace this preſent world, whoſe Miniſters are proud, and envious, and malicious, that give a bad example to the people, that depend upon their charge. Woe to them, ſayes God. The curſe of God is upon ſuch Pariſhes. God hath hardly any intention to ſave ſuch peoples ſoules. Or, if he have any of his Elect there, God will ſave them ſome other way; as God told the naughty Shepherds, I, even I will ſearch out my ſheep and ſeek them out, Ezek. 34.11. that is, I will ſearch them out ſome other way, I will not do it by you; and therefore when he hath a mind to ſave a poore people, he ſends good Miniſters among them, or them to good ones, Turne O back-ſliding children ſayes God, and I will take you, one of a City, and two of a family, and I will give you Paſtors according to my heart. Jer. 3.14 &c. God would have none but wiſe-hearted men to worke in his mannish Tabernacle, Exod 35.10. how then do we think he will let fooles, as all carnall Miniſters are? &c. Saint Paul ſaid, it was a part of the hope that he had in the preſence of Chriſt, at his comming, that God had made him the inſtrument of gaining ſoules to his Kingdome. For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoycing? are not even you in the preſence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, at his comming? 1 Theſſ. 2.19. and hath made a promiſe to ſuch as convert ſoules; ſo runs the Promiſe, They that turne others to righteouſneſſe, ſhall ſhine as the ſtars, Dan. 12.3. Indeed this is but a ſecondary evidence of Salvation, &c. O, Beloved, if we could convert any of your Soules, what a comfort would it be? whereas, if a man be a wicked man, what hope can he have that God will bleſſe his labours? nay, he hath ſaid expreſſely that if a man will not obey the voyce of the Lord, Curſed ſhall he be in the field, and in the houſe, and ſo in the Pulpit, in his ſtudies, he cannot look for Gods aſſiſtance, as God told the wicked Prieſts: I will curſe all your bleſſings, if you will not lay it to heart, Mal. 2.2.

Secondly, another Uſe is; Does Chriſt uſe to bleſſe and proſper his true Miniſters? Then let us labour to get this bleſſing of him, Let us ſeek to him to give us good ſucceſſe; O how eager is Paul every where in prayer to God for good ſucceſſe? Uſe 2.

Thirdly, Another Uſe is, If we have not the ſucceſſe that we could wiſh, let us not be diſcouraged, as the Prophet Iſaiah ſayes, My labour is with the Lord: though Iſrael be not gathered, yet ſhall I be glorious, Iſa. 49.4,5. The Husbandman loſeth by an ill crop; I, but if we be faithfull, we ſhall not loſe, though our crop be never ſo ill; if we have plowed well, and ſowne well, no matter what the crop be, we ſhall have our pay. If I preach and you repent not, it ſhall never repent me of my paines; I will preach ſtill. For though my preaching be not a ſweet ſavour to thee, yet it ſhall be to God, even in thee, and thou ſhalt ſmart for it; and therefore let us not ceaſe working, many a draught the poore fiſher-man makes and takes nothing, yet he leaves not off, many a time is the net of Preaching ſhot forth, and yet none converted thereby. So it pleaſed God to exerciſe the patience of his ſervants. Yet ſtill the work muſt be followed, and the Lords leiſure muſt be waited for. Oftentimes the net taketh fiſh, and they ſlip out againe; So there be many that ſeem to be pulled in by the Goſpell, nevertheleſſe they ſlide away againe. Againe, there is oftentimes brought into the net that, which is yet good for nothing when it is got, there comes in froggs, and weeds, and a great deale of traſh, which in the end are caſt away, and yet for love of the Fiſh, the fiſherman is content to hale all in that he can; So, Beloved, we draw in many hypocrites, many that prove naught, and yet for hope of good fiſh, we muſt ſtill be a labouring, and may be, we may have a good Harveſt yet, though yet we ſee little likelihood. Be not weary of well doing, Uſe 3.

sayes the Apostle, for we shall reape, if we faint not, Galat. 6. 9.

Use 4. Fourthly, Another Use is to you, that you doe not wilfully stand out, to deprive us of good successe. The shrewdest turne you can doe your poore Ministers, is to deprive them of the joy of their labours; the way to rejoyce them, is to imbrace the Gospell they preach, it will be heavie for you when we shall groane to God, that we could not perswade any of you. If thou wilt not now heat that which may profit thee, thou shalt hear one day that which shall make thy heart ake; Goe ye cursed into everlasting fire. O remember Sodome, and doe not stand out against the Ministers that come from Jesus Christ to you.

Now remaines the fift and the last; He hath the disposing of them, the placing of them in a Towne, the continuing of them, or removing of them, the holding of them up, or the pulling of them downe, as the Apostle speaks, He hath the key of David, he openeth and no man shutteth, and he shutteth and no man openeth, Rev. 3. 7. That is, he hath all power in the Church, to place it or displace it, to settle it or to transplant it, to prescribe or not prescribe, to obsolve or to condemne, to save or to destroy, to give Ministers liberty or to take it away. As Christ tells the Minister of Philadelphia, I have set before thee an open doore, and no man can shut it, Rev. 3. 8. Good Ministers shall have Liberty to preach in their stations, as long as he pleases, and they never can be hindred, till he is pleased so to permit it, or appoint it. So when Paul was at Ephesus, though he had never so many adversaries there, that would faine hinder him if they could, Yet as long as Christ gave him an open doore, to preach and to doe good, none of them all could withstand him; A great doore and effectuall is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries, 1 Cor. 16. 9.

First, Christ hath the placing of his Ministers. As he saith to Jeremiah, I have set thee. So Christ sayes to all his true Ministers, I have set you. God hath set to all men the bounds of their habitations, Act. 17. 26. that one man shall dwell here, another there; one in this Parish, another in that Parish How much more does he appoint unto his Ministers their habitations, that John the Baptist shall be in the Wildernesse of Judea, Titus shall be in Crete, Epaphras shall be at Colosse, Epaphroditus at Philippi, Timothy at Ephesus, and the like? Nay, he is no Minister of Christ that is not of Christs placing. As the Apostle speakes, Take heed unto your selves and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, Act. 20. 28. Over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers? He is a true Minister to this or that Congregation, that can say that the Holy Ghost hath made me an overseer to them.

Reas. 1. The Reason is, first, Because no man is a Pastor or a Shepheard to any sheep, that did not enter in by the doore into those sheep. He that entreth in by the doore, is the shepheard of the sheep. Joh. 10. 2. Now who is this doore but Jesus Christ? I am the doore saith he, By me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, As it followes there in the ninth verse. As he is the doore, no man can enter into the Ministery rightly but by him. He must have his Letters of Orders from him, So he is the doore into any flock, and if a man have not institution and induction from him, he is no Shepheard of the flock. Nay, Christ tells him flatly, he is a thief and a robber, and a hireling. When the Danites askt the Levite in Mount Ephraim, Who brought thee hither? What makest thou in this place? Judg. 18. 3. ye know he put himself there, he sought for the place himself, and it was maintenance that brought him thither. His own conscience told him he was a Hireling. He could not say, The Lord brought me hither. He came not in by the doore; Now every true Minister comes in by the doore into a Parish, and therefore he comes in by Jesus Christ.

Reas. 2. Secondly, No Minister can be placed in any Parish, but by the Bishop of the Diocesse. Now Beloved, who ever be Christs substitute, Christ is the maine Bishop of every Diocesse, Christ is the Shepheard and Bishop of our soules, 1 Pet. 5. Indeed there be other Bishops under him, other Shepherds under him: but he is the great Shepherd of the sheep. Heb. 13. he is the chief Shepherd. 1 Pet. 5. he is the chief Shepherd, under the chief Shepherd and high Bishop. Well: if he be the chief Shepherd, then it is fit that he should institute and place into Pastorall charges: for in this kingdom should be followed, in every one's coming into a kingdom, he goes unto the King, but where he would follow. To take the cure of Souls, but of such as he commits to our custody, all true Ministers are his Curats, and therefore if they be not of his placing, they come not in by the right door.

Reas. 3. Thirdly, If it be he that must pay them their wages, then reason good, that he should set them on work. For a man to thrust himself into a Parish, it is not Christ that moved him to come there, but forsooth he wanted a living, he would faine have a maintenance, there is no such Perswasion, this was his motive. Christ never moved him, this man can look for no wages from Jesus Christ. When he hath gathered in his Tithes or his quarterage, Christ will tell him as he told the foolish Pharisees, Ye have your reward. He that set you on work, he will pay your wages. I never set you on work, and therefore ye can look for nothing at my hands. Certainly if Christ must pay a man his wages, good Reason that he should have the posting of a man into this or that Vineyard. He called in the Labourers and paid them their wages, that gave them their taske. Matth. 20. 8.

Reas. 4. Fourthly, How can they look for his assistance and Blessing, if they be not placed by him? when the Lord had placed Jeremiah a Prophet in Judah, the Lord undertook to assist him, I have made thee this day a defenced City, and an iron Pillar, and Brasen walls, I will be with thee, Jerem. 1. 18, 19. A Minister hath need of Christs assistance, where ere he is, his Preaching else will doe little good, his Sermons will be of no effect, Christs assistance and Blessing is all in all. Moses prayes for Levi, Bless, Lord, his substance, and accept the work of his hands, Deut. 33. 11. No man hath more need of Christs blessing to goe along with him, then a Minister. Now when a Minister is not there where Christ would have him to be, How can he expect that Christs blessing should be with him? If he can say, Christ would have me here, Christ hath placed me here, then he may look for Christs being with him.

Reas. 5. Fifthly, What peace of Conscience can they have, when they lye on their death beds, except they can comfortably say, Lord thou didst place me in this Parish, Lord I came in by the doore, and by no other way: It was not by-ends, nor filthy lucre, nor gaine, as Jeremiah sayes, I did not thrust in my selfe to be a Pastor, Lord thou madest me a Minister to this Congregation, I have faithfully tended those Soules, that thou gavest me to feed, this is a sweet thing. Ye know people are ape to say, who sent for you, who made you our Minister? we will not acknowledge you to be our Minister. As Shemaiah said of good Jeremiah, Thou hast made thy self a Prophet to this people, Jer. 29. 27. Now if Jeremiah had not his own Conscience to prove his Institution from God, what a taking had he been in.

Reas. 6. Sixthly, And lastly, what comfort else can the people of God have to live under such a mans Ministery, unlesse they can say, This is my Minister, set over me in the Lord! This is so needfull, that without it, he were as good have no Minister at all. As the Apostle tells the good people of Colosse, Epaphras is for you a faithfull Minister of Christ, Col. 1. 7. This is their comfort indeed, when they can truly affirme that this man is for us a faithfull Minister of Christ. This Minister is our Minister in Christ. This is the ground of their Consciences submitting to his Ministery, and of their receiving of him, as an Embassadour from Christ unto them. Now when a man is not placed by Christ in a Parish as their Minister, what joy can they have to heare him? What hope that God will sanctifie his labours among them?

The

The Use of this is, first, For us that are Ministers, that we look we be of Christs placing, that we may be able to conclude to our people as Paul to the Corinths, Though I be not an Apostle unto others, yet doubtlesse, I am an Apostle unto you. So that we may be able to conclude to our people, doubtlesse I am Christs Minister unto you. As our Saviour Christ says, Who is that faithfull wise Shepheard, whom his Lord shall make Ruler over his household? Luke 12.42. Hath the Lord made us Rulers over his household? We are all shepheards in such and such Parishes. But did the Lord put us there? We are Spirituall Rulers over such and such households of God, but did the Lord make us Rulers over them? Otherwise we are not Starres in his hands; No, We are blazing Comets out of his Orb: If we be Starres in his hands, we can prove our placing from him.

Use 2. Secondly, This serves to condemne them that are thereto and intruders into Gods Heritage, that never came in by the doore, but by some other way, that are hirelings and will leave the sheep, for their own advantage; Gain makes them take Livings, gain makes them chop and change, that never went to Christ for his approbation: It is said of the Apostles, that the Rulers and Elders perceived that they had been with Jesus, Acts 4.13. Those are Ministers of Parishes indeed, that have been with Jesus. But these men, no man can perceive that ever they have been with Jesus Christ, that ever they had any allowance from him, and yet they will be crowding in into Livings. But I let this passe.

Use 3. Thirdly, Hath Christ the placing of Ministers? Then this is of use unto you, that have Ministers of Christs placing among you. Take heed how ye carry your selves under your Ministery. If you doe not obey their Doctrine, you sinne against Christ, O reject not their reproofs, put not off the Word of God in their mouthes, if ye doe, ye doe not put off men, but God. It was an excellent exhortation of that godly King, Jehosaphat: Heare me, O ye inhabitants of Iudah and Ierusalem, believe the Lords Prophets, and ye shall prosper, 2 Chron. 20 20. O, if Kings and Princes would doe so now, call upon people up and down, O Sirs, believe the Lords Prophets and ye shall prosper: Ye that have Gods Ministers among you, believe them, may be when they argue against all your sinfull courses, they tell you of hell, and damnation, and heaven, and salvation, ye hardly believe any such thing: O believe them, that it may goe well with you. Remember they be of Christs placing among you; He put them into your Pulpits, he gives them the Themes that they preach to you from day to day. Believe them.

Use 4. Fourthly, Hath Christ the placing of Ministers? Then never complain of graceleſſe Ministers. O, ye have graceleſſe Ministers, and our Minister is not as he should be, he is not a good liver, he does not preach to the Conscience. People are apt to complaine of Patrons, and such and such causes, but let me tell you, you murmure against Jesus Christ, every Parish in England might have a good and a godly Minister, a Minister after Gods own heart, for all that I know, if they would goe to Jesus Christ; he hath the placing of Ministers.

Now what is the reason that there are no more able worthy Ministers every where?

I Answer, Surely, if Christ were sought to, this would quickly be holpen; when Judah had no Ministers in the Captivity, their soules starved for want of good feeding, thousands perisht, and their soules were quite lost for lack of Vision. What sayes Christ to them, Turne ye back-sliding children, saith the Lord, for I am married unto you, and I will take you, one of a City, and two of a Family, and I will bring you to Zion. And I will give you Pastours according to my heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding, Jer. 3.14, 15. People are subject to murmure, and this is long of such and such, that we have no better Miniſters; whereas the truth is, it is long of our ſelves; Iniquity abounds every where, the love of many waxes cold, people grow weary of wholſome Doctrine, they have itching eares; they are all full fed, any Miniſtery is good enough for them, If a man Propheſie of Wine and ſtrong drink, he ſhall even be the Prophet of this people, Mich. 2. 11. That is, any Prophet is good enough for them, fitter then a better. One that would ſhew people how to get Bread and Drinke, and Wine, and profits, and pleaſures; People would rather hear ſuch a one preach, than to hear of Repentance and Mortification, and Faith, and Holineſſe, and the wayes of God, they care not for theſe things. The true preaching of the Word, is as contrary to the diſpoſition of men as can be. Nothing is more irkſom unto them than the Word rightly taught. It goes againſt their luſts, it croſſes their wicked wills. They are weary of it, they ſay unto God, Depart from us, they will not let Chriſt reign in their hearts, therefore we may rather wonder that there is any good Miniſter in the Kingdome any where; we are to bleſs God, and pray for our Governours, that we have any good Miniſters at all, the truth is, we deſerve not any. There is ſo little Religion every where, ſo much Hypocriſie, ſo much Profeſſion without any power of Godlineſſe, ſuch a deal of vanity and unſoundneſs, and hollow-heartedneſs, nay, among ſuch as have gone for good Chriſtians, ſo much falſhood and rottenneſs, & Apoſtacy, to what end ſhould Chriſt let us have any more preaching? We give the world occaſion to think, that Preaching is the cauſe of all this wretchedneſs. What a diſhonour is this to Jeſus Chriſt? And therefore no marvail we have no more, we may admire the patience of God that we have any.

have

Uſe 5. Fifthly, Hath Chriſt the placing of Miniſters? Then ſee whither to goe for good Miniſters. Chriſt is the generall Patron of all Livings; He can preſent whom he will to a Pariſh, and therefore we ſhould pray unto him. When our Saviour Chriſt preached here and there, and ſaw how the people came out of all Pariſhes to him, it ſeems, though they had Levites in their own Synagogues, yet they did not know how to feed their flocks; they were as ſheep for all them without a Sheepherd, there was hardly ere a good Miniſter among them all. Mark what the Text ſayes, Jeſus had compaſſion on them, becauſe they were ſcattered abroad as ſheep having no Shepherd: O, ſayes he, Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harveſt, that he would ſend forth labourers into his harveſt, Mat. 9. 38. So much for the firſt.

Secondly, Now as Chriſt hath the placing of Miniſters, ſo hee the continuing of them, as long as he pleaſes. He continued the Prophet Iſaiah in his Miniſtry, during the reign of four Kings. He kept the Prophet Heſea in his function, during the reign of five Kings, though the times were very bad. When it was told Chriſt that Herod ſought his life, that he would not onely put him beſides his Miniſtery, but alſo his very life; ſayes he, Go tell that Fox, Behold I caſt out Devils, and I doe cures to day and to morrow, and the third day I ſhall be perfected, Luke 13. 32. Chriſt had his time appointed him by his Father himſelf, and he would preach all that time out, and all the Devils in hell, and all his Enemies on earth ſhould not hinder him. So, Beloved, it is with all his Miniſters, he hath ſet them a time, and he hath power to continue them all that time. I ſhall preach to day, and to morrow, and ſuch a day, do the world what they can, they cannot hinder his Miniſters from preaching, till Chriſt pleaſe, as he told his people: Though the Lord give you the bread of adverſity, and the water of affliction, yet ſhall not thy Teachers be removed into a corner any more: But thine eyes ſhall ſee thy Teachers, Eſay 30. 20. 9. d. though thy Miniſters have been put by, yet I will reſtore them againe, and they ſhall not be put by any more. I have power to continue them as long as I will; when he called Noah to preach to the old world, he appointed him 120. years, and he continued him all that while, whether the wicked world would or no.

Reas. 1. And the Reason is, first, Because Ministers are his Embassadours. Now a King is in his choyce how long his Embassadours shall lye Leiger in a forrain Country, he hath so many businesses for them to do, and so long they shall continue there. So, true Ministers are the Embassadors of Christ, as the Apostle Paul speaks, Now then we are Embassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us, we pray you in Christs stead, be ye reconciled unto God, 2 Cor. 5. 20. We are Christ's Embassadors, and therefore he will continue us as long as he list; as long as he hath any businesse to do, as long as he hath any soules to save, any men or women to reconcile to his Father, or to build up, so long he will continue us. It is a dolefull signe when Christ takes away his Ministers from a place, it is a sign he hath no more soules to save; if he had, he would let his Embassadors lye besooting still: So that this is one great reason, because Ministers are Embassadors.

Reas. 2. Secondly, Because Christ hath all power in Heaven and in Earth, as he told his Apostles, when he sent them out to preach, All power is given to me in heaven and in earth, Matthew 28. 18. q. d. I have power to send you, and I have power to continue your Ministery as long as I think fitting, and I have power to take you away, I have power to ordaine you either for Salvation or the Damnation of men. Whom I will, I can convert by your Sermons, and whom I will, I can deliver up to the counsell of their owne hearts, that they shall not be converted by you. Now, if Christ hath all power in Heaven and in Earth, then he hath power to continue his Ministers as long as his will is. I need not stand to prove this, it is too evident: He hath power to lengthen his Ministers lives, to prolong their liberties, when he takes away one, hee hath power to put in another as good: When he meant to take away Elias, he anoynted Elisha in his roome. If their enemies be never so many, he can tye up their hands; He delivered Paul from the mouth of the Lyon: though forty men had vowed to take him away by death, he diverted their plot, and continued him still: Nay, when he was in bonds, yet he was able to get him liberty to go abroad with his Keeper, and to preach the Kingdome of GOD to as many as came. Suppose the world be never so mad against Christs Ministers, yet as long as he hath any more work for them to do, he can hold off their fingers from medling with them, till they have finished the Task that he hath given them to do.

Use 1. The use of this is, first, That Ministers should not fear to be deprived of their Liberty, so long as they do well; indeed if they do ill, if they be wicked or idle, or unworthy, such Ministers should feare they doe deserve to be put down. But if we be godly Ministers, it is our baseness to fear any such thing, Christ hath the continuing of us, our times are not in mens hands, but in his. What a horrible thing is it, that we should goe against our Conscience in any thing, or be afraid to speak what God bids us, to be meal-mouth'd, to be discouraged with rumours, or dangers, we should keep nothing back of the whole counsel of God; we are Stars in his hands, and he hath the continuing of us, though men fight against us, they cannot prevaile against us, till our businesse is all done. As the Lord told the Prophet Jeremiah, They shall fight against thee, but they shall not prevaile against thee, for I am with thee, Jeremiah 1. 19. Let us then be afraid of nothing but sinne. Let us be afraid to doe any evil, either towards God or towards man; let us be harmlesse in the midst of a crooked and a perverse generation. Let us deale faithfully with our people, let us undauntedly Preach, Rebuke, Exhort, with all long-suffering and Doctrine, make our faces hard against the wicked; faces, no matter for their railings, their threatning speeches, their malicious accusations, and not feare, the Lord Jesus hath the continuing of us.

Use 2. Secondly, Here we may see the reason why the Gospel continues in any place, a man would wonder it ſhould continue any where, becauſe the world cannot abide it. Which of the Prophets have not your Fathers perſecuted? ſayes Stephen, Act. 7.52. They that doe evill, hate the light, it cuts them to the heart, Every ones hates me, ſayes the Prophet, he was reproached for the Words ſake. Report, ſay they, and we will report it. One time they put him into a dungeon; Another time they would have killed him. Shemaiah writ Letters to the high Prieſt againſt him, Jer. 29.25. And yet he continued his Miniſtery, untill the day of the Captivity. Nay, he had liberty, when others had their liberty taken away. Ye know Chriſt himſelf Preached dayly in the Temple, and they took him not, though they gnaſhe their teeth at his Doctrine, and ſometimes were in the mind to throw him down headlong and break his neck, ſometimes to ſtone him; yet till his houre was come, he had his liberty.

a

And the truth is, a man would wonder how any of Gods Miniſters have their Liberties continued, when there be ſo many Drunkards, ſo many Enemies of all goodneſſe, ſo many that follow their own ungodly luſts, and the Goſpel is an eye-ſore unto them, and yet in many places it ſtands ſtill. This is Gods doing. You ſee here Chriſt hath the continuing of his Miniſters; they ſhall have their liberty, as long as God hath any uſe for them.

Thirdly, Is it ſo, that Chriſt hath the continuing of his Miniſters? then this Uſe 3. is of uſe alſo unto you; Now you heare whence to have your good Miniſters continued, even by ſeeking to Jeſus Chriſt, he can lay a charge upon all the world where they are, to let them alone. He can ſay, Doe my Prophets no harme, Pſal. 105.15. You will ſay, why? what ſhall we doe?

I Anſwer; firſt, Let us repent of our ſinnes, it is our ſinnes that remove the Miniſters of God, if we would repent us of our ſinnes, and turn from our wicked wayes, and let the Word work upon our hearts, this would continue the Miniſtery of the Word; as God told Judah, when they ſhould repent of their ſinnes, O ſayes he, I will be your GOD and you ſhall be my people, and my Sanctuary ſhall be among you for evermore, Ezek. 37.27.28. That is, by Sanctuary he meanes his publique Worſhip, the preaching of his Word, and other of the meanes of grace, when they repented of their ſinnes, then theſe ſhould be continued: So, Beloved, if ye would repent of your ſinnes, I doe not mean one or two, or a few, or ſo; But if there might be a generall Reformation among us, this would faſten the Word among us, as in a ſure place.

Secondly, Let us prize the Goſpel, the Goſpel loves to ſtay there where it is welcome: It will never goe away, if it might have good entertainment. If wee would honour it, and glorifie it, and pluck up our affections in the deareſt manner to it, this would preſerve it among us for ever. The Church of Philadelphia, that uſed the Word beſt, had it longeſt, &c. Rev. 3.10. Our Saviour Chriſt hath a ſaying, Into whatſoever Towne or City ye enter, enquire who is worthy, there abide, Matth. 10.11. And as he ſayes, Luk. 10.7. Goe not from houſe to houſe. The Goſpel does not love to change houſes till it be urged; ſo it does not love to change Towns, if it may have good uſage; So, Beloved, if we would give the Goſpel good uſage, the Lord would continue it; like a Gueſt that is the willinger to ſtay, when he ſees he is among Friends.

Thirdly, Let us bring forth the fruits of it. The Husband-man will ever continue ploughing of his ground, as long as he ſees it will give him a good crop. But when he perceives it will not quit charges, then he layes it Fallow. So Chriſt would have ſtayed his Word ſtill in Judah and Jeruſalem, if they would have brought forth competent fruit. But when once they grew barren, he ſaid he would take his Kingdome away. The Kingdome of GOD ſhall be taken away from you, and given to a Nation that will bring forth the fruits thereof, Mat. 21.43.

Fourthly, Let us be earneſt with God to have his Goſpel continue. Im-portunity may doe much: Importunity held Christ a while longer with the Disciples, Luk. 24.29. Importunity held the Levite three or foure dayes longer than otherwise he would, Iudg. 19.4,5,6,7. O, if we would be importunate with Christ to stay his Gospell still; as Iacob did the Angell, Thou shalt not go, till thou blesse me, Lord thy Gospell shall not goe till it convert me, and it shall not go from me willingly, till it convert me first. If every one would hang upon Christ, to stay his Gospell still, and, Thou shalt not let it goe till it hath done my soule good, till it hath inlightned mine eyes, and quickned my heart, this would obtaine much; may be, some does doe thus: as Ieremiah did: O thou hope of Israel, why shouldest thou be as a stranger in the Land, and as a way-faring man, that turneth aside to stay for a night? Ierem. 14.8. Alas! that would not doe, if there had been many Ieremiah's to doe thus, then they might have gotten him to stay longer. So, may be, some doe cry importunately thus, O thou hope of Ierusalem, &c. And so I fall upon the third thing, Ye have heard, First, how Christ hath the placing of his Ministers; Secondly, he hath the continuing of them.

Doct. Thirdly, Now it followes, He hath the removing of them too. People are prone to look upon second causes, but Christ is the supreame, he is the principall cause of this judgement upon men, to take away his Ministers, as the Prophet Isaiah speakes, The Lord of Hosts doth take away from Jerusalem and from Judah, the mighty man, and the Iudge, and the Prophet, Esay. 3.1,2. Whether it be by death, or removall, or imprisonment, or suspending, or any other way: It is he that deprives a people of his faithfull Ministers, whosoever be the instrument.

First, He can take them away by Death out of the world; Thus the Lord took away the Prophet Enoch. Gen. 5.24.

Secondly, He can take them away by removall; Thus he took away Ionas from Israel, and sent him to Niniveh, Ion. 3.1. Ye know he was a Prophet in Israel, and the Lord removed him thence to the Land of Assyria.

Thirdly, He can take them away by letting them be imprisoned; Thus he took away Iohn the Baptist, by letting Herod put him into Prison, for telling him of his sinnes, Mark 6.17. So, Ahab imprisoned Micheiah for telling him the truth.

Fourthly, He can take them away by letting them be suspended, and inhibited from preaching, by letting wicked men have their wills That say to the Seers, See not; and to the Prophets, Prophesie not; Speak to us smooth things, prophesie deceits, Esay 30.10. Thus King Amasiah silenced the Prophet that reproved him, 2 Chron. 25.16.

Fifthly, He can take them away by silencing them himself: this is as bad as taking them away for the time; thus himself stopt Ezekiels mouth, and made him dumb.

Reas. 1. Now the reason why Christ does do thus, is, First, because of the wicked, they will not receive their Doctrine. Thus the Lord Iesus took away Paul out of Ierusalem, Make haste, get thee quickly out of Jerusalem, for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me, Acts 22.18.

Reas. 2. Secondly, The Lord does it in regard of his own people, because they begin to forsake their first love. This was the reason why the Lord threatned to take away the Ministery of the Word out of Ephesus, I will remove thy Candlestick out of its place, except thou repent, Rev. 2.5.

Thirdly, The Lord does this sometimes in regard of the Ministery it selfe, that it may be more precious afterwards, as it is said there in Samuel, when the Lord had deprived Israel of his Prophets, for a matter of foure score years together, O fayes the Text, The word of the Lord was pretious in those dayes, because there was no Vision, 1 Sam. 3.1.

Use 1. The Use of this is; first, Is it so, that it is Christ that removes Ministers?

Then

Then this should teach us to mourne before him, if ever any of our Ministers be taken away by any meanes, we should see whose hand is upon us, the hand of the Lord is gone out against us, it is he that inflicteth this judgement; and therefore we should mourn unto him, as the Church did. When all their Prophets were gone, and all Religion went to wrack, and the enemies had burnt up their Synagogues, and broken up all their godly Assemblies: O how they mourned unto God for it! O God, why hast thou cast us off for ever? why does thine anger smoake against the sheep of thy pasture? Remember thy Congregation, which thou hast purchased of old. Remember mount Zion wherein thou hast dwelt, Psal. 74. 1, 2. This was a heavy judgement indeed, they felt the Lords anger smoak against them then. Why? What was the matter? We see not our signes, there is no more any Prophet, verse 9.

Secondly, another Use is, Let us look into the meritorious cause, which is nothing but our sinnes. If Gods Ministers be put downe at any time, it is our sinnes that put them downe. For if Christ be the inflicting cause, certainly our sinnes are the deserving cause; we can blame none but our own sinnes, if any thing stop any good Ministers mouth, it is they, it is peoples Drunkennesse, and disorder, you are the cause, your unfruitfulnesse, and security, and hypocrisie, and formality; you doe not learne goodnesse and godlinesse under the Word, ye remaine vaine and blind, and hardned in your hearts under the same. What Parishes more disorderly, than those where most Preaching is? where is more hatred of word, and vertue, and piety than there? where is more railing at a good life, and holy walking, and such as desire to doe well? The more Preaching people heare, for the most part, the worse they grow. People come to Church it may be, but they make it a cloake for their villanies, they will give us the hearing, but no obedience, no practise, no Reformation, no signe of amendment, no love, no truth, no faithfulnesse, no communion at all, well-a-neere, where most Preaching is. If any thing stop our mouthes, this will doe it. And indeed what may men think of us, but that we are a company of hypocrites, and teachers of vanities? what are these Preachers? we see little good they doe, what becomes of all their Preaching? Factions and odde opinions in our Towne, and dissoluteneſſe, and all manner of licentiousneſſe in another. If the whole world should let us alone, I verily feare God himself would put us down immediately, in the end. So many scandals, so many thousand offences are given every day, that its a wonder we stand as we doe. That the Lord of heaven lets any Minister in England, come into a Pulpit more; nothing but pride, and self-conceits, and self-trustings, and seared Consciences, dead hearts, and profaneneſſe; unleſſe it be a very little handfull, O Beloved, if where preaching is, it were honoured as it ought to be, and obeyed as it should, if people would do as we teach, I dare be bold to affirm we might Preach long enough. If our Townes would sweetly reforme, set up good Government, root out all disorders and cursed abuses, live like Christians indeed, be humble, and sober, and loving, and dutifull to GOD and Man; giving to Cæsar the things that are Cæsars, and to God the things that are Gods. If we would feare God, and honour the King: Reverence Gods Courts, obey the voyce of his servants, love CHRIST and his Word, above our appointed food, this would lengthen the Ministery of the Land; this would be a meanes for the establishing of Gods Kingdome among us; Christ would never repent that ever he sent his Gospell unto us, where we have some, we should have more, where we have more, we should have a hundred times more, as the Apostle Peter sayes, Who is he that will harme you, if ye be followers of that which is good? 1 Pet. 3. 13. Use 2.

Thirdly, another Use is; Is it Christ that takes away Ministers, either by death, or restraining, or by any other way? Then let this be a meanes to exhort us to repent of our sinnes, that Christ may still give a doore of utterance to Use 3.

his Ministers, that they may still speak in his name. This should move us to seek God. When Peter was cast into prison, O what fasting, and crying, and praying was there to God for him, till he was restored againe! Act. 12.5, they did not goe to Herod to restore him; No, they knew Christ was he that took him from the Church, whoever were the instrument; therefore they sought to Heaven for him again; If any peoples Ministery be gone, this is the best way to fetch them again: Paul knew this to be true, and therefore when he was in prison at Rome, he writes to Philemon thus, I trust that through your prayers, I shall be given unto you; Philemon, ver. 22. Nay, he is so confident that if people would but cry hard for him to God, that he should quickly be enlarged, Nay, sayes he, prepare me a lodging, for I trust that through your prayers I shall be given unto you. q. d. I make no question, but I shall out of prison, if you will but be earnest with God. So also, it seemes the Authour to the Hebrewes, was restrained from Preaching; Now mark what an exhortation he uses, Pray for us, sayes he, and I beseech you the rather to do this, that I may be restored unto you the sooner, Heb. 13.18,19.

Thus I have finished this part of the Description of Jesus Christ, that hath the seven Stars in his hand, and the whole Subscription too: These things, saith he, that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven Stars. I come now to the Epistle it selfe. I know thy works, that thou hast a name, that thou livest and art dead: But of this more, &c.

REVEL. 3. 1.

And unto the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write, These things, saith hee, that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven Stars, I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead.

I know thy Works, &c.

1. YE have have heard two things concerning this Epistle; First, the Inscription, that declareth the Person to whom it was sent, To the Angel of the Church in Sardis, write. That is, it was sent principally to the Ministers of the Church in the Towne of Sardis, and also to the Christians that were in that Church.

2. Secondly, The Subscription that declareth from whom it was sent, These things, saith he, that hath the seven Spirits of GOD, and the seven Stars: That is, it was sent from JESUS CHRIST.

Now we come to the third thing, and that is the subject matter of this Epistle, which consists of three things;

1. First, A Reprehension of the sins of the Minister, and the body of his Congregation.

2. Secondly, A Direction, or the shewing of the remedy for the curing of their sinnes.

3. Thirdly, A Commendation of some particular persons in that Congregation, that were not carryed away with the sins of the times.

The Reprehension is either in generall, I know thy works, that is, I know them all, and I know them to be stark naught for the most part, whatever they seem: they may seem to be very good, but I tell you plainly, I know them all what they be, q. d. Generally they are stark naught.

And then in particular he instances in two, First, the sin of hypocrisie, or seeming to be good, Thou hast a name that thou livest. Secondly, the sin of deadnesse of heart, But thou art dead. This is the reprehension, or the reproof.

sin

Then followes the Direction, or the shewing of the Remedy, for he does not reprove them out of any ill will, but for their good. And therefore he prescribes them a Remedy, and the Remedy is two-fold: The first is, To strengthen things that remaine, that are ready to dye, verse 2. q.d. As many of you as are not quite and clean dead, stir up your selves, quicken up your hearts; and this is, first, illustrated by shewing how they should doe that, Be watchfull; sayes he, q.d. that is the reason why ye languish on this fashion, and ye will languish more and more, because ye are not watchfull, therefore be watchfull: and then it is urged by rendring a motive to use this Remedy: For I have not found thy works perfect before God, that is, thou art hardly sincere a jot, thou art full of hypocrisie and formalitie, and thou wilt lose all thy labour, if thou doest not look well about thee; therefore shake up thy self, and strengthen the things, &c. This is the first remedy. 1.

The second remedy is to repent, verse 3. and this is amplified by shewing how, and that in two wayes, first, Remember how, &c. i.e. Consider how thou hast been taught, and bewaile thy declinings, for thou art horribly departed from what thou hast heard out of the Word. Secondly, Hold fast, i.e. so bewaile thy wanings and degenerations, that thou maist get up again, and hold thee fast there, when thou art up. 2.

Now, lest they should neglect the using of this Remedy, the Lord Jesus sharpens his speech with a threatning, telling them the danger, if they will not be awakened. If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know, &c. Thus you see the Remedy.

Then the next thing is the Commendation of some saine persons, q.d. Birds, that were not carried away with the sins of the Times, and in the common deadnesse of the Congregation, where they lived; and these he does commend very much.

And then an encouragement to give them an excellent promise.

The Commendation in these words, Thou hast a few names even in Sardis, which have not defiled their garments, verse 4. That is, there be some among you, though they be but a few; and he commends them for two things: 1.

First, from the Place, that they could be in Sardis, and yet keep their quickning; Thou hast a few names even in Sardis, even in Sardis, q.d. in dead Sardis, even there be some lively Christians, that are not dead.

Secondly, from the quality of their Care, expressed by a Metaphor of keeping their Garments clean, which have not defiled their garments; that is, they have been very carefull indeed, that they are not footed and soyled with so many ill examples; though others be dead, yet they will not be dead too for company. 2.

And then their Promise followes for their encouragement in these words, They shall walk with me in white, in the same verse, that is, I will give them the grace of Perseverance, and will keep them unspotted unto my heavenly Kingdome and Glory; And he addes a reason why he makes them such a Promise, in these words, For they are worthy, not as though they did merit Perseverance and Glory; no, but they are worthy in Christ, and Christ hath made them meet to be partakers of this mercy. Thus you see the matter of the Example.

Well, now to come to the Reproof, and first in generall, I know thy works, that is, I know them all, and I know them to be stark naught for the most part, whatever they seem; they may seem to be very good and godly, but be it known unto you, I know them all, what they be, q.d. generally they are stark naught.

The

Doctr. The first point we hence gather, is, that the Lord knowes every mans ill courses: he is privy to every mans sins; though men carry them never so cleverly and closely, yet he knowes them.

1. First, he sees mens sinfull works; they can do nothing but he sees it, as Elihu speaks, His eyes are upon the wayes of men, and he seeth all their goings. There is no darknesse nor shadow of death, where the workers of iniquity may hide themselves, Job 34.21,22. What ever evil men doe, they cannot hide it from him; they may goe into a house, and think to shut out all men from seeing of them, but they cannot shut him out; they cannot get out of his sight be they never so private, and whoever sees them not, yet the Lord sees them.

2. Secondly, he knowes every syllable that men speak at any time, as David sayes, There is not a word in my tongue, but lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether, Psal. 139. 4. The Prophet Elisha could tell what the King of Aram spake in his privy chamber, 2 Kings 6.12. The Lord can tell what words people speak under the Rose, what they say in their beds, what they whisper in their close meetings, what they belch out on their Ale-benches. Enoch sayes, he will have them all up at the day of judgement, may if a word be but at the Tongues end, he heares it.

3. Thirdly, he knowes every thought in mens hearts, as Moses sayes, And God saw that the wickednesse of man was great upon the earth, and the very imagination of the thoughts of his heart was onely evil continually, Gen. 6.5. Though mens thoughts be slye things, and are out of mens eyes, and of Devills eyes, and Angels eyes, yet they are not out of his, he sees what men think.

4. Fourthly, he knowes all that ever a man hath done in times past, he revealed unto Moses what Adam did in the Garden, what Cain in the Field, what braggs Lamech used before his wives, what villany Lots Daughters did in the night-time, many hundred yeares after they were done. He knowes what was done yesterday and t'other day, and t'other day, seven hundred years agoe. He hath a Kalender of all the sins of men ever since the beginning of the World; what people did in their child-hood, what in their youth, what in their manhood, though they themselves have forgotten, yet he remembers: There is no time out of minde unto Him, as Solomon sayes, God requires that which is past, Eccl. 3.15.

5. Fifthly, he knowes what sins men will commit hereafter; Christ told his Apostles before-hand, what wicked dealings they should meet with; the Lord told Moses what Pharaoh would do, before he went to him, I know he will not let you goe, Exod. 3.19. So likewise when the children of Israel were in the Wildernesse, the Lord told them even then that he knew all the wickednesse that ever they would do when they came into Canaan, I know their imaginations even now, sayes he, before I have brought them into the land which I sware, Deut. 31.21.

6. Sixthly, he knowes not onely what sins they have committed heretofore nor onely what they will commit hereafter, but also he knowes what they would commit, in such and such cases. He knew Abimelech would have taken Sarah, if he had not hindred him. He knew that the men of Keilah would betray David, if he should stay there, 1 Sam. 23.12. He knowes what a rich man would do if he were poore, what a poore man would doe if he were rich. He knowes that such a one would play the Apostate, rather than lose all his living; he knowes that such a man would do mischief, if he had wherewithall; he sees what is in every mans heart, what lies particularly in every mans nature. It may be here's one that dies in his infancy, the Lord knowes what he would have done, if he had lived till he was a man; here's one that dies at forty, the Lord knowes what a wretch he would have been, if he had lived twenty twenty or thirty yeares longer; here's one that dwells now in a good family, it may be now he conformes to good duties, he does not fly out, but the Lord knowes how he would be a very rakeſhame, if he lived in another place.

7. Seventhly, the Lord knowes what men are, and what they have been, and what they will be, as he knowes all their thoughts, words and works. He knowes all their diſpoſitions, their perſons, their natures, their qualities, their affections, and ends and aymes and motives, and eſtates; he knowes how many are rotten though they profeſſe never ſo much, how many are unſound though they be never ſo well eſteemed in the Church; He knowes in what eſtate every man ſtands in. He knowes vaine men, he ſeeth wickednesſe alſo, will not he then puniſh it? Job 11. 11. The reaſons of this point, that God knowes all mens ſins and ſinfull courſes, he knowes all that they ever have done, or do, or will do, or can do, or would do, are:

1. Firſt, becauſe God is infinite in knowledge, as David ſayes, his underſtanding is infinite, Pſal. 147. 5. as the Prophet Eſay ſayes, there's no ſearching of his underſtanding, Iſa. 40. 28. Well, if he be infinite in Knowledge, what can a poore Creature keepe cloſe from him? who can hide his iniquities for him? who can ſet ſuch a colour upon his wicked deviſes, that he cannot diſcover them? let a man excuſe himſelf, may be his excuſes may paſſe currant among men, but God muſt needs know the falſeneſſe of his excuſes, and that they are but Fig-leaves: men may pretend what they will, and deny what they will with an impudent forehead, and ſet a good face upon what they will, and this may go unperceived among men; but Gods underſtanding is infinite, and therefore he knowes all that men do, he knowes how every man ſtands affected unto him, he knowes how people come to Church, and whether they meane to do what they have been taught, whether they meane to reforme what they have been reproved for; for, He is infinite in Knowledge, and therefore he is privy to all the ſins of men.

2. Secondly, as he is omniſcient, ſo he is omnipreſent; he is preſent every where; whither can any Creature goe from his preſence? if he go into Bed or Chamber, or Cloſet, or Street or high-way, or Alehouſe, or Drab-houſe, home or abroad, he can go no where but where God is, and how can he do ought, but God muſt needs ſee him? God himſelfe argues on this manner, Can any hide himſelfe in ſecret places that I ſhould not ſee him? do not I fill Heaven and Earth? ſayth the Lord, Jer. 33. 24. q. d. If I be every where, I muſt needs be able to ſee every where.

3. Thirdly, the Lord is omniprovident, as I may ſo ſpeak, he hath a hand either in the making of all things, or at leaſt in the permitting and diſpoſing of all things. All that is good, he does it himſelfe, or elſe it cannot be done. All that is evill, he muſt permit it to be, or elſe it cannot be committed; nothing is done without his concurrence or ſufferance; therefore he muſt needs know all mens ſins, he knowes what he hath ſuffered to be, or does ſuffer, or will ſuffer; not ſo much as the ſins of men can fall out without him; as Peter ſpeaking of Judas his ſins and the Jewes, and Pilate and Herods, they did nothing but what he knew they would do; why they did nothing, but what his Hand and Counſell determined before to be done, Acts 4. 28. therefore he knew the Jewes would betray Chriſt; he could tell the Prophet Zachary diverſe hundred yeares before, that he would take 30 pieces of Silver to do it. He could tell the Prophet Eſay that they would ſmite him and buffet him, that they would reckon him among tranſgreſſors; he could tell the Prophet David that they ſhould pierce his hands and his Feet, and that they ſhould offer him Vineger to drinke; the Lord knew all theſe ſinnes of yours, why? becauſe he had decreed them. True, he did not decree that he would make them commit them, but he decreed that they themſelves ſhould be the agents of them; it ſhould be meerly their fault, their covetouſnes, their malice, their men-pleasing, their wicked disposition; I, but he ordered these things, and therefore he must needs know them. The Drunkard could not hold up the cup to his mouth, if God had not intended to preserve his armes, and his mouth at that time; he could not go to the Tipling-house, but that God intended to continue him his feet, and his health; no man could think a wicked thought, nor speake a naughty word, but that God upholds his heart and his tongue in the interim; if God should forbeare his goodnes to him, he would be speechlesse, and not able to thinke so much as any thought at all; and this aggravates mans sinnes, that he hath need of Gods goodnesse at the same time, and yet that he should sinne against his Maker.

4. Fourthly, the Lord knows every mans sinnes, because he hath a Candle in every mans bosome; he hath made mens hearts on that wise, that he hath a Candle in them all. Ye know there is a spirit in a man, that we call Conscience; that is Gods candle, as Solomon sayes, The spirit of man is the Candle of the Lord, searching all the inward parts of the belly, Prov. 20.27. Well if he have a Candle shining in every mans bosome, what can there be hidden in the dark? Nay, he knoweth mens hearts and wayes better then they know themselves, as the Physitian can better judge of his Patients body than himselfe. Christ knew Peters unbeleeving heart, when he knew it not himselfe, though all men be offended in thee, yet will not I; Christ knew he would be offended in him that very night; So he knew Hazaels wicked life when the man that owned it, would not beleeve it; Is thy servant a Dog, sayes he, that I should be so wicked? Yet he knew he would be so wicked and cruell; and therefore God can bring to a mans mind a thousand things that he never dream'd of before; many a man deceives himself all his life-time: but when he comes to sicken and die, then God shewes him what he is, and what he hath done, and now he sees he is a damned wretch, and yet before, though all the Ministers in England had told him so much, he would not have beleived it.

5. Fifthly, He must needs know every mans sinnes, because he is the Judge of all the World, and he is to judge every sinner according to his deeds; Now if he should not know all his sinnes, he could not judge righteous judgment. The Judge must know all secrets, otherwise he cannot well judge.

Now beloved, God is a righteous Judge, and therefore no sinne can scape him; God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evill, Eccles. 12.14. True it is, he shall not want witnesses in that day, for Conscience shall be a thousand witnesses; yet it is needfull that himselfe should have perfect knowledge of all the actions of men. For why is Conscience so ready to accuse a man, when it is awakened? It is onely because it is conscious that God knoweth all its doings; now if God had not perfect knowledge himself, conscience would not witnes all then, neither could it make a sinner confes all. But God knowing all, this is it that will make conscience to speak truth. The Psalmist being to dispute against a company of Atheisticall people that said, Tush God shall not see, Psal. 94.7. marke how he reasons against them, He brings an argument from Gods judging of men, to prove that God must needs see; O sayes he, It is he that chastiseth the heathen, shall not he correct? he that teacheth man knowledge, shall not he know? vers. 10. q.d. ye deny God to be judge, if ye say he does not know, how can he correct them? will he judge men for that he knowes not what? no, if he be the Judge of the whole World, he must needs know all that men do.

Jeremy hath a very excellent saying, Jer. 32.20.

Use 1. The Use of this is, First, is it so that God knows all mens sinful courses? if men be dead-hearted, he knows it; if they be heartlesse in good duties, he knows it; though they would be loth that men should know what they are, & do keep it from them, yet they cannot dawb it before God, he knows it; then this may serve to confute them that say, God does not know sin. This was Averroes his opinion, who sayes God does not know sin; God knows all that ever he knows by know-knowing of himſelf, & how can he know ſin, becauſe he can ſee no ſuch thing in himſelfe? I anſwer, This is to derogate from the knowledge of God, & to deny the perfection of it. True, ſin is an evill, yea the greateſt evill of all evills; yet the knowledge of it is good: nay, it were ſtrange to ſay that God does not know who ſin againſt him; that were a pity; if men be abuſed, we ſay it were pity but that they ſhould know of it, and if we do love them, we tell them who they be that abuſe them, and what the abuſes are. Certainly, God knowes who do abuſe him, and how people carry themſelves towards all his Commandements and worſhip, it is a part of his perfection to know it. Againe, we our ſelves may know ſin, and may know ſin by the contrary, as we know what darkneſſe is by the contrary, which is light; and ſhall we ſay, that God does not know it? God damnes all the wicked, one after another for it, and therefoe he does know it, nay we ſee that God brings ſecret things to light here in this World, when people had thought that no body ſhould ever come to know it, yet he does often bring ſecret ſinnes to light here in this World; how much more at the laſt day? And though God knowes all that ever he knowes by looking upon himſelfe, and ſin be not there, but nothing but good and goodneſſe it ſelfe, yet he can know it as a Medium to bring good out of it; And ſo it is good as he wills it, and therefore he decrees it, and therefore he muſt needs know it and know it in himſelfe. For the permiſſion onely of it is in himſelfe, and the acting which is evill is out of himſelfe, neither does it follow that Gods underſtanding ſhould become vile by knowing ſo many vile things, as Vorſtius and others do blaſphemouſly affirme, and thence they would conclude their curſed Atheiſticall axiomes; we indeed may make our ſelves vile by looking upon vile and baſe things, becauſe we cannot keepe our hearts from ſavouring them; Whoſe end is damnation, &c. who mind earthly things, Phil.3.19. That is, their minde becomes vile by ſo doing. Hereby people come to be unacquainted with God, and with Heavenly things. They know how to buy and ſell, how to earne and get gaine, how to plough and ſow and ſuch earthly things, and they do ſo favour their minds, that they make their mindes baſe with them, and therefore we are commanded to ennoble our minds and underſtandings, for theſe things make them vile, and therefore we ſhould think of them no oftner then needs muſt, for our minds are debaſed by baſe objects; this is to be meant in regard of us, not as though any thing that God hath made were vile, but our corruption makes us vile; when we look upon vile things we are apt to run a whoring after them, and our affections to be hampered by them; but God can daily and every houre ſee and look what vile things men do; for he keepes a continuall and an uninterrupted hatred of them, as the Pſalmiſt ſayes, He is angry with the wicked every day, ſo he hates their courſes every day.

Againe, does God know all mens ſins? then this confutes the Anomiſts, that ſay God cannot ſee the ſins of his people, God ſees no ſin in his people ſay they, abuſing that place there of Balaam, He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath he ſeen tranſgreſſion in Iſrael. Numb.23.21. What's this but to pervert Scripture? he ſpeaks there of the eye of his Juſtice, He does ſpeak not of the eye of his Knowledge, He ſpeaks of ſuch things as is in the wicked: That indeed God does not ſee in his people, for it is not there to be ſeen, otherwiſe, if Gods people ſin, God makes them know & confeſs that he ſees it; as David ſayes, O God thou knoweſt my fooliſhneſſe, and my ſinnes are not hid from thee, Pſal.69.9. The garments of ſalvation that God puts upon his people, are not to hood-winke Gods All-ſeeing Knowledge, but to keep off the deſtroying Angell.

Secondly, another Uſe is to condemne the moſt ſorts of men that do not conſider of this truth; they little thinke that God ſees all their doings. I feare there is hardly any among us, that will ſeem to deny but that God can ſee all his wayes; and yet wee ſee it is too apparent by mens lives, that Uſe 2.

few men do believe this indeed. There is this vile Atheisme lurking in all our hearts naturally (otherwise we durst not do as we do) that either God is such a God as the Epicures made him, that sits in Heaven and regards not what men do here below, or at least we do not charge this truth on our hearts, that God sees us; this is the cause of all the sinnes that are among us; That there is so much lukewarmenesse in the better sort, so much heartlesnesse in holy performance before God, so much wickednesse among others; For why? if men did seriously consider that God sees all and markes all, nay he markes all that men do, so curiously, that he can set in order before them, all that ever they have done, Psal. 50.21. in the same order that they committed them, mark, he can set before us in order all that ever we do from day to day; this sin then, and that sin then, such a sin we did at such a time, such a sin in the morning, such at noone, such the last night, such lusts were in our hearts in such a place, and such in such a place; he can set them in order before us, he knowes them so well, and will too, before he hath done; I say if we did charge this upon our soules, we could not live so loosely as we do.

You will say, yea, But we are Christians, why do you tell us such a known truth? what needs so many arguments to prove that God knowes all our sins? we know that already, and no body will deny it, we are Christians. I answer; this is the hypocrisy of all mens hearts, their hearts will confess it to be a truth, but in their works they doe deny it. The Prophet David speaks of men that were in the visible Church of God as well as we, and that would confesse this truth as well as we, and yet he sayes of many an one of them; He hath said in his heart, God hath forgotten, he hath hid his face, he will never see it, Psal. 10. 11. And the truth is, this is the cause of all the boldnesse of people to go on in their sins, or to yeeld to sinne at any time; they put this out of their bosomes that God sees them; As Ezekiel speakes, The land is full of blood, the City is full of perverseness, for they say, The Lord hath forsaken the Earth, and the Lord seeth not, Ezek. 9. they say so in effect, they put God afarre off, and do not consider that he sees them. Beloved, there's none of us all but hath need that truth should be urged upon us, that God beholds all iniquity and evill, we can never do amisse, but he takes notice of it.

Use 3. Thirdly, another use is; Is it so that God sees all mens sins? Then this is a terror to all that go on with a selfe-condemning heart. O consider what the Apostle sayes, If our heart condemne us, God is greater, and he knowes all things, 1 Joh. 3. 20. q. d. If we have a selfe condemning heart, how much more shall we finde a condemning God? If our own heart can finde us out, if that can find out our worldlinesse, or our irreverence, or our carelesnesse of God, how much more will God find us out? He knowes all our sins better then we our selves? And therefore, O let us quake all of us to go on with a selfe-condemning heart; it is a bad badge, it is a prodigious token of the fearefull judgment of God, if we do not get our sins done away, by the blood of Jesus Christ, and by his sanctifying Spirit, God will finde us out, for he knowes what we are, and what we do daily, and how we live every day and houre. Againe, this is a terror to them that are Hypocrites; If God could not see a rotten heart, he should speed as well as the best. O but sayes God, I the Lord search the heart, I try the reynes, even to give every man according to his wayes and according to the fruit of his doings, Jer. 17. 10. and therefore wo be to such as are otherwise within then they seem to be without, they are painted sepulchers, but within they are full of rottennesse, they professe godlinesse, but they suffer within a Worldly Spirit, a guilty Conscience, a vaine minde, an unbelieving heart, no love of God, no zeale to his glory, no feeling of the Churches misery, no compassion with the Saints, no delight in them that feare God indeed; and yet they will go for Christians forsooth. God sees all their workes, and will unmask them in his due time, either in this world, or in the world to come, and will poure everlasting contempt on them.

world

Use 4.

Fourthly, This is comfort to good people; for if God see all mens sins, then he sees all mens goodnesse much rather; what a comfort is this in Prayer to consider, That he that searcheth the heart, knowes what is the minde of the Spirit, Rom. 8. 27. He knowes all thy groanes, he knowes all thy desires; What a comfort is this when ever an honest soule is put to it soundly in temptation, when the soule is accused by Satan, hardly thought on by men, and God lets bitter temptations to come on? I say, what a comfort is this, that God knowes all the good things that are in man? All ones affections, all ones endeavours, all ones combats against sinne, all ones griefes for corruption, as Peter said, Lord thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee, Joh. 21. 17. Peter was put to it roundly at that time; But yet this was his comfort, that God did know all things. He had many tokens of Gods gracious goodnesse about him, he had love to Jesus Christ, he had deep desires to do all that he bad him. O saves he, and thou knowest it. Againe, this is an excellent comfort in time of affliction When Job was in affliction, and his friends scorned him, then did he go and poure out his Teares unto God, and this was his comfort, Behold, my witnesse is in Heaven, and my record is on high, Job. 16. 19, 20. Againe, this is an excellent encouragement to serve God in these bad and sinfull times, people generally never looke after God, nor holinesse; the World lookes after their pleasures and their profits and preferments, and friends, and the like; but Religion and devotionesse, and godlinesse of living, few people looke after that, as though God did not regard what people doe. Now beloved, when we heare that God sees all that men do, and markes it, and will call all men to accompt, what an encouragement is this to serve God, as David said to Solomon, Know thou the GOD of thy Fathers and serve him with a perfect heart; for the Lord searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts 1 Chron. 28. 9. Againe, what a comfort is this against false accusations? He knowes all our Innocency, when our neighbours say all manner of evill of us. He knowes we do that in simplicity, which others thinke we doe out of a sinister respect, or out of pride, or popularity, or for applause. What a comfort is this, when we can appeale to God, as Paul sayes, The Lord knowes that I lye not? as David sayes, I have not refrained my lips from Preaching thy Righteousnesse O Lord, thou knowest, Psal 40. 9. He knowes the uttermost endeavour and desire of our hearts is to be as good as we seeme, though the world take us for hypocrites. He knowes we be true men, that reverence every power that is of God, though the World esteeme us factious and humorous. Little does the world thinke what the Saints do every day, what wrastlings with God, what conflicts in their minds they endure; this is sufficient, the Lord knowes.

Againe, what a comfort is this? if we desire to know our sinnes, God is able to shew them unto us. He can open our eyes to behold them for our humiliation, that we may say with the Prophet, I know mine owne iniquities, and my sinne is ever before me; If we want a right sight of our sins at any time, it is but going to God. He knows them all, he can help us to see them aright.

Use 5.

Fifthly, Does God know all mens sinnes? Then this should make us afraid to do evill at any time, or in any place, yea in the secretest; we can never do any evill, but God will spy us out, we cannot have a thought in our heart but he does discerne it; nor omit any duty, but he does perceive it, nor slubber over any good duty, but he stands by and looks on, may be when ye are among your selves, ye can shoot out your Arrowes, even bitter and malicious words, may be no body can tell what ye said, tush it shall never come to such a matter here; Who can tell that you did say so? Who? why God can, Thus ye said and thus ye said, sayes the Lord, Thus have you said, O house of Israel for I know the things that came into your mind, every one of them, Ezek. 11. 5. He knowes knowes thy Adultery, and with whom, and in what bed; neither Curtaines, nor doores, nor Lock and key can hide from him. He knowes thy heart hath risen up against the Word. He knowes how many times thou hast smothered thine owne Conscience, and gone against it, and out-wrestled it; He knowes how thou letteſt thy minde rove in Prayer, how many times thou hast come to the Lords Table unworthily, omitted Family-duties, or hudled them over without due regard. He knowes what trickes thou hast to put off conviction, what a base esteeme thou hast of the strictnesse that Gods word doth require, when thou heareſt it layd open. O I say, this ſhould make thee to feare God, this ſhould make thee to feare every where, as the Pſalmiſt ſayes, Thou compaſſeſt my paths and my lying downe, and art acquainted with all my wayes, Pſal. 139.3. Thou haſt be ſet me behind and before, within and without; thou poſſeſſ'ſt all my reines. O what an awe ſhould this breed in us! But I let this Uſe paſſe. This Uſe will better come in the next Doctrine.

Doctr.2 Well then, the next Doctrine is this. The knowing that God knowes all our workes, is the powerfull meanes to all Gods elect, to do them good, and to quicken them and to make them take heed of all manner of ſinne; when the Lord would quicken his people here in Sardis, he uſes this as his firſt meanes to do it by, I know thy works. We may ſee this in David, I have kept thy precepts and thy Teſtimonies, for all my wayes are before thee, Pſa. 119.168. When Solomon would confute a whoriſh heart, he uſes this for his argument, Why wilt thou, my Son, be raviſht with a ſtrange woman, and embrace the boſome of a ſtranger? for the wayes of man are before the eyes of the Lord and he ponders all his goings, Prov. 5 20.21. Why wilt thou do thus? q.d. thou art madde, thou art deſperate, if this argument will not prevaile with thee.

Reaſ. 1. The reaſons of this point are, Firſt, becauſe the Lords knowing of our workes is not onely a meere knowing of them, but alſo a marking and a pondering them too. He diligently obſerves what we do, he ponders and conſiders whence it proceeds, and whither it tends, as the Prophet ſayes, The Lords Throne is in Heaven, his Eyes well conſider, his Eye-lides try the Children of men, Pſal. 11.4. And therefore when he Scripture would tell us that God knowes mens hearts, it ſometimes expreſſes it thus, The Lord ponderith mens hearts, Prov. 24.12. If God did onely ſee what we do, it were another matter, but when the ſoule ſhall heare that he markes, and that he ponders, and conſiders mens ſinnes, and weighes them how haynous they are, what puniſhment they deſerve, and how horrible it is that they do, how much it is againſt his glory; its a ſigne of a deſperate heart, when this will not work.

Reaſ. 2. Secondly, becauſe when God ſees all our ſinnes, it is with a moſt holy and pure Eye, and ſuch an Eye as cannot abide ſuch an object before him, as the Prophet Habakkuk ſpeakes, Thou art of purer Eyes then to behold evill, thou canſt not looke on iniquity Hab. 1.13. If God ſaw our ſinnes with ſuch an Eye as men ſee them now and then, it were no ſuch great thing, for we know that moſt men can endure to ſee our ſinnes well enough, and like us little the worſe; but they are infinitely offenſive unto God, he ſees them with ſuch an eye, that if ever the Conſcience be a wake but to perceive how he lookes, it will burſt the very heart of a man.

Reaſ. 3. Thirdly, becauſe when God ſees our ſinnes, he records them, he notes them in a booke, that he may never forget them; as he told the people of the Jewes, Behold it is written before me, I will recompenſe and render it into your boſome, Iſay. 65.6. If God did ſee our ſinnes, and there's an end, then indeed this doctrine of Gods ſeeing would do little; may be God would forget them againe; yea, but when he ſees, he regiſters too, nay he layes it up in record to be in ſtore by him againſt another day; nay, he ſeales them up in his treaſure; Is not this laid up in Store by me, and ſealed among my treaſures? Deut.

32.

31.34. Now when the Soule ſhall come to mark this, this will wound it to the quick; this muſt needs doe a man good, and ſtrike an awe into him of God.

Fourthly, becauſe when Gods ſees our ſinnes, it is even all one as if all the world ſhould ſee them too; as Origen notes: For let our ſinnes be never ſo ſecret, our inward unſoundneſſe never ſo unknown, yet if God know it, it is as bad and worſe than if all the world knew it; for all the world ſhall know it one day. God will lighten all things that are hid in darkneſſe, and will make manifeſt the ſecret counſailes of mens hearts; then ſhall every man have praiſe of God, 1 Cor. 4.5. that is, whoſoever have been Godly, God will bring all their godlineſſe forth, and every one of them ſhall have praiſe of God; this ſhall be an honour to them before all the world: So if a man have been evill, then God will produce all his naughty courſes forth, then ſhall he have ſhame from God, God will ſhame him before all the World. There is nothing now covered that ſhall not then be revealed, nothing hid that ſhall not then be laid open; what a ſhame then will this be for thee, that thou which haſt gone ſo many yeares for an honeſt man, and may be, haſt been ſome body here in this world, when all the Saints ſhall ſee thee ſtanding as a wretch, as a hell-hound, as a limb of the Devill, on Chriſts left hand? What a ſhame will it be, if we that are now earneſt Preachers, if any of us ſhall then be found among the goats? What a ſhame to any of you, that would count it a ſore diſgrace to be called a wicked man, to be led forth with evill doers, and ſholed among the damned? Well then, if Gods ſeeing of mens ſinnes be ſuch a kinde of ſeeing as this is, no marveil if it work ſo effectually on them that are of God. Reaſ. 4.

Fifthly, another argument may be taken from our diſpoſition; our diſpoſition is ſuch, that we cannot abide that our wickedneſſes ſhould be ſeen of any body that we know cannot abide them; Which among us, when we pray and have baſe roving thoughts, would not we be aſhamed that a man ſhould ſee our thoughts rove? which of us, that are unſetled and dead-hearted, would not bluſh that men had a caſement to ſee how dead he ſits at a Sermon, and how dead at a Sacrament, how dead in other of Gods Ordinances; what baſe and impure thoughts ſometime doe ariſe in his mind. If he did think that any man ſhould ſee them, he would hardly be able to ſhew his face among them. Let but an Adulterer that is naught with a Whore, have but a few men, or but one man come and take him in the act, O how it will gall him and vex him to be ſeen! as Iob ſpeakes, If one know them, they are in the terror of the ſhadow of death, Job 24. 17. they abhorre the light, they cannot abide to be brought out to be known. Now beloved if this be our diſpoſition by nature, that we cannot abide that ſo much as a man ſhould know us; nay, not a child of ſix or ſeven yeares of age, then O what a terror is it that the God of Heaven and Earth ſhould know us, that he ſhould ſee all our luſts, all our ſinfull and vile thoughts, all our uncleane and noyſome affections, all our by-ends and careleſneſſe of God! O what a powerfull thing is this to work upon the heart, except it be delivered up to a reprobate ſenſe, to ſleight God, and care leſſe for him then for a little Boy, or a mortall man! So then ye ſee, this is a powerfull meanes to work upon a ſoule, to know that God knowes all his works. Though the Woman of Samaria ſtood jeſting, and playing, and conteſting with our Saviour a good while: yet when ſhe perceived that he knew all her villany, this burſt her heart; O ſayes ſhe, this is no other then Chriſt, he hath told me all that ever I did. Joh. 4.29. Reaſ. 5.

The Uſe of this is, Firſt, here we ſee, they are deſperate that this point cannot work on; it's certain they are graceleſſe that can heare that God ſees all their works, and yet it does not purge them from day to day; its an evident argument that a man contemnes God, and makes nothing of him. When David had ſhewed that the wicked care not for Gods eye, they make a matter of nothing Uſe 1.

nothing of it; thoſe God does not ſee, ſay they, Pſalm. 10.11. that is, they knew he ſaw indeed, but they made nothing of it; as long as men did not ſee them, they counted Gods ſeeing as nothing; now mark what followes, wherefore doe the wicked contemne God? verſe 13.

Uſe 2. Secondly, Is it ſo, that this is ſuch a powerfull meanes to work upon our hearts? Then let us not harden our hearts, but let us conſider of it, that it may cut between the bone and the marrow, and divide between the ſoule and the ſpirit; God ſees all our works. This point ſhould fall upon our hearts, like the almighty hand of God, as it did upon Job, I know thou canſt doe every thing, and that no thought can be hid from thee, Job 42. 2.

Now we come to the particulars, And the firſt is in theſe words, Thou haſt a Name that thou liveſt, and the other is, and art dead.

That thou haſt a name that thou liveſt; This is the firſt particular, whereby the Lord Jeſus proves that which he had implyed before, viz. that the works of Sardis were all ſtarke naught, becauſe they had onely a name to live, they reſted in a meere outward name to be Religious and good Chriſtians, and people of God, and believers, and a Church of Jeſus Chriſt; they had the name, and that was all; they had a name to live; well, ſayes he, for this very thing, I know all thy Works, (i.) I know them to be all ſtarke naught. Some think this is an alluſion to the Miniſter of Sardis his name, who (they ſay) was called Zoſius, that is, Living. Thou haſt a name that thou liveſt, but the truth is, thou art dead; whether that be ſo, or no, I know not; but this is the meaning of the words, that both the Miniſter and the Church ſeemed to be alive towards God; he to be a very good and godly Miniſter, and they very good and godly hearers, they were all profeſſors, they were all very devout and forward in all their duties of Religion to ſee to; Thou haſt a name that thou liveſt.

By name is meant a meere Name, as we ſee by the clauſe following, and art dead; for when a man is dead, the name to live muſt needs be a meere Name.

1 Firſt, a name in regard of themſelves, they took themſelves to be alive; as Paul had a name to live before his converſion, while yet he was a Phariſee, he had then a name to live, I was alive without the Law once, Rom. 7.9. That is, I had a name to live then, I taking my ſelfe to be alive; I thought verily in thoſe dayes that I had true Grace, and true faith, true Hope, and true Love, and the true feare of God before my eyes. So this Church had a name to live, they thought themſelves to be alive.

2. Secondly, a Name in regard of other Godly Churches; others in the judgment of Charity conceived they were alive; as the Scribes, and the Phariſees, our Saviour Chriſt told them, they had a name to live, Woe unto you Scribes and Phariſees, Hypocrites; for ye are like unto whited Sepulchers, which indeed appeare beautifull outward, but are within full of dead mens bones, Matthew 23.27, that is, ye ſeeme to be alive, ye have a name to live, but indeed ye are dead; They had ſuch a great name to live that our Saviour Chriſt had much ado to keepe his owne Diſciples from over-weening of them; beware of them, ſayes he, q. d. whatever ye may thinke, they have a meere Name to live.

3. Thirdly, a Name among poore ignorant and ſimple people; ye know there be abundance of poore ſimple people, that are led away with ſhewes, that know not what true Religion is, nay may be hate it, but yet they are led away with the ſhew of it; now they ſeeme to be religious, they are the only Men and Women with ſuch; they are held for the only good people in a Countrey, they are admired, poore ſilly people take them for their Ghoſtly Fathers, if they can have but their Prayers, they think their Prayers can doe much; when they are ſick, they love alife to have ſuch by their bed-ſides, they give them a great deale of comfort, like Apollos that comforted the people that came to him, O your sins are good; so the Apostle witnesseth they, that had a forme of godlinesse, had a name to live, among a company of poore silly people, 2 Tim. 3. 5 6.

they

Fourthly, a name among the persecutors of Religion, and so they are persecuted too among them that live indeed; for mockers take them to be of the same number. So Alexander the Copper-smith, had a name a great while, and the enemies of goodnesse persecuted him even as Paul, so Demas for a time had a name, and was persecuted as well as the Apostle, till afterwards he was weary and forsooke him. This is one of your Precisians, this is one of your purer people, this is one of them that call themselves the people of God, These are the people of the Lord, Ezek. 36. 20. As a Bat hath a name to be a Mouse, and so the Birds persecute it, and cannot abide it. 4.

Now the poine of Doctrine is this, That it is a horrible thing to rest in a meere name of being Religious, it is the argument that Christ uses, to prove that Sardis workes were all starke naught, because they had a meere Name to live; so when the Lord would declare how the Jewes were grown to be starke naught, he layes this to their charge, that they had onely a Name to be his people; They call themselves of the holy City, and stay themselves upon the GOD of Israel, the Lord of Hosts is his Name, Isa. 48. 2. That is, they got themselves a Name to be his people, and there was all, they had not the thing it selfe, but they tooke the name; thus he proved them to be starke naught. Doct. 1.

The Reasons are, First, this is to be farthest off from Religion, because himselfe will not, and others can not so effectually apply to him the meanes of recovery, he being in his owne and others judgement a true Convert. As a sicke man who thinkes himselfe well, is of all others farthest from cure. Religion is a reall thing, and therefore he that rests in having the Name of it, is farthest off from it, as Christ layes of Nathaniel, Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile, Joh. 1. 47. So when a man is religious indeed, humble indeed, feares God indeed, this is Religion, when a man is freed indeed from his sinnes, and from the power of them, this is Religion: If the Sonne shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed, Joh. 8. 36. Now when a man hath onely the Name, he is farthest off from this; Religion is a reall, solid and substantiall thing, as John layes, My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth, 1 Joh. 3. 18. What though a man have the name to love God and goodnesse? How farre is this off from doing of it indeed? A man may goe for one that is converted, but he is converted that is converted indeed; so he is godly that is godly indeed; the name is nothing where the things is wanting; all Religion is in deed, to believe indeed, to deny a mans selfe every day indeed, to be sensible of God indeed in all ones way, not to say ones Prayers, but to pray indeed; to give God thankes indeed, to worship him indeed, as Paul layes, When a man can say, that he is indeed, 1 Cor. 14. 25. When a man hath onely the name, this is a meere fancy and conceit. Reas. 1.

Secondly, It is a very Blasphemy to get the name for good people, when we are not good people indeed. The reason is this, Religion hath an inward dependance upon God, it unites a man to God, it hath an internall relation unto God, it puts a man into a propriety with God that God is his God, that he is borne of God, it puts the very Name of God upon a man. Now if a man take the name without the thing, it must needs be a very Blasphemy, as he layes, I know the blasphemy of them that say they are Jewes, and are not, but are the Synagogue of Satan, Rev. 2. 9. As if a man should say he were of the blood Royall, ye know the blood royall hath such a dependance on the Crowne, that that man that should say he were of the blood royall, and is not, he must needs blaspheme the King. So beloved, Religion hath a meere dependance on God, therefore he is a blasphemer of God, that gets the name of it, and lets the thing alone; Reas. 2.

Thou shalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vaine.

alone, and therefore how should we take heed how we have the name for Religious people except we be Religious indeed, and holy indeed, and heavenly indeed, as Ambrose sayes; Nam sit nomen inane, & crimen immane, a bare name is a horible blame unto any man, whosoever he be.

Reas. 3. Thirdly, It is a flat lie, when a man hath the name for a good Christian, and hath not the thing signified by the name, this is a flat lye; as God sayes, Note it in a book that it may be for time to come, that this is a rebellious people, lying children, children that will not heare the Law of the Lord, Isa. 30. 8, 9. That is, they had the name of his Children, but they had not the thing signified by that name; they would not doe as Children should doe, they would not be ruled by their Fathers Lawes, therefore they are lying children, they lye in bearing such a name; the Lord notes it in a Book, that it might stand for ever and ever against them at the day of Judgement; this was nothing else but to lye before God; you goe for my Children; what? and will not doe as I bid you? You lye in having the name of my Children; when a man shall have the name of a child of God, or the name of a Minister of the Lord Jesus, or the name of a Christian baptized into Christ, he had need to take heed what he does; for if he doe not answer this name, he does but play the Ananias, to lye to the Holy Ghost. Look into thy generall calling; look into thy particular; look into thy carriage; look into thy manner of good duties; whether thou doe behave thy selfe answerably to this holy Name whereby thou art called, knowing thou doest but lye to God, if thou doest not.

Reas. 4. Fourthly, It is an unreasonable thing; when a man hath not the thing, there is no reason that he should have the Name; when God gave Abram the name of Abraham, he told him there was a reason why he should be called by that Name; Thy name shall be called Abraham, for a Father of many Nations have I made thee, Gen. 17 5. So, it is an unreasonable thing why we should have the name of Gods servants or Christians, unlesse there be some reason why we should have the imposition of this name; now when we make it a bare title; and doe not obey CHRIST, nor make Conscience of all his holy wayes, this is very unreasonable; as Abigail reasoned about her Husbands name; As his name is, so is he, Nabal is his name, and folly is with him, 1 Sam. 25. 25. So my Brethren, as our name is, so should we be; if Christian be our name, true Christianity should be with us; Humility, love, meeknesse, patience, faith, holinesse, and all other parts of Christianity should be with us; now if we have the Name without these things intimated by the name, this is a very unreasonable thing; nay, it is not onely unreasonable, but also ridiculous; who will not count the names that the Papists give to their blockish Friers ridiculous; Subtilissimus Doctor, Doctor Angelicus, Seraphicus, these are ridiculous, as a Drunkard a Christian, a whoremonger a Christian, a worldling a Christian, a vaine man a Christian. What a ridiculous thing it is to call such the Saints of God? Strangers here on earth, such as have their conversation in Heaven, such as are buried together with Christ in his death; such as are men of another World; Mortified, justified, sanctified, crucified to themselves, loving the things above, and not the things that are here beneath; If these things do not agree with us, what a ridiculous thing is it, that we should be termed good Christians? here be Christians indeed; this is a meere mockery.

Reas. 5. 5. It is an impudent thing, when we have a name to live and to be wrought upon by the word, what an impudent thing is it, if we doe not look to it, that we be so indeed; one would think we should blush to think what a name we have, and how little we make good our name, between God and our owne soules. When the men of Bethlehem said, Is not this Naomi? O how she was ashamed of her selfe! Call me not Naomi, call me Marah; for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me, Ruth 1, 20 So when we are named Christians, we should even blush, Call me not a Christian, call me Wretch, call me a vile creature, a hell-hound, a limme of the Devill, a curſed ſinner; for the Almighty never yet turned my heart, he never yet purified my Soule and life, I never yet have reſembled Chriſt to this very day; I ſay, the moſt of us ſhould even be confounded to think what Name we have. I a Chriſtian, and do no more good, and live no better life? I a Chriſtian, and not humbled, not abaſed yet before God, ſo dull to all goodneſſe, ſo carnall, ſo dead to all Gods Ordinances, ſo voyd of all grace, ſo ſenſeleſſe of my ſins? How can this be? We are impudent, if we have our name for nought, our Name may upbraid us; the good opinions that others have of us, may fill our faces with ſhame, to think how ſhort we come of it. 7.

vile

Sixthly, It is an inexcuſable thing, If we have a name to be alive, we are without excuſe if we be not. Reaſ. 6.

Firſt, becauſe out of our owne mouthes God will judge us; we ſaid we were his People, we tooke the name of his ſervants; why then he will ſay, Why had I not your ſervice? Why would you do on more for me? Why were you Covetous, why were you Proud, why were you heard-harted, why were you ſo careleſſe of me? You wore my livery, you ſhrowed your ſelves under my name. So the Lord did with the Jewes that had the name of his Children and ſervants; ſee how he judges them out of their owne mouth; A Sonne honours his Father, and a Servant his Maſter; If then I be a Father, where is my honour? And if I be a Maſter, where is my feare? Malac. 1. 6. q. d. You ſay I am your Father, and I am your Maſter, and I am your God; well, out of your owne mouthes I will judge you, why then did you honour me no more? Why did ye regard me no more? Ye cared not for me, ye did not look after me, you had little or no heart after me; your owne mouthes have caſt you. 1.

Secondly, ye can have no other excuſe; Can you ſay you could not believe in my Name? Ye could not forgoe ſuch and ſuch Luſts at my command; Why then would you go for my Servants? You ſhould have ſaid ſo plainly, and not daily have come into my Courts, as if you would obey me; nor taken up the profeſſion of my Worſhip, as if you would goe through-ſtitch with it; why would you come to my Table, as though my Promiſes belonged unto you? If ye could not do as I bad you, you ſhould not have borne me in hand as though you would; now ye have play'd the Hypocrites, and drawne neare to me with your lips, and taken my Name into your mouthes, whereas ye would not be reformed by me; What had you to do with my Covenant, that you muſt needs be medling with it? Pſal. 50. 16. If ye would not obey it, ye ſhould have let it alone; ſo that ye ſee, that to have a naked Name to live, is an inexcuſable thing. 2.

Seventhly, It is an unprofitable thing: A naked Name will do us no good; when the Jewes truſted in the Name that they had, O they were the children of Abraham, they were Gods onely people, they had his Covenant, and his Oracles, and his Temple; O the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord; they hoped well, having thus much to ſay for themſelves; but mark what God tells them, Behold you truſt in lying words, that cannot profit, Jerem. 7. 8. This would not profit them one jot, becauſe they did not verifie the Name they had. So the Galatians they preſumed mightily on this, that they were Chriſtians; as for making good this holy Name, that they gave no heed to at all; they would have the Ceremonies; when Paul told them of their faults, they would not liſten unto him, nay they counted him their Enemy; they would have the Ceremonies of the Law; well the Apoſtle told them plainly, that if they would not be ruled, their Name would do them no good; Behold I Paul ſay unto you, that if ye be Circumciſed, Chriſt ſhall profit you nothing, Gal. 5. 2. q. d. You beare your ſelves upon Chriſt, and yet will not do as he would have you do, ye will do what ye liſt; but let me tell you, if ye will not reforme, Jeſus Chriſt ſhall profit you onthing; you ſay you believe in Jeſus Chriſt, I but it ſhall profit you 4.

(nothing: So when the People there in Isaiah rested in this, They came to Gods house, they gave him Sacrifice every morning and evening, they did thus and thus, and so they had a Name for his peculiar people; the Prophet assures them, this should not profit them one whit. I will declare thy righteousnesse and thy works, for they shall not profit thee, Isa. 57.12. Thou prayest and doest many good duties, and so thou getteſt thy self a name, yea, but if thou doest not soundly and throughly answer that name, God will declare all thy Righteousnesse, and all thy profession, and all thy good duties, and none of them all shall profit thee; In that day he shall declare what rotten things they have been, how heartlesse, how lifeless, how dead-hearted all thy duties have been, and they shall do thee no good; and indeed what good can a Name doe a man? True faith alone does justifie, not the name of it; true peace of Conscience does comfort, not the name of it; true interest in God gives a man a chearfull accesse to God, not the name of it.

Reas. 3. Eightly, It is not only unprofitable, but also it is hurtfull. It is hurtfull unto others; a bare Name I say without substance and truth is hurtfull unto others. It is hurtfull unto them that are without, for when they see how lazy such as go for Professours be, how they have little else in them but talking and professing, and prating and hearing; otherwise they are as vaine, and as covetous, and as having as other men, no strictnesse, no pureness, no holinesse, no humblenesse of mind, no love, no forgiving one another, no forbearing one another, no brotherly kindnesse, no Union nor Communion, no power in their Prayers, no gravity nor authority in their speeches, no heavenlinesse in their Conversation, no brokennesse of heart, this hardens the heart of them that are without, and makes them all think that Religion is a matter of nothing, thus they do a great deale of hurt unto others; the professing Wife to the prophane Husband, the professing Servant to his prophane Master, the professing Neighbour to his prophane neighbour; whereas if they were Godly indeed, and humble indeed, and as their Name does import indeed, they would do a great deale of good, but now they do a great deale of hurt.

2. Againe, they do a great deale of hurt unto commers on; many a man that is smitten at the Word, that begins reformation and amendment, and gives good hopes that he wil come to something in the end; when he lights upon such Sardian Saints, that are so in name, but there is no life at all in them, these put him back againe, and make him set up his staffe before he sees halfe way; like the dead body of Amasa, that made the people stand still.

3. Again, they do a great deale of hurt unto the Saints of God, sometimes by deceiving of their hearts and cooling of their zeale and fervour, or if they cannot do that, then they hate them, and prove very shye of them, and gird them behind their backes, & do them much mischiefe, as Paul complaines, He was in perils among false Brethren, 2Cor. 11.26. That is, those that had a name to be Brethren in Christ, but were not so indeed, he was in perils many time, and often by them; Againe, they increase the disgraces and sufferings of Gods true Saints and Children; for while they seeme to be Saints good enough themselves, the other that are Saints indeed, are rejected of all, and thought to be besides their wits.

4. Againe, they do a great deale of hurt to themselves, for it had been better for them they had never had a Name, then having a name not to be as the name does require.

To make way for application. Let me tell what use ye must not make of this Doctrine; make not use hereof to beat downe the having of a Name, for all the Lords people should be carefull of having a name; I will give them a name of Sonnes and Daughters, way a better name then so, Isa. 56. 5. Yea and the people of God should make conscience of a Name before men; A good name is better then precious Ointment, Eccl. 7.1. And the servants of God have had a name.

Demetrius

Demetrius had a good report of all men, yea of the truth it ſelfe too; and therefore they are black mouths of Hell that object againſt good people, that they are Hypocrites, they doe thus and thus to have a name. This is no newes, for the World hath alwayes dealt thus with the Saints in all Ages. Paul was counted the great Impoſtor of the world. O ſayes he, we are deceivers; and yet true, 2 Corinthians 6,8. That is, the World gives us a name for deceivers, and yet we are true. Yee know what was ſaid of Chriſt Jeſus himſelf, ſome ſaid of him, he was a good man, others ſaid nay, He was a deceiver of the people; It was ſaid of David, that he was a ſubtle man, a crafty Fox, and that he was a meere Politician, it was Sauls judgement of him. Thus the Saints have a nick-name put on them; the World thinks they are Hypocrites, and that they have ſiniſter ends in what they doe, and whereas they make ſuch a ſhew, it is but in Hypocriſie, that they may deceive, and that they may have a name for Religious people; ſo that the World would faine put down the having of a Name. But that is a Deviliſh uſe; we muſt not make ſuch a uſe of this point. No; the Lord does not find fault with Sardis for having of a Name that they lived, but that they had this Name when as they were dead; if they had been alive, the Name to be alive had been well; then what uſe muſt we make of this point?

The firſt Uſe then is this, to ſhew the miſery of the Church of Rome, which hath a Name to live, and in their own judgement and a great part of Chriſtendome, is the onely true Church, but in the judgement of God it is dead, and therefore ſtarke naught; ſome ſay its a body full of diſeaſes, and whoſe throat is cut, but yet the heart pants, and life is therein; But the truth is, its ſtarke dead, and hath no manner of ſpirituall life. What though they have the Sacrament of Baptiſme? So had Edom circumciſion, and yet they were never counted a Church of God; and what's a Seale to a blank? What though they have the Scriptures among them and the Articles of our Creed? That does not make a Church; for Ptolomy and all Egypt had the Bible, and yet that did not make them a Church; if the Scriptures might have their own ſenſe, it were another matter; but they overturne it with their expoſition, and make it in their ſenſe, to be a fardell of Doctrine of Devils, and what though Antichriſt be ſaid to ſit in the Temple of God? yet his Body is a Synagogue of Satan. There is no life in that Church. But to come neerer to our ſelves. Uſe 1.

This may be ſaid of them, of our Churches too, and of our Congregations; they have only a Name to live, though we might live well enough; for we have the Doctrine of Life, in many places, yet in regard of our converſations for the moſt part, we may ſay, it is but onely a Name. For how does ſinne reigne among us every where? Covetouſneſſe, Profaneneſſe, Fulneſſe of Bread, Luſt, Security, as it were in Noahs time, Deadneſſe of heart, Formality, now where ſuch ſinnes doe abound, there the power of godlineſſe muſt needs be away; generally our Aſſemblies content themſelves with an outward profeſſion, if they goe ſo farre, they have but a Name to live. True, we are a Church, ſo was Sardis though ſhe had hardly any thing but a Name, yet ſhe was a Church, as Saint John ſhewes, waſhed in the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt, Revelations, 1.4,5. for they had a few Names that were ſo, but the body had onely a bare name; ſo it is with us, we are not nullified from being a Church, for God hath his choſen among us, though they be very few, here one and there one that live indeed and in truth; yet the Bodies and Bulkes of our Congregations, have onely a name, if that; no Diſcipline, no good Order, no through Reformation; nay, Cages of unclean Birds; nay ſuch as profeſſe better then the multitude, little better then titular and morall Chriſtians.

Nay, are not all things almoſt grown to be a ſole Name? What is Preaching almoſt but the bare Name of Preaching? For converſion of Soules, where is it? the pulling people out of the Kingdome of Satan, where is it? a thouſand Sermons may be, and hardly one wrought upon; we may be ſaid to be Fiſhermen; but it is turned only into a name, for when do we catch any?

So, for hearing of the Word. True, it is very common, and yet not ſo common as it ought to be, for many care little whether they heare or no. But that is, there's hardly ought left but the Name; for who heares with trembling, who mingles his hearing with faith, who drinkes the Word, as the Earth doth the Raine? who does what he heares, without which all hearing is no better then an empty Name?

So, for comming to the Sacrament, is not that made a Name too? Setting aſide the Name of a Sacrament now and then, what have we elſe? who feeds upon Jeſus Chriſt? who comes to the increaſing of his Faith? who hath faith at all, that it may be increaſed? who comes to it with preparednesſe? who ſits at the Lords Table with a Wedding Garment? who goes away nouriſhed up any more unto eternall life? without the which, all our Sacraments are but naturall things.

So for holy Conference, unleſſe it be the Name of it, what is there of the thing it ſelfe left? May be a few curſory words of goodneſſe, before we part, but no quickning of one another up, no exhorting of one another, no comforting of one another, or admoniſhing one another; nay, we are grown to be aſhamed of theſe duties; and for Prayer, but that we take Cuſhions and fall down on our knees, and ſay a company of Confeſſions, and Petitions, there is little elſe done.

Come we to the Graces of Gods holy Spirit, without the which a man is dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, &c. as Faith, Repentance, peace of Conſcience, and Love, &c. where are any of theſe to be found?

Uſe 2. Secondly, another Uſe is of terrour againſt us; Doe we think that the Lord will endure this at our hands? He hath endured it too too long, but He will not ſuffer it alwayes. He hath a Spirituall thunder-clap, that He lets fly againſt this ſin. The vile perſon ſhall be no more called liberall, nor the Churle be ſaid to be bountifull, Iſa 32.5. That is, the Lord will unmask all ſuch perſons, He will pluck off all their Names, and they ſhall have a name fit for their natures, and He will doe this.

1. Firſt, in their owne Conſciences; If we will not be awakened to be as we have a Name to be, the Lord will make our owne Conſciences to call us Reprobates as we are, and then what will our Name doe us good, when our own Conſciences ſhall tell us we are naught, and condemne us in our boſomes? What ſhall we be the better for our neighbours judging well of us? Our Neighbours, may be, thinke we pray well; what a poore thing is this, when Conſcience ſhall ſay no? Our neighbours may hope we ſtand upon good ground, when Conſcience ſhall ſay no: Men call us godly, and Conſcience ſhall ſay, nay but ye are not. What a ſhame was it to the Jewes, when they were convicted by their owne Conſciences? Joh. 8.9. It is not the Name of Joy and holineſſe, that will give their Conſciences true peace; no, no, Conſcience knowes, another name is fit for us, Unbeliefe, and ungodlineſſe and Hardneſſe of heart.

2. Secondly, againe, He will do it in the judgement of others; if we reſt in a Name, the Lord will detect us at laſt before others; and then what a ſhame will this be? As David ſaid of Doeg, the Lord would diſcover him; he would make all the people round about ſay of him, Loe this is the man that took not God for his ſtrength, Pſal. 52.7. So he will doe with us, Loe this is the man that had ſuch a name to live. Lo, this is the man; Now we ſee here's a wretch, now we ſee how he deceived his owne ſoule; he never truly ſought God in all his life, he was not the man that we took him for; he built upon the Sand, he did not lay a good foundation, and therefore now he is tumbled down, and what is become of his Name? Now he shews himselfe in his colours, now we see he is an Enemy of GOD, he can side with the Times, he can embrace this present world, he hath no Eternall life abiding in him.

Nay, the Lord will not onely doe thus with us, if we rest in a Name, but also he will powre out his Wrath upon us otherwise too; ye may read how that this was the reason why the Lord drowned all the old World; not onely the wickednesse of them that were without; for if they that professed Religion, had been sound, they might have prevented the Deluge, and prayed it away.

But they that professed Religion, had onely a Name. The sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were faire, Gen 6 2. That is, the Sons of God, they were onely so in Name, their works plainly shewed that they were onely so in name, therefore the Lord swept them all away: So the Lord will powre bitter things on us, if we be Christians onely in Name, if we be not so indeed; nay, this is not all, but we shall have a deeper portion in Hell too than Pagans or Papists, nor any in our owne Land; the more we have borne of his Name, the surer and sorer shall our damnation be, if we do not really answer the holy name wherewith we are called. We may see this in the man in the Gospell; Friend, how camest thou in hither? Bind him hand and foot, cast him into utter darknesse, where is weeping &c. Matth. 22. 12, 13. Come friend, how came you in hither? Marke, he had the Name of a friend of JESUS CHRIST; therefore the Text sayes, he was speechlesse, he had nothing to say for himselfe, his damnation had nothing to lessen it; other people should have something to say for themselves to lessen their damnation; but those that have a Name to live shall not have the least syllable.

Thirdly, then let another Use be to humble our hearts, let us go to GOD in humiliation of heart, as the poore prodigall Sonne did, and dowoe on the knees of our soules and bodies, and say, Lord, I have sinned against Heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy Sonne, Luke 15. 21. So, as many of us as are guilty of this sinne, (as who almost is not, and that in a horrible manner?) let us say, Lord I have been called a Christian, I have been called a Child of thine, I have had the name a good while; but O what a Wretch have I been! I am not worthy of this Name, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight, I have not answered the Name I have had, and therefore it were just with thee to cut me asunder with Hypocrites, and so fling me downe to Hell. Use 3.

REVEL. 3. 1.

And art Dead.

THese words are a part of the Epistle that Christ sent to the Ministers and [illegible] of Sardis. Ye have heard the Inscription, To the Angel of the Church in Sardis. Ye have heard too of the Subscription, These things saith he, that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven Starres. We are come to the [illegible], and therein first to the reproofe in generall, I know thy works [illegible] to the particulars of the reproofe. The first particular was this, Thou hast a name that thou liveest: all these have been delivered already, now follows the second particular reproofe, And art dead. Here the question is, what Christ meanes by Dead. By dead, he does not meane dead in Errors and Heresies, though these be called deadly Poysons, and may make a Church dead: For the truth is called the word of Life, Phil. 2. 16. and wholsome Doctrine, as the Apostle calls it; and therefore Errors and Heresies, these poyson and dead any people that drinke them in. But this cannot be the meaning here, here, for we see no such thing here laid to their charge, it should seeme this Church was an orthodox Church; neither by Dead, does he meane prophane wicked manners, though they make a people dead too, as we see the prodigall Sonne that had been given to prophane and dissolute courses, his Father sayes, He was dead in those dayes, Luke 15.24. Yet this cannot be the meaning neither, for this Church had a Name to live, and it had this name among the Churches of Jesus Christ, which had more wit, then to judge them to be alive, if they had been so palpably wicked; no, it seemes they were an excellent Church to see to, a good Ministery to see to, but both dead, so then this is the meaning; For all their seeming to be alive, they were indeed dead; as the Apostle sayes of himself, before he was quickned by Christ Jesus, He was dead sin revived, and I died, Rom. 7.9. yet he was as jolly a good man as any other, and yet he confesses he was dead; so they were dead for the most part, and those that were not all out dead, yet they were dead hearted, and without life in Gods wayes. For as it was with the Morall Heathen, they did the things contained in the Law, yet they were dead; so a people may doe the things contained in the Gospell too, and yet be dead; people may believe, yet as James sayes, Their faith be dead faith, Jam. 2.26. namely when their faith is without works; so people may have godly works, for the more part of them, and yet doe them with a dead heart; to be sober and temperate, and loving, and chaste, and civilly humble, and meek, and diligent in their calling, and known to frequent all the ordinances of God, in publick and in private, these are outwardly good works, and yet may be in the number of those works that the Apostle calls dead works, Heb. 6.1. namely when there is no life of God in them. Thousands deceive themselves in this, when they have a kind of Faith, and a kind of particular faith, and such works as these flowing from their faith, they think this to be a lively faith; no, no, a man may be dead for all that. This truth will not sink into mens minds, fancies, fancies, say they, these are nothing but the whimsies of a company of giddy Braines; what would they have? If this be not true religion we wonder what is, thus they jeer these things, but beloved in certain, for it is not enough to believe, except we do it with life, he that heareth, & believeth in me Joh. 11.26. Faith without life is but equivocally termed Faith, so, it is not enough to hope in God, except we doe it with life, he hath begotten us again to a lively hope, sayes Peter. So it is not enough to be a member in Gods Church, a Stone in Gods building, except we be lively Stones, Ye also as lively Stones, sayes he, 1 Pet. 2.5. The like I may say of all the duties of Religion, it is not enough to doe them, but we must doe them with life, as to Pray, to pray with a dead heart is nothing, no sayes David, Lord quicken us, and we will call upon thy name, Psal. 80.18. in a word, not to heape particulars; we cannot walk in any of Gods wayes aright as long as we walk in them with a dead heart, as the Psalmist sayes; Lord quicken thou me in thy way, Psal. 119.37. [illegible] is a poor thing to walk in Gods wayes onely for the matter of them, [illegible] dead heart may doe, there's no duty that God bids a man do [illegible] to be them that consignifie life, but flesh and blood may doe it, for [illegible] of it. If there be matter and forme in it. True, some duties are simple [illegible] blood cannot doe, as to love God, to delight in God for [illegible] Lot, and Inheritance, and to be all in all to him, these are simple [illegible] are not compounded of matter and forme. But when a duty is [illegible] matter and forme, flesh and blood may doe the matter of it whatsoever it be, now then as the essentiall forme is the life of the matter, so the matter without it is a dead matter, and the doing of it dead.

Well then, now we see what is meant by dead, the next is, what is the meaning of Thou? Thou art dead, the word hath a double relation, the one to the Minister of the Church in Sardis; Thou art dead, thy Ministry is dead, the other to the Church in Sardis it ſelfe; Thou art dead, then art a dead people.

the

Firſt, it hath relation to the Miniſtry, thou art dead, thy Miniſtry is dead, there's no life in it at all. Hence the Doctrine is this, That a dead Miniſtry is as good as no Miniſtry at all, for this our Saviour meanes, in regard of the Angel of the Church in Sardis, q. d. thy Miniſtry is little better then no Miniſtry, it is ſtark dead well neere, it is not lively at all, there is little or no warmth to be find in it. Like the Miniſtry of the Scribes, that had no authority, no power at all in it, Mat. 7.29. As Luther ſaid when he heard a cold Sermon, cold, cold, cold, ſayes he, this is cold Preaching, here is no heat at all to be gotten; as God ſayes of the Miniſtry of Laodicea, Thou art Luke-warm, Rev. 3.16. That is, as there was no heat in his people, ſo there was no heat in his Miniſtry, this is little better then no Preaching at all, it is even as good as nothing. Doctr.

Firſt, becauſe true Preaching is lively preaching when the Miniſter is a ſtirring Miniſter, as Peter ſpeaks, I think it meet to ſtir you up, 2 Pet 1.13. when the Miniſter is earneſt to ſave the peoples ſouls, as the Lord ſayes, I earneſtly proteſted to your Fathers, Ier. 11.7. He ſpeaks of the Miniſtry of Moſes and the Prophets down along untill the Prophet Jeremies time, they did not onely witneſſe the Word of God unto the people, but they did it in a lively and earneſt manner, as Paul did, I have ſtriven to preach the Goſpel, Rom. 15.20. Mark, he laboured him in the Pulpit, he laid about him ſoundly, that his Miniſtry might have life in it. Saint Luke ſhews, that he had ſweaty Handkercheifes, Act. 19 12. ἱδρῶτες, as Hugo ſayes upon the place, it ſeems he ſweat much in Preaching: and ſo Chriſt compares Miniſters to Harveſt-men, that labour in Gods Harveſt. Ye know Harveſt men are hot at their work, ſo Miniſters ſhould be Harveſt-men, they ſhould be hot at their work. Thus ye ſee dry and dul Preaching is little better then no preaching at all, it is contrary to the manner of preaching, contrary to the practice of all true and right Preachers. Reaſ. 1.

Secondly, a dead Miniſtry is called no Miniſtry; the Scripture calls it no Miniſtry in effect. The Scripture is the beſt Judge what is a true Miniſtry, and what is not. Now the Scripture makes a dead Miniſtry, and no Miniſtry all one: the Scribes and the Phariſees, ye know, were partly morall men moſt of them, as we may ſee by Pauls teſtimony of himſelf, and they were orthodox Miniſters, as our Saviour witneſſes of them in the main, for our Saviour bids people heare them, yet their Miniſtry was little better then no Miniſtry; as the Text ſhews, the people that ſate under their Miniſtry, are ſaid to be as ſheep having no ſhepherd, Mat. 9.36. They preacht as if they did not preach; people might come to their Sermons and be nere a jot moved; nay ſuch as came with a deſire to be quickned, could get no quickning at all under them; Matthew ſayes they ſate under darkneſſe yet for all them. Theſe are Idoll Shepherds; Woe to the Idol Shepherds, Zach 11.17. Reaſ. 2.

Thirdly, a dead Miniſtry does do little or no good; though it be never ſo true, yet it is very unfruitful; it does not awaken any of the Auditory, it does not ſtrike any of the hearers, it does not rowze up mens hearts, it does not grapple with the obſtinate, it does not pull down the proud, neither is it fitted to work upon the conſcience; you may ſee an example of this in the Angel of the Church of Sardis, a dead Miniſter, a dead people, as he was dead himſelf, ſo his people were dead too; a lively Miniſtry does a great deale of good, It is the ſavour of life unto life unto thoſe that be of God, or elſe the ſavour of death unto death, unto thoſe that be not of God, 2 Cor. 2.16. It ever works one way, either it makes people rage, or it fats people up, or elſe it drives people home unto God; which way ſoever it works, it is a ſweet ſavour unto God, it glorifies God; but a dead Miniſtry does neither, it is a flat Weapon and cuts not, it is a blunt Sword and wounds not; may be it hath the true words of God, but they are not in a wiſe work-mans hands to make them as Goads Reaſ. 3.

and sharp Nayles; partly good points, but not pointed to prick any bodies heart; it is said when Paul preacht, some went away converted, others went away blaſphoming, Act.13.43,48.

Reaſ.4. Fourthly, a dead Miniſtry, God ſeldome goes along with it; that's the life of a Miniſtry, when the Miniſter ſeeks God to goe along with him; now a dead Miniſtry God goes not along with it, a lively Miniſtry Chriſt goes along with it, So I am with you to the end of the world, Mat.28.20. If there be any of Chriſts ſheep in the pariſh, a lively Miniſtry does aſſuredly one time or other find them out; thoſe that are not Chriſts ſheep, a lively Miniſtry hewes them all downe, ſlayes all their Soules, ripens them apace for hell and for the pit. But a dead Miniſtry, the Lord does not goe along with that, the Lord does not crowne it.

Reaſ.5. Fifthly, a dead Miniſtry profanes the Word of God, it makes it ſeeme nothing woth; it does not hold forth the glory of the Lord, nay, it hides it, and keeps it from being ſeene, either by dwelling upon Generalls, and what's that but hiding? for people will confeſſe the Word in generall, they ſee it in the generall, all their blindneſſe is in particulars, there they ſlip away, like Fiſh out of a broad net, or elſe by delivering it ſo coldly, that people think it no great matter. A lively Miniſtry holds it forth, it lets out God into the Conſcience, it gives people to underſtand they come upon Life and Death, it makes people looke about them, it makes people conſider all that ever they have done, it flaſhes the Word of God into their hearts, as a light to diſcover all their wayes; it gives them a view of their Chriſtian eſtate, either one way or other; as it is ſaid of Pauls Miniſtry, The Word of the Lord was glorified by it, Act.13.48. But a dead Miniſtry profanes it, it vailes the glory of it, it lets people ſit quiet under it; it diſeaſes no ſinner, whereas if it glorified Gods Word, it would either trouble them, or turne them.

Uſe 1. The Uſe of this is; Firſt, here we ſee the reaſon why a dead Miniſtry is not houted at, but applauded in the World; why, it is as good as no Miniſtry at all; it does not make the Devill roare, it lets people ſleep in their ſinnes; whereas a lively Miniſter can hardly come into a Pulpit, but preſently he is halfe a Martyr, Bryars and thornes were with Ezekiel, *Ezek.*2.6. Lively Miniſters cannot give the world any good content; they fought againſt Jeremy, they played the wolves againſt the Apoſtles of JESUS. Iohn the Baptiſt was counted too ſterne and auſtere; and Luther ſayes, It is impoſſible for a man to be a true lively Preacher of Gods Word, and not be perſecuted; there's an utter Antipathy between the World and ſuch an one; the World and ſuch a Miniſter can no better agree together, than Light and Darkneſſe; ſuch a Miniſtry ſtands in the worlds light, it makes the world ſee their works are evill, it detects, it ſhames, it oppoſes their ſinnes, that the world tumbles in, as Chriſt ſayes, I have given them thy Word, and the world hates them becauſe they are not of the world, Joh.17.14. And therefore there cannot be a lively Miniſtry any where, but the world hath a fling at it; but now let a man have a dead Miniſtry, that's let alone, that may ſtand long enough, that never comes home to men to ſhew them their ill eſtates; the Devils dawbers, the devills upholſters, that do not pluck mens pillowes away from under their arme-holes, that deale gently with men, and they may do what they lift for all them, theſe are the worlds minions, and applauded at all hands; what a thing is this? whereas a dead Miniſtry is the undoing of mens ſoules; it lets men periſh, and never drawes them back.

Uſe 2. Secondly, this may ſerve to reprove us, that are Miniſters of Jeſus Chriſt, I deſire to ſpeak to my ſelf eſpecially, that we are no more lively in our Miniſtry; that our Miniſtry hath no more edge upon it to enter into this horny thick-skin age; we complaine of much deadneſſe now a dayes; alack how if we be found guilty of it, that we Preach no more quickeningly! I confeſſe, bleſſed be God we have ſo much lively preaching left yet among us, that woe be to them that are dead and have no grace of life. But O that our Miniſtry had more lively-hood in it! that it were more exciting, and provoking. If the Apoſtles of Chriſt complained of dull hearers, Heb. 5. 11. How many dull hearers have we! why then ſhall we make our ſoules guilty of their dulneſſe? The deader people be, we had need to be the quicker in our Miniſtry, or elſe we cannot ſay, we are pure from their blood; don't we ſee how many people are very neere the Children of wrath? how they cannot be ſaved except they be juſtified and ſanctified in Jeſus Chriſt; how few are ſo? how hard a thing it is to awaken mens hearts? nay the world and the cares of this life, carry their minds quite and cleane away; how ſcarce any almoſt ſeriouſly conſider their latter end? don't we ſee how the Devill tempts; how the Fleſh and the World reigne in moſt, and how little Religion we have up and down? The Saints ſcarce, the wicked many; times very bad, the ſhortneſſe of life, the irrecoverable eſtate after death, the immortality of the ſoule, the paines of hell, and the joyes of heaven, and how that without holineſſe no man ſhall ſee God; how ſhould we beſtirre our ſelves to beat theſe truths into mens minds, that they may bethinke themſelves and flee from the wrath to come? The cold Preaching of ſuch weighty things cleane cozens the world, ſo that they hardly conceive any great matter in the buſineſſe; live and dye, and periſh for ever in their ſinnes, and we give them ſuch faint warnings, that no wonder ſo few do take any warning; we ſound the Trunpet too low, that ſcarce any almoſt prepare themſelves; we come into the Pulpit, but we do little or nothing there, may be we preach good Doctrine, but we do not preſſe it to the quick, that the Conſcience may feele; we do not bleed for our peoples ſecurity, and though they do not heare, how little does our ſoule weep in ſecret or melt in publick? Bucolcerus that admirable lively Preacher, was wont to ſay, That a Miniſter ſhould preach, flebiliter, obſecratorie, anxie, humiliter, ex pectore, cum gemitu; that is, a Miniſter ſhould preach mournfully over peoples ſoules, beſeechingly, anxiouſly, humbly, heartily, groaningly; as it is ſaid of our Saviour Chriſt, he groned for the peoples unbeliefe; now when our Miniſtry is deadiſh, as though we cared not much whether people do our Doctrine or no, whether they be damned or no; this is a lamentable thing. The poore ſoules of our hearers may ſay to us, as the diſciples of Chriſt ſaid to Chriſt, and more juſtly, they ſaid it unjuſtly to him, Maſter careſt thou not that we periſh? Mark 4. 38. he was a ſleep, and they awakened him, Maſter careſt thou not that we periſh? more juſtly may our people ſay ſo to us; O Sirs, do not ye care that we periſh? they may even come and awaken us, Sirs, Care ye not that we periſh? Doe not you ſee how dead we are, how hardened, how ignorant of God, how empty of grace, how backward to that which is good, how prone to loſe our ſoules? and do not you care that we periſh? Why do not you labour more to quicken us, and move us, and to drive us out of our by-wayes, that we may come into the right way and live? When Archippus, was ſomewhat dead in his Miniſtry, St. Paul bids the people of Coloſſe to go and awaken him; Say to Archippus, Take heed to the Miniſtry which thou haſt received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it, Col. 4. 17. Well then,

bleſſed

Thirdly, another Uſe is an uſe of Exhortation, that we labour for a quickning Miniſtry, that our Miniſtry be a reviving ordinance of God; that we may, as Eſay ſaid, Though Iſrael be not gathered, yet ſhall I be glorious, Iſa. 49. 5. So though our people be not quickn'd, yet ſhall we be glorious, we have done what in us lyes for to quicken them. Uſe 3.

Conſider firſt, This is the end of all true Miniſters preaching, that they may bring life into the hearers hearts, as the Prophet ſayes, Heare, and your ſoules ſhall live, Iſa. 55. 3. wherefore elſe do we Preach, but that the dead may heare the voyce of the Sonne of God and live? People are alive to that which they 1.

ſhould be dead unto, and they are dead to that which they ſhould be alive unto; they are alive to the world, and the things of the world, and dead to God and all goodneſſe, dead to the humbling of their ſoules, dead to the ſeeking of God, dead to Prayer, dead to the holy communion of the Saints, dead to holy comfort and meditation, and what ever elſe may do their ſoules good. Now wherefore do we Preach, if not to quicken up your hearts, that your ſoules may live for ever? they have knowledge already, more knowledge then they are quickened up to; our maine intention then ſhould be to quicken them up to do what they know; Are we not ſowers of ſeed? why then, we ſhould moſt labour ſo to plow and harrow and till the ground, that our ſeed may quicken; this is the very end of Preaching, that our hearers may heare and live.

2. Secondly, as it is the end of all true Miniſters preaching, ſo it is the nature of all true and right Preaching; either to quicken, or to be a fitted inſtrument of quickening; when David heard the word, it quickened his heart; thy word hath quickened me, Pſal. 119.50. And indeed it is never heard now preacht aright, unleſſe it be in a quickning way; & therefore let us not thinke it is onely the taking of a Text, and the ſpeaking of good and wholſome truths, but let us ever remember what right Preaching is, that our Miniſtry be quickning, that God may affect our ſoules, and accompany our words, and teach us how to go beyond the policy of mens hearts, and direct us how to drive the truth home to the quick, to anſwer the evaſions of fleſh and blood, and ſo put his live
3. coale into our ſpeeches, that our Sermons may be warming.

Thirdly, Let us conſider, this is onely profitable Preaching; we may preach all the dayes of our life, and our people be ſtird no more then a mill-poſt, unleſſe our Miniſtry be quickening; they may heare what we ſay, but unleſſe we could quicken their hearts, they will forget all again; it may be, they may remember the Doctrine, but I mean they will forget to doe what they heare; it is the quickening that makes any remember to practiſe; as David ſayes, I will never forget thy precepts, for with them thou haſt quickened me, Pſal. 119. 93. We can never forget that friend, whom our hearts doe moſt dearly affect; ſo when our Miniſtry doth quicken and affect peoples hearts, they will never forget what they have heard; The quickening of the corne in the earth, makes it the faſter in the earth, it twiſts about the earth, it gets a rooting if it quicken; ſo it is with our Sermons, if they be quickening, they get about peoples ſoules, and will not out againe; otherwiſe they are never the nearer.

4. Fourthly, Let us conſider, this kind of Preaching onely will yeild us true comfort; when our Miniſtry is lively in our Pariſh, as Paul was at Epheſus; when we can ſay to our people, You hath God quickened by us, as he ſayes, you hath he quickened, who were dead, Epheſ. 2. 1. I dare ſay it was a great comfort to his ſoule, to ſee that his Miniſtry was quickening; nay, if our Miniſtry be quickening, though none be quickened by it, but two or three, nay, though none at all, yet we ſhall have comfort, whereas when we have preacht a thouſand times in a dead-hearted manner, never labouring to creep into mens Conſciences, nor to be Miniſters of life, we ſhall have no comfort on our death-beds; nay our own hearts will tell us, we have preached often indeed, but we never preached Chriſt Jeſus, we never ſlung our hearts among our people, as one ſaid of the good Biſhop Felton, he ſlung his heart among his people. But when our conſciences can ſay, we are not hearty for God, we are not earneſt to ſave our peoples ſoules, we did not goe the way to doe them good; this will lye as lead upon our boſomes when we dye.

5. Fifthly, a dead Miniſtry, is but the bare name of a Miniſtry, it is little better then meer Voyce; as the Lacedemonian in Plutarch ſaid, when he heard how ſweetly the Nightingall ſang, O thought he, ſurely that Bird is good meat if I had it; and ſo when he took it, and ate it, and found but little meat in it, he said, vox es & praterea nihil; now I see thou art meere voyce and nothing else; so a dead Ministry, it may have a great name of a good Ministry, and a man may desire to live under it, O let me live under such a Ministry, but when he comes to it, and thinks to receive much benefit by it, he finds it to be little better then a Name.

Sixthly, a dead Ministry is not a signe to our people; Ministers should be signes to our people; Thus Ezekiel is unto you a signe, according as he hath done, so shall ye doe. Ezek. 24.24. A voyce, true, John the Baptist was a voyce, Isa. 40.3. I but he was more then a voyce, he was a burning and a shining light; there was life and heat in his Ministry, he was not a meere voyce. But when ones Ministry is but a meere voyce, little good comes of such a Ministry. 6.

Fourthly, another Use is for direction; to shew what a lively Ministry is, and how we may have a true lively Ministry, that is in one word, to preach with affection; as Quintilian sayes of Eloquution, affections are the soule and life of Eloquution; so I may say of Preaching, affections are the life of Preaching; now by affections, I do not meane feigned and forced affections, they are no affections indeed, but when a man Preaches so for the matter and manner indeed, affectionate matter, and with a true affected heart, that he may move the hearts of men; as one sayes, the World is now full of knowledge, as a Drunkard is full of wine, that his stomach is not able to digest; so I say, people have more knowledge, then they can well digest, the stomach wants heat to concoct it for their good; as Rodolphus Agricola speakes, any man that hath Learning may teach; but to move the heart and affections, it requires more a great deale. This is lively Preaching, when a Minister sets himselfe to be in mens bosomes; what a lively Preacher was the Apostle Paul, you may see by his dealing with Agrippa, he made the Kings heart even yerne againe with his speaking; the King confest how his speaking worked within his bosome, Almost thou perswadest me to be a Christian, Act. 26.28. So you may see by the Galathians, his Preaching did not only convert many of them, but those whom he did not convert, he did wonderfully worke upon their hearts, That they could have been contented to have plucke out their Eyes, and have given them to him, Gal. 4.15. Such a lively Preacher was he in the 2. of Judges, that when he Preach'd, he set all the people a melting, a weeping like little Children that had been beaten, Judges 2.4. I grant it may be, the best and liveliest Ministers under heaven cannot do so now, peoples hearts are more hardned. But yet though we cannot undertake to move any one mans heart, that's the worke of God, yet our Ministry may be lively. Use 4.

First, by labouring to make the things that we Preach as it were lively before peoples eyes; as the Apostle preached Christ Crucified, even as if he were Crucified before his peoples eyes, Gal 3.1. So Moses had a very lively Ministry, the Text sayes, he set before them life and death; he laboured to Preach with that evidence, as if he had set before their eyes life and death, heaven and hell, good and evill; when a Minister preaches in the evidence, and the demonstration of the Spirit, 1 Cor. 2.4. when he labours to bring the Gospell plainly to mens hearts; a man may teach the Gospel, but it is not Preaching, except he set it lively forth, and labour to make the people see it. This is the Truth, and this is your sinne against that truth, this is the Doctrine, and thus you faile in the doctrine, this is the threatning of God, and thus you lye under the threatning; otherwise they heare a Sermon, as if it did not concerne them. 1.

Secondly, comming to particulars; generalls are but dead; we see they leave people dead, people have a hundred tricks to put them off: but when a Preacher comes to particulars, he either quickens or slayes, he convinces either to life or to death; when a Minister layes the truth at every mans doore, he presses it upon every mans heart, he meets with many a put off, he makes every Conscience say, I am the man, except they be asleepe, or their 2.

minds are a wooll-gathering, he darts into his hearers faces, a view of their particular estates; he toucheth their copy-hold, he confutes their false pleas, and knocks off the fingers that would be applying of a Promise when it does not concerne them, and puts it only upon the Soule to whom it does belong. This is lively Preaching, that gives to every soule his due, terror to whom terror, comfort to whom comfort belongs; milke to the Babe, strong meat to the growne youle to the bruised, and a sword in the hard heart, a whip for the Horse, and a bridle for the Asse, and a rod for the Fooles back, Prov. 26. 3. Application is the life of Preaching, This serves to condemne such a one, this serves to confute such a one, when a Minister does as Paul sayes, divide the Word aright, 2 Tim. 2. 15.

3. Thirdly, by worrying of people out of their sinnes, when a Minister will not let people be quiet in any of their sinfull courses, when he labours daily to vex their guilty Consciences, and to turne them from day to day, as the two Witnesses did, Revel. 11. 10. that they may say, We cannot be quiet for this man, he makes me sit upon thornes; when a Minister labours to make Hell to have every vile wretch, and Heaven and the Promises to have every honest heart, &c.

4. Fourthly, by being pittious and affectionate towards the poore people, to let them see how we pitty their condition, as we should do what we can to make them feele their damned estate, as also with bowels and compassion, labour that they may see we do pitty them; and therefore Preaching sometimes is called Lamentation in Scripture, Ezek. 19. 1. It may be, people then may say, what a beast am I; how does our Minister pitty us! he mournes over us, and bewailes, what a wretch am I, that I do not bewayle mine owne case? O beloved, what a wofull thing is it, that any of us should perish, to be damned for ever in hell! To lye in eternall paines! What a pitty is this? Is it not much better ye should embrace the good word of God, and beleeve, and take Jesus Christ, and be willing to do any thing he would have you to doe, then to lye by it for ever in the paines of Hell, for the pleasures of sinne for a season? Alas it is for want of bowels, that we do no more good.

5. Fifthly, by being deeply affected with the word of God, laying nothing on peoples backs, but what we lift up upon our owne shoulders; speaking the truth from the bottome of our hearts, uttering the word of God with feeling and with a contrite spirit. O if we could drop our Sermons as dew down from Heaven on our people; this would be lively Preaching indeed, as the Prophet Ezekiel did, He dropt the word of God upon Jerusalem, Ezek. 21. 2. So if our Sermons did come dropping downe from us, as if they dropt downe from Heaven. O how coldly do our Sermons come from our mouthes! we do not Preach as if the Word came downe from heaven, but as if our hearts were no higher then our Pulpits.

Lastly, by getting the Lord to go along with our Ministry; for it is not our Preaching it selfe that hath any life, no, it is but a dead letter, as Micha sayes, I am full of power by the Spirit of the Lord, Mich. 3. 8

Now I come to the words, as they have relation to the Church it selfe. Thou art dead. Thou art a dead People; though thou hast a name to Live, yet, Thou art dead, that is, thou art outwardly reformed, thou hast goodly order'd Congregations, good, sober, civill and faire-carriaged people, all professing the true Religion, and frequenting the good Ordinances of God, yet, Thou art dead? that is, thou art even as good as nothing.

Doctr. The Doctrine hence is, A dead Christian is as, no Christian at all. Ye know we are all dead by nature, in trespasses and in sinnes; that is we are alive to the workes of the Flesh, and to the World, but dead towards God. And a true Christian is he that is made dead unto sinne and the world, but alive unto God; as the Apostle Paul sayes, Likewise reckon ye your selves to be dead unto sinne, abuim but

but alive unto God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, Rom. 6. 11. This is a true Chriſtian, that ſo leaves his ſinnes, and ſo takes up the worſhip and ſervice of God, that he is Dead to his ſinnes, and alive towards God; now when a man it may be leaves his ſinnes after a manner, and takes up the profeſſion of Gods Service, and yet he is alive ſtill unto the fleſh, and dead towards God, this is juſt nothing.

By Dead I meane five things; firſt, deadneſſe of guilt; when a man is guilty of any offence, that is death by the Law, he is ſaid to be a dead man; therefore every man hath ſinned againſt God, which is death by Gods Law, ſo that every man is dead by nature; when a man is pardoned of God, then he is alive againe; and therefore it is called Juſtification of life, Rom. 5. 18. Now when a man is not pardoned of God he is dead, though he have never ſo many hopes and conceits of forgiveneſſe, though he apprehend himſelfe to be pardoned, yet as long as God hath not pardoned him indeed, he is a dead man. 1.

Secondly, deadneſſe of Mind, when the mind is ignorant of God, in regard of ſaving knowledge, when a mans mind is without ſaving underſtanding, then his mind is ſaid to be dead; as David ſayes, Give me underſtanding and I ſhall live, Pſal. 119. 144. Then my mind ſhall be alive ſayes he, then I ſhall know thee aright. Now let a man have never ſo much knowledge and learning, yet, in divine things is otherwiſe, and have nothing, his mind is ſtill dead; he is as a dead man to all the things of God; he cannot ſee God in all his wayes no more then a dead man; he cannot mind God, he may mind earthly things, but he cannot mind God; nay, though he can mind Learning and Divinity, learning, and learning about God, yet he cannot mind God; his mind is dead to ſuch ſavoury knowledge, even as dead as a dead man; He knowes not how to pray to GOD, as a child to his Father; he knowes not how to do any duty, in a godly gracious manner; his mind is as dead to theſe things as a ſimple Country-man is to Latine, or Greeke, or Hebrew. 2.

Thirdly, deadneſſe of Heart, when the heart is not inclined towards God, then we ſay it is dead towards God and all goodneſſe; though he go to good duties every day, yet as long as the heart is not inclined to them, it goes about them in a dead manner; when a mans heart is once inclined towards God, now it begins to be alive towards him; as David ſayes, The heart ſhall be alive that ſeeks God, Pſal. 69. 32. That is, you whoſe hearts are inclined to ſerve God, your hearts are alive; Now when a man hath no Divine inclinations to all heavenly duties and courſes, though he do never ſo much profeſſe the following of them, he followes them with a dead Heart. 3.

Fourthly, deadneſſe of Conſcience, when the conſcience hath no force; it may be it finds-fault with ſuch and ſuch wayes, but it hath no power over the man, to make him to leave them; perhaps it approves ſuch and ſuch holy performances, yea but it hath no power over him, to cauſe him to buckle to them; This is a dead Conſcience; it hath no life at all in it; when the Conſcience hath life in it once, then it hath power; it hath a mighty force over a man; as the Church, My ſoule made me like the Chariots of Aminadab, Cant. 6. 12. That is, my Conſcience was very forceable and powerfull in mee, it made me not onely to go after God, but it carried me as it were in a Chariot very willingly. But when the Conſcience can whiſper onely, and find fault, and hath no power at all with it to make one obey from day to day, this is a dead Conſcience. 4.

Fifthly, deadneſſe of Affection; when the affections are clumbzie, and will not ſtirre towards God, and all heavenly things; when a man is like a block in good duties, he hath no affections to them nor in them; when the affections are all alive to earthly things, when they are ſtill out of order; as the Apoſtle Paul ſayes, Mortifie your inordinate Affections, Col. 3. 5. That is, your Affections muſt not be out of order, if they be alive to other things, ye 5.

muſt

must kill them, that way, that they may be alive towards all the things that are above; now when the Affections will not move that way at all, then they are dead. But I will speake no more of this, well then, let us come to the Doctrine: A dead Christian is even as good as no Christian at all.

Goe through all Christianity, and we shall see this to be true in every passage; should a man have all Christianity in him, and yet be dead and dull and without life, it is even all one, as if he had not nothing.

1. First, for Conversion; should a man seeme to be converted. O what a changed man is this! he was a Drunkard, and now he is sober; he was a Whorer, and now he is is chast, he was a prophane beast, and now he is cleane another man, this is well: I, but if thou beest dead to the wayes of God; if thou beest not quickened up to them, this is magnum nihil, Conversion is a quickening; When we were dead in sinnes, he hath quickened us together with Christ, Ephes. 2.5. Conversion is not onely a turning of a man from wicked wayes to good, but to be quickned up in them; Conversion puts another life into a man; a man may be converted from prophaneneſſe to civility, from not Praying constantly to praying constantly; from not Hearing to hearing, from not Preaching to preaching, from not Professing to professing. True this man shall have the lesse hell; yea, but this is nothing towards heaven; except a new life be put into this man, to be alive in all these good wayes; except he be quickened together with Christ.

2. Secondly, Faith; should a man leane himselfe upon God, and upon Christ, should a man apply all the Promises of the Gospell to his soule, and beleeve all that's contained in the covenant of Grace; alas what of all this? If this man be dead still, without such a Faith as produces life; it is little better then nothing; as Christ sayes, He that lives and beleeves in me, Joh. 11 26. True faith carries life with it, wherſoever it is; and therefore if a mans faith be without life, it is but equivocall faith; faith it may well be, but true Faith it cannot be; for if thou wouldst be able to say thou beleevest in Jesus Christ, thou must be able to say, that thou livest too in him; it's impoſſible a man should rightly beleeve in Christ and be dead; no, he lives that beleeves in me, sayes Christ.

3. Thirdly, as ye heard heretofore, to be a member of the visible Church of GOD, to be a stone in Gods building; were a man the fineſt and most carved stone of all, put in by Baptisme, kept in by profession of the Christian faith; this is a poore thing, if this man now be not a lively stone, Ye also as lively stones, are built up a spirituall house, an holy Priest-hood, &c. 1 Pet. 2.5. The right stones in Gods spirituall house are all lively stones; if thou beest but a logge heartleſſe, dull, dead member, thou art none of Gods spirituall house, no part of his holy Priest-hood, thou art no more a Christian then a Dead man is a man. Thou art but a fil roome, thou hast nothing but a name of a true Christian; The body of Christ, is all full of life, derived from him the head, all the branches that are in him, have the life of the root in them, if thou beest but a dead branch, thou hast no communion with Christ at all, though thou beest in the body.

4. Fourthly, for Hope; it may be thou hast hope that thou art a good Christian, that thou hast a part in the redemption of the world by Jesus Christ, thou hast a hope of the heavenly inheritance, that thou shalt be saved in that day; now if thy hope be a dead hope, if it does not quicken thee up to trample on the world, to beat downe thy worldly lusts, to scrue thee up to a gracious life more and more, to carry thee on through thick and thin, this is not a gracious hope; no, no; the grace of hope is a lively hope, as the Apostle speakes, Blessed be God, and father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again, to a lively hope, 1 Pet. 1.3. This grace of hope it quickens up all them that have it, it is not a dead hope hope, that lyes sluggishly and blockishly in the soule, and does not stirre it up every day; no, it revives him towards God, it makes him eager after the best things; if thy hope be a dead hope, that lyes like a carcase in thy heart, to little or no purpose, it is no good hope through grace, but a hope in a dreame.

Fifthly, for Repentance; what ever thou hast to say for repentance, canst thou plead a thousand changes and reformations, yet if thou hast not gotten out of a dead temper, thou art yet under an impenitent heart. That repentance that is the gate of heaven, the Evangelist calls it, Repentance unto life, Act. 11.18. True repentance it rends the heart, it shewes sinne to be the greatest evill, and it cowzes a man up daily to take heed of it, it makes us see what a God we have dishonoured: and therefore it awakens the soule to be exact to please him in all things for the time to come; the soule was dead and careleſſe, and drowzie, and neglectfull of obedience, goodneſſe, holineſſe, humility, purenes, ſtrictneſs, preciſeneſſe of walking, it cared not for theſe things afore; but when true repentance comes in, it wheels about the life of the ſoule towards God; now the cares ſhall be to him, now the endeavours make after him; paines, labours, cautions, watchfulneſſe, conſiderateneſſe, ſtudious ſtrivings, and all is active that way now; ſo that if a man be ſtill dead, his repentance is falſe. 5.

Again, to go over all duties of Religion; they muſt be done with life; to do them with a dead heart, is as good as not to do them at all. Firſt Prayer, ſuppoſe we pray at Church, and pray in our Families, and pray in our cloſets, is this all? To pray with a dead Heart, as if we cared not whether we ſped or no, no puſlings of our heart downe before God, no wraſtlings with God for what we aſk, no liftings of our ſoules up, no faſtnings of our minds upon his Preſence, no cryes, no mournings, no importunity, but the heart as lumpiſh and unweildy as a Stone; is this Praying? No, ſayes David, Quicken us O Lord, that we may call upon thy name, Pſal. 80.18. 1.

Secondly, for Hearing the word: It is not thy hearing of it ſo many times a weeke, though thou maiſt heare it as often as ever thou canſt, and thoſe that will not heare as frequently as they may, are high deſpiſers of God and his Ordinances; but yet if thou heareſt the word with a dead heart, thy hearing is made as no hearing. It is ſaid of thoſe primitive Converts, that they were pricked in their hearts as they were hearing, Act. 2.37. They only got good by their hearing, they heard the word with life; ſo it is ſaid of many of Chriſts hearers, they did, crowd us, they layd upon him, they preſſed upon him, Luk. 5.1. In another place, it is ſaid, that they hung upon him, they were attentive and eager to him. Our Saviour Chriſt ſayes, it is a very great judgment to be dull of hearing, Mat. 13.15. When people ſit as if the word did not concerne them, when they heare without any motion or affection, the word hardly joggeth their hearts, it hardly ſhaketh their conſcience at all, the word does neither delight them, nor wound them, nor pierce them, it deals none of their ſin, it cannot get between them and their luſts; when they have heard a Sermon, they go away juſt as they came, they find nothing now to do, it does not dragge them one jot more out of the world, nor an inch neerer heaven; their carriage is much at one as it was; When they come home, it cannot be perceived that ever they were at the word; as earthly as ever; as carnall as ever; as backward to all goodneſs as ever; this is no hearing at all. 2.

Thirdly, for ſanctifying of the Lords day: It is ſaid of the Sabboth, that we ſhould call it our delight, Iſa. 58.13. That is, we ſhould keep it with life, it ſhould even quicken up our hearts to think it is coming, we ſhould be revived to conſider Gods goodneſs, that he would give us ſuch a Day, ſeeing we have ſo much need of it; when we have been ſix dayes about our own buſineſs in the world, that we ſhould have a Sabboth given us of God, leſt we ſhould be over head and eares in the world to take off our hearts; now when this is no de- 3.

light to us, our hearts are dead to it, we do not ſanctifie it indeed, but prophane it, as though it were not honourable and the day of the Lord.

4. Fourthly, for taking hold of an opportunity to do Good; this is a duty too to be done with all life, how glad ſhould we be if there be any opportunity for us to ſhew our love to God, or our hatred to ſinne! we ſhould be willing to ride, or go, or be at charges, nay we ſhould deny our ſelves, and lay downe our gaine, and credits, and goods, and friends, and all that we have at Chriſts Foot, and bleſſe God that gives us ſuch a price in our hands; but now we have a dead heart to this; what a horrible thing is this? Though we do take the opportunity, yet to go about it as though we were ſorry that God hath given it unto us, this is meer folly; as Salomon ſayes, Wherefore is there a price in the hand of a Fools to get Wiſedome, ſeeing he hath no heart to it? Proverbs 17.16.

5. Fifthly, In one word, for all the wayes of God, there's nere a one of them all that can be walkt in aright, without a live heart, as the Prophet ſayes, Lord turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity, & quicken me in thy way, Pſ. 119.37. Now when we go dreamingly on, as though we could not do withall, though the way be God's, yet our going in it is ſtark naught, and little better then not going in it at all; and therefore the Lord accepts not of it: When we humble our ſelves before God, to hang down our heads like a Bul-ruſh, it's naught, it's naught, the Lord cannot away with it; when we conferre about the Word, or any gracious and godly Theme, to ſpeake as if we had no ſavour of it, no pleaſure in it, when our hearts would rather be on another ſubject, and never lin till they have wound all good talke out; if we ſpeak one word to edification, there ſhall be twenty to that one, that ſhall ſerve to no other end, but to the hardning of one another; when Chriſt and the two diſciples were communing together, their hearts burned in them; did not our hearts burne within us while he talked with us by the way? Luke 24.32. That was talking with life But when our hearts are as cold as a flint, this we may call talking, but holy converſe it cannot be termed.

Thus ye ſee, a dead Chriſtian, is as good as no Chriſtian at all, no grace is without life, no duty can be done without life; the reaſons of this are,

1 Reaſ. Firſt, becauſe this is all one as to have no Grace at all; though a man be a member of the congregation of the Lord, though he have the ſeales of the Covenant, and profeſs the faith of Jeſus, and be as morall in his life as ever any of the heathen, and as full of good duties as ever any hypocrite was, and more too, yet if he have not life yet, he is but a tinkling cymball; he hath no grace at all. I meane no ſaving grace at all; ſaving grace the Apoſtle calls it, The grace of life, 1 Pet. 3.7. It is the grace of life, it breeds life in him that hath it, it makes him draw comely to God, it lets out the life of his heart in every good word and worke; it makes him pray with life, heare with life, uſe the ordinances in publike and private with life; the naturall life that is in the ſoule it turnes it to God, it encreaſe the man about, as a ſhip is turned on the Sea; that ſayled before towards North, now it ſayles towards South. So when grace comes into the ſoule; ye know the man had life afore, but it ſayled towards the world, and the things of the world, but when grace does come in, it makes it row, and ſayle, and ſteere towards God: ſo that when a Chriſtian is dead, he is as no Chriſtian at all.

2 Reaſ. Secondly, a dead Chriſtian hath not Chriſt dwelling in his heart by Faith; he is no Chriſtian indeed, that hath not Jeſus Chriſt dwelling in him by a true and lively faith, for the indwelling of Chriſt that makes one a true Chriſtian, more whom Chriſt does dwell in any man, Chriſt is a quickening ſpirit; as the Apoſtle ſpeakes, the ſecond Adam was made a quickening ſpirit, 1 Cor. 15.45. that is Chriſt; he is the ſecond Adam; he is a quickening ſpirit where ever he dwells; he quickens all the ſoul, he makes it dead to that which by nature it was alive to, and alive to that which by nature it was dead to; he inclines the ſoule unto God: he infuſes a principle into it to ſtirre with life towards God, he does more and more hale the ſtrength of the ſoul towards him, though he doe not doe it all at once, yet he does it more and more. Now when a man is ſtill dead to God and all goodneſſe, he hath not Chriſt dwelling in him by a lively faith; for if he were in once, though the ſoul may complain ſtill of deadneſſe, as commonly thoſe that are alive complain moſt of deadneſſe, yet it hath a ſupernaturall quickning, and it ſhall have more and more.

the

Thirdly, a dead Chriſtian was never yet ſoundly wrought upon by the word. Reaſ.3. The word of Chriſt is a word of life, and it quickens where it does effectually work; and therefore though ſuch a one have heard a thouſand thouſand Sermons, he never fed upon them in all his life; as Chriſt ſayes, If any man eat of this bread, he ſhall live for ever, Joh.6,51. it is better than ordinary bread; ordinary bread indeed, if a man have a naturall life, it will feed it and preſerve it; But if a man be dead, it will not revive him. But the word of God is ſuch a bread, that as it feeds a ſpirituall life in them that have it, ſo it is able through the eternall ſpirit, to quicken the dead; it is able through God, to put life into men, that never had any; and it does ſo to all that are of God, ſooner or latter; now when a man is dead, it's a plaine ſigne that the word hath not yet wrought upon that man; it may be it hath ſhaken him many a time, yea but if he be yet dead, it never wrought upon him ſoundly; the oracles of God, are lively oracles, as Stephen calls them, Act.7.38. they make their hearts lively that they come to worke ſoundly on; though they were never ſo dead to God and good things afore, yet now they wax lively, they make their hearts to receive a divine ſtrength, that now they wax able in ſome meaſure to live towards God, to hunger and thirſt after God, to delight in the ſeeking of him; be their luſts never ſo mighty, now they can compoſe themſelves to oppoſe them, and to ſwimme againſt the ſtreame; now they can pray, and they cannot abide to have blockiſh hearts in that, nor in any other duty; they have a life that reſiſts that ſame deadneſſe that dwelleth in them. So then this is another reaſon, that a dead Chriſtian is as good as no Chriſtian at all, the word hath never wrought ſoundly on that Man.

The uſe of this is, firſt if the dead Chriſtians in Sardis be as good as nothing, Uſe 1. what are the riff-raffe in the Towne, that are not ſo much as Chriſtians in name? If a dead Chriſtian be rejected of God, what's a dead drunkard? a dead whore-monger, a dead prophaneling? If one that walkes in good courſes be refuſed, becauſe he is dead in them, then what ſhall become of them that will not follow good courſes at all? If ſuch that are Saints to them, cannot be ſaved, where ſhall they appeare? It is ſaid that Chriſt loved the goodly fine-cariaged young man, Mark.10.17. Chriſt is never ſaid to love a drunkard; a prophane wretch; no, he regards one that carries himſelfe in a fayre civill honeſt way, more then all the world beſides, except onely his own children; and therefore if he counts meer civill men ſtark naught, how much more does he thee, that art a very beaſt compared with them? Thou art ſo vile, that we that are men do know thou art in a feareſull eſtate, nay, the Lord pronounces a woe upon them that do ſpeak well of thee, theſe ſins are to be puniſhed by the Judges; if thou hadſt lived in Iſrael, thou ſhouldſt have been put to death, a drunken Son ſhould have been ſtoned; an Adulterer, a Fornicator ſhould be burnt; a Blaſphemer ſhould be brained to death. Thy ſinnes are ſo palpable, that pillories, and ſtockes, and priſons, and gallowes, ſhould be thy fare, if thou were well ſerved. Thou art not onely dead, for the manner of thy life, but for the matter too; not onely the Saints do abhor thee, but all that have any civility in them, doe loath thy filthy doings; and would not do as thou doeſt; no, not for a world; as Solomon ſayes ſuch as thou art, are not only dead but in the depth of hell, Pr.9.18. There be many though they be not right, yet they are ſo much reformed, that the Saints of God cannot ſay, but that they may be good Chriſtians; But thou art ſo foule, that he that hath but one eye may ſee the Devill leads thee; there be ſome that a man may be to blame for judging them wicked, but he that judges thee otherwiſe, hates his own ſoule. Poore creature, does thy fooliſh heart promiſe thee hopes to find mercy? Alas the devill does but lead thee in a ſtring, he knowes well enough, though he will not let thee ſee it, there is no mercy for them that go on ſtill in their wickedneſſe. Thou haſt not ſo much as a name that thou liveſt, how dead then art thou? Thou art dead and rotten, and ſtinkeſt, not onely in the noſtrils of God, but of all that have any common Grace in them. Others may be in a damned condition for all their profeſſion, but to be ſure thou art in a damned condition, there's nothing between thee and hell, but onely the poore thred of thy life. How canſt thou keep out of hell, that canſt hardly keepe out of the Ale-houſe? O heare this ye that have not ſo much as any face of Religion; See the word of the Lord, & think upon it for your good, if ye have any eare to hear before it be too late.

Not unleſs it were a Prieſts daughter, Levit 21.9. *Deut.*22. 16,17. Neither was the Adulterer to be burnt but ſtoned, Deu 22.24.

1. Conſider firſt, thou art farre from the Kingdome of God; ſuch as are ſober and morall and frequenters of the ordinances of God, and profeſſe godlines, though they be not alive, yet they are not farre from the Kingdome of God; as Chriſt ſaid of the diſcreet Scribe, Mark. 12.34. But thou art a hundred degrees farther off; thou art ſo farre off, that thou haſt need to haſten quickly, thou haſt a thouſand degrees of reformation to paſſe over, before thou canſt get ſo neere as ſome of them that are ſhort.

2. Secondly, Thou art altogether become unprofitable, as the Apoſtle ſpeakes, Rom. 3.12. Thou art good for nothing, but to do miſchiefe in a Pariſh, to infect, to ſpoile youth, to trouble thy wife, and thy poore Children; to corrupt thy ſervants and thy neighbours, to ſpill the good creatures of God, to be a very ſlave to thy fleſhly luſts; others that are well governed in their lives, though they be dead, yet they do a great deale of good, they helpe the Saints, they are I ſay gotten to ſtand for good order; but thou art a very burden to all well-diſpoſed people, the very ſhame of the Towne, the diſgrace of the family where thou art; what will people ſay, yonder's a Drunkard, yonder goes a Fornicator, a diſſolute fellow, though he be a Gentleman, yet he is fit for none but rogues, and raſcals, and tinkerly companions, a man that hath but a ſpark of honeſty would be aſhamed of him; A Chriſtian? No, he is a very beaſt, he cannot govern himſelfe. But what do I ſtand ſpending of time to ſpeak againſt ſuch wayes which the Apoſtle ſayes ſhould ſcarcely be named in Chriſtians mouthes? The very heathens ſhall judge thee; the Lord open thine eyes, to ſee what a curſed creature thou art, that thou maiſt come out of the ſnare of the devill.

Uſe 2. This is for the reproof of the Deadneſſe that is now among us; the Lord may ſay to us, as he did unto Sardis, I know thy works, thou haſt a name that thou liveſt, and art dead; for notwithſtanding the great meanes of life, that the Lord hath placed among us, O how does deadneſſe of heart reigne! we are like them the Prophet ſpeaks of, that drew nigh to God with their mouth, and honoured him with their lips, but their heart was far from him; Mat. 15.8. they had no heart to his holy worſhip. So it is with moſt of us; we draw nigh to God with our outward man, but our heart is far from him; no heart to Prayer, no heart to the word; we heare it peradventure, but no heart to it at all; how ordinarily do we come to Gods houſe, but heartleſnes hath dominion over the moſt of us; the Doctrine of the Goſpell does not quicken up our hearts, we deale with it, as Phinehas his wife did with her Son, when the women about her told her ſhe had a Sonne, the text ſayes, ſhe did not regard it: ſo what little regard have we of the Goſpell of God! I ſtretched out my hands and no man would regard, Prov. 1. Tell us of our damned eſtate by nature, how curſed we are from the wombe, what infinite need we have to be ſenſible of it, we know it, but how dead is our knowledge of it? It does not ſtirre up our hearts to conſider of it; neither does it prick us ſo much as the pricking of a pin; Tell us of the Redemption of the world by Jeſus Chriſt, his precious Bloud, his Paſſion and Merits, whoſe heart is enlivened and quickened up by them? Nay, our ſoules are hardly moved at all at the hearing of them. Tell us of the Kingdome of Heaven, the marriage Supper of the lamb, his Oxen, and his fatlings; O they are all ready, come Sirs, come to the marriage; we are even as they in the parable, They made light of it, Matth. 22.5. Theſe things are made as if they were of no amoment, as if they were light matters, they finde poore entertainment at our hands; what little irkſomeneſſe do we feele in Sinne, what little dejectednesſe of heart, what little remorſe of Conſcience; nay, few know by experience, what Humiliatoin meanes; we can confeſſe in our prayers, how vile we are, and how unworthy and how wretched and ſinnefull; but as though theſe were words of courſe, our hearts are ſo dead, that there is little or no relenting at it; we can ſay we are undone if God do not heare us, our prayers are all nothing, except they be with faith and life; and yet who ſtrives to awaken and rowze up himſelfe? We can ſay, O how are we beholding to God, for life, for health, for his daily good providence, for his patience, his bounty? And we can ſay, it is not the bare naming of his bleſſings before him that is counted thankeſgiving, without being affected with his infinite goodneſſe; and yet who does unfeignedly labour to be affected with them from day to day? No body of us dares deny but that we ſhould ſet the Lord alwayes before us, that he may be at our right hand, and yet who hath the heart to provoke himſelfe hereunto? The Devill may be at their right hand and not God, for all the paines that they take to have him there. So that dead-heartednesſe is a common evill now a dayes; as Chriſt ſayes of the laſt times; Becauſe iniquity ſhall abound, The love of many ſhall waxe cold, Matth.24.12. So it is now; becauſe Iniquity abounds, the moſt are prophane, and diſſolute, and licentious, and looſe; therefore many that profeſſe love to Jeſus Chriſt, their love does grow cold and dead; no life hardly at all, no ſigne that they are alive from the dead; if they do beleeve after a manner, there's all, they doe not live in Jeſus Chriſt; if they have any hope of mercy or heaven, that's all they have, it is not a lively hope that may quicken them up in Gods holy wayes; if they do ſee their ſinnes, there's the utmoſt, it is a dead ſight, that does not excite them up unto ſtrictneſſe and preciſeneſſe of living; if they do follow good and godly duties, alas there be few that do ſo, but if they do go ſo farre, it is cleane without heart and life; as though any thing would ſerve Gods turne well enough; what a horrible thing is it when a dead Chriſtian is as good as no Chriſtian at all! No matter how many Chriſtians we have, alas none of us are true, but ſuch as are alive from the dead.

Aiiiii

Secondly, is it ſo that a dead Chriſtian is even as good as no Chriſtian at all? then learne hence my brethren, what a dangerous thing it is to be a dead-hearted Chriſtian. Uſe 3.

Firſt, all that we do with a dead heart, 'tis as good as nothing; as Paul ſayes of Love, Had we all faith, and all knowledge, yet if we have not love, we are nothing, 1 Cor.13.2. Whatſoever we do, if we do not do it out of love, all's nothing; So I may ſay of life, whatſoever good duty we do, if we do not do it with life, it is but a dead worke: and therefore it is no more then nothing. When the Prophet David would do good duties, ſo as to do them to good purpoſe indeed, you ſhall ſee how he labours againſt a dead heart, Quicken me after thy loving kindneſſe, ſo ſhall I keepe the Teſtimonies of thy mouth, Pſal. 119.88. ſo we may ſay too, Lord quicken me after thy loving kindneſſe, ſo ſhall I Preach, ſo ſhall I heare, ſo ſhall I do thy holy will, ſo ſhall I go up and downe doing good; Now as long as a man does it with a dead heart, it is even all one as if a man had not done it at all; a dead man is no man, as the Apoſtle 1.

poſtle ſayes; God quickens the dead, and calls things that are not: marke, dead things are no things; ſo dead works are no works, as Solomon ſayes, There is no worke, and no device, and no wiſdome, and no purpoſe in the Grave whither thou goeſt; That is, when men are dead, then they can do nothing. So is it here as long as we are dead, we can do nothing. True becauſe we have the life of ſenſe, and of Nature, and of a naturall Conſcience in us, we may counterfeit good workes, as a Painter may make a man, though he cannot make a living man: So as long as we are dead-hearted, we do but paint out good duties before God; all our prayers are but painted prayers, all the good works we do, are but paint, there's none of them to the life. As God ſayes of the Iewes, you will ſay they did very many good works, they Faſted and Prayed, and Sacrificed, and many other things they did. But what ſayes God? They are vanity, their works are nothing, Iſa. 41.9. As a dead Corps, there be Eyes, and noſtrils, and eares and mouth: But when the life is out, they are as good as nothing, So it is with a dead heart, we may thinke we Preach much, and ſtudy much, and heare much, and profeſſe much, and do much: the truth is, we do nothing.

2. Secondly, all that we do with a Dead heart, it does not pleaſe God. God ſayes, My ſonne give me thy heart, Prov. 23.26. Ye know the heart, that is Primum vivens, that's the firſt living thing in us: Now if we give God never ſo many performances, yet if all our heart be not with them, what cares he for them all, when they are a company of heartleſſe things? When the Apoſtle had ſaid, that to be fleſhly-minded is Death, by and by he concludes; ſo then, ſayes he, They that are in the fleſh, cannot pleaſe God. Rom 8. 8. would that pleaſe any of us, that one ſhould come and take up a dead ſtincking carcaſe, and lay it before us? No more can it pleaſe God, to lay a dead duty before his heavenly Majeſty; ye know, a dead carion, it is loathſome, as long as life remaines in it, that's a ſweet thing, and it preſerves it from ſtinking; and therfore the heathens called the ſoul the ſalt of every living thing, becauſe the life is a preſerving thing, it preſerves a thing ſweet; but when the life is gone out, preſently it becomes odious; ſo is all that we do, when we do it with a dead heart, it is odious with God, it cannot be accepted with him, as the Apoſtle Peter ſpeakes, Ye alſo as lively ſtones are built up a Spirituall houſe, a holy Prieſthood, to offer up Spirituall Sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Pet. 2.5. That is, the Apoſtle had compared true Chriſtians unto ſtones, now he correcteth himſelfe, did I call true Chriſtians ſtones? I pray, do not miſtake me, I do not meane for Deadneſſe, but for firmneſſe, a Stone is a dead liveleſſe thing. O ſayes he, ye muſt be Stones, I, but ye muſt take heed of deadneſſe, ye muſt be lively, otherwiſe ye cannot offer acceptable ſacrifices unto God. This is even as a Jew ſhould have taken a dead Sheepe out of a ditch, and laid it on Gods Altar; This is abomination to God: even ſo are dead doings to Almighty God, as Vinegar to thee teeth, and ſmoake to the Eyes; ſo is a Sluggard to him that ſends him, Prov. 10, 26. That is, when a Maſter ſends a ſervant on his errand, if he go dully about it, even as if he had no life nor heart in him at all to do his maſters buſineſſe, this will not pleaſe him, nay, it will offend him, as ſmoke does the Eyes, or as Vinegar does the Teeth, it will make him looke with a ſowre looke upon ſuch a Servant. So beloved, when God bids us ſerve him in all our wayes, may be we are not ſo groſſe as not to go about it at all, but we go about it with a dull and a dead heart, this does not pleaſe God one whit, nay, he takes it ill that we ſhould thinke he will accept it at our hands. As when the Iewes had no heart to Gods holy and pure worſhip, it was too chargeable to them, it put them to too much charges; what a whole Sheepe, and a whole Lambe every morning? beſides many whole ones at other times, whole Bullocks, whole Oxen, and whole Goates, this was even as death to them, they went up to Gods Temple with a dead heart; nay they thought much to give him of the best, they gave him the torne and the maimed, now mark what he sayes; should I accept this at your hand, saith the Lord, Malac. 1.13. He took it ill, they should think he would accept it; so when we think much to be so precise and so strict, to pray so much, to heare so much, to mind him so much, and to deny our selves so much, to watch so much over our hearts, to humble our selves so much, what? May we not keep one lift? May we have no more liberty then so? May be we doe some thing this way, but God knows how, with a dead heart it is: the Lord takes it ill, that we should hope he will accept this at our hands.

ple

Thirdly, all that we doe with a dead heart, it cannot yeild us any comfort: 3
True, if we were quickened up towards God, if we served God with all our heart and soule and life, this would comfort us indeed; to seek him daily in a lively manner, to goe into his presence with all our mind; if we went eagerly dayes to the throne of grace, if we were earnest in Prayer, earnest against sinne, earnest for all goodnesse, this were a signe of his favour, and a Testimony of the true grace of life, this would comfort our hearts exceedingly; this would breed peace in our conscience as the Apost. speaks, To be spiritually minded is life and Peace, Rom 8.6. there's life, and therefore there is peace. The reason is this, because lively works alone can truly pacifie Conscience; when a man hath been a professour all his dayes, and done never so many things; yet if the Conscience can say, yea, but all these are dead works, all this while I have gone on with a dead heart, this foules the conscience; it can never have true peace. How much more shall the blood of Christ purge your conscience from dead works, to serve the living God? Heb. 9 14. It shall purge the Conscience from dead works; dead works foule the conscience; whether they be dead for matter or manner; sinne is a dead work for matter, and good duties heartlessely done are dead works for manner, now both foule the Conscience; the conscience remaines under guilt; continues without peace, it is an ill Conscience; why? Because the Conscience knowes it hath the living God to serve, that will not like of such workes, when a man payes in his rents only by halves, or by dribblets or with light money, the Kings receiver will not give him an acquittance; my Brethren, Conscience is Gods receiver, no wonder it does not give you an acquittance, when ye pay in only waste duties, clipt obedience; if ye served God with life, Conscience would give you an acquittance; when ye have done a dayes worke in his harvest, it would acknowledge the receipt of it, well done good and faithfull servant; it is well done in some measure. This made Paul full of life every day; Herein do I exercise my selfe, to have always a Conscience void of offence towards GOD, and towards men, Act. 24.16. that is, I do not onely go on in good duties both towards God and towards men, but this I do always, I do even exercise my selfe that I may have an acquittance from mine owne Conscience when I have done, that my conscience may give me a true discharge; well done, I have done well in some measure; now as long as we are dead hearted and hollow in Gods wayes, our conscience can never give us a discharge; no marvell, that so few of us have Peace of Conscience, when we are so dead-hearted as we are. If we would stir up our selves to serve God with all our heart and life, we should have Peace; but till this be done, we can never looke to have Peace and comfort.

Fourthly, Though we have comfort in time of prosperity, yet we cannot 4 have comfort in affliction, if we be of a dead heart; how many are there that seem to have comfort while they are well, but when they come to be sick, and at deaths doore, then they are all to peeces? Then they see they have no Grace, no Faith, no good cards to shew, then they are strict that lie naked, then their Conscience sees what they are; O, I am a wretch, how have I deceived

my

my selfe! so beloved, though we have comfort in time of Prosperity, yet if we be dead hearted, we can have no comfort in Affliction. As David sayes, This is my comfort in affliction, thy Word hath quickned me, Psal. 119.50. When the word of GOD hath quickened our hearts, and made us lively in all manner of goodnesse, this will yeild us comfort in affliction. But if we be dead to all spirituall wayes, though we scramble up hopes now, they will not hold when affliction comes; now what a fearfull thing it is? We shall all come to affliction ere long; for man is borne to trouble as the sparks fly upward, as Job speakes; nay we know not how soone; man knoweth not his time, as Solomon speakes; but as the Fishes are caught in an evill net, so are the Sons of men snared in an evill time, when it falleth suddenly on them. And God onely knowes what sore afflictions we may have, the Cup of affliction is in Gods hand, and he tempers it and powres it out as his pleasure is. I say, what a fearfull thing is it not to have comfort then, when we have most need of comfort? And if we have not comfort then, we are utterly undone; now my brethren it is not a dead dull profession will yeild us comfort then. Let us think of this, as God sayes, What will ye doe in your day of visitation? to whom will ye flye for help then? Isa. 10.3. So may I say, though ye can be quiet and comfortable enough now, in the dayes of health and peace, your deadnesse does not trouble you now, but what will ye doe in the dayes of visitation? Doe but consider what a sorry comfort ye shall have then; assuredly a dead heart will afford not a syllable of true comfort then.

Fifthly, we can never blesse God with a dead heart; a dead heart is not able to affirme upon any good ground that God is his; or that the Promise is his; or that Christ is his. The soule knowes Christ is a quickening spirit, and they that have him, are quickened up by him, the promise is a promise of life, and they cannot be dead that are the possessors of it; we cannot blesse God either for love or mercy or grace, or any thing else, when we would blesse God for any of these things, the deadnesse of heart, it will be objected to us; O, I am so dead, that how can I hope that these things belong unto me? Let my soule live, and it shall praise thee, Psal. 119.175. When the soule is alive towards God, then it can praise God; then it knowes all the good it hath, it hath it in mercy; doubting and deadnesse doe ever goe together, or it's a great marvell. And indeed, what is deadnesse of heart towards Christ, and all his holy Gospell, but a secret doubting whether it have any part in it or no? as when a poore man sees a rich treasure, it does but dead him the more, because he sees no interest he hath in it; if he could see he had an interest in it, this would quicken up his heart, and put it out of it's dumps. And is not this now a miserable condition when a man cannot praise God? If he pray, it is but in a sorry manner, no life, no heart at all. But for blessing and praising of God, that he cannot doe at all, except he be in a fooles paradise, and dreame of a false gift. This is a dreadfull condition, when we are hindred from that which God most delighteth in, what is there that more delighteth God, then to blesse him and praise him? The Lord sayes we never honour him otherwise, Whoso offereth me praise, he glorifieth me, Psal. 50.23. Now we can never offer God praise, except our heart live. 5.

Sixthly, Religion is a very irksome thing unto us, as long as we are dead-hearted; what is it that takes away the grievousnesse of it, but a lively heart? When the heart is dead, it must needs be very tedious; very tedious to be thinking of God, to be meditating of death or the world to come, to be employed in Prayer, to be constant in the humbling of the soule, or the abstaining from our naturall inclinations, to be discoursing of repentance, or finding of Gods heavenly Kingdome; to be employed in the Word, or to go through dirty and frozen wayes to it, to goe and repeat it in our Families, or to urge it upon our hearts. O what weary tedious duties are these, when the 6.

heart

heart is a dead heart? This is the reason why the world lets them all generally alone, and never troubles their hearts with them at all, because they have no life in them; and many that are better-minded find them very tedious, because they are dead-hearted; as Solomon sayes, Correction is grievous to him that forsaketh the way, Prov. 15. 10. now as long as we are out of the way of life, while we are dead-hearted, we forsake the right way, and therefore correction is grievous unto us, nay, all the commandements of God are grievous unto us; does a dead heart rejoyce to go to Prayer? Nay, generally he is loth to go to it; is he glad that the Sermon Bell rings, is he glad at an opportunity to do good? Nay, does he not shrink & winch, and draw back? We see this in the Jews, how irksome the Sabbath was to them, when they were held from buying & selling; O that the Sabbath were over, Amos 8. 5. It may be, men do not find the Sabbath so tedious now, because they help themselves by talking of the world, by taking liberty that way, but if they were held to it, as they ought to be, would they not wish it to be over? The like we may see in the young man, what an irksome thing was it to him, to heare that he must sell away all? The text sayes, he was sad at that saying, Mark. 10. 22. Now is not this too a very hideous thing to be dead-hearted, when it makes all the wayes of God tedious? Nothing should be more delightfull unto us then they, they are perfect freedome, there is great reward in them, they are the best wayes of pleasantnesse, and all his paths are peace; and if we were quickned in our hearts, we would say so too, as the Apostle speaks, when he had said, That none of Gods Commandements are grievous, 1 Joh. 5. 3. in the next words he gives a reason of it; O sayes he, He that is born of God overcometh the world; that is, he that hath the life in him that cometh from above, he hath gotten above the world, he hath past all the irksomnes of them. The irksomeness of any Commandement, does not lie in the commandement, that is sweet and pleasant, but it lyes in deadnes of the heart, a dead heart will ever count them grievous.

Seventhly, as religion is an irksome thing to a dead heart, so a dead heart, if it should take it up, it will in the end be weary of it; as we see in the example of Israel, when they grew to be dead-hearted towards God, at last they were weary of his worship, they went and devised others gods worship, and easier kinds of Religion, they were weary of his. Thou hast been weary of me O Israel, Isa. 43. 22. we see this in Judah too, Behold what a wearinesse is it? Mal. 1. 13. This is too plaine and palpable, how are we grown weary of God, and of his pure service? We have had the Gospell so long till we are even weary of it, weary of sanctity, weary of spiritual truth; whence are all innovations, but because people are weary of the old way? Many that have been very forward in Preaching, and in hearing, and very zealous of good courses, they begin to abate, to side with the times, to remit of their former strictnes. Whence is all this? Whence is it that we see so many Apostates, that once loved good people, now do not? once were very zealous against disorders, now are not, once were against humane devises, now are not, now they can brook any thing well enough, they are weary of their first pitch, they were wound up too high, now they let themselves down again. All this is because men have no life in them, they are dead to what they did professe, you shall see many a man smitten at the word, and there he is knockt down and sees what wretched courses he hath taken that will lead him to hell, well, he goes and reformes and growes very precise, and now there shall not be a Sermon but hee'l heare it, there shall not be any good Christian duty, but he will take it up, hee'l leave his old acquaintance, hee'l joyne himself to good people, hee'l have very good orders in his Family, all this is well, if 'twould hold. But if this man do not go on to get the grace of life, in the end hee'l be weary, a dead heart, be it never so forward, it will end in wearinesse. It is meerly for want of quickening, that any man growes weary of well-doing, as the Apostle sayes; Be not weary of well doing, for in due time, ye shall reap, if ye faint not, Gal.6.9. Take heed ye do not let quickening go; if ye let your quickening go, directly you'l grow weary; if ye suffer your selves to faint, if ye do not get Aqua-vitæ, to cure your fainting fits, you'l be weary of well-doing; now beloved what a pitifull thing is this, that we should be weary of well-doing? If any of us have begun to do well, O how should we labour, that we may never grow weary, how ever things go, though Persecution arise, what ever dealings we meet with at the hands of the wicked world, yet never to give in; what ever flesh and blood say, what ever discouragements we meet with, from without or from within, we should earnestly labour, that we may never be weary of well doing, never weary of preaching to their Conscience, never weary of attending on the word, or of searching our hearts, or of resisting of sinne, or of redeeming our time, or of keeping our garments, never weary of washing our hands in innocency, and keeping of our selves, that the wicked one touch us not; and therefore what a dangerous thing is it to be dead-hearted? For that's the high way to be weary of well-doing at the last. This then is the second use, that we are to make of this point; to see what a dangerous thing it is to be a dead Christian.

7.

Revel. 3. 1.

And art Dead.

I Come now to the fourth thing, and that is this; What it is to be a living Christian. First, I will describe it by the efficient cause. Secondly, by the Instrumentall cause. Thirdly, by the parts of it.

1. For the first, The efficient cause, that makes one a living Christian, is God: as the Psalmist sayes, He is the fountain of life, Psal.36.9. He is the fountain of all life; it is he that makes one a living man. He giveth life and breath to all, Act.17. 25. If he should take away our naturall life, we dye and turne again unto our earth; as long as he breatheth on us we live; as Elihu speakes, the breath of the Almighty gives me life, Job 33.4. yea all the world would be a dead Chaos, if he did not quicken it; there's a kinde of life in every thing that hath being. But it would be a dead Masse, if he did not concurre with it; what is money, and meat, and clothes, and friends, and life, and health it self? Men think they are well to live, when they have them all. True, if he blesse them and quicken them unto us; but if he be wanting to them, they are dead things and can do us no good; nay, the word of life it selfe, it is but a dead letter without him; all the ordinances of God, we see they minister life to some, because God puts life into them, but if he do not put life into them, they are sap-lesse and cadeverous things; so that God is the author even of our naturall life, as Iohn sayes, In him is life, and his life is the life of men, John 1.4. in him we live, and move and have our being; and therefore it is a great sinne not to be thankfull to him for our naturall life. David blesses God for his naturall life very often; life is a very great blessing, a poore thing that hath life, a living Dog, is better then a dead Lyon. A man will give skinne for skinne, and all that he hath for his life. I am sure many of us may be very glad of life, for if it were gone now, we should be in hell; and therefore we had need to make much of our naturall life, yea, every houre of it, lest we dye before we be converted, and brought home to God.

But this is not the life that we do speak of; we speak of spirituall life, and God is the author of that more especially; when a man is alive towards God, he is the only cause of it. He spiritually moveth our hearts by the holy Ghost, and begets us againe after a strange, and an ineffable manner; by joyning his his spirit to our spirits, his minde to our minds, and his will to our wills. He revives all the powers of the soule with his Presence; and therefore this life is called the life of God, which the world are strangers to, and alienated from; Being alienated from the life of God, Eph. 4.18. So likewise it is called the life of Jesus, 2 Cor. 4.11. He only is the author of it. Thus we see the efficient cause of it.

Secondly, The Instrumentall cause of this life is true Faith; this is the [illegible] that couples this life and a man together; that now he is said to be a man; ye know God is the onely living God; they that are not united unto him, remaine in the congregation of the dead; now faith unites a man unto him; faith is the having of him; He that hath the Sonne, hath life, and he that hath not the Sonne, hath not life, 1 Joh. 5.12. When a man cleaves unto God by a true and lively faith, this man hath life; as Moses saies, That thou may live the Lord thy God, and that thou may obey his voyce, and that thou may cleave unto him; for he is thy life, Deut. 30.20. Though a man hath not that strong faith that some have, whereby he hath a cleare evidence of Gods love and favour in Jesus Christ, though a man have not this faith, yet if he have a faith of adherence, and cleaving unto God, this man is a living Christian, this man is joyned unto the true life; This is the true God, and life eternall. 1 Joh. 5.20. And therefore whosoever cleaves to him, hath life; if he will not away from him, he will still seeke him, still pray unto him, still make him his refuge, though he have no feelings, that is not it; if a man will never give over seeking of God; He beleeves God is in the fountaine of all life and peace, and grace and comfort, and Gods way is the onely way; he beleeves himself is a cursed wretch in himself, and that all hope is in Christ. Now if this man have such a faith whereby he adheres, though with never so much weakenesse, this man is alive. This is the faith whereby a Christian lives; as Paul saies, The life that I live, I live by the faith of the Sonne of God, Gal. 2.20. Thus ye see the Instrumentall cause of it.

Thirdly, now for the Parts of it. The parts of it are three.

The first part is the life of Justification; ye know every man by nature is a dead man; as a malefactour that hath committed an offence that is death by mans Law, we say he is a dead man; so we have all offended God from the womb, which is death by Gods Law; and therefore we are dead men; now when God hath justified a man freely by his grace, when God hath given him a pardon in Christ Jesus; now he is a live man; and therefore Justification as ye heard, is called Justification of life, Rom. 5.18. Now beloved this life is not in the man that does live, but in Christ that he lives by; this life supposes no life in this party; no, it lookes upon him as a dead man in himselfe. But God counts him alive in Jesus Christ; as the Apostles saies, Christ is our life, Col. 3.4.q.d. This life is not in us, but in Christ, so that this life denominates a man alive; as Christ denominated the Damosel alive, that was yet dead. The Damosell is not dead, saies he, Matth. 9.24. Ye know the Damosell was dead, at that time, when Christ said so, and yet he said she was not dead, because he had life for her; she had life in him; now when he raised her up, then she had life in her too.

And so I come to the second part of this life; and that is the life of Sanctification, and this life is in him that doth live; for though he were dead before to all goodnesse and holinesse, and alive unto sinne, yet now he is made dead unto sinne, and alive unto God; as the Apostle speakes, Likewise reckon ye your selves to be dead indeed unto sinne, but alive unto God, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Rom. 6.11. This life is called the life of grace, and new obedience, when a man is quickened up to all the wayes of God; You hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sinnes, Eph. 2. And this is the quickening that I would faine open to you.

3. The third part of this life, is the life of Joy and comfort; ye know when a mans eyes are opened to see his sinnes, and his damned estate by reason of them, the Law comes, and that kills him, his very heart dyeth in him: now when God propounds to him a Saviour, and causes him to beleeve in him, this revives his heart againe; this yeelds him some joy and comfort; so that true Joy is a life too; we may see this in the Children of God, let their joyes and comforts be all gone, this makes them all amort, this makes them very heavie indeed, as if they had no life at all in them; as the Church sayes; Wilt thou not revive us again? That thy people may rejoyce in thee, Psal. 85. 6.

Now my brethren, all this is onely by way of Preface, to come then to the question, what is a quickened Christian? a Christian that hath onely a name to live, but is dead? Dead towards God? Dead to all good duties? no: But that is quickened up to them: as death is taken in a metaphorical sense, when we say, such a one is dead to God, dead to the holy ordinances of God, we do not meane properly dead, as if he were naturally dead, and had no soule in his body; but we take it in a metaphorical sense: so it life here to be taken too, namely for the activenesse of a thing; when a thing is not active, we use to say, it is dead; as Sarahs wombe is said to be dead; he considered not the deadnesse of Sarahs wombe, Rom. 4. 19. That is, her womb had no activity to conceive; now when a wombe is active this way, then we say it is quick; so a coale that hath fire in it, is said to be a live coale: There flew one of the Seraphim, having a live coale in his hand, Isa. 6. 6. We call it a live coale, because it is active; it is able to burne; whereas if that fire were out, it were not able to burne; and therefore then we call it a dead coale: so when a man is active towards God, take him in Prayer, there he can act now; take him in selfe-deniall; in reconciling of himselfe; in humbling of the heart, in mourning for sin, in hungring after righteousnesse, even as a man does after his appointed food; take him in any of the things of God, though he were like a dead coale afore, yet here he can act now; now he can move this way; when one is like a block in good duties, that man is dead; we call moving things living things; Every thing moving that liveth, Gen. 9. 3. When a thing cannot stirre, that we call dead; when a man is not stirring in heavenly things, he is stirring enough in earthly, but he cannot stirre in heavenly things; that man is a dead Christian, though he professe never so much, yet if he be not stirring towards God from day to day, he is dead; I thinke it meet to stirre you up, sayes Saint Peter, 2 Pet. 1. 13. That is, I thinke it meet to quicken you up. Now beloved, this being so, if ye would know what it is to be alive towards God, let us but finde out a little, what is the life of a man.

1. First, what is the life of a mans Understanding? people thinke that bare knowledge in, and approving of Gods wayes, and thinking of them now and then; they thinke this is the life of their understandings. But you shall see these are not it; therefore we will search out what is the life of the understanding.

2. Secondly, what is the life of the Will, or of the Heart? people are apt to thinke that wishings, and wouldings, and velleities, if they have some volitions towards God and all holy courses, they thinke their wills are alive; no; these are not it; therefore we will search too, wherein the life of the Will does consist.

3. Thirdly, what is the life of the Conscience? people generally do conceive that if their consciences do check them for their sinnes, and smite them for evill, and excuse them in other things that are good, then their conscience is alive; now we desire to enquire, what is the life of the Conscience indeed.

4. Fourthly, what is the life of the Affections? I gave you a touch of these when I shewed you what it is to be dead; now let me speake of them more fully, to shew you what it is to be alive.

For

For the first, what is the life of the understanding? ye know there be many things in the understanding, knowing, approving, studying, determining; now the world thinks that when the understanding is so farre wrought upon, as to know Christian religion, to approve it, to study it, to determine aright upon things; evill things to be evill, good things to be good, duties to be duties, sinnes to be sinnes; now they suppose their understandings are alive. But the truth is, none of all these are the life of your understandings. The understanding hath another life besides these. The understanding may have all these, and be dead.

1. As first, for Knowledge, I need not stand to prove that; the dead Heathens, the Apostle sayes they knew God; when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, Rom. 1.21. Knowledge is not enough; as our Saviour speaks, If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them, Joh. 13.17. Nay, literall knowledge does not so much as give the understanding true light, much lesse life; a great learned Divine that is wicked, his understanding is still in darknesse; nay, it may leave him more dead, then those that are grossely ignorant; as the Prophet sayes of them that had knowledge, I will get me to the great men, for they have known the way of the Lord, but these have altogether broken the Yoke, Jer. 5.5. They were more dead, their hearts were more averse from all goodnesse. Bare knowledge is a poore thing, and yet people are apt to glory in it; the Apostle makes a jeſt at it; We know we have all knowledge, 1 Cor. 8.1.q.d. Is that such a piece of matter? Never tell me of your knowledge, I know ye all have knowledge; but that's a poore thing; nay, the greater is thy woe, if thou hast not a quickened mind, as Solomon sayes, He that increaseth knowledge, increaseth sorrow, Eccles. 1.18. Thou increaseſt thine owne self condemning, the more thou hast; the greater knowledge in thy Bosome, the more thou seest to condemne thee, 'tis like a sword in thy bowels, that daily galls thee, and wounds thee; and therefore little reason to think that knowledge is the life of the Mind, it is not so much as the light of the mind; take heed sayes our Saviour, That the light that is in thee be not darknesse, Luke 11.35. That is, thou mayst have a great deale of light, and yet be in darknesse, nay, in worse darknesse, then ignorant blind people that have no light at all; If the light that is in thee be darknesse, how great is that darknesse! Matth. 6.23. Such people are more senseleſse at the word, harder to be wrought on, they have the more distinctions to deceive their own soules, they think too well of themselves; they are too wise, to be fooles, that they may be wise, they are farther off from confession, if they had lesse knowledge, it may be more hope to doe them good. But having so much knowledge in a carnall mind, it is made a strong hold against grace; it is with such people as it was with Babylon, Thy wisdome, and thy knowledge hath perverted thee, Isa. 47.10. True knowledge is a good thing; but when a man is fleshed with it, that he takes himself to be some body, this marres all; but I will speak no more of this.

2. Secondly, for approving of the Truth; that cannot be the life of the mind neither; when a man approves goodnesse, and good people, this indeed is an excellent mercy of God, to make a man approve goodnesse, and good men. O how are such bound to be thankfull! few goe so farre. But alas if thou goest no farther, thy mind is not yet quickened up to God; as the Apostle shewes, that a man dead in his sinnes still, may yet approve the best things; Thou knowest his will, and approvest the things that are most excellent, Rom. 2.18. Herod approved John the Baptist, and his preaching. Achish King of Gath approved David and all his wayes; nay, the devill approved Christ; I know thee who thou art; the Holy one of God; Mark 1.24. Suppose thou approvest all the wayes of Christ, O what good wayes they be! thou likest his promises, thou countest his Ordinances admirable good and lovely. O consider what the Apostle sayes, happy is the man that condemneth not himselfe in that he alloweth, Rom. 14.22. So may I say to thee, dost thou allow of all strictnes and pureness and precise people? O sayest thou, the preciser the better: this is well; now thou art a happy man, if thou dost not condemne thy self in that which thou alloweſt, thou alloweſt of the strictest Servants of God; but if thou condemnest thy self now, and thy Conscience can tell thee, I but I doe not let my self to be as they are; I can be loose my self; poore creature, thy allowings and approvings will rise up in judgement against thee; so that this is a poore thing too; approving of goodnesse may be in a Persecutor; Saint Paul tells us that the Jewes did allow of his Religion, and yet they would not leave persecuting of him, Act. 24.15. nay, Christs persecutors, they allowed of all goodness, they professed so much at least; for a good work we stone thee not; therefore approbation cannot be the life of the Mind neither.

3. Thirdly, thinking of God and of the Word, that is not the life of the mind; and yet many men hang upon this too, that they think of God, and of his wayes, and of their latter end. True, some are so graceleſſe, that they come not thus farre, God is hardly in all their thoughts, Psal. 10.4. But though a man doe think of God, and of heaven, and of Gods Lawes, indeed it's a great mercy of God; it may doe a man a world of good, and it did David, this made him return into the way whereſoever he went. I thought upon my wayes and turned my feet unto thy Testimonies, Psal. 119.59. yet if this be all, this is no argument of life. The wicked Jewes, Christ confesses they thought upon God and upon the Scriptures, nay more, they thought to have eternall life in them; Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternall life, Joh. 5. 39. This is so farre from being an Act of life, as that if a man live in sinne for all that, it aggravates a mans sinnes. The drunkard when he goes to the Ale-house, it may be he thinks of the word of God, that sayes, a drunkard shall not inherit Gods Kingdome, and yet he will goe though; a lyer when he lyes, it may be he thinks at the same time, of the word of God, that sayes the devill is a lyer, and lyers shall lie in the lake that burnes with fire and brimstone. Jam. 3.6.

4. Fourthly, studying is not the life of the Mind, this is that which bewitches many Ministers; they study all the day of God and his Kingdome, and of eternall life; they are all the day studying of Jesus Christ, and of faith and repentance, perhaps they think this is heavenly-mindednesse. O they love a life to study Divinity; as the Jewes said, We delight to know thy wayes, Isa. 58.2. I grant, studying is an intense act of the Mind, but that it is a lively act of the mind, that I deny; that is not alwayes so; nay, studying may be in the highest degree in a mind that is dead to what it studies, though never so eager to it, as it is scibile of divine things: for what is studying? Studying is nothing else but the bousting out of the logique in the Scripture; now if a man rest there, he is never the nearer, if it doe not recoyle on his own mind, when he studies of Grace, if he doe not seek how to get it; when he studies the fall of Adam, and originall sinne, if he doe not get it mortified in himself, all this is nothing; we see the poore simple Ignorant people run after Jesus Christ, when the great Students of Divinity were so farre from doing so, that they sate and derided them for their labour, yea, and called them silly Simplicians, as it had been a giddy humour in them; therefore Studying cannot be it neither.

8. Well then, it remaines to shew you what is the life of the Mind, that if the mind doe give that unto God; it is alive towards God, I answer; All these are the dull acts of the mind, they may be in the mind concerning God and all his wayes, yea, in a very high degree, and yet the mind dead towards the same. The Apostle tells the Jewes in his second Epistle and the first Chapter, That they knew all these things before: I but sayes he in the third Chapter and the firſt verſe, I would ſtirre up your minds, that is, I would quicken up your minds; as we uſe to ſay, when a man looks about him; when a man gives his mind to a thing, this is the ſtirrings of the mind, now the mind is quickened up.

Now there be ſix ſtirring acts in the minds of men; and look which way they ſtand, it's moſt plaine the mind is alive, whether to God, or to the things of the world.

The firſt, is the Application of the Mind. 1.
The ſecond, is the Meditating of the mind. 2.
The third, is the Conſidering of the mind. 3.
The fourth, is the Remembring of the mind. 4.
The fifth, is the Deviſing of the mind; 5.
The ſixth, is the Judging of the mind. 6.

Theſe are all the ſtirring and lively acts of the Mind, and the mind does not let out theſe acts any way, but that way, that a man is alive to, whether to be to the world or the creature.

Firſt, I ſay, the Application of the mind; the mind hath this nature in it, though it know a thing never ſo much, or approve it, or think of it, or ſtudy it, yet except it doe incorporate with the thing, it doth not come to apply it; if it incorporate with the mind, then it will apply it; as we ſee in a Worldling, whatſoever good husbandry he knowes, if he know any way of getting of gaine, he applyes it, and takes it to himſelf; why his mind is alive to the profits of the world, he can reliſh ſavour in them; So when the mind begins to be applying of divine things, now it is alive unto God; as Eliphaz ſaid to Job; Heare it and know it for thy good; Job, 5.27. That is, doe not onely know it, but be quickened up to apply it to thy ſelf for thine own good, as the Prophet ſayes; Hearken diligently, and eate ye that which is good; Iſa. 55.2. That is, I would have your minds not onely to attend, but let them be quickned up to apply it to feed upon what ye know; for it be your food, a quickned mind is like the Diſciples of Jeſus Chriſt, when Chriſt ſaid, One of you ſhall betray me; they were all very ſorry, and they began every one of them to ſay, Lord is it I? Matth. 26.21. They all did apply it, you ſee how his ſpeech ſtirred their minds, they fell preſently to apply; ſo when a man cannot heare any ſinne ripped up; but preſently he cryes out, Lord is it I? Is it I that am guilty of this ſinne? O if it be I, let me ſee it, that I may leave it; if the heare of any threatning, he ſayes, Lord is it I? O teach me, that I may be humbled; when he heares of any grace, Lord is it I that have this grace? O if it be not I, O let it be I; a quickened mind is an applying mind; now if the mind be yet dead, it cares not for applying though it know never ſo much, yet it has the word ſtill be a ſtranger unto it, it does not take it home to it ſelf; like the Hearers there in Hoſea; as God ſayes, I writ to them the great things of my Law, but they were counted as a ſtrange thing, Hoſ. 8.12. They would not take them home, now a quickned mind takes them home, this reproofe is to me, this Commandement is to me; nay, when a reproof to ones thinking of all other ſhould ſeeme leaſt to concerne him, as when our Saviour Chriſt ſpake againſt rich men; O how hardly ſhall a rich man enter into the Kingdome of God! yet the Apoſtles took it to themſelves; they were amazed, ſayes the Text, Matth. 19.25. One would have thought the doctrine ſhould have concerned them; alas, they were not ſo rich, but they applyed it though, fearing leſt that little that they had ſhould draw their hearts away from God; this then is the firſt alive to; Because it is most certain, that that is it which you respect most; as David sayes, I will meditate on thy precepts, and have respect unto thy wayes, Psal. 119.15. A dead mind may light on good thoughts, but what man meditates of them, when his mind runneth upon such themes; this mans mind is alive to them, he gives his mind to them; as Paul sayes to Timothy; Meditate on these things, give thy selfe wholly to them, that thy profiting may appeare, 1 Tim. 4 15. You may see this in ungodly men, they doe not onely think of the world, for so a godly man may doe and must doe, but their minds run on the world; they give their minds to it; It is the Apostles saying; They mind earthly things, Phil. 3.19. It may be they know gracious things, but they mind earthly; they cannot find in their heart to give their minds to Gods word and will: So that, would you prove your selves and your minds to be alive towards God? Labour that your minds may bend their meditations that way; let your minds run on him, and how ye may have his favour, and how ye may keep it, how ye take heed of offending of him; a man is yet dead, that does not give his mind to these things; whose mind does not run on them daily. And therefore beloved as ever ye doe desire to have a proof of your life towards God, let your minds run on these things, give diligent heed that they may not slip out of your minds; as the Apostle sayes, To ought to give so much the more diligent heed to the things which ye have heard, lest at any time ye let them slip, Heb. 2.1. If they doe slip away ye know not how (as the flesh will let them goe if ye doe not take heed) call for them againe, as God sayes, Bring it again to mind, O ye transgressors, Isa. 46.8.

Secondly, the meditating of the Mind; this is another ſtirring act of the mind; a naturall man may think of his eternall good now and then, but this is nothing, his mind is dead for all that. But when a mans mind runs on ſuch things, now it is alive; look what your minds doe run on, that your minds are 2.

3. Thirdly, the considering of the Mind; when the mind looks cursorily on things, what is this but the remissenesse and looseness of the mind? Now when the mind comes to consider seriously of them, now it quickens up it self, now it looks wistly and intentively on them indeed; alas all our knowledge of the truth, all our approving of good courses, all is nothing without consideration; our knowledge and approbation are dead things without this; even as good, as if we had no knowledge at all, for all the good it will doe us, if we doe not consider; as God sayes, Israel doth not know, my people doe not consider, Isa. 1.3. Look what our minds doe consider from day to day, that our minds are lively on; consideration is the eagernesse of the mind, when the mind cares not for an object, it will not trouble it self to consider of it, a lesse act will serve such a thing well enough; but look what the mind is inclined unto, there it shall not goe slightly and lightly to work, there 'twill take paines, nay, it counts it no paines to perpend and to weigh things as in a Ballance, as it is said of Mary, look what she heard from Christ, she kept it and pondered it in her heart, Luke 2.19. she pondered it, and weighed it in a ballance, O it was matter of great weight with her mind; where the mind is alive, there it will consider and ponder and weigh, nay, there is not a circumstance, but the mind will take it to consideration. Take a man that is alive to the things here below, how considerative is that man, in all matters of that nature? As for example now, for his gaine, he takes every thing into consideration that may make for his gaine; He will have his wits about him, when he buyes or sells, when he sowes or reapes; he considers with himselfe, that he will not sow too soon, or too late in the yeare, or a grain that the ground will not beare, he considers how long it was since it was fallow, how long it will beare, till it be laid fallow againe, he considers when he may sell dearest, when he may buy cheapest, when is the best time to put off a commodity. This is the livelinesse of his mind in these things. Take this man now for his soule, his mind is starke heavy, and loose thoughts shall serve turne for that, he does not consider here. But when a man is alive unto God, now his considerations run out this way, now he is considerative this way, for his soule, for his spirituall and eternall good. Beloved, consideration is a lively act of the minde; as you may ſee there in Moſes, Know therefore this day and conſider it in thy heart; that the Lord he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath, Deut. 4.39. That is, do not only know it, but quicken up thy mind to conſider it; this will do thee good indeed; this is a very perfect Act of the minde: as we ſee in David: when I conſider the Heavens the Worke of thy hands, the Moone, and the Starres which thou haſt ordained; then I ſay Lord what is man? Pſal. 83.4. You ſee how ſtirring his mind was, when he conſidered the heavens and the earth, it wrought mightily on him; it made him the more humble. Others ſee the Heavens every day, and it does not move them one whit to Humiliation before God. But when the mind comes once to conſider, then it ſhakes off its dulneſs and remiſſneſs, then it growes buſie, ſuch a man will not go to Prayer, but he conſiders what he goes about, what a great God he is to ſpeak to, what a vile creature himſelf is that is to pray to him; he will conſider how he may pray with faith and hope and feeling of his wants; how he may riſe up from his knees not without profit. Now he will not go to the word, but he will conſider what it is he repaires to, now all his mind is how he may get good, now he is buſie in every duty; when he is tempted to do as others do, he conſiders what the iſſue will be, and this makes him forbeare. Beloved, this is the life of our mindes, when they conſider things, when we conſider our latter end, when we conſider Gods promiſes, when we conſider his threatenings, when we take his Commandements into our deep conſideration, when we conſider the danger of ſin, we do not only know all theſe things but we conſider them. Though we know ne're ſo much, except we conſider what we know, our mindes are lumpiſh and dead, conſideration is activity of the mind; and therefore if we would prove our ſelves to be alive towards God, let us put on conſideration adayes.

the

Fourthly, the Remembring of the mind; when the mind forgets it ſelf every day, this is nothing but the deadneſs of the mind; for if it be alive to a thing, it will be ſure to remember it ſelf of that, if it can: Can a Maid forget her ornaments, or a Bride her attire? Yet my people have forgotten me, dayes without number, Jer. 2.32. That is, my people are dead-minded to me; if they regarded me, they would remember themſelves every day, to ſerve me; look what a man is alive to, the mind will be ſure to remember us of that; we can have no journey to take, but our minds remember us of it; no buſineſs to do, to feed our Cattel, to milk our Kine every morning, and evening, to ſheare our ſheep every Lammas, if we forget any thing in this kind, preſently it's a hundred to one, but we remember our ſelves: Now when a man is alive to the beſt things in ſome meaſure, he will remember himſelf of them every day; ſo David did, I remembred thy name O Lord, yea, in the night too, and ſo I kept thy Law, Pſ 119.55. I remembred my ſelf, and I would be ſure to do what God bid me do; it may be his heart began to ariſe, but preſently he remembred himſelf, and beat it downe again; it may be ſome other luſt began to be up, but by and by he remembred him, and checked his own ſoule; when the mind is alive towards God, the knowledge of the word does not lie dead in that man; but ſtill he remembers it at every need; when the Sabbath is comming, then thinks he, I remember what God bad me do, Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy; when the Sacrament comes, then he remembers himſelf, O thinks he, Let a man examine himſelf, and ſo let him eat of that Bread and drinke of that Cup; Now the mind thinkes, I will labour to remember God continually; what ever I forget, I will not forget him; when I riſe up, when I lie downe, ſtill I will ſet my ſelf to remember him; when I go out, when I come home; what ever the Devill ſay, what ever the fleſh whiſper, I will labour ſtill to remember God; if I be tempted to wrath; then I deſire to remember what God ſayes; Give not place to the Devill; when I feel ſpirituall lazineſs, then I will unfeignedly endeavour to remember what God ſpeaks unto me, Curſed is he that does the work of the Lord negligently, &c. 4.

5. Fifthly, the inventings or the deviſings of the heart; where the mind is naturally bent and alive, there it is witty; if riches, if preferment, if pleaſure, if learning be a mans luſt that he lives in, there he is witty; So when a man is alive unto God, his wit will have that way it's vent: as Chriſt ſayes, I find out witty inventions, Prov.8.12. He ſpeakes not only of himſelf, but of his grace in every one, that is this; when the mind is alive and ſet towards Chriſt, it will find out witty inventions; nay, it's a ſtrange thing though men have no parts, yet if they be worldly, how witty they are for ſuch matters; and ſo for good people, whoſe mindes are turned towards God, though they be of very weake parts, yet how witty they will be in good things; what pretty wayes they will have to do good, to ſhun offences; to break occaſions of ſinne; as a Miniſter in his preaching; as Paul ſayes, I caught you with guile, 2 *Cor.*12.16. So let a man have a liberall mind, the Prophet ſayes, he will deviſe liberall things, Iſa. 32.8. Mercy and truth ſhall be to them that deviſe good; Prov. 14.22. Whence comes the blockiſhneſs of our minds but from this, that our minds are ſo dead, if our minds were more alive towards God, it would make us more graciouſly witty, we ſhould deviſe good things, find out admirable inventions, it would teach us plots againſt Satan, plots againſt the fleſh; as the wicked, their mindes are full of ſinfull devices, fetches, ſtratagems, policies, a man would wonder to ſee how witty the Devill is in them, to carry them headlong to hell, &c.

6. Sixthly and laſtly, The judgement of the Mind; when the minds laſt dictate is for God: When a man is judicious, this is it that leads men adayes, their judgments, not all their knowledge, nay, learning; you ſhall have many a learned man will uſe to play the foole, and does every day very fooliſhly, becauſe his judgment is fooliſh; the reaſon is, a man never takes any courſe, nor ſpeakes any word, nor thinkes any thought, but firſt his judgment tels him, it is beſt to do ſo that time; never does the Drunkard turn in at the Ale-houſe, but his Judgment ſayes to his Will, chooſe to turne in: you will ſay, it may be he knowes he ought not to do ſo, I, but it is not mens knowledge that leads men, but mens judgments; When mens judgments ſay, this is not for me, this is moſt pleaſant, this is moſt profitable, this is moſt honourable, this is moſt delightfull: now when the judgement of the mind is in ſome meaſure ſet towards God, now the mind is quickened: as David ſayes, I eſteeme all thy precepts concerning all things to be right, and I hate every falſe way, Pſalm 119.128. That is, by the mercy of God, I have good judgement, be the way what it will be, though never ſo pleaſing to the fleſh, ſtill my judgement ſayes, Chooſe Gods way, that's evermore beſt.

Thus farre we proceeded the laſt day, namely to learne or ſee what is the quickening of the Mind; that ye may know whether our underſtanding be dead or alive: now what remaines but this, that we all labour for ſuch an Underſtanding: many of us underſtand much, ſo much that if it were quickened up to us, it would do us a world of good; if we did uſe to apply it and make it our own, if we would give our mindes to it, if we would ponder it and ſeriouſly weigh it, and remember it for our uſe in all our wayes, if we had a deviſing mind for good, a mind plotting for heaven, and contriving how we may beſt glorifie God, and ſecure our own ſoules. A judicious mind, a practicall mind. This is a good underſtanding indeed; as the Prophet ſayes, A good underſtanding have they that doe thereafter, Pſal. 111. 10. When what we underſtand does not lye dead in our heads, but our minds are quickned up to it, this is a good Underſtanding, my brethren, this underſtanding is not to be had in books, God only can help us with it, as David ſayes, O Lord give me underſtanding & I ſhall live Pſ.119.144. You will ſay, what need he keep ſuch a ſtir for underſtanding? Had not he the Law before his eyes? Could not he read there, and get understanding? O but it will be all dead, Lord unless thou give me understanding from above, if thou wilt give me understanding, then I shall live.

read

Now I come to the Heart, to search what the life of the heart is; every Act of the heart, is not an argument of life.

First, there be outside Acts of the heart; people thinke if they do not dissemble before men, then they are no Hypocrites. O they are hearty they say, as there is an outside of the outward man, so there is an outside of the heart. Thou mayest be hearty in some sort in good duties, and yet be stark dead, namely if it be only the outside of the heart; My Sonne keep my saying in the midst of thy heart, Proverbs 4.21. Not in the out-side of thy heart, no, no, I would have the in-side of thy heart too; a man that is alive to the world, the world hath not onely the heart, but the very in-side of the heart; the world is deepe in the heart; so if thou best alive towards God, God is in the deep of thy heart, the word is deep in thy heart, not like the salt water in the Sea onely, on the Top. Ye know what became of the Seed, that wanted depth of the earth, Mat 13.5. So it is with the heart, when the word does not get into the depth of it, it never quickens in it. The heart may be so farre towards goodnesse, as to bring a man to good duties adayes, it may bring one to Sermon, or to Prayer, to others of the Ordinances of God, and other good courses, but what's all this, as long as it is dead? the life lies in the bottome of the heart, look what the bottome of the heart stands unto, that's a man alive unto, then thou art alive towards God, when the bottome of thy heart is unto him; when thou labourest to obey him from the bottome of thy heart, when thou cal'lest upon him from the bottome of thy heart, like Sugar at the bottome of the Cup, stir up the bottome, the best is at bottome, so thou must stir up the bottome of thy heart, The heart is a deep thing, Psal 46.6. Though Religion be on the top, yet if the world be in the deep, thy heart is dead towards God, as it is with a puddle, it may be cleere at the top, faire water at the top, but there's nothing but mudde at the bottome. 1.

Secondly, there be flitting Acts of the heart, be they never so deep in the heart, yet if they do not stay there, the heart is dead still. Solomon sayes of his Father; He said unto me, let thy heart retaine my words, keepe my Commandements and live, Prov. 4.4. Though the word does stirre nere so much for the present, this is not life, except thou retaine it, and hold it fast, a man may have many flashes of life in him, but as long as the heart does not keep them, it remaines dead. They that seeke the Lord, their heart shall live, Psal. 22.26. That is, when it is not a flash, but it is an Act that abides by a man, the heart is stedfastly set towards God, now his heart lives; now when people are moved only by fits, they are humbled by fits, and startled by fits, their righteousnesse is like a morning dew, ye know there the dew is every morning, but all the day it is gone, may be when morning comes, there it is again. It is true, there may be horrible offs and ons in the Children of God, to the confounding of their faces before God. But I do not speak to discourage them. But let us take heed, we may have admirable flashes of life, fits of humblings, fits of enlargements, fits of self-denyall, fits of great eagernesse after God, the heart may be towards God for a fit, a false heart; as the Children of Israel, their heart was firmly towards him for a fit, They remembred that God was their rock, and that the high God was their redeemer, but their heart was not right with him, they were not stedfast in his Covenant, Psal. 78.35.37. Marke, It was but a fit, like Esaus crying for a fit. This is a poore argument of life then; no, no; the flitting acts of the heart, may be no acts of Life. 2.

Thirdly, there be wouldings and wishings in the Heart, and these cozen the world more then any other; these they thinke verily are effects of true Life. 3.

First, because these are not in the out-side of the heart, but lye, or at least 1.

seeme to lye very deep in the heart; it is very certain, that many Naturall men would give the whole world if they had it, as they do verily conceive, that they had true Grace, that they were Saints, that they could leave their sinnes, that they were in a child of Gods case, they deeply wish it, it is a profound would in their hearts; and therefore now when they see such yearnings in their hearts, they do verily apprehend; this is Life certainly. Hence it is that they will say they would from the bottome of their hearts serve God, they have here a lust but they would fain have God deliver them from that; indeed they confesse in their consciences, if they might have a thousand worlds, they cannot give it over, but they would fain they could, & thus they deceive themselves; because this act seemes to be from the depth of their heart; this fancy you may see to be in mens hearts out of *Mic.*6.6,7. Where ye see, though they could not find in their hearts to walke humbly before God, to live justly and righteously, yet they would give thousands, they could; O say they, what would not we give for the sin of our soules? No question but they thought they were alive, but God told them they were not.

2. Secondly, another reason why they thinke this is a token of Life is, because this is no flatting act neither; But they have these wouldings every day; nay, you can never come to them, but still they have these, they would do well; nay, they would do as well as the best; thus they hope they have a fountain of living water in them that springeth up daily; thus it was with them in the Prophets, They seek me daily sayes God, Isa.58.2. They thought it was their every dayes work to serve God, and where they did faile, they thought they could say, they would do better, they sought the Lord daily.

3. Thirdly, because they find that this is attributed to the Saints; as the Apostle sayes, Ye cannot do the things that ye would, Gal.5.17. Nay, the Apostle Paul himselfe, speakes it of himselfe, The good that I would, that do I not, and the evill which I would not, that do I, Rom.7.19. So that thus they argue now, when they find this same woulding in their hearts, and cannot do as they would, O say they, I may say with the Apostle, the good which I would do that do I not; I cannot do as I would. Thus they hood-wink their own soules. It is very true, these be the Saints groanes, and a part of their sighing towards God, that they cannot do as they would, this makes them a burthen to themselves. And so again when they find themselves disturbed and limited and straightened by their flesh, this is a comfort to their soules, and an argument of Gods infinite goodnesse unto them, that they can unfeignedly say, they would do better; they do please him in some measure through his grace, and they would please him better; they do some good by his heavenly spirit, and they would do more; they do resist every sinne, and they would resist it more. This is very true. But yet how many thousands lull themselves asleep in security, by the fancy of this thing! The heart may put forth daily wouldings, and be as dead as a carcasse to all the workes of grace; as our Saviour Christ sayes, Strive to enter in at the strait Gate, for many shall seeke to enter in, and shall not be able, Luke 13.24.9.d. O stirre up your selves, quicken up your hearts, do not only seek to enter in; many seeke to enter in, O they would enter in, and they would faine enter in, alas, alas, they are dead, they cannot; therefore quicken up your hearts, and do ye more then so; I acknowledge that woulding is an argument of life in the heart, in these cases;

1. First, when a man does beleeve God in some measure, and then would beleeve more, does oppose every known sinne, and would oppose it more, does follow all manner of goodnes, and would follow it more, when a mans would is above the simple will, as when a man will reach as high as he can, and then streins himself to reach higher, he takes all the Stools and Ladders that he can, and stands on tip-toes, and would reach higher; this is an Act of the will with some life; and therefore the Apostle when he sayes that Christians would more then they do, Gal. 5. 17. In the verſe going before, he tels them they muſt walke in the ſpirit though q.d. If ye ſhould ſay, ye walke in the ſpirit and do not, ye deceive your own ſelves, ſo that the woulding it ſelf, is not a living act.

would

Secondly, a woulding is an act of a living heart, when it is a laborious woulding; ſo that there is another thing in the will that is the living act and not woulding; namely, when the heart labours, and therefore the woulding is not it; I labour, ſayes the Apoſtle, yea, I laboured more abundantly then they all, 1 Cor. 15. 10. Mark though he ſaid in another place that he would; the good which I would doe, yet that was not all, that had been a dead act, if that had been all; therefore he laboured together with it. Well then; let us come to ſhew you, what the life of the will is. In a word, the life of the heart is, when the heart will doe a thing, may be it is hindred a thouſand times, but in ſome meaſure it will doe it, coſt it never ſo much, though fleſh and bloud, and world, and devill, and all be againſt it, yet it will doe it; now the heart is alive, it will believe, it will repent, it will ſtrive againſt ſinne, it will ſet God before its eyes, it will love him above all, feare him above all, regard him above all. I ſay though it meet with never ſo many hindrances without and within, pull-backs, rebellions, yet it will doe it, now it's alive; When the ſpirit indeed is willing, Matth. 26. 41. As Paul ſayes, To will is preſent with me, Rom. 7. 18. When a man can ſay it from the bottome of his heart, that a will is preſent with him. I will be ruled by God, I will deny my ſelf; though the fleſh be never ſo violent, and it may be many times, often beares down all before it, yet there is a will preſent, that will ſtand it out; and that can never be borne downe: the act may be borne down, now affections may be borne down; I but this ſtill is preſent, I will be for God, he is my beſt, his will is my rule, his Law is my line, and I will be at his diſpoſe; When this is thus in generall, through all the wayes of God, this is a living heart; when to will is preſent with it, as the Author to the Hebrewes ſayes, His will was to live honeſtly, Heb. 13. 18. As ſoone as ever the prodigall Sonne was come to this paſſe, that he could unfeignedly ſpeake, I will ariſe, I will goe to my Father, Luke 15. 18. You ſee his father preſently ſayes he was alive; this my Sonne was dead, but he is alive againe; ver. 24. you will ſay, what if one had bound him hand and foot, that is all one; he will goe, he will wraſtle, he will bite the cord aſunder; if he cannot doe that, O how he will cry out, O how they bind me here! I will ariſe; he will ſtrive, he will not be quiet, he muſt goe, and he will goe; his will is abſolutely to goe, ſtopt or not ſtopt; his will is ſimply to goe, if he can but get away, and leave an arme behind, nay, a foot behind, nay both, he will crawle, but he will to his Father; ſo when a man will leave his ſinfull courſes, and he will have God for his God, he will have Chriſt, and there he wil hang; come death, come feares, come temptations, there he wil hang. This is that which God accepts, when the hearts wil is to God, If there be firſt a willing mind, it is accepted, 2 Cor. 8. 12.

Now that this is the Life of the heart, I prove it thus.

1. Firſt, becauſe this is the perfecteſt operation of the heart, when it abſolutely willeth a thing. There be many operations of the heart, but none of them is perfect but this, as David ſaid to his Son, My Son know thou the God of thy Father, and ſerve him with a perfect heart, and with a willing mind, 1 Chron. 28. 9. q.d. This is a perfect heart, when thy wil is to ſerve him; how ever things goe, thou wilt ſerve him; then thy heart is abſolutely ſet towards God, this is the whole heart, I cryed with my whole heart, heare me O Lord, I will keep thy Statutes, Pſal. 119. 145. What's the deadneſſe of men, but becauſe either they have no heart to Gods wayes, or but halfe hearts? as it is ſaid of Ephraim, their heart is divided, and God hath but a piece: but when a man hath an abſolute will hereunto, now he is alive, now his heart is perfect towards the Lord his God; as it is in sinne, when a man does not onely goe on in sinne, but he will doe it, his will is absolutely that way, this man hath a perfect heart towards Satan, so it is here.

2. Secondly, because this is the might and strength of the Heart; while a mans heart puts forth inferiour acts towards God, he is dead to every good word and work. If he have any heart at all, it is but so so, as God said of Judah, How weak is thy heart, Ezek 16.30. Such a man the Devill can easily take him off at any time for a need; such a one can never stand it out to the end. But he is off and on, because the might of his heart is not towards God; now when the will is absolutely towards God, this man must needs be alive; for the might of his heart is towards God, as the Lord himself sayes, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soule, and with all thy might, Deut. 6.5.

3. Thirdly, because this makes every thing possible; naturally a man cannot believe, he cannot resist his own flesh, he cannot overcome the World, he cannot live godly in all his wayes, he cannot forgoe his beloved lusts. But now when the heart comes once to be willing towards God, now every thing is possible. I may say of him, as Christ saith of Faith, All things are possible to him that believes, Mark 9.23. So all things are possible to him that willeth; as we use to say, there is nothing hard to a willing mind. And therefore godly men in CHRIST JESUS, the Apostle calls them, οἱ θέλοντες εὐσεβῶς ζῆν, &c. 2 Tim. 3.12.

4. Fourthly, because this takes in the manner of good duties too, as well as the matter; it is more a thousand times, then the bare doing of them, a dead heart will serve to doe them. But when the heart is made willing, this is more then the bare naked deed; as Paul sayes to the Corinthians about Almes, ye have begun not onely to doe, but also τὸ θέλειν, To be willing a yeare ago, 2 Cor. 8.10. As he sayes of his Preaching, If I doe it willingly I have a reward; but if against my will, &c. 1 Cor. 9.17. That is, q. d. I may preach indeed, I may have so much heart to it, as to doe the deed; alas that is nothing; because if I doe it willingly this is it; this is it, Brethren, this is the right manner too.

5. Fifthly, this is an argument that the Heart hath an inward principle; what is the life of the heart, but an inward principle of acting? Look where the heart is alive, there it works from within; there needs no compulsion to a covetous heart, to have regard of his profit, no; he regards it most willingly; he hath an inward principle to regard it; and therefore he is alive to it; Now when the heart puts forth its will towards God, now it hath an inward principle of agency; it needs no constraint, as Peter sayes to Ministers; Feed the flock of God, not by constraint but willingly, 1 Pet. 5.2 That is, doe it very lively, doe it with an inward principle, not because ye see others feed, not because ye see the disgrace, what will people think, if I should not Preach constantly; not because ye dare not doe otherwise, Conscience will flye in your face, alas, ye may doe it, that's with a dead heart. But doe it willingly; where note this is the hearts life, this is an inward principle of the heart; now the heart will doe it, though no body else doe it, though he be hated for his labour, though he have no thanks for his paines amongst men. Thus ye see this is the Life of the heart.

Now for your better understanding, we will open this more particularly, this willingnesse of the heart; you see in the life of the heart, and it containeth seven things.

First, the Inclinations of the heart.
Secondly, the intentions of the heart.
Thirdly, the Elections of the heart.
Fourthly, the Aversions of the heart.

Fifthly,

Fifthly, the Appropriating of the heart.
Sixthly, the Savourings of the heart.
Seventhly, the Caring of the heart.

Beloved, theſe are the living Acts of the heart if theſe be converted to God in you, now your hearts are alive towards him. Theſe make up the whole willingneſſe of the heart.

1. Firſt then, the Inclination of the heart; it may doe a thouſand good things, with a dead heart. But mark if your hearts be inclined towards God; then ye ſerve God with a live heart, if the Lord hath inclined your heart to him; I have inclined my heart to performe thy Statutes alwayes, even to the end, Pſal. 119.112. Hath God made you doe thus, hath he inclined your heart to his Name? Once ye were without heart, but now he hath inclined your heart to doe good, now ye find ſweet inclinations to every good duty, ye doe not goe to them as a Beare to a Stake, but now ye have an inward diſpoſition to them, he hath given you a feeling of your ſinnes and your wants, and that carries you to Prayer; a feeling of your Ignorance and forgetfulneſſe, and that carries you to Sermons, that ye may learne more of God, that ye may ſee more into your own unworthineſſe, that ye may be ſtirred up in all his wayes; ye doe not onely ſhun your own iniquities in ſome meaſure, but your heart is inclined unto it, inclined to think of God, inclined to holy talke, inclined towards them that are Godly-minded; ye had no diſpoſition to the works of God heretofore, but now the Lord hath not onely put you upon them, but inclined your heart towards them; ye feele inward impreſſions that bow you; others may be have had good talke, but you feele an unfeigned deſire to be edified, and that bowes you unto it. Others may be doe good things, but the Lord hath bent your heart to them; when you went to good duties heretofore, ye went againſt the haire, as a Stone does upwards, but now in ſome meaſure, the Lord hath put in a new nature, and ye feele an internall mover. This is Life now.

2. Secondly, the Intentions of the heart, We have a ſaying in Divinity, Voluntas ſuâ naturâ vult finem, the heart naturally wills the end. Now if God were our end, if communion with him, and ſanctifying of God in our hearts and lives, were our end, our heart could not be dead towards his wayes; nay, we ſhould be very eager after them all; all our deadneſſe comes from this, that God is onely a matter by the by, with us: But if he were our end, then we would be mainely for him, and how to approve our ſelves to him. Would we talke as we doe, if edification were our end? Would we keep ſuch company as we doe, if mutuall help towards eternall life were our end? Look what the heart does intend from day to day, the heart is very earneſt after it; therefore thoſe that intend to riſe if they can in the world, they are very earneſt in the purſuit after the ſame, flatter, fawne, pleaſe, humour, they will doe any thing to the attaining of it; if it be to ride an hundred miles, it's nothing with them; if it coſt them never ſo much. O how greedy are they! if a man intend to gather an eſtate if he can, or to live in pleaſure if he can, all the world are eager in their intentions; the heart runs naturally on after it's ends. Now when the heart is alive towards God, theſe intentions are towards him; now the heart ſtandeth thus, ſo I may obey God, ſo I may take heed of diſhonouring God, ſo I may keep my heart cloſe to him, this is that I doe deſire; now I goe to work, ſo I may keep the world from carrying away my heart, I ſhall be glad; now I am going to Prayer, ſo I may draw down a bleſſing, and get ſome farther help to walke before God, this is the thing I ayme at; now I goe to be in ſuch a company, ſo I may diſcharge a good Conſcience, carry my ſelf well, and not bring diſhonour to God, and the like; you may ſee this in Paul, what was the matter he was ſo eager to deny himſelf, I count all droſſe and dung? the intentions of his heart were after Chriſt; O ſayes he, that I might know him, Phil. 3.10.

Thirdly,

3. Thirdly, the Elections and chooſings of the heart; this is another part of the hearts life; no man is dead to that which he chooſes rather then any thing elſe; now if we did ſtill chooſe the wayes of God, we could not be dead to them; when we are dead to them at any time, it is becauſe we could even find in our heart, to make another choyce; and therefore if we would know whether our heart is alive unto goodneſſe, whether doe we chooſe the way of goodneſſe every day before any other way? As David ſayes, I have choſen the way of truth, Pſal. 119.30. As the Lord ſayes of the good Eunuches; They chooſe the things that pleaſe me, Iſa. 56.4. Beloved, what ever we doe, or think, or ſpeak, ſtill there be two wayes propounded to us, one that is Gods way, another that is our own way, now which doe we chooſe every day? what thoughts doe we chooſe rather of the two to think, what words doe we chooſe, what actions, what courſes; when we are together, what conference doe we chooſe; when alone, what doe we chooſe? there be two kinds of eating, and drinking; which chooſe we? When we are provoked, there be two wayes to take, either to be impatient, and ſuffer our paſſions to ariſe, or to quell them, and beat them down, which doe we chooſe? doe we ſay as that good man ſaid; Lord let thy hand help me, for I have choſen thy precepts? Pſal. 119.173.

4. Fourthly, the Averſions of the heart, ye know the heart it chooſes what it likes, ſo there is ſomething that it ſhuns; now if thou wouldſt know whether thy heart be alive towards God, doe but think with thy ſelf, what it uſes to ſhun when thou art angry, is it diſgrace or ſinne? it ever ſhuns ſome thing or other; either what God diſlikes, or what thou; every day and houre, ſomething it puts off; does it put off things that are offenſive to thy fleſh, or things that are offenſive to God? Here lies thy hearts life; if thy heart be alive towards God, it is of this temper, to put off thoſe things that are diſpleaſing to God; I hate vaine thoughts, ſayes David, Pſal 119.113. Mark, his heart was of this temper, to put off all thoſe things that were contrary to God; it may be many of thoſe thoughts his own heart would have rather kept, I but when his heart was alive towards God, he put them off though; I have refrained my feet from every evill way, that I may keep thy word, Pſal. 119.101. Now when good things ſhall be put to a man every day by the Word, and by Conſcience, and a man hath a refuſing heart to them, this is a dead heart; as God put to Judah to returne, but they refuſed to returne, Jer. 5.3. God put ſhame before them for their ſinnes, but they refuſed to be aſhamed, Jer 3.3. Now my brethren, examine your boſomes, how ſtand the refuſals of your hearts, doe you refuſe good or evill every day? If thou canſt refuſe temporall evill and not ſpirituall, thou haſt a dead heart.

5. Fifthly, the Savourings of the heart; this is another piece of the hearts will; ſomething there is that every heart favours moſt, and that is it which it is alive unto: now then if thy heart be alive unto God, it will favour the things of God moſt, it will not onely doe good duties, but favour them too; not onely heare the word of God, but it will have an admirable ſavour with the heart, as the Apoſtle ſayes, It will have the ſavour of life unto life, 2 Cor. 2.16. As the Church ſayes to Chriſt, Becauſe of the ſavour of thy good ointments, therefore the Virgins love thee, Cant. 1.3, O how it will ſavour a reproof, how it will reliſh! but if holy things have no ſweet ſavour in thy heart; it may be thou canſt not for ſhame of the world not ſeeme to ſtand for them, thy conſcience will not let thee, but thou wilt give them a good word, and ſeeme to approve them, but there's no more ſavour in them, then in the white of an Egge, nay, they are irkſome, and untoothſome, they doe not goe merrily down with thee, like ſweet conſerves; aſſure thy ſelfe, thy heart is a dead heart.

Sixthly, the Cares of the heart, this is another ſhew of the hearts life; what what the heart is alive to, it carketh and careth for it, and therefore if thy heart be alive towards God, how carefull will it be that it may not offend him? Yea what care, 2 Cor. 7. 11. As the Apoſtle ſayes to Titus; I will have thee affirme conſtantly, that they which believe in God, muſt be careſull to maintaine good works, Tit. 3. 8. Therefore if a Miniſter be alive towards God, he will be full of care for his people, how he may pull them from their ſins, how he may draw them to God, how he may moſt do them good, as Paul ſayes of Timoth. he will naturally care for your Eſtate, Phil. 2. 20. True, a man hath many things to do in the world, many cares how to live, how to pay rent at quarter day, what may become of his poore Children, &c. I but if the heart be alive towards God, it will labour to caſt theſe cares upon God, Caſt all your care upon him, 1 Pet. 5. 7. But for heavenly things, for the having and keeping of a good conſcience, it will be full of cares about theſe things; yea, how it may get to be more afraid of ſinne, how may I get a weaned heart from the earth? It will be caring how he may be provided for evill times, how he may ſtand in the woſull day.

7. The appropriating of the heart, the eſteeming of the heart, what's the hearts jewell, that's the heart moſt alive to; now thinke, what does thy heart prize moſt of all? if it be alive toward God, he is deareſt to thee; his will dearer then thine, his glory then thy credit, his word then thy life; as Paul ſayes, I do not count my life deare, ſo that I may finiſh my courſe with joy, Act. 20. 24. This was the Jewell of his heart, how he might do the worke that God ſet him to do, that he might finiſh his courſe; ſo likewiſe if thy heart be alive, Love will be like a precious ointment, Pſal. 133. 2. Heavenly wiſdome more precious then Rubies, Prov. 3. 15. A promiſe will be precious to the heart, 2 Pet. 1. 4. So alſo Faith will be a precious thing, 1 Pet. 1. 7. But above all CHRIST will be precious to the heart, To you that believe he is precious, 1 Pet. 2. 7. Theſe are heart-jewels; theſe it endeares moſt; it will rather part with anything then theſe; nay, it will morgage any thing to redeem theſe again. Theſe things are little eſteemed among men, in their Conſciences; indeed they ſay they are better then the whole world, I but their heart does not greatly eſteem them, nay, it ſlights them and ſeeks them accordingly; this is a dead heart. 7.

Thus ye ſee what is the life of the heart; it is the abſolute will of the heart, when the heart is inclined towards God, when it intends God, when it makes choice of his wayes, and puts off whatſoever is contrary to them, when it prizes and endeares every one of them all, when it favours them, and is full of care for them. I might adde another, the cleaving of the heart, when the heart cleaves to the Lord, as it is ſaid of Hezekiah, that he clave to the Lord, 2 King. 18. 6. When the heart cloz's in with God, and will not let him goe, no nor let his wayes goe, it ſticks to a godly courſe, all the world cannot pull him away, not fire nor faggot; though it be never ſo much hindred, and interrupted by the fleſh, yet now it hath a ſticking quality in it, as David ſayes, I have ſtuck to thy Teſtimonies, Pſal. 119. 31.

Now becauſe when the heart is made willing on this faſhion towards God, there is left ſtill an adverſe unwillingneſſe, by reaſon of the fleſh; ſo that the heart can never put forth theſe acts, without horrible clogs; therefore now in a live heart towards God, there be other acts, that are not in a heart that is alive to the world. And the reaſon is this, Becauſe when the heart is alive to the world, the heart of its own nature is willing unto that, and there is no unwillingneſſe mixed together with it; never was it heard, that the heart ſhould be willing, and unwilling to the ſame thing, till ſaving grace came to divide aſunder the will in two; ye know the regenerate are two men apiece, and they have two wills, one towards God, and another towards ſin and the world; nay, its the ſame will, that hath both theſe branches in it, and this does much puzzle the hearts, when they find such a deale of unwillingneſſe in them towards God.

Therefore I ſay there be other acts of life in the heart towards God, and they are five.

1. The firſt is the Preparing of the heart, whereby the heart prepareth it ſelfe towards God, 2 *Chron.*30.18,19. 1 *Sam.*7.3.

2. The ſecond is the Combating of the heart, *Gal.*5.17,23. ὑπωπιάζω, I beat down my body, 1 *Cor.*9.27.

3. The third is the Endeavouring of the heart, it reaches forth it ſelfe, *Phil.*3.13. It ſtirs up it ſelfe; it awakens it ſelfe; Why art thou ſo ſad, O my ſoule? *Pſal.*42.5.

4. The fourth is the binding of it ſelfe by Determinations, and purpoſes; ſo Paul bound his own heart, with a determination before he came unto Corinth, 1 *Cor.*2.2. Daniel knowing how unwilling his heart would be to abſtain from the Kings meat, though by grace he was willing; therefore his heart bound it ſelfe with a purpoſe; he purpoſed not to defile himſelfe with the Kings meat, *Dan.*1.8. ſo *Act.*11.23.

5. The fifth is the Groaning and ſighing of the heart, as David though he were willing, yet feeling the unwillingneſs of the fleſh, therewithall fetcht a groan, *O that my wayes were ſo direct, that I might keep thy ſtatutes! Pſ.*119.5. So Paul groaned earneſtly to be diſſolved, 2 *Cor.*5.2. This is the putting of the heart more forward. Theſe I have named; you may name more it may be. But thus if the heart be alive towards God, it will doe: becauſe it feels a great deale of unwillingneſs, it gets what advantage it can of it ſelf, to make it ſelf willing; as the Church, ere ever it was aware, My ſoule made me like the Chariots of Amminadab, Cant.6.12. It ſets it ſelf right; as the ſoule when it's dead, it neglecteth this act quite and clean from day to day, as the Pſalmiſt ſayes of dull Iſrael, he calls them a generation, that ſet not their heart aright, *Pſal.*78.8.

The next thing to be enquired about is the Conſcience, what is the life of the conſcience: and here the world is deceived too: for the conſcience may be awakened very much, and yet never quickned indeed. Firſt, a conſcience awakened, may like all good things. Secondly, a conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may oblige a man to all manner of good things. Thirdly, a conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may be troubled about his ſins. Fourthly, a conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may urge one exceedingly to good things. Fifthly, a conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may be very eager in this urging. Sixtly, a conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may prevaile very far with its eagerneſſe. Seventhly, a conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may make one look at God, ſo far as it prevailes; all this may be in Conſcience, and yet the Conſcience never quickned indeed, ſo that you ſee what need there is to enquire what the life of Conſcience is.

1. Firſt, I ſay, the Conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may like of God, and all his wayes; it may like of Gods judgements, be they never ſo terrible; as we ſee there in Pharaoh, when God plagued Ægypt; his conſcience liked of Gods dealings, he thought in his conſcience the Lord dealt righteouſly with him. The Lord is righteous, ſayes he, and I and my people are wicked, *Exod.*9.27. So when Rehoboam was horribly beſet with enemies, his conſcience juſtified God, O he deales very rightly with me. The Lord is righteous, 2 *Chron.*12.6. So Adonibezek, when the Lord brought that lamentable judgement on his head, his conſcience like't of Gods doings; as I have done, ſo God hath done to me, ſo again the conſcience awakened may like of Gods commandements; as Moſes tels Iſrael, that God gave them no other Commandements but ſuch as were right, and wiſe, and good in the ſight of the Heathen, *Deuteron.*4.6,7,8. That is, they were ſuch Commandements, that the Heathens thought in their conſcience were good. Againe, the conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may like of Gods people, that walk according to hoſe Laws and Commandements; you may ſee this in Balaam, O that I might die the death of the righteous! Num. 23. 10. His conſcience lik'd of their courſes; ſo Sauls conſcience did approve Davids courſes, Thou art more righteous then I, 1 Sam. 24. 17. A conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may like of the beſt preaching, and the ſtricteſt Preachers; Never man ſpake like this man: O how mightily they lik'd him! Herod lik'd John admirably, he was glad for to heare him; profane Iſrael did wonderfully like the Sacrament of Gods preſence; when the Ark of God came into the Camp, they ſhouted with a great ſhout, that the earth rang again, 1 Sam 4. 5. Now when a carnall man perceives this work to be in him, he is apt to conceive, this is true grace of life. Beloved, you ſee this is very falſe, Thou mayſt like of Gods dealings with thee, yea, thou mayſt think in thy conſcience, he deales very rightly with thee, though it be never ſo bitter; thou mayſt think in thy conſcience, his Commandements are good, though they be never ſo ſtrict; thy conſcience may like his Miniſters, and like his Precepts, and like his Ordinances, and his Sacraments, and yet be a dead conſcience.

Gods

2. Secondly, a Conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may oblige a man to all manner of good things; it may lay the Commandements of God to his charge. Conſcience may make him ſay not onely that the Commandements are good, but that it is his duty to doe them; we ſee this by experience in many carnall people; tell them of any Commandement, what is their anſwer? Oh you ſay well, I confeſſe it is my duty; every Drunkard will ſay thus, yea it is my duty never to be drunken; the Swearer will ſay thus, you ſay right, it is very true, I confeſſe I ſhould not take Gods name in vain; and therefore they are ſaid to be under the Law, Rom. 3. 19. That is, they are bound in conſcience to the Law; their conſcience tels them they ought to doe it, their conſcience layes it on them as a bond; as the mad Prophet ſaid, Muſt I not take heed to ſpeak what God bids me ſpeak? Num. 23. 12. Conſcience laid a muſt upon his ſoule. And this is the reaſon, why a naughty heart will put off a commandement of God, if he can, when he ſees it goes againſt his profit, or his eaſe, or his credit, for he knows if he yeeld it to be a commandement of God, his conſcience will come over him and ſay, why then ye muſt doe it; as we read of the Prieſts and the Elders, they would not yeeld that Johns Baptiſme was from heaven, O if we ſhould yeeld that, why then, Chriſt will ſay, Why do ye not believe? Mat. 21. 25. Mark, the conſcience comes over a man in all that he knows God hath commanded, and it layes it to his charge; and you muſt doe this, and you muſt doe that, this is your duty; now when men ſee this, they are apt to conclude that their conſcience is alive; they think this is the life of their conſcience to lay Gods commandements to their charge. Alas brethren, the conſcience may be dead for all this, you ſee this in people that are dead in treſpaſſes and ſins. All that the Lord ſpeaks, that muſt I doe, Num. 23. 26. It was the ſpeech of a very wretch: thou mayſt have this principle in thy Conſcience, all that the Lord bids me, that muſt I doe; and yet be a dead man. O how does this beguile people, becauſe they feele ſuch a principle in their conſcience adayes! O thinks one, all that the Lord bids me, that muſt I doe: when people feel ſuch a principle as this, they think they are well; now if they doe offend at any time, they hold it to be but their infirmity, and there's an end. But this is very falſe; the conſcience may have this principle in it and be dead.

3. Thirdly, a Conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may be troubled about his ſins; he may be troubled before he commits, he may be very loth to commit them, as we ſee there in Herod when he was betrayed his raſh Oath, and he was now tempted to behead John the Baptiſt, his Conſcience made him very loath to do it; the Text ſayes, He was exceeding ſorrowfull, Mark. 6. 26. And the context ſhewes it was meerly, becauſe he thought in his Conſcience, he ſhould do very ill to behead ſo good a man, and therefore he was very loath; he was troubled in conſcience about it; ſo was Darius, when the Princes had wound him to caſt Daniel into the Lions Den, he was moved and troubled in Conſcience about it, he was very loath to doe it, he ſought a good while how to put off the temptation by getting away, how to avoid this great ſin, Dan. 6.14. So was Pilat troubled in Conſcience about the condemning of Chriſt, he went to it with a heavy heart; and as a Conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may be troubled before the committing of ſin, ſo it may be troubled in the committing of it. An example of this we have in Saul, when he committed that ſin, in ſacrificing before Samuel came, he was troubled in Conſcience in the very act. I forced my ſelfe, and offered a burnt offering. 1 Sam. 13.12. Mark, he did not commit the ſin hand ſmooth, as ſome doe, but he felt a reluctancy againſt it. Again, a Conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may be troubled exceedingly after committing of ſin; when Judas had betrayed our Saviour, you ſee how his conſcience was troubled after he had done; O ſayes he, I have ſinned, in betraying innocent blood, Mat. 27.4. Eſpecially at the hearing of a ſearching Sermon, or at a Faſt alſo, then the conſcience if it be onely awakened a little, will be troubled exceedingly for his ſins; when Samuel kept a Faſt there at Mizpah, the Text ſhews how they were ſmitten in conſcience for their ſins, in ſo much that th ey cryed out in the open congregation, We have ſinned againſt the Lord, 1 Sam. 7. 6. And yet many of theſe very men, by and by ſhewed the rottenneſſe of their hearts: ſo that this is another gull, when men feele a lothneſſe in them to commit ſinne, trouble of conſcience before, and at, and after, they think this is true Grace doubtleſſe; doubtleſſe their conſcience hath life.

4. Fourthly, Conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may urge one to good things, and no queſtion but many of you that are yet in your ſinnes have found this to be true, how often have your conſciences urged you to give over your ſinnes? To look after the getting of Chriſt, to lead a godly life? How many heaves have your conſciences given at you? To hoyſe you up out of the ſtate ye wallow in, to make you more earneſt for heaven; more ſtrict in your walking, to provide for your latter end? When ye are at Prayer, how often does it urge you to dwell longer at it? As it is ſaid of Doeg, he was detained before the Lord, 1 Sam. 21.7. He was held there, he would have gone away before, but he was held; now, what ſhould that be but his Conſcience? His conſcience urged him to ſtay long; ſo your conſciences urge you to be more attentive in hearing, more mindfull of preaching, more humble in your minds, leſſe worldly, more heavenly; you may think this is a lively conſcience; no, no, it is not; the truth is, the more your conſciences doe urge you adayes, the greater is your ſin, if ye yeeld not. But this is ſo far from life, that it argues you to be the more dead, if ye doe not obey. An urging conſcience is a great bleſſing, if men have eyes to ſee what the Lord does for them, to deliver their ſoules from the pit. This is the taking of men by the ſhoulders; now if thou pull away thy ſhoulder. They refuſed to hearken, and pulled away their ſhoulder, Zach. 7. 11. That is, the Lord ſet Conſcience upon them, and urged them to obey, as if a man ſhould take another by the ſhoulder, to drag him and hale him, and yet he would not. So when Paul ſpake to Agrippa, he felt an urging in his conſcience, O let me be a Chriſtian, and he confeſt as much too, Paul, almoſt thou perſwadeſt me to be a Chriſtian; it was almoſt done; he had a great heave; he was urged. But it would not do, ſo that this is no argument of life neither.

5. Fifthly, Conſcience ſomewhat awakened may be very eager in urging, it may be very importunate, every day digging in his ſides, every day whiſpering in his boſome; O thinke of God, O conſider thy ſoule, O Remember death; Conſcience may be earneſt and wonderfull eager with a man, O do not live as thou doeſt, O be not ſo careleſſe of God; what wilt thou dye and be damned? Wilt thou to hell? Wilt thou never have done? Away with thy ſinneſull courſes; away with thy dreamings; O beſtirre thy ſelfe; or thou wilt periſh; ſuch a conſcience had Pilate about Chriſt, it was eager with him not to condemne him. This Conſcience is an admirable bleſſing; and wo be to thoſe that ſtand out againſt it; it is like Iacob with the Angell, He would not let the Angell go till he bleſt him, Gen. 32. 26. Like the man that was importunate with his friend, and knockt, and knockt, and would have no nay, Luk 11. 8. I am in bed; never tell me of your being in bed; I pray let me have three loaves; my children are in bed, I pray trouble me not; that is all one, ſtill he knocks, he will have him up; So when Conſcience is thus awakened and is importunate, and will not be anſwered, &c. Many a wretch hath ſuch an impudent conſcience as this. But this is ſo farre from an argument of life; as that it is a ſigne of a greater death.

be

Sixthly, Conſcience ſomewhat awakened may prevaile very farre by its eagerneſſe; It made the King of Iury do many things; It made the Heathens do the things contained in the Law, Rom. 2. 14, 15. When the Phariſees came to tempt Chriſt, with the woman taken in adultery, Conſcience made them ceaſe, and go out, one by one, Joh 8. 9 It made Paul live ſo unblameably as he did; Ye know concerning the righteouſneſſe that is in the Law, he was blameleſs, Phil. 3. 6. Now if ye look into the 23. of the Acts and the firſt, you ſhall ſee it was his Conſcience that made him doe ſo; Men and Brethren, I have lived in all good conſcience before God to this day; as ſince his Converſion, his ſanctified conſcience made him live godlily in Chriſt, ſo before his converſion his naturall conſcience holpen by good education made him live unblameably: ſo that, what with the one, and what with the other, he could ſay he had lived in a good conſcience to that day; that is, either morally good, or ſpiritually good: and therefore it was Conſcience that made him doe all that he did. People think, I indeed, if they did good duties for outward by-reſpects, then they ſhould thinke they were unſound, but conſcience ſets them a worke, and therefore they gather, they are ſound and alive towards God; no beloved, Conſcience may make a carnall man goe againſt all outward by-reſpects, and do very good duties. This we ſee in Balaam, he went againſt all outward ſelfe-reſpects, and followed Conſcience; for a houſe full of Silver or Gold, he would not goe beyond the word of the Lord to doe leſſe or more, Numb. 22. 18. So Iudas went againſt his credit, and his profit, and all; ye know, when his conſcience told him the money was unjuſtly taken, he went and threw it downe: ſo did Michah, the man was an Idolater, and had ſtollen eleven hundred pieces of Silver from his Maſter, yet when he heard his mother curſe, he reſtored all againe. O thought he, what ſhall I heare my mother curſe? his conſcience roſe up againſt that, and made him make reſtitution. Why do carnall men pray in ſecret? no queſtion but it is Conſcience that makes them; may be when they are tempted to a ſinne in ſecret, they will not do it, and it is the Conſcience that with-holds them; in this ſenſe they do good duties out of conſcience; now is this Conſcience alive? No, it does not follow, ye ſee this may be in naturall men and women. 6.

Seventhly, Conſcience ſomewhat awakened, may make one look at God ſo farre as it prevailes; you may ſee this in Laban. The man was a wicked man; yet he lookt at God in not hurting of Iacob; though it were in the choyce of his hand, yet he would not hurt Iacob; and he lookt at God in the thing. O ſayes his conſcience, the God of your Father ſpake to me yeſternight, Gen. 31. 29 He abſtained from hurting of Iacob, and he lookt at God in the abſtaining from it. Becauſe God had forbidden him, therefore he will not hurt him; ſo it was with King Cyrus, he was a naturall man too, yet when he took order for the building of the Temple at Ieruſalem, his conſcience made him look at God in the thing. O ſayes he, the Lord God of Heaven and earth 7.

hath charged me to build him an house, Ezra. 1.2. So when Iehu destroyed Ahabs house, and Baals Priests, he himselfe sayes how he lookt at God in the thing; come see how zealous I am for the Lord of Hoasts; so when the Philistines sent home the Arke of the Lord, they would send it home honourably, with a very rich present, and the Text sayes, how they lookt at Gods glory in the thing. O say they, let us give glory to the Lord God of Israel, 1 Sam 6. 5. Thus you see how the world are deceived about the life of the Conscience; when people have these operations of conscience within them, they think their conscience is alive and good towards God.

Now that these cannot be the life of Conscience, I prove it.

1. First, because all may be in naturall men, as ye have heard in Laban, in Pharaoh, in Balaam, in Micah, in Saul, in Darius, in Judas, which were dead in trespasses and sins; what life can be in a dead man? It is very true, the Conscience is least dead of all the powers of the soule; the Pelagians say, the Wil is a pure virgin, that's as false as the Devil is false; if any faculty be a pure Virgin, it's the conscience; all the religion that is left in a naturall man, God hath planted there: There's the effect of the Law there, Rom. 2.15. The whole nature of man is like a Countrey taken by the Enemy, except one little Fort; may be that's batter'd too, but it is not quite taken; so is the Conscience, after the whole man is quite vanquish't by sinne, except onely that, and that's batter'd too in a wofull manner. But it is not quite taken, the Lord will ever keepe a part in that, to have the man at controll when he pleases, and as farre as he pleases: But yet it is so farre taken too, that there is no spirituall life left at all in it; man is dead in trespasses and sins, and so is the conscience too.

2. Secondly, the Conscience notwithstanding all these may be deader then ever it was. I confesse these are flashes of life, that God sparkles into mens consciences, but they use to goe out againe, and leave the conscience as dead, and deader then ever before they came; we see it in Pharaoh, that hardened his heart worse afterwards, Exod. 9. 34. So did Balaam, though his conscience were so quick for a spurt, yet within a-while, he could goe, and lay a stumbling block before the Children of Israel, to make them sin, Rev. 2. 14. And we see it to this very day, many smitten in Conscience for a time, afterwards their smitings cease, and they grow more stiffe then ever they were; like water that hath been heated, it freezes afterwards the more.

3. Thirdly, the Conscience notwithstanding all these is soon pleased; though it seeme to be eager, and earnest, and zealous for God, yet any little thing will content it; if it were alive nothing would content it, but meerly indeed the favour of God, the Image of God, sincere conforming to God. But this conscience is soone pleased againe; it is but angry a while, if but halfe the Lords due be brought in, this Conscience is satisfied; Like the unjust Steward, that set downe fifty for an hundred, Luk. 16.6. When the man goes on praying, and doing good duties, may be, the conscience is whist, though it be but a forme; when he hath reformed a little, conscience thinkes it hath enough; we may see this in Balaam; when he had found that worke of Conscience, that he could deny Balac's house full of Silver and Gold, to stand for God, presently he concluded that God was his God; If Balac would give me his house full of Silver and Gold, I cannot go beyond the word of the Lord my God, Num. 22.18. Like the wretched Jewes, they brought God, the blind and the lame, and the torne, and the sicke, and then they thought much that they should be called despisers of God, Mal. 1.6,7,8 Saul was commanded to destroy all the Amalekites, now though he spared some, his conscience was content. I have done the will of the Lord, sayes he; such a conscience as this is soone pleased, like little Children, it cryes, it takes on, it sets up its Pipes, but a little thing stills it; may be a Rattle, or an Apple, or a Brasse Counter; so my Brethren though a mans conſcience be thus as ye have heard, yet it is a very childe, it will be ſoone ſtilled; let him but bestir himſelf a little towards God, and go on in a pretty handſome way, this conſcience will quickly ſay it's well.

my

Fourthly, the Conſcience that hath but theſe ſtirrings, is ſo farre from being alive, that many times it will be a help unto ones luſts, which if it were alive it could not be. But thus it is though, when theſe works are reall, it will ſerve to help a mans luſts, when a mans luſts would faine have ſomething or other done, then ſteps in thy Conſcience, and will help the lame dogge over the ſtile; as we ſay Herod had a luſt to make away Iohn the Baptiſt, O but he's a good man ſayes his Conſcience, and thou muſt not cut off his head, Mark. 6. no. O but he was urged now to do it, by Herodias her daughter; and he had ſworne to grant her hearts requeſt; now ſee how his Conſcience helpt him to do it. Thou haſt ſworne an Oath, and thou muſt make conſcience of that; therefore cut off his head. So it was with the Jewes, when they have a luſt to crucifie Chriſt, their conſcience found out a trick for it, We have a Law, ſay they, and by our Law he ſhould dye, becauſe he made himſelfe the Sonne of God, John 19.7. Mark, they made it matter of Conſcience; what they murder Chriſt? They put him to death unjuſtly? No, God forbid, we have a Law, and are bound in Conſcience to keepe it. So when a man hath a luſt, as to weare long haire; by and by he makes it a matter of conſcience to weare it; forſooth his head will ake; and he is bound in Conſcience to have a care of that; ſo if a man have a luſt of Covetouſneſſe, and not to give where is need; forſooth his conſcience findes a place in the Apoſtle to help it. He is worſe then an Infidell, that provides not for his owne; and ſo he will make conſcience of that; ſo when a man hath wronged him, he hath a luſt of revenge, anon he findes out a trick, O it may tend to the diſhonour of the Goſpell; if he put it up: the matter is not ſo, but he is willing to thinke ſo; and he will make conſcience of that; is he revengefull now? No God forbid. It was a diſgrace to Religion, and he did it out of conſcience of that. Thus men will have what luſt they pleaſe, they can finde ſome Text or other, which they wreſt to make Conſcience of that; O how common is this. 4.

Fifthly, this Conſcience is not univerſall, it cuts out onely ſome particular ſinnes to be violent againſt, and lets alone others may be as bad, like Ahab for the Vineyard; and let his Baaliſm alone; or if the Conſcience be againſt all manner of ſins, it is but in a fume, Cito red bit in gratiam. They are but like new Wine, in old Bottles; at laſt the Bottles breake and the Wine is all ſpilt; ſo all theſe works in an awakened conſcience, are only then while the conſcience cannot ſleepe. But when it can fall a ſleepe again, then the man can be quiet again; the conſcience is an old conſcience and not renewed, and therefore it is not able to hold them; well then, ye ſee theſe are not Conſcience's life. 5.

You will ſay then, what is conſcience's life? When is the conſcience ſaid truly to be quickened? For the opening of this, ye muſt know there be two lives of Conſcience in a godly man.

The firſt is a relative life; whereby it's alive, when the man is alive. The ſecond is a ſimple life. The firſt, I ſay, is a relative life, whereby it is ſaid to be alive, when the man whoſe it is, is alive; for conſcience is the reflection of the ſoule, the ſoules privity to it ſelfe, between God and it ſelfe. And therefore if the ſoule be alive towards God, then the conſcience is alive too; as the Apoſtle ſayes; How much more ſhall the blood of Ieſus Chriſt, who through the eternall ſpirit offered himſelfe without ſpot to God, purge your Conſcience from dead works to ſerve the living God, Heb. 9.14. Marke when a mans dead works are purged away, the conſcience is alive, when a mans ſelf is alive, and his works works are alive, the conſcience is alive alſo; as we ſay of the goodneſſe of Conſcience, ſo it is with the life of Conſcience; though the Conſcience be never ſo good in it ſelf, yet as long as the man is not good, his Conſcience can never be good; Conſcience is ſaid to be good, as a Meſſenger is ſaid to be good; namely, when he bringeth good tidings; as David ſaid of Ahimaaz, he is a good man, and he bringeth good tidings, 1 Sam. 18.27. Though a Meſſenger be nere ſo good a man, yet if he do not bring good tidings, we ſay he's an ill Meſſenger. He ſent evill Angels among them, Pſal. 78.49. Calvin thinks it may be meant of good Angels, yet ſaid to be evill Angels, becauſe they brought evill upon Ægypt; ſo that's a good Conſcience that bringeth good tidings to a man; that he does believe, that he is in Chriſt, that he is a good man. True, a wicked mans conſcience may report well of him, as Abſolon did of the people, O your matters are good, ſayes he, when they were ſtark naught; So thy conſcience may flatter thee, and ſay thy matters are good, when Conſcience can ſay truly, thy matters are not good. The conſcience is like a Regiſter or a Bill; now when it is a Bill of good Items; when all thy ſinnes are blotted out, and good things are written in; now it's a good Conſcience; ye know we call it a foule Bill, that hath foule crimes written in it; though the Bill be never ſo faire written, yet if it have foule crimes written in it, it's a foule Bill. Item, this man ſtole a Horſe. Item, he broke into ſuch a mans houſe. Item, he murdered ſuch a man; when ſuch a Bill as this comes in at the Aſſizes againſt a poore Priſoner, this is a black Bill; this is a foule Bill; ſo as long as thy Conſcience is a foule Bill. Item, I was borne in ſinne. Item, I have lived very looſely. Item, I have heard ſo many Sermons, and yet I have beene nere the better. Item, I have been at ſo many Sacraments, and yet I have gone on in my vile courſes, thy Conſcience is a foule Bill; this is a foule Conſcience; as the Apoſtle ſayes, a defiled Conſcience, Tit. 1.15. Now when the Conſcience is cleane, then it's a good Conſcience; ſo I may ſay of a lively Conſcience; the Conſcience is alive, when the man is alive; when his mind is quickened up towards God, and his heart which before was dead in treſpaſſes and ſinnes, now it's alive towards God; this mans conſcience is alive. The reaſon is, becauſe now his conſcience may ſay, I am alive; for Conſcience is the reflection of the ſoul on it ſelfe, and therefore if thou beeſt alive thy ſelf, thy conſcience is alive too: This is the firſt life; the relative life of conſcience, or its Teſtimoniall life.

This is called other-where the Teſtimoniall life of Conſcience.

Now that this is one life of Conſcience, is plaine, becauſe if a mans ſelfe be dead, Conſcience will ſay, I am dead; as Paul ſayes, ſpeaking of him and the Epheſians before their converſion; O ſayes he, ye were dead in ſins, Epheſ. 2.5. Look what a man is if the Conſcience be inlightned, it takes it on it ſelf; when David had ſinned, I have ſinned, ſayes his Conſcience. So let a man be holy, the conſcience preſently takes it upon it ſelf; as we ſee there in David, when he was holy; I am holy, ſayes his Conſcience, Lord preſerve my ſoule, for I am holy, Pſal. 86.2. So that if thou beeſt dead, thy conſcience is dead; if thou beeſt alive, thy conſcience is alive. But I let this paſſe.

I come now to the ſecond life of Conſcience, and that is, its ſimple life, Conſcience hath another life of its owne; for as when the man is alive, the conſcience is alive, ſo the conſcience is quickned up to doe its duty, when it quickens up the whole man to doe his, as the conſcience of the good people that offered to the Tabernacle was a quick conſcience: their conſcience was quick to doe its duty, becauſe it quickned them up to doe theirs; Their heart made them willing, Exod. 35 29. That is, their Conſcience made them willing. Though the Conſcience be never ſo eager, that is not it; it never does its duty with life, till it make thee to doe thy duty with life. The conſcience of the godly may be is not ſo eager, neither does it keep ſuch a do, as many a wicked mans Conſcience. The more eager Conſcience is faine to be, it's a ſigne the man is the more dead; when the man is alive, his Conſcience ſtirres him with more eaſe; like a man that is willing to pay his debts, the creditor need no more then aske; whereas if the debtor be a very ſlye fellow, there needs the more bawling; ſo that if thou wouldſt know whether thy conſcience be quick; the queſtion is not whether it be eager or no, but whether does it quicken thee up to thy duty or no.

man

This then is the life of conſcience, when it makes a man do his duty ſincerely both towards God and man; when it makes a man believe with all his heart, when it makes him love God with all his ſoule, and minde to ſerve him in truth, to do his whole will, to humble himſelfe ſoundly before God for all his ſinnes, to make his peace with God, daily to pleaſe him and to walke before him in newneſſe of life. This is a living conſcience, This conſcience hath the grace of life in it; whether it do it by eagerneſſe or not, whether with a horrible ſtir and a great pudder or no; that is not it, if it make a man do his duty aright, then conſcience does its duty, this is conſcience's life. And firſt in regard of ſin.

Firſt, when the conſcience does not only check, but it checks to ſome purpoſe, when it ſmites ſo that all the ſoule feeles it, and lies down under it, when the conſcience does not only do its duty in this thing, but it makes a man to do his, it makes him ſmite himſelfe as the Publican did, He ſmote upon his breaſt, Luk. 18. 13. As Ephraim did, I ſmote upon my thigh, Jer. 31. 19. When a man is made to check himſelf, what have I done? Jer. 8. 6. When David numbred the people, the Text ſhewes how his conſcience was quick, his heart ſmote him, 2 Sam. 24. 10. Dull checks there may be in a wicked heart, yea, mighty checks, and mighty ſmittings, yea, greater for quantity then in any Childe of God, but all to little or no purpoſe; Davids Conſcience ſmote him to purpoſe you ſee there, it made him do his duty indeed, it was a Divine check, it was a check that put him into a right way again. So except thy Conſcience thus check thee adayes, may be thou forgetteſt thy ſelfe now and then, and then thy conſcience gives thee a check, O what a beaſt am I! & ſo ſets thee to rights againe; ſometimes thou art overtaken in paſſion, but then comes conſcience, and tels thee what God ſayes, O why do I give place to the Devill? and then thy paſſions go down againe. This is Gods Bit, that he guides his people by, as the Rider does his beaſt with a Bridle. The wicked are like your ſturdy horſes, that get their Bridle in their Teeth, God may pull hard at them, give them fiercer twitches, then he does his own Children, but they get the Bridle in their Teeth, and ſo they are unrulier: But when it is Gods Bridle to lead a man by, now his conſcience is alive, when it checks to purpoſe. 1.

Secondly, when it does not only accuſe for ſin (ſo a naturall Conſcience may do) but it pulls a man down before God; and makes him cite himſelf effectually before his Tribunall. I make this a different work; for the accuſation of conſcience differs from its checking; the check is a ſpiritual laſh the conſcience gives the ſoul; now the accuſation gives the reaſon of its laſhing, O thou haſt ſinned againſt God; ye know this is a duty of conſcience too in regard of ſin, to accuſe. And then conſcience is alive, when it does this duty to purpoſe, to make a man to do his; namely to go and Confeſſe his ſin in a penitent manner. True, a wicked mans Conſcience does accuſe, but that drives a man from God; as it's ſaid of the Scribes and the Phariſees, When their Conſciences accuſed them, they went out, John 8. 9. But when Conſcience is alive, it accuſes before God, it cites a man ſoundly before God, and what a vile wretch am I! it ſo does its duty in accuſing, that it makes a man to do his, freely to accuſe himſelfe, The juſt man firſt accuſeth himſelfe, Prov. 18. 17. So it is in the Greek and the Latine. Haſt thou ſuch a Conſcience as this? This is a lively Conſcience; when thy Conſcience does not only do its duty to accuſe thee for every ſinne that thou doſt, but it makes thee to 2.

do thine, freely to accuse thy self before God; a wicked conscience may accuse, I, but it does not make the man to do his duty; he does not freely accuse himselfe, it is only forced in him, it is with Coaction and Compulsion. But its free in Gods Children; when Daniel went to confesse his sinnes before God, the text sayes, he set himself to do it; I set my face unto the Lord God, Dan. 9. 3. That is, his conscience did not only do its duty in this thing, but it made him to do his.

3. Thirdly, when it does not only Condemne one for sinne; for so the wicked have condemning consciences, as the Apostles sayes; If our heart condemne us 1 John 3.20. That is, if we be wicked, as Paul sayes; Knowing that he that is such, is subverted and sinneth, being condemned of himselfe, Tit. 3.11. That is, he is a very wicked Creature; so that a wicked mans conscience does Condemne. But I meane when the Conscience does not only condemne one for sinne, it does not only do its own duty in this thing, but it makes the man to do his; it makes him trample upon himselfe; as a damned wretch in himselfe, to save God a labour, as the Apostle speakes, if we would judge our selves, we should not be judged, 1 Cor. 11.31. When Conscience makes a man freely to accept of damnation; Then shalt accept of thy punishment, then I will remember my Covenant, Levit. 26.41.42. When it makes thee lay thy Neck on the block; Lord the worst place in hell is too good for me: I have often told you a story in the Acts and monuments of the Church; when Edward the first, one of the Kings of England was a hunting and one of the standers by had displeased him, the King rid after him with a drawne sword for to stab him, the man run away for his life; the King rid over hedge and ditch to over take him, and when he man saw he had no way to escape, he fell downe, and held up his throat to the King saying if it please your Majesty here is my throat; The King melting towards him, shewed him mercy. So when conscience makes thee say, Lord, here is my throat, here is my soule, if it please thee thou maist send Satan to take it, and carry it to hell with him. Thou hast no way to escape, therefore offer thy selfe unto God; may be thy Conscience does condemne thee; alas that is not it, thy conscience does not its duty with any life, till it make the do thine; doest thou freely Condemne thy selfe; accept of thy punishment, lay thy head on the block, does thy soule lye groveling before God? This is a live conscience.

4. Fourthly, when it does not only pull a man from sinne and Iniquity; so it may do with the wicked and the ungodly; they feele many pulls every day, and may be their Conscience makes them leave many particular sinnes, though that's very rare as the times now be; but when the conscience pulles a man forth of every knowne sinne, when it so does its duty in this kind, that it makes thee to do thine; when thou pulleſt thy selfe with all detestation and loathing, out of pride, out of security, out of unbelief, out of hardnesse of heart, out of formality and all; this is a lively conscience; as Job sayes, My heart shall not reproach me so long as I live, Job 27. That is; as my heart does its duty towards me, so it shall make me do mine; I will yeeld to mine owne conscience in every thing; whatsoever sinne it tels me off, I will be sure to set my selfe against it; it shall not lie heaving at me, and I never stirre; then it would reproach me: but it shall never reproach me so long as I live. These are the lively acts of conscience about sinne.

The lively effects whereof are foure.

1. The first, is a penitent shame, that ever a man should sinne against God; when conscience does thus as ye have heard, then it produces this effect, that the man is ashamed before God; as the Apostle sayes, what fruit have you of those things whereof ye are now ashamed? Rom. 6.21. People are apt to be ashamed befor men; Diodorus Cronus, when Stilpo askt him a rediculous question, & he could not answer him, he was so ashamed, that he fell down stark dead, he he thought it was ſuch a diſgrace to be non-plüſt. But if Conſcience were alive, and did doe its duty indeed, it would make us aſhamed for our ſins before God. Ezra was aſhamed before God for the ſins of the people, I bluſh, ſayes he, to lift up mine eyes unto thee. When a man is ignorant of God in Jeſus Chriſt, this would be a ſhame, I ſpeak this to your ſhame, 1 *Cor.*15.34. That is, if there be any grace in your hearts, certainly ye will be aſhamed that ye ſhould have no more knowledge of God. I ſay, when the Conſcience is alive againſt ſin; it makes a man aſhamed before God; it ſhews him his nakedneſſe before heaven, it propounds God before his eyes, ſeeing all his uncleanneſſe, and ſo it makes him aſhamed before him. Doſt thou count it a diſgrace to doe evill, a diſgrace to offend GOD, a confuſion of face to doe iniqüity, though it be never ſo ſecret? Canſt thou not looke upon thy unworthy dealings with God, but it makes thee aſhamed in his ſight? This is the effect of a living Conſcience.

Secondly, another effect is penitent griefe and compunction of heart: ye may ſee this effect in the new Converts, they were prickt in their hearts, Act 2. 37. When their conſcience began to be alive, to ſmite them for their ſins, to accuſe them and condemne them, it grieved them exceedingly, it went to the quick, it was like a Dagger in their heart, it prickt them, it made them mourn for all that they had done. True, a naturall conſcience produces griefe, there's ne'r a wretch, but if his conſcience be awakened to check him, and accuſe him, and condemne him, it will make him to grieve for his ſins. But this is onely legall and ſurly. Now when the Conſcience is alive to doe its duty, as to make the man to doe his, now it makes him grieve out of love to God, out of love to grace and goodneſs; now he grieves becauſe he hath broken thoſe Commandements that he loves; he loves to obey God, O it is the unfeigned deſire of his ſoule to obey him, and therefore he grieves that he hath done the contrary. 2.

Thirdly, another effect is Penitent feare. It makes a man afraid to ſin againſt God againe, as the Apoſtle ſayes, Yea, what feare? 2 *Cor.*7.1. A naturall conſcience may cauſe a kind of feare too, nay, a horrible feare. *The ſinners in Zion are afraid, fearfulneſſe hath ſurprized the Hypocrites, &c. Iſa.*33.14. For a guilty conſcience cannot but work feares when its awakened, but this feare is meerly out of ſelf-love, and of bondage. But when the Conſcience hath done ſo its owne duty upon a man, that it hath made him to doe his, now it makes him filially afraid to ſin againſt God; as a true child feares to offend his Father: When a man hath this feare in him; this is a ſigne of a living Conſcience. 3.

Fourthly, another effect is Trembling deſpaire in ones ſelfe, it makes him ſee nothing but hell and damnation in himſelf; and it flings him down at Gods gate, as a man utterly undone in himſelf, having no hope in himſelf, for as God dealt with Paul, in regard of his recovery out of ſickneſſe, he brought him to deſpair of life in himſelf, 2 *Cor.*1.8. So does a living conſcience in regard of mercy, a naturall conſcience the effect of that, is to deſpair too. But that is to deſpair in God; becauſe when there is nothing but nature in the conſcience, how can it be otherwiſe? But when there is grace in the conſcience, grace in the heart, now though Conſcience repreſent to his damned eſtate, it repreſents withall the free grace of God in Jeſus Chriſt to all ſuch as are heavy laden, and ſo it is onely deſpair in himſelf; now haſt thou ſuch an effect in thee, to deſpair in thy ſelf, to fling off all thine own hopes, and thy own dependances, hangings, holdings; ye know the ſoul hath a thouſand thouſand ſuch, wiſhes, wouldings, purpoſes, duties, performances, theſe the ſoul hangs on. But now haſt thou this effect in thee, that thou doſt abſolutely deſpair in thy ſelfe? I mean ſelf-confidence with whatſoever good is in thee, be it grace, or whatever; doſt thou deſpaire in thy ſelfe? This is a ſigne of a living conſcience; now thou hang'ſt upon nothing, but the meere mercy and good will 4.

of God. And this is the beſt hold in the world, though the world cannot abide it. Thus ye ſee for ſin; The livingneſſe of conſcience in regard of ſin.

Secondly, now for the livingneſſe of conſcience in regard of good. Then is the conſcience alive to that which is good,

1. Firſt, when it goes and it does not onely urge a man to that which is good, ſo it did Agrippa; Almoſt thou perſwadeſt me to be a Chriſtian, Act. 28.28. When Paul ſpake unto him, it ſeems his conſcience took hold of Pauls words, and it did mightily urge; it had almoſt done the deed; alas this is not it: a dead conſcience may doe this, yea, with admirable importunity; as it is in many. But when the conſcience doth not onely urge, when that does not onely doe its duty in this point, but it makes a man doe his duty too; the man freely urges himſelfe, and freely ſets himſelfe to it and about it: as it was with David, When thou ſayeſt, Seek ye my face, my heart ſaid unto thee, Thy face Lord will I ſeek, Pſal. 27.8. That is, when thou ſayeſt thus in my conſcience, ſeek my face, my heart ecchoed back, I will do ſo indeed: Mark, his conſcience did not onely doe its duty, but it made him to doe his; as his conſcience did urge him, ſo he took theſe urgings, and urged himſelfe.

2. Secondly, when the Conſcience hath life towards good, it excuſes, and it does not onely excuſe in part, for ſo it may do in a wicked heart; many a wicked man hath ſuch an excuſing Conſcience, when he does good for the matter of it, as we read in the Heathen, Rom. 2.15. Their Conſciences accuſing; their Conſcience did excuſe in part. But it excuſes full out; it tels him, he hath done it unfeignedly in the troth of his heart, that he does beleeve in God, that he does truly repent from dead workes, that he does in ſome poor meaſure, walke in new obedience from day to day; and that he ſtands guiltleſſe before God, by faith in Jeſus Chriſt: or if it do not excuſe thus, it is meerly out of Ignorance of the thing given him of God; a living Conſcience is an excuſing Conſcience; it does not onely ſay the thing that he does is good, but that he does it unfeignedly with all his heart; true, a naturall Conſcience not awakened may do thus, but that's a miſpriſion; for when it comes to ſee its own condition indeed, then it will be in another tale; ah I am rotten, I have beguiled mine owne ſoule to this very day; but a living Conſcience can never be confuted, as it excuſes, ſo its excuſes ſhall ſtand before God, becauſe it is quickened by the grace that is in Jeſus Chriſt, his bloud is ſprinkled on it.

3. Thirdly, when the Conſcience hath life towards good, it approves a man and his wayes; it either may or does pronounce a man to pleaſe God. As it was with Enoch, he had a Conſcience that told him he was approved of God; before his tranſlation, he had this Teſtimony that he pleaſed God, Heb.11.5. This is the nature of Conſcience, if it be alive, to do its duty, and ſo as to make a man to do his, to tell a man that he is allowed of God; which is an admirable mercy, that a childe of God ſhould have ſuch an intelligencer in his owne boſome, that can tell him he is approved of God, no creature is able to expreſſe what comfort this is: none but good people can have this; others may be approved of men, others may heare that ſuch and ſuch do approve them, but they can never heare that God does approve them. Theſe are the conſciences onely towards good, which it can never do, it except it be alive.

Now the effects of theſe be, Firſt Joy, when the conſcience does its duty towards God, and makes a man do his duty too, this worketh Joy in his heart; as Paul ſayes, This is our rejoycing even the Teſtimony of our Conſcience, that with ſincerity and godly pureneſſe we have had our converſation in the world, 2 Cor.1.12. There is no joy like this joy; wicked men may laugh, and ſeeme as merry as crickets, but in the midſt of their laughter, their Conſcience gives them but cold comfort: now when a man hath ſuch a Conſcience as this, that ſets him about that which is good, this makes him have truer joy then all the world beſides; for howbeit the world are befotted, that they do not looke after God; Yet the conſcience knowes it is goodneſſe only that will pleaſe God; and therefore when conſcience is privy to this, no tongue can ſpeak what joy this is unto one.

truer

Secondly, another effect is boldneſſe and freedome from ſlaviſh feare: 2.
There's a deale of feare in a mans heart, as long as he does not ſerve God, and do the things that are pleaſing in his eyes, though it may be people do not feele this ſame feare as long as they are well and luſty, but let but conſcience be awakened, or let death ſeize upon them, then a feare will appeare; O how afraid are they to go before God! But let a man have ſuch a living Conſcience as this, this gives a man boldneſſe. The righteous are as bold as a Lyon, Prov.28.1. Thy conſcience is an admirable thing; without this all a mans boldneſſe is nothing. Thou maiſt hold up thy head very high, and outface all the world for a time, as bold as can be; tuſh thou art well thought of among all thy neighbours, But what ſayes thy Conſcience? If that cannot ſay thou art a gracious man, I tell thee thou canſt have no boldneſſe. But now if thou haſt this ſame living conſcience, now thou maiſt be as bold as a Lyon; though the world do accuſe thee, yet what ſayes thy Conſcience? If that excuſe thee, thou maiſt ſhew thy face, where thouſands ſhall be confounded. When Auſtin was accuſed by Secundinus to have come from the Manichees for feare of loſſe, and for hope of preferment, he comforted himſelfe with his Conſcience, I eſteeme not ſayes he what Secundinus thinks of me, ſo long as my Conſcience approves me before God; ſo alſo Paul, when the falſe Apoſtles accuſed him, O ſayes he, It is a very ſmall thing with me, that I ſhould be judged of you, 1 Cor.4.3. Thus ye ſee for good; what is the livingneſſe of Conſcience towards good. This is the ſecond thing.

Thirdly, now about Both, both ſinne and goodneſſe; when is the Con- 3. ſcience alive about both? Namely when it does inſtruct a man, and not only ſo, but it guides a man to ſhun the one, and to imbrace the other. This is a living Conſcience indeed, when it is a mans privy counſell from day to day. This is a Divine Counſell; its like a little privy Counſeller in a childe of Gods boſome, that the Lord in mercy hath placed there to direct him; as David ſayes, I will bleſſe the Lord for giving me Counſell, my reines inſtruct me in the night ſeaſons, Pſal.16.7. By his reines he meaneth his conſcience, now that did inſtruct him not only in the day time, but alſo in the night; if he were tempted to ſinne, his Conſcience inſtructed him, nay, I muſt not yeeld to that; if he found himſelf backward to any good duty, nay, ſtill his conſcience adviſed him, nay I muſt be forward to that. I confeſſe a dead Conſcience may give admirable counſell, and Inſtruction to the wicked; I, their conſcience proves it unto them. But it does not do its duty, for it does not make them to do theirs. Thus ye ſee what a living Conſcience is, when it ſo does its duty, that it makes us to do ours.

But it may be an humbled conſcience is padagogus anime, it is the Soules Object.
Schoole-maſter, as Origen calls it: now a School-maſter may doe his duty, though he doe not make the Scholler doe his; for if he be diligent in teaching and doing of his office, the Scholler may be a dunce for all him: the beſt School-maſter may have a block-head and a dunce in his Schoole.

I anſwer, the reaſon is not alike.

Firſt, a School-maſter teacheth another, but Conſcience is a School-maſter, Anſw.
not to another, but to a mans ſelfe; and therefore if the conſcience doe its duty indeed, it muſt needs make the man to doe his, becauſe his Conſcience is a School-maſter to himſelfe.

Secondly, again, a School-maſter is not alwayes by his Scholler, ſometimes 2.
his back is turned; but Conſcience is ever by a man, and therefore if it did alwayes doe its duty, it might make the man to doe his.

Againe, Thirdly a Schoole-Master; it may be his Scholler is duller then himselfe; and then though himself be never so learned, yet he cannot put his learning into his Scholler. But it is not so here, here the Scholler and the Schoole-Master is all one; one is no more dull then another; for looke how dull the one, so dull the other; look how active the one is, so active is the other, because Conscience and the man is all one; it is very true, the Conscience by accusation is eagerer then the man; for God may take a dead Conscience, and stir it exceedingly, and he does so ordinarily in men; but these stirrings of Conscience, are none of Consciences stiring but Gods, My Spirit shall not alwayes strive with man, Gen.6.3. They are his strivings with men. But the consciences own quicknings, and the mans are all one; you will say how shall I know whether the quickening that is in my conscience be my Consciences, or only the Lords stirring in my conscience? I answer.

1. First, when thou art glad that thy Conscience is so busie with thee, it is very welcome unto thee, then the Lord hath made thy conscience alive; then God does not onely strive in thy Conscience, but thy Conscience it selfe is alive; as we see there in David, I will blesse the Lord for giving me counsel, my reines do instruct me, Psal.16.7. When his conscience did instruct him, he was glad of it, he bleſt the Lord for it; his Conscience was alive. But now in a wicked heart, the more his Conscience accuses, and condemnes, and checks, the more busie it is with him, the more unwelcome it is, and therefore he labours to still it; may be he will stop it with some thing; may be some little reformation for the time, may be with Prayer, or some yeeldings thereunto; nay, there be some labour to drown it out-right, they will go to the Alehouse, or to Cards, or among their boone companions, and so shake off those dumps; Therefore my Brethren, if ye would have a signe, that your Conscience is alive, be glad at its dictates, give them all the deareſt entertainment ye can. Bleſſe the Lord for them, and make very much of such, they are the sweet motions of Gods holy spirit quench them not; do not stop the mouth of them by half payments, let them have their full sway.

2. Secondly, when thou calleſt upon thy Conscience to be busie; when thou useſt to stirre up Conscience every day, winde it up as a man does his Clock, that it may be in continuall motion. So the Prophet did; Why art thou so heavy O my soule? Why art thou so disquieted within me, hope thou in God, Psal. 42.11. Marke, he tooke his conscience and stir'd up himselfe with it, a wicked man does not thus; his conscience comes before it is sent for, it is like an unbidden gueſt. And therefore if thou wouldst know whether thy conscience be alive, do but consider whether this be thy course, if thou doeſt daily awaken thy conscience, if thou doeſt set it a work, this is a signe of life in it; as Paul did, Herein do I exercise my selfe, that I may have a good Conscience, void of offence, Act.24.16. He laboured for his conscience, he called it up every day, he was active about it, so that the stirrings that are in wicked men, they are none of theirs, but Gods meerly to pull them out of the bottomleſſe pit, if it might be; in the meane time, his conscience is as dead as himselfe. Thus ye see what the life of the conscience is. First, there is a relative life of Conscience; the Conscience is alive, when the man is alive. Secondly, the conscience is alive, when it presses to duty so, that it makes the man do his duty too; when is does not only check for evill, and accuse for evill, and condemne for evill, and prompt a man that he should take heed of evill, but it makes a man do his duty in all these; so also when it does not only urge a man to that which is good, and excuse him and approve him, but in all these, it makes him do his duty too; so likewise when it counsels, it does only counsell and dictate what is to be done, and what not; but it so does all these particulars, that it makes the man to do his duty, in sincerity from day to day. This is alive conscience.

Now

Now that this is the live Conſcience, I prove it unto you by five Arguments.

1. Becauſe Conſcience was made not onely to doe all theſe acts, but to make a man to doe his, ſo that when conſcience does its own acts never ſo much, that's nothing to the life of conſcience; does thy conſcience check thee, and ſmite thee, does it whiſper never ſo much in thee? This is no Argument it's alive, except it make thee to be obedient unto God. Conſcience was given man for this purpoſe; and therefore then onely is it alive, when it is for this purpoſe in thy Boſome: when David would get up out of his temptations, you may ſee how he got up by conſcience; I communed with my own heart, and my ſpirit ſayes he made diligent ſearch, Pſal 77.6. That is, he communed with his Conſcience, what he knew about God, and ſo got himſelf up; this is thy conſciences office to tell thee what thou haſt heard out of the Word, and that is not all, but to lead thee, guide thee as the helme does the Ship. It is given thee to be thy keeper, as he ſayes, I was upright before him, and I kept my ſelfe from my iniquity, Pſal. 18 23. That is, this is my iniquity, his is the ſinne that I am moſt inclined to, I muſt keep my ſelf from that. Thus his conſcience was his keeper under God. 1.

Secondly, another Argument is, becauſe this is the way whereby godly people doe their duties, the Conſcience makes them doe their duty, it makes them believe, it makes them feare God, it makes them eſchew evill and doe good from day to day. Bleſſe the Lord O my ſoule, and forget not all his benefits, Pſ.103.2. When the Prophet would doe this duty, he made his conſcience preſſe it ſoundly upon him to doe it; ſo when he would waite upon God, he ſet his own ſoule and conſcience upon him, to make him to doe it; Waite on the Lord, be of good courage, he will ſtrengthen thy heart, waite I ſay upon the Lord, Pſal. 27.14. 2.

Thirdly, another Argument is, this is the deſcription of thoſe that have a live Conſcience, they are ſuch as make themſelves doe their duties continually; as the Apoſtle ſayes, He that hath this hope in him, purifieth himſelf, even as he is pure, 1 Joh.3.3. That is, he is a man that makes himſelf doe his duty, his own ſoule and Conſcience ſayes thus unto him, Chriſt is a pure Chriſt, and I muſt be like him, as ever I hope that he will bring me into his Kingdome; and this makes him doe his duty; he purifieth himſelf, even as he is pure; I could quote abundance of places to prove this. 3.

Fourthly, another Argument is; when God ſpeakes to any that are alive from the dead, to doe their duties towards him, he bids them make themſelves to doe their duties on this manner; ſo Saint Paul ſayes, Having theſe promiſes, let us cleanſe our ſelves from all filthineſſe of the fleſh and ſpirit, perfecting holineſſe in the feare of God, 2 Cor. 7.1. That is, goe and aske your own ſoule, and Conſcience what have I not theſe and theſe Promiſes? Why then I muſt labour to be cleanſed from all manner of ſinne, I muſt perfect holineſſe in the feare of God; now ſayes he, let us make our ſelves doe our duties thus. 4.

Nay, fifthly, when God ſpeakes to them which are yet dead, and would turne them home unto him, he bids them doe thus in regard of the meanes; turne your ſelves and live yee, Ezek. 18.32. That is, Let your own ſoules and conſciences conſider this is the way to live, ye cannot be ſaved without turning; as ever I would live for ever, I muſt be turned from all my ſinfull courſes; make your ſelves doe your duties in this manner; that is, uſe all the meanes, that the Lord hath given you to uſe, make your ſelves goe about it, not as though any man hath free will to turne himſelf; But he ſpeakes of the uſe of all meanes, that he puts into your hands; make your ſelves to uſe them; nay, no ſoule can ever look to be ſaved, except he doe not onely let his conſcience check him, & tell him thus & thus his duty is but alſo let his Conſcience make him doe his duty too; ſo that this muſt needs be the life of the Conſci- 5.

ence;

ence; when it does not onely doe its own duty, to check and to whisper, but alſo it makes a man to doe his.

Uſe 1. The Uſe of this is; Then we ſee here how few have live conſciences, for people have Conſciences that doe onely tell them they ſhould be more carefull; they ſhould give over ſuch and ſuch ſinnes, they ſhould be ſtrict, and they ſhould be zealous, and they ſhould be more ſetled, but O how few have Conſciences that make them doe their duties? Numb. 15.40. That ye may remember and doe all my Commandments, and be holy unto your God.

Revel. 3. 1.

And art Dead.

WE are come to ſpeak of this neceſſary point, when is a man quickened up towards God and all his holy wayes? We have ſhewed you three things concerning this already. Firſt, what the life of the Mind is. Secondly, what the life of the Heart is. Thirdly, what the life of the Conſcience is. Now there remaines two more, the one is the life of the Memory, the other is the life of the Affections.

4. Fourthly then, what is the life of the Memory? For the memory too may be dead, and the memory may be alive.

1. Firſt, the Memory may be dead; when a man may be remembers, if ye aske him a thing, he can tell it, aske him of a Sermon, he can tell the Text and the points, and the particulars that were delivered in a Sermon, but here's all, it's a dead memory, he never remembers it to any purpoſe, this is to remember, even as if a man did not remember, as Moſes ſayes, Remember and forget not that thou provokedſt the Lord to anger in the Wilderneſſe, Deut. 9.7. That is, remember it, and doe not remember it with a dead memory; As Balaam remembred that God was angry with him in the way, no queſtion but if a man had aſkt him about it a week or two after, he would have ſhewed that he did remember it, he could tell the place, the time, and the manner, and how it was in his journey, and how the Lord ſtood before him with a drawn Sword. But alas this was a dead memory; for his practice ſhewed plainly that he had forgotten it in effect. I ſay there is a dead Memory, a man may have an excellent memory to goe from point to point, nay, a better memory in this ſenſe then many of Gods deareſt Children, and yet this memory be a dead memory.

2. Secondly, there is a living Memory; a memory that hath life in it; as God ſayes of penitent Ephraim; I doe earneſtly remember him ſtill, Jer. 31.20. Mark, God did not onely remember him, ſo he does remember all men, he remembers Reprobates and all, but he did very earneſtly remember him; So when a man does earneſtly remember God; the remembrance he hath of him is earneſt, he remembers his word earneſtly, he is earneſt in remembring of his will, though there be never ſo many things, to put God out of his thoughts, he is daily tempted to forget himſelf in ſome thing or other about God, but he is earneſt to remember, when a mans memory is eager after a thing, now it is a live Memory.

Now the queſtion is, when the Memory is alive. For the handling of this, Firſt, I will ſhew you what the memory is; Secondly, what a great bleſſing of God it is that we have a memory; Thirdly, when the memory may be ſaid to be alive. Fourthly, we will prove it, and then we will make ſome uſes of the point.

1. Firſt, what Memory is. It is the Conſervation of what we apprehend, as a man hath many things in common with a beaſt, ſo memory is in his fancy and imagination, for look what a man hath ſeen, or heard, or taſted, or ſmelt, or felt, ſelf, memory is the Conſervation of the ſame; ſome can remember the ſhape of Men, of Townes and Creatures, we can remember what colour things are of, what a taſte ſuch and ſuch meats have, ſuch a memory beaſts have, as we ſee in the milch Kine, they remembred their Calves, 1 Sam. 6.12. They went lowing as they went; thus the children of Iſrael remembred the fleſh that they had in Egypt, We remember the fleſh which we did eate in Egypt, Numb. 11.5. And this we call a Senſitive memory.

Secondly, Memory, moſt properly, is a faculty of the mind, whereby it preſerves the ſpecies of what it once knew, and therefore when a man is ſaid to remember he is ſaid to be mindfull, as David ſayes, be ye mindfull alwayes of his Covenant, 1 Chro. 16.15. That is, look you alwayes remember his Covenant, for when the mind once knowes a thing, memory is a certaine Paper of the mind, to retaine it and to keep it, and therefore it is called the ſoules ſtore-houſe; it is the ſoules treaſury, as our Saviour Chriſt ſpeakes; A good man out of the good treaſury of the heart, bringeth forth good things; and an evill man out of the evill treaſure of the heart, bringeth forth evill things, Matth. 12,35. Memory is the ſoules cheſt, where it keeps all its Jewels; that look what a man knowes, ſpecially if he like it, preſently he layes it up to keep by him, as it is ſaid of Mary, ſtill when ſhe knew any thing of our Saviour, when ſhe knew of any ſaying of his, ſhe kept it in her heart; Mary kept all theſe ſayings, Luke 2.19. Properly I ſay memory is a faculty of the mind, whereby when it knowes a thing once, it is able to keep it. This we call Intellectuall memory. 2.

Thirdly, by conſequent, memory is in the Conſcience; for the ſoule of man being privy to it ſelf, what it knowes, what its told of God, what notions it hath, what it does, what it hath done, or what it hath not done, it hath a Paper to record this; and therefore in this ſenſe, we call memory the ſoules Regiſter, for thus it is in the Conſcience: ſo when the Sonnes of Jacob were privy to themſelves, that they had ſold their brother Joſeph, ye know how their Conſcience remembred what they had done, above twenty yeares after. O we are verily guilty concerning our Brother, in that we ſaw the anguiſh of his ſoule when he beſought us, and we would not heare, Gen. 42.21. Their Conſcience had regiſtred their fact up, and did remember it againſt them ſo many yeares after. So Adonibezek being privy to himſelf, when he cut off the thumbs and the great toes of threeſcore and ten Kings, and made them to gather ſcraps under his Table, you ſee how his Conſcience had regiſtred this, and could remember it againſt him another day, Judg. 1.7. So that memory is by conſequent in the Conſcience too. And this memory we call the Book of a mans conſcience. Theſe three are all the proper memories that we have, becauſe memory can properly be no where but where apprehenſion is; either ſenſitive apprehenſion, as in fancy; or intellectuall apprehenſion, as in the mind; or reflective apprehenſion, as in the Conſcience; They underſtood not thy wonders, neither did they remember them, Pſ. 106.7. 3.

Fourthly, Memory in an improper ſenſe, is in the will and heart of a man, becauſe there is ſome retention too of what is paſt and gone; as let a man love or hate his brother, though that act be paſt and gone, yet there is ſome retention of that act againſt another time, for when a man hath hated one heretofore, he is the more ready to hate him afterwards; which is a ſigne that the heart does retaine what it did before, nay, ſayes Ariſtotle, there is memoria in pedibus: there is memory in the feet; there is memory in the hand; as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, If I forgetvhee O Jeruſalem, let my right hand forget her cunning, Pſ. 137.5. This is called remembring too in the Scripture, but this is improperly ſo called, this we call a habit or faculty, or a dexterity in acting by reaſon of precedent actings. Thus ye ſee what Memory is. Now this memory is of things that are paſt, for if things be preſent, we are ſaid to ſee them, or behold them, or ſo. But when they are paſt, now if we can ſee them ſtill, this is by way of remembring; indeed we may be ſaid to remember things both preſent and to come, in regard that 4 our knowledge of them is past; as the Apostle sayes, Remember them that are in Bonds; as being bound with them; Heb. 13.3. That is, though the thing be now present, yet I would have you remember it; because your warning is past; this is a duty, ye have been told in times past, therefore look ye remember it. So Solomon sayes, Remember thy Creator in the dayes of thy youth, Psal. 12.1. That is, though thy Creator be not past, yet thy creation is past, and thou art not so young but thou hast been told of thy duty in this thing in times past: O therefore remember that; nay, thus a man may remember that which is yet to come, as for example the Day of his death, that he must dye, and come to judgement; for though the thing be yet to come, yet he hath had warnings of it in times past, as Jeremy sayes of Jerusalem, her filthinesse is in her skirts, she remembred not her last end, therefore she came downe wonderfully, Lam. 1.9. The Lord finds fault with her that she did not remember her time to come, The reason is, because she was told of it aforehand in times past.

2. Now for the second thing; that this is a great Blessing. Beloved it is a great blessing of God, that we have such a faculty in us as to remember; it was a naughty speech of Charone that an excellent Memory is needfull for three sorts of men. First, for great Trades-men, for they having many businesses to doe, many reckonings, many yrons in the fire, had need of a good memory. Secondly, great talkers; for they be full of words, had need to have a good Store-house in their heads to feed their tongues. Thirdly, for Lyars; Oportet mendacem esse memorem, for they telling many untruths, had need of a good memory, to be able to remember what untruths they have told, lest afterward they be taken in their lying, contradicting themselves. I say this is a profane speech, as though a good memory were of no other use, then for engrossers of affaires, and talkative fellows, and forging companions; whereas memory is a great blessing of God, and the more we have of it, the more advantage we have unto our own eternall good, if we have a heart.

1. First, it is a great blessing that what we once knew, we may alwayes know; now this may be by Memory: Were it not for this, we should be Ignorant again as fast as we learn. Whence is it that ye still know to read, but because ye remember your letters and spelling? whence is it that ye still know your trade and your callings, which ye were taught so long ago, but ye remember how ye were taught? Ye once knew the grounds of Religion, may be ye were taught heretofore; if ye know them still, it is because ye remember them; were it not for Memory, we should be as much to seek, as if we had never learnt ought: as Jude sayes, I will put them in remembrance, though ye once knew this, Jude 5. That is, as ye once knew it, so I desire that ye may know it still; that it may stick by you, that you may make it your own; what a mercy is this? We cannot undertake to have alwayes the meanes of Knowledge, we may want Preaching; God knowes how soon; now if we have memory to lay up some knowledge, we may have the benefit of it, how ever things goe; may be God gave us a warning, to take heed of such and such sinnes, now if we have a good memory, this warning may be still present with us; we have had such motions, such convictions, such sights of sinne, such flierings, such manifestations of God to us, what a mercy is it that God hath given us such a thing as Memory is? As we had them once, so we may have them still if we remember them.

2. Secondly, memory is a great blessing, to bring our Knowledge to act upon all occasions. How many thousand truths doe we know, that we doe not, neither can we actually think of? now when we have use of those truths, it is a great mercy, that the Lord hath framed a memory in us, where we may have them upon all such occasions; v.g. we know we should be patient, may be we doe not think of this duty for a day together, but now when we have use of it, then we may remember it; So for meeknesse we know it, and for forgiving of wrongs, to resist temptations, to deny our selves, to shun the occasion; occaſions of evill, we know all theſe things, but our knowledge cannot alwayes be in act; now when we have uſe of theſe truths, what a mercy is it that we have ſuch a thing as Memory is to remember them afreſh? Did David actually think of Gods gracious judgements alwayes? No, but when he had uſe of them, when he was at a dead lift, then memory brought him to minde, I remembred thy judgements O Lord, and comforted my ſelfe, Pſal. 119. 52. May be Peter had no occaſion actually to think of thoſe words of Chriſt, that John indeed Baptized with water, but ye ſhall be Baptized with the holy Ghoſt: but having a memory, that gave him the uſe of thoſe words in due time; then I remembred the word of the Lord, ſayes he, Act. 11.16. May be this truth is not thought of a twelve-moneth together, that ones enemies may be they of our own houſhold; now perhaps all on a ſuddain we have uſe of this truth, then we remember it: now is not this a great mercy, that God hath given us ſuch a thing; that we may put up his truths, as a man does his mony in his purſe, to take it out when occaſion is?

Thirdly, it is a great Bleſſing to have God alwayes with one; This Memory is ſuch a faculty, that if a man have a heart, he may have God alwayes with him, and Heaven with him: ye know that moſt men are without God in the World, what is the reaſon of it? But becauſe they will not remember him: How many doe know God very much? As the Heathens did, they knew him to be Eternall, to be Almighty, to be every-where, to be Holy and juſt, they knew him, but they did not like to retaine him in their knowledge, Rom. 1.28. That is, they let him goe away from them, they would not keep him in remembrance, as Nebuchadnezzer ſayes of his Dreame, when he had forgotten his dreame, It is gone away from me, ſayes he, Dan. 2.5. So people forget God, they let God goe away from them; Now beloved, this makes us without excuſe, when God hath given us a Memory, we might have God alwayes with us, if we had a heart; we need not let him goe away. The Memory is a deep vault in the Soule, where it may hide what it hath a mind to, that, nor men nor Devills can take it away from us; as the Iſraelites hid their Corne from the Midianites, ſo we may hide what ever our heart hath a liking unto in our memories, that we may have it alwayes with us, if we will; as it is ſaid of the good Merchant, when he had found the rich Treaſure he hid it, Matth. 13. 44. That is, he laid it up in his ſoules ſtore-houſe; as Solomon ſayes, my Sonne if thou wilt receive my words, and hide my Commandements with thee, Prov. 2. 1. I ſay the memory is a deep vault in the ſoule, where a man hides what he hath a mind to, that it may never be taken away from him: ſo that memory is an excellent thing; a man may have God alwayes with him, and heaven and all heavenly things, if ſo he have a mind to them. 3.

Fourthly, it is a great bleſſing, that if a man chance to goe out of his way, he may put himſelf in againe, ſeeing he hath a memory; I ſpeak of a Chriſtian, that hath once heard the wayes of God, he cannot goe out, but by memory he may put himſelf in againe. Memory is the ſoules Map; as David ſayes, all the ends of the earth ſhall remember themſelves and turne unto the Lord, Pſal. 22. 27. He ſpeaks of all Gods Elect; mark how they get into the way againe, they ſhall remember themſelves; ſo when ere a man ſteps aſid by pride, thus he may come in againe by remembring himſelf; O, God reſiſteth the Proud, the Lord ſayes he will give grace to none but the humble: Thus he may come in again; ſo if he ſtep aſide by too much yeelding to the World, thus he may ſet himſelf to rights, O woe is me, what have I done? Now I remember the love of the World is enmity with God; if he chance to have by-thoughts at the hearing of the Word, let him remember himſelf, O what a beaſt am I! I forgot I was in Gods preſence with him, I remember my ſelf, that I am before him; and thus he may correct himſelfe; So the prodigall Sonne did, when he had fetch't his wilde vagary, at laſt he remembred himſelfe, O how many 4.

hyred Servants of my Father have bred enough? Luk. 15.17. He remembred what a good Father he had run away from, that fetcht him home again.

5. Fifthly, it's a great blessing to help a man to believe; though a man do not believe for the present, he heares the word of God, he heares that which might do him good, but for the present he does not believe; yet who knowes but this very Word may do him good another day, Memory may bring it to mind, through the goodnesse of God, and then he may believe it; as the Disciples of Christ, ye may read how that Christ spake some words, that did them little good for the present. But the Text sayes, that when he was risen again, then they remembred the words that he had said unto them and believed, Joh. 2.22. Many times we are untoward for the present, and then the word does us little good. But it's a blessing that we can remember, the same word may be represented by our memories to us, and may do the deed; as we read in the second son in the Gospel, his Father said to him, Go work to day in my Vineyard; ye know how distemper'd he was for the present, he answered and said, I will not, Matth. 21.29. afterwards he repented himselfe and went, that is, he remembred a fresh what his Father said to him, and that made him do it.

6. Sixthly, it's a great helpe to better Knowledge, it may be at the first, when we are taught, the word does not sink into our hearts, we do not understand it. But yet remembring what it was we were told, afterwards through the mercy of God something or other comes in, that now we can say, blessed be God, now I understand such a Truth, such a Promise, such a Commandement; and yet no new teaching, but remembring only what we read or heard; as sometime, one of the Jewish Doctors not understanding that place in the Prophet, where it is said, That God would sweep them away with the besom of destruction, Isa. 14.23. Afterwards seeing a Maide come with her besom to sweep the house, now he saw the meaning of the place; so when Christ said to Peter, that before the Cock crowed twice he would deny him thrice; that Peter had a poore weake heart; and that he had a horrible deale of faint-heartednesse in him, and that he would deny his own Master, Peter understood not his words, he saw no such thing in his heart, as to thinke those words to be true. But when he had been in the High Priests Hall, and there had abjured his Master, and had heard too the Cock crow twice, and his Master lookt at him, now he remembred his words, and went out and wept bitterly, Matth. 26.75. That is, now he saw the truth of Christs words, now he saw what a wicked heart he had, and lamented it. I say memory is a great help unto knowledge; as God sayes; O my people remember now what Balak King of Moab consulted; and what Balaam the Son of Beor answered him from Shittim to Gilgal, that ye may know the righteousnesse of the Lord, Mich. 6.5. How many things have we heard and seen, when we were Children, that then we never knew the meaning of? Yet afterwards when we come to have more wit, then remembring what they were, we understand them; as Christ said to Peter, when he went to wash his feet; what I doe thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter, Joh. 13.7. That is, when thou remembrest it hereafter, then thou shalt know my meaning in it.

7. Seventhly, Memory is an excellent help for a man to Preach to himself; Beloved we can but preach to you an houre or so, but seeing God hath given you memories, ye may preach to your selves all the day long; memory may help you to repeate the word every day in your hearts; as the Apostle sayes, speaking unto your selves, Ephes. 5.19. So by reason of this blessing of God, ye may speake to your selves from day to day.

8. Nay Eightly, it's an excellent thing, for it may let you have the benefit of things before they be; your death is not yet, your last sicknesse is not yet, your salvation is not yet; the day of Judgement, the Kingdome of glory, these are not yet; but, you having a Memory, ye may have much benefit by them in the means

meane time ye may represent them to your selves as things present, and have a world of good by them; and so all the things that are past, no act of the Soule can make them to be present but Memory; your Child-hood is past, all the Sin of youth that ye have heretofore are all past. O how many sinnes have ye committed in times past? and how many dealings have ye had of God in the dayes that are past? Now having a Memory, except ye have graceless hearts ye may do your soules good by all these, even as if they were now before you. If a childe of God be at a losse for the present, he may help himself by Memory; as David sayes, I remember the dayes of old, I call to remembrance my Song that I have had, Psal. 77. 5, 6. So if any of you be secure, ye may remember some thing or other that is past, which may awaken you again; hath God never shaked you out of damned estate heretofore? Were ye never sick heretofore, and did you not see that if ye had dyed in that case, ye had perished? ye may remember that now, and awaken your selves; and how if God should take you away in such a case as that? It cannot be related what a Blessing it is that we have a Memory.

But let us come to the third thing; and that is this, when may the Memory be said to be alive? I answer, there be two parts of the Memories deadnesse towards God. The first is, an aptnesse to forget God and all his Commands: Secondly, an aptnesse to Remember those things that are not so good for us; Now when those two faults are rectified in some measure, then the Memory is alive towards God.

First, There's aptnesse in your memories to forget God and all his commands; ye have a God commanded us to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy, Exo. 20. 8. How apt are we to forget it? How commonly is it out of our minds? So in the 20 Psalme, and the 7 verse, God sayes there, He would not have us forget his works, that we should keep his Commandments; now O how apt are we to let them leake out of our hearts? We have a hellish art of forgetfulnesse, how much do we forget our selves herein, and suffer the remembrance of God to be taken away from us? Ye have forgotten the exhortation that speaks unto you as to Children, Heb. 12. 5. How often do we forget to keep our selves unspotted; though we be told of the will of God, yet any little thing is enough to put it out of our minds, Lay them not to heart my people forget it; though we be told of our misery, and the infinite danger we are in, may be at the first it moves us a little, but how soone do we forget it, and other things take it up? How when this aptnesse is rectified in some measure; when GOD hath a sound impresse on our minds that we must needs remember him, and all the things that concerne our peace; when there's a Law in our minds, that we will not forget God; as ye may see there in David, Blesse thou the Lord O my soule, and forget not all his benefits, Psal. 103. 2. When our Memory is sanctified, and made the good Treasury of our heart; when the Lord hath lifted up your Memory unto him, then it is alive.

Secondly, as by nature there's an aptnesse in our memory to forget God, so there's alwayes a pronesse to remember other things that either are not good for us, or not so good; we are apt to remember injuries; any one injury will be thought on more then many good turnes; so likewise idle tales, we are apt to remember them; whereas good things goe out in our hearts like sparkes in wet tinder. We may see this in the hearing of the word; the Apostle tearmes us forgetfull hearers, James 1. 25. If a tale be told us in a Sermon, that we can remember; how many are apt to carry that away; whereas that which is wholesome, and might do us more good; how apt are we to forget that? As a Divine sayes, Our memories are like strainers, all the pure milke runneth through, but if there be any drosse, that stayes behind; or like a grate that lets the pure water run away, and if there be any straws, and sticks, and filth, and mud, and dregs, that it holds; so it is with our memories, by nature trifles, and toyes, and worldly things, them we are apt to remember like the Shepherd in York-ſhire, that could remember all his flock, he kept a thouſand ſheep, and if one ſhould but change one Sheep and put in another he could tell which it was. But for gracious things our Memories doe ſoon forget them like Iſrael, they ſon forget all the workes of God, Pſal. 106. 13. Now what is this but the corruption and deadneſſe of our Memories towards God? May be we are apt to excuſe it, alas we have weake memories, true, if we were as weake memoryed in other things, it were ſomething; but when we can remember our pleaſures and profits, and tales, and any thing; when we go to buy, wee'l be ſure to remember our ſelves there, when to ſell, wee'l be ſure to remember our ſelves there, that we will have to the worth if we can. But in matters of God there we forget our ſelves; this cannot be excuſed. Now when this is rectified in ſome meaſure, then our memory is alive when we will rather forget any thing elſe then God, rather forget our ſelves in all the world, then forget our duty towards God, when this ſtudy is once ſet up ſoundly in the ſoule in ſome meaſure, now the memory is alive. Thus ye ſee the third thing.

Now for the fourth, that this muſt needs be the life of the Memory, I prove it by arguments:

1. Firſt, becauſe the Memory hath hardly any other quickening, then the quickening of the man whoſe memory it is, ſo that when the mans mind is quickened together with his Conſcience and heart, the memory is quickened too: as the Prophet ſayes, I will never forget thy Precepts, for with them thou haſt quickened me, Pſal. 119. 93. That is, any memory is quickened up to thy Precepts, becauſe with them thou haſt quickened me, for we ſee commonly, that the faculty of Memory is much at one after converſion that it was before converſion; if it were a weake memory before, ſo it is after; only this, as the ſtrength of it was let out towards the world and ſinne, and ſelfe before, ſo now the ſtrength of it is in ſome meaſure let out towards the beſt things. And therefore what can the life of the memory be, but the aptneſſe of a man to remember God?

2. Secondly, becauſe this is the only Practicall memory; ye know a man may have an admirable memory, to remember Sermons, whole Chapters in the Bible, and yet have a dead memory to God; a Sanctified memory, is a Practicall memory, as the Lord ſayes, remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy, q. d. ſo may remember ſtill when the Sabbath is come, I this is the Sabbath day; that is not it, that's only a Contemplative memory. But I would have you have a Practicall memory; not only to remember the duty, but remember for to do it, for as the Contemplative underſtanding hath a faculty of conſerving its ſpecies, ſo the Practicall underſtanding, hath a faculty of conſerving its ſpecies too; as long as a man hath not this practicall memory, it is nothing. Becauſe he remembred not to ſhew mercy, Pſ. 109. 16. Mark the Lord does not finde fault with a man for not remembring of that duty, for may be he did remember that, but he did not remember to do his duty; this is a live memory, when a mans practicall memory is towards God and his wayes. Now when a man is made again to remember God and all his holy wayes, now his memory muſt needs be made Practicall.

3. Thirdly, becauſe this is the only Memory that repreſents things lively to the Soule. I ſay when a man is made in ſome meaſure apt and inclined to remember God, then and only then does his Memory repreſent God and his wayes lively to him; ye know Reaſon ſayes, the life of the Memory muſt needs be in this, that it repreſents things lively and powerfully unto us, when it does not only ſhew us what we do remember, but it ſhewes it to the life: when it ſhewes it dully and bluntly, and obſcurely, that's with a kind of forgetfulneſſe, then a man remembers it to the full, when a man remembers to the utmoſt what he once knew, ſo that if a mans Memory be alive, it muſt remember to the the full in a perfect manner; as David sayes, I have remembred thy Name, O Lord in the night, and have kept thy Law, Psal.119.55. That is, I remembred it, and remembred it to the full, I represented it powerfully to my selfe, so that I made my selfe to keep thy Law by it. I affected my own heart by what I did remember; as the Church sayes, My soule hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled within me, Lam.3.20. Well then ye see, that a lively memory is it that represents things lively to a man; now when a man is made again to remember God and his wayes, then and never till then does he represent God lively to himself. Those that have not this aptnesse wrought in them, may be they remember God now and then, and the duties now and then, but they never remember them in a lively perfect manner.

The Use of this is, First, if this be the only lively memory to be apt to remember God, then let us labour to get this same aptnesse, into our mindes to remember God in all our wayes. Let us consider, First because without this memory, all other memories are nothing. Israel had a memory to remember God, they remembred that God was their Rock, and that the high God was their Redeemer, Psal.78.35. But that remembrance was nothing. So that if we be not thus mindfull of God, we are yet in our sinnes, as God tells Judah, Because thou hast forgotten me, and cast me behinde thy back, therefore beare thou thy lewdnesse, Ezek.23.35. If a man were once pulled out of his sinnes, if he once had that true conviction, and godly sorrow, and reformation, and faith and amendement of life that is in being converted, the soule would have the lively remembrance of it still, to make him go on as he hath begun; and therefore if we have not this blessed remembrance yet in us, it is most plaine we are yet in our sinnes. Use 1.

Secondly, thy heart can never retaine Gods commandements without this same memory; as Solomon sayes, My Son forget not my Law, but let thy heart keep my Commandements, Prov.3.1. 2.

Thirdly, The want of this remembring of God is the cause of all sinne; Moses speaking of all the sinnes of Israel, sayes, they have forgotten the God that formed them, Deut.32.18. So again in another place; they have perverted their way, they have forgotten the Lord, Jer.3.21. So again it is said in the Book of Judges, the Children of Israel did evill in the sight of the Lord and forgat him, Judg.3.7. 3.

Fourthly, the want of this Memory, is the high way to destruction, the Lord will destroy them, that forget him; that do not remember to feare him, that do not presse it upon their mindes still to regard him; the Lord will in the end, destroy all such people, as he sayes, Israel hath forgotten his Maker, therefore I will kindle a fire, that shall devour them, Hos.8.14. Beloved how do we looke that God should remember us, if we will forget him? I will utterly forget you Jer.23.39. 4.

Secondly, another Use is to shew you, how ye may get a live memory. There be seven causes of it. 2.

The first, is a true knowledge of God. I told you Remembrance is most properly in the understanding; now looke how a man understands God, so he does remember; if a man know God only literally, he remembers him no otherwise; but if a man know God aright, then he remembers him aright. The understanding can keep no other species then it hath; if it have a saving knowledge of God, then it hath saving species of God: No man can have other money in his purse, then he puts into his purse, if he would have Gold in his purse, he must put Gold into his purse; so if we would remember God aright, let us labour to get a right knowledge of him. I will establish my Covenant with thee, and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, that thou mayst Remember, &c. Ezek.16.62,63. 1.

Secondly, a new and a true Heart; mens Memories ever follow the nature of their 2.

their hearts; that they ever will remember that their Memory is to set to; let a man be Proud, he will ever remember his respect: let him do any thing that seemes to deserve praise, he will ever remember to jet himselfe; let him be at any time disparaged, he will ever remember to be very much stirred; So let a man be Covetous, he will ever remember his profit, he will remember never to go against his profit, if he can otherwise choose; what ever he forgets, he will not forget that; so let a man be Bookish, let a mans lusts be to have Learning, he will be sure to remember that: now if a mans heart be set truly towards God, this will draw his mind towards God, now he will remember to please God, to have his heart in a sweet frame; if he find any distemper in his heart, he will remember to remove that, if he can possibly; when the Heart is upright, it runnes thus; We will remember thy love more then Wine, the upright love thee, Cant. 1.4. So that if we would remember God with this alive Memory, we must get an upright heart.

3. Thirdly, a cleare and a distinct estate before God; as long as a man is confused in his Conscience, he knowes not what to make of himself; this breaks the neck of true Memory; Methodus est mater memoriæ, distinctnesse is the mother of Memory as we say. Let a man be confused in his notions, this spoiles all Memory; so it is here, as long as we are confused in our Consciences, we know not where we are; we cannot remember God; we know not what to call to mind, his Justice or his Mercy, his Promises or his Threatnings; as David when he was to seeke at one time, he could not remember God to any purpose, I remembred God and was troubled, sayes he, Psal. 77.3. He was troubled horribly in remembring of him; like a man in his wooing, he is troubled to remember ought: now when a man hath cleared up his Estate, it's strange to see how cleare he is in his Prayers, how cleare in his conscience, cleare in his apprehensions, where as another man knows not where he is; so that if we would remember God in all our wayes, let us labour to cleare up our estates; this will help us to remember him a thousand times better then ever we did before, then we shall see his Promises distinctly, and every thing distinctly.

4. Fourthly, a Delight in good wayes; this is a very admirable help of memory; what's the reason, we are apt to forget any thing, but because we do not regard it? the more the mind regards any thing, the more it remembers it; as the Prophet sayes, I will delight my selfe in thy Statutes, I will not forget thy word, Psal. 119.16. And so for hope too. Psal. 78.7.

5. Fifthly, Meditation is another cause of this remembring of God; Meditatio emus salvant memoriam, sayes Aristotle: the more a man thinkes of a thing, it is the deeper in his mind; when the good man had said, He would remember Gods workes, Psal. 77.11. O sayes he, I will meditate of them, vers. 12.

6. Sixthly, the rubbing up of our Memories. The memory is a very lazie faculty, if it be not every foot rubbed up, it will be forgetfull; therefore we should rub up our minds, if we see them ready to let his word slip, we must call it back againe; as the Lord sayes, Remember this and shew your selves men, bring it to mind, O ye transgressors, Isa. 46.8. Our memories are naturally exceeding slippery, they are apt to leake out that which is good; and therefore we should take paines with our mindes; as the Apostle speakes, Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things that we have heard, lest at any time we let them slip, Heb. 2.1.

7. Seventhly and lastly, which is the maine of all, and that is the holy Ghost. But the Comforter which is the holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my Name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you, John 14.26.

FINIS.

The Contents.

The Text divided, pag. 1. &c.
1. The Inscription, where is shew'd what is meant by Angel, ibid.
1. Obser. That Ministers are to be Angels. 4
How they may be said to be Angels, ibid.
Use 1. The Ministry no base Office, 5
2. If Angels, they must be holy, 6
3. Then they must be ready to preach and labour in the Word, 7
Reasons 6. Why Ministers should so labour, ibid.
4. Then they are mainly for Gods Elect. 9
5. With what reverance then ought we to heare them. ibid.
To the Angel, whence.
2. Obser. All the true Ministers are as it were one, 10
All kinde of Unity not required, ibid.
What Unity should be amongst Ministers, ibid.
1. They should be all competently endued with ability for the work of the Ministry. 12
2. They must be all sent of God, ib.
3. They must all agree in the matter they preach, 13
4. And in the true manner of preaching, 14
1. They should agree in preaching with the demonstration of the Spirit and of power, ib.
2. In preaching differencingly, ib.
3. Constantly and duly, 15
4. They should agree in seeking of the Lord for a blessing on their labours, 16
5. In watching over the souls of men 17
6. In ordering their own conversations aright, ib.
7. Ministers should agree in concord and amity, 18
Reasons hereof.
1. It makes Ministers amiable in their peoples eyes, 19
2. It makes the Ministry more powerfull, ibid.
3. It brings more glory unto God, ibid.
Use 1. To condemn such as envy their fellow-Ministers, for the faithfull discharge of their duty, ibid.
2. To stir up Ministers to be all of one minde, 20
3. To shew the profitablenesse of one good Minister preaching for another, 21
To the Angel of the Church of Sardis,
The reproof directed to the Angel, yet meant to the People, proved, 22
Whence,
3. Obser. The Minister may be in fault that the people are dead. ib.
Four exceptions of the point, 23
Ministers cause their peoples deadnesse three manner of wayes,
1. By not preaching, 24
2. By preaching, when the manner of it is dead, ib.
Preaching may be dead in the manner of it, four wayes,
1. When it is too generall, ib.
Generall preaching cannot quicken, ib.
Seven reasons thereof, ib.
2. Morall preaching is a dead manner of preaching,
Two reasons thereof, 27
3. Flat preaching what it is; It leaves people dead. 30
Two reasons thereof, ib.
4. Cold preaching, 31
The manner of preaching is cold two wayes, 32
3. By their dead life and conversation, ib.
Use 1. To let us know the Reason why the Devill is so busie to poyson Ministers, 33
2. Ministers of all men should have a care to be quickned, ib.
3. To teach people to pray for their Ministers, ibid.
4. To exhort Ministers to take heed unto themselves, and to the Church committed to their charge. ib.
Four wayes for Ministers to quicken their people, 34
5. To shew what great danger Ministers are in, ibid.

6. People should be forward to hear the Word of life, ibid.
II. The Subscription, containing a Description of the Lord Jesus Christ.
The description sets forth two Royalties of our Lord Jesus Christ,
1. That he hath the seven Spirits of God, where by the seven Spirits is meant the Holy Ghost, 35
This proved, 36
Why the Holy Ghost is here called the seven Spirits, ibid.
Doctr. Christ onely hath the Holy Spirit to give to whom he pleases, ib.
Three Reasons hereof, 37
Use 1. If Christ hath the seven Spirits of God, then what hath he not? 38
2. Then we are without excuse, if we be without the Holy Spirit of God, 39
Very needfull it is that we should have the Holy Spirit, 41
Foure Wayes to obtain it, 42
3. To teach those that want the Spirit where to have supply, 43
Four taken for signes of the Spirit, and are not,
1. Not a civill life, 45
2. Not the profession of Religion, ibid.
3. Not every kinde of Repentance, ibid.
4. Not every kinde of Faith neither, 46
Signes of the Spirit are
1. To be soundly convinced of sins, ibid.
2. To be soundly pricked for sins. ib.
3. To have an unsatisfiable desire of reconciliation with God, ib.
4. When a Man is a new Creature, ib.
5. When a Man does supernaturall good things, ib.
4. What may Christ say to those that have no care to come unto him, ib.
2. Royalty And the seven Stars,
Ministers called Stars for four Reasons, 47
Why seven Stars, 48
Doctr. Every parish should have a peculiar faithfull Minister, ibid.
Four Reasons of the Doctrine,
Use 1. To shew the misery of a land darkned that hath but a few Stars, 49
2. How are we to blesse God that we have our Stars shining amongst us, ib.
3. Let us take heed lest those few Stars that yet be, set upon us, ibid.
Six signes of all the Stars vanishing away,
1. When people will not walke in the light while they have it, ibid.
2. When people grow deader and deader, forsaking their first love, ibid.
3. When people wax weary of Gods Ordinances, 50
4. When there are hardly any Sons of Peace, that the Ministers Peace may light upon, ibid.
5. When people oppose and misuse the bringers of it, 51
6. When God hath sent all the Ministers he meanes to send, ibid.
Reason 3. Why God will take away all his Stars when matters are come to this passe, ib.
That hath the seven Stars,
Christ is said to have the seven starr in five respects,
1. They have their mission from him, 52
Use 1. For comfort to true Ministers, ibid.
2. They must doe his message, 53
3. They must give him account when they have done, ib.
4. To shew Christs great mercy in sending to us, ibid.
2. He hath the giving of them their Commission, 55
This Commission hath two things,
1. The heads of their Embassage they are are sent to treat of, which are five, ib.
2. The authority they are invested with, ibid.
Have Ministers such a Commission from Christ?
Use 1. Then they are the greatest Embassadors that ever were or can be, 56
2. Then let them learn how to behave themselves in their function, ib.
3. To condemn those that obey not our Ministry, 57
4. To shew how ill the Lord takes it that his Ministers should be vilipended, 58
5. Then they must preach no mercy at all to such as wilfully stand out against Christ Jesus, 59
6. Of comfort to those that feare God, and believe in his Embassadors, 61
3. He hath the gifting of them, ib.
Ministers of all men have need of rare gifts and abilities,
1. To open the Scriptures, 62
2. To teach, ib.
3. To convince, ib.

4. To move the Affections, 63
5. To speak pertinents, ib.
6. To observe seasons, ib.
Use 1. A Minister had not need be a fool, 64
2. They are not Christs Ministers that are not sufficiently gifted, 65
3. They must goe to Christ for gifts, ib.
4. They should stirre up those gifts he gives them, ibid.
5. They must rely on Christ, 66
6. To teach people to pray for their Ministers.
Means to enlarge the Ministers hearts, and gifts to his people, ib.
4. He hath the prospering of them, 67
Reasons hereof.
1. Because Ministers are nothing in the work, 68
2. The conversion of soules is a supernaturall worke, 69
Use 1. Ministers can but make triall whether they can convert the people or no, ib.
2. They must wait though they have not present successe, ibid.
3. To condemn the World that lets not Ministers have successe, 70
Doctr. To a true Minister of Christ, Christ gives good successe, ib.
Use 1. To enquire what may be the reason that Christs Ministers have so little successe, 71
Six reasons hereof, ib.
Carnall Ministers may sometimes have good successe, proved, 72
2. Let us seek to Christ to give us successe, 73
3. If we have not the successe we could wish, let us not be discouraged, ib.
4. That people should not deprive their Ministers (by wilfully standing out) of good successe, 74
5. He hath the disposing of them, ibid.
In that he hath the placing of them, ibid.
Reasons hereof,
1. Because none is a Pastor that entreth not in at the door, ib.
2. None can be placed in a Parish, but by the Bishop of the Diocesse, Christ, ibid.
3. He payes them their wages, therefore is meet that he should set them on work, 75
4. If not placed by him, how can any look for his assistance, ibid.
5. How else can such have peace of Conscience on their death Bed, ibid.
6. Or how can the people have comfort living under such a mans Ministry not so placed, ib.
Use 1. Ministers should look they be of Christs placing, 76
2. It condemnes Intruders, ib.
3. People should then take heed how they carry themselves under the Ministry, ibid.
4. Never complain of graceless Ministers, ibid.
The reason why there are no more able Ministers, ib.
To shew us whither to goe for good Ministers, 77
Christ hath the continuing of them, ib.
Two Reasons hereof, 78
Use 1. That Ministers should not fear to be deprived of their liberty, if they doe well, ib.
2. To shew us the reason why the Gospel continues any where, seeing the world cannot abide it, ib.
3. What we must doe to have good Ministers continued, 79
He hath the removing of them and how, 80
Reasons why he removes them, ibid.
Use 1. We ought to mourn before him if our Ministers be taken away by any meanes, 81
2. Look to the mutinous cause, our sins, ibid.
3. If Christ takes away our Ministers, it is meet us to repent, ib.
III. The subject matter of this Epistle, Wherein A Reprehension,
1. In Generall, 83
Doctr. 1. The Lord knows every mans ill courses, 84
Reasons hereof, 85
Use 1. To confute those who say God does not know sin, 86
2. To condemn those who doe not consider of this truth, 87
3. For terror to all that goe on with a self-condemning heart, 88
4. Of comfort to good people, for he sees all mens sins, their all mens carelesse much rather, 89

5. This should make us afraid at any time, or in any place to commit sin, ibid.
Doctr. 2. The knowing that God knows all our works is the powerfull meanes to quicken Gods Elect, and make them take heed of all sin, 90
Reasons hereof,
1. Because the Lords knowing our works is not a meer knowing, but also a marking and pondering of them, ibid.
2. When God sees our sins, it is with a pure eye, ibid.
3. When he sees them, he records them, that he may not forget them, ib.
4. When God sees them, it is all one as if the whole world should see them, 91
5. Because our disposition is such, that we cannot endure our wickednesses should be seen of any whom we know cannot abide them, ibid.
Use 1. They that this point cannot work on, are graceless, ibid.
2. Is this such a powerfull meanes to work on our hearts? then let us not harden them, 92
2. In particular,
A name to live what, ibid.
Doctr. An horrible thing to rest in a meer name of being Religious, 93
The Reasons of the Doctrine,
1. This is to be farthest off from Religion, ibid.
2. It is a very blasphemy, ibid.
3. It is a flat Lye, 94
4. It is an unreasonable thing, ibid.
5. It is an impudent thing, ibid.
6. It is an inexcusable thing, 95
Why, ibid.
7. It is an unprofitable thing, ibid.
8. It is also hurtfull, and to whom, 96
Use 1. To shew the misery of the Church of Rome, which hath only a Name to live, 97
And for Reproof of our own Churches and Congregations, ibid.
2. Of Terror against us, 98
3. To Humble us, 99
What is meant by Dead, ibid.
What is meant by them, 100
It hath a double Relation,
First to the Minister, ib.
Whence this,
1 Doctr. A dead Ministry as good as none at all, 101
The Reasons,
1. Because true preaching is lively preaching, ibid.
2. The Scripture calleth a dead Ministery, no Ministery, ibid.
3. It doth little or no good, ibid.
4. God seldome goes along with it, 102
5. It profanes the Word of God, ibid.
Use 1. To let us see the reason why a dead Ministery is applauded in the World, ibid.
2. To reprove Ministers for not being more lively in their Ministery, ibid.
3. Of Exhortation, to labour for a quickning Ministery, 103
Six Motives thereunto, ibid.
4. To shew what a lively Ministery is, and how we may have it to be quickning, 105
Secondly, Thou hast relation to the Church it selfe, Whence
2. Doctr. A dead Christian as good as none at all, 106
By Deadnesse five things meant,
1. Deadnesse of guilt, 107
2. Deadnesse of mind, ibid.
3. Deadnesse of heart, ibid.
4. Deadnesse of conscience, ibid.
5. Deadnesse of affection, ibid.
The former Doctrine proved, 108
No Grace is without Life, ibid.
All duties of Religion must be done with life, 109
Reasons why a dead Christian none at all,
1. Because this is all one as to have no grace at all, 110
2. A Dead Christian hath not Christ dwelling in his heart by Faith, ib.
3. A Dead Christian was never yet soundly wrought upon by the Word, 111
Use 1. If Dead Christians be as good as none, what are those that are not so much as Christians in name? ibid.
2. For reproof of the Deadnesse that is now among us, 113
3. How dangerous it is to be a Dead hearted Christian, 113
For 1. All we do with a Dead heart is as good as nothing, ib.
2. It does not please God, 114
3. It cannot yeild us any true comfort, 115

4. Though it comfort us in time of Prosperity, it cannot in Adversity, ibid.
5. We can never blesse God with a dead heart, 116
6. Religion is irksome unto us as long as we are Dead-hearted, ibid.
7. If a Dead heart take it up, it will soon be weary of it, 117
What it is to be a living Christian, described by
1. The Efficient cause, God, 118
2. The Instrumentall, Faith, 119
3. The Parts of it,
1. Justification, ib.
2. Sanctification, ib.
3. Joy and Comfort, 120
What is it to be alive to God, ibid.
Here we are to consider,
1. What is the life of the mind? ibid.
Knowledge not the life of the mind, ibid.
Approving of the Truth not that Life, 121
Thinking of God and the Word not it, 122
Studying not it neither, ibid.
Six stirring Acts in the minde of men, shewing Whether the minde be alive to God or no, 123
1. Application, ibid.
2. The meditating of the mind, ibid.
3. The considering of the mind, 124
4. The Remembring of the mind, 125
5. The Inventings of the heart, 126
6. The judging of the mind, ibid.
2. What is the Life of the Heart,
Every Act of the Heart not an Argument of the life of it, 12,
Not the outside acts of the heart, ibid.
Not the stirring acts of the heart, ibid.
Not her wouldings, ibid.
These deceive many, why, ibid.
When Willing is an argument of Life in the heart, 128
What the life of the heart is, ib.
The same proved, 129
The living acts of the heart, which if converted to God, our hearts are alive towards him,
1. The Inclination of the heart, 131
2. The Intentions of the heart, ib.
3. The Elections of the heart, 132
4. The Aversions of the heart, ib.
5. The savourings of the heart, ib.
6. The cares of the heart, ibid.
7. The Appropriating of the heart, 133
Five other acts of life in the heart towards God, 134
1. The preparing of the heart, ib.
2. The combating of the heart, ib.
3. The endeavouring of the heart, ib.
4. The binding of it by Determinations and purposes, ibid.
5. The groaning and sighing of the heart, ibid.
3. What is the life of Conscience, ibid.
1. A Conscience somewhat awakned, may like of God and all his wayes, ibid.
2. It may oblige a Man to all manner of things, 135
3. It may be troubled about his sins, ibid.
4. It may urge one to good things, 136
5. It may be very eager in urging, ibid.
6. It may prevaile very farre by its eagernesse, 137
7. It may make one look at God so far as it prevailes, ib.
Yet these cannot be the life of Conscience,
1. Because they may be in naturall men, 138
2. The Conscience notwithstanding all these, may be deader then ever it was, ibid.
3. Conscience notwithstanding all these is soon pleased, ibid.
4. The Conscience that hath but these stirrings will many times be a help to ones lusts, 139
5. This Conscience is not universall, it culls out onely some particular sins, ibid.
Two lives of Conscience in a godly man, 140
What the life of Conscience is, 141
The lively acts of Conscience about sinne, ibid.
The effects thereof, 142
The livingnesse of Conscience in regard of good, 144
The effects thereof, ibid.
When the Conscience is alive about both, viz. Sin and Goodnesse, 145
Of an Humbled Conscience, ib.
Arguments of a live conscience, 147

Use. To shew us how few have live Consciences, 148
4. What is the life of the Memory? where is shewed —
1. What Memory is, ib.
2. What a great blessing it is that we have a Memory, 150
And that for 8. Reasons, ib.
3. When the Memory may be said to be alive, 153
4. This proved by three Arguments, 154
Use 1. If this be the only lively Memory, to be apt to remember God, then let us labour to get this aptnesse, 156
1. Because without this memory all other Memories are nothing, ibid.
2. Without this thy heart can never retain Gods Commandements, ib.
3. The want of this the cause of all sin, ibid.
4. The want of this is the high-way to destruction. ibid.
2. To shew how we may get a live Memory, ibid.
There be seven causes of it, ib

CHRISTS

WILFULL IMPENITENCY THE GROSSEST SELFE-MURDER.

All they who are guilty of it, apprehended, tryed, and condemned in theſe Sermons.

Preached at Rochford in Eſſex not long before his death, by that able, faithfull, and laborious Miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt, Mr. William Fenner, B.D. and made publick by one of his unworthy fellow-labourers.

Prov. 1. 24, 25, 26.

Becauſe I have called, and ye have refuſed, I have ſtretched out my hand, and no man regarded: but ye have ſet at naught all my counſell, and would none of my reproof, I will alſo laugh at your calamity, and mock when your fear cometh.

Joh. 5. 40, 43.

And ye will not come to me that ye might have life. I am come in my Fathers name, and ye receive me not; if another ſhall come in his owne name, him you will receive.

Velle meum Domine miſericordiæ tale eſt de redeundo ad te, quale eſt velle tuum de mea ad te reverſione. Guil. Pariſ. de Rhetor. Div. c. 14.

Quid agit liberum? Breviter reſpondeo, ſalvatur.
Bern. de Lib. Arb. & Gr.

Non velle in cauſa eſt, non poſſe prætenditur. Sen.

LONDON,
Printed by J. G. for J. R. and are to be ſold by William Gilbertſon, at the Bible in Giltſpur-ſtreet, 1656.

To the Right Honourable, ROBERT RICH,

Baron of Leez in Eſſex, and Earle of Warvvick:

Abundance of Spirituall Bleſſings in Jeſus Chriſt.

Paul being upon a Propheticall wing, (for the Lord had poured upon him, not onely an Apoſtolicall, but a Propheticall ſpirit) doth foretell in 2 Tim. 3. 1. that in the laſt dayes perillous times ſhould come; thoſe who are full of carnall ſelf-love and unthankfulneſſe, will much encreaſe the danger of this laſt age of the World; (the Lord root up all ſuch weeds out of our hearts.)

Thů kuow alſo (ſaith he) there's the infallible certainty of it.

God hath, I hope, given your Honour ſuch a meaſure of love to the Publique, and ſo active a ſpirit to doe good to others, as will help to leſſen the danger of theſe evill times. And I would be ſo thankfull for favours received, that I might not be ranked among this diſhonourable Catalogue which here Paul ſums up, of ſuch as make bad times worſe.

It is your Honours happineſſe and advantage (as it was once ſaid of the Duke of Guiſe in France, that he did put obligations upon all) that you can engage very many; and amongſt the reſt, I muſt ever acknowledge my ſelfe one, who in one of the greateſt turnings of my life, by the good hand of God upon me, in your free conſent and noble bounty, have had ſo much comfort, in the neareſt and deareſt relation, that I never envied any other, but find matter of everlaſting praiſes to God for his goodneſſe to my ſelfe therein. And being under ſo great obligations, when I can produce nothing of my own worthy your acceptance, I take leave to act the part of a Midwife to this happy Birth which may call your Honour Father, as will appeare by the following Letter, that it was ultimately intended for your ſpirituall advantage; and it were now a kind of ſacriledge to keep that holy Iſſue from you, that is ſo much your own. It joyes the ſouls of me and many more of your praying ſervants, that they have ſo much occaſion to praiſe their God on your behalfe, for ſo many able and faithfull Miniſters of the Goſpell, of the firſt, ſecond, and third magnitude, that your prudent fatherly care hath fixed, where you as Patron have been truſted.

Prov. 30. 10, 11, 12.

Oh the many Chariots and Horſemen of Iſrael, that your Noble Father and you have brought triumphantly into Eſſex! (herein you did happily Patrizare;) the Lord continue the like care to build and repaire his Houſe, in thoſe who ſurvive you from generation to generation, that ſo your Houſe may ſtill be honourably ſupported.

Eccleſiaſticall Story ſpeaks of one Henricus Auceps, when he did fight againſt the Hungarians, made this vow to God, That if the Lord would give him victory againſt his enemy, he would purge his Country from Simony, which at that time mightily abounded therein. We want men of ſuch an heroicall zealous diſpoſition in England.

2 Kings 13. 14, &c.

Oh that all Patrons were more mindfull of their high truſt; then they would not ſo often betray the ſouls of people by putting off a friend &c. with a Living to ſome unworthy Chaplain. Doubtleſſe there is many a damned creature roaring in Hell, curſing covetous Patrons as well as unfaithfull Paſtors; for whoſe Bloud (in part at leaſt) they muſt be accountable to the Father of ſpirits, and judge of quick and dead. A moſt heavy reckoning, when the ſinnes of ſo many Congregations, to which Patrons are acceſſary by ſending ignorant and ſcandalous Miniſters amongſt them, are made theirs; whereas the leaſt of their own ſinnes unrepented of, will ſink them eternally.

God who is faithfull, will not forget your labour and coſt of love to the truly reverend man of God, Mr. Hooker, (who is now ſinging Hallelujahs in heavenly Manſions) when he was perſecuted by the * Archi-flamen of Canterbury. He will pay abundantly for the protecting and nurſing his Children, Heb. 6. 10.

* There are many of great reading, who will undertake to make it appeare, that as Heathenish Feaſts Bacchanalia & Saturnalia, &c. were turned into Chriſtmas and ſuch other Feaſts, hoping thereby to win Heathens to Chriſt: ſo were Archi-flamens and Flamins changed into Arch-prelates and prelats, out of a good intention.

I know not how better to expreſſe my deep ſenſe of your moſt reall favour (the comfort whereof I daily enjoy) then by taking the humble boldneſſe to beſeech your Honour to adde one thing more, which indeed is the unum neceſſarium, whereby you will gain that better part, which ſhall not be taken from you; Namely, that you would ſtudy and pray that you may walk in the light and heat of that glorious Goſpel-conſtellation (for Miniſters are Stars, and the Angels of the Churches) which you have endeavoured to fixe in your Orbe. Your Honour hath been ſo often at Sea, and there beholding the wonders of God in the deep, have been taught to wreſtle with him for mercy. It is an old ſaying, He that would learn to pray, let him goe to Sea. Beſiege Heaven with your unwearied importunities, that the Ark of the Goſpel, which you have provided for thouſands, may be your own everlaſting Sanctuary. And that your feaſting upon their dainties, may be fat and flouriſhing in your laſt dayes, ſtanding ſtedfaſt in theſe ſhaking times, and immoveable, keeping faith and a good conſcience (which too many having put away, concerning Faith have made ſhipwrack) more and more abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as you know your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

Luke 10.42. Rev. 1.20.

*So acknowledged by the Tranſlators in the contents of the 2. Chap. of the Revel. They, it ſeems, did not think theſe Angels to be Prelates.

Qui neſcit orare diſcat navigare. Jonah 1.5.

This through the grace of Chriſt, ſhall be the earneſt Prayer of him who is,

My Lord,

Your Honours moſt obliged Servant,

Thomas Hill.

TO

THE RIGHT WORSHIPFULL, My much Honoured Friend, Sir NATHANIEL RICH.

I Have been often thinking what to send to you, as [illegible] this Theme which I have lately treated of in the Pulpit came into my mind, it's of infinite use and necessity, and a truth little examined, considered, and layed to heart, yet marvellous necessary for humiliation to all the children of God, and of great weight for the making the world guilty before God. I had thought to have sent it to my Lord of Warwick for his [illegible] hours, and if you judge it profitable, after your perusal of it, to commit it unto him from me, you shall do well. I am sorry to hear of such a Worthies sickness or weakness; Now Elisha the man of God was fallen sick, 2 King. 13. 14. the very words are able to strike through. The Lord lend you health, and strength, and peace, and comfort, and joy; it is not only matter of courtesie to pray for such as you are, but of debt, and our necessities and duties call for it, and mine more especially. The Lord be mercifull to me, and to many in raising you up, and make you plenus dierum, and so rus in cœlum redire; that's all the hurt that I wish you: And so I commend you to the word of his power that is able to keep you, and rest

Yours in the Lord Jesus,

WILLIAM FENNER.

To the Christian Reader, who desireth to hold fast the form of sound words in faith and love, which is in CHRIST JESUS; and to advance Free-grace above Free-will.

OUr admirably wise and fatherly hath been the Lords care of his Churches in all Ages; and when there were false Prophets under the Old Testament, the Lord had his Jeremiahs to confute them, whom he made a defenced City, an Iron Pillar, and Brazen wall against all opposition. When the Devil stirred up Hymeneus, Philetus, and others, to undermine the truths of the Gospel, in the times of the New Testament, the Lord raised and accomplished his Pauls to confound them. You shall finde when the Churches of Christ are in a wildernesse condition, and the Serpent casts out of his mouth waters as a flood after the woman (that is, multitudes of unsound and Heretical opinions,) the earth helped the woman, and opened her mouth, and swallowed the flood which the Dragon cast out of his mouth: that is, Jesus Christ had those here that did encounter and overthrow all false Doctrine, with which the devil by his agents endeavoured to poyson and destroy the Churches. Thus it was in the four generall Councels, namely, that of Nice, when Arrius a Presbyter of Alexandria denying that the Son of God was consubstantial with the Father, and asserting that there was a time when he was not, was confuted, and truth obtained a victory there, God stirring up many learned men to oppose him.

Jer. 1. 18.

1 Tim. 1. 20. Rev. 12. 15. 16.

See learned Mede in his excellent Book on the place.

1. About A.D. 330: under Constantine the great.

And in the second, that of Constantinople, when there was a Macedonius who called the Holy Ghost a creature, many were able by the power of truth to confound him.

2. About A.D. 384. under Theodosius.

And the third, when a Nestorius, who denyed that the Virgin Mary could be called the Mother of God, Providence ordered it so that then a Council of learned Bishops and Elders at Ephesus should blast that opinion. And when an Eutiches (who in a diffrent way from Nestorius, who denyed the personal Union of two Natures in Christ) would have the immensity of the Divine nature in Christ, and that there was onely the Divine nature in him, another Counsell at Calcedon overthrew him.

3. About A.D. 490. under Theodosius the second, not Θεοτόκον, but χριστοτόκον. About A.D. 456. under Marcianus Calced. Cent. 5.

Thus God had variety of Champions to contest with the most subtile and prevailing adversaries, from hand to hand; particularly, when there was Manes & Manichæi, who rejected the old Testament, and affirmed that man fell not by voluntary defection, but of necessity, because mans body was made of the Prince of darknesse (wherewith Austin was leavened before his conversion) The Lord had Chrysostom and others to hinder the spreading and prevailing of it.

Cent. 4.

When there was an Arrius, who denyed the Divinity of Christ, there should be an Athanasius raised to overthrow him.

Cent. 5. Dempsterus ex Walfida refert, eodem die quo ille in Anglica natus, tenebras errorum toti mundo effudit, summis Ecclesiæ lumen Augustinum in Africa emisisse. About A. D. 418. Note.

When a Macedonius to oppose the Holy Ghost, then a Basil to break him. When a Pelagius to advance Free-will into the Throne of Free-grace, then God would raise up an Austin, (that great light of the Church in his time) to depose that, and to restore this to Her crown and dignity.

This Pelagius was born in Brittaine the same day that Austine in Affrick, he was the first presumptuous advancer of the pride of Free-will. He did not think the grace of God to be necessary for the helping of Free will, for good things in every act. This was condemned in the councell of Carthage, wherein indeed to save himselfe he did equivocate in the word grace, acknowledging a naturall, an exciting, and of the conversion an assisting grace. This Doctrine was likewise condemned in the Synod of Palestina, 1200 years agoe, and therein Arminianisme killed before it was born, by the strength of that place, 2 Tim. 1. 9.

This Pelagius had his Scholars, Julianus and Cælestinus. Jesus Christ would not then leave Austin without some Disciples to conflict with those (as Chrysostom had his Oecumenius, and Theophylact his Pediſſequi, his followers) so was there a Prosper, and Hilary Arelatensis, to encounter the old Massilians, and Semipelagians in France.

Vide learned Archb. Usher's most excellent discourse of free will in his answer to the Jesuits chalenge. About A. D. 529.

And when there was a Faustus Regiensis (a most subtil adversary) a Bishop who did closely defend Pelagianisme in two Books of Free-will. The Church should have a Fulgentius, and Petrus Diaconus, and others to oppose him. Yea sentence was then given against Pelagius and Semi-pelagians, in the Councell of Orenge. In the generall, that their opinions touching free-will and free-grace, were not agreeable to the Catholick faith.

Further, about the yeer 850, one Johannes Scotus, (not he which wrote upon the Sentences with so much opposition against Thomas Aquinas, but another) wrote a Book against Predestination, which the Church of Leyden confuted with a godly and learned book.

When Gotteschalcus, about the yeer 849. spake of Predestination perilously, to wit, That those who were predestinated to life, by the decree of Gods predestination were forced to do well: and those who were predestinated to condemnation, were forced by the decree of God to do evill, he was resisted by Hincmarus and other learned men.

This infectious errour Pelagianism spread in England, where it was apt to take the deeper rooting, because Pelagius himselfe by birth was a Britaine: But the Lord raised learned Bradwardine Arch-Bishop of Canterbury and some others to appeare in the cause of God, and of free-grace, and to fortifie the Churches against all Pelagians, whom Austin calls Inimicos gratiæ dei, and Fulgentius, Vasa iræ dei.

Afterwards the subtilty of the Serpent insinuated himselfe into the Garden of the Church by the wit and learning of Faustus Socinus (another Infaustus Faustus in Poland;) They who have opportunity to consult Socinus books de Ministerio, and the Catechismus Cracoviensis,

(a

(a most subtil and dangerous book) shall finde there the seeds of Arminianisme, their Helena, there to be conceived (how ever Molina and other Popish Authors contend, as once the seven Cities did whose Homer was) their Media Scientia. They will grant a Divina Præscientia, but deny decretum Divinum to passe upon all things, leaving the will to it selfe to produce its own acts, which indeed is no lesse then a degree of Atheisme, setting up the second cause into the Throne of the first. Herein, and in divers other things the Arminians do tread in their steps, as will appeare to those who examine Peltius his book the Harmony of the Socinian and Arminian Doctrine. I wish that book were in English; it would make many blush now adayes to see how incogitantly (I hope that is the worst in many) they have run themselves into the Tents of Socinians & Arminians, and know not now how honourably to retreat.

Peltius his harmony of Socin. and Armin. Nott.

About the yeere 1570. when Petrus Baro a French man, had infected Cambridge with that disease from France, (you see spirituall as well as bodily evils have come from France) and one Mr. Barret, who acted concurrently with him: but then God giving the Heads of Colledges with the Vicechancellor a prudent Zeale to oppose it, they sent up Dr. Tindal and Dr. Whitaker, to complaine to Arch-Bishop Whitgift, which begot that Usefull Book of Articuli Lambethani.*

Vide M. Prini Aantiarmin.

* Soone after this journey Dr. Whitakers (rightly globlessed soul returned to her eternal rest, having not long before in an admirable Concio ad Clerum (as his Cygnea Cantio) discovered and confuted the chief points of Arminianisme.

The Leaven came then into the Netherlands, and (as learned King James saith) Arminius was the first that infected Leyden with the Pelagian Heresie.* He was a strong and cleare parted man; and as it is said of Origen, Ubi bene nemo melius, ubi male nemo pejus; so there are some excellent discourses in his Workes, and others as desperately opposite to the Covenant of Grace, spattering all the links of the Golden chaine of our salvation, which is the great evill of Arminianisme. From a young student, Junius presaged of him, that he would be a very usefull, or most pernicious instrument in the Church of Christ. By this Junius (when the Lord had converted him from Atheisme, by reading the beginning of the first Chapter of the Gospel of John, wherein he saw such Majesty, that he thought that the Lord did therein detonare ab alto) the Lord gave a soveraigne antidote to his Church in those parts, against the infection of Arminianisme. As about the same time, by that glorious light, Mr. Perkins in England, whom the Lord made a Malleus both of Papists and Arminians, and by more cleare and condescending discoveries of Christ, made the deep mysteries of speculative, and the heavenly secrets of Practical Divinity, to meet in the Pulpit; and all this in a little time; for he lived but about 44. yeares, being born (ni fallor) in the first, and dyed in the last of Queen Elizabeths reign. Oh how much did he in a little time?

* Pelagianisme oft called Heresie. Vide Dr. Venn's preface to his Pelag. Red.

But still the Devill will be casting weeds into Christs garden, picking up those that have been rooted out, and throwing them over the wall againe.

Now

Now he made use of Barnevelt in Holland, to bring Religion to serve State purposes, and so carried on the Arminian designe there. These differences about the power of Free-will, and such things as hang upon that (for there is the Primum movens*) now came to be reduced to five Articles, which begate the conference at* Hague, betwixt both parties; which is reported both by Brandius and Bertius.

As the name Protestants given first to the Princes and free cities of Germany that sought Reformation in the Diet at Spiro, A. D. 1529. and from them passed to us and other countries where it was effected.

About this time came up the name of Remonstrants, as the name Protestant had formerly. Whereupon Dr. Ames once Fellow of Christ Colledge in Cambridge, but in Dr. Caries time then Master of the place, it grew too hot for him, he not complying with the present ceremonies, and having Preached a Sermon at the University Church against playing at cards, which would not then be born) was by the disposing hand of divine Providence carried into those parts, where (as the Austin of that time and place) he did grapple with all the Patrons of Free-will. And as an Appendix to that conference at Hagu, (as it is set forth by Brandius) writ that most excellent book of his Coronis. But still Arminius his disciples acted to their utmost. Bertius, Grevinconius, and others, so distracted those Churches, that there was a necessity of calling a Synod, which God gave them as a happy remedy, An. Dom. 1618.

Synod of Dort A.D. 1618.

Oh the unwearied activity of adversaries to the cause of Christ! (which should make others blush to move so heavily in asserting the doctrine of Free-grace) before we could understand what the Anti-remonstrants in the Synod at Dort fully intended, we had from the Remonstrants Acta Synodalia, a book indeed that required an Ames to answer it (which he hath done most learnedly) where you have Magnum in Parvo, a great soul in a little body, a great deale of form in a little matter (as in his Bellarminus enervatus) that being done by the Fraternity with concurrent endeavours and quintessence of the best wits amongst the Remonstrants.

About the yeere 1627. Mr. Montague a man of great learning, and being backed by the then potent D. of Buckingham, opened his Arminian (and I had almost said Popish) pack, when the Lord used Bishop Carleton, Doctor Featly, Doctor Preston, and others, as happy Instruments to discover his adulterate wares.

Lately there sprung up a new brood of such as did assert Arminianisme, as Dutch Tompson fellow of Clare-Hall, Mr. Will. Chappel fellow of Christ-Coll. as the many Pupills that were Arminianized under his tuition shew, (whether by him or no, he best knows) but men are more confirmed in their suspition hereof, since they heard of his answerable actings in the University in Irel. but still as in Oxford, when there was any danger of spreading Armin. whether in Acts, Books, or Sermons, they had there Robert Abbot, Twisse, Prideaux, and other works to suppresse them: So in Cambridge God gave us lately Davenant and Ward, who did victoriously enter the lists with the most confident adversaries of Free-grace. And that bitter weeds could never take deep rooting in any of these three kingd. and thrive very fruitfully; there was in Ireland a most learned Arch-Bishop Usher to crush it there, and a mighty man in those

these Controversies, Doctor Twisse (another Austin) to suppresse it, in England. As learned and industrious M. Rutherford and others have done their parts successefully in Scotland. But alas Arminius now appears amongst us, not so much in the Schooles and Pulpits, as in popular meetings. who were alas prima ma gnitudinis.

For as Zanchius complained with much regret of the Lutheran Ubiquitaries, that he found them ubique, every where to vex and molest him, so may we grieve, (O that we could with brokennesse of heart bewaile it) that our Universalists, are almost universally spread amongst us; It is gotten into our Netherlands, much into the fenny and moorish parts of this kingdome, yea amongst many people that love Jesus Christ, and therefore entertaine it, as conceiving it most for his Honour (the more are they to be pitied, and to be instructed with a spirit of meekenesse; shew them by Scripture evidence this is not Gods way of advancing Christ, and you recover them) it is now in Popular hands, we need such worthies as the Author of this following Treatise (blessed be the Father of mercy, the Fountain of every good and perfect gift, for his and many others fruitfull labours) who may condescend to parley with poore Christians at their Tables, in their shops, to follow them as the plow (as Reverend Mr. Greenham was wont to do) endeavouring to pacifie and reduce them. 2 Tim. 2. 24.

He knew how to deale wisely with subtile adversaries, that he might have the more advantage against them, grants them as much as he could with consistency to his own principles, that so he might the more easily confound theirs; only you will be so candid as to consider that herein he speaks ad populum; And therefore as the ancient Fathers, often useth the liberty of speaking like a Preacher, rather then as a Doctor of the Chaire. Πρὸς λαὸν, non δογματικῶς.

I reckon this a very strong argument to confute the power of Free-will to any spiritull action in a gracious manner, the wofull experience of mine owne wretched heart, being naturally so desperately wicked, opposite to any spiritual good. But this will not convince others; only by the way I would know how it comes to passe, if Arminius Doctrine be true, that we have Free-will, to choose that which is truly good, why Arminians are not all very good men? Will not this be an aggravation against them at the dreadfull day of judgement? Jer. 17. 9. Note. Note.

Therefore the Lord is most admirably gratious in giving us such Masters of the Assemblies to fasten such Scripture-truths as may hold us fast and close under the Covenant of Grace. Eccles. 12. 11.

He was a blessing to the Colledge where he was fellow, of Pembroke Hall in Cambridge (which hath been a fruitfull nursery to this Church, and an ornament to the University) and after a burning and shining light in Staffordshire. He delighted much in preaching in an Evangelicall way from place to place, as pitying many poor pining seduced soules under blind and superstitious Ministers. The Lord fill their hearts with compassion to them, who have power in their hands to supply them, that so millions do not perish for want of vision. John 5. 35.

Afterwards the noble Earl of Warwick fixed him at Rockford in Essex, where he did speak and do great things to the honor o Free-grace. He lived there more by acting vigorously to his great Lor and Master Jesus Christ, in a few yeares, then most of us his Brethre do in many.

It is not e-nough legui magus, unless we do magus vivere, as Eras.

O that we who are left behind in these conflicting times, could mor punctually and closely follow his example? It is not studying the grounde lesse fopperies of Popery, nor the immersing our minds wholy into sou dry disputes concerning some externalls and formes about Religion (as too many do now adayes being engaged in a party) that will spiritua lize us or our hearts, so much as Studying and Preaching over the Co venant of Grace; The mysterious and heavenly secrets of the Gospe nightly, openly and wisely applyed, will by Gods blessing breed a Gospe spirit in thee, leave a gracious tincture upon the spirits of Teachers an Hearers; whereas possibly for want of this, there may be a legall tar nesse and severity in the Spirits and Tongues of able and good men.

The gracious and powerfull Lord who only teacheth to profit, annoyn all his Saints with that holy unction that they may be able to discern o things that differ, clearly to distinguish betwixt truth and error. An shee he may to this and other happy purposes, blesse abundantly this so vourly, acute, and solid Treatise, [redacted] the earnest Prayer of him,

Who is thine in and for the Lord Jesus,

Thomas Hill.

WILFULL IMPENITENCIE
The Grossest SELF-MURDER.

EZEK. 18. 31, 32.

or why will ye die, O ye house of Israel? &c.

THe wicked in this Chapter dispute against God; The Fathers have eaten sowre grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge. Our Fathers have sinned, and we are punished: a common cavill in every natural mans heart, when it's urged. Adam fell, and his poor Posterity smart for it: If God will needs damn us, he may, we have no power for to help it: for who hath resisted his will? This is mans Syllogism. God, who might send man to hell for ever, answers calmly: The division of the Text.

1. By abjuration; As I live, saith the Lord, ye shall not have occasion to use this Proverb any more in Israel, verse 3.

2. By an Assertion: The soul that sinneth, it shall die, verse 4. No soul shall die, but only the same that doeth sinne.

3. By explication of himself: If a man do that which is right, he shall live, verse 5, 6. If he have been never so wicked, yet if he returne, he shall not die, verse 21.

4. By appealing to their consciences: Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die, saith the Lord, and not that he should returne and live? verse 23. Have I any pleasure? I appeale to all your consciences, Have I any pleasure at all, that the wicked should die? God's calm answer to their forward cavils in particular.

5. By retorting: Heare now, O house of Israel, Is not my way equall? or, Are not your wayes rather unequall? verse 25.

6. By a Conclusion: Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his wayes, verse 30.

7. By a finall decision of the whole Controversie: Repent and turne your selves, &c. so iniquity shall not be your ruine: Cast away from you all, &c. For why will ye die, &c.

Where we have these foure things. Four things very observable.

1. God disclaimes all cause of their damnation from his secret will: I have no pleasure in the death of him that dyeth.

2. He removes all cause of their destruction from his revealed will: Repent and turn your selves, &c. so iniquity shall not be your ruine; Cast away, &c.

3. He disavowes all cause of their destruction from his permissive will, as though that were guilty, or accessory to it; they can have no colour why they are not wrought upon; Make you a new heart, and a new spirit. Make;

The fault lies not at his door, no, it lies at your door, Make you a new heart.

2. He calls all the cause of their destruction upon their own rebellion, why will ye die, O house of Israel?

1. What is the cause you live in your sinnes, and die and perish in your sinnes? Is it because I am not mercifull? You know I am gracious, and full of mercy, and ready to forgive: why then, why will ye die, O house of Israel?

Israels perdition not from God but from it self.

2. Is it because I am swift to revenge? you know I am slow to anger, and give you a warning before I consume you; why then will ye die, O house of Israel?

3. Is it because I will destroy you for Ahaz, or Manasseh, or Zedekiah, or Adams sinne, quasi canis pessimum filium deponderet? you know that if the Son walk not in the Fathers sinne, I use to receive him, you can bear me witnesse, I call you to a new covenant: Why then will ye die, O house of Israel?

Rev. 13. 8. Joh. 3. 16.

4. Is it because ye have no Saviour? You know that the Lamb of God Christ Jesus was slain for you from the beginning of the world, that you may be saved upon faith.

5. Is it because ye have no power? ye know I offer you grace and power, and ye will not have it: Why then will ye die?

Id unum vos accusat, respicere nos vultis.

6. Some Authors alledge five why's more. Why will ye, &c. Is it for this cause, or that cause, or that? Or what cause is it? No cause on Gods side, no, ye may thank your own wills if you perish; this, this only accuseth you, you will not be ruled: you are careless of God, Christ, Grace, and you will so appeare vain, and carnall, and be obstinate, and ye will be so. How unto thee, O Jerusalem, wilt thou not be made clean? when shall it once be? Jer. 13. 27. He does not say, Wo unto thee Jerusalem, canst thou not be made clean? but wilt thou not be made clean?

Presuppositions not to be mistaken.

1 Presuppositio non est mistaken.

Licet aliquis non possit gratiam adipisci qui reprobatur à deo; tamen quod in hoc vel illud peccatum labatur, ex ejus libero arbitrio contingit, unde & meritò sibi in culpam imputatur. Aq. par. 1. qu. 3. Art. 3. resp. tertium Arg. 23.

1. It's true, that a wicked man cannot repent, not be converted of himself, but this cannot, does not hinder him. If a wicked mans cannot did hinder him, he might excuse himselfe before the Tribunall of Christ; Lord, thou knowest I did my best, I would have been ruled by thy word, but I could not; I would have been humbled and reformed better then I was, but I could not: If a wicked mans cannot did hinder him, he might excuse himself thus: But alas, he is not able to say thus, without grosse lying; Lord, I could not choose but doe wickedly: I acted most wretchedly, but I could not otherwise choose. Though it was not in thy power not to be born in originall sinne, yet who necessitated thee to commit such grosse actuall sinnes? In Prov. 1. 29. they hated knowledge, they did not choose the feare of the Lord. They did not use my liberty of will to choose that which was good. What, was it because they could not? No, for albeit they could not, yet that was not the cause: No, They would none of my counsell, they despised all my reproof, verse 30. Mark: The reason why they did not choose, was not because they could not choose, but because they would not.

2. Presup.

Its true, God doth not give them power to believe, and to be renewed: but can they say, Though I would seriously, God would not? were they able to say thus? Though I desired heartily, God would not give me grace; then they had some colour to cast it upon God: I would, but God would not: But they cannot cast it upon him. How often would I have gathered thee together even as the Hen gathereth her chickens, but thou wouldst not, I would, said God; but you would not, nay, How often would I but you would not? Matth. 23. 37. Though God be not so willing as to give them all power to believe and be saved; yet he is aforehand with them.

3. Presup.

Its true, if the wicked should will as far as they are able to will, yet their will were not able full out; but this doth not excuse them, because God always mayes resolved to be afore hand with them. Indeed, as in Numb. 23. 19. God gives his servants his word by which he ever stops towards them, Surely every vow that he shall be given, and he will do it, speaking of things in future tenses. But to apply it to a man in the state of nature truly. Grace is given according to worked which is the very Image of Predestination. Yet however, all this is a most false & false illusion. Let any man use the power that God gives him, and he shall be more sure he shall have Grace coming: As he that useth meanes to increase his Faith, may find in ordinary providence, that the hand of the diligent makes rich. He that useth a penny well, makes it two pence; he that uses two pence well, makes it a groat.

Mat. 25. 29.

Fatuus quod in se est, deus facies quod in se Pelagia. Ex. Prov. 10. 4. & 10. 22. Dominus Thesaurus abscondit pauperibus dare potentibus reponit.

Prov. 6. 10. A little sleep &c.

he that, though there be not such an Impossibile actus, that God hath bound himself in the use of our natural abilities to give us all grace, yet undoubtedly he will never be wanting to grant any real want, but such wilfull & voluntary. And this they cannot deny, and shewes it is not their cannot, but their will not, their refusall, that is to their perdition, namely, their wilfull rejecting of Gods gracious offers.

It's true, God gives the wicked but one Talent when he giveth his children five, two at the least, but they cannot say, he is austere, reaping where he sowed not, gathering where he strewed not. No. There's the same proportion between one Talent, and gathering not where, as there is between two, and the gathering of two where, &c.

4 Presup.

Luke 19. 20.

You know that they are ready to complaine, as Christ shewes it in the Parable, Lord I know that thou wert an hard Lord, reaping where thou hadst not sowed, and gathering where thou hadst not strewed. But ye remember also the Lords answer, Thou wicked and slothfull servant, &c. Mat. 25. 26. Marke, he casts the blame upon his wilfulness, that he would not take paine for to trade. So the wicked complain, Alas, God hath not given any power of Conversion in my heart, and will he look for to reap it? This is austerity and hardnesse of dealing. Oh thou wicked and slothfull servant, &c. Why didst thou not trade with the Talent that I gave thee? One Talent should beget one, as well as two beget two, &c. But I gave thee wit, and thou buriedst it in the earth, and hast been earthly with it. I gave thee knowledge, and thou hast hid it in the earth, and not traded for reformation according to it, &c. Alas, thou canst not plead a cannot, but only a will not.

It is true, that if one wicked man will be more willing then another, it is not from himself but from God. For what hast thou that thou hast not received? 1 Cor. 4. 7. In God that maketh one wicked man to differ from another in goodnesse, and to be better then another. One wicked man is a drunkard, and another is better, &c. One wicked man is more wilfull, another is lesse. To God that makes this difference, yet notwithstanding its his own fault that he is not so good as his neighbour, especially when he sits under better helps then his neighbour.

5 Presup. 1 Cor. 5. 7.

Mat. 12. 41.

The men of Nineveh shall rise up against this generation, and shall condemn it, because they repented at the preaching of Jonah, and behold, a greater then Jonah is here. See, this generation was worse then Nineveh, Nineveh repented a great way, even in sackcloth and ashes, but this generation doth not. I grant, it was God that did make them doe more then this generation doth doe. For all would be alike wilfull, if it were not for him. But yet this generation cannot plead in judgement, Lord, thou wilt not be so gracious unto us, as to Nineveh. No, Jesus Christ expressely telleth them, Nineveh shall rise up in judgement against them, q. d. Nineveh was not so wilfull as you. Nineveh would, but you would not. Our Saviour Christ ascribes it to their wilfulness, that they were not so willing as Nineveh. Nineveh would, but you would not. Thus you see the two positions, which I beseech you remember as we goe, lest perhaps you mistake us.

The reason why the wicked do not repent nor come out of their sinne, is not because Doct.

Act. 5.3.

cause they cannot (though they cannot) but because they will not. Peter saith to Ananias, why hath Satan filled thy heart to lie to the holy Ghost, to keep back part of the price of the Land? while it remained was it not in thy power? Before thou didst promise, remain thy power whether thou wouldst promise or no, did any force thee to promise? and when thou hadst promised, did any spirit tie thee out of thy senses, that thou shouldst tell a lie to the Holy Ghost? did any strength of any servant tie to the money, and force thee to handle it? No, thou wouldst lie, and thou wouldst finger it.

Seven Demonstrations to proove this.

1 Demonst. 1 The wicked thinke they have power to repent.

1. The wicked think they have power, and yet they will not doe according to their thoughts. What's the reason they presume to repent another time, but because they think they have power? what's the reason they hope to repent on their death bed, but because they think they have power? or at least, that they are able to beg power of Christ Jesus? Now by their own thoughts God will convince them, that they doe not give over their sinnes, because they will not; like the sluggard, Yet a little more sleep, yet a little more slumber, yet a little more folding of the hands to sleep; the sluggard, he thinks he can rise time enough, and doe all his businesse e're night, though he lie a little longer, and therefore does he presume to lie a while longer; So thou art loath to come out of thy sinnes yet, time enough yet, thinkst thou; thou hast secret thoughts thou art able to shift for Heaven afterwards; Tush, an unhappy youth may make a good old man, and a young Saint an old Divell. Hence it is that the whore master can plead. Did not David commit adultery too? as though he could get up againe as well as he. The drunkard, was not Noah drunk? as though he were able to repent as well as he. The Thief on the Crosse. Did not he repent at last gaspe? as though he could shift as well at last; so they think they can leave off their sinnes for a need, and therefore the reason why they doe not, is only because they will not. He that thinks he hath a hundred pound of his own in his purse, and yet will not give a poor body a half penny: what's the reason he will not open his purse to give? because he cannot? No, he thinks he hath it, and can; but he will not; So the reason why thou art not reformed, is, thou wilt not.

Prov. 6 10. All the free-will mongers reason why they do not repent, is because they will not. Out of their own mouth will God condemn them.

Luk. 23.40.

2 Demon. 2. They will not try.

2. Demonstration; because thou dost not so much as try whether thou canst or no. Therefore thou dost not stick at a cannot, but a will not; when a Master bids his servant carry a Sack of Corn to the Mill; I cannot, sayes he; but cannot you try, sayes his Master, cannot you goe about it? no, he will not try; why then he is wilfull; if his Master should see him sweating and striving to carry it, it were something, then he would say he stuck at a cannot; but when he will not so as at the paines to try, he sticks at a will not. So thou stickst at a will not, thou dost not every day in aream descendere, sweat at good duties, thou dost not study and labour every day to shun all temptations, and prevent all thy sins; thou dost not go about the cleansing of thy Family, the purging of thy House, thou wilt not go about it, and therefore the reason is, because thou wilt not. Nay its all one whether thou hast power yea or no. To what end should God give thee power? for thou wilt not use it. Nay, how dost thou know but when thou goest about it, thou mayest meet with some power? but thou wilt not try; cut down thy drunken sign, and try; never let drinking and swilling be in thy house, and try, set up constant holy conference and try, frequent Prayer in thy Closet and try, &c. But I have tryed again and again, and yet it will not do; every day try though, si crebro jacias dea, aliud jecris, though thou hast thrown the Dye a hundred times, yet next time may be thou shalt throw a good cast; But thou wilt not try. I would have healed Babel, but she would not be healed. The field of the slothfull is all grown over with Thorns, and Nettles had covered all the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down. Prov. 24. 31. What's the reason he Tentantes ad Trojam pervenere Graii. Theo.

hath

hath not a good crop? becauſe the ground would not bear it? No, how does he know? he will not try, he will not plow it, and harrow it, and weed it, and manure it, and ſow it, he will not try, therefore 'tis becauſe he will not.

3. Demonſtration. God offers thee many good motions of power: I will help thee, and I will inable thee, and thou wilt not be helped; God caſts in theſe good motions, and thou caſts them out. Stand ye in the waies, and ſo ask for the old paths, and walk therein, and ye ſhall find reſt to your ſoules; but they ſaid, We will not walk therein. O doe but ask for the good way, and labour to walk in it, Ile help you, and aſſiſt you; but we will not, ſay they. I ſet Watchmen over you, ſaying, Hearken to the ſound of the trumpet, but they ſaid, We will not hearken, ver. 17. This is plain Engliſh, as we ſay, you will not; ye have preaching every Sabbath, and every week, but ye will not; God ſends you good motions every day and houre, but ye will not; when a beggar will not be helpt, why does he ſtarve? what becauſe he cannot chooſe? no, he ſtarves becauſe he will ſtarve. O ſayſt thou, I doe heare the Word, and I cannot heare it better; I doe pray daily, and I cannot pray better, &c. Thus thou retorteſt upon God, as the unprofitable ſervant, Lo, there thou haſt that is thine: Lo, here's the beſt faith thy ſpirit helpes me to, here's the beſt obedience that thy power enabled me to, &c. Lo, there thou haſt that is thine, thou helpeſt me with no more, I was not able to do better; quo ore poteſt hoc dicere? ſayes Gualter, with what face canſt thou ſay thus? is this all that God hath offered to enable thee? ah thou wilfull creature; The Lord hath offered to helpe thee to a thouſand times more, but thou wouldſt not be helped.

3 Demon. They refuſe the help which God offers. Jer. 5. 16. Mar. 25. 2.

4 Demonſtration. God hath not only offered thee power to do more, and thou wilt not take it, but alſo given thee more power, and thou wilt not uſe it, and therefore the reaſon why thou doſt not, is becauſe thou wilt not; God hath given thee one talent of power at the leaſt; why doſt not thou put it out to the merchandizers and occupy with it? πλαυτον ἐιδεν ἀργυριε, ſayes Chryſ. The power that God hath vouchſafed thee is thy talent. Why didſt not thou imploy it to the utmoſt? every Sermon gives thee a new power, a new price? ſo every good counſell gives thee a new power; what art thou better? every bleſſing thou haſt had, gives thee a new power, wherein art thou purer? does God give thee but eyes? thou haſt more power to glorifie him then he that hath none, &c. Every mercy helps thee with a new power; but wherein doſt thou uſe it? God hath given thee a good memory, how haſt thou ſtuft it? means and maintenance, how haſt thou honoured God? why, &c. thine own conſcience accuſeth thee, thou haſt waſted his goods, waſted them upon belly and back, which have devoured more thoughts then ever his worſhip could have, thou haſt waſted them upon thy credit in the world, and thy pleaſure, and thy luſts, and thy fleſhly deſires. How is it that I heare this of thee? Thou ſhalt heare one day of this diſmall watch-word, Give account of thy ſtewardſhip, for thou mayſt be no longer ſteward. What doſt thou talking of thy want of power? I could not doe this, and I could not doe that; where are my goods that I lent thee? give account for thy memory. Lord, I remember this and that tale, this & that bawble; thou evill & unprofitable ſervant thou, and why couldſt thou not remember my Commandements as well? give account for thy wit. Lord I have contrived buſineſſes, bargaines with it, I have jeſted, quirped, been merry with it; thou evill and unprofitable ſervant thou, why wouldſt thou not be witty for God, and for the good of thy ſoul? &c. God hath given a great deale of power more then ever thou bringeſt to act, and therefore thou art wilfull.

4 Demon. And will not uſe the power which he hath given. Prov. 7. 16. Luke 16. 2.

5. Demonſtration; the more power thou haſt to repent, the more thy will is againſt it. The more meanes that God doth vouchſafe, the more Preaching, the more knowledge, the more reproofs, the more enlightnings, the more power thou haſt to repent, the more thy will is againſt it. Bernard ſayes, ſuch a one is a perverse man that God is faine to say to, quid faciam tibi? What shall I doe unto thee? O Ephraim, what shall I doe unto thee? for thy righteousnesse goes away like the dew. Hos. 6.4. The more meanes thou enjoyest, the more thy righteousnesse goes away; one would think the more the Sun-shine of the Gospell ariseth, the more your righteousnesse should encrease; it goes the more away, like the dew the more the Sun riseth, the more it vanisheth away; many of you, the more Preaching you have, the farther ye are off; a man might be acquainted with you heretofore, but now that you have been soundly rebuked for your sinnes, the further you flye off: some of you that were somewhat forward heretofore, are mockers now; some of you that were somewhat towardly heretofore, are more covetous, and worldly, and Passionate, and worldly: like the weeds, the more they are pluckt up, the more they doe grow; or like the earth, the more it is washed, the dirtier it proves: so the more meanes ye have to be enabled to good, the wilfuller ye are.

5 Demon. They grow worſe by the means.

Hos 6.4.

6 Demon. Their cannot is voluntary. A Morall impotency.

6. Demonstration; because they cannot, is a voluntary cannot; thou hast wilfully brought the most part of thy cannot upon thee. I cannot give to the poore sayest thou; yea, but thou hadst it once, and thou hast wilfully spent it; thou hadst Lands, and Meanes, and commings in, but thou hast spent it at the Ale-house; thou hast consumed it on the game-house. Thus thy cannot, is a voluntary cannot, causa causæ est causa causati: thy will was the cause of thy cannot, and therefore thy will, is the acuse of thy not giving to the poore. I cannot read, sayes one, and no marvaile if I be ignorant; but thy Parents would have set thee to Schoole, and thou wouldst be a trewant, therefore art willingly ignorant; I cannot remember a Sermon, sayes another, no wonder though I repeat it not in my Family but forget it as I do: but thou hast willingly ram'd it with matters of the World, or hast weakned it with drinking, and therefore thou art wilfully forgetfull, &c. The unprofitable servant was curst that had layd up his pound safe in a Napkin: he did not lessen it, nor imbezele it, but only layd it up, and yet he was curst because he did not double his pound; ah the woful estate that thou art in; if he were accursed that did lay up his pound, what shall become of thee that dost lessen it? he did not double his abilities, and therefore he was cursed; thou dost not only not double thy abilities, but thou dost lessen them. God hath inabled thee to do many a thing, and now thou art not able, thou hast willingly lessened thine ability; now then thou canst not excuse thy self that thou canst not, because thou hast brought this cannot on thy self: Thou canst not weep at a Sermon, but thou couldst once, thou canst not resist such a lust, but thou couldst once, and thou hast willingly brought this cannot on thy soul, and therefore this is all the cause, because that thou wilt not.

Luke 19.20. Chrysost.

7 Demon. They are contented with their cannot.

Jer. 5.31.

7. Demonstration. May be thou canst not; yea, but thou art contented with thy cannot; thou canst not be holy, and thou art contented not to be; thou canst not crucifie thy lust, and thou art contented with this cannot, nay thou wouldst not be able. Sir, I tell you how you may put up this injury if you will; but Sir you shall not make me put it up; I will not be directed by you, as it was with desperate Judah, my people love to have it so. Thou art carnal, and thou loveſt to be so; were a man in the stocks, and not able to get out, yet if he be contented to be there though he cannot get out, that is not the reason of his staying, but he will not; thou canst not walk humbly and holily, and thou loveſt to have it so; what would you have me so pure forsooth? So then the reason is because that thou wilt not; if thy will were not it, thou wouldst never be content with thy cannot; the Congregation is bad, and thou loveſt to have it so, the more custome thou shalt have for thy Ale-house; like a bad Clerke of the Assizes, I heard one speak it my self, he was glad there was so many Rogues, he had the more money; so some of you are glad there be so many frequenters of the Ale-bench, ye have the more cuſtome, ye love to have it ſo, ye cannot reforme the ſinnes of one another, and ye love to have it ſo.

ny

The Preſuppoſitions premiſed, and the Demonſtrations prefixed, it followes now that I lay down the ground of this neceſſary truth. (Scil.)

The reaſon why a wicked man doth not turn unto God, is not becauſe he cannot, (though he cannot) but becauſe he will not.

He cannot ſay this at the day of Judgement, Lord, thou knoweſt I left every ſin that I could, and I took all the beſt courſes that I could to become a new creature, but I could not. A wicked man ſhall not be able to ſay thus without lying. The man in the Goſpel that had not on the wedding garment, could he ſay, Lord, I was not able to go to the ſhop of the Goſpell to ſeeke one? No, he was ſpeechleſſe, Matth. 22.12. God finds out the hypocrite, though but one, and when once diſcovered, he is confounded and ſilenced with the guilt of his own wilfulneſſe.

The firſt Ground.

The firſt Ground is this, which is obſerved by our learned Divines at the Synod at Dort, namely, Art. 3. & 4 in refut. 3. 4. error. poſit.

Every man can do more good then he does, and ſhun more evill then he does, though I confeſſe not in a gracious manner. If I can prove this to be true, it will neceſſarily follow, that the reaſon why a wicked man does not returne, is not becauſe he cannot, but onely becauſe he will not.

Arguments to prove it.

1. Conſider, if a man can do more good then he doth, nothing can hinder him from doing more then he does but his will; when the fire can burne more, it doth burne more, becauſe it hath no will to come between the power of burning and the act of burning to ſuſpend it. The fire is a naturall agent, and therefore burnes as much as it can: but a man is a voluntary agent, and therefore when he can do a thing and does not, 'tis becauſe his will comes between to ſuſpend it; So that the reaſon is this, he will not. Pilate be had power to crucifie Chriſt, and power not to do it, Joh. 19 10. he had power not to do it; why then does he crucifie him? not becauſe he had no power to do otherwiſe; he confeſſes himſelf he had power to do otherwiſe, but he crucified Chriſt, becauſe he would do ſo. When a man hath power to do a thing, or not to do a thing, its the will that either ſuſpends or determines. 1 Conſid. Every man can do more good then he doth.

2. Conſideration, that if a man can do more then he does, and yet will not, he muſt needs voluntarily hinder himſelfe from doing that which he cannot; the reaſon is, becauſe a man muſt firſt do that which he can, before he can come to that part which he cannot. Suppoſe a lame man were to go to London from hence, and not able to go one mile of the journey, but there ſtands one at the Church-ſtile, that offers, if he will but crawle thither, to carry him; he is able to crawle ſo farre as the Church-ſtile, but he will not; does not he voluntarily hinder himſelfe from going to London? that which he can do muſt be done firſt, before that which he cannot. So ye that live in your ſinnes, you muſt firſt do that which you can, before you can look that God ſhould helpe you to do that which you cannot; if thou doſt all that thou canſt for ought that thou knoweſt, Chriſt, though he have not abſolutely engaged himſelfe, ſtands at the Church-ſtile, there ready to help thee. There be men in the world whom he is reſolved to help; thou doſt not know but thou art the man. Chriſt hath not told thee any thing to the contrary, but onely he bids thee do what thou 2 Conſid.

canst; canst not thou cut off thy long haire? are no Sizzers able to cut it? have not you a Tongue in your heads, ye that keep disorders in your Ale-houses? cannot you say, get you hence ye drunken companions, here's no entertainment for you? you must do that which you can, before you can expect Christs help to do that which you cannot; and if you will not do that which you can, you do voluntarily hinder your own salves from doing that which you cannot; Iehoshua could not stand before Ai, nor hinder a close Achan from taking the golden wedge, but when it was taken and known, he was able to make him an example. Iehoshuah he fasted and cryed unto God all day untill night, that the Lord would mercifully save him and all Israel; Now heare that answer the Lord gives him, Get thee up sayth he, why lyest thou here? *Iosh.*7.13. Israel hath sinned, go and execute Iustice, go and do that first, and then I will answer thee about Ai; for if Iehoshuah would not have done what he could, the Lord would never have helpt him to do that which he could not. So thou prayest for mercy and grace, oh that God would convert thee, and pardon thee; get thee up sayes God, dost thou stand praying for mercy as long as such things and such things are not reformed? thou hast drunken nesse in thy house, go and reforme that; thou art in league with a sort of base lusts, goe and reforme them; if thou wilt not do that which thou canst, how canst thou be sure God will help thee to do that which thou canst not? no thou stickest at a will not, as long as thou refusest to do that.

3. Consid. 3. Consider if a man will not do that which he can, neither will he do that which he cannot, if he could; the servant that will not go five or six miles in a day which he can for his Master, neither would he goe a hundred miles for his Master if he could; you that can reforme outwardly, at least if you would, and yet will not, neither would you reforme more if you could; ye have money in your purses, cannot you spend it better then upon swilling and drinking and gaming? ye can well enough, but ye will not. So you would do, had you that true riches, Luke 16.11. ye have naturall abilities; if ye will not be faithfull in them, so it would be if so be yee had better; ye that have morall and civill endowments, if ye will not be faithfull in them, neither would you if God should lend you more, &c. ye are able to avoid swearing and lying, but ye will not, neither would ye avoyd all other sinnes if ye could; if a man will not do that which he can, neither will hee do that which hee cannot, if he could.

4. Consid. 4. Consider, if a man will not do that which he can, can or cannot all's one to him, all sticks at his will. I cannot repent, and I cannot give over my sinnes, sayest thou; and I pray thee who told thee that thou canst not? I am naked sayes Adam, and who told thee that thou were naked? sayes God, Gen.3.11. So may I say, who told thee thou canst not? does not thy own conscience tell thee tis because thou wilt not? I cannot digge sayes the lazy Steward, and to begge I am ashamed, Luke 16.3. I cannot digge; if he had a cudgell about his back, it would make him to digge; to begge I am ashamed, sayes he; he was not ashamed to cozen his Master of his goods, but he was ashamed to begge. I have married a Wife and I cannot come, Luke 14.20. No, what did his Wife tie his legges? there is a Lyon in the way, I cannot goe out sayes the sluggard: alas thy owne sluggish wilfull wills are this cannot. Can or cannot all's one to them, they never come to try whether they can, yea or no; the sluggard never looks out to see the Lyon in the way, but he dreams there was one there, and he was willing to believe it, he would not go out to see: the idle steward did not trie whether he could digge, yea or no; if he had taken the Spade in his hand, and gone about the work, 'twere another matter; but I cannot dig, sayes he, he never would put it to triall, but takes another course without trying of that; so that alls one, can or cannot, if a man will not do that which he can, can or cannot, alls one to him.

Prov.22.13.

cannot

5. Consider, If a man will not do that which he can, this will make a mans conscience when he comes to speak in sober sadnesse, thank himself for his perishing; mens consciences do but jest with them now, while they can say, tush tis because I cannot believe, and because I cannot repent; but at the houre of conviction, or the day of judgement at farthest, then conscience will speake in sober sadnesse, when I was hungry, ye gave mee no meat, sayes Christ, when I was athirst ye gave mee no drinke, I was a stranger and ye took me not in, sick and in prison and ye visited mee not, Matth. 25. 43. Mark, Christ puts no cannot on their consciences at the day of judgment; could they say, alas, we had never a bit of bread for to do it, never a drop of drink for to do it? no, you shall see how their consciences were mute; they could not say that they could not; could not ye comfort Christs deare members as well as work them? couldst thou not take them into thy house as well as carnall acquaintances its worthy observation to consider, that generally Gods threatnings do not run against Cannots, nor his judgements against Cannots, but against mens particular sins, that they might have avoided; for though mens sinfull consciences do necessarily incline men to sin, yet not unto this sin, nor that sin, non determinat necessario ad hoc vel illud malum, hic & nunc, say our Britain Divines at the Synod. Sinfull concupiscence does not necessarily determine men upon these and these sins, with the particular circumstances which they live in, as this rapine, this lye &c. Thus ye see this will make a sure ground of our Doctrine. if so be we can prove it. 5 Consi.

Every man can do more good then he does, and avoid more evill then he does.

This is a most certain and infallible truth; and needs no confirmation, but I will prove it notwithstanding.

First, because God doth complain against the wicked for the voluntary doing no more good then they do, what so much preaching and no more good? so many meanes and no more fruit? &c. so God complaines against Israel, nevertheless they departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, &c. and there remained the groves also in Samarish, 2 K. 13. 6. the grove also, what not so much as the grove cut down? and ye must have the sins of Jeroboam, that were enough stubbornesse one would think; but must ye suffer the grove also? reform nothing, no, not the grove under your face? see how God girdeth their wilfull security that they would do no more good then they did, nor so much as cut down that grove? so many warnings and threatnings, &c. and yet the grove also? yet thy filty Tongue, thy covetousnesse also, &c. notonly keep thy other lusts, but thy prophanesse also. 1 Argu.

Secondly, because otherwise there were no roome for praise nor dispraise, if a man could do no more good then he does, nor shun no more evill then he does, then no man could be praised nor dispraised, you know that wicked men and women may do many commendable things, at least more commendable ones then others, does not our Saviour discommend Bethsaida, and Corazin, in comparison of Tyre and Sidon? woe unto thee Corazin, woe unto thee Bethsaida; for if the mighty workes which have been done in thee, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented in sackcloth and ashes, Matth. 11. 21. might not they have shewed so much repentance at the least? could not they have put on sackcloth on their loynes, and poured ashes on their heads if they would? they might have done so much at the least, and honoured the workes and Preaching of our Saviour with an outward honour at the least. You that have such abundant teaching as ye have, ye might honour the Gospell with some outward honour at the least, that would be more commendable, which most of you will not. 2 Argu.

Tamen impossibile erat Iudæos converti per externum prædicationem Evangelii absq; prædeterminante gratia: quia tamen obduratio nec erat Iudæi propria malitia quæ in Tyro & Sidonio, id circo à fonatore cordium corripitur Doct. Prid. lect. de mod. scient. p. 5.

3. Argu. Thirdly, because otherwise there would be no rooms for the sword of the Magistrate; if a man could omit no more sinne then he does, then what meanes the Pillories and Gallowes, &c. and other punishmenes upon Malefactors? will any man be so vain as to say Achan could not choose but take the Babylonish garment? certainly he might have let it alone if he would: why hast thou troubled us, sayes Joshuah. Josh. 7.25. Alas, he was not able to answer, oh Sir, I could doe no otherwise: No, no, he might have omitted it, and therefore the Law of man is favourable to such as offend against their wills; it does not hang such as kill against their wills.

4. Argu. Fourthly, because though a carnall man cannot put off the old man, nor shake off the dominion of sinne in generall, nor deny himself, but his very nature is sinfull and fleshly, he does naturally sinne, yet it is not his nature to commit this sinne at this time, and in this manner; the wickedest man under Heaven goes about his sinne with proviall deliberation, and a most free disposition of the meanes; the drunkard goes freely into the Ale-house, and calls freely for a jugge or two or three, as his lust is; his Host he freely suffers these disorders in his house, and freely goes to the Tap and does draw it, &c. Ephraim did willingly walke after the Commandements, Hos. 5.11. The wicked King of Israel commanded them that will worship at Bethel, and they did freely and willingly obey it. Pilate willingly contented the people, and therefore he scourged our Saviour, Mark. 15.15. For though all this was done by the determinate counsell of God, yet Gods counsell put no simple necessity upon his will; he did freely and willingly doe it; the wicked they turne the grace of God into wantonnesse, Jude 4. Mark, the Grace of God; whereby they might doe more good then they doe, and avoid more evill then they doe. Its true, a wicked man is the servant of sinne, and cannot but sinne, he is naturally a servant of sinne; of sinne I say, but he is voluntarily and freely a servant of this sinne, for the Lord gives him reason, and counsell, and good motions, and many common graces, whereby he may be freed from this or that act, but he will not, he will break out into these and these filthy passionate words now and then; say reason what it will, and common grace what it will, he will doe it, he will doe this, and he will doe that. I confesse, that when a wicked man is desperate, and given up of God, then it is otherwise, then his will is so greedy, that he cannot take it off; but he is the more inexcusable, because his will is then double.

5. Argu. Fifthly, A wicked man can do more good, &c. for a godly regenerate soul may avoid more sin then he does. Though God have freed him from the slavery of sin, and he is become the servant of righteousnesse, Rom. 6.18. nevertheless they may do more good then they do, and avoid sin a great deal more then they do; what man will say that Dauid could not otherwise choose but commit that adultery which he did, and that murder which he did; I appeal to your consciences ye soules that are godly. When ye pray, forgive us our Trespasses, do not ye acknowledge with all that ye have been wanting to the grace of God? Do not ye confesse it with shame that you have given way to sundry temptations that by the grace of God ye might have overcome? and that ye have omitted many a good opportunity, that by the grace of God ye might have made use of it? I deny not but God does irresistibly convert his Elect at the first, and infallibly carry them on to the end for the main, but in particular actions he does not so; but though their wills be now free by grace, yet they may freely sin, even when they obey, and freely obey, even when they transgresse; and so they are forced to confesse they might avoid more evill then they doe, and doe more good then they doe.

Insuperabiliter movet, quamvis sit aliqua resistentia.

Again; A wicked man may doe more good then he does, and avoid more evil then he does; I prove it by induction upon his conscience

By these Particulars.

First, for the outward acts of sin in the members, thus all profane persons, drunkards, drunkards, &c. ye are all convinced undeniably in your conſciences, theſe are ſins in the very outward members, voluntas it is domina membrorum; can ye ſay ye cannot paſſe by an Ale-houſe when ye turn in? ye cannot come into Stratuds? your own legs they ſhall judge you; can you ſay you cannot give over your nothing and lying? &c. your own Teeth and Lips ſhall judge you, &c. If you doe not root out theſe ſins, its without doubt becauſe ye will not. The Lord hath made all the outward man at the command of the Will; and therefore if the outward man be out of order, 'tis becauſe ye will: μηδεὶς τὸν λόγον ἐκεῖνον τὸν πάλαι ἴχω, ὡς δύναμαι οὐκ εἶναι, ſayes Chryſoſt. Let no man ſay I have but one Talent, and I have no power to be good; a Talent hath power to goe for a Talent, and twelve pence for a ſhilling, and if it doe not, 'tis becauſe ye will not. Haſt thou not power over thine own outward members, vouchſafed thee of God? the Lord in mercy lets thy will have a deſpoticall power over thy members as the Moraliſts call it, and why canſt thou not bridle them? as Chriſt ſaid to the Officer that ſmote him, If I have ſpoken well, why ſmiteſt thou me? John 18.23. Couldſt thou not have held in thy fingers? thou art inexcuſable then for all thy profane ſins.

1. Argu. Amor ſui ipſius eſt objectum motivum; at Amor Dei ipſum eſt tantùm objectum terminativum. Ameſ caſ conſ. De charit. arg. 2 Dicam.

Secondly, Thou haſt naturall affections in thee, and by them thou mayſt do more good then thou doſt, and ſhun more evill then thou doſt. Thus all civill Profeſſors, are left inexcuſable: Canſt thou not get more ſtrictneſſe of walking though not for love unto God, yet for love unto thy ſelf? be more frequent in good duties for hope of Heaven, and for fear of Hell; thats better then nothing; better do them ſo then not at all. What cannot a man do for ſelf-love and for fear? there is never a duty of Religion, but a man may every day do for love unto himſelf and for fear. God hath left theſe affections in thy ſoul on purpoſe. I know this is not enough; but what of that? Why doſt thou not go ſo far as thou mayeſt? what aileth thee that thou canſt not tame down thy pride for feare of Gods judgements, and bridle thy baſe paſſions for fear of Hell? It is not unknown that God hath vowed to deſtroy all the workers of iniquity. Tis not unknown that he hath prepared Hell for ſuch as thou art, as long as thou liveſt as thou doſt: Thou knoweſt this is true, and thou knoweſt God will be as good as his word, and thou art not able to abide it. Why doſt thou not curbe thy proud ſtubborn luſts for fear of this Hell? That's better then nothing; if thou canſt not do it for love, yet why canſt thou not do it for feare? haſt thou not as much reaſon as a brute creature, that is greedy of meat, yet a whip-ſtick is able to ſcare him from it? an horſe is deſirous to ſtand ſtill, yet a ſpur and a rod is able to make it go faſter; and is not Hell more fearfull then all rods? Why doſt thou not take heed for fear, leſt God ſhould ſend thee to Hell? a ſinner and a hypocrite are inexcuſable herein, for Hell may fear them; the ſinners in Sion are afraid, fearfulneſſe hath ſurpriſed the hypocrites; who among us ſhall dwell with everlaſting burnings? Eſay 33.14. who of us is able to dwell with everlaſting flames? and hypocrites may go ſo far; fear Hell, and abſtain from a million of ſins, for fear of theſe everlaſting burnings: canſt thou ſay thou canſt not reſiſt ſin for fear of Gods judgements? No, thou canſt reſiſt ſin for fear of leſſe evils then ſo; the fear of mens ſeeing thee can keep thee from committing adultery in the market-place, and cannot the fear of God reſtrain thee from it in private? thou dareſt not tranſgreſſe the Kings Lawes for fear of the Gallowes; and cannot the fear of Hell reſtrain thee from tranſgreſſing of Gods? Gods diſpleaſure is greater then the Kings, and thou knoweſt it: God is truer in his Law then any mortall man, and thou knoweſt it: and feareſt thou not me? fear ye not me, ſaith the Lord? will ye not tremble at my preſence, Jer. 5.22. Canſt thou ſay thou art not able to fear him ſo much as ſervilely? that is not ſo; for when thou art ſick, and ready to dye, then thou wilt fear him, then oh thou wouldſt fain become a new creature, and all out of fear of the great God; and canſt thou not now? No, no, how here be pleasures to be had, and thou wilt have them; here is the World, and thou wilt carke; here is businesse, and thou wilt be doing, and thou wilt not find leasure for God. No, thou wilt not; canst thou not doe this that God bids thee at least out of feare? this is nothing but a lye of Satan, thou wouldest doe them all for feare of a man. Suppose there were Lawes made that every man who does not pray in his Family Morning and Evening, should assuredly be hanged: whosoever sweares an Oath, should be hanged as soon as he hath sworn it: Whosoever breaks out into any bitter rayling speech, should suffer death. Suppose I say to all the duties of Religion is were death to omit them, & the King had made such a certaine sure Law, I dare say there would be many millions of Professors more in England then there are; rather then ye would be gibbeted, many swearers would never sweare more; many lyars never lye more; many profane housholders never omit Prayers in their Families more; and couldest thou doe this for feare of a man? why canst thou not then doe it for feare of the great God?

Sub peccati ſui Nomen. hath it.

Thirdly, The Lord hath given thee naturall counsell, and naturall reason and prudence: Oh sayest thou, I am tempted before I am aware, and the passion is up before I am aware, I cannot help it for my life. No, I believe thee when the Devill is once up, there is no allaying that foul Fiend for the present; Thou canst not immediately allay it. But why canst thou not prevent it with counsell and deliberation? the very Heathens have done this, and thou hast advantage of all Heathen. God hath given thee not onely reason in thy head, and a naturall conscience in thy breast, but also direction in his word to prevent it, and if thou dost not, thou wilt not: are the lusts of thine appetite violent? why then dost thou not fore-cast for to reine them? why dost thou not abstaine from going to Feasts a while? why dost thou not stint thy Trencher with so much? If thy lusts be on fire, why dost thou feed them with fuell? Are the lusts of anger and wrath predominate in thee? thou rapst out an Oath before thou art aware, why then dost thou not as Chrysostome would have thee, Set forfeitures for every Oath? Why dost thou not intreat Gods people severely to reprove thee, and exact a fine of thee for every misgoverning word? Why dost thou not hawke such acquaintance as may occasion thy Tongue to cast out Oaths? Why dost thou not club down thy lusts with argument upon argument? shall I be touchy to be damned, and proud to be damned? &c. five arguments of self-love are able to knock them down. I doe not know how; No? that's because thou wilt not know; They know not neither will they understand, Psal. 82. 5. So thou knowest not, neither wilt thou understand; that's the reason thou still walkest in darknesse; why dost not thou oppose thy lusts at first rising? non obstinebis ut desinas, si incipere pertuleris, sayes Seneca; thou canst never get victory except thou be here first in the Field. The Lord hath given thee counsels on this fashion; why dost thou not use them? onely because thou wilt not; hast thou impediments? Claraeus had them too, but he overcame them sayes Seneca. Why dost not thou? If thou wilt not, thou dost willingly perish; thou mightst doe more then thou dost, but thou wilt not; and thou mightst shun more then thou dost, but thou wilt not.

Fourthly, because thou wilt say all these things are but naturall, and morall, and civill, I may perish for all these; But alas I am not able to doe any thing spiritually: I cannot believe, I cannot repent, though this be very true, yet thy plea is no excuse; for though they be naturall, yet they are first. First that's in order which is naturall, and afterwards that which is spirituall; and if thou stickest there, thou stickest at a wilt not. The Lord hath taken a sufficient course to humble thee, and thou wilt not be humbled; thou sayest thou canst not obey spiritually, I grant it, its most true: nor repent spiritually: why then wilt thou not be humbled that canst thou not? As God said to Pharaoh, How long wilt thou refuse to humble thy self before me? Exod. 10. 3. There is externall humi-humiliation, as Ahabs humiliation, thou mayeſt come to, before that humiliation thou canſt not expreſſe: why art thou not humbled with that which thou mayſt? 1 King. 21.9.

Firſt then, why doſt thou not ſee thy caſe to be damnable? Doſt thou not know that judgement is paſt upon all to damnation? Rom. 5.18. All men are damned in Adam or Chriſt. Whoſoever is not a new creature, is not in Chriſt, but is a damned man to this day: thou knoweſt the Lord himſelf doth ſay thus: what hinders thee now from deducting a particular therefrom? If upon all men, then upon me; if all be damned to this day that are not new creatures in Chriſt, then I am a damned man to this houre: This Logick God doth vouchſafe thee; why doſt thou not reaſon on this faſhion? I am a damned man and a damned woman to this day: if thou wouldeſt be brought to this paſſe, there might be ſome hope of thee, but thou wilt not; thou wilt ſcrape up ſome hopes or other, thou wilt not believe this; Believe thus, ſayes God, but I will not, ſayeſt thou: no, thou wilt have thy luſt ſtill, and thou wilt not believe this; if thou wouldeſt believe verily thou art a damned man, becauſe thou art not a new creature in Chriſt, may be thou wouldſt never have done till thou art one, thou wouldeſt forſake all, and follow Chriſt in all things, but thou wilt not.

Secondly, but I cannot, ſayeſt thou: why then wilt thou not deſpaire in thy ſelfe? a man muſt deſpaire as he is, otherwiſe he can never get into Chriſt: as long as a man lives and does after the fleſh, he can have no true hope of mercy, or pardon, or any thing, no, he is a dead man, all the Angels of Heaven cannot help him; if there were a thouſand Chriſts, he ſhould periſh without them; and why wilt thou not deſpaire in thy ſelfe? Deſpaire? God forbid. I'le never deſpaire while I live, God is more merciſull then ſo, and I hope I need not deſpaire, Chriſt died for ſinners, and I were a foole if I ſhould deſpaire. Thus thou pleadeſt with God for thy vain hopes; but why wilt thou? ſayes God, why wilt thou plead with me? thou haſt tranſgreſſed againſt me, Jer. 2.29. Thou pleadeſt for hopes, and lieſt in thy ſinnes, why wilt thou? Mark, the will is ſet on it, thou wilt plead: thou mighteſt deſpaire of thy ſelfe, but thou wilt not; and therefore thou wilt wilfully periſh.

Thirdly, but I cannot pull down mine own heart, nor maſter mine own will ſayeſt thou; No? Why then canſt thou not goe and reſigne it to God? Lord, here is a proud heart, I cannot humble it; Oh, here is a ſtony heart, I cannot break it? Lord doe thou; here is a rebellious heart, I cannot ſubdue it: Lord doe thou; but thou wilt not reſigne up thy heart, thou wilt not ſet about it as well as thou canſt; they will not frame their doings to turne unto God, Hoſ. 5.4. they will not; ſo thou wilt not frame thy ſelfe to doe it as well as thou canſt. And therefore thou doſt willingly goe on, and thou art wholly inexcuſable before God; and when he ſends thee to Hell, thou ſhalt know thine own will brought thee thither. Thou mighteſt reforme thine outward man, but thou wilt not; thou mighteſt bridle thy Luſts and thy Paſſions, but thou wilt not; thou mighteſt take a thouſand good opportunities, but thou wilt not. And therefore thou haſt no excuſe before God, thou doſt willingly periſh. Its true thou canſt not, may be, but neceſſity is not in it, but thou wilt not: indeed if thou didſt every day labour to fight againſt thy luſts, and reſiſt to the utmoſt, and couldſt not, then it were neceſſity, but thou doſt not, nay thou wilt not. He that reſiſteth and then cannot, he may plead, Lord, what a wofull neceſſity of ſinning am I in! but thou giveſt way to thy luſts, and therefore thou art inexcuſable, and thou doſt willingly periſh.

Repugnanti autem volenti neceſſitas eſt. Sen.

The Second Ground.

THe ſecond now followes. Every wicked man is ſlothfull and negligent: Thou evill ſervant and ſlothfull, ſayes Chriſt, Matth. 25.26. Thou haſt been lazie with the Talent I gave thee. I gave thee preaching and teaching, and thou haſt been lazie to hearen. I have given thee knowledge of that which is good, and thou haſt been lazie to improve it. I have pulled thee to Prayer by the motion of my Spirit, and thou haſt been lazie at the duty: Thou evill and ſlothfull ſervant, I have given thee many a ſweet opportunity to be rid of that baſe luſt that thou art moſt addicted unto, and thou haſt been lazie to take it. This is another ground of this Doctrine. Now if this be ſo, thou muſt lay the blame on thine own will, and not on Gods denying the power; becauſe ſloth is a fault of the will. I cannot call him a ſluggard that ſticks at a cannot, but onely him that ſticks at a will not. He that labours and ſtrives as much as he can, none will call him a ſluggard, but him that can labour more, and will not. Sloth is a voluntary fault of the will: How long wilt thou ſleep O ſluggard! Prov. 6.9. How long wilt thou? Its not a fault of impotency, but of will.

Five Demonſtrations to prove this.

1 Demon. Firſt, if thou be ſlothfull to good duties, then thou doſt onely imagine a company of cannots. I cannot doe as I would ſayeſt thou: No, why then art thou ſlothfull, to make more imaginary cannots? A ſlothfull man imagines more cannots then there be. I cannot goe this journey ſayes he, I ſhall be wery, I ſhall be rob'd, I ſhall fall off my horſe; I cannot travell it: the way of a ſlothfull man is a hedge of thorns, but the way of the righteous is made plain, ſayes Solomon. The ſlothfull man he imagines there's a thorn-hedge in his way; I ſhall be prickt, I cannot get over it; What? is there a thorn-hedge in the way? No; for the righteous that goes it, he finds it plain, he ſees none, no; there is no ſuch thorn-hedge in the way, but he does imagine one; and therefore he will not is his let, not his cannot; for he does but imagine a cannot. So doſt thou ſay, I cannot doe thus and thus; why then art thou ſlothfull to imagine more cannots, and thorne-hedges then there are? I cannot live then. Oh I cannot goe ſo often to Prayer, and if I ſhould doe ſo as you ſay, I ſhould be houted at up and down; you tell me I am a Hell-hound for my pride and my paſſions; Oh if I ſhould believe this, I ſhould never have merry day more. Alas all theſe are but imaginary cannots, imaginary Thorne-hedges. I cannot be ſo ſtrict, neither can I put it up. I ſay thou doſt but imagine a company of cannots, and therefore thou wilt not.

Prov. 15.19.

2 Demon. 2. Demonſtation. If thou be ſlothfull to good duties, then thou makeſt every little difficulty a cannot; nothing but an impoſſibility is a cannot, but if thou be ſlothfull, thou makeſt every little difficulty a cannot. I cannot turn mine own heart, nor break mine own heart: but why then art thou ſlothfull, to make every little difficulty a cannot? a ſlothfull man makes every little difficulty a cannot. The ſlothfull man will not plow by reaſon of cold, and therefore ſhall he beg in harveſt and have nothing. He will not plow by reaſon of cold, he ſticks at a very little difficulty; his fingers are ſo tender, forſooth, they muſt not ake, his toes are ſo Lady-like they muſt not ſmart, becauſe its a little difficult, therefore he will not doe it; He will not plow by reaſon of cold; Well, beg then and ye will: cannot you endure a little cold? yea, he could endure it, but it would be difficult; and therefore ſayes the Text, He will not plow by reaſon of cold. He does not ſtick at an impoſſibility, for then indeed he could not. But the ſlothfull man will not plow by reaſon of cold; he ſticks onely at a difficulty, and therefore he will not; nay if he ſhould labour ſoundly indeed, his very labour would keep him from being acold; the truth is, its the labour of plowing that he is againſt; and therefore every little cold ſhall ſerve for an excuſe:

Prov. 20.5.

excuſe; So why art thou ſlothfull to count every petty difficulty a cannot? its an uncomfortable thing to be alwayes poring on my ſinnes, I cannot abide it, its troubleſome to be Tongue-tied. What not ſpeake a word but onely with warrant from Scripture? I cannot abide it, what never helpe my ſelfe at a dead lift by telling a lye? never right my ſelfe by a little revenge? never comply nor ſort with ſuch and ſuch old acquaintance, becauſe they drop out an Oath now and then before they are aware? O I cannot abide it. What thus preciſe? I am not able to abide it. I cannot? I cannot thy ſtubborne will ſtoop to a little difficulty? get thee to Hell, and ſee if thou canſt abide that, and there thanke thine own will for thy periſhing.

3. Demonſtration, if thou be ſlothfull, then thou turneſt thy very abilities into cannots; not onely all difficulties, but alſo thine abilities into cannots. Like a drone that is lazy, he loſes his abilities that he hath. By much ſlothfulneſſe the building decayeth. Alas I am very dead-hearted, ſayeſt thou; nay, but O man the time was when God quickned thee at a Sermon, why didſt thou let it decay? the time was when thou wert a little well affected, why didſt thou let it decay? time was when thou wert ſober, and leſſe given to wrath and paſſions, and why didſt thou let theſe good conditions decay? the Lord gave thee them heretofore, and thou haſt played the ſluggard with them, and therefore now they are decayed. Thy quickening is decayed, thy ſorrow for ſinne decayed, thy meltings decayed, through much ſlothfulneſſe the building does decay. He that is ſlothfull in his worke, is brother to a great waſter: So thou art brother to a great waſter, becauſe thou art ſlothfull. 3 Demon. Eccleſ. 10. 18.

4. Demonſtration. If thou be ſlothfull, then thou doſt voluntarily nayle thy ſelfe unto cannots. There is many a ſinne that now thou art a ſlave to, that thou mighteſt have trodden under thy foot, but now thou canſt not; thou mighteſt have gone further and further on in reformation, if thou hadſt held on when thou wert going, like a Coach, its eaſier to make it runne on when once its going, then ſtirre it when once it ſtands ſtill; and now thou canſt not now thou art nayled to it, like the doore to his hinges. Now thou canſt pray and pray and grow ne're the better; hear and read and ne're the holier: As the doore turneth upon its hinges, ſo doth the ſlothfull man on his Bed. The doore goes to and fro, to it goes, and fro it goes, it goes may be all the yeare long, and ſtill it hangs juſt upon the ſame hinges, and after ſeven yeares travell; it hangs there where it did; its nayled to its hinges. So its with a ſluggiſh heart; he goes to a Prayer and from a Prayer, to a Sermon and from a Sermon, to a good duty and from a good duty; and ſtill he hangs juſt on the ſame hinges, he hath gotten no ground, is juſt where he was; ſo thou art juſt at the ſame paſſe, after a thouſand prayers and a thouſand Sermons, and millions of good duties, ſtill thou hangeſt on thy old duties, ne're the more pure to this houre. 4 Demon. Prov. 26. 14.

5 Demonſtration, Sloth is a lazy putting forth of halves of that power one hath. This alſo is the very nature of Sloth; when a man hath more power then he ſhewes, but he is lazy to put it all forth. The Scripture uſes a compariſon of a man that hides his hand in his boſome, and though he have meat ſtanding before him, yet he will not ſo much as bring it to his mouth. A ſlothfull man hideth his hand in his boſome, and will not bring it to his mouth. What? why does he ſtarve? becauſe he hath not any meat? No, the meat ſtandeth before him: becauſe he hath not any hands? No, he hath a hand in his boſome: becauſe his hand hath the dead Palſie, & he not able to ſtir it? No, he will not put it forth. He will not bring it to his mouth, ſayes the Text: So when thou art Praying, thou will not put thy ſelf forth: when thou art reforming, thou doſt 5 Demon. Prov. 19. 24.

not put thy selfe forth; when thou art about any good service, thou dost not put thy selfe forth; here is a Sabbath before thee, and a Sacrament before thee, but thou wilt not reach it to thy mouth; thou wilt not put thy selfe forth. The Lord tells thee this sinne will breake thy necke, and thou wilt not so much as reach it to thy mouth, nor apply it to thy heart; may be it would humble thee, and [illegible] thee, but thou wilt not reach it to thy mouth; what a deale of power hast [illegible]? but thou putteſt it forth by the halves, when thou art examining thy conſcience, thou putteſt thy ſelfe forth by the halves, thou mighteſt put thy ſelfe forth many degrees more, but thou wilt not.

Oh beloved, this ſame point will ſtrike the World dumb before God, even this, why did ye not put your ſelves forth to the utmoſt? Thou haſt ſomewhat more in thee then by reaſon of thy lazineſſe thou doſt put forth.

Six arguments to prove it.

There is more then by reaſon of Sluggiſhneſſe thou putteſt forth.

1. Arg. Firſt, its a ſigne it is in thee, becauſe when God does convert a ſinner, he does not put in new powers and faculties into the ſoul: he does not put in a new faculty of thinking and underſtanding, and willing, and affecting, and remembring; No, the ſoule hath theſe faculties already, underſtanding already, and thinking already, and remembring and deſiring already, and willing already; but God does not put in new faculties, but turnes them that are there unto himſelfe: like a Watch out of frame, the wheeles are there ſtill, the ſpring ſtill, and every parcell there ſtill, but all out of frame, and the artiſt ſets them in frame; ſo the Soule hath them in it; True, it requires the omnipotent power of God to turne all theſe faculties to him. Notwithſtanding thou doſt voluntarily turne them unto other things, and not unto God. They are every one in thee, as thou art a man. But God may not have them, may and thou mighteſt put them forth to more then thou doſt. Other things can have them ſuperfluouſly, but God may not have them. (I intend not a power of doing the leaſt good in a gracious manner, nor to engage God to give thee grace onely.)

When God comes to work grace, he finds in thee indeed Paſſivum capacitas, or potentia obedientialis, but their owne naturall faculties are raiſed to ſupernaturall acts upon the ſupernaturall object, God.

2. Arg. Secondly, its a ſigne it is in thee. (I meane ſtill ſo farre forth as to demonſtrate thee ſlothfull.) I ſay its a ſigne it is in thee, becauſe thou canſt ſhew a great power otherwiſe: When a ſervant can runne a race for his ſport, why will he not on his Maſters errand when he bids him? Its a ſigne it is in him, and he will not put it forth. Canſt thou not ſpare an hour every day for private Prayers unto God, ſometime for to meditate and belabour thy heart? Thou canſt ſpare twice as much for thy belly and thy back, and thy profit. Canſt thou not ſhed tears for thy ſins? Thou canſt ſhed tears for madneſſe, and wrath, and vexation. Canſt thou not tell how to glorifie God? Oh my parts are very ſhallow, gifts very ſmall, &c. but thou art wiſe to do evil. Jer. 4.22. They are wiſe to doe evill, but to doe good they have no knowledge. Its a ſigne it is in thee, but thou wilt not. Thou canſt not ſpeake for God, thou canſt not be angry againſt ſinne, nor lay to heart the miſeries of Gods Church: No? but thou canſt find thy Tongue faſt enough for to raile, and clamour; and thou canſt even burſt with anger when thou art croſt. Its a ſigne its in thee, a ſigne there is wit enough in thee, and ability enough in thee to take paines. Thou haſt it for other things, but thou wilt not put it forth for the Lord. Oh how does this provoke the moſt High? That ſtrangers ſhould devoure all thy ſtrength; like Ephraim, ſtrangers Hoſ. 7.9. devoured devoured all his ſtrength. God might have none of it, but ſtrangers and ſtrange luſts could have it: The World can have thy paines and thy cares, the things of the World they can have thy thoughts and thy ſtrength, and not I, ſayes CHRIST. As a Maſter complaines of his refractory ſervant, you can doe it for your ſelfe, and doe it for others, but you will not doe it for me; a ſigne it is in thee, but thou wilt not put it forth.

Thirdly, A ſigne it is in thee, for thou canſt ſhew it to whom thou liſts, like a ſluggard that will worke at idle times; ſo thou canſt ſerve God when thou haſt nothing elſe to doe; like Pharaohs conceit of the Iſraelites, That they would ſerve God becauſe they had nothing elſe to do. Ye are idle, idle ye are, therefore ye ſay, Let us go and do ſacrifice unto God. Becauſe they had nothing elſe to do: So when thou haſt nothing elſe to do with thy Tongue, then thou canſt give it to God; nothing elſe to do with thy thoughts, then thou canſt think of God, when thou haſt no uſe of a lye, then thou canſt tell truth, &c. a ſigne it is in thee; it is not the telling of the truth; it is not the ſpeaking very gently and modeſtly, that is not in thee to doe, but thou wilt not put it forth; nay thou canſt be ſoundly provoked while ſome are in company, and yet ſtill as quiet as may be, a ſigne it is in thee. 3 Argu. Exod. 5. 17.

Fourthly, a ſigne it is in thee, but thou art ſo ſluggiſh thou wilt not put it forth, becauſe the rod is able to whip it out of thee; Like a Boy that is idle and can ſay nothing, yet his Maſter is able to whip it out of him, then he can ſay it very roundly. So thou canſt not think of theſe things, yet let God laſh thee, and whip thee with ſickneſſe, or with the pangs of death, Then O I have beene a Drunkard, and I have beene naught, I have beene wicked, and Oh if God would recover me, I would not for a world ſinne ſo as I have done: Then thou canſt weepe, and then canſt cry, and then O for the Miniſter! A ſigne it is in thee, for a rod puts in no new, but onely laſhes up that which lay there; as the Twigges of the rod have no vertue in them to put learning into the Boy, but its a ſigne it was in him. Ah thou wretch thou, thy blood lies on thine owne head; why then doſt thou not now put thy ſelfe forth? Thou canſt, but Oh it kills thee to thinke now of taking paines after ſuch things; It kills thee now to goe to thy beads and lie at weeping croſſe, and be ſo holy forſooth; Oh it kills thee now to take paines hereabouts, like the ſluggard, the deſire of the ſluggard kills him, for his hands refuſe to labour. He deſires to have a crop but it kills him to go to the Plough; he deſires to have his markets, but it kills him to go thither. So thou deſireſt to go to Heaven, but it kills thee to take paines; Mortification, Selfe-Deniall, Repentance, Humiliation, Examination of Conſcience, Reformation of life; Oh theſe kill thee to thinke of them. A ſigne much is in thee; but it kills thee to put it forth. 4 Argu. Prov. 21. 25.

Fifthly, A ſigne it is in thee, becauſe thou canſt do a hundred times more when thou art pleaſed; like a wilfull lazy ſervant, you could do it better if you were pleaſed, ſayes his Maſter. So as long as thou art pleaſed thou canſt be more religious, a ſigne it is in thee. Rehoboam, his firſt yeares were religious; Peter Martyr obſerves, he was well pleaſed that ſame while he ſaw it was for the eſtabliſhing of his kingdome. And the Levits came to him, from Ieroboam, ſo long he was pleaſed, and then he was religious, but afterwards not; and why not afterwards too? Its a ſigne it was in him, but he was not well pleaſed; So Ioaſh did right in the ſight of the Lord all the dayes of Jehoiada. Why? then he was well pleaſed with Religion, for it helpt him to root out Athaliahs faction; Iehoiada had beene the ſaviour of his life, the helper of him to the Kingdome, the Lord protector of his Nonage, 5 Argu. 2 Kings 11. 2.

the eſtabliſher of his Scepter. All this while Religion did pleaſe him, but afterwards he would not do right in the ſight of the Lord. Why? becauſe other things now pleaſed him better; but its a ſigne it was in him. They on the rock, they could heare, and profeſſe as long as the Goſpell did pleaſe them, they heard it with joy, that pleaſed them well. Ye know joy is a very pleaſing thing, and then they could be forward to profeſſe it. A ſigne it was in them, but in time of affliction and perſecution, nay now the Goſpell did not pleaſe them, and therefore they fall off. So thou canſt love a child of God as long as he pleaſeth thee, nay thou canſt commend him for his holineſſe; O its a credit to thee to be acquainted with ſuch a one; but when ſome thing does not pleaſe thee, then thou canſt hate him in thy heart; all theſe are ſignes it is in thee, but thou wilt not put it forth.

Luke 4.13.

6 Argu.

Sixthly, a ſigne it is in thee, becauſe thou wilt ſhew it in Hell; there Dives ſhall ſhew it was in him to have regarded a godly poore Lazarus, to have reſpected the ſalvation of his five brethren; there he ſhall ſhew it was in him to feare Hell more then he did. Then the wicked ſhall ſay: What hath pride profited us? And what have riches and meanes advantaged us? Then they ſhall ſee it was in them not to count them for hypocrites, and Fooles, and mad Men, that were more religious then themſelves. We fooles counted their life madneſſe, and we had them in deriſion, and lo they are received amongſt the Saints, Wiſd. 5.3.4.5. And therefore it is in thee, why then wilt thou not put thy ſelfe forth? I ſay this will ſtrike you all dumb before God at the laſt day; why would you not put your ſelves forth? and how do you ſtand lazing and idleing out the dayes of your own peace?

Luke 16,28.

Ye cannot have any one excuſe.

No excuſe will ſerve impenitent ſinners come at the laſt day,

Firſt, Ye cannot ſay no body hired you: Indeed the carefulleſt ſervant in the World muſt of neceſſity be idle when none will employ him; why ſtand you here idle all the day long? No man hath hired us Lord, *Matth.*20.6. Marke, they have an excuſe that they were never hired into the Vineyard. That was more neceſſary idleneſſe; but you have beene hired, nay you were hired very early in the morning, and therefore why ſtand you here idle all the day long?

Secondly, Now thou art in Gods Vineyard, thou canſt not ſay I cannot profeſſe, I cannot profit by hearing, nor profit by praying, &c. Thou canſt not ſay ſo; for why doſt thou not labour? in all labour there is profit. Never did a man labour but ſome profit or other he did get; but thou wouldeſt not labour, but thou ſtoodeſt laxing and idleing. Faine wouldeſt thou be ſaved; faine eſcape Hell and damnation, and oh that this were to labour for it! Like the ſluggard that deſireth a Harveſt, and yet is idle; O utinam hoc eſſet laborare: He lies loytering and playing, and oh that this were to labour! Oh that this were to plough and to ſow! If his Bed were the Plough, and his Pillow the Teeme, he would then drive it well: So doſt thou, utinam hoc eſſet reſipiſcere, thou goeſt on minding the things of this life, carking and caring, &c. Vtinam hoc eſſet reſipiſcere. O that this were to repent, and this were to go to Heaven: thou art negligent of prayer, and, Faith, and Holineſſe, Chriſt Jeſus ſave me, Thus cryes the Drunkard, Chriſt ſave me, and thus the Worldling, Chriſt Jeſus forgive me. Thus like a ſluggard thou wiſheſt, O that this were believing and ſerving of God! Like the ſluggard I ſay, O that this were to labour! thou mighteſt profit if thou wouldeſt labour; in all labour is profit; but thou wilt not labour, and therefore inexcuſable. O what a ſpeechleſſe creature ſhalt thou be before God at the laſt day! This is the ſecond ground of the Doctrine; The reaſon why a wicked man does not turne unto God, is not becauſe he cannot, but becauſe he will not. I ſay the ground of it is this.

Prov. 18.23.

Every wicked man is ſlothfull and negligent.

Stirre

Stirre up your ſelves ye whoſe heart the Lord hath awakened; Though the wicked be ſlothfull, will ye be ſlothfull alſo? O what infinite reaſon hath the Lord to correct us, every one of us all? How wofully ſlothfull are our hearts! I cannot maſter my unruly heart, ſayes one, and I cannot caſt out this ſame hard-hearted Devill: Thus we ſay like the Diſciples of Chriſt, we could not caſt him out. O faithleſſe Generation, how long ſhall I be with you, ſayes Chriſt. Mat. 2. 19. Cannot caſt him out? Why? he could goe out by Preaching and Faſting; So theſe ſame diſtempers of heart, theſe frozen-hearted Devills would goe out ſoon enough by Faſting and Praying; But oh we are ſo lazy thereat, and ſo cold, and ſo dead, and ſo drowſie, we doe not take paines. There is teaching in abundance; and why cannot ye learne; There is miſery enough on the Church, and why cannot we mourne? There is woe enough a comming, and why cannot we provide for't afore-hand? God will whip out theſe lazy weeds out of us, if we belong to him; O it provokes him! as Vineger to the Teeth, and ſmoke to Prov. 10. 26 the Eyes, ſo is the ſluggard to him that ſends him. Ah thou lazy drowſie; this 'tis to ſend a leaden-heeld drone of ones errand; it makes the Maſter look as ſowrly on him, as if he had drunken a Porringer of Vinegar. So beloved, this our ſloth to good things it doth deeply provoke God; there is many a mercy we loſe, becauſe of our ſloth; many a grace we never attaine, nay many a croſſe and many a trouble doe we get by reaſon of our ſloth. Oh let us ſtir up our ſelves, and blow up the ſparks that are under the embers, or elſe it will be evill and bitter, that God will make us to ſuffer. And you that live in your ſinnes, let me tell you, ye can never look for mercy except ye ſhake off your ſloth; ye may deſire to be converted, and pardoned, and ſaved, and ſo forth; but the ſoul of the ſluggard deſireth and hath not; but the diligent ſhall be made fat. 'Tis the diligent, the diligent onely that ſhall be fatted with grace; but ye may deſire all dayes of your lifes, but ye ſhall never have grace, except ye take paines. Nay, your own raines ſhall torment you in Hell; Oh how did I idle out my time, and let ſlip occaſions; and I would die, and I would to hell, and I would not doe otherwiſe, and woe is me that ever I was born, &c.

The third Ground.

A wicked man will not ſet himſelfe to uſe all the meanes that he may.

HE is not only ſlothful in the uſe of the ſame, not only he wil not do as much good as he may, but alſo he will not ſo much as uſe the meanes conſtantly in any faſhion. I cannot, ſaith he, repent, nor be ſuch a new creature as you talke of; Why then wilt thou not uſe the meanes? This makes thee inexcuſable. All the whole World both godly and ungodly have a cannot; indeed the ungodly their cannot is larger and begins ſooner, but the godly their cannot is much leſſened, and begins further off. The Lord inables them to goe further then all the wicked of the World; but beyond that, there begins their cannot. I ſay all the whole World have their cannot; I call that the meanes of grace, which is between their can and their cannot. As Prayers and hearing the Word, and ſtudying, and meditating, &c. The Lord ſeeing all men in their cannots, hath appointed ſuch meanes as they can, whereby they are to ſeeke unto God to do that which they cannot. Now a child of God whoſe cannot is in ſome meaſure healed by grace, he can pray in faith, and heare in faith, &c. And therefore Prayer in faith, hearing Gods Word in faith, &c. are his meanes to get more: he cannot obey more, nor believe more, but he uſes theſe meanes that he may. But a wicked man, his cannot is larger, he cannot pray in faith, and do theſe in faith, and therefore the faithfull doing of theſe duties are not his meanes. I cannot do ſo, ſayes he; no, but thou mayſt

Liberum arbitrium liberum.

mayſt ſet upon them all, and doe them in as good manner as thou canſt; that is thy meanes. Though thou canſt not pray in faith, yet thou canſt ſet up conſtant prayers in thy family though, ſuch as they are: Thou canſt not conferre with grace, but thou canſt conferre about grace every day: thou canſt not repeat the Word to thy houſhold in faith, but thou canſt repeat it in as good a manner as thou art able; that is thy meanes. Now, if thou wilt not uſe the meanes, thou ſtickeſt at a will not, and when thou doſt periſh, thou muſt thank thine own will, thou ſtickeſt at a will not. The firſt queſtion Chriſt asks thee is this, what canſt thou doe? As when the ſonnes of Zebedee beg'd to ſit one on the right hand, and the other on the left, this they could not, except God did vouchſafe them a new gift. But what can ye doe? ſayes Chriſt, are ye able to drink of the Cup that I am to drink of, and be baptized with the Baptiſme that I am baptized with? We are able, ſay they, Matth. 20.22,23. Ye ſhall drink, &c. Mark, he puts them to doe that which they can, and then bids them leave that which they cannot unto God. I ſay, the firſt queſtion Chriſt asks thee is, what canſt thou doe? I cannot be a Saint, Lord help mee to mercy, &c. Yea, but what canſt thou doe? Canſt thou not uſe theſe and theſe meanes I appoint thee? If thou wilt not doe them, neither will I help thee. This is the nature of meanes, to be a meanes to that which one cannot. A child of God can pray in faith, but he cannot maſter ſuch a luſt, and therefore he prayeth in faith that he may. He can heare the Word preached in faith, but he cannot get his heart to it as he would, and therefore he heareth in faith that he may. Doing theſe in faith are the meanes; now this is not the meanes of the wicked, for they cannot doe any thing in faith; but their meanes is to ſet about them at leaſt, that they may. I cannot pray in faith, ſayeſt thou, yea, but thou canſt ſet up conſtant Prayers in thy Family though, ſuch as they are: thou canſt not caſt off thy ſinnes in faith, thou mayſt caſt them off though; a godly man may doe theſe things in faith, and therefore that is his meanes. But that which is his can is thy cannot, and that which is his meanes, thou muſt uſe meanes unto. Thou muſt pray that thou mayſt pray in faith, repeat the Word, that thou mayſt repeat it in faith: reforme thy life, that thou mayſt reform it in faith; and ſeek the Lord, that thou mayſt ſeek him in faith. Now, if thou wilt not ſet upon the meanes thou ſtickeſt at a will not; I confeſſe here is the difference, the godly have a promiſe upon their uſing of their meanes, they uſing them in faith, but thou haſt no promiſe; yet who knowes what God may doe? As the King of Nineveh ſaid, Let's cry mightily to God; let's caſt away theſe and theſe ſinnes, who knowes if God will turn and repent? Jon. 3.9. he had no promiſe, he could not tell whether God would forgive: He would ſet upon the meanes, he would cry mightily; and it hit well, for God ſpared the City: if thou wilt not ſet upon the meanes, thou doſt willingly periſh; and here I cleered two things, 1. That God appoints every man the meanes that he may uſe, he may uſe thoſe meanes that God commands him as meanes. 2. That if he will not, he does wilfully periſh.

Col. 4.6.

Note.

This confounds the Helkias of the Arminians.

Arguments to prove a wicked man may uſe the meanes that God appointeth as meanes.

I cannot heare the preaching of the Word, ſayeſt thou, I am deaf, I cannot heare Sermons, then that is not thy meanes: reading, which thou canſt; and meditating, which thou canſt, is thy meanes. Every man may uſe the meanes that God does appoint him as meanes.

1 Argu. First, becauſe its the very nature of meanes to come between ones can and his cannot, and therefore they are called media, becauſe they come in the midſt between a mans can and his cannot. By what meanes may I goe up to London? flying in the Aire is not any meanes. No, that is a Birds meanes and not mine, I cannot doe it; but my meanes is going, if I have legs; or riding if they be not able; or carrying if I cannot ride. Every mans mediums come in between that which he can and that which he cannot, and he is to use them, that that which he cannot he may be enabled to doe.

Media.

tween

Secondly, because God does not exhort men like a company of stocks and stones, but as men that are edifiable by his words. If there were no means they could possibly use, they were like stocks and stones. If they had no eares as means to let it in, no understanding as means to conceive it, no power of willing at least to set about it, then we should preach to a company of stocks: There must be some means propounded, that men are enabled to use (though by any power of their own they cannot doe it graciously) or else as good preach to a company of stocks. Now God protests he draws men as men may be drawn: I draw them with cords of a man, *Hos.*11.4. That is, with such cords as a man may be drawn with, not like a company of stocks and of stones; if ye have but the carnal reason of a man, these cords they would draw you. God draws you like men, with cords of a man: indeed in the quickning of the heart, and in point of repentance, a man is no more active then a stone. But when he draws you to the means, he draws you like men, and therefore ye may come if ye will, and if ye be but men, these cords are cords to draw men.

Thirdly, because Gods anger is very reasonable; when a Master is angry with a servant that may doe a thing and yet will not, we call his anger a very reasonableanger. I know Gods anger is very reasonable, for things which thou canst not; because once he gave thee power; but when he commendeth the meanes, now this anger is very reasonable. We our own selves count his anger very reasonable in the like case; what will he not do it? No not use the meanes for to do it? Would not this anger any body? Say we so, for these things sake comes the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. Eph. 5.6. That is for Adultery, for Fornication, for vain words, and vain hopes to be saved; for these things comes the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. He does not say for not being renewed, for not being converted, but for these things comes the wrath of God forth. He's angry for that, but his wrath comes generally forth upon men for these things because they will not use the meanes; They will not give over those sinnes which are the hinderances to conversion. This is very reasonable; if a man were not able to do it, there would be some shew at least of unreasonableness in Gods anger; but there is not any shew of unreasonableness in his anger, when men will not buckle to the meanes which they may. When God commanded the Egyptians to submit and be humbled, they would not; he commanded them at least to use the meanes to let his people goe, and they would not. You shall see how the Text sayes his anger now was very reasonable: there is a sweet phrase, *Psal.*78.50. He made a way to his anger: in the Hebrew tis he weighed a path to his anger. He weighed it in a ballance: Mark how reasonably and proportionably God is angry. He puts his anger and mens sins in a ballance, and weighs out the right measure of anger. When a servant forceth a master to be angry whether he will or no, he cannot complaine his Masters anger is unreasonable; he may go of his errands, and he will not; he may do this businesse, and he will not; if he cannot do the businesse it selfe, yet he may use the meanes, and will not. Now his Masters anger is very reasonable, because he forceth him to be angry: as the churning of milk bringeth forth butter, so the forcing of wrath bringeth forth strife. Prov.30. 33. He does even churn his Masters passions, and he forceth the same, as a churner forcing the milk to become butter, so he forces ones kindnesse to become anger; and therefore the anger is very reasonable. So God is very reasonable in his anger: wilt thou not use the meanes to be quickned? Suppose thou canst not quicken thy selfe, but wilt thou not see about the meanes? This churneth the Lords anger, and his anger is very reasonable. 3 Argu.

Fourthly, Gods offer of his Kingdome to the wicked is serious: if they were Argu.

were senseleſſe and quite dead, and could doe nothing, his offer were not ſerious: ſhould a man offer an hundred pounds to a dead carkaſe, here is an hundred pounds for you, if you'l take it, Ile give it you; this offer were not ſerious, becauſe the dead carkaſe is not able to ſtir, but is senſleſſe. True, in matter of Converſion it ſelfe a man is as dead as a carkaſe; nevertheleſſe he is not abſolutely a dead carkaſe to all uſe of the means; he hath the life of nature, and of reaſon, and of ſenſe, and therefore when God offers his Kingdome in the meanes, this offer is ſerious. Turne you at my reproofe, behold I will poure out my ſpirit unto you, Prov. 1.23. He ſpeaks there even of Reprobates and all, and he ſeriouſly offers them his Spirit, and therefore they might have gone about the means, but they would not; Vocatio Dei eſt ſeria, as our Divines doe all ſay, and therefore the means he appointeth may be uſed.

5. Argu. Fiftly, becauſe Gods reproofs are very equall. Should a man reprove a Cripple for not running, this reproofe were not equall, becauſe he is not able to doe it. I grant when God reproves the wicked for being ſinfull, ſuch reproofs are all equall, though they be not able to be without ſin: but then equality is grounded upon ſomething before, namely upon their voluntary Apoſtaſie and inability in Adam. But when God reproves them for not ſetting about the means, his reproofs then are very equall, and the equality is grounded upon their wilfulneſſe preſent: Will ye not feare me? ſayes God, I doe this and this. Mark, his reproof is very equall. God reproves Iſrael for not obſerving his Statutes, ſaying, the ſtatutes of Omri are kept. Mal. 6.16. You can obſerve his ſtatutes, why cannot you ſet about mine? he ſets up a Temple, you can goe conſtantly to it, why cannot you goe conſtantly to mine? The reproof was very equall. If thou wilt not ſet upon the means, thou art moſt equally condemned. I cannot Preach ſo often as ſome doe, nor be ſo much reſident as ſome are. No? Why wilt thou not give over one of thy two Livings then? Thou art able to doe that; If thou wilt not ſet upon the means, thy condemnation is equall. Thus I have confirmed this firſt Point, namely, that the wicked may uſe thoſe meanes, that the Lord commands them as means.

In the ſecond place I ſhewed, that this being thus, thy condemnation muſt be wilfull, if thou wilt not uſe all the means.

Arguments to prove it.

1 Argu. Firſt, The Lord will not help that man by a miracle to get, that hath legs to go and will not. Thou ſayſt thou wouldſt faine goe to Heaven; Tell me, what leg hath God given thee? what means hath he lent thee? If thou wilt not uſe them, the Lord will never help thee without. Had the Iſraelites had any meanes to have gotten over Jordan, as Ships, or Barks, Boats, or Bridges, or Fords, and they would not, he would never have helpt them over without. You know the Lord parted the waters, Joſh. 3. 13. but if they had refuſed the means, he would not have kept them on this manner without: if they had food ſufficient in the Wilderneſſe to eat, and they would not, he would not have rained food down upon them; had they had Shoomakers, and Drapers, and Cloth ſufficient to come by, and they would not, he would never miraculouſly have kept their garments from wearing. Its a tempting of God, when thou haſt the means, and wilt not be diligent in them, to deſire God to help thee without; thou wouldſt have thy children Gods children, thy family Chriſts family; then uſe the means. Set up the conſtant Invocation of Gods Name Morning and Evening among them; ſet up Reading, ſet up Catechiſing, and every good thing, or thou canſt never expect it. Wouldſt thou be holy and heavenly? then uſe the means; Talk of Heaven in thy meetings, reaſon about grace, inquire of good ſouls, and how may I come by an humble heart? How may I get faith, and be led by the ſpirit? If thou wilt not be conſtant in the uſe of the means, all thy prayers to God are nothing but temptings. Thou art troubled with by-thoughts; thou ſayſt thou wouldſt fain be delivered there-from, then uſe the means, be not so long without God every houre, pray every day oftner, strive in the duty the harder, if thou wilt not use the means, God will never help thee without. Thou art full of thy doubtings, thou sayest thou heartily desirest to be freed; then use them cans, or thou lyest: give over thy broad walking, thy broad acquaintance, those that have no more holinesse in them then the flock are thy holiest friends; if thou wilt not use the means, God will never assure thee without, nor convert thee without; if Dives his five brethren will not heare Moses and the Prophets, they shall have no miracle from the dead, Luk. 16. 28. if God lend thee the means, he will not save thee without.

means

Secondly, God will not bate a farthing of the price he sets thee at; when a Tradesman hath once set his lowest price, he will not goe lower. Now the use of the means are Gods lowest price, the Lord will not bate a farthing of that; wherefore is a price put into the hand of a foole? Prov. 17. 16. the meanes of grace are this price, and the price is in thy hands; when the Lord vouchsafes thee the means, he wont bate thee a farthing of this price. He sets this price on his mercies and graces, thou must use all the means; not as though grace might be valued, for it exceedeth all prices; or as though grace were not free, yea its free and without price; its fit though that this price should be set upon the elect, that the proud beggar should choose to receive it; if thou wilt not give the price that God hath put into thy hand, thou art worthy to misse it. I will give so much, and labour so much, and pray so much, and reforme so much. No, no; that will not do. Christ will have further odds peony too, thy filthy speaking must off, and thy base passions and old courses must off, be I have thee stoop to all his holy means, wouldst thou have it cheaper? Mine own children and Saints never had it cheaper. Not Abraham, not Isaac, not Jacob, nor Paul, they were fain to use all holy means, to abandon every lust, to set up every duty, invocation in their families, meditation in their hearts, examination in their consciences, holy communication in their mouthes; none of my Saints had it cheaper: & thou makest a mock of them for praying so much, and professing so much, so much hearing, and so much gadding after Sermons, &c. Well, well, I'le not bate thee one duty, nor one lust, nor one carnall desire, I'le have thee set about all, or thou shalt never have mercy. Yea but I cannot find in my heart to put up this, nor to be abridged of this, and shall Christ and thou part for one single farthing? Perish then, and go and thank thine own will for it in Hell. God is resolved upon this price, & this is the lowest. 2 Argu.

Thirdly, God will never be brought out of his walke, thou canst never look that God should come out of his walke to shew thee any mercy, or give thee any grace. Now the way wherein God walkes, is the meanes of grace and of salvation; There thou must look for God, or thou canst have no hope for to find him. Suppose a poore petitioner should come with his petition to the King, he can never look to have the King come downe hither to Rochford to grant it him; No, he must go up to the King. The King is at Court at White-Hall, and there he may have him; if he will not go thither, he is wilfull, and if his petition be not granted, he may thank his own will: So thou canst not looke to fetch God out of his own walke, the means of grace and salvation, endeavour to obey his sayings, eryings, seekings, &c. These and other means of salvation are his walke, these are the wayes wherein they must wait to find God, if they would have him, in the way of thy judgements have we waited for thee. Isa. 26. 8. There the Godly wait for the Lord in the way where his walke is, he will not be spoken with, but only there in his walke. If thou wilt not seeke him there, thou maist thank thine own will, if thou misse him; ye that are negligent to hold out in Gods wayes, ye can never look to find mercy while ye live. Pray for mercy, and cry for mercy, and grone for mercy, ye must looke to perish without it: if ye will not seeke it in his wayes, you'le seeke him in some, but you will not seke him in all, assure your selves then you shall misse of him; do you thinke 3 Argu.

the King will come to you, to grant your petitions? you muſt goe up to him, and take him where he is to be ſpoken with. God will not be ſpoken with but only in his wayes; the Jewes received Sacraments enough, every meales meat is a new Sacrament in the Wildernesse, afterwards they prayed prayers enough, but I will not heare you ſayes God, there will nee of your ſeeking for mercy, waſh you, make you cleane, put away from you the evill of your doing. Learne to do well; come now and let us reaſon together, if your ſins be as red as Scarlet, I'le whiten them. Now he'l be ſpoken with if you will come hither; What not caſt his feare off in thy family? not give over thy baſe carnall comforts? keep ſuch diſorders under thy roofe, and in thy life? ſweare ſtill? and give place to the Devill ſtill? curſed paſſions ſtill? mock at any children ſtill? Doſt thou walke in theſe wayes and hope to find good? No; as good cut off a doggs neck, as give him ſacrifice of prayers as long as you walke in your own wayes, Eſay 66.3. you muſt ſeeke him in the wayes that he walkes in, and not chooſe your own wayes, heele never come out of his way for any of you all; what ſhall I doe Lord? ſayes Saul, he would faine have ſpoken with God there. No, no, goe to Ananias, &c. if thou wilt not ſeeke him in his way, thou art well ſerved if thou miſſeſt him.

I beſeech you conſider this point, you can never looke to be ſaved, except youle ſet your ſelves to do what you may, and uſe all thoſe means that you may, for though the uſe of the means does not ſave you, yet they are the way, though not cauſa regnandi, yet via regni; and if you will not conſtantly uſe them, you can never have his Kingdome.

Reaſons of it.

First, becauſe Heaven is an end, and an end can never be gotten without means; the end is eternall life. Rom. 6.22. eternall life is an end, and therefore except the means be all uſed, you can never attaine it.

Secondly, God hath annexed it to the means; all Heaven and Earth can never ſeparate them; either uſe all the means that God hath appointed, or elſe he hath decreed it, ye ſhall never be ſaved. When he hath once appointed theſe and theſe ſhall be your means, theſe ſhall you uſe for't, ye ſhall never be ſaved without them. When God hath appointed their abiding in the ſhip a means of their eſcape, you ſhall ſee what Paul ſayes, except theſe abide in the ſhip, ye cannot be ſaved, Act. 27. So tis for Heaven, except ye abide in the means, ye cannot be ſaved.

Thirdly, Every ſoul muſt give an account before God, how he hath uſed the means, whether he hath uſed them all yea or no. And according as the account is he can give, ſo ſhall his judgement be. God hath ſworne this, as I live ſaith the Lord; God hath pawned his own life upon this, that thus it ſhall be. As I live ſaith the Lord, every knee ſhall bow to me, and every tongue ſhall confeſſe to God: every one of us all ſhall give an account unto God, Rom. 14.11, 12. every one of us, God will exempt none, we muſt all be brought to an account for theſe things: will not thy heart bow to it? As I live ſaith the Lord, I'le make every knee bow to it, I'le make you bow or I'le break you for ever: as good do it as not, for ye ſhall give an account whether ye have done it or no.

Fourthly, beloved, God will not ſet up another door into Heaven for any man in the World: either come in at this, or you ſhall never come in. He'l never make another Bible, either be ruled by this or by none: He'l never chalk out another way, either go this way or chooſe, and periſh in thy wilfulneſſe. The drunkards way ſhall never be his way, the worldlings way ſhall never be his, nor the lazy Goſpellers his, nor the careleſſe profeſſors his, hee'le never change wayes, nor are my wayes your wayes, Eſay 55.8. you muſt amend your wayes, Jer. 7.3. and come unto his way, or ye ſhall never eſcape the evil to come: can there be any reaſonabler way then this?

Proofs.

Proofs.

First, Some of the meanes that God hath appointed you may do them without labour, you may do them with ease: do but say, I will, and it is done: What labour is it to say, company-keepers shall not sit drinking in my house? There is never an Ale-house in your Town, but if they will, they may roote out disorders from their houses: their own wills do destroy them. It is no labour in the world to do this, and will ye not do it? perish then, and thank your own wills.

Secondly, some of the meanes that God hath appointed, are easier then them, onely that you would give way to another to do them: may be the wife would have prayers in the family, if the husband would give way. The Minister would teach you, if you would give way: The Lord Jesus might work many things in you, if you would give way: this is lesse then to will. You that have good Wives, who would reform sundry things, if you would give way &c. I beseech you apply it particularly to your selves, your sin is wilfull, if ye yeild not, and will not give way.

Thirdly, Some of the meanes are yet easier, for some of the meanes of grace are better for you, even in your carnall and worldly respects. You say that's the easiest of all for a man to favour himself and his flesh: As for example, the reforming of your gaming, dicing, carding in your Inns, your drunkennesse and bezeling are the pot, your pride and your geygawes, and the like: would not this favour your purses, and be more agreeable to your very carnall respects? and therefore you that do not reform these, you pluck wilfull perdition on your heads.

Fourthly, some of the meanes of grace are harder to omit them then to use them: Many of you meet with more hardships in the omission, then you could light upon in the practice of them: I need not instance the particulars, they are very familiar.

Fifthly, some of the meanes of grace, be they hard, yet they are but hard, they are not impossible for you to use. They will ask no more then a little labour and diligence, and therefore omitted onely by reason of wilfulnesse.

I hope by this time you see clearly the truth of this ground. If ye will not set your selves to use the meanes of grace and salvation, when ye die you must needs lay the blame on your wills: And why will ye so? why will ye die, O house of Israel?

But notwithstanding the evidence of this truth, The wisdome of the flesh which is enmity against God, fils carnall minds with many objections against it: from all which I shall endeavour to vindicate it, by answering them all in order.

1 Object. The first objection is drawn from those Scriptures which say they cannot.

2 Object. From their own willingnesse, they would, but they cannot.

3 Object. Is from their own desires, they desire to do it, but they are not able.

4 Object. Is from their resolutions, they purpose, but whether they will or no, they are faine to break their good purposes.

5 Object. Is from their good endeavours (as they say:) they labour against their sins, and yet they are transported into them, insomuch before they are aware, to be overtaken in company &c. We will answer them in order.

1 Object. answered. As to the first Objection from the Scriptures which say they cannot, I answer.

Here are five cannots in Scripture:

Instead the Scriptures speaks of five cannots:

1 Cannot. First, of a naturall cannot; every man is borne by nature under a cannot believe, and a cannot love God. But there is difference between thy cannot repent, and thy doest not repent: there is difference betwixt these two.

The cause of thy cannot is one thing, and the cause of thy dost not is another. The cause of thy cannot is the carnalnesse of nature, but the cause of thy dost not, is the wilfulnesse of thy will. The naturall man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishnesse to him; neither indeed can he, for they are spiritually discerned, 1 Cor. 2. 14. Where the Apostle makes a different cause of a naturall mans cannot, and his does not: when he speaks of his cannot, he tells us the cause of that is because grace is spirituall, and he carnall. Neither indeed can he, because they are spiritually discerned: but when he speakes of his does not, you see he alledges a different cause of his does not. The naturall man does not receive the things of the Spirit of God; they are foolishnesse unto him; he counts them all foolish. He is so wilfull in his own carnall reason, that he counts it folly to deny it. Thou canst not do this and this dost thou say? Why then wilt thou count it folly to do so? when a man crosses thee of thy will, thou counteſt it folly to put it up, as were a foole if I should be so prodse as some be: I were a foole if I should not suffer a little disorder in my house, as long as I going by it. This is meere wilfulnesse; this, and not a cannot, is a cause of thy dost not. Thou canst not indeed because thou art carnall, but thy cannot is dead and not operative: thy will is the cause of thy does not; Like the wilfull blind man, he was blind and would not open his eye-lids. He could not see, but his cannot lay dead, for he would not open his eye-lids: his cannot is not operative till he will open his eye-lids. If he could see, yet he could not till he would open his eye-lids; so thou wilt not open thine eye-lids.

Secondly, the Scripture speakes of a dollier are cannot, when a man cannot do a thing, onely because he cannot find in his heart to do it. Thou canst not repent of this and that sinne and forsake it, the truth is, thy cannot is this, thou canst not find in thy heart to forgoe it. Such a course is profitable and pleasing to thy flesh, thou canst not find in thy heart to abandon it, thou canst not find in thy heart to be friends with such a one; to part with thy vanities, or to abridge thy selfe of thine angry speeches when thou art tird, &c. Thou canst not find in thy heart so do it. As the Jewes, you cannot believe, saya Christ, because ye seeke honour one of another. Joh. 5. 44. they would faine be well thought of of all their acquaintance, and therefore they could not find in their hearts to believe in Christ. Obedience would make thee to be out of favour with the Pharisees, and to be counted basely of in the World. Therefore they could not find in their heart to believe, now this is no excuse, thou canst not turne unto God, thou canst not find in thy heart to part with thy lusts, this is thy cannot.

3 Cannot. Thirdly, the Scripture speakes of a judiciall cannot, as a rogue cannot goe, because for his loytering the Magistrate hath tyed him in the stocks; This doth not excuse thee one jot; shall the villaine be wilfull in his loytering, and then complaine of the Magistrate that he is not able to go about his worke? I cannot goe about my worke sayes he; and who bad him be so idle as not to goe about it, when he might? Thou hast gone on may be wilfully in thy sinnes, and now the Lord hath inflicted a judiciall cannot upon thee. Thou canst not come out of thy sinnes, may the Lord hath cast this cannot upon thee in judgement; he hath set thee in the stockes for thy wilfull security. As the wicked Jewes, they could not believe, sayes the Text, because Esaias saith, He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their hearts, Joh. 12. 39, 40. could they excuse themselves for their cannot? No, the Lord had set them in the stockes for their wilfulnesse and security. They could not believe, for they had wilfully provoked the Lord to cast this cannot upon them in judgement.

4 Cannot. Fourthly, the Scripture speaks of a compounded cannot, as cannot in Iure compositis, as we call it, a cannot in a compounded sense. As a Drunkard cannot conduct his family, his power wife and children. They as long as he lies here

sing

fing on the Ale-bench he cannot, in a compounded sense he cannot. Aristotle sets it out by sitting; he that is sitting cannot walk, that is, as long as he is sitting he cannot walk. As Christ saith of a carnall man, he cannot be my disciple: he cannot in a compounded sense: He that cometh to me, and hates not father and mother, and wife, and children, yea and his own life, cannot be my Disciple; Luk. 14. 26. he cannot indeed so long as he stands upon these terms, My father will not love me, and my mother will not like me; if I should be one of your Disciples, my friends would not own me; I must doe as I doe, or I cannot keep my wife and children. Indeed as long as thou standst on these terms, thou canst not be a Disciple of Christ, thou canst not in a compounded sense, but if thou wouldst; divide it, thou mightst: no man can serve two masters, Mat. 6. 4. mark; compound them together and he cannot; but if he would give over one, he might serve the other: thou canst not thou sayest; No, I yeeld thee in a compounded sense thou canst not; thou canst not as long as thou art thou carelesse as thou art, as long as thou favourest thy self in such and such lusts, thou canst not. The compounding of thy security and laxinesse with Religion, that is the reason why thou canst not; this is it that makes our prayers hard, and our repentings hard, our believings and all our performances hard; because we would fain be compounding. We have much adoe to Pray, our hearts can hardly be brought to wrestle, much adoe to be humbled, our wils will hardly stoop; if it were not for these compoundings, these duties were easie. And what excuse hast thou hence? none at all: for its a cannot onely in the compounded sense that thou makest it. Impossibile est sedentem ambulare. Note.

Fifthly, the Scripture speaks of a humbling cannot, a cannot not to bolster thee up in thy excuses, but onely to humble thee, that thou mayst be driven out of thy selfe unto God. A servant cannot live, except it be his Masters pleasure to take pitty on him; Is this any pretence to him to anger his Master? or to be negligent of his Masters commands? nay rather it forceth him to be so much the more carefull to obey him, and to be humble before him. So the Scripture sayes, that thou canst not without God, except God shew mercy on thee to convert thee and save thee, thou canst not be accepted of him. All this is to humble thee, not to help thee withexcuse. Tush I cannot doe as his Ministers doe bid me, I cannot mortifie these sins, I cannot be so strict, this is too much precisenesse you speak of. O murmure not, this cannot is only to humble thee murmure not among your selves; No man cometh to me, except the Father draw him, Joh. 6. 43, 44. This is no reason why thou shouldst murmure or carpe, or be stubborne as thou art, thou canst not come at Christ, except the Father take pitty on thee to draw thee. Thou hast so much the more reason to be humbled, and not to goe on wittingly and wilfully as thou dost. Canst thou not be holy and saved, except he be pleased to pitty thee? in what a wofull case then art thou, to provoke him as thou dost? So much shall suffice for thy first Objection drawn out of the Scripture. 5 Cannot.

The second thing thou objectest, is thy willingnesse; thou wouldst as thou pretendest, but thou canst not.

And answer thee for this. 2 Object. answered.

First, may be its the will of thy conscience, and not the will of thy heart; thy heart is carnall and unacquainted with God, and so its contented to be, onely thy conscience would have thee grow better and more heavenly, but thy heart will not yeeld; and therefore all thy willings are nothing but deludings; they are onely the willings of conscience, and not of thy heart. Thou art chafing and fretting every foot, thy conscience tells thee thou shouldst not; thou art praying carnally every day, when thou hast done, conscience sayes thou shouldst pray holyer then so, conscience would, but thou wilt not, conscience would have thee get assurance for Heaven, but thou wilt not be at the paines. Alas, this makes thee inexcusable, for now thou condemnest thy selfe, and yet wilt wilt sin; Thou art inexcusable O man whosoever thou art that judgest, for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thy selfe, Rom. 2. 1. Mark, when a man condemneth himself, he is inexcusable. (I doe not now quote it for the particular the Apostle does instance there for judging another) for the truth is the same, whatsoever sinne we doe instance in, the truth is this that Paul grounds his speech on: He that condemneth himself in a sin, and yet will go on in it, that man is inexcusable. What now hast thou gotten by thy plea? thou wouldst, thou sayst; this makes thy sinne to be worse, in that thy conscience would, and yet for all that thou wilt not.

Note.

Secondly, may be its a copulative will; thou hast a will to repent and be godly, but it is with a copulative will. Repentance and some lust, Godlinesse and some lust; thou wouldst fain please the Lord and thine own lust too; be religious and proud too; believe in Christ and covet too; and be vain too, &c. Thou hast a will but it is a copulative will, to serve God and do this too; Pish, cannot I serve God, and doe this too? No, no, this same copulative will is a flat contradiction. Couple light and darknesse? Christ and Belial? 2 Cor. 6. 15. It's a contradiction to imagine to couple them, for they cannot possibly be coupled. And therefore this same copulative will is nothing but a mockery, and the truth still is this, thou wilt not.

Thirdly, May be thou hast a woulding will; this is no will, but onely a velleity; so thou hast a woulding will. I would do as well as any other, but I cannot; to speake properly this is no will, for its onely that will wherewith fooles will things impossible; I would I were at London with a wish, sayes he; I would I could flie as well as an Eagle. These things are impossible, and therefore its no will, but meere folly; thus may be thou willest grace, I would with all my heart I could do as God sayes, God knowes my heart, my will is good, I would be better then I am; And yet thy conscience can call for some thing or other to be mended, and thou wilt not. This is an impossibility, and therefore no will; like the foole that would sit in his chaire, I, and would I were at London, he would faine be at London, and sit still. So thou sittest at the same passe, I would I were in Christ; thou wouldest faine be in Christ, and yet thou art loth to stirre out of that base temper thou art in. This is an impossibility, a folly and no will, woulding and no willing. I grant the Saints of God have their wouldings, and their would does go further then their will; their will is absolutely set to be holy, and they would be more holy; their will is deeply to be humbled, and they would be deeper; their would is grounded on a will, they will in some measure and they would goe further. I will, oh that I could will more! But thou that liest in thy sinfull estate, thy would is pure folly. A would grounded upon a will not, is foppish; the Saints would is grounded upon a will; but thine, the root at bottome is this, thou wilt not.

Note;

Fourthly, may be thou hast a generall metaphysicall will, but to come particulars, there thou wilt sin. I hate the Saints of God? God forbid; I'le never hate them while I live; and yet come to this Saint and that Saint, him thou wilt hate; him? He is the veriest hypocrite in the Country, and keepes more adoe then needs. Thus thy will is good to a company of metaphysical Saints in the clouds; but those that are Gods Saints in particular, there mockest. I be stubborne against the Commandements of God? I will not be stubborne against them; yea, but this and that Commandement thou wilt not observe! Thou wilt not thinke best of them of whom thou shouldest, nor take up that carriage in meetings that thou shouldest; thou hast a good will to the Commandements in affliction, but thy will stands against the particulars of them. Generals are but Notions, when they are abstracted from the particulars. And therefore thy will is but a Notion; the will when it willeth indeed, willeth particulars, this particular duty, this particular Ordinance. Indeed good in,

When carnall men can discover no other blemish in the Saints, then they charge them with hypocrisy.

the

the generall is the object of the will, but when the will comes to will in the exercise of it, it pitcheth on particulars.

Fifthly, thou hast no true will. I speak still to the carnall, I say thou hast no true will, because if thou truly didst will thou couldst; if thou didst truly will to believe, and will to be a new creature, thou couldst; for the will it hath potentiam executivam, so farre as it will, &c. It hath an executing power to goe so farre as it wills; if thou didst truly and really will to speak holy, thy will would make thy tongue to put it in execution. If thou hadst a will, thy will would command execution, my tongue shall speak the praise of the Lord, sayes David, Psal. 145. 21. 172. my soul it shall praise thee, verse 175. I grant the wounding of the will goes further then all execution can goe; to will is present with me, but how to perforate that which is good, I find not, Rom. 7. 18. I quote this place the rather, because many wrest it to their own destruction. Oh sayes a wicked man, I have a good will, I would as Paul sayes, but I cannot performe, thus men misinterpret this place; for look how farre Paul would, he could performe, for the will hath potentiam executivam, and an imperative force over the man. What he did will, he did performe, he performed it in his heart, and tongue, and hand, only further he would draw his will forwarder then it was; but he could not; his very will was partly unwilling, he could not indeed performe so much as he would, that is, he could not draw on his will so strongly as he would. His will was not perfectly sanctified; no Saint in this World hath any perfect completnesse of will, and therefore his performance is not perfect, because his will is not perfect. I say if thy will be converted to God, thou thy self art converted to God, obedience goes as farre as the will. And therefore if thou art willing, its certain thou art obedient; if ye be willing and obedient, sayes the text, Isa. 1. 19. whosoever is willing to obey, that man does obey in some measure, because the will hath power of execution, and the whole man at command. This is the reason why Divines say, that the sincerity of the will is the condition of the Gospel; wherefore if thou beest not obedient, neither art thou willing to obey; all the powers of thy soule, and all the members of thy body, thy will hath an actus imperativus to command them. Now if thy will will not command them to yeild, thou art not so much as willing at all. If a Justice of peace should tell me he would give me a warrant, and yet when all comes to all he will not command his clerk to write it, nor his own hand to set to it, I see plainly he will not. Dost thou say, I would obey Christ, and I would deny my self, why then dost thou not command thy Clerke to write it? If thy will will not command tongue, Tongue thou shalt never talk so unprofitably as thou hast done, and Eare thou shalt never hearken after vanity as thou hast done, and thoughts, Thoughts ye shall never run at rovers as ye have done: If your will were but willing it would command your whole soul, Soul thou shalt not doe as thou hast done: as Davids will commanded his soul, O my soul blesse the Lord, and forget thou not all his benefits, Psal. 103. 2. Nay, he commanded all that was in him, all that is in me blesse his holy Name, vers. 1. So if thou wert willing, thy will would command all thy soul; soul thou shalt not be so seldome at the throne of grace as thou art, &c. Thus much of the second objection drawn from the will.

Objection the third.

But I doe desire to doe it, and therefore thou dost me finde at a will not.

3. Objection answered.

I answer thee, who can tell best what is in thee, God or thine own heart? verily the Lord that did make it is likeliest to know best. Now the Lord sayes peremptorily, thou desirest not grace; yea, and thy heart sayes so too, and the Lord hears it, though thou hearest it not; they said unto God, depart from us, we desire not the knowledge of thy wayes, Job 21. 14. Nevertheless, because thou standest so stoutly upon it, that thou dost desire grace, I'le tell thee the reason of thy mistake.

First,

First, thou hast putative or thinking desires, thou thinkest thou desirest, and therefore thou art mistaken; like Seneca's young scholler, that said, he desired to be good. I doe not say, saith he, he lies, but putat se velle, He thinks that he desires, so thou sayest thou desirest, I will not say thou lyest, but thou thinkest thou dost so; now alas thy thoughts are the vainest things in the World. How long shall vain thoughts lodge within thee? Jer. 4.14. thy thoughts are very vaine, there is no trusting in them. Naaman thought, I thought, saith he; but how wide his thought was the story declares. Haman thought, he thought in his heart, saies the Text; but these thoughts came to nothing but a Gallowes and a Halter. Ishbibenob thought, but you know what his thoughts did come unto; it fell foule on his own head, nothing is more vaine then the thoughts of carnall mens hearts, so thou thinkest thou desirest, alas thy thoughts is but vanity.

2 King. 5.21

Hest. 6.6.

Secondly, thou hast ignorant desires, thou dost desire to be one of Gods Saints, thou desirest it ignorantly; for when thou comest to see who the Saints be, Surely, such and such whom thou conceivest to be strange people and Puritans them thou hast no desire to be one. Thou desirest to goe after Christ, then dost ignorantly desire it, for when thou seest thou must take up his cross, then thou hast no desire thereunto; as the Prophet speaks of Christ in the person of the Church, when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. Esay. 53.2. thou desirest with ignorant desires before thou seest who he is; but when thou seest who he is, thou dost not desire him. Thou desirest his grace, thou desirest to believe and repent, and to put up injuries, these are ignorant desires before thou seest what they be; but when thou seest what they be, what the injury is that thou shouldst put up, then thou dost not desire to put it up; what the sinne is that thou shouldst leave, then thou dost not desire for to leave it; when thou seest them, then thou dost not desire them. When we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

Thirdly, thou hast wandering desires. Oh saith one, you have a happy turne, you have good Preaching, and good meanes to be godly, and be edified. I desire to be so; but alas our Minister does not Preach, and we have a dumb dog, and I am in a very wicked place, If I were as you are, I should count my self happy. God knowes, I desire heartily the edification of my soul; thus thy desires wander after other mens cases, and thou wilt not stirre out for thine own. Now dost thou desire to be edified, when thou wilt not stir out two or three miles to be edified? Thy desires are like wandering vagrants, that will be every where wandering, but only there where they should be. So thy desires goe roving up and downe, you are happy, and he is happy and thou art unwilling in the meane time to labour, where and how God hath appointed thee. These are none but gadding, wandering desires, better is the sight of the eyes than the wandering of the desire. Ecclesiast. 6.9. thy desires wander abroad to a roaming company of wishes, but thou wilt not observe that which God gives thee to see; thus much of the third Objection drawn from desire.

The fourth Objection.

Thou resolvest and hast good purposes, but oh thou canst not performe them.

I answer thee, doe but consider what thy purpose is, and thou shalt see how thou art cozened; these purposes thou speak'st of are only voluntates de futuro: I will hereafter look to it better than I have done hereafore. Hereafter I will, I purpose, that is hereafter I will; alas, this will for hereafter is no will.

First, because its only to shuffle off the willing for the present. Now the heart is unwilling to obey, and therefore it puts off the commandment to hereafter, not for any such desire that it hath to doe it hereafter, but only because it is unwilling to doe it for the present. Like a man that is unwilling to lend, He lend you hereafter, saies he. Say not unto thy neighbour, goe and come again, again, & to morrow I will give thee, when thou hast it by thee, Pr. 3.28 his purpose to lend him to morrow, was onely because he would shuffle off the lending to day. And therefore this purpose of willing hereafter, is no will at all, but onely to shuffle off the willing for the present. Thou hast the opportunity by thee, why dost thou not take it? thou hast the temptation by thee, why dost thou not resist it? dost thou say thou hast a will for hereafter? that is but a gull, that thou mayst not will for the present.

Secondly, this will for hereafter is no will, because it goes without Gods; no will can go without God. Gods will is now, he would have thee now, and thou wilt not, thou wilt hereafter, but then may be he will not. He that will not when he may, when he would he shall have nay; afterwards when thou wouldst fain be converted, and pardoned, &c. Lord open to me, nay but O man, when I would thou wouldst not, now thou wouldst, but I will not, thy will for hereafter goes without Gods, and therefore tis no will.

Thirdly, thy will for hereafter is no will, because thou shalt misse those suppositions that thou willest upon.

First, thou supposest thou shalt have fewer temptations hereafter. O when these troubles are over, and these temptations are over, I will; nay, but O man, when these are all over, new ones will come; and if the temptation for the present be a hindrance, some temptation or other as bad thou shalt meet with, that shall hinder thee hereafter much more, & therefore this supposition is false.

Secondly, thou supposest thou shalt be fitter hereafter, but, Qui non est hodie, eras minimum aptus erit if thou beest not fit now, much lesse wilt thou be afterwards; thou'lt be unfitter and unfitter, like meat, the longer it is kept, the unfitter tis to be eaten, and therefore this supposition is false too.

Fourthly, thy will for hereafter is no will, but a mockery. Antigonus I shall, Antigonus, I will give, this is not good in mens Lawes, much lesse in Gods. Dabo, I will give; this is no gift, sayes the Law. So resipiscam, I will repent; this is no repentance, sayes God. Thus you see this Objection is nothing, never tell me of thy purposes, thy purposes are willings for hereafter, and they are no wills at all.

5 Object. answered.

The fifth Objection.

Thou endeavourest and labourest to serve God, and to be saved.

I answer thee, Alas? Is this to labour for grace, and for Heaven, when thou labourest so idelly? as God said of that fasting, so may I say of thy labour, is this the fast that I have chosen? to afflict a mans selfe for a day? So, is this the labour that I have chosen? To labour so as thou labourest? but I need not to insist on this plea, thy conscience is able to answer it. Thou labour? thy conscience knowes well enough thou art lazy, thou dost not labour for holinesse; so then thy impenitency is wilfull, and thy damnation wilfull, and thy ruine wilfull.

To conclude then, understand all you that will not hear and obey.

First that your destruction is from your selfe, you cannot cast it upon God; he offers you the means to escape it, and you will not, Hos. 13.9.

Secondly, your destruction is most just, you cannot alledge severity and cruelty; no; your selves are cruell ones: You judge your own selves unto Hell. The Lord presseth the Gospel of grace upon you, and you put it off Act. 13.46.

Thirdly, your destruction is inexcusable, you having nothing to excuse you: God hath taken away all clokes of excuses, he hath offered you saving knowledge, & you would not, a Christ, and ye would not: good motions, counsells, threatnings, and you would not. Your mouthes are quite stopped when you perish, Matth. 22.12.

Fourthly, your destruction is unavoidable; if you would have relented and yeilded, there might have been hope, but you would not. You have hardned your neckt, and what's that but a will not? Therefore you shall be destroyed without remedy, Prov. 29.1.

Fifthly, your destruction is pittiesse; what eye can pitty you? Will will have will, though Will will have you, as we say; not God, nor Angels, nor Saints, no eye can pitty you. If the thiefe will stealе, and will to the Gallowes, let him go, he is no object of pitty: as we say of a wilfull man, no tale can tune him to take heed, so no means can tune you to take heed; and therefore when you rue it, you cannot be pitied.

Sixthly, your destruction is grievous; of all plagues, none will fret more then theis which one hath wilfully pulld on himselfe. You'l one day gnash your own teeth, curse your own wils, banne your own hearts; woe is me, I am under the rod, and my selfe gathered it; in Hell, and my selfe kindled it. I might have prevented it, but I would not.

Now followes the Application.

Use 1: Learne instruction then, left ye perish wilfully; reforme as much as you may, downe with all your disorders, stumbling-blocks of iniquities, and all the Idols of your hearts, and cast them into the brooke Kidron. Set up good courses as much as you may, use all the means to salvation as humbly as you may; let not any family be without the due worship of God in it. Fathers, suffer not sinne in your children, nor Masters in your servants, lie not, sweare not, covet not, omit not the exercises of hope, left ye justly, inexcusable, unavoydably, pittiesly perish, and so reproach your owne wils for ever in Tophet; as David then said unto Solomon, after he had set him businesses to do, arise therefore and be doing, and the Lord be with thee, sayes he, 1 Chron. 22. 16. So I may say to you, Arise and be doing; up, set about it, use no excuses, humble your selves before God, see your misery and bewaile it, and the Lord be with you.

But may be you will say, this Doctrine is Pelagianisme, or Arminianisme at least. Nay then, let me tell you, tis Arminianisme to hold the contrary. You make your wills so be your own, and free for to will, that say your wils are so to repent, but you cannot. And if God should give you a posse, ye profess your selves to be of the Pelagian heresie; if God should give you a power you would adde the will. To passe over this, and so to go on.

Except the beliefe of this truth do sink into thy heart, thou canst never soundly be humbled; if thou shouldst say, Lord, I would faine have repented all this while, but I could not, thou never soundly wert humbled: a man is never humbled as long as he excuses himselfe: thou sayest I would be holier, I would pray better, and I would reform more, but I cannot; this is to fall to excuses, and not to be humbled: For,

First, thou excusest thy self for all transgressions besides originall. A man must be humbled for his actuall sins as well as originall, and count himself inexcusable for one as well as tother. But thou pittiest all thy humiliation upon thy Apostacy in Adam, if now thou pleadest a cannot. Lord I confess I was conceived in sin, but now I cannot do withall; I cannot do otherwise though I would never so fain. I cannot but drink now & then & be drunk, I cannot but rap out an Oath now and then in my haste, &c. I confess I brought this cannot upon me in the loyns of Adam, but upon the supposall of that, doest thou bid me give over my sins? I cannot, this is not to be humbled but to fall to excuses. Its true, actuall corruption which naturally flows from originall, requires that one and self same humiliation that originall does. But otherwise thou must be humbled with a new humiliation for thine actuall transgressions, or else thou art not humbled but pleadest excuses. David humbles himselfe for both, with one humiliation for the one, Psal. 51. 5. with another for the other, v. 3. But as long as thou pleadest on this fashion, thou excusest thy self for thy actuall sins, and never art humbled.

2 Excuse. Nay 2ly, thou excusest thy self for thy originall sin too. Lord, I would be without sin, but I cannot, if I could I would: belike then if it had been thy case as it was Adam, thou wouldst not have eaten of the forbidden fruit. And therefore it was his fault and not thine, thou wouldst not have sinned if thou couldst have otherwise chosen. And therefore thou excusest thy self for that too, for thou sayest thou wouldst not have sinned if thou hadst been as he, he tempted when he might have otherwise chosen; but thou wouldst not have done so. Thus thou excusest thy self for thine originall sinne too; And therefore thou canst not be humbled as long as thou pleadest thus; the truth is thou didst willingly sin as well Adam. God made man upright, but they have sought out many inventions. Eccles. 7. 29. he speaketh of Adam, being upright, God made Adam upright: he does not say but man hath found out many inventions, as though it were his fault alone that was created upright. No, God made man upright, but they, marke, he casts the blame upon every man as well as Adam, for they have sought out many inventions. Thus we must be humbled for our originall corruption: but thou canst not be humbled as long as thou pleadest in this manner; no, thou excusest thy self, and therefore thou wert never yet humbled. Note.

Nay thirdly, thou excusest thy self for every sin, thou makest all thy sins to be nothing but infirmities, as though Pauls case were thine: the good which I would do, that do I not, and the evill which I would not do, that do I. I would be godlier then I am, but I cannot, and therefore thou makest all thy sins to be infirmities. What is a sin of infirmity but a sin the will protesteth against? thou sayest that thy will protesteth against every one of thy sins, thou wouldst leave them, but thou canst not. See then how farre thou art from sound humiliation: thy presumptuous sins are all nothing with thee, thy stubbornesse nothing, and thy wilfulnesse nothing, to all thy sins are infirmities. Nay, thou makest thy sins to be pardonable only infirmities, invincible infirmities; invincible infirmities are the most pardonable of all. Now when thou sayest thou sticketh at a Cannot, thou makest thy sins not only infirmities, but also invincible infirmities, such as thou could not possibly avoid; thou wouldst fain avoid them but thou canst not: and therefore if thou gonst this way to work, thou canst never be humbled. 3 Excuse. Sin of infirmity.

Nay fourthly, Thou commendest thy self more then God, say if ever God should enable thee and give thee power to be a new creature, thou makest thy self more beholding to thy self then to God. The will is more then the power: the will to believe, and repent, and convert, is more then the power. Actus secundus est nobilior actu primo. To be able to believe, and to be able to repent, and become a new Creature, these are but first acts. If God would help thee to these, thou sayest thou wouldst adde rother. Thou wouldst believe, and thou wouldst convert, and thou wouldst be a new creature: if God would give thee the power, thou wouldst adde the Act. And therefore thou commendest thy self more then God: for in morall powers which have a further reference unto Act, the act is more noble then the power. The truth is, the will is better then the power of doing: and both is of God and so the Apostle does shew it. Its God that worketh in you, speaking of the Saints, Its God that worketh in you both the will and the deed, Phil. 1. 13. Mark, the will and the deed: First the will, and then power to bring it into deed; the will is the primary blessing of God. And this is the reason why a Child of Gods estate is now better under Christ, then it was before in innocency; for then he had only power if he would, and now both the will and the deed. I say this is the truth, the will is more then the power, and therefore thou wert never humbled in thy self, that pleadest, O I would if I could; thou makest thy self more beholding to thy self then to God: if God should ever convert thee, and therefore thou art not yet capable of conversion, why? thou art not yet humbled, but standst at proud terms with the Lord. 4 Excuse. Note.

5 Excuse.

Aput Cæsarem dicam, Domine, dare me quod no vis.

Nay fifthly, thou canst not so much as pray to God for a will, thou art so proud, that thou art conceited thou hast that already. I have a good will to be good, as any body else, but I cannot, sensibly do as I would, so that all thy prayers to God are a mockery. Tragedy humble soul prayes as the ancient Church used to pray: Lord give me a will to be good, which my will is strong enough. But thou canst not pray so, thou art a richer beggar than so; for thou hast a good will already thou thinkest. A man cannot pray for a thing the lack whereof he is not sensible thereof: If any man lack wisdom, let him ask it of God. James 1. 5. He cannot pray for a thing if he do not think that he lacks it, nor thou for a will, for thou doest not think that thou lackest it. Nay, if God should convert thee, thou canst not give him thanks for converting thee, for thy will needed none: may be thou wilt pray for possibilities till thou hast them, and give him thanks for possibilities when thou hast them, but thou canst not pray for a will, for thou thinkest thou hast it; nor give him thanks for thy will, for that is thine own. So that thou art devilishly proud, never humbled since thou were borne. Nay thou art so proud, that all thy prayers are but mockeries, and thy giving of thanks is a mockery. How canst thou beg that God should convert thee, when as thy proud heart tells God before hand thou wouldst not thank him if he should?

6 Excuse.

Nay sixthly, Thou castest all the blame upon God; for its even just as thou thinkest, say I cannot help it, if God be not pleased to enable me, how can I help it? my will is as good as anothers, such are so formed and so Heavenly, God gives them the power; but my will God knowes is as good as theirs, I would fain do as well as the best, but I cannot, O if God would enable me, I would. O Beloved, take heed of these conceits, for ye cast all the blame upon God, whereas the blame is in your selves, ye would not be enabled. I say ye cast all the blame upon God.

Carnal men excuse themselves, and cast the blame upon God.

1 Demon.

First, because ye cast the blame upon nature, its my nature, and I cannot, I would, but its my nature and I cannot. Thou layest the blame upon thy Nature, and therefore thou castest the blame upon God for not helping thee to better nature: it is God that justly determines mens natures. Ones nature is more cholerick, anothers more fearfull, another more lazy, anothers more lustfull. Dost thou lay the blame upon nature, my nature is more subject to choler and wrath? Alas, thou layest the blame upon God, for its he that disposeth of mens natures, and therefore thou takest part with those wretches that say, why hast thou made me thus? Rom. 9. 20. thou layest the blame upon God, I would not do thus, but only 'tis my nature, and I cannot helpe it. No. And while thou lay the blame upon God? No, no: this is thy nature and thou art contented with this nature.

2 Demon.

Secondly, Thou dost cast the blame upon temptations, it is my hard hap to fall upon temptations. I was tempted or I would not have done it: this is to cast the blame upon God too, for it is his providence to order temptations. Such and such temptations for one man, such and such for another, such now, and such then. Its the providence of God that disposeth which and which temptations every man shall have. One shall have temptations to Pride, another temptations to Wrath, another to Revenge, another to Coveteousnesse. Its true, God tempteth no man, but he orders the temptations of men. Let no man say he is tempted of God, for God tempteth no man. No, every man is tempted to sin by his own lusts. Thus thou wouldst say if thou were humbled, but thou layest the blame upon God, it was long of temptations that I did it. This is as if thou should'st say, twas long of God that I did it, because 'twas Gods providence that suffered these temptations to be laid for thee.

Jam. 1. 13.

3 Demon.

Lastly, because thou layest the blame upon the times, the times are very bad, I cannot follow in this fashion, but only that the times require it, I must needs yeeld to hearing and repeating the Word, &c. I would willingly

by ly be more forward then I am, but the times are very bad. That is to lay the blame upon God, for God ſaweth every mans time. If I had been in Chriſts time, or Paules time, or Queen Elizabeths time, I would have done this and that; thou layeſt the blame upon God, for God ſaweth every mans time. When God from eternity made his common place-Book of all the whole World, he appointed ſuch and ſuch to live firſt, ſuch next, and ſuch laſt; Such and ſuch to live here, and ſuch there; Such at Rumford, and ſuch at London: ſo ſayes the Apoſtle; he hath made of one blood all Nations of men, to dwell on all the face of the Earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitations. Act. 17.26. Mark, he hath appointed the times, and the places, the times when they ſhall live, and the places where. God ſaweth mens times, and therefore thou which layeſt the blame upon the times, layeſt the blame upon God.

4 Dmon.

Fourthly, becauſe thou layeſt the blame upon this Commandement: if it were any Commandement but this, I would doe it, but this I cannot doe: if it were any other injury but this, any diſgrace but this, I would willingly put it up, but I cannot put up this; if it were any duty but this, I would doe any thing but this; but to root out all diſorders out of my houſe, that I cannot doe: for, I cannot live, as good keep no houſe at all, as not ſuffer thoſe to call for drink as they would, I cannot doe this; this is to caſt the blame upon God too. For he ſhould make ſuch a Commandement as this, he ſhould have done well to have made another Law, and penned a nother Goſpel, and then I could keep it: thou layeſt the blame upon God, for it is God that made all the commandements, theſe are the commandements of the Lord, Deut. 6. 1. which God made at the Commandement, and this too, and therefore if thou layeſt the blame upon this, thou layeſt the blame upon God.

5 Deus.

Fifthly, becauſe thou layeſt the blame upon ill fortune and bad luck; it was my ill fortune to marry a Shrew, and I cannot but fret and be out of doores. But marriages are made in heaven, and God hath decreed them: thus thou layeſt the blame upon God: 'twas my ill fortune to miſcarry, to light upon ſuch a companion, to be ſo overtaken as I was, I would willingly have had it to have been otherwiſe, but I had not the luck of it, and it fell out very unluckily: thus thou committeſt two evils, thou playeſt the Atheiſt in ſpeaking of fortune, like them in the Prophet that prepared a table for fortune, (the word ſignifies, Eſay. 65.11. I ſay, thou committeſt two evils, one in calling it Fortune, the other, thou layeſt the blame upon God, for that which thou profanely calleſt fortune and luck, its Eſay 41 & Iuſtin Martyr, layes Arnobius, the very Heathen is able to tell it is God, and the Scripture puts it for Gods providence; and therefore when thou layeſt the blame upon ill fortune, thou layeſt the blame upon God, ſo that hence we may ſee, that thou canſt never be humbled as long as thou pleadeſt on this wiſe before God. I would very willingly, but I cannot: I ſay, thou canſt never be humbled, becauſe this is to lay the blame upon God. Indeed a child of God, that is unwilling, is made willing, he may plead a reaſon before Chriſt, without laying the blame upon God. Lord, I cannot humble my proud heart, nor crucifie this bewitching luſt of mine, Lord I am not able to doe it, I beſeech thee to help me. I ſay a child of God that is ſincerely willing to doe it, may plead a reaſon before Chriſt, ſay Chriſt his promiſe can no where be applyed, but where the ſoule can truly plead reaſon. He giveth power to the faint, to him that hath no might I will increaſe ſtrength, Eſay 40.29. indeed the ſoule lies tugging and pulling at his heart, and cannot pull it up, ſtriving and ſtriving with all, and ſtrong all body meanes and cannot, he even faints with pulling and tugging at that which it cannot: for we know that make any man faint to be tugging at a mill-ſtone, which he cannot pull up. Which the ſoule lies that it cannot, I will give power, ſayes Chriſt, though it have no ſtrength. Thus the ſoule of a child of God that is within, may plead I cannot, without laying the blame upon God; but thou must be humbled for thy former wil-nots, may for his too too many wil-nots for the present. But thou canst never be humbled while thou livest, if thou pleadest thou cannot, because thou layest the blame upon God.

Nota.

That which men call fortune is Gods providence.

Nay thirdly, thou canst not be humbled, because thou dost not onely lay the blame upon God for thy sinnes, but thou findest fault with all Gods proceedings; it is as if thou shouldst say, why does he bid me repent, when he knowes I cannot? why does he yet complaine? Rom. 9. 19. he knowes I cannot: why does he woo me to doe that which I cannot? or promise me blessings if I doe, when he knowes that I cannot? why does he help me to more and more knowledge? he does but hurt me with knowledge, and make my sin to be worse, which I cannot forsake. My sinnes are now against knowledge, and Ministers tell me that is worse; this is all that I get by good preaching: nay thou findest fault with all Gods correction: why does he punish me for not doing of that which I cannot? thus thou art farre from being humbled: the truth is, thou mightest get a great deale by knowledge, by exhortations, and reproofs, and corrections, but thou wilt not: is it not easier to leave a sinne when thou knowest it, then when thou art ignorant of it? to be moved when thou art exhorted, then when thou art not admonished at all? to forsake a sinne easily when once God hath inflictered it to thy flesh by correction, then when it was sweet? Is it not easier to give over drunkennesse, when the excesse is bitter to thy stomack, then when it was pleasant? so it is with every other sinne; thou mightst get a great deale of God by every one of Gods dealings, but thou wilt not. Why should ye be stricken any more? ye will revolt more and more, Esay. 1. 5. Ye will, sayes God, this is Gods language: he finds fault with thy will, but thou findest fault with his will. Why does he smite me more and more? I cannot but revolt? I cannot doe as he would have me; may be thy lusts are more mannerly then to say thus, but this secret grumbling is in thee, if thou layest that thou lackest at a cannot, and therefore thou canst not be humbled.

Use 2: Which discovers the hearts deceitfulnesse.

In the second place, if it be thus, the reason why thou dost not repent, is not because thou canst not, but because thou wilt not.

See here then the deceit of thy heart.

If God would give me grace, I would willingly doe any thing; this is nothing but the deceitfulnesse of thy heart, which is deceitfull above all things. For thy heart does but here lie unto God; I would very faine, if God would enable me: thou lyest; God knowes it is not so: like the wilfull Jewes, that would be Gods people, they would stay themselves upon God, God tells them in effect they lied, I knew thou were obstinate, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy brow brasse, Isay. 48. 4. wouldest thou believe me? No, no, I know thou art obstinate and wilt not; so God knowes thou art obstinate. I cannot be: this is a sinne to say faith and truth; I cannot see 'tis a sinne not to pray daily in my family, not to repeat the Sermon every Sabbath: if I could see it were a sinne, I would amend it, no, no, thou lyest unto God, thou art obstinate, and thou wouldst not have it a sinne, and thou wilt not believe it, and if thou didst know it to be one, thou wouldst not reform it.

Secondly, hereby thou dodgest with God, and thou temptest the Lord. If God would give me grace, I would doe it; this is nothing but dallying and trifling with the Lord; for why dost thou not set about it, and try every day while thou canst doe? if God would but quicken me, and perswade me, and compell me, and enable me, I would doe it. Alas thou dodgest with God, as the people of the Gospel, if he will come down from the Crosse, we will believe in him, Matt. 27. 42. they had no will to believe in him, this was nothing but dodging: Christ had done enough for them to make them believe if they had any faith will, and this was nothing but a pretence of their deceitfull heart.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, hereby thou ſhuffleſt off the word when thou haſt heard it. God give me grace to doe ſo as he hath taught me this day, alas I cannot my ſelf, God give me grace, and ſo ſhuffleſt it off, and thinkeſt no more of it: like (thoſe you call) Gods-ſaverrs in ſome places, as ſoon as ever they are charged at the Font to look to the child, and ſee him brought up in religion, they preſently goe and put off the charge on the Father, I pray you take the charge upon you? ſo thou layeſt the charge at Gods doore, when God gives thee any duty in charge thou layeſt it at his doore, as though it ſtuck there, and there thou letteſt it lie, not ſetting about to doe it: God give me grace, repentance is his gift, and if he doe not give it, I cannot repent, I would but I cannot, if he doe not give it: the ſpeech is very good, and becomes a godly ſoul that makes conſcience of the means, to ſay it, but this is thy ſhuffling to ſay it at Gods doore, as though it ſtuck there, God tels thee plainly, it does not ſtick at him, he would have all to come unto repentance, 2 Pet. 3.9. but thou wilt not come, and this is the deceit of thy heart to ſhuffle it from thee.

In the third place, Is it ſo, that the reaſon why thou doſt not amend, is not becauſe thou canſt not, but onely becauſe thou wilt not?

Oh then my brethren learn to be humbled.

This point calls for Humiliation.

Uſe 3. Engage to humiliation.

First, here lies eſpecially the pride of the heart, not in mens cannots, but their will-nots when a ſoul does whatſoever it can, reforms as much as it can, uſes as many means as it can, and as often as it can, this is not a proud heart, but a proud heart is that eſpecially that ſticketh at a will-not. If ye will not hear it, my ſoul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your pride, Jer. 13.17. Mark, for your pride, if you will not; he does not ſay, if you cannot, my ſoul ſhall weep for your pride, if ye ſtick at a cannot, but if ye ſtick at a will not. Doe not think this point does lift up mens wills, no, this point does as much beat at the humbling of the will, as any point under heaven; for here lies the pride of the will, and therefore here ye muſt be humbled.

Secondly, here lies eſpecially the hardning of the heart: when a man ſticks at a cannot, he does not more and more harden his heart, but onely ſticks at the ſame hardneſſe he had. Beloved, thou doſt then harden thy heart when thou wilt not obey, and therefore here's moſt need of thy humbling, to be humbled for thy wil-nots, its ſaid of Pharaoh, he hardned his heart, Exod. 9.34. what follows? he would not let the children of Iſrael goe: thy will-nots theſe are they that harden thy heart, Doſt thou complaine of the hardneſſe of thy heart? O goe and humble thy ſoul for thy wil-nots, theſe are the hardners of thy heart, nay let me tell thee, thou haſt no hardneſſe of heart no more than an infant or a babe, but only that which thy wil-nots have made thee, and therefore thou haſt great reaſon to be humbled for thy wil-nots.

Thirdly, here lies eſpecially the ſtubbornneſſe of the heart, when a child that is commanded by his parents to obey, ſticks at a cannot, he obeys as far as he can, but onely he ſticks at a cannot, he is not ſtubborn; ſtubbornneſſe is when one ſticks at a will not: If a man have a ſtubborn ſon which will not obey the voice of his father, Deut. 21.18. ſo here lies eſpecially the ſtubbornneſſe of thy heart, and therefore here's moſt humiliation required.

Fourthly, here lies the greateſt deſpiſings of the Commandements of God; Authority is never ſo much deſpiſed as when men will not ſubmit to it: a Father is deſpiſed when a Son will not hear him; and a Maſter is deſpiſed when his ſervant will not do as he bids him; nay a commandement cannot be deſpiſed but by will nots, it may be omitted, and not obeyed by cannots, but it cannot be deſpiſed but by will nots; if ye ſhall deſpiſe my Statutes, ſo that ye will not do all my Commandements, &c. Levit. 26.15. O what infinite reaſon haſt thou to be humbled, that deſpiſeſt the Lord? He cannot endure that men ſhould deſpiſe him; he can put up any other wrong rather than this, that men should despise him; but to be slighted and despised he will not, cannot endure it. For three transgressions of Iudah and for foure, I will not turne away the punishments thereof, because they have despised the law of the Lord, Amos 2.4. He will not turne away the punishment of this sinne, when men doe despise him. What infinite need then hast thou to be humbled under thy wil-not? thou despisest the Commandment.

ſhould

4 Use To quicken the thankfulnesse of the godly. Note.

Here's a word to you that are Godly; O what mercy hath the Lord shewed to you, and how ought you to be thankfull? Never was there such mercy as this, to shew mercy to the wilfull. O woful soul, be his misery never so great, he is not the fit object of mercy: for though misery be meetest object, yet joyn'd with wilfulnesse it is not to be pitied. You have been as wilfull as any, all cut out of the same rock; the Lord hath not onely helpt you to mercy and grace, but also to a will to take it. When Lot was unwilling to get out of Sodome, the Lord took him by the arm, and carryed him perforce; now see how the Text expresses it: The Angels took hold of his hand, the Lord being mercifull unto him, and they brought him forth, Gen. 19.16. As if he should say, Would you fain stay? you shall not, the Lord was mercifull to him whether he would or no. So you had no mercy on your selves, but the Lord had; ye were wilfull against mercy, and the Lord fastned mercy on you, whether ye would or no. *He commanded his loving-kindnesse, Psal.*42.8. Goe mercy and seize on them, Goe loving-kindnesse, and make them take ye: not as though God converted you against your wills: for, when he converted you, your unwillingnesse was taken away, but he made you of unwilling, willing. Oh the infinite mercy of God, and the infinite cause you have to be thankfull!

5 Use. A seasonable Item to all rebellious spirits.

In the fifth place, to you that stand out in your wilfulnesse still; is it so that ye stick at a wil-not? then be exhorted, to be much in abasing your selves before the Lord: your stoutnesse is intollerable, that you dare set up the bryars and thornes against God in battle: down with them and be wise: you harden your own hearts, and disable your selves more and more for repenting of it, ye despise the Lords name by the stubbornesse of your froward will, you can never be saved except your wills stoop. Before Christ will meddle with a soule he will first ask, Art thou willing? as he asked the blind man, What wilt thou that I doe unto thee? Lord, sayes he, that I may receive my sight. Luk. 18.41. So the first question he puts to thee is, What wilt thou? Lord that I may be humble, converted, purged. If thou beest wilfull, though he never take thee in hand, but leave thee to thy selfe, he will be justified in thine eternall confusion.

Psal.51.11.

Consider.

First, Is it not enough that thou hast willingly fallen in Adam, but thou must willingly stand out again? God now calls thee to means of grace, thou hast stood out once already, and wilt thou be wilfull to stand out again? as Israel, though in a mistake, said to their brethren, is the iniquity of Peor too little for us; from the which we are not cleansed to this day? *but that ye must turne away this day too? Iosh.*22.17. So may I say, is your willing apostacy in Adam too little for you, from the which ye are not cleansed to this day, but ye must willingly stand out against Christ too?

Secondly, consider the very Saints of God that have not halfe so many wil nots as you, that stick more truly at a cannot; I would do good but I cannot. I say the very Saints of God they labour to humble themselves every day: O wretched man that I am sayes Paul, Rom.7.24. does Paul cry out, Oh wretched man that I am? he was a Saint of God, and heire of heaven, and sure of blisse; does he cry out of himselfe, that he was wretched? oh what infinite need then hast thou to be humbled! Thou art yet a child of hell, and heire of damnation, wilfull in thy sins to this houre, Oh wretched man that I am.

Thirdly, consider the more shamefull ones sin is, the more reason to be humbled; bled; thy ſinne is moſt ſhameſull, for thou corrupteſt thy ſelf; they have corrupted themſelves, Deut. 32.5. ſo thou corrupteſt thy ſelf, thy will corrupteth it ſelf.

Nay fourthly, conſider there's no greater ſhame then to make away ones ſelf; thou deſtroyeth thy ſelf, Oh Iſrael thou haſt deſtroyeth thy ſelf. More credit to be ſtab'd by the high way, nay more credit to be hanged on a Patibulum as a Malefactor, then to murder ones ſelf. Put him into a hole, drive a ſtake through his body, ſet a Monument of ſhame on him. (I doe not know whether it be ſo among you, but it is ſo in ſome places, when a man murders himſelf.) So thou doſt murder thy ſelf, nay more thy beſt ſelf, thou makeſt away thy ſoul. Be vext then with thy wicked will, what a mad man am I? I will have this luſt, and I will have that paſſion, like the people, we will have a King over us: no, ſayes Samuel, the Lord your God is your King; nay, but we will have a King. So thou art wilfull, and thou wilt doe thus; Oh doe not doe it, the Lord hath forbidden thee; Nay, but I will doe it. Thus thou art wilfull, and thou wilt to Hell; vex thine own heart with this. When a wilful Malefactor comes afterwards to know that if he had not been wilful the Judge would have ſaved him, Oh how will it vex him! he could even rend his own haire, and tear his own fleſh, what a mad man was I! I forſook mine own Clergy; ſo thou forſakeſt thine own Clergy, thine own mercy, they that obſerve lying vanities forſake their own mercy, Jonah 2.8. vex thine own heart with it, ſay I have forſaken mine own mercy.

H. 1 13.9.

Wilfull diſobedience is ſoul-murder. 1 Sam. 28.22.

Fifthly, conſider if you would but vex your own ſouls with this ſerious conſideration, it would make you kick your luſts under foot, and cry out upon them, out upon you, get ye hence, as they cryed out upon their Idols, Eſay. 30.22. get ye hence, get ye hence, here is no entertainment for you from henceforth. I forſake mine own mercy as long as I keep you.

Having ſhewed you, that except your beliefe of this point be rooted in your hearts, ye can never be humbled:

Firſt, because hereby you excuſe your ſelves from all your tranſgreſſions beſides originall.

Nay ſecondly, ye excuſe your ſelves for your originall ſinne too.

Nay thirdly, you make all your ſinnes to be nothing but infirmities, invincible infirmities.

Nay fourthly, you commend your ſelves more then God.

Nay fifthly, you block up the way to the throne of grace.

Nay ſixthly, you caſt all the blame upon God.

Firſt, because you lay the blame upon nature.

Secondly, because thou caſts the blame on temptations.

Thirdly, because you lay the blame on the times.

Fourthly, because you lay the blame upon the Commandement.

Nay ſeventhly, you find fault with all the dealings of God.

Oh take heed then of theſe baſe pleas and pretences: for,

That I may interpoſe four or five particulars unnamed.

Firſt, this ſame pleading is the cauſe why you are lazie and idle in the uſe of meanes; namely, because we ſuffer our hearts to plead, Oh we cannot doe thus, we cannot beat down this evill; why did the unjuſt Steward refuſe honeſt labour to work for his living? I cannot dig, ſayes he, Luke 16.3. therefore he refuſed to labour; ſo this is the cauſe why ye pray no more, and reform no more, &c. Ye ſet your hearts thus to plead, I cannot doe it: This is the reaſon why ye are backward to labour; how know ye what may be done if ye would buckle to labour? but alas, I cannot doe it, ſay you; and therefore ye are dead and dull, and ſluggiſh to every good Ordinance. Shake off theſe lazy-hearted pleas, otherwiſe yee'l never buckle to labour.

Secondly, this same pleading brings up an ill report upon piety and godlinesse; generally men think Religion is so irksome, and Holinesse is impossible; We cannot be Saints, and we are not able to be so holy, these pleas bring an evill report on Religion. Like the Spies that brought an evill report upon Canaan. Num. 13.23. What sayes the text in the verse going before? we be not able to get it, say they, ver. 31. this made the rest of the people think hardly of their going into Canaan: they generally thought it was so very little end. Oh they were not able to winne it: so ye bring an evill report upon the Heavenly Canaan, the flesh is too strong, the divell too strong, temptations too strong, and its impossible to grapple with them all, we are not able to get mastery. I say this brings up an evill report on Religion, ye discourage one another. I cannot get quickning, and I cannot deny my self. Ye bring an evill report upon these duties, and ye are guilty of the evill report that goes up and down.

Thirdly, this same pleading is a murmuring against God q.d. Why does God give me such Commandements that I cannot observe? Why does he charge me to root out a lust that I cannot root out? this is to murmur against God. Like those murmuring Disciples in the Gospel, when they were told they must feed upon Christ, and as the body feeds upon meat, so your soules must feed upon Christ; this is a hard saying, who can heare it, say they? Christ construed this speech to be murmuring, Joh. 6.60 61. We cannot do this, this is so hard we are not able to do it. The text sayes it was murmuring. When Jesus knew in himselfe that his Disciples murmured at it, that pleading of a cannot was a murmuring. So when thou grumblest on this manner, I cannot walk thus, I cannot believe thus, &c. this is to murmur against God, this will bring thee to Apostacy at last, if thou suffer thy heart to plead thus. May be now thou art a forward professor, yet beest thou never so forward and favourest any lust, and I cannot give it over, I cannot root it out, I say this will break thy neck at the last, if thou doe not looke to it. So it was with those forenamed Disciples, they were very forward Professors, for they were the Disciples of Christ sayes the text, yet those Disciples, went back and walked no more with Christ, verse 66. their pleading of their cannots, drove them to Apostacy; they went away back: so thou mayest go away back and fall into Apostacy if thou suffer thy heart to frame pleading of cannots in this manner.

Fourthly, this is the sawciest excuse of all excuses, many sinners excuse their own selves but there is more mannerlinesse in all their excuses I pray thee have me excused, sayes one, I have bought five yoke of Oxen, and I pray thee have me excused; sayes the other, I have bought a purchase, I pray thee have me excused. These though wretched excusers and turned out from all mercy, yet they were somewhat more mannerly, but I cannot come sayes thou, I have married a Wife, and I cannot come, Luke 14.20. this is a most sawcy excuse, thou tellest Christ in plaine termes, I cannot come, q.d. ye may even lose your labour to invite, for this is short and long, as we say, I cannot come. This I put in onely by the by.

I have shewed you some of the deceits of the heart in pleading these cannots.

First how it lies unto God.

Secondly, how it dallies with God.

And then I shewed you the strong reason we have to be humbled under these will-nots.

First, because here chiefly lies the pride of the heart, but in many cannots, but in their will-nots Jer. 13.17.

Secondly, here lies chiefly the hardning of the heart, Exod. 9.34.35.

Thirdly, here lies chiefly the stubbornesse of the heart, Deut. 2.30.

Fourthly,

Fourthly, here lies chiefly the great despising of the Commandements of God, Levit. 26.15.

Fifthly, now to goe on, here lies the reason why Divines say that the conversion of a sinner is a harder work then the Creation of Heaven and Earth: for thus they doe reason; when God created Heaven and Earth, he had nothing to resist him, as he had nothing to help him, (he made all of nothing) so he had nothing to resist him. There was but one difficulty in the Creation of Heaven and Earth, but in the conversion of a sinner there be two difficulties.

First, here is the same difficulty that was in creation, for God makes a Convert of nothing; he had nothing to help him, not one thought, not one desire, not one good inclination: and therefore the Scripture calls it a new Creation; whosoever is in Christ is a new creature, 2 Cor. 5.17. that is, is created anew. And therefore there was nothing præexistent, no not one thought, all the thoughts of men are only evill, and that continually. So there is the same difficulty, that was in the creation of Heaven and Earth: and then,

Secondly, there is another difficulty more then there was in the creation: for as there was nothing præexistent to help, so there was nothing to resist. But here is something to resist, the will it resisteth: now the cannot does not resist. No, the bestowing of new powers is no more then another Creation, but the changing of the will is more then another Creation; for the will it resisteth, yea and it sets all the soul a resisting. Carnall reason resisteth, carnall desires they resist, all the soul it resisteth: and the greatest resistance of all is the resistance of the will; for the will is the utmost strength of the soul. And therefore here lies the infinite difficulty of the conversion of a sinner, namely in the turning of the will: it requireth more power, then was required to the creation of Heaven and Earth. God put himselfe forth more when he converted a sinner, then when he created a World; and therefore the Scripture calls the day of conversion of mens wills, the day of his power. Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power, Psal. 110.3. In the day of thy power; marke, it's called a day of thy power, when he converteth a people to be willing. Why? because the will did resist him: nay God had his own selfe to resist him; anger steps in his way to resist him, Convert him not Lord, his wilfulnesse hath anger'd thee; Justice steps in to resist him; save him not Lord, his sinnes have dishonoured thee. Nay he had his mercy to resist him; Mercy steps in, Lord he hath abused me, save him not. Indeed had a sinner yeilded as soone as he sinned, mercy would not resist him; but mercy had beene dealing with him, and he abused all mercy. And therefore he had mercy to resist, nay and wisdome one would think to resist too; what a wilfull foole? pittie him not Lord; there is no reason he should be pittied, if he will perish let him perish. I say, in the conversion of a sinner, as there was nothing to assist him, so there was all to resist. The will does resist him, nay God had himselfe (as I may so speak) to resist him, yea and mercy to resist him: it was not so in the creation of Heaven and Earth. The creature had never provoked God not, to create it, but the sinner hath provoked God never to convert him: so that now God must have power over himself, if he mean to convert him. Oh then what infinite reason hast thou to be humbled: thou resistest God, as Stephen told the Jewes, you have alwayes resisted the holy Ghost, Acts 7.51. so thou hast resisted Gods spirit, yea, thy will does resist him, & that is the strongest thing to resist in the world. His word comes to convert thee, & thou dost resist his motions, his mercyes, his corrections, his ordinances, & all holy means to convert thee, thou dost resist them; nay his spirit contendeth within, and thou dost resist him.

I gave you five things to consider, what it is to stick at your will not? I beseech you consider yet farther.

First, If you will not, Gods Ministers have discharged their duties, and have left your blood on your own heads, they can goe no further if you will not; the Groom can but carry the Steed unto watering, as we say, if he will not drink, he cannot help it: so they can't help it, your blood lies upon your own heads, they have discharged their duties. When Abrahams servant objected, and how if the woman will not? Abraham he answers, if the woman will not be willing, then thou shalt be cleare of my oath, Gen. 24.8. So Lord, how if they will not, may we say? nay if they will not, let them choose, then art cleare: the Lord hath sworn us to preach and teach, and exhort, and reprove, and invite you to grace; but if we doe so, and you will not, we can't help it, your blood is on your own heads; we have discharged our oath and our duty, we would be glad that you would; but if now you will not, we have discharged our duties. Nay,

Secondly, if you will not, the Gospel hath delivered its errand, ye are guilty of your own everlasting perdition; the Gospel hath delivered its message, and this is the message, Whosoever will, let him take of the Water of life freely, Revel. 22.17. This message hath been delivered to you often; its the last exhortation in the whole Bible: like one in the evening of the market, he is ever about to take down his standing. I have told you my lowest price, if you will have it, take; if not, choose, I must be gone. So this is the end of Gods book, as if he should say, I am even a closing up my book, speak quickly, if ye will come and welcome; but if not, I am gone. If yet you will not, you will not submit: nay but you will have your lusts, and your stomachs will not come down, you will not stir a jot beyond your painted civility and formality, you will not be more conscionable then you have been, nor frequent holy duties more then you have done, nor get more holinesse then you have done; then if Wil will have wil, Wil must win woe. Nay,

Thirdly, if you will not, the blood of Jesus Christ hath done that it came for; it came to tender you mercy upon very easie terms; to offer you grace and pardon, and salvation and Heaven, and all upon very free cost. If you had rather that sinne should be your master, then that Christ should be your master; if you will not hearken and obey, I say the blood of Christ hath done that which it came for; and your soules shall know ye shall be worse offered. you have knowledge of the truth, Christ hath offered you very faire, and you cannot but know it, and yet you will not submit to it; assure your selves you shall be worse offered, for next to your wil nots, comes Christ leaving you desolate. As Christ told Jerusalem, I would, but you would not: what followes? Behold your house is left unto you desolate, Mat. 23.37,38. So Christ would and you would not; he hath given you gracious offers, but you will not: therefore you may look to be worse offered, your souls to be desolate. Nay, Fourthly, if you will not, ye murder your own souls: when a man hath murdered himself, the Coroner comes and he does sit on him, and he enquires, and he examines, and who hath murdered this man? and when he finds that it was himself that did murder him, so he concludes, and that man is branded for murdering of himself; so you murder your own souls. The Jewes their souls were all murdered; well, when the Coroner sate on them, he concluded they had murdered themselves: O Israel thou hast destroyed thy self, Hos. 13.9. So if the Coroner sit on thee, its most certain he shall find thou hast murdered thine own self; O what a company of you is there, your souls are quite murdered; one in one sinne, another in another: who hath murdered these men? not God, he was ready to help them; not the Minister, he did use all meanes to save them, he hath not been wanting to teach them and exhort them. No, your own selves have murdered your selves; you would be carnall, and you would be proud, and you would not lie down to the word: when the Coroner sits on you, he must necessarily conclude, you have murthered your selves; your own wils have condemned you.

You

You remember what exhortations we gave you, as ever you regard mercy to humble your selves. We told you the first question Christ asks, is, if ye be willing, as he ask'd the blind man, What wilt thou? Luk.18.41. if thou beest not willing, he'l never take thee in hand: the subjects of the Kingdom of grace must be willing. Christ will never come into a soul, where his will may be affronted by another; Heaven cannot bear two Suns, nor one heart two wills; if thy will be not crucified, and made agreeable to Christs, Christ cannot dwell in thy heart, there would be two contrary wills in one heart, and this cannot be: if Christ come, he will have these and these lusts turned away, which thou wouldst fain keep; he will have this done and that done, and thou wilt not: two contrary wills can never stand together. No, if thy will be contrary to Christ, Christs will will be contrary to thine: if thy will be to do that which will offend him, his Will will be to do that which will vex thee: If ye will walke contrary to me, I will also walke contrary to you, Levit. 26.23, 24. No, no, your wills they must bow, or Christ will not take you in hand: the will is the generall presupposition of all the whole Gospel: the summe of the whole Gospel is this, to deny a mans selfe, and to take up Christs Crosse and to follow him: now see the will is presupposed as ready; If any man will come after me, let him deny himselfe, &c. Luk. 9.23. ne're a Commandement of the Gospel, ne're a promise, ne're a one passage but presupposes the Will. Christ will not open his mouth except thy will be brought down.

Calum non patitur duos solos.

Note.

A few words to you that are the redeemed of the Lord, and so I'le make conclusion of all. I pray God smite home this point into your hearts; for though your wills be tamed and subdued in regard of the wicked, you do not find out as they do, nevertheless observe you this point: there's many a Canaanite that remaines still in our bosomes, that we may thank our own wills for not rooting out. We do not put our selves forth so much as we might, nor labour in the Lord so seriously as we might, nor walke so close as we might: oh beloved these same will nots do us all the mischief that ever is done us. For.

An awakening for the redeemed of the Lord.

First, We never sin against Gospel but onely upon will nots: indeed we sin against the law in every of our cannots, but we never sin against the Gospel, but onely in our will nots. The Gospel requires nothing of a believer but that which is given him, and therefore we never sin against the Gospel, but only in our will nots: this is the voice of the Gospel, ἐάν τις θέλῃ if any man will, John 7.17. Oh then let us stir up our selves, shall we sin against Gospel, and be angry against mercy?

Note.

Secondly, we can never displease God, but onely upon will nots. I speak onely upon Gods people; we can never staine our acceptance with God, but onely in our will nots: though we cannot but sinne in our prayers, but sinne in our duties, but sinne in every thing that we do; yet this does not staine our acceptance with God, nor blemish it one whit, when God hath our wills; for if there be a willing mind, it is accepted according to that which a man hath, and not according to that which a man hath not, 2 Cor. 8.12. But when God would have us mend this, and we will not, reform that, and we will not, we let security and sloth break into our wills; here and here onely do we displease our good God: this is a main thing to consider, is there but one thing wherein we may displease God, and shall we not take heed of that?

Thirdly, Conscience can never condemn us but only upon wil nots, when a child of God sinnes, and he cannot otherwise choose, his conscience can never condemn him. A child of Gods cannots, be they never so many, nay if they were millions more then they are, they never hinder sincerity, sincerity is rooted onely in the will; it is our wil not that is the breach of sincerity, and therefore here onely the conscience condemns; does our conscience reproch us in our wayes? let us thank our wil nots for this: have we little peace? it is because of the rebellion of our wil nots. Ah, ah! this is an infinite evil, for it hinders our comforts, it hinders our boldneſſe of acceſſe to the Throne of grace, it hinders our patience, and every good duty, this does us infinite hurt, it ſtabs to the heart, and wounds our very ſoul, when our conſcience affordeth little peace. O it hinders very grievouſly; all this is long of our wil nots, becauſe we will not be ſo carefull and ſo circumſpect as we might.

Fourthly, God can never be ſo angry with us but only upon wil nots: it is true, as long as a man is not in Chriſt, all the ſcore ſtands, and God is angry for all; but God is angry for nothing but wil nots in his children, as Nehemiah ſayes of Gods people in Judah, they would not hearе, therefore God gave them up into the hand of the people of the land, Nehem.9.30. God is not angry with his people for cannots, but onely for their wil nots; it is for our wil nots that God does not ſo goe out with our Miniſters, nor ſo quicken his word to your hearts. Is it for our wil nots that he threatens our land, and begins to abridge us of our ſpirituall food, and ſhewes ominous ſignes of his departing away from us; and are we not even ſick unto death for theſe wil nots? We complaine of our deadneſſe, and what trow we is the cauſe, but our wil nots? we complaine of our corruptions and of the leannеſſe of our ſouls, and whom may we thank, but our wil nots? we might grow more then we doe, what lets us but our wil nots? What makes ſome of us goe down the winde, as we ſay, but becauſe we will not ſtand on our guards? Theſe, theſe, brethren, theſe wil nots of ours are the reaſon why God is provoked againſt us. O let us put forth our ſelves, and ſhake of theſe wil nots, leaſt anger break out, and there be no remedy; for ones crooked ſervant to be ſtubborne, it is but his kind, but for ones child to be ſtubborne, this angers the father indeed.

FINIS.

A Table of the Contents.

1. THe reason why the wicked sin against the Holy Ghost, pag. 3
Demonstrations to prove it.
Demon. 1. The wicked think they have no power over their thoughts, but will not be accountable for their thoughts, 4.
2. They will try whether they can overpower us, 5.
3. They do resist in help which God offers them, ibid.
4. They will not use the power which God hath given them, ibid.
5. They grow worse by the means afforded them, ibid.
6. Their cannot is voluntary, 6
7. They are content with their cannot, ibid.

The first Ground of the Doctrine.

Ground 1. Every man can do more good then he doth, and shun more evil then he doth, 7

This appears by these following considerations.

Consid. 1. If a man can do no more then he doth; nothing can hinder him but his will, ibid.
2. If a man can do no more then he does, and yet will not, he must needs voluntarily hinder himself from doing that which he cannot, ibid.
3. If a man will not do that he can, neither will he that which he cannot, if he could, 8
4. If a man will not do that he can, can or can not, all is one to him, all sticks at his will. ibid.
5. If a man will not do that which he can, will make a mans conscience when it comes to speak in sober sadness, thanke himself for his perishing 9

Arguments to prove the first ground, ib.
1. Argu. Because God doth complaine against the wicked for the voluntary doing no more good then they do, ibid.
2. Because otherwise there were no roome for praise, nor dispraise, ibid.
3. Because there would be no necessity for the Sword of the Magistrate, 10
4. Because though a carnall man cannot put off the old man, yet it is not his nature to continue in sin as he does and in this manner, ib.
5. A wicked man can do more good, &c. Because a Godly regenerate man may would more sin then he doth, ibid.

The ground further proved by Particulars.

1 Part. The Will hath dominion over all the outward acts of the members, ibid.
2. Part. Every man hath naturall affection in him by which he may do more then he doth, and shun more evill then he doth, 11
3. God hath given to every man naturall counsell, and naturall Reason and Prudence, 14
4. That is first in order which is naturall, and afterwards that which is spirituall, and if a man stick there, he sticks at a will-not. ibid.

The second Ground.

2. Ground. Every wicked man is sloth full and negligent, 16

Five demonstrations to prove it.

1. Demon. Every wicked man doth imagine more cannots then there be, ib.
2. He makes every little difficulty a cannot, where as nothing but an impossibility is a cannot, ibid.
3. A slothfull man turns his very abilities into cannots, 15
4. He doth voluntarily naile himself unto cannots, ibid.
5. He putteth forth by halves that power which he hath, ibid.

Conclus. There is more in a wicked man then by reason of slugishnesse he puteth

putteth forth, 16
Arguments to prove this.
It is a figne of a true life, ibid.
1. Argu. Because when God doth convert a soule he doth not put in new powers and faculties into the soul, ibid.
2. Because he can shew as great power in the one, ibid.
3. Because he can shew it to that which he list, 17
4. Because the rod is able to whip it out of him, ibid.
5. Because he can do an hundred times more when he pleaseth, ibid.
6. Because he will shew it in Hell, viz. That it will be like to do more then he did, 18
Ground. A wicked man will not set himself to use all the means that he may, 19
Demon. A wicked man may use the means that God appointed as means, 52
1 Argu. Because it is the very nature of means to come between mens ends and his causes, 20
2. Because God doth not exhort men like a company of stocks and stones, but deals with them as reasonable by his words, 21
3. Because Gods anger is very reasonable, ibid.
4. Because Gods offer of his kingdome to the wicked is serious, ibid.
5. Because Gods reproofes are very equall, 22
Conclus. His condemnation must be wilfull, that will not use all the means, ibid.
Proved by three Arguments.
1 Argu. God will not help that man by a miracle to go, that hath legs to go, and will not, ibid.
2. God will not have a farthing of the price to save that sot, 23
3. God will never be brought out of his method to shew that any mercy, or give that any grace, ibid.
Conclus. Gods Kingdome cannot be attained without a diligent use of the means, 24 Reasons of it.
1 Reas. Because heaven is an end, and no end can never be gotten without means, ibid.
2. God hath annexed it to the means, ib.
3. Every soul must give an account before God how he hath used the means, ibid.
4. God will not set up another door into heaven for any man in the World, ibid.
Further proofes and encouragements to use the means.
1. Some of the means that God hath appointed, you may do them without labour, 25
2. Some of the means that God hath appointed, are easier then them, ibid.
3. Some of the means are easier yet, ib.
4. Some of the means of grace, it's harder to omit them then to use them, ibid.
5. Some of the means of grace, be they hard, yet they are but hard, they are not impossible for you to use, ibid.
Objections.
The first Objection's drawn from the Scriptures which say they cannot,
The Scripture speaks of five cannots, 1. Of a natural cannot. 2. Of a deliberate cannot, 3. Of a judicial cannot. 4. Of a compassionate cannot, 5. Of a humbling cannot. 25
Thou wouldst (as thou pretendst) but thou canst not. Perhaps it is thy will thy conscience, and not the will of thy heart, 2. May be it is a pleasant will. Repentance and some hope, Godliness and some hope. 3. May be thou hast a wavering will, this is no will but only a velleity. 4. May be thou hast a general Metaphysicall will, but no particulars, there thou wilt not. 5. Thou hast no true will, because of those sins will, thou wouldst, 27
Thou desirest to do it, but art not able. who can tell best what is in thee, God or thy own heart? But the reason of this mistake is. 1. Thou hast putative or thinking desires, thou thinkest thou desirest. 2. Thou hast ignorant desires, 3. thou hast wandering desires, and therefore thou art mistaken, 29
Thou resolvest and hast good purposes, but oh thou canst not perform them.
Those purposes thou pretendst of are only willing for the future. 1. Because its easily to forbear off the willing for the present. 2. This will for the future is no will, because its just without God,

2. It is no will, because thou shalt wisse those suppositions that thou wilt rest upon.
First, thou supposest thou shalt have fewer temptations hereafter, 2. Thou supposest thou shalt be fitter hereafter. 3. Thy will for hereafter is no will but a mockery. 30
Thou labourest to serve God, and to be saved.
Is this to labour for grace and heaven, when thou labourist so idly? wherefore thy impenitency is wilfull, thy damnation's wilfull, and thy ruine wilfull. 31
Hence also is followes, 1. That your destruction is from self, 2. Your destruction is just, 3. Your destruction is inexcusable, 4. Your destruction is unavoydable, 5. Your destruction is pitilesse, 6. Your destruction is grievous. 31

Application.

Use 1. of Instruction, Thou canst never be humbled unlesse thou believe this truth; a man is never humbled as long as he excuses himself. Now. 32
1 Excuse. First, thou excusest thy self for all Transgressions besides original, ib.
2. Now thou excusest thy selfe from originall sin too; Lord I would be without sin, but I cannot, ibid.
3. Nay thou excusest thy selfe for every sin thou takest all thy sins to be nothing but infirmities, ibid.
4. Nay thou commendest thy selfe more then God, ibid.
5. Nay thou canst not so much as pray to God for a will: thou art so proud that thou conceivest thou hast that already, 34
6. Nay thou layest all the blame upon God, ibid.
2. Demon. First, because you cast the blame upon nature, its my nature and I cannot, ibid.
2. Secondly, thou dost cast the blame upon temptations; its my hard hap to fall upon temptations, ibid.
3. Thirdly, thou layest the blame upon the Times, the times are very bad, ib.
4. Fourthly, thou layest the blame upon this Commandement. If it were any Commandement but this, I would do it, 35
5. Fifthly, thou layest the blame upon ill fortune and bad luck, ibid.
6. Nay, fourthly thou findest fault with Gods proceedings, 36
Use 2. This discovers the deceitfulness of thy heart, ibid.
First, thou wouldst very fain, if God would enable thee: but thy heart doth but lye unto God, ibid.
Secondly, hereby thou dalyest with God, and temptest the Lord, ibid.
Thirdly, hereby thou scoffest off the word, when thou hast heard it, 37
Use 3. This point calls for great humiliation; for 1. Here lyes especially the pride of the heart, not to will becomes not, but their will nots, ibid.
2. Here lyes specially the hardning of the heart, ibid.
3. Here lyes especially the stubbornesse of the heart, ibid.
4. Here lyes the greatest despising of the Commandements of God, ibid.
Use 4. To quicken the thankfulnesse of the Godly, 38
A seasonable Item to all Rebellious spirits, ibid.
1 Is it not enough that thou hast willingly fallen in Adam, but thou must willingly stand out again? ibid.
2. Consider the very Saints of God that have not half so many will-nots as you, that strive more truly as at a cannot, ibid.
3. Consider the more shamefull ones sin is, the more reason to be humbled, ib.
Nay fourthly consider there's no greater shame then to make away ones self. 39
5. Consider if you would but vex your own soul with this serious consideration, it would make you kick your lusts under foot, ibid.

The danger of base pleas & pretences.

1. This same pleading in the cause why you are lazy and idle in the use of the means, viz. because you suffer your hearts to plead, so we cannot do it, ibid.
2. This same pleading brings up an evil report upon piety and Godlinesse, 40
3. This same pleading is a murmuring against God, q.d. why does God give me such commandements that I cannot?
4. This is the sawcyest excuse of all excuses, ibid.

5. Nay, here lies the reason why Divines say, that the conversion of a sinner is an harder work then the creation of heaven and earth, first because, 41
Here is the same difficulty that was in creation, for God makes a convert of nothing, ibid.
2. As there was nothing praexistent in the creation to help, so there was nothing to resist; but here is something to resist, the will it resisteth, ibid.
The danger of sticking at a will not is further cleared.
1. If you will not, Gods Ministers have discharged their duties, and have left your blood on your own hands. ibid.
2 If you will not, the Gospel hath delivered its errand, ye are guilty of your own everlasting perdition, 42
3. Nay thirdly, if you will not, the blood of Jesus Christ hath done that it came for, ibid.
4. If you will not, you murder your own souls, ibid.
A seasonable Item to the redeemed of the Lord, that they take heed of will nots; for, 43
1. We never sin against Gospel, nor despise God, but only upon will-nots, ibid.
2. Conscience can never condemn us, nor God can never be angry with us, but only upon will-nots, ibid.

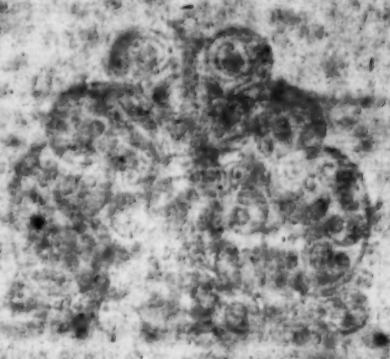
The end of the Table.

THE SPIRITUALL MAN'S DIRECTORY

GUIDING A CHRISTIAN IN THE PATH THAT LEADS TO TRUE BLESSEDNESSE,

In his three maine duties towards GOD.



How { To Believe, / To Obey, / To Pray, } Unfolding the { Creed. / Ten Commandements. / Lords Prayer. }

BY

That Reverend and faithfull Minister of Gods Word,
Mr WILLIAM FENNER,
Sometimes Fellow of Pembroke-Hall, and late Rector of Rochford in Essex.

LONDON,
Printed by J. G. for J. R. and are to be sold by William Gilbertson, at the Bible in Giltspur-street. 1656.

OF CATECHIZING

Question. 1.

Hat is Catechisme?

Answ. It is the teaching of the Principles of the Doctrine of Christ, namely of Repentance from dead works, and of Faith, *Heb.*6.1. To them that have need of milke and not of strong meat, *Heb.*5.12. as being babes in Christ, 1 *Cor.*3.1. and the babes of Christ, whom the Minister must feed as well as his Sheep, John 21.15.

Quest. 2. Who must Catechise besides the Minister?

Answ. My Parents must Catechise me, and teach me the truth of the Lord, *Ps.*78.19. My Father must teach me the information of the Lord, *Ephes.*6. 4. And my mother too must, *Prov.*1.8. So did Solomon's mother teach him, *Prov.*31.1. Yea, and the master of the house where I dwell, though he be not my father, yet he must teach me, if I be but one of his houshold, Gen. 18.19.

Q. 3. How if Parents do not teach their Children.

Answ. They are cruell Ostriches, and their hearts are hardened, *Job.*39.16. And God hath taken the Spirit of wisdome from them, *vers.*17. They loose their own soules, and do what in them lyeth to cast away our soules too; as ever they meane to keep their own soules, they must teach us, *Deut.*4.9.

Q. 4. Why hast thou a Name given thee in Baptisme?

Answ. Because the people of God named their children then; so did Abraham name his Son Isaac at Circumcision, *Gen.*21.3. The parents have power to appoint the name what it shall be, *Luk.*1.60.63. Which ought not to be one of a bad signification, for that is a shame, as the name of Nabal signifieth a foole, 1 *Sam.*25.25.

Qu. 5. What use doth thou make of thy name given thee in Baptisme?

Answ. Two uses: First, to teach me Christian-like, that I must give up my name unto God to be his servant; Jude a servant of Christ, Jude 1. James a servant of God, *Iam.*1.1. Moses Gods servant, *Josh.*1.2. Secondly, that I keep my name unspotted and undefiled; for God only accounts upon such Names, *Revel.*3.4. And therefore it is fit I should not change it, unlesse upon a great occasion, as Abram afterwards was called Abraham, *Gen.*17.5. Nor give any cause why any nick-name should be set upon it, as Esau to be called Edom, *Gen.*25.30. The Pope that changeth his Christian name, shameth himself to be Antichrist, 1 *Joh.*2.22.

Qu. 6. Why would God have thee Baptized?

Answ. For four reasons: First, to teach me that I was borne by nature the Child of wrath and damnation, *Ephes.*2.3. Secondly, to give me the washing of regeneration, or renewing of the Holy Ghost, *Tit.*3.5. Thirdly, to Covenant with me, that I should walke in newnesse of life, *Rom.*6.4. Fourthly, to distinguish me externally from such among [illegible] Gods people, but in- [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A. No, for the Spirit bloweth where it lifteth, John 3.8. and doth not tye himself to the water of Baptism, Matth. 3.11. Neither is this Baptism which is outward in the flesh, Rom. 2.28. Esau was Circumcised, yet God hated him, Rom 9.13. Simon Magus Baptised in the gall of bitternesse, Act. 8.13,23.

Q. 13. Who be they that have not these benefits?

A. No man can know them, till by their fruits we may know them, Matth. 7.13. Indeed Parents are bound to believe the best, and hope the best, for so Charity doth in all things that are not yet manifest, 1 Cor. 13.7. But for all our Charity, they cannot be vouchsafed forgivenesse of sinnes, unlesse they joyne amendment of life to their Baptism, Act. 2.38. Nor saved, that answer not out of an upright Conscience to Christs interrogatories, though they were washed, 1 Pet. 3.21. And yet members in Christs visible Church, and vessels in his house, 2 Tim. 2.20. And called Sons of God though rebellious, Isa. 1.2. And may be said to be begotten with an outward regeneration, Deut 32.18.

Q. 14. What diddest thou promise and vow in thy Baptism?

A. Three things; First, Repentance of my sinnes, for he that liveth in sinne is of the Divell, 1 John 3.8. Secondly, faith, for he that believeth not is condemned already, John 3.18. Thirdly, obedience to all Gods Commandements, for cursed is he that obeyeth not, Jer. 11.3. All these things was I taught in my Baptism, to observe all my life after, Matth. 28.19,20. Now all this obedience must be done by the power of faith in Christ, Col. 3.17. And therefore it is called the obedience of Faith, Rom. 16.26. And this faith worketh by love, Gal. 5.6. And love must set me on work to keep Christs Commandments, John 14.15.

Q. 15. Art thou bound to performe thy Baptism, Vow and Oath?

A. I am bound, Psal. 50.14. Or else I shall be utterly cut off, Nah. 1.15. Yea, I am perjured else, in making such a Covenant, Hos. 10.4. And Christ will be a swift witnesse against me, Mal. 3.5. And if I now live in sinne and doe not keep my vow, it is better for me I had never taken this vow upon me, Eccl. 5.5.

Q. 16. What is Belief or Faith?

A. It is the gift of God, Ephes. 2.8. whereby I believe the words of Christ, Psal. 119.66. and find rest in my soul in him, Matth. 11.29. So that now it is no more I that live, and work, and doe, but Christ that liveth in me, Gal. 2.20.

Q. 17. How many wayes is Faith taken?

A. Six; first, Historicall faith, Jam. 2.19. Secondly, a dead faith, Jam. 2.26. Thirdly, a temporary faith, Luke 8.13. Fourthly, a bare hoping faith, Act. 8.13. Fifthly, a miraculous faith, 1 Cor. 13.2. Sixthly, this same saving and justifying faith, Rom. 5.1. A Reprobate may have the first five and be damned, for there is but one Faith, Ephes. 4.5. which the world knoweth not, for it is a mystery, 1 Tim. 3.9, and the most men say they have it, if we will believe them; yet if we will believe Christ, few have it, and it is very scarce, Luke 18. being the faith of the Elect, Tit. 1.1.

Q. 18. Doe not wicked men say they believe in Christ?

A. Joh. 2.23. but Christ will not believe them, nor commit himself unto them, verse 24. It is not a bare believing of Christ in the clouds, but the having of Christ in a man, that giveth a man life, 1 Joh. 5.12. It is living in Christ as well as believing in Christ, Joh. 11.26. The wicked may say they have faith, Jam. 2.18. But if Christ be not in them by his spirit, 1 Joh. 3.24. for all this faith they may be Reprobates, 2 Cor. 13.5. Not every one that swam after the Ark, and cryed after Noah in the ark, and clambred and hung upon the ark but onely they that were in the ark were saved, 1 Pet. 3.20. So onely they that get into Christ are new creatures, 2 Cor. 5.17.

Q. 19. Why so?

A. Faith

A. Faith if it be unfeigned, 2 Tim. 1.5. ingraffeth a man into Christ, Rom. 11.23. If a man be not ingrafted into Christ, he shall burn in hell-fire, Joh. 15.6.

Q. 20. Whose ransom be these of this?

A. Two. First, the sentence of the Law cannot otherwise be true, the same soul that sinneth, that soul shall die, Ezek. 18.18. Therefore all the Elect must have such a faith, that they may be one with Christ, and Christ with them, Joh. 14.20. that Christ's death may be their death, 2 Cor. 5.14. Secondly, Christ is the life of them that believe, Col. 3.4. As the life of man is in him, and the life of every creature is in it, Gen. 1.30. so is Christ in a believer; This is a mystery, Gal. 3.27. which whosoever hath not, the wrath of God abideth on him, Joh. 3.36.

Q. 21. Dost thou believe the Articles of faith?

A. Yea, I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven, and so forth; which being a form of sound words, I must hold fast in faith and love, 2 Tim. 1.13.

Q. 22. Why dost thou say, I believe?

A. Because I cannot be saved without a particular Faith of my own, Jam. 2.18. (The just shall live by his faith, Hab. 2.4.) Whereby I may say, Christ gave himself for me, Gal. 2.20. and that he is my Saviour, Luke 1.47. by faith is my life, Joh. 20.31. As David could say, I live, Psal. 116.2. So he could say, I believe, verse 10. Neither is this presumption in a believer, for he knowes that Christ is his Redeemer in particular, Joh. 19.25. Yea in the time of spirituall desertion, he can say, My God, my God, Psal. 22.1.

Q. 23. Is not this presumption in some?

A. Yes, it is presumption in many; for if a carnall Professor shall say, my God, Hos. 8.2. the Lord pardons not his sinnes for all this, but is an enemy unto him, verse 3. As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also, Jam. 2.26. Ignorant faith is no faith, but unbelief, 1 Tim. 1.13. Faith asks who, and what, who is the Lord that I may believe? Acts 9.36. For faith is an explicite knowing faith, through Faith we understand, Heb. 11.3. Knowledge is partly before Faith, 1 John 4.16. And partly after Faith, 2 Pet. 1.3. A man must know what he believes, or else he cannot believe, Rom. 10.14. Yet faith is not so explicite, but there is some implicitenesse in it, as long as we live here, 1 John 3.2.

Q. 24. How canst thou say, I believe, can a man know that he believeth?

A. A man may know that he believeth, 2 Tim. 1.12. Even by that help of Gods Spirit, 1 Cor. 2.12. For he hath that witnesse in himself, 1 John 5.10. Indeed while he is a Babe in Christ, it may be he knoweth not a Babe is a Babe, though he understand it, he understands as a babe, 1 Cor. 13.11. Yea in the time of temptation too, a man is a man, though in a swound he knoweth not; in such a case David may feare he is cast off for ever, Psal. 77.7. And when passions are violent, as overmuch grief, or overmuch joy, Luke 24.41. But a child of God when his unbelief is at the worst, hath an inckling that he doth believe, Mark 9.24. Or props himself at least with this belief, that he hath believed, 2 Cor. 4.13. Howsoever faith bringeth evidence and assurance with it at the last, Heb. 11.1.

Q. 25. What say you of them that have the Spirit of bondage?

A. The child of God had it once, but then he hath it no more to feare againe, Rom. 8.15. Those that think they have assurance, and sometimes are not, they are alright, and sometimes feare, the Lord joynes such with unbelievers, Rev. 21.8. By fearfull are meant such as dare not confesse Christ in evill times. They live in darknesse, and know not whither they goe, whether to Heaven or to Hell, John 12.35. The godly may fall sometimes into such fears, that Christ may upbraid them, How is it ye have no faith? Mark 4.40. But they they are readie all their Election and calling to make sure, and therefore they are diligent about it, 2 Pet. 1.10.

Q. 26. How many objects of Faith are there that thou mayst believe?

A. I must believe in one Lord, Ephes. 4.5. Distinguished into three persons, 1 John 5.7. First, in God the Father, 1 Pet. 1.21. Secondly, in Christ, John 14. Thirdly, in God the holy Ghost, Matt. 28.19. So far forth as it is written in the word, Isa. 28.5. Which is a word of Faith, Rom. 10.8. A plaine and readie word, that the simple may be converted by it, Psal. 19.7 Psal. 119.130. It is a perfect word, able to make the man of God perfect, 2 Tim. 3.17. Whatsoever man, or Councell, or traditions, or Angels from heaven say, I must go to the word, if they speak not according to it, there is no truth in them, Isa. 8.20. If Paul himself were now alive, and should preach any thing besides it, he were accursed, Gal. 1. 8. It is a damnable sin to add to it, Rev. 22.18. Or to take a title from it, verse 19. 'Tis able to convince all gain-sayers without running to any of their many Expositions of it, the Scriptures themselves shew their own meanings, Acts 18.28.

Q. 27. But may we not give their Expositions unto it?

A. There must be a translating of the word, people understand not the Original tongue of it, 1 Cor. 14.9. And an expounding too, Luke 24.27. But no man may give his own sense to it, but the sense of the word, Neh. 8.8. For the same Christ that spake the dark speeches and Parables, the same Christ also expounded them, Mark 4.34. The holy Ghost speaking in the Scriptures, John 3.7. Teacheth the right meaning, John 14.26.

Q. 28. How is that?

A. By sundry wayes. First, by conferring places with places, as Micah 5.2. with Matt. 2.6. Secondly, by the scope, as if I would know Peters meaning, why he bids Davids Sepulchre was then to be seen, Acts 2.29. I may see the scope of the Spirit, verse 31. Thirdly, observing whether the word be proper or figurative, John 3.3. and many others.

Q. 29. What for measure of the word?

A. It undertakes to be a rule to all that we do, to the wearing of our haire, 1 Cor. 11.14. Or of a Garment, 1 Pet. 3.3. To our eating and drinking, 1 Cor. 10. To our Marketting and Merchandizing, Isa. 23.17. Not so little as a shoo-latchet, but if it be unfit, the word doth condemn it, Isa. 5.18. Not so little as an idle word, but the word doth tax it, Mat. 12.36. Not so little as a thought, but it must be according to the word, 2 Cor. 10.5. What ever we think, say, or do, we must be carefull to observe the judgment of the word, and lay it before us, Psal. 119.30.

Q. 30. Why dost thou say, I believe in God?

A. For three reasons. First, because I do not believe unlesse I go out of my self, and deny my self, Mat. 16.24. Secondly, unlesse I cast my self upon God, and rely on him, 2 Chron. 20.20. Thirdly, unlesse not only naturally, but also spiritually I be in him, move in him, and live in him, Act. 17.28.

Q. 31. Why dost thou believe in God as a Father Almighty?

A. First, that in my greatest dangers I may depend upon him who is able to deliver me, Dan. 3.17. This I must believe, Mat. 9.28. Secondly, that in my greatest temptations, I may not dare to sin against him, for I am not stronger then he 1 Cor. 1.10.12.

Q. 32. Why maker of Heaven and Earth?

A. First, that I may consider I am Created of God, and for God, to live holily, for the wicked are for the day of evil, Prov. 16.4. Secondly, that I may glorify God in my soul & body, for they are his, not mine, but Gods 1 Cor. 6.20. Thirdly, that I abuse none of his Creatures, for they are all unto Gods praise, Psal. 145. not to prophane them, for God is holy in them, v. 17. But have pleasure to behold Gods graces in them Psal. 111.2. See the invisible things of God in them, Rom. 1.30. And consider them, Mat. 6.28. And meditate on them, Psal. 143.5. And learne Parables or Similitudes for Spirituall things out of them, Mat. 24. 32. For God teacheth me by such Similitudes, Hos. 12.10.

Q. 33. Why dost thou believe in Iesus Christ thine only Son our Lord?

A. For two reasons, First, that I may be justifyed freely by his Grace, Rom. 3. 24. Who though he knew no sin, yet was made sin for me, that I might be made the righteousness of God in him, 2 Cor. 5.21. Secondly, that look whatsoever he did, or suffered, or had, may be woven in a mystery into my heart; if this mystery had not been in Paul, he himself had been a reprobate, 2 Cor. 13.5.

Q. 34. Must that then which was a historie in Christ, be a mystery in us?

A. Yea, by the application of all these articles concerning Christ to our soules; I must be an adopted Son of God, 1 John 3.1. Christ must be formed and conceived in me, Gal. 4.19. I must suffer with Christ, Rom. 8.17. And mine old men must be crucifyed in me, and sin dye in me, Rom. 6.6. I must be crucified to the world, and the world unto me, Gal. 6.14. I must be buried with him and raised up again to a new life, Col. 2.12. And seeke the things above in Heaven, Col. 3.1. And judge my self here, otherwise I shall be judged and condemned of the Lord, 1 Cor. 11.31.

Q. 35. Why dost thou say, Christ was conceived of the Holy Ghost? &c.

A. He was conceived, Luke 1.31. By the holy Ghost, verse 35. for the woman was found with child of the holy Ghost, Mat. 1.18. Supernaturally, that his conception might be without sin, vir. 20. For all others are conceived in sin, Psal. 51.5. Because that which is born of the flesh is flesh, John 3.6. And yet the Holy Ghost made him of a woman, Gal. 4.4. And he was born of her, Mat. 1.16. Being the seed of a woman, Gen. 3.15. Of the seed of David, Rom. 1.3. The roote of Jesse, Isa. 11.10. He suffered under Pontius Pilate, who gave sentence that he should be Crucifyed, Luke 23.24. And scourged him, and delivered him up to death, Mark 15.15. Before whom he had witnessed a good confession, 1 Tim. 6.13. And therefore Christ is said to be crucifyed at Rome the great City of Antichrist, Rev. 11.8. Because Pontius Pilate who delivered him to be Crucifyed, was Governour under Tiberius Cæsar Emperour of Rome.

Q. 36. Did Christ suffer in Soul too?

A. Yes, for his soul was exceeding sorrowfull even unto death, Mat. 26.38. His Soul was an offering for sin as well as his body, Isa. 53.10. Whole Christ was surety for us, Heb. 7.22. And a curse for us, Gal. 3.13. For our Soules have need of Redemption as well as our bodies, Psal. 49.8. It is a signe he suffered greater torments then bodily, by his sweat in the garden which was a bloody sweat, Luke 22.44. And by his lamentable speech on the Crosse, my God my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Mat. 27.46. And by his not onely tasting of the first death for us, Heb. 2.9. But also keeping of the second death from hurting us, Rev. 2.11.

Q. 37. How is hell taken in Scripture?

A. First, for the Grave, Isa. 14.9. Secondly, Hell is taken for the sences of Hell, Psal. 116.3. Thirdly, Hell is taken for the place of the damned after this life, Luke 16.23. Fourthly, for the hidden parts of the earth, Psal. 139.8. Fifthly, Hell is taken for the Devil and whatsoever is hellish, Rev. 20.14. Sixthly, for the lowest degree of Christs humiliation, Acts 2.27.

Q. 38. What sayest thou of Christs descent into Hell?

A. Not as though he descended to hell to suffer there the paines of the damned, for he said upon the Crosse, It is finished, John 19.30. Or to deliver the Soules of the Patriarchs & Fathers of old out of Limbo, for they were glorifyed before Mat. 17.3. And in Paradise by the vertue of Christs death, he being the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, Rev. 13.8. Or to Preach to Soules there in prison, 1 Pet. 3.19. For that was his Spirit Preaching in the moneth & dayes of Noah, while they were alive, v. 20. Or to triumph over Hell and Devils, for that he he did upon the Crosse, Col. 2.15. Nor as though he descended Locally at all into Hell for all that we know; for dying he said unto the good Thief, This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise, Luke 23.43. And he commended his Spirit to his Father in Heaven, verse 46.

Q. 39. Is it not an Article of Faith, and hath it not its meaning?

A. Yea, it is an Article of Faith (though the Greeke Church hath omitted it in their Creed) taken out of Scripture, Acts 2.31. And by this same descent into hell, is meant Christs lowest degree of humiliation, opposed to the height of his exaltation and ascension, Ephes. 4.10. For he was not onely dead, but hidden of death for a while, though he could not be held quite, Acts 2.24. Howsoever this descent into hell be understood, we are sure by this means his people shall never descend into hell Rom. 8.1.

Q. 40. What believest thou of Christs rising the third day?

A. He rose again, not by re-uniting his body to his God-head, for they were never severed by death, for being Crucified he was still the Lord of glory, 1 Cor. 2.8. But by re-uniting Soul and body together, and taking his life again which before he had laid down, Joh. 10.17. And he himself had power to do it, verse 18. To be Lord of quick and dead, Rom. 14.6. And this he did the third day, 1 Cor. 15.4. Namely, the third day from his suffering passively, verse 3. And therefore the space is called by the Scripture, the space of three dayes, Ioh. 2.19. And because that every day hath a night belonging to it, it is called the space of three nights too, Mat 12.40. That as by man came death, so by man also might come the resurrection of the dead, 1 Cor 15.21. Himself being the first fruits of them that sleep, v. 20. And the first born from the dead, Col. 1.18. And the first begotten of the dead, Rev. 1.5. And dyeth no more, Rom 6.9. And therefore those that rose before Christ, as the, Shunamites child, 2 Kings 4.35. and Lazarus, and the rest rose again to a mortall life, John 11.44.

Q. 41. Why did Christ rise again?

A. He rose again for the glory of God, and the good of all the Elect, Rom. 6.4. That they might be glorified, Rom. 4.25. For if he had not risen, they had till been in their sins, 1 Cor 15.17. This article was a comfort to Iob, and all before the comming of Christ, Iob. 19.25. And is to be remembred of all the people of God, as a comfort against all troubles, namely that Jesus Christ is risen from the dead, 2 Tim. 2.8. and for divers other reasons did he rise.

Q. 42. What believe you concerning the other two Articles?

A. He ascended into heaven, Ioh. 3.13 and was seen so doing, Iohn 6.62. being taken up, Acts 1.9. and he went up, verse 10. whether the bodies of the Saints are not yet ascended, no nor Davids, Acts 2.34. though their soules do ascend as soon as they are dissolved from their bodies to be with Christ, Phil. 1.23. and the Heavens must receive him till the times of restitution, Acts 3.21. and therefore in respect of his body we have him not with us here on earth, Iohn 12.8. but onely Sacramentally in his Supper, 1 Cor. 11.24. And he sitteth now at the right hand of God, Col. 3.1. in the throne of his Father, Rev. 3.21. being preferred even in his humane nature, above all Angels, and all Principalities and powers, Ephes. 1.20.21. expecting till his enemies be made his foot-stoole, Heb. 10.13. Where Stephen saw him standing up as in his defence, Acts 7.55. and where he maketh intercession for his redeemed, Rom. 1.24. As being their own onely Mediator, 1 Tim. 2.5.

Q. 43. What believe you of Christ judging the world?

A. He is ordained of God to be Judge of quick and dead, Acts 10.42. Not only men but Angels are reserved to the day, when (being called the great day Iude, 6.) He shall come to do it visibly, Act. 1.11. and according to those truths which are contained in the Gospel, Rom. 2.16. & as men may find their doome in the word, so they must expect it, Ioh. 12.48. His Saints too by their lives shall judge all the world that are not Saints, 1 Cor. 6.2. The set day, and houre, and time, knoweth no man, nor the Angels, no not Christ himself as Man, Mark 13.32. Though a mans particular judgement be as he dyes, *Heb.*9.27. either to Heaven or Hell, Luke 16.22.23.

Q. 44. What is the Office of Christ?

A. He is our Mediator, *Heb.*12.24. and he that makes intercession for us, *Heb.*7.25. appearing in the presence of God for us, Heb 9.24. and perfuming the Prayers of his members with the odours of his merits, whensoever they pray in his name, *Revel.*8.3.4. In this sense, no meere creature can be a Mediatour to intreat for us, 1 *Sam.*2.25. And therefore it is in another sence, that the prayers of Saints living upon earth, when they pray for other men, are called intercessions, 1 *Tim.*2. 1. & we must pray them to pray for us, Heb 13. 18. though not when they be dead; for then they be ignorant of us; yea, though it be Abraham himself, *Isa.*63.16. The dead know not any thing of the affaires of this life, *Eccles.*9.5. The Lord counts it an absurd thing that the living should seeke unto the dead, Isa 8.19. when once their soules go away hence, they be no more to appeare to us, *Psal.*39.13. Neither have we any warrant to pray the Angels to pray for us, though they be sent forth to Minister for us, *Heb.*1.14. Nor to speak unto them, unlesse it be in a Rhetoricall straine to blesse the Lord, *Psal*103.20.

Q. 45. Why did Christ take the office of a Mediator upon him?

A Because he was elected of God for this purpose, *Isa.*42.1. and fore-ordained, 1 Pet 1.20. and sealed, John 6.27. and Sanctifyed, John 10.36. And given of God for the life of beleevers. John 3.16. not onely to help sinners with a possibility of salvation that they might be saved, *ver.*17. but to convert sinners, 1 *Tim.*1.15. This was the agreement made between his Father and him, that he should have a seed, and that the Redemption which he purchased should actually prosper, *Isa.*53.10. This was the principall end he look't at, namely, that he might purchase to himself a peculiar people, *Tit.*2.14.

Q. 46. Which be the particular Offices of Christ?

A. He was Anointed, *Isa.*61.1. First to be our Prophet, to whom we must hearken as long as we live, *Deut.*18 15. Secondly, our mercifull and faithfull high Priest to reconcile us to God, *Heb.*2,17. and King of Saints, *Revel.*15. 3. For first, we were desperately ignorant of God, and he onely can reveale God unto us, *Matth.*11.27. Secondly, we were desperately alienated, being the enemies of God, and he onely can reconcile us, *Col.*1.21. Thirdly, we were desperately disabled, and could never have applyed this Redemption unto us, he onely can make us Kings over sinne and death, *Revel.*1.6.

Q. 47. Who is he that in effect denyeth Christs offices, and teacheth men so?

A. The Pope and his Church; for though he seeme to sit in the Temple of God, 2 *Thes.*2.4. and have the horne of the Lamb, as though he were Christs Vicar and friend, yet he speaks like the Dragon, *Revel.*13.11. And therefore he is said to deny Christ, 1 *Joh.*2.22.

Q. 48. How doth he deny Christs Offices?

A. First, because he denies Christs Prophetical office, he coynes new Articles of Faith; and therefore he is called the false Prophet, *Revel.*12.20. Secondly, because he denies Christs Priestly office, for he undertakes to offer Christ in the Sacrament, whereas Christ was onely once offered, *Heb.*9.28. He hath invented satisfactions and penances, and Purgatory, to expiate for sinne, whereas Christ trod the wine-presse alone, *Isa.*63.3. Thirdly, because he denies Christs Kingly office, for he applies that to himself which Christ spake of himself, *Matth.*28.18. and takes it onely to himselfe, 1 *Tim.*6.15.

Q. 49. Doth he deny no more of Christ?

A. He makes himself the head of the Church, whereas Christ onely is the head, 1 *Cor.*11.3. this office being given him onely of God, *Ephes.*1.22. He makes Peter and himself the rock, which was meant of Peters confession that he made, made, Matth. 16. 18. Namely, Christ the Son of God, verse 16. for he onely is the Rock, 1 Cor. 10. 4. The rock of all our salvation, Deut. 32. 15. And who is this rock save our God? Psal. 18. 31.

Q. 50. Why doest thou believe in God the Holy Ghost?

A. That he may apply Christ unto me to Justification, 2 Cor. 6. 11. that he may transform me into the image of God, 2 Cor. 3. 18. And make his graces fruitfull in me, Gal. 5. 22. that he may teach me all truth, and put me in remembrance of Gods word. John 14. 26. and lead me to walke uprightly, Psal. 143. 10. That he may comfort me in all Temptations, Acts 9. 31. helping me with groanes in my Prayers, Rom. 8. 26. That he may witnesse with my Spirit that I am Gods child, verse 16. that he whom the world knoweth not, may abide with me for ever, John 14. 16. For if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his, Rom. 8. 9

Q. 51. What doest thou believe the Holy Ghost doth more?

A. I believe that the Spirit makes me a member of one Body, 1 Cor. 12. 13. Namely, the holy Catholicke Church of Christ, which is spoken of, Rev 7. 9. which is the body of Christ, Col. 1. 18. and consisteth onely of Saints and Professors of holinesse, 1 Cor. 14. 33. Whereof if any walke scandalously, they are to be admonished; and if they will not be reclaimed, they must be accounted as Heathens, Matth. 18. 17. and cast out of the Church, though proud Diotrephes abused this power, 3 John 10. and delivered up to Satan, for the destruction of the Flesh, that the Spirit may be humbled, and so saved if it may be possible, 1 Cor. 5. 5. That they may learne not to blaspheme, nor cause the Word to be blaspheмed, 1 Tim. 1. 20. The visible Church have some among them which are not of them, 1 John 2. 19. But the true Church which is called Invisible, because the world cannot see which persons they be, are onely them which shall be saved, Acts 2. 47.

Q. 52. Wherein doth the Communion of Saints consist?

A. In two things, first, in Fellowship with Christ the head, 1 John 1. 3. Secondly, in fellowship with the Saints, verse 7. and so it consisteth in 7 things; First, in Unity, Ephes. 4. 3. 4. 5. &c. Secondly, In keeping company with them, Psal. 16. 3. Thirdly, in Praying for them, Ephes. 6. 18. Fourthly, in fellow-feeling compassion and bowels, Phil. 1. 2. Fifthly, in helping one another out of sin, Gal. 6. 1. and provoking one another to goodnesse, Heb 10. 24. Sixthly, in imitating the lives of the Saints, 1 Thes. 1. 6. as they imitate Christ, 1 Cor. 11. 1. Seventhly, in relieving them that lack, to the very selling our goods if need require, Acts 4. 34.

Q. 53. What believest thou concerning Remission of sinnes?

A. I believe, that all that believe in Christ receive remission of sinnes, Acts 10. 43. I cannot truly say, I am sick, but my sinnes are forgiven me, Isa. 33. 24. blotted out and remembred in heaven no more, Isay. 43. 25. nor imputed to me, Psal. 32. 2. but drowned in the Sea, Micha 7. 19. Namely of Christs blood, Ephes. 1. 7. which cleanseth me from all sinne, and I know my Belief is right if I walke in the light, 1 John 1. 7. For who so have not destroyed the works of the Devill in them, Christ was never yet manifest to them, 1 Joh. 3. 8. Those that sin against the Holy Ghost, shall never be forgiven, Matth. 12. 32. Neither are such as go on in their guilty Consciences forgiven, Exod. 34. 7. nor such as provoke Christ, and obey not his voyce, Exod. 23. 21. Yet God is a God ready to Pardon, Nehem 9. 17. upon true Repentance and Faith answerable to the vow in Baptisme, Acts 2. 38.

Q. 54. What believest thou concerning the Resurrection of the Body?

A. Though flesh & blood count it incredible, Acts 26. 8 nevertheless by faith I know it is true, Job 19. 26. And that these very eyes shall see and see my Redeemer, Job. 19. 27. though the wormes have eaten up all my Flesh, verse 26. yet, though my body were drowned and devoured of Fishes, Rev. 20. 13. yet the substance substance shall be the same, Justice requiring that the same bodies that sinned should be damned, and Mercy requiring that the same bodies that glorified God should be saved, 2 *Cor.*5.10. Nevertheless, I believe that the qualities and accidents shall be altered; namely, that this very mortall shall put on Immortality, 1 *Cor.*15.53. This dishonourable shall put on glory, this weak shall put on Power, verse 43. this naturall body shall be raised a more Spirituall body, verse 44. and beare the image of the heavenly, verse 49. though it be dispersed into a thousand thousand pieces by Corruption, yet Christ will lose nothing of it, John 6.39. And therefore my Flesh shall rest in hope, Psal. 16.9. of the Redemption of my Body, *Rom.*8.23. That mortality may be swallowed up of Life, 2 *Cor.*5.4. Though my soul while it is absent from my body, be present in the mean time with the Lord, verse 8. having returned to God that gave it, *Eccles.*12.7.

Q. 55. What believest thou more of the Resurrection?

A. That there shall be a Resurrection both of the just and also the unjust, Acts 24.15. the one to life, the other to damnation, John 5.29. For Christ is the Judge of quick and dead, Acts 10.42. And therefore though it be appointed unto men once to dye, nevertheless not to dye as beasts, but to come to judgement, *Heb.*9.27. The Angels being instruments of gathering them and sending them to Christs barr with a Trumpet, *Matth.*24.31. not a materiall Trump, but with the Trump of God, and with a shout, and the dead shall rise first, 1 *Thes.*4.16. Then those that are alive shall be caught up to meet Christ in the aire, verse 17. being changed in a moment, 1 *Cor.*15.51. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first Resurrection from sinne unto holinesse here, *Rev.*20.6. for he shall goe into life eternall, but the rest to everlasting punishment, *Matth.*25.46.

Q. 56. What believest thou concerning the last Article, namely Life everlasting?

A. I believe it is the inheritance proper to the Saints, who in this life are made meet to be partakers of it, *Col.*1.12. Which is a Kingdome, *Matth.*25.34. consisting, First in the beatificall vision and sight of God as he is, 1 *Joh.*3.2. Secondly, in entire likenesse with God, *Psal.*17.15. Thirdly, in fulnesse of joy and pleasure everlasting in Christ, *Psal.*16.11. Fourthly, in having no need of the Creature, *Rev.*22.5. but inheriting all things in God, *Rev.*21.7. Fifthly, in freedome from all troubles and grievances, and imperfections of this life, verse 4. The Blessednesse of it cannot enter into the heart of man to conceive it, it is so great, 1 *Cor.*2.9. It is such a holy Kingdome, that no unholy person may have it, 1.*Cor.*6.9. and if he were there, suppose that were possible which is impossible, 1 *Cor.*15.50. Yet he could have no happinesse there, for there dwelleth nothing but Righteousnesse, 2 *Pet.*3.13.

Q. 57. The wicked say they believe all this, but doe they?

A. Indeed they believe the history of God and his Word, *Jam.*2.19. otherwise they believe a falshood or a lye, *Jerem.*13.25. and therefore though they expect to be saved on their death-beds, when they dye they shall perish, Prov. 11.7. Though they cry, Lord, Lord open the gates of heaven to us, yet he will not open it unto them, *Matth.*25.11.12. God that made them will never save them, *Isa.*27.11. and though they dye, with Lord have mercy upon us in their mouthes, *Matth.*7.21. and so goe away like Lambes, they shall lye in the grave of Hell, as thick as Sheep in a sheep-coate, *Psal.*49.14.

Q. 58. How many Commandements are there?

A. Ten, ten Words, *Exod.*34.28. God added no more, *Deut.*5.22. Which are the rule of my steps, *Psal.*119.133. continually, verse 117. in my memory, verse 109. in mine understanding, verse 130. being my meditation all dayes, verse 97. that I may refraine from every sinne, verse 101. Idle

vaine

vaine thoughts and all, verse 113. and endeare them unto me above thousands of Gold and Silver, verse 72.

Q. 59. What rules are to help us in the right understanding of the Law?

A. Six more especially; First, that the Law is Spirituall, so spirituall that the best Saint is carnall in comparison of it, Rom. 7.14. reaching to all the heart, soul, mind, strength, Luke 10.27. Secondly, that it is perfect, Psal. 19. 7. commanding Obedience to every tittle; if a man doe but one sinne it doth curse him, Gal. 3.10. Thirdly, when it forbiddeth or commandeth any thing, it forbiddeth or commandeth all meanes, occasions, or provocations thereunto, and therefore the least lascivious look is Adultery, Matth. 5.28. The least hatred is Murder, 1 John 3.15. Fourthly, whatsoever the Law forbiddeth, it commandeth the contrary, 1 Pet. 3.11. Whatsoever it commandeth, it forbiddeth the contrary, Levit. 19.17. Fifthly, it runneth upon Negatives, for negatives bind strongly, this being the nature of a No, no in no wise, Rom. 3. 9. the affirmative bindes alwayes, but not to all moments, but the Negative bindeth to both, Luke 21.34. Sixthly, it's put in the second Person, that every soul may apply it, Mal. 2.1.

Q. 60. Who be under the Law, the Rigour of the Law, and the Curse of the Law?

A. All disobedient persons that are not made righteous by Christ, 1 Tim. 1.9. Even the whole world, whether Christian Professors or not, except they build by the Spirit of God, Gal. 5.11. bound to doe the Law to the utmost, as wife is bound to her husband, Rom. 7.2. and therefore the Law hath dominion over them as long as they live, verse 1. and the Curse too, Gal. 3.10. And whatsoever the rigour of the Law sayes, it's spoken directly to them, Rom. 3.19. but Believers in whom sinne doth not reigne, they are not under the Law but under Grace, Rom. 6.14. nevertheless they must not think the Law to be of none effect to them, Rom. 3.31. But first, they must consent to the goodnesse of it, Rom. 7.16. Secondly, get the knowledge of their sinnes more and more by it, verse 7. Thirdly, fling mire and dirt in their own faces, by reason of it, verse 24. Fourthly, delight in it as a blessed rule of life, verse 22. Fifthly, be moved by it to thankfulnesse to Christ, verse 25. Sixthly, be schooled by it to hang faster upon Christ, Gal. 3.24. Seventhly, to take heed of the naturalnesse of their flesh, that desires rather to be under the Law though never so cruell, then to be under Christ, Gal. 4.21.

Q. 61. Wherefore serves the Preface, I am the Lord thy God which brought thee out of the Land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage?

A. To teach me; First, I cannot wholly obey, except I believe God is my God, Josh. 14.8. and be one of the Israel of God, Gal 6.16. Secondly, that the consideration of what God hath done for me, is a motive to obey him, Job 14.15. Thirdly, that I am forgetfull of old mercies, and therefore the Lord perswades me to obedience with the newest and latest, Exod. 20.2. Fourthly, that the Spirituall meaning of this deliverance from Egypts bondage, concerneth all that are delivered from Satan and sinne, Heb. 2.14.

Q. 62. Are the duties of the first Table greater then the duties of the second?

A. Yes, because they are the first and the great Commandements, Matth. 22.38. First, because the object of them which is God, is greater then man, Psal. 33.12. Secondly, because the performance of them is the immediate worship of God, and he that sinnes against his neighbour, doth more eminently sinne against God, 1 Cor. 8.12. Thirdly, they moderate the duties of the second, as for example, the duty of obedience to Parents, otherwise it is not right, Ephes. 6.1. And yet with these cautions; first, that the comparison be equally made of the chief of the first Table with the chief of the second, of the middle with the middle, of the least with the least, otherwise not, Isai. 1.5.

Secondly,

Secondly, that our obedience to the second is an argument of our obedience to the first. 1 John 4.20. Thirdly, that the obedience to both is inseparable, holinesse and righteousnesse ever go together, Luke 1.75.

Q. 63. What are those commanded in the first, thou shalt have no other Gods but me?

A. To know God and believe him, Isa. 43.10. and in him alone, and in no other God, Psal. 81.9. This Commandement bids me keep all the rest, Deut. 11.32. Not onely to obey him in what he commanded at the first, but in any Commandement he would afterwards give, Heb. 11.17. And therefore this Commandement binds me now to believe in Jesus Christ, 1 John 3.23. to rely upon God for all things, 2 Chron. 16.8. Couragiously to wait upon God, Psal. 27.14. To walk before God, as a servant before his Master, Gen. 17.1. In all my wayes to think of God, and to acknowledge him, Prov. 3.6. To rejoyce in him evermore, Phil. 4.4. to fear him and to serve him, Deut. 6.13. to turn the desires of my Soul to him, and to the remembrance of him, Isa. 26.8. To labour more after him then after meat or drink, or any thing in this perishing world, John 6.27. To make him the end and scope of all mine actions, not onely Spirituall, but also civill, and naturall, 1 Cor. 10.31.

Q. 64. Now because we must serve God, and feare him, and love him, and trust in him, and so forth, according to his Attributes, which be they?

A. He is uncompounded, simple, and perfectly one, Deut. 6.4. Immutable and unvariable, James 1.17. and therefore he cannot be said to Repent, 1 Sam. 15.29. but onely improperly, in regard of the effects, Gen. 6.6 Infinite in place, neither the heaven of heavens is not able to contain him, 1 Kings 8.27. but is every where present, Psal. 139.7. Infinite in eternity, from everlasting to everlasting, Psal. 90.2. Not by succession of time but he is for ever, I am, Exod. 3. Infinite in Power, for he is Almighty, Gen. 17.1. Nothing is impossible to him, Luke 1.37. unlesse it be to do evill, that is a weaknesse and no power, and therefore unpossible to him, Heb. 6.18 Infinite in knowledge, he knoweth all things, John 21.17. Not by discourse one after another, but all together, Psal. 139.4. most free in his Will, he doth whatsoever he will, Psal. 115.3. will being the cause of all things, Ephes. 1.11. Gracious, abundant in goodnesse, mercy, in patience and Truth, Exod. 34.6. and Justice, verse 7. and holinesse, 1 Pet. 1.16. of terrible Majesty, Isa 37.22. most happy and blessed for ever, Rom. 11.36. and so forth.

Q. 65. How doe the attributes of God concerne thine obedience to God, that is in this first Commandement?

A. Firstly, God is simple as a Spirit, therefore he must be served in spirit and truth, Joh. 4.24. and I must doe every thing with simplicity, 2 Cor. 1.12. Secondly, God is unalterable, therefore I must trust in his Covenant, Psal. 34. neither change nor meddle with them that doe, but be constant, in feare, Prov. 24.21. Yet I must repent and so change my life; for God repenteth of the evill, Joel 2.13. Thirdly, if God fill heaven and earth, I must be conscious that whersoever I am God is, Jer. 23.24. Fourthly, if God be eternall, then he is the Eternall life that I must seek, 1 Joh. 5.20. and make him my continuall refuge, Deut. 33.27. Fifthly, if God be Almighty, I must not stand out against his chastenings, Isa. 5.17. but feare him, Jer. 5.22. and humble my self beneath before him, Job. 8.5. and returne to him, for there is no escaping out of his hand, Job. 22.23. Sixthly, if God know all things, then I must be conscious, that he seeth my thoughts, Matth. 9.4. and all my cares, Matth. 6.18. And so of the rest.

Q. 66. What are those contained in the second Commandement?

A. Not to serve God with will-worship, though it seeme never so wise, and humble, and mortifying, Colos. 2.23. To abhorre all grosse thoughts of God, Acts 17.29. as that he is such a one as mens selves doe think him to be, Psal.

to make any Image, *Deut.*5.8. unlesse God should reveale a new Commandement, as unto him and for Cherubims in the Tabernacle, Exod. 25. or for the brazen Serpent in the Wilderness, 2 Kings 18.4. or unless it be in a civil use, Matthew 22.19. To abhorre Images of Idolaters, either to worship God before them, 2 Chron. 25.14. or in them, as the Jewes did God in Baal, Hos. 2.16. or to be put in mind of God by them, verse 17. or being partaker or communion of Service with them, 1 Cor. 10.21. or bidding them, Gods speed, or bidding them God speed, verse 11. or learning any of their devises or customes of them, Deut. 12.30. or familiar reading their bookes, Acts 19.19. Unlesse it be to confute them by their own writers, Acts 17.28. to observe carnall Professors with their strictnesse in their kind, Rom. 2.14. good law of 1.17. &c.

Q. 67. What else are thou commanded in the second Commandement?

A. Not to leane to mine own knowledge, Proverbs 3.5. nor to serve God the precept of Men, Isaiah 29.13. not as men bid me, Mark 7.6. Nor according to the Traditions and customes of the lives of our Fore-fathers, 1 Pet. 1. I am commanded to do, not onely in matter what, but also in manner, as the Lord commandeth, Gen. 6.22. For otherwise my prayers and services that I offer unto God, and all my sacrifices and oblations are no better then murder, or a Dogs neck, or Swines blood, or Idolatry, so indeed it is, if I serve him after my own wayes, Isa. 66.3. not onely sticks and stones are Idols, Ezek. 20.26. 1. carnall fancies, imaginations, dulnesse, deadnesse, luke-warmnesse, for there are Idols in the heart, Ezek. 14.3,4. Covetousnesse is Idolatry, Col. 3.5. Stubbornesse is as idolatry, 1 Sam. 1.15,23. A careless Christian is an Idol, there is an Idol Professor, an idol Christian, an idol Shepherd, Zach. 11.17.

Q. 68. What art thou commanded in the third Commandement?

A. To glorifie the name of God, Rev. 15.5. that is his Titles and attributes, and 2. 3. 4. 5 his law, Deut. 32.3. his ordinances, as prayer and hearing of his word, and the like, Deut. 1.2,5. The profession of Christ, Mat 10.32. His censures, Excommunication and delivering men up unto Satan, 2 Cor. 5.4. His Sacraments, Mat 28.19. All his worship, Mal 1.11. his Meditation, Psal. 104.4. that not odely in tongue or lips, Heb. 13.15. but also in heart, Psal. 86.11. every action, Prov. 30.9. If any man or woman do not their duty, as for example, Servants or any others, they cause Gods name to be blasphemed, 1 Tim. 6.1. So also if any man break the Law of God, he is guilty of other men blaspheming Gods name, Romans 2.24. Likewise if a Brother or other walketh scandalously, they prophane Gods name, Ezek. 36.

Q. 69. What more are thou commanded in the third Commandement?

A. To feare God and sweare by his name, Deut. 6.13. with a Soul-bowing Psal. 45.23. which is a wholly confessing of God, Rom. 14.11. and an oath Covenant, Isa. 19.18. and in some solemne cases with a renewed oath, Deut. 29. either given by others, and so willingly taken, 2 Chron. 15.14. or freely offered, Psal. 119.106. if need require, by Oath before the Magistrate; wherein must be in Truth, and righteousnesse, and judgement, Jer. 4.2. and if any thing of weight be in private agreements, Gen. 26.31. As for performance of Vowes, Will and Testament, Gen. 47.31. or to cleare ones self, and graciously to satisfie a Brother, 1 Sam. 20.3. yea now under the Gospel too, Isa. 65. And in some cases a Minister may swear in the Pulpit, to make the People believe, 1 Cor. 1.23. and in more private threatnings from God, 1 Kings 17.1.

Q. 70. What art thou forbidden in the third Commandement?

A. I am forbidden in common talk Swearing, Mat. 5.34.35. lest I fall into damnation, Jam. 5.12. and bring all the Curses in Gods book on my house, Zach. 5.2,3. and cause the very land to mourne, Jerem. 23.10. It was the brand of a Turk to be a common swearer, 1 Sam. 14.24.39.44. 2 Sam. 19. 6, 7. and 28.16. And that whether it be in broken Oathes, as God, man be Judge, Jer. 5.2. Or in blasphemous oathes, for they are a double sinne; as by Christ, or by Baal, Jer. 12.16. Or any other hideous oathes, as by the Pall of Christ, or by the Lord himself, or by Alderlam, Ezek. 16. The prophane custome of swearing in a bloudy Gospeller, lying & killing are put together, Hos. 4.2. Nay, if the Lord hath a controversie with Men, Hos. 4.2. Nay, if a man heare an Oath, and do not utter a reproof, he is guilty of the sin, Levit. 5.1. and for every idle word a man shall give account before God at the last day, what then shall he do for his Oathes? Mat. 12.36 swearing is a casting of ones soule, Mat. 5.34 but chiefly I am forbidden all false sweating, Levit. 19.12. for that God Christ swiftly against one, Mal. 3.5.

Q. 72. What are then forbidden more in the third Commandement?

A. First, all taking Gods name in vain, as O God, O Lord, Deut. 5.11. Secondly, the formall repeating these words, the Lord be with thee, or the like, 1 Sam. 17.37. I thank God I do so and so, Luke 18.11. Thirdly vain repetitions, as Lord have mercy upon us, Christ have mercy upon us, Lord have mercy upon us, Papists and babling Battuses use them, Mat. 6.7. Yet repetition that proceeds out of a broken zealous heart be holy, Dan. 9.18, 19. Fourthly, the abuse of Lots, for their disposing is of God, Prov. 16.33. and were sacredly used for the deciding of Controversies, Prov. 18.18. Secondly, for Elections, 1 Sam. 10.21. Thirdly, for dividing of Portions, Numb. 36.55. Fourthly, the curse out of an offender, Jos. 7.14. for they were joyned with Prayer, Act. 1.24. resting on Gods determination, Jos. 14.2. being a Divine thing by the light of nature, Jonah 1.6, 7. and appealings to God, 1 Sam. 14.41. and therefore not to be used to wickednesse, Num. 27.55. as South saying, Esther 3.7. or Covetousnesse, or any evil practices, Prov. 1.14.

Q. 72. What are then commanded in the fourth Commandement concerning the Sabbath?

A. To keep it, to sanctifie it, and so as the Lord hath commanded, Deut. 5.12. not to hide mine eyes from it, Ezek. 22.26. not to turn my foot from it, to delight in it, to count it honourable, to honour God in it, not seeking mine own pleasure, not doing mine own works, nor speaking mine own words, Isa. 58.13. To regard it as mine own dwelling house, and in Gods & publique Congregations and assemblies, Levit. 23.3. there to Pray, Act. 16.13. To have the Word read and preached, Act. 15.21. to reason about matters of Religion, Act. 17.2. To sing unto the Lord and thank him, Ps. 92.1. To meditate and triumph in Gods works, verse 4. To talke of Gods faithfulnesse, and shew it forth in preaching and light, verse 2. It is not an houre or two at Church, and so an end, but all the whole day; for it is not a part of a day, but a whole Day, Neh. 13.21. If I will not hearken to hallow this day, I shall burn in Hell-fire for ever, Jer. 17.27. He is an adversary to God that mockes at a strict keeping of a Sabbath, Lam. 1.7. For God hath blessed it, Gen. 2.3. and it is a signe between a man and his God, Ezek. 20.12.

Q. 73. What say you more of the Sabbath?

A. I must not onely keep it, but keep it verily, Exod. 31.13. and abstain from all worldly works, not only rest but rest holily, verse 15. Fathers must not suffer, much less cause their Children or Masters their Servants, or Inne-keepers their Guests, to break this day, Exod. 20. or none may buy or sell victuals or wares on this day, Nehem. 13.16, 17. nor carry burthens, Jer. 17.22. Nor go journeys, Exod. 16.29. nor dress meat beyond necessity or godly convenience, to the hinderance of themselves or Daughters, or Maids from sanctifying this day, verse 23. Holidaies are referred holy Feasts or thanksgiving, Neh. 8.10. As the deliverance from the Gunpowder Treason, Esther 9.22. Fasts for humiliation, Obadiah 13. which must be Sanctified too, Jer. 14. as being sent of Sabbaths, Levit. 16.31. And therefore the Convocations of them must be holy, Levit. 23.24.

Q. 74. May no works but only of Gods immediate Worship be done on the Sabbath?

A. No, first works of Mercy to a Beast in danger or need, Matt. 12.11. or to Man in sickness or other misery, verse 10. whether in soul or body, Luk. 10.12. Secondly, works of necessity, as taking of food, Mark 2.23. Thirdly, works of decency, as making of beds, and the like; for the Sabbath was made for Man, and not man for the Sabbath, verse 27. Fourthly, works of common honesty and humanity, as saluting one another, we are not forbidden to be courteous, 1 Sa. 2.8. Fifthly, works though otherwise in themselves servile, requisite to Gods worship, as travelling to Church, Luke 6.6. or riding divers miles off to the Prophets of God, if need be, 2 Kings 4.22,23. The Ministers studying his text, and the Priests killing of the sacrifices, 2 Chron. 23.31. and setting things in order, Lev. 24.8. If any call this prophaning Gods Sabbath, he must know it is blameless, Mat. 12.5. Sixthly, works of helpfull refreshings, as walking, for that may be existent with the immediate worship of God, Luke, 6.1. I do not prompt Playing, Exod. 32.6. or recreations for our own Pleasure, for they are forbidden, Isa. 58.13.

Q. 75. There be many arguments to prove the Commandment of the Sabbath to be morall, which broke first fixe them?

A. First, the Sabbath was delivered to Adam before the fall, when there was no Ceremony, Gen. 2.2. which is not spoken by anticipation, but the context shewes it was then sanctified to him, verse 3. Secondly, Moses takes it for granted, it was known to be morall, & known before the Law was given, Exod. 16.25. Thirdly unlesse this be morall there cannot be ten Commandements; for the Duties being commanded in the three former, the time only here, either this time must be morall, or else there cannot be ten which is false, Deut. 10.4. Fourthly, God would not put a ceremoniall law in the middest of the moralls, and urge it with more words, reasons, repititions, and particulars then any of the moralls, as he doth the Sabbath, Exod. 20.9,10,11. Fifthly, Christ speaking of those dayes, when all the ceremoniall law was dead and buried, commands the Sabbath to stand still, Mat. 24.20. Sixthly, the Prophet prophecying of the dayes of the Gospel, when Christ the righteousnesse and salvation of God should be revealed, Isa. 56.1. pronounceth a blessing on them in those dayes that keep the Sabbath from polluting of it, verse 2. and putteth the keeping of the Sabbath for the whole obedience of of the covenant, verse 6. which he would not do, if it were ceremoniall; for obedience is better then sacrifice or ceremony, 1 Sam 15.22.

Q. 76. Now because some object, saying, the Sabbath is not engraven in mens hearts, neither is there any mention either before the Flood or after that the fathers did keep it, and so forth, therefore tell me what arguments have you to prove it morall?

A. First, if God had meant to put one Ceremony among the Lawes that were morall, he would rather have put Sacrifice, for that is more adequate to all the ceremoniall law, Hos. 6.9. being a type of repentance, Ps. 50.17. Thanksgiving, Ps. 107.22 Prayer, Prov. 21.27. Justice and Judgement, v.3. all religion, Prov. 15.8. all type of Christ, Heb 9.14. Secondly, the Scripture shewes that no Christ, Matt. 5.17. nor the law of faith doth disanull any thing of the law, meaning directly the Decalogue, Rom. 3.31. Thirdly, the Sabbath was intimated in Cains & Abels publick serving of God, Gen. 4.3,4. and in the publick calling on Gods name in the dayes of Enosh, v.26. and in Noahs waiting the fall of the waters by seven, Gen. 8.10,12. who no question as he condemned the world by building the Ark on the week days, Heb. 11.7. So also by preaching on the Sabbath, for he was a Preacher, 2 Pet. 2.5. & in Abraham who was a Prophet, Gen. 20.7. and had a great people to preach to, Gen. 14.14. Fourthly, the Sabbath is engraven upon mans heart, of which the engraving upon Tables was a token, Exod. 34.28. and to shew the everlastingnesse of it, it was written, which none of the Ceremonies were, in stone, Deut. 4.13. Fifthly, when God speaketh of the Covenant of grace, he saith, he will write it again in the minds of his redeemed, Heb. 10.16. even upon the fleshly tables of their hearts, alluding to the materiall writing, 2 Chron. 3.3. Sixthly, the very heathens had their Septaminis, their eights and the ninths, still hovering about the holy sevenths of the Decalogue, the whole law being obscurely written in their hearts, Rom. 2.15.

Q. 77. The Sabbath was the last day of the weeke; how commeth it now to be changed into the first day of the weeke?

A. This day the Lord hath made, Psal. 118.24. For on this day Christ rose from the dead, and rested from the work of Redemption, Mat. 28.1. having created new heavens and a new earth, Isa. 65.17. which we are to keep by vertue of the fourth Commandement still; for Christ telleth us, he is Lord of it, Mat. 12.8. which is called sometimes from priority of order and dignity, the first day of the weeke, Acts 20.7. Sometimes from the Author that did institute it, the Lords day, Revel. 1.10. as we see the Lords supper is called, 1 Cor. 11.20. And though the Sabbath from the creation were from even to even, Levit. 23.32. Dayes being so reckoned, Gen. 1.31. Yet this Sabbath is to be reckoned from Christs resurrection, and therefore is from morning to morning, Mark 16.2. And albeit Mary Magdalen came while it was darke, and Christ was risen before that, and so might seem to have risen over-night, John 20.1. yet that could not be; the woman, and Peter, and John would never have deferred their going to the Sepulchre till morning then as they did. Now how soever this day be circumstantially changed, and Ceremonies removed, yet the day stands still morall, Acts 16.13. The Commandement of not killing had a ceremony annext unto it, as the eating of flesh with the blood, Gen 9.4. which now is changed, Col. 2.21. and yet the Commandement of not killing stands still, Rom. 13.9.

Q. 78. What are then commanded in the fifth Commandement?

A. To honor my Father and Mother, Exod. 20.12. to feare my mother and father, Levit. 19.3. to use reverent speeches to them, 1 King 2.20. to obey them, Prov. 10.20. in godly choice of Marriage, as Isaac did, Gen. 24.4. 67. and of vocation, as Samuel did, 1 Sam. 1.28. and 2.11. and of suteable Apparell, verse 19. yea in all things, Col. 3.20. so it be in the Lord, Ephes. 6.1. To receive all godly instruction from them, Prov 1.8. to submit to their correction, Prov. 23.13. to requite my Parents love, 1 Tim. 5.4. to relieve them if they be in want, Gen. 47.12. to cover their infirmities in a humble wise, Gen. 9.23. To intreat Christ for them, Mark 1.29,30,31. in nothing to be unnaturall towards them, 2 Tim. 3.2,3. I must honour my Parents, not onely by generation, Prov. 23.22. but also by affinity, Ruth 3.1,3. by adoption, Esther 2.7,20. by rule and government, as Kings and Magistrates, Isa. 22.21. by bounty, as benefactors, Isa. 49.18. also through age, as old men, 1 Tim. 5.1.2. or through Spirituall profession, as Ministers and Preachers, 1 Cor. 4.15. for they are my Spirituall Fathers, Tit. 1.4. and these I must have in a double honour, 1 Tim. 5.17.

Q. 79. But what must my Parents do for me?

A. They must pray to God for me, 1 Sam. 1.10. and devote me unto God before I am born, verse 11. blesse God for me when I am born, Luke 1.68. and provide all things necessary for me to this life, and therefore much more for Heaven, 1 Tim. 5.8. To teach me diligently the wayes of the Lord, Deut. 6.7. that I may be learned in the Scripture from a child, 2 Tim. 3.15. and not provoked to wrath, but brought up in the nurture of the Lord, Ephes. 6.4. To offer continually the sacrifice of Prayer for me, though I be afarre off, Job 1.5. to set up the service of God in their house, that I may daily partake of it, Josh. 24.

15.

19. For cursed are such subtilties that have not Prayer and invocation upon God in them, Jer. 10.25. or hold more the observing of Gods Statutes, as for example, the Sabbath, Exod. 20.10.

Q. 80. What is the meaning of the sixth Commandement, Thou shalt do no Murder?

A. Thou shalt not kill thy self, Acts 16.27,28. neither by distempering thy self as a drunkard doth, 1 Sam. 25.36. nor by neglecting the body, Gal. 2.23. nor by denying comforts to the body, 1 Tim. 5.23. nor by too much grief, Prov. 17.22. Thou shalt not kill another, whether he be a good man, Prov. 21.12. or a bad man, Gen. 4.15. neither by deviser, 2 Sam. 11.15. nor by forgery, 1 Kings 21.13. nor by challenging duels, 2 Kings 14.8. This Commandement doth not only forbid murder in outward act, Gen. 9.6. but also all reproachfull words and anger, Matth. 5.22. and all angry looks, Gen. 4.6. and all hatred, 1 Joh. 3.15. and all tale-bearing, Lev. 19.16. I must blow away a tale-bearer, as the North-wind blowes away raine, Prov. 25.23. I must be carefull to maintaine the life and health of, and to recover my neighbour from sickness, not onely his daughter, Matth. 15.22. but onely his sonne, Joh. 4.47. not onely his servant, Matth. 8.5,6. but also a stranger, Luke 10.34.

Q. 81. Is it no unlawfull to kill in any wise?

A. Yes, Deut. 23.9. for the Magistrate may and must use the sword against them that deserve it, Rom. 13.4. but then it must be done in humility, Jehu in his zeale doing of justice would have put him when he put Naboth to death, 2 Kings 21.12. and with tenderness of the malefactours soul, that I may give glory to God, Josh. 7.19. A Captaine and his souldiers may kill the enemy in just warre, 1 Sam. 15.3. nay he is an offender if he will not, verse 18,19. before them be peace first offered if they be fit to have it, Deut. 20.10. and like a private man in case of necessity, upon his own defence or brothers, Exod. 22.2.

Q. 82. What else doth this Commandement urge?

A. Not to be soon angry, Tit. 1.7. unlesse it be without sinne, Ephes. 4.26. and against sinne, Mark 3.5. not to be hasty, Prov. 14.16. to belong sufficiently, 1 Cor. 13.4. to overcome evill with goodnesse, Rom. 12.21. ready to forgive, Ephes. 4.32. not to be suspicious, 1 Cor. 13.7. but apt to believe good of our neighbour, verse 7. to be courteous, 1 Pet. 3.8. without envie, Jam. 3.14. without emulation and any evill, Matth. 20.12. or envious disdaine, Prov. 14.21. or contempt, Prov. 13.13. or uncompassionatenesse, 1 Joh. 3.17. not to be a flattering friend, Prov. 29.5. not treacherous, Luke 22.4. not to beare a secret grudge, Prov. 26.26.

Q. 83. What more doth it Command?

A. To rejoyce with them that rejoyce, and weepe with them that weepe, Rom. 12.15. To resist the beginnings of strife, Prov. 17.14. as loud speaking, Ephes. 4.31. or provoking interjections, as Pish, tush, Rara, Matth. 5.22. To depart from our own right to redeeme love and peace, Gen. 13.8,9,10. To be hospitable, for thereby some have entertained Angels unawares, Heb. 13.2. to be without offence, Rom. 14.21. yea in a morsell of meat, verse 15. For if we offend the Conscience of our weak brethren, we sinne against Christ, 1 Cor. 8.12.

Q. 84. What is the meaning of the seventh Commandement, Thou shalt not commit Adultery?

A. Thou shalt not commit Sodomy, Rom. 1.27. nor Bestiality, Lev. 18.23. nor Incest, verse 6. nor Whoredome, Lev. 20.10. nor Fornication, Heb. 13.4. nor Polygamy, Mal. 2.15. nor Rape, Deut. 22.25. nor admit of unlawfull Divorces, Matth. 19.9. for lesse then Adultery, Matth. 5.32. Yet in case the wife hath committed Adultery, the bond is not broken, if the Husband be pleased to continue it and renew it, Hos. 3.1,2. nor our reasonable absenting, but there may be absenting upon necessity, 1 Sam. 25.18. As a Souldier in time of warre, 2 Sam. 11.11. or when a lawfull trade doth inforce, as a Seafaring man, for the men were carried mostly to have stayed abroad, 2 King. 5.19. Husband and wife must not defraud one another, unlesse it be with voluntary consent for time, for fasting and Prayer, 1 Cor. 7.5. or for some speciall work of God, Exod. 19.15. they must not deny one another due benevolence, 1 Cor. 7.3.

Q. 85. What say you of Marriage?

A. Marriage is honourable among all men, Ministers and all, Heb. 13.4. Simply considered, better then celibate or single life, because instituted before the fall of man, Gen. 2.18. so since the fall it is a meanes to avoid fornication, 1 Cor. 7.2. and temptations, verse 5. and burning, verse 9. yet to the or that man not to be married may be better, verse 1. and a speciall gift, verse 7. by reason of circumstance and present distresses, verse 26. For thereby are more vacant for the service of God, verse 32. But Marriage in it self hath neither Commandement for it, nor against it, verse 25. When a Sonne or Daughter are to marry, their Fathers have power to strike up the Marriage, Deut. 7.3. between such and such, Jer. 29.26. namely, with the parties consent, for that is essentiall to Marriage, Gen. 24.8. However the Father hath negative voyce, Gen 28.1. And though they have given their consent, he hath power to break it, Exod 22.17. Nay, their vow cannot stand without his consent, either expresse or implicite, Numb. 30.5.

Q. 86. What say you of Contracts or Espousalls before consummate Marriage?

A. They are not essentially required to Marriage, for it may be without Gen. 2.22. yet it is not amisse to goe by degrees in Marriage, being a weighty thing, a Covenant of God, Prov. 2.17. but when a couple are Contracted only, they are Man and Wife, Deut. 22.23.24. Joseph, and Mary espoused onely, Matth. 1.18. yet they were Man and Wife, verse 20. as appeares also by the spirituall Espousalls unto Christ, which are the faithfull, Hos. 2.20. & bound for ever, verse 19. namely, the Espousalls being absolute, Luke 2.5. yet if they be conditionall, they may be broken when Marriage cannot, for Marriage Contracts can disanull, Marke 10.9. to wit, First, if there were a just condition put, which is not fulfilled. Secondly, if a time were set, and the one party failes, then the other is free. Thirdly, if there appeares any thing after the Espousalls, which if it had been known before had hindered them, and now one party reasonably changeth his mind. Fourthly, if both agree to loosen the Promise made, but conditionally; promises of Marriage become often scandalous, Sam. 18.27. and therefore better stay till through agreement; for Marriage is the absolute taking of one to be a Wife, Gen. 25.1. Marriage though it be most solemnly celebrated by the Minister, yet it may be also by the civill Magistrate, Ruth 4.1. openly before Witnesses, verse 9. and with invocation and benediction, verse 11.12. So then Marriage is consummate, verse 13.

Q. 87. What is the duty of Man and wife?

A. First, Conjugall love, as toward their own bodies and soules, Ephes. 5.28. Secondly, speciall honour, and dwelling together according to knowledge, and Communion in the worship of God, 1 Pet. 3.7. Thirdly, communication of their body, and so possessing the vessell in Sanctification, 1 Thes. 4.4. Fourthly, communication of outward goods, especially for the use of them, for they are one flesh, Ephes. 5.31. onely, so as the Husband be the head, 1 Cor. 11.3. And therefore, First, he is to cherish his Wife, and to provide for her necessaries, Ephes. 5.29. Secondly, to goe before her in knowledge, yet so, as he encourage to her godly counsell, Judges 13.23. Thirdly, to rule well over his house, 1 Tim. 3.4. and as for the Wife, First, she must submit and acknowledge her self subject to her Husband, in the Lord, Ephes. 5.22. Secondly, reverence him, verse 33. Thirdly, ask questions of him, wherein she is ignorant about points of Faith, and therefore he is bound to be able to tell her, 1 Cor. 14.35. the rest in some cases give something away, without the expresse consent of her husband, so it be for the good of the family, 1 Sam. 15. 22. Parents must rule the poore, Prov. 14. especially if they get more and above, by her industry, Prov. 31. and doe not sinne against the trust of her Husband, verse 11. but be glad and not for his evill, verse 12.

Q. 88. What duty they owe that are to marry? And what say you more of the seventh Commandement?

A. They must seek God extraordinarily, by Prayer and meditation, as Isaac did, Gen. 24. 63. and their parents must solemnly blesse them, or they that give them in Marriage; they must solemnly blesse them, and beseech the Lords blessing upon them, verse 60. The man must be carefull that he marry a godly daughter of Gods people, Judg. 14. 3. and so is the Maid that she marry in the Lord, 1 Cor. 7. 39. and when they doe marry, to marry as if they married not, verse 29. and to beware of any disorders at the marriage feast, as if Christ Iesus were bodily there. Joh. 2. 2. this seventh Commandement forbids wanton company, Eph. 5. 7. all drunkennesse and excesse, 1 Pet. 4. 3. idlenesse, Ezek. 16. 49. filthinesse, and loosenesse of eyes, 2 Sam. 11. 2. and all impudent forehead, Jer. 3. 3. all kindes of light talking, 1 Tim. 5. 13. or gesture, Isai. 16. 17. Curious Dances, Stage-players, Pictures, Histories, tales, or any filthy conversation which may grieve a righteous Lot, 2 Pet. 2. 7. and lustfull attire, Prov. 7. 10. any strange fashions or apparell, Zeph. 1. 8. Magistrates must not tolerate, or lightly or ridiculously punish Whoredome or Fornication, for that doth tolerate, Deut. 23. 17. nor forbid the remedy, as Marriage, 1 Tim. 4. 3.

Q. 89. What is the eighth Commandement?

A. Thou shalt not steal, that is, Thou shalt not defraud, Mark 10. 19. whether it be by robbery, Luke 10. 30. or Burglary, Exod. 22. 2. or any other theft, 1 Cor. 6. 10. whether by concealing, 1 Kings 21. 7. or by partaking with a thief, Prov. 29. 24. or by being a confederate, Prov. 1. 14. Secondly, thou shalt not use cunning guile, 1 Thes. 4. 6. neither by vaine getting, Prov. 13. 11. nor sinfull getting, Jer. 17. 11. not covetous getting, Hab. 2. 9. nor by dishonest detaining, Jam. 5. 4. Thirdly, thou shalt not be an Usurer, whether by extortion, Ezek. 22. 12. or any other sinne against the sense of true lending, Luke 6. He that lives in this sinne wittingly is under an impossibility to be saved, Psal. 15. 5. for he is an unjust man, Prov. 28. 8. whether he be a lending Usurer, Deut. 23. 19. or a Broker for Usurers, Jer. 15. 10. or a wilfull inventer of new usury, for it is cursed to be wise to doe evil, Jer. 4. 22. Fourthly, thou shalt not be niggardly, Eccles. 6. 2. nor carking and caring in any thing, Phil. 4. 6. nor resolving to be rich, 1 Tim. 6. 9. nor hasty to be rich, Prov. 28. 20. nor unfaithfull in the increase of riches, Eccles. 4. 8. Fifthly, thou shalt not be a waster, Prov. 28. 9. not improvident, for thy self, or servants, or wife, or children, or any others that are thine, 1 Tim. 5. 8.

Q. 90. What doth the Commandement forbid more?

A. Needlesse suretyship, Prov. 11. 15. false weights and measures, verse 1. overreachings and boardings of Corne, or the like, verse 23. asking a higher price for wares then the seller may afford, for that is lying, Prov. 20. though it be to bring the buyer to a due worth, for that is to doe evill that good may come of it, Rom. 3. 8. disprayling of the wares as buyers use to doe, that they may get them under value, Prov. 20. 14. buying things that are not to be sold, as Graces, pardons, presentations to benefices, Acts 8. 18. making of wares that are unlawfull to be used, as Dice, and Shrines for Idolatry, Acts 19. 24. Sacrilege, Rom. 2. 22. of things given to good uses, either by over-sell, for which Ananias and Saphira died suddenly, Acts 5. 5. 10. or by other, Prov. 20. 25. of rents of any Church-stocke, Mal. 3. 8. or Church living, whether it be by bringing, or alienating, or devouring of them, Acts 7. 7. 8. here are condemned, First, Landlords Gentlemen that will not labour in their their calling, Luke 16.3. Secondly, Idle Gentlemen that will not work at all, 2 Thes. 3.11. Thirdly, idle beggers that would have to eat, and yet are loath to work for it, verse 10. Fourthly, all, be they never so great, or Noble, or rich, that use no vocation, Gen. 3.19. Fifthly, all Juglers, Fidlers, Gamesters, Players, keepers of game-houses, sight-shewers, and all that work not with their hands the thing that is good, Ephes. 4.28.

Q. 91. What more does this Commandement command?

A. First, To make restitution whensoever we have wronged our neighbour, Exod. 22.5. yea rather more then lesse to the party damnified, Lev. 6.5. or if he be dead, to those next of kin, or for want of them to pious uses, Num. 5.7,8. with amends for the wrong, Luke 19.8. and if we be not able, yet as much as we can, Exod. 22.3. though it be with the parting with our garments if it be desired, Prov. 27.13. if ever we meane to be forgiven our sinnes, Luke 6.7. nay our repentance is all rotten whatsoever it be, except we right our wronged neighbour; for God is no respecter of persons Col. 3.25. Secondly, to be content with whatsoever estate we are in, Phil. 4.11. whether richer or poore, verse 12. even with bare food and rayment, 1 Tim. 6.8. yea in want and necessities, 2 Cor. 12.10. to be moderate in the caring for maintenance, Prov. 30.8. Thirdly, to use comfortably the good gifts of God, Eccles. 5.18. so that nothing be lost for want of honest saving, John 6.12. casting our care upon God, 1 Pet. 5.7. to be sober in the using of, or caring for any thing, Mat. 6.25. not giving too much to the belly, Luke 16.19. or back by chargeable apparell, 1 Tim. 2.9. Fourthly, To give without sparing to them that are in need, Prov. 22.26. as we have wherewithall, Ephes. 4.28. especially to the Saints, Rom. 12.13.

Q. 92. What say you of mens particular Callings, for they come here to be examined?

A. Every man and woman is to have a calling, Gen. 2.15. and to doe his own businesse, 1 Thes. 4.11. though it be with much labour and sweat, Gen. 3.19. wherein he is to labour six dayes, Exod. 20.9. except it be to goe to a Lecture, or to any other higher duty, Luke 4.18. for idlenesse is a deep sleep, Prov. 19.15. Now a man may know whether his calling be good. First, if it be the working of that which is good, Ephes. 4.28. Secondly, if it be honest and of good report among the Saints, Phil. 4.8. Thirdly, if it be such a calling as he may have God to teach him in, Isa. 28.26. and to give him a gift comfortably and profitably to discharge, 1 Pet. 4.10. and these things he must have for to follow it. First, Wisdome and skill to understand his way in it, Prov. 14.8. Secondly, Diligence, Prov. 10.4. Thirdly, Prudence to observe opportunities, verse 5. Fourthly, Courage to undergoe difficulties, Prov. 20.4. Fifthly, Not to be hastier to be rich then godlinesse and a good Conscience will afford, Prov. 28.20. Sixthly, Minding his own matters, 1 Pet. 4.15. Seventhly, The grace of God to sanctifie and establish his work, Psal. 90.17. a man must abide in his calling wherein he is called, 1 Cor. 7.20. except it be a calling onely for a time, as to be a servant; for then he may be free when God opens a doore, verse 21. otherwise not to leave it without a speciall warrant, Amos 7.15.

Q. 93. Now because the rich are the poores purse-bearers, and doe feed from them if they be not mercifull and bountifull to them, what say you of almes and bounty?

A. Every soul that hath not a farthing to give, yet in affection must, for there is a liberall soul, Prov. 11.13. Secondly, though a man be a poore labourer, he must labour the harder that he may be able to give, Ephes. 4.28. Thirdly, much more if a man have this worlds goods somewhat more plentifully, 1 John 3.17. Now this giving is not to harden a man either in his necessaries or conveniences to his estate and condition, 2 Cor. 8.13. yet in case of necessity of our poore brother, we must to our power and beyond our power give, verse 3. yea yet in our deep poverty to be liberall, *v.*2. to our decayed brethren, *Act.*20. 35. especially such as are nearest us, verse 34. to all, but most especially of all to the houshold of faith *Gal.*6.10. not so much to them that are wicked, yet charitably not judge easily evil of any, 1 *Cor.*13.5. and this our giving must be first, with aiming at the honouring of God, *Prov.*3.9. Secondly, without letting our left hand know what our right doth, *Mat.*6.3. Thirdly, without shaming of the poore, 1 *Cor.*11.22. Fourthly, out of a charitable & a compassionate mind, 1 *Cor.*13. Fifthly, not grudgingly but chearfully, 2 *Cor.*9.7 & id bountifully v. 6. Sixthly, according to the measure of Gods prospering of us, 1 *Cor.*16.2. which how much and what, and when, cannot be defined, but by wisdome and discretion which teacheth how to give, *Ps.*112.5. Seventhly, we must consider, that he which takes pity on the poor, lends to the Lord, and that which he hath given, he will pay him again. Proverbs 19.17.

Q. 94. What is the meaning of the ninth Commandment, Thou shalt not bear false witnesse against thy neighbour?

A. That is, thou shalt not lye, *Levit.*19.11. for lying is an abomination unto the Lord, *Prov.*12.22. and shalt never escape, *Prov.*19.9. but be damned, Rev. 21. whether it be with merry lyes, *Hos.*7.3. or officious lyes, though it be to ones selfe, *Gen.*12.13. neither mayest thou lye, thinking to glorifie God by it, *Rom.*3.7. or for God, though thy meaning benever so good, Job 13.7. nor with pernicious lyes, *Prov.*6.17. nor by telling the truth with a false gesture, or countenance, or pronuncation, or unseasonably, as Doeg spak truth, *Sam.*22.9. yet he lyed by speaking it, *Ps.*52.3. a deceitfull tongue shall not be in thy mouth, *Zeph.*3.13. Thou shalt not feare to confess the truth *Mat.*26. nor slip away for feare of standing to the truth, 2 *Tim.*4.16. Thou shalt not give eare to Rumors, flying reports, or tale-bearing lipes, *Prov.*17.4. nor give credit to such as carry favour, as David to Ziba, 2 *Sam.*16.3,4. not interpret good things ill, 1 *Sam.*16.13. not judge rashly, lest thou be judged, Mat. 7. unlesse where thou know by the fruits, thy judgement is right, verse 20. and accursed art thou if thou call a wicked man an honest man, *Isa.*5.20. Thou shalt not speake true words intending a wrong sence, Matthew 26.60, 61. thou shalt utter the truth when thy neighbour does need it, or God does command it, Acts 4.20. and not betray the truth from thy neighbour, *Eph.*4. 25. leave him comfortlesse in the middest of lying reports, 1 *Sam.*24. thou shalt be like to cost thee thy life, 1 *Sam.*20.32,33.

Q. 95. Which be the Speeches that seeme to be lyes, and yet are not?

A. First, Ironicall speeches seeme to be lyes, and yet are not, *Mat.*22.1. Secondly, Paralipsures they are not lyes neither, *Gen.*3.22. nor speeches in godly simplicity of wickednesse, 1 Kings 18.27. nor Thirdly, Apologues and morall parables though of matters that cannot be so, *Judg.*9.8. nor Fourthly, Hyperbolicall, though they set forth things seemingly more then they are, 1 *Sam.*7.6. nor yet Fifthly, Figurative speeches, though literally not true, *Jos.*15.1. nor Sixthly, speeches of confession, though cleane contrary to the down-right meaning of the speaker, 1 *Kin.*22.15. nor Seventhly, speeches of simple desire, though the thing be otherwise, Luke 24.28. nor Eighthly, threatning, though not effected, when the understood condition is supplyed, *Jon.*3.4. nor Ninthly, Promises not kept when the condition is broken, 1 Kings 11.38. nor Tenthly, dictating Commandements, 1 *Sam.*10. though not obeyed, 1 *Sam.*13.8.

Q. 96. What lying reports go for currant in the godly?

A. They are reproched and shamed, *Ps.*69.7. and counted Fifth, strange men, yea even of their brethren, verse 8. Secondly, zelous hot spirites, verse 9. Thirdly, mocking weepers, verse 10. having Proverbs made on them, verse 11. Songs and Ballads made on them too, verse 12. being mowed and grined at as they go in the streets, *Psal.*35.16 and winckt at with the eye, verse 9. and laught at, verse 21. Fourthly, Signes and wonders, and monsters of men, *Isa.*8.18.

Thirdly, so long [illegible] Sixthly, hypocrites, as it [illegible] & Atheists & prophanelings, were holier then they [illegible]

[illegible] Eleventhly, [illegible] Twelfthly, [illegible] every where [illegible] particular followers, [illegible] Thirteenthly, [illegible] Fourteenthly, [illegible] Fifteenthly, [illegible] Sixteenthly, [illegible] Seventeenthly, [illegible] Eighteenthly, [illegible] Nineteenthly, [illegible] Twentiethly, [illegible] Twenty-firstly, [illegible] Twenty-secondly, [illegible] Twenty-thirdly, [illegible] Twenty-fourthly, [illegible] Twenty-fifthly, [illegible] Twenty-sixthly, [illegible] Twenty-seventhly, [illegible] Twenty-eighthly, [illegible] Twenty-ninthly, [illegible] Thirtiethly, [illegible] Thirty-firstly, [illegible] Thirty-secondly, [illegible] Thirty-thirdly, [illegible] Thirty-fourthly, [illegible] Thirty-fifthly, [illegible] Thirty-sixthly, [illegible] Thirty-seventhly, [illegible] Thirty-eighthly, [illegible] Thirty-ninthly, [illegible] Fortiethly, [illegible] Forty-firstly, [illegible] Forty-secondly, [illegible] Forty-thirdly, [illegible] Forty-fourthly, [illegible] Forty-fifthly, [illegible] Forty-sixthly, [illegible] Forty-seventhly, [illegible] Forty-eighthly, [illegible] Forty-ninthly, [illegible] Fiftiethly, [illegible] Fifty-firstly, [illegible] Fifty-secondly, [illegible] Fifty-thirdly, [illegible] Fifty-fourthly, [illegible] Fifty-fifthly, [illegible] Fifty-sixthly, [illegible] Fifty-seventhly, [illegible] Fifty-eighthly, [illegible] Fifty-ninthly, [illegible] Sixtiethly, [illegible] Sixty-firstly, [illegible] Sixty-secondly, [illegible] Sixty-thirdly, [illegible] Sixty-fourthly, [illegible] Sixty-fifthly, [illegible] Sixty-sixthly, [illegible] Sixty-seventhly, [illegible] Sixty-eighthly, [illegible] Sixty-ninthly, [illegible] Seventiethly, [illegible] Seventy-firstly, [illegible] Seventy-secondly, [illegible] Seventy-thirdly, [illegible] Seventy-fourthly, [illegible] Seventy-fifthly, [illegible] Seventy-sixthly, [illegible] Seventy-seventhly, [illegible] Seventy-eighthly, [illegible] Seventy-ninthly, [illegible] Eightiethly, [illegible] Eighty-firstly, [illegible] Eighty-secondly, [illegible] Eighty-thirdly, [illegible] Eighty-fourthly, [illegible] Eighty-fifthly, [illegible] Eighty-sixthly, [illegible] Eighty-seventhly, [illegible] Eighty-eighthly, [illegible] Eighty-ninthly, [illegible] Ninetiethly, [illegible] Ninety-firstly, [illegible] Ninety-secondly, [illegible] Ninety-thirdly, [illegible] Ninety-fourthly, [illegible] Ninety-fifthly, [illegible] Ninety-sixthly, [illegible] Ninety-seventhly, [illegible] Ninety-eighthly, [illegible] Ninety-ninthly, [illegible] One hundredthly, [illegible]

Q. 99. Now for the tenth Commandement, before you speak of that, tell me what is Original sinne?

A. It is three-fold. First, it is Adams act and all disobedience, whereby [illegible] and nature infected infects every person, insomuch as all [illegible] thereby are made sinners, Rom. 5. 19. For by finding all men sinned [illegible] Adam, 1 Cor. 15. 22. and Adam was not only the sinne [illegible] verse 21. and all men were then potentially in his loynes, as Levi was [illegible] Melchisedech did [illegible] Heb. 7. 10. and they all sinned [illegible] Abraham, so Levi payed tithes in Abraham, verse 9. So they were all [illegible] right in Adam. So they all sought out many inventions in Adam, and found what Adam did, they all would have done if they had been in his roome. [illegible] 10. being born of him as the young ones of the old sheep or anything [illegible] All sort of the old one, [illegible] so the young Viper doth rip the belly [illegible] one brought forth a Viper and most goodly [illegible] of children [illegible] of these little complain that it [illegible] Mal. 2. 10. Have we not one [illegible] child may complain of the father, or the [illegible] that sayes to his father, what begettest thou? [illegible] like, and after its owne image, [illegible]

Q. 99. You said, that Originall sin is three-fold, and have told me the first branch; which is the second?

A. A naked privation of all originall righteousnes which every soule is born in, Psal. 51. 5. whereby there is no Spirituall goodnesse in any man by nature, Rom. 7. 18. no power so much as to think a good thought, 2 Cor. 3. 5. no life of God, Ephes. 4. 18. the mind altogether in darknesse, Ephes. 5. 8. desperately unable to comprehend any saving light, though it shine on it, John 1. 5. the conscience void of all Purity, Tit. 1. 15. and all true peace, Isa. 57. 21. and soaling Psal. 5. 10. and since, 1 Tim. 4. 2. the will unable to make choice or to resist the stings of Gods Spirit, 1 Cor. 2. 14. and never able to help it self, except the Lord work it, Phil. 2. 13. the whole man dead in sin, Col. 2. 13. the affections out of order and vile, Rom. 1. 26. and unnaturall, 2 Tim. 3. 3. the appetite unbridled from immoderate thirsting, Prov. 23. 2. and had need of a knife to be put to the throat, Prov. 23. 2. the senses unspirituall, Jude 19. and had need of a new covenant to be made with them, Job 31. 1. being heavy and dull to let in that which is good, Matt. 13. 15. the outward members servants to the carnall heart, Rom. 6. 19. a privation of right to the Creatures, for Christ onely is now the heire of them, Heb. 1. 2. and those that are in Christ, 1 Cor. 3. 22. otherwise all the creatures groane in mans hands, Rom. 8. 22. indeed wicked men may have a civil right before men to the creatures, Nabal sheared his sheep, 1 Sam. 25. and ruffled upon the creatures; because they are forbidden to murder themselves, Gen. 9. 20. 13.

Q. 100. Which is the third branch?

A. A positive corruption of nature, 1 Cor. 15. 50. whereby the whole man is not onely fleshly, but flesh it self, John 3. 6. it being a compleat body of sinne, Rom. 6. 24. consisting of all the members, verse 13. the mind, an enemy unto God, Rom. 8. 7. desperately inclined by carnall reasons, to devise evil, Jer. 4. 22. the will self-willed, 2 Pet. 2. 10. the affections invincibly set upon the things here on earth, Col. 3. 2. except Christ raise them up again, verse 1. the memory apt to forget spirituall things, 2 Pet. 1. 9. and to remember carnall, or carnally, Psal. 27. 63. the Conscience irrecoverably evil, Heb. 10. 2. except Christs own Spirit once purge it, Heb. 9. 14. and therefore it is the nature of a man to be a child of wrath, Eph. 2. 3. which is most constant and unalterable, and impossible to be healed, except the power of the Almighty change it, and quicken, together with Christ, verse 5. Thus is every man conceived and born, nay David himself, Psal. 51. 5. and though he be baptized, and then presently die, yet if he were not baptized with Gods Spirit too, John 3. 5. and born again from above, he could not be saved, verse 3.

Q. 101. How is Original sinne called in Scripture?

A. Firstly, because this onely is hereditary, it is called absolutely sin, Rom. 5. 12. Secondly, because it can never be gotten quite out in this life, it is called the sin that dwelleth in us, Rom. 7. 17. Thirdly, because of its wonderfull fast hold in both powers of our natures, it is called the sin that hangs so fast on, or that so easily besets us, Heb. 12. 1. Fourthly, because it hath enthralled the whole man, and every faculty and members, Rom. 7. 23. Fifthly, because of its antiquity and memory, and experienced subtilty, it is called the old man, Rom. 6. 6. Sixthly, because it is ever hatching and conceiving of evil, and though a man have never so much grace, yet it is ever lusting against it, it is called lust, Jam. 1. 14. which will not let the godliest man under heaven do that good that he would, Gal. 5. 17. Seventhly, because it is directly opposite to the spirit, and all the graces of the Spirit, it is called the flesh, Eph. 2. 3. and the uncircumcision of the flesh, Col. 2. 13. and because a carnall man loves it as dearly as he does his heart-blood, it is called blood too, 1 Cor. 15. 50. &c.

Q. 102. The Papists say, that it is not properly a sin, but only after a manner, the Pelagians say, there's no such sin by propagation, but only by imitation; and the Anabaptists say, that new-borne Christs there's none borne in sinne; How do you prooue that there is? 1. First, Reason teaches plainly, that euery thing was propagated to that, Iob 14.4. 2. Secondly, Psal. 51.5. shewes that sinne is now as naturall to a man as water to a fish, Iob 15.16. Thirdly, Ier. 17.9. shewes it is such a wofull corruption, that no creature can ever purge it out, Ier. 2.22. Fourthly, Rom. 3. shewes that there is such an vniuersall depravation in mans nature, that all that comes from it (though it seeme never so holy, and godly, and religious, yet it is alway vile and continually evil, Gen. 6.5. Fiftly, Paul shewes that mans nature is so thoroughly corrupted, that there is nothing in it but is the object of Gods hatred, Ephes. 2. Lastly it is such a deadly contagion, that the dearest of Gods Saints, whensoever they look into it, they are faine to cry out O wretched man that I am, Rom. 7.24. And this Originall sinne remaines still in them; the Saints have been baptized, Rom. 6.3. and yet it was in them, though they were to look to it, that it might not reigne in them, Rom. 6.12. and it may be vnder grace, but is not freed from the exercise of it, and the commandments of it, but onely from the dominion of it, Rom. 7.14. and because it is still ever working afresh, we must every day sue out a new pardon, Psal. 51. and ever goe to the fresh fountaine to be washed anew, Zach. 13.1.

Q. 103. What are the Euils that the sinne of Originall sinne must needs be?

A. First, to begin our humiliation here, thou wert a stranger to God in the wombe, Isa. 48.8. Secondly, not to trust any of our faculties; David durst not trust his mouth without a bridle, Psal. 39.1. he would have no window to his house or before his eyes, Psal. 101.7. Iosiah would not trust his eares to the hearing of or being with an Idolatrer, Gen. 39.10. Thirdly, we must not trust with an diligence, Prov. 4.23. and to bind the Law of God about our hearts, Prov. 3.3. nay, Fourthly, not to trust any grace that we have received already, nor to count our lives to have aprehended enough, but to presse forward, Phil. 3.13. Fiftly, to be still laying aside more and more of the weight, Heb. 12.1. and to be still warring against it, for it is still working and lusting, Iam. 4.1. yea first, this sinne is an enemy ever present with us, and whatsoever we are doing, the best good, Rom. 7.21. Secondly, because our sinnes are by reason of this sinne then we can believe, before we find it by experience; Hazael could not believe what a vile beast he had, 2 King. 8.13. Peter denied, Matth. 26.33. Thirdly, because it is impossible in the nature of it to trust a mad man, Eccles. 9.3. Suppose we stand for the present, another fall, & we must restore him, so we must consider our lowest estate, our case be we never so spirituall, Gal. 6.1.

Q. 104. What doth the Law command about this?

A. It commands the inward parts, Psal. 51.6. to be intercepte in the thinkings of the heart, Prov. 6. it forbids all inward lust, Rom. 7.7. and all first motions of the soule, Iam. 1. even before the consent and allowance of the evil, Ezek. 8. and all lusting after evil, Deut. 10.16. or after the good creatures of God in a carnall manner, Deut. 7.4. and all the squint-eyed lookings of the heart, Iob 31. for the very sins are. First, ungodly, Iude 18. Secondly, they are foolish and hurtfull, and they may provoke them to perdition, 1 Tim. 6. Thirdly, they are detestable, Ezek. 23.14. Fourthly, worldly, Ps. 17. Fiftly, they are of the Devil, Iohn 8.44. Sixthly, they are the very enemies of grace, Rom. 8.7. Seventhly, they are the first workers of a finfull estate, Ephes. 2.3. the first tempters and enticers of the soule, Iam. 1. and the first Coiners of sin, Prov. 1. and the first that make the soule a servant to sin, Rom. 6. and they now remaining in us from Originall corruption, Rom. 7. And if we do not crucifie them, it is a figne we are not Christs, Gal. 5. and if we do not resist them, they will grow to that strength, that we shall not be able to withstand them, Iam. 4.

Of Thoughts.

Quest. How proue we the Thoughts are the beginning of sinne? [illegible]

Luke 6.45. Matth. 5.28. Therefore what say you of the Thoughts?

Gen. 6.5. Iere. 4.14. and a rash never repents, till he is [illegible]

Iere. 44. till an euil conscience, Ier. 33.7. [illegible]

Psal. 73.22. and therefore we [illegible]

Luke 24.38. [illegible]

Acts 15.19. but also those that

Iohn 13.2. especially if they [illegible]

Luke 2.35. [illegible]

Psal. 139.2. yea euen [illegible]

Acts 7.54. and

Psal. 73.13. yet the heart will think them [illegible]

Psal. 125.22.

Quest. But how if a soule be hunted with wild thoughts, and the more it [illegible]

Prou. 30.32. Secondly, trust in Christ Iesus for [illegible]

Psal. 94.18. Thirdly, resolue that [illegible]

Iob 31.1. Fourthly, if they be [illegible]

Iob 22.5. Fifthly, be sure thou hate them [illegible]

Psal. 119.113. Sixthly, understand it [illegible]

Prou. 22.12. Seuenthly, know that the Lords presence [illegible]

Prou. 27.21. It is not safe to lay all the [illegible]

Gen. 6.5. [illegible]

Quest. Is the Law of God so perfect, that it commands whatsoeuer can be [illegible]

Psal. 119.96. It implyes a contradiction, that

Deut. 12.32. he that layes to adde ouer and beyond the word of God, Prou. 30.6. and therefore there can be no supererogation. Fifthly, be-

Phil. 2. Secondly, because

Luke 10.27. Thirdly, because [illegible]

Psal. 119.4. and therefore much lesse can any [illegible]

Psal. 119.6. Fourthly, because [illegible]

Psal. 119.113. heartily, [illegible]

Psal. 119.96. [illegible]

Iohn 14.15. they [illegible]

Psal. 119.113. [illegible]

God, *Num.*15.39. yea though it be never so highly esteemed in the judgement of men, Luke 16.15.

Q. 108. But particular circumstances are not in the word, Here, and now, and to, and this, and that case; It should seeme then where the Word leaves, there counsell may goe on?

A. Commandements are of two sorts: First, some are directed to all the people in the world, *Psal.*49.1. as the morall Law, *Gal.*3.10. Secondly, some are directed to some particular men, either expressely, *Matth.*19.21. or implicitely and mediately, if such and such circumstances be, as to this or that man not to Marry, 1 *Cor.*7.26. though there be no immediate Commandement for a thing to bind me or thee, verse 6. yet when here, and now, and thus, and in such a case, and other such circumstances come between, it may prove a morall Commandement, verse 9. and if I would know whether it be Gods will that I should doe this or that thing, yea or no, *Rom.*7.3 I may know it by a syllogisme, *Matth.*12.3. the Proposition in generall being to be sought for in Scripture, look what is written, Luke 10.26. The Assumption is be sought for out of circumstances, and out of this or that mans particular case, *Matth.*19.10. and so the conclusion, in respect of this or that man, in such a time, or in such a place, or in such a case, comes to bind in conscience like as if it were an expresse morall Precept, verse 11. As for example, there are Scripture rules, every one must labour to give no offence, 1 *Cor.*10.32. every one must take away that is most for Gods glory, verse 31. and for the promoting of the Gospel rather then their own profit, verse 33. Now I say all circumstances being considered, did assume thus, if I preach the Gospel without hire, I shall cut off offences, 2 *Cor.*11.12. I shall promote the Gospel the better, 1 *Cor.*9.23. and I shall more edifie the Church, verse 19. hence he concluded, I Paul must preach without hire, verse 15. this one thing rightly considered confounds the Doctrine of Papists about Evangelicall counsels, verse 25.

Q. 109. Why are not Believers under the Law?

A. First, because Christ was made under the Law for them, *Gal.*4.4. Secondly, because as many as are under the Law, are under the Curse, *Gal.*3.10. Thirdly, because they are led by the spirit of Christ, *Gal.*5.18. Fourthly, because they have the inheritance by promise, *Gal.*3.18. and it may be known who they be that are not under the law. First, by their subjection to the Gospel, for they that obey not the Gospel of God are all under the law and its curse, 2 *Thes.*1.8. Secondly, by thankfull walking worthy of the Gospel, *Rom.*7.25. and by fruitfull working the Lords work, 1 *Cor.*15.58. Thirdly, by being a law to themselves in an universall respect to all Gods Commandements, *Psal.*119.6. Fourthly, by groaning and sighing after God, that they may more and more be directed and ordered by his statutes, verse 5. Fifthly, by doing all this out of love, not for feare of hell and judgement, for they are a willing people, *Psal.*110.4.

Q. 110. In what sense are not believers under the Law?

A. First, They are not under the Law in regard of the rigour of it, seeing it requires men to be without sinne, which none can be in this life, 2 Kings 8.46. and to performe personall obedience, which now is impossible by reason of the weaknesse of the flesh, *Rom.*8.3. Secondly, they are not under the law in regard of justification, *Rom.*3.20. they are freed from the necessary seeking of righteousnesse by it, *Gal.*2.21. Thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the curse of it, *Gal.*3.13. the Law ministers death, 2 *Cor.*3.7. Fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the spirit of feare that is in it, 2 *Tim.*1.7. which accompanies the Law, as it did the deliverers of it, *Heb.*12.21. yea as long as their love is not perfect they doe feare, 1 John 4.18. Fifthly, they are not under the Law, as it was in Moses his hand, *Joh.*1.17. having a gloof bondage annexed to it, *Gal.*5.1. the Church being then in her minority, *Gal.*4.3. under Tutors and governours, verse 2.

of

Quest. 2. How prove you, that Believers are under the Law?

Answ. First, Paul layes the Law is not abrogated by faith, nay God forbid saith he, *Rom.*3.31. Secondly, the duties of the law are prefsed upon the conscience after faith, avenge not your selves, *Rom.*12.19. children obey your parents, *Ephes.*6.1. and the reason, neither is it a legall reason, but an Evangelicall one, that now pertains the commandement of the Law upon the conscience, *Ephes.*6.2. Thirdly, because it is a priviledge annexed to faith, to have the sinne it should finde, for David married after he had committed adultery, *2 Sam.*12.13. there is not a sin committed upon earth but deserves death, nay, we that are Apostles of Christ, in many things we offend all, *Jam.*3.2. and if we say we have no sinne, we lye, 1 John 1.8. now where no law is there can be no sinne, *Rom.*4.15. Fourthly, Christ came not to abrogate the Law, but to fulfill it, he fulfilled it himself, to the making us members to delight in it, *Rom.*7.22. and to love it, *Psal.*119.97. and the law is said to be fulfilled in us, when we walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit, *Rom.*8.4. if they know it any time, they are commanded to confesse their sinne, 1 John 1.9. and though they obey God out of love, yet when they love, they fulfill the law of God *Rom.*13.10.

Quest. 3. What is that strict Law, wherein believers are under the Law?

Answ. They are under the Law. First, in regard they are commanded to keep it, *Psal.*105.45. and to order their lives according to it, as a rule, *Psal.*119. Secondly, in regard of the necessity of good works, not as causes of, but as way unto life, *2 Sam.*14. Thirdly, in regard that God is displeased with them, when they break it, *2 Sam.*11.27. and will punish them, *Amos*3.2. as a righteous Judge he is to punish that doth offend him, *Heb.*12.29. may sometimes with the sharp of temporall death, *Cor.*11.30. Fourthly, in regard that they are bound to repent whensoever they sinne, *Rev.*3.19. and to pray for pardon of sinne *Psal.*51.1. Fifthly, in regard that the threatnings of the Law must be a motive to them to take heed, *Psal.*1.25. for though their God be a loving and merciful God, yet he is a consuming fire, *Heb.*12.29. for though unbelievers shall not be damned, *Psal.*2.12. yet believers must beare of Gods fatherly anger, and correction, that their flesh may be curbed with feare, *Psal.*32.6. Sixthly, in regard that they are to be humbled themselves by the Law, and to mourn themselves for their often transgressings of it, *Rom.*7.24.

Quest. 4. How prove you, that Believers are not under the Law?

Answ. First, Paul saith, we are not under the Law, but under grace, *Rom.*6.14. Secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the curse and condemnation of it, *Gal.*3.13. Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the Law, being made a curse for us, *Gal.*3.13. Thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of it, for God will not enter into judgement with us, *Psal.*143.2. he will not be extreme to mark what we do amisse, *Psal.*130.3. he will spare us, as a father spares his child that serves him, *Mal.*3.17. Fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the punishment of it, for God will not punish us for our sinnes, as he might justly do, *Psal.*103.10. Fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the exacting of it, for God will accept of our imperfect obedience, *Phil.*3.12. Sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, *Numb.*23.8. Seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Tenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Eleventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Twelfthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Thirteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Fourteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Fifteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Sixteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Seventeenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Eighteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Nineteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Twentiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Twenty-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Twenty-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Twenty-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Twenty-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Twenty-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Twenty-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Twenty-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Twenty-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Twenty-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Thirtiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Thirty-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Thirty-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Thirty-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Thirty-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Thirty-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Thirty-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Thirty-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Thirty-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Thirty-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Fortiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Forty-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Forty-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Forty-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Forty-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Forty-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Forty-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Forty-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Forty-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Forty-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Fiftiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Fifty-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Fifty-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Fifty-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Fifty-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Fifty-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Fifty-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Fifty-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Fifty-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Fifty-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Sixtiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Sixty-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Sixty-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Sixty-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Sixty-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Sixty-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Sixty-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Sixty-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Sixty-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Sixty-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Seventiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Seventy-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Seventy-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Seventy-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Seventy-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Seventy-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Seventy-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Seventy-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Seventy-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Seventy-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Eightiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Eighty-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Eighty-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Eighty-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Eighty-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Eighty-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Eighty-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Eighty-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Eighty-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Eighty-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Ninetiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Ninety-firstly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Ninety-secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Ninety-thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Ninety-fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Ninety-fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Ninety-sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Ninety-seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Ninety-eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Ninety-ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. One hundredthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6.

Quest. 5. What is that rigour of the Law, wherein believers are not under the Law?

Answ. First, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Tenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Eleventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Twelfthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Thirteenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Fourteenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Fifteenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Sixteenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Seventeenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Eighteenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Nineteenthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Twentiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Twenty-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Twenty-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Twenty-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Twenty-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Twenty-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Twenty-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Twenty-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Twenty-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Twenty-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Thirtiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Thirty-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Thirty-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Thirty-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Thirty-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Thirty-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Thirty-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Thirty-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Thirty-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Thirty-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Fortiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Forty-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Forty-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Forty-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Forty-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Forty-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Forty-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Forty-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Forty-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Forty-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Fiftiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Fifty-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Fifty-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Fifty-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Fifty-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Fifty-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Fifty-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Fifty-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Fifty-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Fifty-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Sixtiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Sixty-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Sixty-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Sixty-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Sixty-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Sixty-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Sixty-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Sixty-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Sixty-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Sixty-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Seventiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Seventy-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Seventy-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Seventy-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Seventy-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Seventy-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Seventy-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Seventy-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Seventy-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Seventy-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Eightiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Eighty-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Eighty-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Eighty-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Eighty-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Eighty-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Eighty-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Eighty-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Eighty-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Eighty-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Ninetiethly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Ninety-firstly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Ninety-secondly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Ninety-thirdly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Ninety-fourthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Ninety-fifthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Ninety-sixthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Ninety-seventhly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Ninety-eighthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Ninety-ninthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. One hundredthly, they are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14.

Quest. 6. How prove you, that Believers are not under the Law?

Answ. First, Paul saith, we are not under the Law, but under grace, *Rom.*6.14. Secondly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the curse and condemnation of it, *Gal.*3.13. Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the Law, being made a curse for us, *Gal.*3.13. Thirdly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of it, for God will not enter into judgement with us, *Psal.*143.2. he will not be extreme to mark what we do amisse, *Psal.*130.3. he will spare us, as a father spares his child that serves him, *Mal.*3.17. Fourthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the punishment of it, for God will not punish us for our sinnes, as he might justly do, *Psal.*103.10. Fifthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the exacting of it, for God will accept of our imperfect obedience, *Phil.*3.12. Sixthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, *Numb.*23.8. Seventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Eighthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Ninthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Tenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Eleventhly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Twelfthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the accepting of it, for God will not accept of our obedience, but he will accept of us in Christ, *Ephes.*1.6. Thirteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the requiring of it, for God will not require perfect obedience of us, but he will accept of our sincere obedience, *Phil.*3.15. Fourteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the curse of it, for God will not curse us for our sinnes, but he will bless us, *Numb.*23.8. Fifteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the commanding of it, for God will not command us to do any thing, but he will give us power to do it, *Phil.*2.13. Sixteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the promising of it, for God will not promise us life for our obedience, but he will give us life, though we have not obeyed, *Rom.*4.5. Seventeenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the forbidding of it, for God will not forbid us to do any thing, but he will give us power to abstain from it, *Rom.*6.14. Eighteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the judging of it, for God will not judge us for our sinnes, but he will pardon them, *Psal.*103.12. Nineteenthly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour of the rewarding of it, for God will not reward us for our obedience, but he will reward us of grace, *Rom.*4.4. Twentiethly, we are not under the Law, in regard of the rigour believe, Rom. 10.14. Thirdly, because God only knoweth our hearts, and what we inwardly desire, Act. 1.24. Fourthly, because he only is omniscient and Almighty, Gen. 17.1. can give us whatsoever we ask, Joh. 14.13. Psal. 115. verse 24. Fifthly, because the Lord counts it his worship, where he lets people call upon any other but him, Judg. 10.14. Jonah 2. 8. Sixthly, there is no president nor example of any Saint that called upon any [illegible] but God the father; nay, our Saviour saith, when ye pray, pray to your Father, Matth. 6. 9. Seventhly, because we need not Saints nor Angels to intercede for us, we may make bold our selves with the throne of grace, Heb. 4. 16. Christ knocks of all need of Mediatours with an argument of Gods infinite condescending love, John 16. 26.

Q. 115. Why must we Pray in the name of Christ in Mediator?

Ans. First, because we are poore sinfull dust and ashes, and therefore we cannot be admitted, except he procure us access unto the father, Eph. 2. 18. Secondly, because we have provoked God, and therefore should still doe nothing but receive rather then a blessing, except he should make intercession for us, Rom. 8. 34. Thirdly, because he only is enough powerfull with God, Heb. 7. 25. and no man is acquainted with God, but he, and such as he makes us to be acquainted with him, Matth. 11. 27. against there is none worthy but he, for he was slaine for us, Rev. 5. 9. Fourthly, what are Moses, and Samuel, and Job, and Daniel, and Noah, that we should aske in their name? to which of the Saints was we to pray? Job 5. 1. Fifthly, all the Saints that were in the old Testament, or since, prayed in his name: David looks at him as his surety, Psal. 119. 122. and his Messias or anointed, Psal. 89. 20. Hezekiah looks at him as his undertaker, Isa. 38. 14. Daniel prayed God to pease him for his sake, Dan. 9. 17.

Q. 116. What is it to Pray in the name of Christ?

Ans. It is not, First, to use Christs name, and say, Lord, we pray in Christs name, Matth. 7. 21. not Secondly, onely to conclude our prayers thus, through Jesus Christ our Lord, though the Saints doe use the words too, Col. 3. 17. nor Thirdly, to counterfeit Christs Ring to the father, and say, I come to him; for the Lord knowes who are his, and whether we truly come (in heart or no) 2 Tim. 2. 19. for Christ will say to his father, Father, I never knew such and such, as he did of the false Prophets, I never knew them, Matth. 7. but to pray in the name of Christ is, First, when we are in with Christ, and pray, John 15. 7. As the Tyrians first made Blastus the King Chamberlain their friend, and then made their suite to the King, Act. 12. 20. Secondly, when we can truly say, not onely that there is an Advocate with the father, but so then we have him for our advocate, 1 John 2. 1. Thirdly, when we not only conceipt that we come to God by him, but we come to God by the Seed, Heb. 7. 25. Fourthly, when we can truly shew his Ring, that is the Mediator by promise, Heb 8. 6. Now this Ring is, first, effectuall calling, Rom. 9. 15. Secondly, a good Conscience; when our heart condemns us not then may be confident, 1 John 3. 21. Thirdly, faith, Matth. 21. 22. Fourthly, a saving knowledge of the truth, 1 Tim. 2. 4. for then we may be sure we have a token from the Mediator, verse 5.

Q. 117. Why is Faith necessary to Prayer?

Ans. It is necessary to bring us to Prayer, First, because we cannot draw neare unto God else, Heb. 10. 22. Secondly, because the relation of God as a father, must bring us unto prayer, Luke 15. 18. Thirdly, because the sense of our wants and sinnes, and afflictions, are to fetch us unto prayer, Psal. 50. 15. Fourthly, because Faith is the first whereby we come unto God, Heb. 11. 6. against, Faith is necessary to discharge Prayer, Jam. 1. 6. Eph. 3. 12. Secondly, to lift up hands that are hang, 1 Tim. 2. 8. Thirdly, to enlarge the heart in prayer, 2 Sam. 22. against, faith is necessary

[illegible] prayer, from ſelf-love ſaid, Amen 1 Revel. 1. 21. to leave our [illegible] Chriſt in whom the Promiſes of God are Yea and Amen 2 Cor. 1. 20. Laſtly, we muſt by any lawful requiſites prayed, when Hannah had done Praying, ſhe did eat, and her countenance was no more ſad, 1 Sam. 1. 18. Though there were but an inch between David and death, yet when he had Prayed he ſet his heart at reſt, Pſalm 3. 5. Secondly, faith makes the ſoul wait, and when we have Prayed and uſed all the meanes, we have need of patience [illegible] Heb. 10. 36. Thirdly, faith inhanceth prayer the next time, that is, [illegible] the firſt time, I may riſe higher and higher with all importunity, Luke [illegible]

Q. viii. What ſay you of the differences and diviſions of Prayer?

A. Prayer is uſeful, firſt Mercifull with muſick, Acts 16. 2. which is a duty [illegible] commanded, Pſal. 98. 5. being very ſuitable to ſpirituall mirth, Jam. 5. 13. and [illegible] to heavenly minded, and therefore profitable every day, 2 Chron. 26. [illegible] to get the meditation ſweet, Pſalm 104. 33. 34. and to ſtir up [illegible] and to put glory upon Gods praiſes, Pſalm 66. 2. good alſo to ſtir up [illegible] the work of Prayer, or of Prayer, 2 King. 3. 15. as a duty that requires [illegible] grace, Col. 3. 16. and great underſtanding, Pſalm 47. 7. and ſpirit, [illegible] 15. and great modeſty and gravity, it being melody to the Lord, [illegible] the heart not being upon the tune, but ſtirred upon the ſence, and [illegible] Pſalm 57. 17. not as though we did ſing to one another, but unto [illegible] Pſalm 13. 6. that we may not only ſing Davids Pſalms, but that we [illegible] be ſweet ſingers of them as he was, 2 Sam. 23. 1. Secondly, Proſeuchy which is either publique prayer in the Congregation, Pſal. 27. 4. or private in the [illegible] family, Prov. 15. 8. or elſe alone, Matt. 6. 6. and all are either ordinary prayers, [illegible] in every day, Pſ. 145. 2. or extraordinary, as at a faſt, Jonas 3. 8.

Q. ix. What ſay you of publique Prayer?

A. Publique Prayer is to be performed in and with an audible voice, Nehem. [illegible] 8. 6. publique, Ordinary, Pſalm 150. 1. which may be in any place more, [illegible] 12. all the Congregation firſt joyning with him with one conſent, [illegible] as though they were all one man, Judg. 20. 1. 8. Secondly, to ſay [illegible] to it by ſaying Amen, 1 Cor. 14. 16. Amen, Amen, Nehem. 8. [illegible] all praying the ſame prayer with as much uniformity of thoughts [illegible] as can be, that it may make all one ſound in Gods eares, [illegible] though the perſons praying be many, yet the act muſt be as if it [illegible] Luke 1. 10. and this publique Prayer is neceſſary. Firſt becauſe [illegible] publique is the more glorious, Pſal 96. 6. becauſe men are ſociable [illegible] and therefore as they love to live together, and trade together, ſo [illegible] pray to God together, Pſal 122. 23. it is ſit to ſtir up one another, Q. [illegible] and with me, Pſ. 34. 3. Fourthly, the Lord is the likelier to pity, when [illegible] many, Jonah 3. 8. Fifthly there be many publique ordinances of God, [illegible] have need to be ſanctified by Prayer; there is the adminiſtration of [illegible] Sacrament, and that requires Prayer, Acts 20. 36. and the Word, and that [illegible] prayer, and the cenſures, and they require prayer; and therefore Gods [illegible] called a houſe of Prayer, Matt. 21. 13.

Q. x. What more of publique Prayer?

A. Publique Prayer is better then private, though Gods people do more [illegible] in private, Pſalm 122. 1. for in publique a man is more ſubject [illegible] that with one thing or another he ſhould ſcatter. Barnabas [illegible] the ſweetneſſe of the throng, and made drowſy, Acts 20. [illegible] hypocrite made the Phariſees willing to pray in their [illegible] Mat. 6. 5. Thirdly, for two things, Acts 12. 5. Means to help thoſe [illegible] that are in ſeveral places to pray alike, and ſtirre up mutuall [illegible] to pray in publique. Davids bidding us praiſe God in the congre- [illegible] Pſalm 149. 1. by the ſons of praiſe ſeeking out their fellowes. Secondly, Pub-pare thy selfe, and fixe thy heart first, and then come and pray in publique, *Psal.*57.7,8,9. I will prepare Bullocks and Goates, saith the Psalmist, *Psal.*66. 15. Thirdly, labour that the spirit of God may bring thee into Gods temple, Luke 2.27.

Q. 121. How do you prove that the Master of the family is to gather his family together every Morning and Evening, and to pray in his family?

A. First, because this is made to be one of the reasons why Husbands should dwell with their wives, that their domesticall prayers be not hindred, 1 *Pet.*3.7. Secondly, by the example of Joshua, *Josh.*24.15. and Cornelius, Acts 10.2. and Esther, Esther 4.16. Thirdly, because the families of the godly are called Churches, Rom 16.5. and therefore they should be as the Temple, where Morning and Evening sacrifice was every day; and it was counted the abomination of desolation, when it was taken away, *Dan.*12.11. Fourthly, because there is a Promise to encourage men to it, though but two or three in the family, *Mat.*18.20. Fifthly, because there be family sinnes, and family wants, and family blessings, all which require prayer; and therefore all families should have sacrifices in them, 1 *Sam.*20.29. Sixthly, because the Lord curseth such Families as do not call upon his Name, Jer 10,25. there is Scripture enough to prove it, though we might say of family prayer, as Paul does to the godly concerning Love; touching brotherly love, ye have not need that I write unto you, for ye your selves are taught of God to love one another, 1 *Thess.*4.9. So God taught Isaak to set up his worship in his household, *Gen.*35. 2. and so did *Abraham Gen.*18.19.

Q. 122. What say you of extraordinary prayer?

A. Three things make it. First, extraordinary might and fervency, Jam 5.16. Secondly, extraordinary continuance, Esther 4.16. Thirdly, extraordinary assistance of the spirit, and strength of the new nature, *Mat.*9.17. Five things do require it more especially First, a speciall want of some blessing, Luke 2.37. though the blessing be but temporall, *Gen.*25.21. Secondly, entring upon a calling, Matthew 4.2.17. Thirdly, ones first conversion, 2 *Chron.*33.12,13. Fourthly, some Imminent danger through sin, Matthew 26.75. Fifthly, when we see that ordinary prayer will not serve turn, 2 *Cor.*12.8. now fasting doth help it, Acts 10.30. for fasting, first, it pulls down the flesh, and quickens the soul, Psalm 69.10. and afflicts it, Ezra 8.21. Secondly, it's a good help to contrition, when its sanctified, Joel 1.14. Thirdly, being rightly observed, its a signe of humiliation, *Nahum.*1.4. Again, extraordinary prayer. First, it requires resolution of better obedience, *Hos.*14.2,3. Secondly, and humiliation contrary to pride, Job 33.12. Thirdly, freedome from worldly cares, that we may be given unto prayer, *Psal.*109.4. Fourthly, watchfulness and great heed-taking, *Mark.*13.33. Fifthly, that we lose not our quickning afterwards, lest we be guilty of holding down our heads like a bulrush for a day, *Isa.*58.5.

Q. 123. What motives are there to induce us to extraordinary prayer and fasting of God?

A. There be six motives: First, the Commandement of God when ordinary seeking will not find him, now he tells us is a time for extraordinary, Joel 2.15. Secondly, the gracious promise that God hath made to it, *Mat.*7.7. Thirdly, the great efficacy of it, *Jam.*5.16. for importunity can do much, Luke 18.5. the Israelites prayed often and sped not, but when they cryed then they sped, Exod 3.7. So again, when they cryed to God they did speed, *Judg.*3.15. this poor man cryed, sayes David, pointing at himself, and the Lord heard him, *Psal.*34.6. Fourthly, the glory of God, and the credit of the Gospel; for what may the world think, if we that stand so much for praying should not prevaile, Ezra 8.22,23. Fifthly, our infinite need, and therefore we should think it is high time to awaken, and to call upon our hearts to awake, Psalm 108.2.

Sixthly,

Sixthly, our last refuge is extraordinary seeking, we must reason thus; What hope have we, if we do not speed with God? Psal. 32.7.

Q. 124. May we not pray for the dead?

A. No, David ceased praying for his child when once it was dead, 2 Sam. 12. 23. for that place in the Machabees, Macch. 12. 44. that is not Canonicall Scripture, 2 Macch. 15. 38. First, when people are dead our communion with them ceaseth, Isa. 18. 9. Secondly, there is no profit in such prayers, as the tree falleth so it lyeth, Eccles. 11. 3. When our Saviour saith, that the sinne against the holy Ghost shall not be forgiven neither in this world nor in the world to come, Matthew 12. 32. he doth not imply that there may be some sinnes, that though they be not forgiven in this world, yet they be forgiven in the world to come, but it is onely a vehement phrase to shew it shall never be forgiven, verse 31. for we must agree with our adversary, while we are here in the way with him, Mat. 5. 25. and yet we may pray for the consummation of such as are dead in the Lord, for that is included in the second petition, Thy kingdome come, Mat. 6. 10. and they without us cannot be made perfect, Heb. 11. 40. Againe, we may give thanks for the glorious victory of the Saints departed, for if one member be preferred to honour, all the members rejoyce with it, 1 Cor. 12. 26.

Q. 125. Now there be five sorts of the living that we must pray for, viz. for the whole Church of Christ. Secondly, for the Ministers. Thirdly, for them of our own house. Fourthly, for them of the place where we live. Fifthly, for our enemies; shew me now whether and why we must pray for the whole Church of Christ?

A. We must pray for all Saints, whether Saints actually already, or elect, which shall be Saints, Eph. 6. 18. for these Saints make up the Church, 1 Cor. 12. 27. for First, they are the dearly beloved of Gods soul, Jer. 12. 7. Gods peculiar portion, verse 10. The city of the living God, Heb. 12. 22. the Lambs bride, Revelation 21. 9. Secondly, we are most bound to the Church, for the Church is our mother, Gal. 4. 26. and therefore we should preferre her before all, Psalm 137. 6. Thirdly, we shall prosper the better if we do, Psal. 122. 6. Fourthly, we shall the sooner be heard for our selves. David when he would fain be heard for himselfe, he prayed for the Church, Psalm 51. 18. for all blessings that come to us, come to us through the Church, Psal. 133. 3. Ephes. 1. 3. If the Church be in misery, good reason we should lament for her, Nehem. 1. 2. Secondly, her miseries are ours; look what evil comes upon her comes upon us, Dan. 9. 12. Thirdly, it is the brand of the wicked not to regard the afflictions of Ioseph, Amos 6. 6.

Q. 126. What and why must we pray for Gods Ministers?

A. That they may be clothed with righteousnesse, Psal. 132. 9. and take heed to their Ministry to fulfill it, Col. 4. 17. which is; First, not to Preach themselves but Iesus Christ, 2 Cor. 4. 5. Secondly, to speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority, Tit. 2. 15. in season, out of season, with all instance and long suffering, 2 Tim. 4. 2. Thirdly, not to look back from the plough, lest they be unfit for Gods kingdome, Luke 9. 62. Fourthly, to be an example to believers, in word, and conversation, in spirit, and in purity, 1 Tim. 4. 12. Againe, we must pray that they may have utterance with boldnesse, Ephes. 6. For first we cannot look to have a good Minister, except we pray for him, Matthew 9. 38. Secondly, though we have one, we cannot look to keep him except we Pray for him, Acts 12. 5. Thirdly, though we do not lose him, yet he may be straightned, that he shall never be able to do us good, except we pray for him, Colossians 4. 3. Fourthly, though he be not straightned, yet our hearts may be closed up under his Ministry, except we pray for him, 1 Thessalonians 5. 25. Lastly, we have no love of the Spirit in us, except we pray for Gods Ministers, Rom. 15. 30.

The Lord himselfe teacheth us how to Pray, Deut. 33.8.

Q. 127. How do you prove, that we must Pray for all of our house, for our Children, and Kindred, and Servants, and for our Parents, and Wife, and Husband, and Masters?

A. Eliazer prayed for his Master, Gen. 24.12. Elisha for his Servant, 2 Kin. 6.17. Iacob for his Children, Gen. 48.16. and Iob vse 1.5. Abraham for Ismael, Gen. 17.18. First, because we are bound not to pester the Church with a naughty generation, if so be we can help it; when Seth had begotten Enos, then he set up Prayer, Gen. 4.26. Secondly, we are bound to love the glory of God, that our Children may stand up to praise God, when we are dead and gone, and therefore David had a care of a good seed, Psal. 22.30. and so Abraham of his houshold after him, Gen. 18.19. Thirdly, because we bring forth our Children children of wrath. Eph. 2.3. Fourthly, because its a great blessing to have godly children, Ps 144.12. and we are blessed in them much more when they are godly indeed, Deut. 33.24. Fifthly, because otherwise we do but beget them by halves, when once we have gotten them to be wise and gracious, then we may be better said to have begot them, Prov. 23.24.

Q. 128. How do you prove that we must more especially pray for the Towne and place where we live?

A. The inhabitants of Jerusalem prayed for Jerusalem, Ps. 74.1. First, because our selves do live there; and therefore we must pray for it as Lot did for Zoar, Gen. 19.21. and yet he was but about to live there, verse 20. Secondly, because our peace and good consists in the peace and good of the Towne that we live in, Jer. 29.7. And except the feare of God be among them, we cannot comfortably live by them, Levit. 29.35. and if we pray for them, God can lay a charge upon their Consciences not to trouble our resting place, Prov. 24.15. Thirdly, we may win some of their soules to go along with us to heaven, Gen. 35.21. David dwelling at Gath, it should seeme he converted Ittai to the faith, 2 Sam. 15.19. Fourthly, because we are bound to do such duties, as do require prayer for them, as for example to exhort them; and therefore Philip did so to Nathanael his neighbour, John 1.45. Levi being converted himself, got his neighbours to be at his house to meet Christ, Luke 5.29. and so did Cornelius, Acts 10.24. Fifthly, we our selves may have a great deale of comfort, if we convert any of their soules, Iam. 5.20. Sixthly, hereby we may be helpers to Gods Ministers. Philemon a great Nobleman was Pauls fellow-labourer in this kind, Philem. 1.

Q. 129. Why must we pray for our Enemies?

A. God is pleased to shew them this favour, that though himselfe do not forgive them, yet he will have us to forgive them, and love them, Matth. 5.44. there may be more selfe-respects in praying for them that love us, verse 46. but there is more godly singularity in praying for our enemies, verse 47. and more perfection and sincerity, verse 48. and more proximity to God, verse 45. David fasted and prayed for his enemies, Psal. 35.13. First, because we are more sensible of their enmities and injurings, by reason that we feele them; and therefore we may the better pray for them, Luke 23.34. Secondly, hereby we have that condition that is required to the forgivenesse of our sinnes, Matth. 6.14. for if we do not forgive them, God will not forgive us, verse 15. Thirdly, hereby we may overcome the evil of revenge in our hearts, nay and of malice in theirs, Rom. 12.19,20. Fourthly, this is that way to commit our cause unto God, as the poore godly soul doth, Psal. 10.14. Fifthly, we shall lose nothing by it, for either our enemies will be mollified towards us, or if they be not, God will reward us, Proverbs 25.22. Sixthly, it will be a great comfort to us, we can say thus before God, I have stood before thee to speak good for them, Jer. 18.20. Seventhly, this duty being rightly done is a signe of a sanctified heart, Acts 7.60.

Q. 130.

Q. 130. What say you of Cursing or imprecation, or praying against one? is it lawfull? A. It is unlawfull, Rom. 12. 14. neither can we be called unto it, 1 Pet. 3. 9. for it proceeds from hatred, now hatred is Man-slaughter, 1 Joh. 13. 15.

A. We may not wish evil, as it is evil, to any man, but onely as it is good, Col. 3. 13. First, we may wish evil to a man for the mans good, Psal. 9. 20. Secondly, we may pray against a mans sinnes, Psal. 7. 9. Thirdly, against all the plots, and counsels, and projects of the wicked, that God would curse them, Psal. 69. 22, 23. Fourthly, against the life of offenders; I may wish that the Magistrate would put them to death, not as it is harme to them, but as it is a good to the Church, or State, or Parish, that we live in, Psal. 101. 8. as for those cursing speeches of Plague, and Murraine, and Vengeance, and Devil, that these evils might take one, they are the speeches of tongues set on fire of hell, especially as they are used, Jam. 3. 6. Nay, a man must not curse Satan, as is in the Apocrypha, Eccles. 21. 27. much lesse the good creatures of God; as people curse their meat, the weather, or a stone that they stumble at, Rom. 7. 14 yet we may absolutely curse the enemies of the Lord in the generall, because we know such as are finally enemies, Psal. 68. 22. and if we had a spirit of discerning in particular too, 2 Tim. 4. 14. We read of three kindes of Cursing, first, optative, Psal. 109. 6. Secondly, imperative, Judges 5. 23. Thirdly, indicative or declarative, so Gods Ministers curse the wicked whensoever they preach, Jer. 3. 22.

Q. 131. Is Thanksgiving a part of Prayer?

A. It is a calling upon God, Psal 105. 1. and the very thanking of God for mercies received, is a kind of praying for new mercies, Col. 1. 3. and by our thankfulnesse for grace that we have, it may be known that we request grace that we have not, Phil. 4. 6. and our maine Thanksgiving is prayer-wise, Lord make me thankfull; we must ask it of God, and call upon him for it, Psal. 116. 13. Thanksgiving is called by the name of Prayer; the Pharisee prayed thus, God I thank thee, Luke 18. 11. and if we would persevere in prayer, a thankfull heart is the best to continue it, Col. 4. 2. and yet it is harder then prayer it self. There were ten askers to one thanker, Luk 17. 15, 16. First, because our nature is like the horsleech, still it cryes give, give, Prov. 30. 15. Secondly, because there is more self-love in prayer, but thankfulnesse is more contrary to self-love, 2 Tim. 3. 2. Thirdly, because our hearts are apt to love the blessing more then God the giver of it; the pleasure more then God the bestower of it, verse 4. Fourthly, because we are apt to be lesse and lesse mindfull of former benefits, whereas thanksgiving is an everlasting grace, Psal. 70. 15. Fifthly, we are apt to be discontented, if Gods blessings doe not every way please us; now thanksgiving is a chearefull grace, Isa. 51. 3. Sixthly, there is more holinesse in Thanksgiving, Psal. 97. 12.

Q. 132. What say you of Thanksgiving for Gods spirituall mercies?

A. We must be thankfull for them, Ephes. 1. 3. First, for our knowledge, or else it is accursed unto us, Rom. 1. 21. Secondly, for any power against sinne, Rom. 7. 25. Thirdly, for victory over death and hell, 1 Cor. 15. 57. so for peace of Conscience, Col. 3. 17. so for ability to serve God in our callings, 1 Tim. 1. 12. but we must be sure that we have these blessings, or else we mock God, we must have faith, or else we cannot thank God for it, Col. 2. 7. When one sayes, God I thank thee for electing me, and yet does not know it, it is vaine, 1 Thes. 1. 2, 3. none but the redeemed of the Lord can say, Lord I thank thee for thine everlasting mercies, Psal. 107. 1, 2. we must be chiefly thankfull for spirituall mercies; first, because they are mercies for our souls, Psal. 66. 15, 16. Secondly, they are eternall, Psal. 100. 4, 5. Thirdly, peculiar to Gods elect, as faith, *Tit.*1.1. and the ſpirit of Prayer, Luke 18.7. bowels of mercy and the like, *Col.*3.12. Fourthly, they are rarer, *Matth.*11.25. Fifthly, they bring with them the bleſſings of this life, 1 *Tim.*4.8. Sixthly, to be thankfull for ſuch mercies is a good antidote againſt ſinne, *Rom.*5.3. which a man can never be to any purpoſe except he can ſay, God is my God, Phil.

Q. 133. What temporall mercies muſt we be thankfull for, and why?

A. Firſt, for covering us in our mothers womb, *Pſal.*139.13. for our life, *Pſal*63.4. and breath, *Pſal.*150.6. for the continuance of life, *Pſal.*30.3. Secondly, for our food and raiment, *Gen.*28.20. and for our meanneſſe, whether it be rich or poore, for both is from God, *Prov.*22.2. For the convenience of our dwelling, as it is ſaid of Juſtus, his houſe joyned hard to the Synagogue, Acts 18.7. Thirdly, for our peace and ſafety, this is another bleſſing of God, 1 *Kings*4.25. Fourthly, for preſerving us from ill accidents and mishaps, as fires, inundations, or any evil caſualties, yea for all this benefit, *Pſal.*116.12. Firſt, becauſe the Lord doth call for it, *Pſal.*107.8. and it is his will 1 *Thes.*5.18. Secondly, the Lord is angry when we are not thankfull, 2 *Chron.*32.25. Thirdly, Gods temporall mercies are graces, *Gen.*32.5. Jeſus Chriſt may be ſeen in the recovering out of any Ague, Acts 9.34. Fourthly, we are leſſe then the leaſt of them, *Gen.*32.10. we are nothing, 2 *Cor.*12.11. Fifthly, Thankſgiving is a multiplying duty, *Matth.*15.36. Sixthly, there is goodneſſe in Thankſgiving, *Pſal*92.1. Seventhly, to be thankfull for temporall bleſſings is the way to be thankfull for ſpirituall, and if we be not thankfull for them we will be thankfull for nothing; therefore an unthankfull man and an ill man is all one, Luke 6.35. and ſo unthankfull, unholy, 2 *Tim.*3.2. Laſtly, to be thankfull as for meat, is to eat to the Lord, *Rom.*14.9.

Q. 134. Muſt we not be thankfull to God for his mercies upon others?

A. Yes, *Pſal.*147.1,2,3. whether a particular perſon, *Philem.*4. or a whole family, 2 *John*4. or a whole Pariſh, *Phil.*1.3. or the Church, *Acts*9.31. or good Magiſtrates, 1 Kings 10.9. We muſt thank God not onely for ſaving grace that we perceive others have, 1 *Theſ.*1.3. but alſo for common grace, *Phil.*1.18. There was but a little good in the towne-Clark, he did but ſpeak a good word for Paul, and Ariſtarchus and Gaius, yet Luke doth reckon it as a bleſſing, Acts 19.35. Gamaliel, a meere civil man, yet when he did but perſuade the Apoſtles a little, it is regiſtred as a mercy, Acts 5.34. The Barbarous making a warme fire for the Apoſtle is related as a kindneſſe, Acts 28.2. In God is glorified thereby, when the people did but wonder at the Word as one of Gods works; this is a glory unto God, *Matth.*9.8. and therefore they are wretched, Firſt, who have not grace nor goodneſſe, for we cannot give thanks for them, but rather bewaile them, *Phil.*3.18. Secondly, who though they have mercies and graces, yet they doe not communicate them to others, to occaſion thankſgiving; they are like with-holders of Corne whom the people curſe, *Prov.*11.26. Thirdly, who envy and repine at the bleſſings of others; conſider therefore, firſt, if we envy our brothers good, it doth us no good but harme, Job 5.2. Secondly, it is ſafer for us that another ſhould have ſuch and ſuch bleſſings then we; for then they muſt give account and not we, Luke 16.2. Thirdly, it is better for us too, is it not better that the eye ſhould have the bleſſing of Sight, then the foot or the hand, 1 *Cor.*12.21.

Q. 135. Becauſe Confeſſion is to be joyned with Prayer, Dan.9.20. and is for prayer, Nehem.9.3. Tell me whether it is neceſſary to prayer, it conſiſt of theſe two in it?

A. Expreſſe Confeſſion is not neceſſary always in Prayer, Acts 4.24. Implicite is, when the Apoſtles prayed God for boldneſſe, they did implicitely confeſſe their want of it, *ver.*29. one of theſe two Confeſſions is neceſſary; for confession it is put for prayer, *Dan.*9.4. First, because Prayer it self does manifeſt our poverty of ſpirit, Luke 1.53. and it inferreth humbling of our ſelves, and a ſence of our own inſufficiency; for if we were ſufficient in our ſelves, what need we go to God? *Iam.*4.10. Secondly, both we and our Prayers are vile and unclean, Iob 40.4. but expreſſe confeſſion is neceſſary, when our Conſcience is fouled with guilt, *Pſal.*32.5. not to informe God, for he alreadie knows ſinnes, 2 Kings 19.27. but First, to cleare the Lords juſtice, *Nehem.*9.32.33. Secondly, to obtaine mercy, *Prov.*28.13. Thirdly, to lay hold on Gods faithfulneſſe, 1 Iohn 1.9. I doe not meane of every particular ſinne, for First, our ſinnes are innumerable and cannot all be reckoned up, *Pſal.*40.12. Secondly, ſome of them we know not, *Pſal.*19.12. but our grieveſt ſinnes; them we muſt particularly confeſſe, 1 *Sam.*17.19. First, becauſe thus we ſhew that we have need of a God of ſalvation, Pſal 51.14. Secondly, this ſinner moſt vexes Conſcience, moſt dead the heart, and moſt hinder us from ſeeking Gods face, *Hoſ.*5.15. ſuch are the roots of many other ſinnes; and if we root them out, many others will the eaſilier fall off, 1 Tim 6.10.

for

Q. 136. *As Manoah ſaid to the Angell, how ſhall I order the Child? Iudg.*13. So may I ſay of Confeſſion, how ſhall we order our Confeſſion? how ſhall we make it?

A. We muſt doe with Confeſſion as Chriſt ſaith of Hearing, we muſt take heed how, Luke 8.18. First, the confeſſion of ſinne muſt be naked, without hiding of ought, *Prov.*28.13. though the committing of it be the worſe, the more we doe hide it, *Iſa.*3.9. Secondly, by way of judging our ſelves, 1 Cor. 11.31. and inflicting our ſelves, 2 *Chron.*21.8. Thirdly, with griefe and ſorrow, and compunction, and ſmiting of our breaſt, Luke 18.13. Fourthly, ſhame and confuſion of face, Ezra 9.6. caſting our ſpirits and ſelves down, Ezra. 10.1. Fifthly, giving over our old company, and ſeparating our ſelves from them, *Neh.*9.2. Sixthly, accepting the puniſhment of our iniquity, *Lev.*26.40, 41. not onely confeſſing our ſinnes, *Dan.*9.4. but ſetting our hearts to it, verſe 3. Seventhly, with Faith, Acts 19.18. and with hating our ſinnes ever before us, *Pſal.*51.3. Beſides, this confeſſion before God, in ſome caſes there muſt be confeſſion? First, before the Magiſtrate, *Ioſh.*7.19. Secondly, before a Brother, 1 *Sam.*20.21. Thirdly, before one another, *Iam.*5.16. Fourthly, before a Miniſter, Marke 1.5.

Q. 137. Whether are we bound to pray the Lords Prayer, juſt thoſe very words and no other? There be ſome ſuperſtitious people ſay, let us pray for this, and let us pray for that, and let us pray for the eſtate for the whole Church, and let us pray for the King; and for all theſe things, let us ſay the Lords Prayer; doe theſe men well?

A. No; Chriſt when he bids us ſay, Our Father which art in heaven, &c. Luke 11.2. He does not meane, that we ſhould preciſely keep our ſelves to theſe words, but that we ſhould Pray after that manner, Matth 6.9. As Miniſters ſhould preach nothing but the Word, 2 Tim 4.2. and yet they may give the ſence in other words, *Nehem.*8.8. First, becauſe the Apoſtles prayed in other words, and did more ſpecifize their Petition, Acts 1.24. Secondly, this prayer is diverſly ſet down by the Evangeliſts, one way in one, *Matth.*6. 11. another way in Luke, Luke 11.3. one way in one, *Matth.*6 12. another way in the other, Luke 11.4. Thirdly, who knowes this is all that Chriſt uttered? Ioh. 21.25. we ſee plainely Matthew ſets downe more then Luke doth; it may be Chriſt ſpake more then either hath expreſſed, Matth 6 25. Fourthly, Chriſt himſelf did not uſe theſe very words ever, when he would pray Lazarus alive, he did not ſay the Lords prayer over the grave, *Ioh.*11.41. when he would pray for his Apoſtles, he did not ſay the Lords prayer over them,

Iohn

Iohn 17.1. Fifthly, our speciall sinnes and wants doe require that we should pray more specially then so, 2 Kings. 19.15. Sixthly, warned of praying all night, we cannot think that the Lords prayer was said over and over again and againe, Luke 6.12. we are to continue in prayer, what is praying over and over the Lords prayer? No, Col. 4.2. neither is it necessary to conclude our prayers with this, Act. 4.30. and yet we may if we will, Luke 5.16. neither is there any thing against it. No, though it be scripture, the same thing may be scripture and the word of God, and yet the prayer of a man, Psal. 90.12.

Q. 138. Why doth our Saviour teach us to call God father in our prayers?

A. First, to teach us we cannot pray to him except he be our Father, and we have the spirit of his Sonne, Gal. 4.6. Secondly, to assure us that he will give us good things, Luke 11.13. Thirdly, to call no man father on earth, for he is our own father, Matth. 23.9. Fourthly, that we may believe our selves towards him as a Father, Deut 32.6. First, to honour him as a father, Mal. 1.6. Secondly, to count our selves, sojourners, as long as we be absent from him, 1 Pet. 1.17. Thirdly, to be separate from the children of this world, and to touch no unclean thing, 2 Cor. 6.18. Fourthly, to be followers of God, seeing he is our father, Epist. 5.1. to be obedient children, taking heed of all lusts, 1 Pet. 1.14. to continue so doing to the end, and to overcome, otherwise he is not our Father, nor we his Children, Rev. 21.7. If we desire that he should be our Father, first, we must be fatherless otherwise, Psal. 27.5. Secondly, we must receive Christ, and then we shall have the power of calling him Father, John 1.12. Thirdly, we must get the Lord to say to our hearts, Hos. 2.20. Fourthly, we must be sure that we be peace-makers, Mat. 5.9. Fifthly, we must love our enemies, and lend freely, Luke 6.35. Lastly, we must be the good seed begotten againe under the Kingdome of grace, Matth. 13.38.

Q. 139. Why our Father, not my Father?

A. We may pray also my Father, Luke 15.18. and we are taught to do it in private, Matth. 6.6. for, first, Nature teacheth that the creature should have a particular propriety in God, whom it calleth upon, Jon. 1.6. Secondly, we have need of a particular propriety in God, that we may strengthen our Petition, Luke 15.19. Thirdly, that we may come thankfully, for every one, Rom. 1.8. Fourthly, that we may come with filiall affections, and never go away from him, Ier. 3.19. but our Saviour puts it in the Plurall number; first, because we are to Pray with others, Act. 20.36. Secondly, we are to Pray for others, Iam. 5.16. Thirdly, to teach us to love one another, and not to deal unbrotherly one with another, Mal. 2.10. Fourthly, to shew us that God is universally a Father to all his elect, and he is not like an earthly Father, that hath but one blessing, or few blessings, Gen. 27.38. nay, though all the company that joyne with us in Prayer, be not adopted unto God; yet if two of three by the mouth of the company, may pray, Our Father, Isa. 63.16. the meeting is denominated a congregation of Saints from them two or three, Psal. 149.1. there is a communication of the Phrases; the mouth of the assembly knowing there be some wicked, though some be not, yet by the communication of phrases, he may say, We have done wickedly, though not himself, nor many of the company have done so, Nehem. 9.33. Besides, God is in a generall sence the Father of such as are rebellious, Mal. 2.1. and they may equivocally be said to be in Christ, John 15.2.

Q. 140. What is the meaning of Heaven in Prayer?

A. Heaven signifies, first, the region of the aire, Jer. 8.7. Secondly, the place of the Sunne, Moone, and Starres, Gen. 15.5. Thirdly, the Church of Christ, Rev. 12.7. Fourthly, the blessed Angels, Job 15.15. Fifthly, God himself, Dan. 4.26. Sixthly, the habitation of Gods holinesse, where the glorified Angels are in bliss, and enjoy the beatificall vision of God, and so it is meant more here especially, 1 Kings 8.10. which is called the third heaven, 2 Cor. 12.2. farre above all other created heavens. Ephes. 4.10. is selfe being a created thing too. Hebrewes 11.10. Gods childrens house and home, 2 Cor. 5.1. Gods holy hill, Psalm 24.3. from whence he blesseth his People, Deuteronomie 26.15. where he sitteth as a great Prince on his throne, Psalm 11.4. and he is said to be in heaven 1. first, to strike reverence into us, Ecclesiastes 5.2. Secondly, to let us understand, he can do whatsoever he will, Psalm 115.3. Thirdly, to lift and raise up our hearts in prayer, Psalm 123.1. Fourthly, to shew how infinitely he is above us, his thoughts above ours, his motions above ours, Isaiah 55.9. Fifthly, to expresse Gods condescending goodnesse, that he being in heaven will deigne to look upon a poore soul, Isaiah 66. 1. and yet God is not confined to heaven, as though he were there only, Psalm 139.7, 8. No, he fills heaven and earth too, Jeremiah 23.24. and the whole world is not able to contain him, 2 Chron. 6. 18.

141. For the first Petition, Hallowed be thy Name; what is the meaning of Name here?

Ans. First, the Lord himselfe, his very Person and nature, Deut. 28.58. for Name is often put for ones person, Acts 1.15. so also, Rev. 3.4. Secondly, Gods attributes, Exod 34.5. Thirdly, Gods esteeme, that he should have in all the world, Psalm 8.1. Fourthly, Gods worship, Gen. 4.26. Fifthly, any of Gods works or word, or any thing whereby he is known, Exod. 20.7. His name is Jehovah the Lord, Isaiah 42.8. or I am that I am, Exod. 3.13, 14. As Christ said of himselfe, before Abraham was, I am, John 8.58. The most High, Psalm 9.2. Shaddai, or the Almighty, or the All-sufficient, Gen. 17.1. He hath three names in the new Testament, the God of Peace, Romans 15.33. the God of Patience and Consolation verse 5. the father of Mercies and the God of all Comfort, Corinth. 1.3. &c. Indeed Gods name is unutterable, no word is able to expresse who he is, Proverbs 30.4. It is transcendent above all Names, Psal. 148.13. and Wonderfull, Isaiah 9.6. and Secret Judges 13.18. and hence is it, that at no name is able sufficiently to set him forth, Gen. 32.29. Secondly, his name is expressed by negatives, to shew that we can rather tell what is not his name, then what it is. Immortall, Invisible, 1 Tim. 1.17. Unsearchable, Psalm 147.3. Infinite, Psalm 47.5. Thirdly, his Name is borrowed from his effects, God that made the world, Acts 17.24. and from his backparts, Exod. 33.23. Fourthly, figurative, and not proper, Exod. 15.3. Proverbs 8.10. O then! God being so great, what a condescending goodnesse was it in him to take upon him such a poore name as this, Our God, the God of Abraham, Exod 3.15.

142. Why Hallowed or Sanctified rather then glorified? why is that word used rather then this?

Ans. Because Gods holinesse is the cause why we should glorifie him, Exod. 15.11. Secondly, because Gods greatnesse most appeareth in his Holinesse, Isaiah 12.6. and so doth his might, Luke 1.49. and therefore we call things Sacred, and the greater a person is the more sacred; and therefore of all creatures the Lord made his Angels most holy, Luk. 9.26. Thirdly, Gods holiness is the beauty and lustre of all his Attributes, Ps. 96.9 say it is the beauties, Ps. 110.3. Fourthly, when the Angels would pick out an attribute to glorifie God most in, they chose his holiness, Holy, holy, holy, not glorious, glorious, glorious, Isa. 6.3. Fifthly, we cannot glorifie God, except we be holy, 1 Pet. 1.9. nay, it is rather an obscuring of God glory, when a prophane soul praiseth him, and therefore our hearts, & our tongues, & conversations must be holy, 1 Pet. 1.15. 16. we must sanctifie him in righteousnesse, Isa. 5.16. not as though we can put holinesse upon God that he had not before; in this case we had need that he should sanctifie us, 1 Thess. 5.23. but we must make his Name to appeare to be holy by our doings, Isa. 29.23.

Q. 143. For the second Petition, thy Kingdome come, what say you of that?

A. God hath a four-fold Kingdome. First, the kingdom of his Power, whereby he is over all, 1 Chron. 26.11. and ruleth over all, Psal. 103.19. and reigneth in the Kingdomes of men, Dan. 4.32. and hath the keyes of hell and death, Rev. 1.18. Devils, and reprobates, and all shall bow to this Kingdome passively, as well as the good Angels and elect actively, Rom. 14.11. though they yet say, he shall not reigne over them, Luke 19.14. Secondly, the Kingdome of his Gospel, whereby he reignes over the Christian world, both good and bad, Matthew 13.47. which God threatens to take away, when people are unworthy, Mat. 21.43. which is called a Kingdome, because it offers men a Kingdome, Matthew 4.17. and because by it Christ reignes in his Saints, Rev. 15.2. and in his enemies too, but in a different manner, Rev. 19.15. Thirdly, the Kingdome of his grace, whereby he rules onely in his elect; for this Kingdome is within them, Luk. 17.21. consisting in righteousnesse, and peace, and joy, Rom. 14.17. bringing every thought into obedience, 2 Cor. 10.5. and making them Kings too, Rev. 1.6. and to rule as it were with God, over sinne and the world, and the Divel, Hos. 11.12. and this Kingdom is not of this world, John 18.36. Fourthly, the Kingdom of glory, that flesh and blood cannot enter into, 1 Cor. 15.50.

Q. 144. For the third Petition, Thy will be done, what say you to that, why is Gods will set next to his Kingdome?

A. First, because the greater his Kingdom is, the more he stands upon his will; we see this in earthly Kings, Dan. 11.3. Secondly, because the doing of Gods will is the giving the glory of his Kingdom unto him, Heb. 13.21. Thirdly, because by doing of his will we shew that he is our God and King, Psalm 143.10. because by doing of his will, we shew that we are worshippers of him, Job 9.31. Fourthly, hereby we shew that as God is a great God, so he is great with us; as Moses was great with the Egyptians, because he could borrow of them whatsoever he would, Exod. 11.3. Why did David greatly praise God, and give him whatsoever obedience he would? because God was great with him, Psal. 145.3. Fifthly, because by doing of Gods will we may enter into Gods Kingdome, Matt. 7.21. Lastly, this is to be men after Gods own heart, when we fulfill the Lords will, Acts 13.22.

Q. 145. Hath God such a will in him, as he calls a conditionall will; as for example, To will all mens salvation if they repent?

A. Properly there cannot be a conditionall will in God. First, because such a will supposeth a superiour that may hinder, Acts 18.21. Secondly, it supposeth ignorance how things may fall out, as Abraham willed his servants to fetch a wife for Isaac out of the land of his kindred, Gen. 24.4. If she were willing, verse 8. nevertheless improperly it may be given to God, not as though his will can have a condition, for that's the property of a created will, to have a condition of it, Jam. 4.15. but because the thing willed of God may have a condition, Isa. 7.9. Now, that the Lord may be said to have a conditionall will in some sence is plain. First, because he is said to will the connexion of things, when he doth not will the things a sunder; and therefore he wills them onely upon the condition of a connexion; God would have all men to repent, and come to the knowledge of the truth, 1 Tim. 2.4. Secondly, because he is said to will the salvation of all believers, and true penitent persons; and therefore if a reprobate do believe, he willeth his salvation, 2 Kings 11.38. This is true of God towards a reprobate, If thou wilt obey me I will blesse thee, Deut. 30.xxvi.36.

Q. 146. What say you of Gods simple and positive will?

A.

A. God willeth a thing ſimply two wayes. Firſt, by purpoſing and decreeing, Rom. 9.11. either to be wrought by himſelf, which is his working will, Eph. 1.11. and ſo he willeth his elect to believe, and to be ſaved, Act. 13.48. or to be done by another, Act. 4.28. and ſo he willeth the hardening of the reprobate, Rom. 9.17, 18. Secondly, by liking and approving, which is the will of his word, Pſalm 40.8. which telleth us what is acceptable unto God, Rom. 12.2. and thus he willeth every man to repent, 2 Pet. 3.9. and all men to come to the knowledge of the truth and to be ſaved, 1 Tim. 2.4. even thoſe that finally will not, Math. 23.37. hither is referred that diſtinction of Gods will either ſecret, or revealed, Deut. 29.29 Not as though God hath two wills, for it is an imperfection to have two wills, as it is an imperfection to be of two minds, Jam. 4.8. it argueth a change, Act. 28.6. but it is one and the ſame will, whereof one part is ſecret and unknown, the other revealed, Heb. 11.8. the revealed part and all was once kept ſecret and unrevealed, Rom. 16.25. and God revealeth it two wayes. Firſt, in his word, whereby Chriſt revealeth the will of his father to his people, Matth. 11.27. Secondly, in the event of things; as for example, I do not know whether it be Gods will that I ſhall be perſecuted for the truth to morrow, yet it is ſecret; but when I ſee that it is to come to paſſe, the event doth reveale it to be the Lords will, 1 Pet. 3.17.

Q. 147. What ſay you of Gods ſecret Will?

A. It is not for us to know it, Act. 1.7. nor aske after it, Judg. 13.18 nor pry into it to ſearch it, Iſa. 40.28. A man is very chary of his ſecrets; Suppoſe one ſhould know them, yet he taketh ill that he ſhould reveale them, Pro. 25.9. wouldeſt thou know when it is Gods will thou ſhalt dye or be ſick? nay ſay till himſelf is pleaſed to reveale it; who made thee of his counſell? Rom. 11.34. when Gods will of command is revealed, it is nothing but unbelief to be inquiſitive what is iſſue and event ſhall be, Mat. 6.20 nay to be doubting about it, it its unbelief, Mat. 14.31. The prying into Gods ſecret will about ſins, and the ſuffering of thy heart to be queſtioning it, is the cauſe of moſt of thy ſtones; the Lord had revealed his will unto Ionas, that he ſhould go and preach to Niniveh, Jon. 1.2. Now Ionas queſtioning what Gods will was the iſſue ſhould be, may be they will put me to death, may be the Lord will ſpare them, and then I ſhall be counted a falſe Prophet; this made him fly away to Tarſhiſh, Jon. 4.2. nay, it is the cauſe of moſt errours of ſome, when a part of Gods truth is revealed enough for faith and ſalvation, Iob 20.31 but when people will be tampering beyond, no wonder if they erre, for Gods judgement is unſearchable, Rev. 11.33.

Q. 148. What uſe do you make of God ſecret will?

A. Firſt, in all our intentions we muſt be carefull to inſert this, If it be Gods will, Jam. 4.13, 14, 15. either implicitely, 1 Cor. 11.34. or expreſſely, Act. 18.21. for there may be a thouſand counſels in our hearts, but none of all can ſtand, but that which is appointed in heaven, Prov. 19.21. Secondly, we muſt never be over earneſt in our undertakings, leſt Gods will comming forth to the contrary, puts us to diſcontent and vexation, 1 Kin. 21.4. Thirdly we muſt labour to be provided for whatſoever may break our purpoſes off, Iob 11.10. if it be Gods will our purpoſes ſhall never take effect, he hath may wayes to do it, Iſa. 59.10. by ſuffering us to be inconſiderate, Proverbs 15.22. by taking us away before we effect that we purpoſed, Pſalm 146.4. what a pitifull caſe had Ionathan been in, if he had not been provided for all? may be he aimed to be next David when he came to the crown, 1 Sam. 23.17. but before he came he was dead, 1 Sam. 31.2. Fourthly, we muſt beware that we run not againſt Gods revealed will, rather then ſuffer our purpoſes to be fruſtrate; the old Prophet of Bethel, when he had a purpoſe to get the Prophet of Judah home to his houſe, rather then he would be hindred of his purpoſe, he told a gratched lye, 1 Kings 13.18. The unjuſt Steward having a purpoſe to live and make himſelfe friends, rather then he would be hindred of his purpoſe, he would couzen his Lord, Luke 16 4. Fifthly, we muſt be ready to ſubmit to Gods will againſt it comes to be revealed what it is, Acts 21.4. Sixthly, we muſt remember that even our own hearts cannot will as we liſt, but as God liſt, Prov. 21.1 nor our tongues anſwer as we liſt, though we have what to anſwer, but as God liſts, Proverbs 16 1.

Q. 149. What pray we for in this Petition, thy will be done?

A. Firſt, That we may renounce our own will, Mat. 26.39. whether it be our carnall will, called the will of our fleſh, Eph 2.3. which muſt be abſolutely renounced, for it is contrary to the will of the ſpirit, Gal. 5.17. or our naturall will, whereby we will life and maintenance, and freedom from torment; and this we muſt renounce reſpectively, namely when Gods will ſtands in competition, John 5.30. Secondly, we pray that God would make us content with his will, whether it be diſpoſing of our allowance, Heb 13.5. or correcting us for our ſinnes, 1 Sam. 3 18. Thirdly, we pray that God would enable us to do his commanding will, Pſalm 143.10. Fourthly, we may do it, as Gods Angels do, Pſalm 103.20. that is, firſt readily, without delay, Pſalm 119. 60. Secondly, willingly, Pſalm 40.8. that it may be our meat to do it, John 4.34. Thirdly, conſtantly, 1 Chron. 28.7. Fourthly, faithfully, not picking and chooſing, but all the Lords will, Acts 13.22.

Q. 150. What ſay you of the will of God: word or command, is it the Lords will that men ſhall do it or elſe woe is unto them?

A. Yea, for that is his will by force of a law, Rom. 2.18. and the buſineſs that he bids men to do, Luke 2.49. and what ever prophane wretches think, he will for a certain require it, Pſalm 10.13. and if men will not do it, he himſelf will ſee it done one way or other, Ezek. 21.28. Gods word muſt needs be his peremptory will, firſt becauſe it is his pleaſure, Ezra 10.11. Secondly, becauſe he engages his glory upon it, and therefore he wills it above heaven and earth, Pſal. 148.13. he will ſooner let heaven and earth come to nought, then any tittle of his word not be done, Mat. 5.18. his wiſdome is engaged upon it too, and therefore it is called his wiſdome, Prov. 2.2 his holineſſe is engaged upon it too, and therefore it is called the word of the holy one, Iob 6 10. and his power too, and therefore none that neglect it ſhall eſcape, except they be ſtronger then he, 1 Cor 10.22. and his greatneſſe too, his greatneſſe is ſtamped upon every jot of his word, Heſ. 8.12. Thirdly, its a ſigne how ſtrongly the Lord wiſheth his word, by the greatneſſe of the rewards that he propounds to them that keep it, Pſal. 19.11. and by the greatneſſe of the plagues that he threatens to them that will break it, Deut. 28.59. Fourthly, it appears by the Lords importunity whereby he wooeth us to do it, Mat. 23.37. Fifthly, by the coſt he was at to purchaſe his word; he delivered his own Son up unto death to procure us this will and teſtament, Heb. 9.16. and therefore how ſhall they eſcape that are ſtubborn againſt it and ſlight it? Heb. 2.2,3.

Q. 151. What motives are there to perſwade us to do the Lords will?

A. Firſt, if we do the Lords will, the Lord will heare our prayers, Iob 9.31. Secondly, if we do the Lords will, we ſhall abide for ever, 1 Iob 2.17. Thirdly, the doing of Gods will puts a great Nobility upon us, Mark 3 35. Fourthly, hereby we ſhew our ſelves to be the ſervants of God, Epheſ. 6.6. Fifthly, to do the Lords will, is a ſign of one that ſhall enter into heaven, Mat. 27.21. Sixthly, by ſo doing we pleaſe God, Heb. 13.1. when we do our own will and not Gods, we exalt our ſelves above God, Dan. 11.36. We ſaid in our Baptiſme, that we would do the Lords will; and therefore if we will not, we are lying children, Iſa. 30.9.

Small. 152. The fourth Petition is, Give us this day our daily bread; what is meant by Bread here?

A.

A. First. Bread it ſelf in particular, 2 Kings 4.42. which ſtrengthens mans heart, Pſalm 104.15. Secondly, that, and alſo any other food, *Gen.*3.19. any meales meat, 2 Kings 6.22. even fleſh too, *Gen.*18.5,7. and rayment too, and whatſoever our naturall life needs, Eccl, 11.1. even all outward things, *Gen.*40. 20. for not onely food, but rayment, and warmth, and outward comforts do feed us; a man may be ſtarved with cold: and therefore whatſoever helps to ſatisfie the deſire of nature, may be called Bread, *Prov.*20.13. Fourthly, it ſignifies ſpiritually Chriſt too, *Iohn.*6.51. and his Word, Amos 8.11. and his Grace, 1 *Cor.*5.8 and his Promiſe, *Matth.*15.26. But this ſpirituall bread is not here meant; we pray for ſpirituall bread in the other Petitions, here only for our daily ſuſtenance, Luke 11.3. Indeed it is good to raiſe up our meditations from hence unto ſupernaturall meat, Iohn 6.27. Firſt, becauſe man liveth not by bread onely, but by every word of God, Matth 4.4. Secondly, becauſe a wiſe man looketh higher then the food of his carkaſe, *Prov.*30.8: neither is the Sacramentall bread here meant; for that we pray for in the fifth Petition, it being the ſealing of the forgiveneſſe of our ſinnes, *Mat.*26 28.

Q.153. What doth this teach us, That our Saviour bids us pray for Bread, and not for dainties and abundance?

A. To teach us, that having food and rayment, therewith to be content, 1 *Tim.*6 8. Firſt, becauſe our life does not conſiſt in abundance, Luke 12.15. Secondly, becauſe there is danger in abundance, eſpecially when we are eager to have it, *Prov.*30 8. An eſtate may be too great, as a ſhooe may be too bigge, or armour may be too great, and then it hindereth one in the uſing of it, 1 *Sam.*17.39. Riches accidentally make it harder for one that goes to heaven, *Matth.*19.24. Thirdly, if we be not content with ſuch things as we have, be they never ſo little, we will never be contented, but covet more and more, *Heb.*13.5. Fourthly, we are citizens of heaven, and ſtrangers here below; and therefore it doth not become us to be having and having, *Heb.*11.9,10. If we can ſay, The Lord is my portion, we have a goodly heritage, *Pſal.*16 6. and therefore we ſhould pray onely for the things that are neceſſary, *Matth.*6.32. Now thoſe things are neceſſary, that are neceſſary, firſt, unto nature; nature requires ſome food or rayment, or elſe it will pine, *Lam.*4.4. Secondly, unto our vocation, as Books to a Schollar, inſtruments to a Garpenter, meaner meanes to people that are of a meane calling, greater to Lords and to Kings; give me not poverty, ſayes the King, becauſe his calling called for more meanes then ſo, *Prov.*30.8. Thirdly, neceſſary to our charge, whether it be a great charge or ſmall, 1 Tim 5.8. Fourthly, that which is apparently neceſſary for time to come too, 2 *Cor.*12.14. when Joſeph fore-ſaw a great famine, he laid up afore-hand, *Gen.*41.48.

Q. 154. Why muſt we pray for temporall things, or for the creatures of God?

A. Firſt, becauſe rayment is good, and food is good, and every creature of God is good, 1 *Tim.*4.4. Secondly, they are uſefull to many duties, and to the duty of hoſpitality, *Rom.*12.13. of owing nothing one to another, Rom. 13.8. of honouring God, *Prov.*3.9. Thirdly, they are neceſſary with neceſſity of need, *Mat.*6 31. and with the neceſſity of convenience, *Prov.*30.8 Fourthly, the want of them is great temptation to many ſinnes, *Prov.*30.9. and the very Lyons, *Pſal.*104.25. and the Ravens teach us to call upon God for them, *Pſal.*147.9. For though we love them too well, 1 Iohn 2.15. and are too apt to labour for them, Iohn 6.27. and to pray carnall prayers for them, *Hoſ.*7.14. yet we had rather get them any way then by Prayers; as by cares, Luke 21.34. by taking thought, *Matth.*6.25. by unlawfull and unrighteous courſes, Luke 16.9. Firſt, becauſe as long as we think we can help our ſelves, we love not to be beholding to another; and therefore the Apoſtle is faine to exhort us to pray to him, *Phil.*4.6. Secondly, becauſe we cannot abide to ſtand to Gods allowance, as we muſt if we would get them by prayer, Iohn 15.4.

Thirdly, becauſe prayer is too holy a courſe for our corrupt nature to come by them, 1 *Tim.*2.8. Fourthly, becauſe God indents with us to glorifie him if he give us any thing by prayer, *Pſal.*50.15. but we ſhould pray for them, *Gen.*28.20. Firſt, becauſe that is the way to have it ſanctifiedly, 1 *Tim.*4.5. and ſecondly, without falling into temptation about them, *Matth.*26.41. And thirdly, moſt honourable, for it is the honour of out maintenance, as it was of Chriſts, if they come down from heaven, *Joh.*6.33.

Q. 155. The text ſaith our bread, it ſpeaketh of a title we have to the Creatures; what ſay you of that?

A. There is a two-fold title to the Creatures. Firſt, a ſpirituall title, whereby they are ours, if they be ours by being in Chriſt, 1 *Cor.*3.22. Secondly, a civil title, as by deſcent of inheritance, as Naboths vineyard was his, 1 Kings 21.3. Or by purchaſe, as the field of Ephron was Abrahams, *Gen.*23.16,17. or by honeſt labour, and covenant between man and man, as the party-colored Sheep were Jacobs ſheep, *Gen.*30.40. The wicked have not a firſt title unto them, becauſe he whom they are without, is heire of all things, *Heb.*1.2. They onely have title to them which have faith to overcome, which the wicked have not, *Rev.*21.7. Title unto the creature is not founded upon Nature, *Gen.*1.29. but upon the Image of God in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe, which the wicked have not, verſe 26. and yet, Firſt, they have a gift of Providence; though they have forfeited Gods creatures, yet God does not preſently ſeize upon the forfeiture, but continueth the old gift in Adam, *Pſal.*115.16. Secondly, a co-gift as it were, by reaſon of cohabitation with the godly, Deut. 32.14. Thirdly, a ſufferance rather then a gift, to be as rods for the righteous, *Jer.*27.6. Fourthly, a conditionall gift, upon condition that they will repent and believe in Chriſt, otherwiſe the creatures will turne to a curſe to them, *Joh.*20.14. if they doe eat, they ſinne becauſe they cannot eat with faith, *Rom.*14.23. if they doe not eat, they ſinne too, becauſe then they ſhould murder themſelves, which they muſt not, *Acts.*16.34. As Simon Magus if he ſhould pray he ſhould ſinne, by praying without the ſpirit, if he ſhould not pray he ſhou'd break the commandement of prayer; and yet Peter bid him pray, Acts 8.22.

Q. 156. It ſeemes then that the Anabaptiſts conceipt is moſt falſe, that all things are common, and that we cannot ſay this is ours, and that is yours; Give us this day our daily bread.

A. Yes, for firſt, the Law ſayes thou ſhalt not ſteale, *Exod.*20.15. Secondly, the Lord ſayes we muſt work, and earne and eat our own bread, 2 Thes. 3.12. Thirdly, the Scripture ſpeakes often of proprieties, a good Biſhop rules well his own houſe, 1 Tim 3.4. John took Mary into his own houſe, John 19. 27. Fourthly, the action of buying and ſelling does alſo prove it; Chriſt bid his Diſciples to buy meat, John 4.8. Fifthly, the Goſpel relates divers rich men, if there were a community, no one ſhould be richer then another, Joſeph of Arimath a was rich, *Matth.*27.57. the Eunuch was rich, Acts 8.27. Paul does not adviſe rich men to make all away they have, but not to truſt in their riches, 1 *Tim.*6 17. Sixthly, the duty of being liberall ſuppoſes a propriety; for then is a man liberall, when he gives bountifully of his own, 2 *Cor.*9.6. when one beggeth of us, and we let him have, we are ſaid to give, *Matth.*6. 42. Firſt, becauſe ſo is Gods inſtitution at the firſt, Acts 16.27. and a diviſion of goods and inheritance is Gods Ordinance, *Deut.*32.8. Secondly, ſo is Gods providence, he maketh rich as poore. *Prov.*22.2. Thirdly, it is not mans ſinne when he counts his goods his own, or his houſe his own; Simon had a houſe of his own, Acts 10.6. Mary a houſe of her own, Acts 12.12. Philip had a houſe of his own, Acts 21.8. It is true, firſt, we are all one in Chriſt, in regard of ſpirituall life, but not in civill life, *Gal.*3.28. for ſome are Maſters, and ſome ſervants, *Epheſ.*6.5. ſome rich, ſome poore, *Mat.*26.11. Secondly, there must be a communion of charity, but not such a communion as is contrary to all propriety, *Heb.*13.16. nay this kind of communion supposes a propriety, *Prov.*5.16,17. Thirdly, the Gospel commands a readinesse to forsake all that we have when we are called, but not alwayes an actuall forsaking of all, Luke 14.33. Fourthly, the Church may stand in need of a community of goods, Acts 2.44. and that all goods should be common, Acts 4.32. and yet that doth suppose, first, that our goods are our own, and in our own power to make common, Acts 5.4. Secondly, not a necessity but a freenesse of giving, 2 *Cor.*9.7. Thirdly, it was onely by accident, in regard of the multitudes of poore Believers, Luke 12.33.

there

Q. 157. Why pray you not for weekly or yearely bread, but give us this day our daily bread?

A. That we may not be solicitous for to morrow; for first, this day will afford us businesse enough to doe, we had not need to preoccupate for the morrow, *Matth.*6.34. Secondly, if we be carefull for the morrow to day, we shall be forced to care for it twice, and therefore let us take care for to day, and to morrow, for to morrow *Matth.*6.34. Thirdly, we need not to morrow, till to morrow is come; it is onely this day that is the season of our sins, *Psal.*145.15. Fourthly, it is the act of Faith to live from hand to mouth, and it is against faith to be thoughtfull for to morrow, *Matth.*6.34. not, but we may provide for to morrow, *Gen.*30.30. When the Lord giveth us this day a surplus for to morrow; faith alloweth this, 1 *Tim.*5.8. Againe, the Lord teacheth us to pray every day, for every dayes blessing; for first, Gods mercies flow not from him all at once, but some to day and some to morrow, *Psal.*68.19. for they flow from him as water from a fountaine *Psal.*36.9. new grace to day, and new to morrow, *Zach.*13.1. Secondly, the covenant of Grace requireth that we should sue to it continually, 1 *Thes.*5.17. Againe, it shew the fickleneesse of our life; for what is it? Jam 4.14. Joshua, though now well, yet looke upon this Day as the day of his death, *Josh.*23.14. for first, we may dye to day, we doe not know when, *Gen.*27.2. Secondly, if we doe not dye to day, yet if we be plodding now for to morrow, it will make us the more unwilling to dye to morrow Jam 4.13. Thirdly, the not thinking of Death as a thing present, makes one the more subject to sinne, Amos 6.3. Againe, to teach us to look out for heaven, which is not for a day, nor for a yeare, but for ever, Iohn 6.27. an Immortall inheritance, 1 *Pet.*1.4.

Q. 158. If our daily bread be ours, why doe we beg it? and if we beg it, how is it ours?

A. It is the gift of God, *Psal.*146.7. though the materiall cause of it be from below, yet the efficient cause is from above, *Iam.*1.17. nay, if we be his children, first, it is the gift of his everlasting mercy, *Psal.*136.27. Secondly, as an appurtenance together with Christ, *Rom.*8.32. as an addition to the Kingdom of God, *Matth.*6.33. Indeed he would have us make it ours, first, by believing in Christ, 1 *Cor.*3.22. Secondly, by honest labour, 2 *Thes.*3.10. and yet though we get it by gifts from friends, or by our own industry and labour, yet it is he doth give it unto us, *Deut.*8.17,18. and then doe we acknowledge it to be his gift, when we doe shew it by our Practice, and our dependance upon him, using it to his glory, *Hos.*2.8. and because that givers among men never want beggers, we should be suiters unto him for these things, for he is the hearer of Prayers, *Psal.*64.2. Againe, if he be a giver, we must not have an evil eye, though he give others more, us lesse, Matth. 20.15. againe, if he be the giver, we should not lay out his gifts upon that which will not profit us, but use them to our good, *Isa.*55.2. Againe, if he be the giver, we should say of every thing that we have, this is Gods mercy of of every morsell of bread; his is Gods mercy, of every nights sleep, this is Gods mercy; the Lord curseth people when he renders them their desires;

Psal.

*Pſal.*29.4. again, if theſe be his gifts, then they cannot help our needs further then his influence is in them. David had clothes, and did uſe them, and yet could not get warmth, 1 Kings 1.1. and though we have them, yet we have need to pray for them as though we had them not; for without him they are and they are not, Prov 23.5.

Q. 159. Forgive us our debts; why are ſinnes called debts?

A. Not becauſe they are debts that are owed, for ſo good works are debts, as to love one another, *Rom.*13.8. not to live after the fleſh, *Rom.*8.12. to publiſh the Goſpel, *Rom.*1.14. but becauſe they are debts owed and not payed, *Matth.*18.27. Firſt, they are called debts, becauſe God is the creditor, Luke 7.41. Secondly, becauſe we are indebted to his Juſtice to pay the utmoſt farthing; *Matth.*5.25. and therefore it is a miſery to be a ſinner, 1 *Sam.*22.2. for, firſt, he loves not to come into Gods preſence, except he be brought, *Matth.*18.24. Secondly, he loves to be ſhifting with God, as the unjuſt Steward and the debtors were agreed to cozen their maſter, Luke 16.5. Thirdly, he is apt to leave the ſurety in the lurch, *Prov.*22.26. Fourthly, he is ſubject to be arreſted of Gods juſtice, as a debtor is of mans, 2 Kings 4.1.

Q. 160. What is Sinne?

A. It is the tranſgreſſion of Gods law, 1 John 3.4. whether by omitting of what is commanded, *Matth.*25.42. or by committing of what is forbidden, *Jer.*2.13. or by failing in manner of doing it, for in every thing we doe, be it materially never ſo good, we doe ſinne, *Gal.*7.20. whether it be in eſſentials, as Jehu's obedience is called murder, *Hoſ.*1.4. or in ſome circumſtantials, as Rebeckah deſiring that Iacob might have the bleſſing, there was lye cleaving to it, *Gen.*27.15. whereby the perſon becomes guilty, *Ezek.*22.4. both with the guilt of offence, 1 Cor 11.27. the ſinne being laid to his charge, Aſſay 60. and with the guilt of death and damnation, *Rom.*1.18. by which the guilt as with chaines, the ſoul is bound in heaven and in earth, *Matth.*16.19. and the Conſcience defiled, *Tit.*1.15. which can never be purged again but by the bloud of Chriſt, 1 John 1.7. beſides, ſinne leaves a blot and an uncleanneſſe behind it, upon the ſoul and all the whole man, *Matth.*15.11.

Q. 161. Are any ſinnes ſo ſmall, that they are venial, and do not deſerve hell?

A. No, *Matth.*5.19. though it be but the leaſt breach of one jot of Gods Law, verſe 18. (or but an idle word, *Mat.*12.36. or but a luſt, *Rom.*7.7. though it be but in the leaſt thing *Gal.*3.10. the Lord does not ſay, the wages of a great ſinne, but ſinne is death, Rom 6.23. he does not ſay, Thou ſhalt not ſteale a pound, or a ſhilling, but thou ſhalt not ſteale, though it be but a ſmall thing, *Matth.*19.18. It is a curſed ſpeech, Is this ſuch a matter? be the matter never ſo little, that is not it, but the littleneſſe of the will, *Matth.*26.40. muchneſſe of will aggravates any ſinne exceedingly, *Heb.*10.26. When people ſay, we will not doe thus and thus, or we will doe thus and thus, *Jer.*6.16. for againſt whom doſt thou ſinne? *Iſa.*57.23. even againſt an infinite God, *Pſal.*145.3. and thou art nothing to him, *Dan.*4.35. and leſſe then nothing in his hands thy breath is, Dan 5.23. and yet ſinnes are not all equall, Luke 12.47,48. and though all ſinnes be mortall, yet by reaſon of Gods mercy all ſinnes are not unto death, John 5.16. namely when a man is in Chriſt, that no ſinne can damne him that he hath committed, *Rom.*8.1. Againe ſome ſinnes are little in compariſon of other ſome, Ezek 16.48.

Q. 162. How comes ſinne to be ſaid to be ours?

A. Firſt, Actuall ſinne comes to be ours by committing of it, *Jer.*16.10. or by being acceſſory to anothers committing of it, *Nehem.*13.27. by teaching others to ſinne, Jer 28.16. or by commanding others to ſinne, 2 *Sam.*13.28. or by ticing others to ſinne, 1 Kings 21.25. or by giving others a ſinfull example, *Gal.*2.14. or by conniving, 1 Sam 2.29. or by remiſſeneſſe of reproving ſinne, ſo as the reproved is never the more reſtrained, 1 *Sam.*3.13.

or

or of too little preaching to the Conſcience, *Ezek.*33.6. or by keeping compa-nie with them that doe ſinne, *Rom.*1.32. or by being anothers inſtrument in ſinning, 1 *Sam.*22.18. or by feeding upon ſinnes of others, *Hoſ.*4.8. Secondly, originall ſinne is made ours, by being conceived in it, *Pſal.*51.5. and born of the fleſh, Iohn 3.6. not by imitation onely, for Firſt, ſinne entred into the world by one man, and not by every man, *Rom.*5.12. and we were all dead in Adam before we could imitate him, 1 *Cor.*15.22. or ſinne after his ſimilitude, *Rom.*5.14. Secondly, originall ſinne is before actuall, for Firſt, we are uncleane before actuall iſſue from us, Iob 14.4. Thirdly, we are ſinners from the womb, and therefore before we doe actually imitate our Parents, *Pſal.*58.3.
Indeed the actuall ſinnes of our parents are not made ours but onely by imitation, *Ezek.*18.14. and yet even they too thus farre are ours, as that we are to be ſpecially humbled for them, *Ier.*3.25.

Q.163. Forgiveneſſe of ſinne being there put by a Synecdoche, the part for the whole, the whole being Iuſtification, tell me what is Iuſtification?

A. Firſt, it is a free act of God, *Rom.*3.24. Secondly, looking at his own grace, and not at any good works in man, *Rom.*11.6. Thirdly, whom he conſidereth as formally a ſinner, or ungodly, *Rom.*4.5. Fourthly, whereby he freeth him from the Law, and from ſinne, and from death, *Rom.*8.2. and ma-keth him righteous in his accompt, 2 *Cor.*5.25. Fifthly, for Chriſt his ſake, verſe 21. Sixthly, apprehended by faith, *Rom.*5.1. and therefore juſtification conſiſteth of two parts, *Zach.*3.4. The firſt is the not imputing of ſinne, Rom.
4.8. the ſecond, is the imputing of righteouſneſſe, verſe 6. for Chriſt hath done two things, Firſt, he hath made reconciliation for ſinne; and Secondly, he hath wrought in everlaſting righteouſneſſe, *Dan.*9.24. And therefore the Scripture doth not meane that Juſtification is onely by Chriſts paſſive obedience, when he ſaith, It is by his blood, Rom.5.9. but it is alſo by his active Obedience, verſe 19. whereby he fulfilled all righteouſneſſe, *Matth.*3.15. and the Law, *Rom.*10.4 being made under the law for that purpoſe, *Gal.*4.4. he fulfilled not the law for himſelfe, for the qualification of his Perſon, that he might be a holy Sacrifice for ſin, for he was originally holy, being Jeſus Chriſt the Righteous, 1 Iohn 2.1. himſelfe had no need to be turned over to the Law, by reaſon of his hypoſtaticall union, he was holy from the womb, Luke 1.35.
and therefore he put himſelfe under the Law to fetch Righteouſneſſe from thence, for his redeemed ones, Gal 4.5. he did all that he did for them, and ſuffered all that he ſuffered for them. Nay, he was born for them, as well as Crucified for them, *Iſa.*9.6. and he ſanctified himſelfe for them, *Iohn.*17.19.
and as he dyed for them, ſo he lived for them too, *Iohn*14.19. His Incarnation, Birth, Circumciſion, Baptiſme, his life and converſation, and death, from the womb to the Croſſe, all was for them, yea, ſelfe and all was for them, *Gal.*2.
20. Yea alſo he he roſe again for them, *Rom.*4.25. & now liveth in heaven for them *Heb.*7.25. and ſo well may he be called, The gift of God, Joſh.4.10.

Q.164. Who is the Author of forgiveneſſe of ſinne?

A. God, even God onely, *Iſa.*43.25. Firſt, becauſe this is his glory; when Moſes would fain ſee the Lords glory, *Exod.*33.18. The Lord told him he was the forgiver of ſin, *Exod.*34.7. Secondly, he onely can forgive ſinne; if one ſhould forgive ſinne that hath not a power to do it, it is nothing, Marke 2.7. Thirdly, ſin is committed onely againſt God, Pſal 51.4. Fourthly, he one-ly can give the Conſcience peace, *Rom.*5.1. Though all the world ſhould ſay, ſuch a one is an honeſt man, ſuch an one hath his ſinnes forgiven him; his Con-ſcience will miſgive him for all that; except the eternall ſpirit ſet it on, Heb.
9.14. Forgiveneſſe of ſinnes is in Chriſts name onely, Luke 24.47. and through his Bloud, *Matth.*26.28. when God himſelfe puts away a mans ſinnes by it, *Iſa.*44.22. Indeed in a treſpaſſe are two things, firſt the obliquity or evil that is in it; Secondly, the hurt or detriment that redounds more man by it; as it is an obliquity, it is an aberration from Gods law; so onely God can pardon, it for it is he that pardoneth all sinne, Jer. 33.8. as it is a hurt unto man, so farre as it concerns him, he may and must forgive it, Mat. 6.12. and whereas it is said, that Gods Ministers may forgive sinnes, Joh. 20.23. That is onely declaratorily, as John declared unto them whom he wrote his Epistle to, That their sinnes were forgiven them, that is, of God, and not of him, 1 Joh. 2.12. As Nathan said to David, 2 Sam. 12.13. Men cannot get the pardon of their sinnes as they list, Act 8.22. Let men feare to sin against God, eft he lay in his wrath he will never forgive them, Jer. 14.12. if people were sure of a pardon when they have sinned, it were another matter; but when they presume upon a pardon, and so sinne, the Lord saith he will disappoint them, Deut. 29. 19.20.

Q. 165. Who be they that are the proper subjects of forgivenesse of sinnes? wee know who are they that this article belongs to?

A. Not all but many, Mat. 26 28. namely, the remnant of Gods heritage, Micha 7.18. The city of God, those that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquities, Isa 33.24. Indeed forgivenesse of sinne must be preached in Christs name among all Nations, Luke 24.47. according to the riches of his Grace, Ephes. 1.7. for Christ is the Lambe of God that takes away the sinnes of the world, John 1.29. The Gospel is to be propounded to every creature, and it may so be, Mark 16.25. but if any would partake of the forgivenesse of sin, First, he must repentantly confesse his sinnes, Job 33.27. Secondly, he must be sensible of his spirituall captivity, for the acceptable yeare of the Lord is for Captives onely, Luke 4.18,19. Thirdly, we must hungerly attend upon God in all his ordinances; and take heed of wilfull hardnesse of heart, lest God take an order with him that he never be forgiven, Mark 4.12. Fourthly, he must not onely be Baptized, but also with the Baptisme of repentance, Mark 1. 4. Fifthly, he he must give the godly good encouragement, that they may comfortably pray for him, Jam. 5.15. Sixthly, he must be a meek and a patient man to forgive such as trespasse against him, Mark 6.14.

Q. 166. Who is the meritorius cause of forgivenesse of sinne?

A. Christ, in whom God reconcileth his people to himself, 2 Cor. 5.19. for their sinnes were laid upon him, Isa. 53.5,6. He is the true hyssope whereby their sinnes are purged away, Psal. 51.7. He is the fountain set open, for the uncleannesse, Zach. 13.1. He is the Mediatour of forgivenesse, 1 Tim. 2.5. not onely by way of supplication, John 17.9. as Ioab and the woman of Tekoah was to David for Absalom, 2 Samuel 14.2. not onely by way of intercession, Hebrewes 7.25. as Blastus to Herod for the Tyrians, Acts 12.20. not onely by way of satisfaction, Hebrewes 12.24. as Paul to Philemon for Onesimus, Phil 18. but also an advocate to plead it, and sue it forth for them, 1 John 2.1. Indeed forgivenesse of sinne to us is an act of grace, if God take our sinnes, he doth it graciously, Hos. 14.2. yet in regard that Christ hath made satisfaction, it is an act of justice, 1 John 1.9. but first, our sinnes must be overwhelming burthens to us, and we must be sensible of our infinite need of a pardon, Isaiah 40.2. otherwise when we make mention of a Mediatour in our prayers, it is not in truth, Isa. 48.1. Secondly, we must be effectually called, Heb. 9.15. Thirdly, we must be in Christ, for pardon floweth from union, and being in Christ, Colos. 1.14. the effect whereof is a new Creature, 2 Cor. 5.17. Christ in one is the hope of glory, Col. 1.27. Fourthly, we must have Faith, Act 13.38,39. we must behold the Lambe of God, John 1.29. A Mediatour is not a mediatour of one, but supposeth two parties, and a consent on both sides, Gal. 3.20. which is on Gods side by giving of Christ, and on ours by beleeving in Christ, John 3.16. and receiving of him by Faith, John 1. 12.

Q. 167. What are the comforts of forgivenesse of sinnes?

A.

A. Firſt, it is a comfort that there is ſuch a thing that when we have ſinned, propitiation is poſſible, 1 John 1.2. Secondly, that it is not onely poſſible, there being ſuch a thing, but that it may be applyed unto us, if we come to take it at Gods termes, 1 Joh. 1.9. Thirdly, that it is univerſall of all ſins, Iſa. 38.17. and all kinds of ſins, Exod. 34.7. yea though they be ſcarlet ſins, or crimſon ſins, Iſa. 1.18. Fourthly, that it is accompanied with the healing of ſin too, Pſalm 103.3. and the ſubduing and killing of it, Micha 7.19. with the changing of ones mind and diſpoſition, and making him repent that ever he committed it, Act. 5.31. Fifthly, that where the ſinne is forgiven, the puniſhment is forgiven alſo, and the man that hath it may know his own ſalvation, Luke 1.77. and therefore he may be of good cheare, Mat. 6.3. Sixthly, that where ſinne is once forgiven, it can never return to be unforgiven, or to be laid to ones charge more, or remembred againſt him any more, Jer. 31.34. it is a debt quite blotted out that can never be demanded more, Iſa. 43.25. Indeed it may ſeeme to return upon the Conſcience by doubtings and temptation, and recidivation into ſinne again, then the conſcience may be foul againe with it, and cry guilty afreſh, becauſe the man hath blotted his Evidence; and therefore he muſt pray for the renewing of it again, Pſalm 32.5. Again, a conceipted pardon may be repealed, as we ſee by the debtor in the Parable, Mat. 18.34. whom his Maſter had ſeemed to forgive, verſe 27. but that Parable doth not imply the repealing of any true pardon, but onely the inconſtancy of that rule; That whoſoever would have God to forgive them, muſt forgive one another, Mat 6.15. For when a man is forgiven indeed, though afflictions come to ſeek out his ſins, yet they ſhall not be found, Jer. 50.20.

Q. 163. Seeing God ſaith, It is abominable to juſtifie the wicked, Prov. 17.15. where is the meaning then of the Apoſtle, who ſaith, That God juſtifieth the ungodly Rom. 4.5. Will God do that which is abominable to him?

A. Firſt, God may juſtifie an ungodly man, and yet do it with righteous judgement, he is the Law-maker, and therefore he may pardon what law-breakers he will; becauſe mercy and forgiveneſs belongs to him to diſpenſe it where he will, Dan. 9 9. But if officers and Magiſtrates juſtifie the wicked, they ſinne, becauſe they do it without warrant, for love, or for reward, Iſa. 5.23. Secondly, God juſtifies no other ungodly ones but onely his elect, whoſe ſins Chriſt dyed for, Rom. 8.33.35. Thirdly, God can juſtifie an ungodly man, becauſe he can make him godly and purge his ſpirit from guile, Pſalm 32.2. As he openeth the eyes of the blind, the man is not blind afterwards, John 9.25. The Lord never cleareth any man that goeth on ſtill in his guiltineſſe, Exod. 34.7. And therefore it is no act of injuſtice in God, whereas if a man ſhould juſtifie the wicked, it is injuſtice in him, becauſe he cannot make the man godly; and therefore he muſt juſtifie none but the righteous, and condemne none but the wicked, Deut. 25.1. Fourthly, God juſtifieth the ungodly, not wallowers in ſinne and ungodlineſſe, but ungodly, that is formally ſo conſidered as ſinners, 1 Tim. 1.15. Now then is a man formally a ſinner, when, firſt, he looks upon himſelfe as a ſinner, when he ſeeth his ſinnes in their own colours, not ſcaled with any righteouſneſſe of his own, Mat. 9.13. Secondly, when he carrieth himſelf ſo before God in his looks, and thoughts, and affections, and mind, as becommeth a ſinner in his caſe to do, Luke 18.13. Thirdly, when his impudence is gone, and confuſion of face is put on, Dan. 9.8. Fourthly, when he hath no ſquint lookings, or any merits of congruities, or condignities, or preparatives, or fitneſſes, but; magnifieth mercy, verſe 18. Fifthly, when he is truly reſolved upon turning to God, as abhorring the contrary to the pit of hell, Iſa. 55.7. Sixthly, when a man is in truth willing to take up Chriſts croſſe, and follow him, Luke 9.23.

Q. 169. Seeing the Lord Jeſus teacheth us to pray plurally, Forgive us our ſinnes; muſt we not pray that God would forgive others?

yea. Yea all that have wronged us, Acts 7.60. yea all that we have communion with, 2 Chron. 30.18. yea all that live in the Church, Exod. 32.11. and others too, Gen. 20.7. For first, we have a command for this duty, Jam. 5.16. Secondly, we have a promise of hope of speeding, verse 15. Thirdly, there have been blessed effects of Gods servants prayers in this kind. Namely, the Lord hath forgiven others, upon their intreaty, Num. 14.20. Fourthly, we do our selves good hereby; yea though God have purpose to forgive one, yet sometimes he stayes till his servants intreat for him, Job 42.8. Therefore first, we should take notice of other mens sins, yea though they do not know they have sinned, yet we should pray the Lord to forgive them in case they have, Psal. 5. Secondly, we should begge one anothers prayers, 2 Thes. 3.1. Thirdly, we should labour to be such as Gods people may have encouragement to pray for us, as Paul was encouraged by the Ephesians faith and forwardnesse in the duty of love, Ephes. 1.15. to pray for them, verse 16. for the good things that are to be seen in us, Phil. 1,5. make them pray for us with joy, verse 4. Though Simon Magus intreated Peter to pray for him, yet having no encouragement, we do not read that he did, or if he did, he could not do it with any confidence, Acts 8.24. Again, first, let us pray for our selves, 2 Kings 20. 1. if we would have others to pray for us, verse 4. Secondly, we must not dissemble with the children of God, when we pray them to pray for us, Jer. 42. 20. Thirdly, we must not live in any known sinne, left the Lord say to his people, do not pray for such, and lock up their hearts, Jer. 7.16. Fourthly, we must humble our selves to them, if we have thought evil of them in our hearts, Numb. 12.7. consider, First, if we be Saints, the cause may be such that God will not pardon us, except other Saints joyne, Deut. 9.20. Secondly, the Saints of God are marvellous willing to do it for us, 1 Sam. 12.23.

Q. 170 Wherein our Saviour teacheth us to say, As we forgive them that trespasse against us; What is it to forgive one another?

A. It included four things, first, to forbeare one another, withholding our selves from revenge, Col. 3.15. which is no pusillanimity, but a victorious grace, Rom 12.21. It is to overcome our selves, which is more then to take a City, Prov 16.32. and to overcome the malice of our enemies, and to mollifie their hearts, 1 Sam. 24.17. and to overcome the right way, which is by patience and not by rendering quid for quo, Prov. 24.29 Secondly, to root out all desire of revenge; not onely to tolerate for want of a handsome opportunity to revenge, but to do it from the heart, Mat. 18.35. for it must be with love, which proceeds not onely from the heart; for so we see Drunkards will forgive one another but also from a pure heart, 1 Tim 1.5. Besides we must forgive and forget when people say, I forgive but I cannot forget, this is a sinful forgivenesse like Ephraims, a silly Dove without a heart, Hosea 7.14. Again, we must do it with earning bowels, as Joseph forgave his Brethren, he wept and melted towards them, Gen. 50.17. Thirdly, to be ready notwithstanding to performe all offices of love, verse 21. To blesse them that curse us, and to pray for them that spite us, Mat. 5.44. for God is good to his enemies, verse 45. and hereby we shew that he is our Father, ver. 48. Publicans can love them that love them, verse 47. Besides, if that be all, we have our reward, and can looke for none from God verse 46. Fourthly, to forgive universally all wrongs to our persons, Acts 7.60. to our names, 2 Sam. 19.23. and debts too, when the debtor is not able to pay, and yet submits, Philem. 18. Nay the greater the wrong is the greater is our glory to forgive, Prov. 12.13.

Q. 171 Seeing a Souldier may kill his Enemy in a lawfull warre, and yet love him as he is the Law binds in such a case; so may a man go to law with his Brother, without breach of Charity or the duty of forgiving, when his ends are right: Tell me then what these ends be, that may stand with love?

A. 1. First to demand ones right, when one is called to demand it, Luke 18.2.

Now

Now right is contrary to love, but agreeable unto judgement, *Isai.*10.2. Secondly, to amend and humble the party nocent, and therefore the Magistrate is said to be a Minister for good, *Rom.*13.4. That others may hear and fear, and may not do the like, *Deut.*19.20. Fourthly, that the party damnified, and others too, may live in peace; and this is the reason why we should pray for Magistrates, 1 *Tim.*2.2. but provided, first, that it be done in love, 1 *Cor.*16.14. and not with recompencing evill for evill, *Rom.*12.17. Provided, secondly, it be done without offence, 1 *Cor.*6.1. Provided, thirdly, the party wronging be able to make satisfaction, as for example in Debts, for if the party be not able, and yet submits, it is cruelty to use the law against such a one, 2 *Kings*4.1. Provided, fourthly, that going to law be our last and utmost remedy, when people will presently go to law, refusing to take wrong, or be ruled by private agreements; this is unchristian, 1 *Cor.*6.7. Provided, fifthly, that the wrong be not fit to be put up; in this case Paul appeals to Cæsar, Acts 25.11. for as the Apostle sayes in another case, so we may say in this, The law is good if a man use it lawfully, 1 Tim.1.8. Private revenge is wretched: First, because vengeance is mine, sayes God, *Heb.*10.30. and the Lord is the avenger, 1 Thes.4.6. Secondly, wherefore serves the Magistrate? he is ordained of God to punish evill doers, 1 *Pet.*2.14. Again; First, it is ones excellency to forgive, *Mich.*7.18. Secondly, it is a note of a blessed man, *Matth.*5.7. Thirdly humane society cannot well be without it; for we are apt to wrong others, and have need that they should forgive us, and therefore should be ready to forgive them, forgive and ye shall be forgiven, Luke 6.37. Fourthly, it is necessary to resist our wicked heart; now not to forgive, proceeds from the wickednesse of ones heart, *Matth.*18.32.

Q.172. What is the meaning of that As; as we forgive them that trespasse against us?

A. It doth not signifie a pattern or a rule, or direction, as it doth in the third Petition, *Mat.*6.10. for we would be glad that God would forgive us better then we can forgive one another: There be no works like unto his works, *Psal.*86.8. neither doth it import that we can forgive one another, before God hath forgiven us, *Matth.*18.32. For Gods forgiving of us, First, is an enabling cause of our forgiving one another, as Gods love to us enables us to love him, 1 *John*4.19. Secondly, it is a motive cause too, *Mat.*18.33. Thirdly, it is evidenced unto us by our forgiving one another, as we see also by the effect, *Mat.*6.14. And yet we must, first, forgive one another, before we can intreat the Lord to forgive us, Luke 11.4. but this same As doth imply that there must be a resemblance between Gods forgiving us, and our forgiving one another, *Eph.*4.32. that is, First, we must frankly forgive, *Luke*6.42. Secondly, alwayes, as often as we pray, *Mark*11.25. which must be continually, 1 *Thes.*5.17. nay, though they be our enemies, and do not yet repent of their wronging of us, Luke 23.34. how much more if they do repent? Luke 17.3. Yea, we must forgive others, as Christ hath forgiven us, whatever the quarrell be, *Col.*3.13.

Q.173. Why doth our Saviour teach us to pray, Lead us not into Temptation, immediately after praying for the Forgivenesse of our Sins?

A. For two reasons, First, because forgivenesse of sin and grievous temptations are inseparable companions, a true penitent person is most baited by Satan; he needs not trouble impenitent persons, for he hath them sure enough already, & therefore commonly he lets them be quiet, *Lu.*11.21. Strong Man no sooner beleived, but the Devil stirred up Glimas against him, *Act.*13.8. When a man begins to turn unto God, the Devil suspects he is one of Christs seed, and therefore he labours to bruise his heele, that he may not go on, Gen. 3.15. and to devour him, *Rev.*12.4. he hath experience of prevailing against divers good beginners, John 6.66. and Paul was afraid he had prevailed against the Corinthians, 2 *Cor.*11.3. Again, the speciall providence is in it to humble the soule, and therefore he made David rore before he would forgive him, Ps. 32.3. And therefore, it is a signe when people know not what grievous temptations mean, the Devil holds them captive at his will, 2 *Tim.*2.26. for he desires to sift all that have got out of his clutches, Luke 22.31. Again, when people are not smitten in conscience and tempted, it is a signe the Word does not work, for if it work it cuts like a sword, *Heb.*4.12. Secondly, because forgivenesse of sin and yeilding to temptations cannot stand together, *Cant.*5.3. For first, the grace of forgivenesse teacheth a man not to yeild to sin, Tit. 11,12. Secondly, pardon of sin and grace not to goe on in sin are coupled together in the Covenant of grace, *Jer.*31.33. Thirdly, they are coupled together in reason, *Psa.*41.4. Fourthly, forgivenesse makes one love God, and so not be tempted away from him, Luke 7.42. Nay, fifthly, God will not forgive nor acquit upon other termes, but that we shall labour against temptations to sin, Job 10.14. When we labour for forgiveness, except we mean to be godly, our labour is in vain, Job 9.29. God will not hear, Isaiah 59.2.

Q.174. What is Temptation, and how many-fold?

A. Temptation is a proofe, *Psal.*95.9. or a tryall to see what is in one, or what one will do, 1 *Pet.*4.12. Temptation is of different nature according as it is used, sometimes good, *Gen.*22.1. sometimes bad, 1 *Corinth.*7.5. First, God is said to tempt, to try what is in a mans heart, *Deut.*8.2. what grace is in man, Psalm 105.16. what corruption, 2 *Chron.*32.31. Nay sometimes he tempts a man in his just judgement to sinne, 2 *Sam.*24.1. This he does in a righteous manner, for otherwise he cannot be said to tempt any, *Jam.*1.13. properly it is a mans lust that doth tempt him to sinne, verse 14. Secondly, the Devil is said to tempt, *Mat.*4.1. by putting motions into the heart, John 13.2. by thrusting of importunate thoughts and itchings, which provoke unto sinne, 1 Chron. 21.1. by presenting of objects before one, Luke 4.5. and egging to take them, verse 6. by setting a discouraging look upon ones afflictions, 1 *Thess.*3.5. by presenting occasions, *Mat.*4.3. speaking in the mouths of friends, *Mat.*16. 23. Thirdly, men are said to tempt too, John 8.6. First, they tempt God, either upon good ground to help their Faith, Judges 6.37. And Ahaz sinned because he would not tempt God thus, *Isa.*7.12. or in a wicked wise, Acts 5. As when a man distrusts God, and useth unwarrantable means, *Mat.*4.7. And when a man sins in any other kind, 1 *Cor.*10.9. either against God or his Messengers, Exod. 17.2. Secondly, men tempt themselves either well, by a warrantable proving what is in them, 2 *Cor.*13.5. or ill, by putting themselves upon danger, *Mat.*26.58. Thirdly, men tempt others, and that either well, to prove a brother whether he be the man that he seemes, Revelation 2.2. or ill, to draw him into sinne, *Gen.*39.7. or inconveniences, Matth. 22.18.

Q.175. What is a Temptation to sinne?

A. There be four things that concurre in it. First, it supposeth flexiblenesse in the party tempted, when the party is idoneable, *Jam.*1.14. And therefore a frigid man cannot be tempted to Adultery, but one that hath lust in him, Matthew 5.28. The blessed Angels cannot be tempted to sinne at all, because they are confirmed in Grace, and so was Christ as man too, and yet there is an intrinsecall flexiblenesse in every Creature, and in that respect the best creature may be capable of a temptation, *Mat.*4.1. but God is not at all, *Jam.*1.13. Secondly, it supposeth a baite to take the party with, *Prov.*6.25. When a man hath some booty by sinne, either the getting of some seeming good, as in allurements; as Judas got thirty pieces of silver, *Mat.*26.15. or prevention of some evill, as in temptations of feare or shame, or the like, Gal. 6.12. when a man sinnes without a baite, he does not sinne out of temptation, and therefore his sinne is the worse, *Ezek.*16.34. much more when a man loses

chosed by his sinne, Acts 23.12. Thirdly, it supposes a trying what the party will doe, 2 Chron. 32.31. When a man layes a baite before one, as for example, a shilling or so, in a corner where a theevish servant may see it, and conceive it is forgotten, to try whether he will steal it; as the Priests offered the Souldiers money to try whether they could get them to bely the disciples of Christ, Matth. 8.12. Fourthly, it supposeth a wicked mind or intention in the tempter, and therefore God cannot tempt any, Jam. 1.13. but the Devil, Mat. 4.1. or sinfull men, such onely tempt, Heb. 11.37. Wherefore temptations, are shrewd things to us, Gal. 6.1. for first, they may move us to sinne though otherwise we would never have committed it; may be Jacob would never have told a lye, but being tempted of his mother, he did, Gen. 27.14. Secondly, they may move us to sinne, when we have vowed and strongly purposed not to yeild; how many sinnes was David tempted and drawn to commit, and yet he had sworn he would not? Psal. 119.106.

Q. 178. What use do you make of this, that Temptations are so dangerous?

A. First, to teach us not to tempt any, Prov. 16.29. Secondly, to be carefull we do not consent when we are tempted, Prov. 1.10. Thirdly, to keep our heart with all diligence, Prov. 4.23. for sin doth easily beset us, and tempt us, Heb. 12.1. First, we must give the tempter a peremptory deniall at first, Mat. 4.10. Secondly, we must back our denialls with resistance, Jam. 4.7. Thirdly, and what though we have resisted again and again? we have not resisted unto bloud, Heb. 12.4. and therefore we must continue resisting with stedfastnesse, 1 Pet. 5.9. Fourthly, we must look upon temptations as warriours against our souls, that so we may abstaine from yeelding to them; counting our selves strangers upon the earth, and such as have nothing to do to be pedling in the world, Pet. 2.11. Fifthly, we must give no advantage to Satan, Rom. 2.11. neither by giving him matter, 1 Cor. 7.5. nor occasion, Gal. 5.13. nor any pretence, Exod. 10.26. nor by want of observing his houre, Rom. 3.10. nor by making provision for the flesh, Rom. 13.14. Sixthly, we must take unto us the whole armour of God, Eph. 6.13. knowing the Devil hath many wiles, verse 11. having on us the girdle of truth, the brest-plate of righteousnesse, verse 14. the preparation of the Gospel of peace, verse 15. the shield of faith, verse 16. the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the spirit, verse 17. praying with all prayer, verse 18. and humbling our selves, and in particular for our originall corruption; David went to that, when he saw he had been tempted to Adultery and Murder, Psalme 51.5. keeping our selves from vile company, Psalme 119.115. taking heed of melancholy, labouring to be watchfull, Prov. 17.22. not to be too solitary, Eccl. 4.10.

Q. 177. Is a man naturally under the power of Temptation?

A. Yea, the flesh is too weak to resist it, Mat. 26.41. and so is the heart, Ezek. 16.30. an inticing word is able to enforce us, Prov. 7.21. First, because our will is naturally strong set to the things of this life, as ease, and credit, and friends, and riches, &c. 1 Tim. 6.9. yea and to sinne it selfe, naturally we cannot cease from it, 2 Pet. 14. Secondly, because naturally we do not love the commandements of God, nor any saving truth; and therefore the least temptation that comes to draw us from it is strong, 2 Thess. 2.10,11. Thirdly, our minds naturally are without knowledge of the danger, Prov. 9.18. and therefore temptations are sweet to us, verse 17. from hence we may see, that woe is them that are in the flesh, because they are so subject to please their own selves, that they cannot please God, Rom. 8.8. Again, the Saints hence should labour to get their natures healed more and more, because they have still some remainders of brutishnesse, whereby they are subject to be tempted by sense, Psal. 73.22. signs of persons under the power of temptations are first, to be usually flirted up by them, 2 Kings 21.25. Secondly, when the Devil and his instruments can undertake to overcome them by temptations, 1 Kings 21.21.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, when the Devil like a ſtrong man can doe it with eaſe, without any adoe, he can lead them hand ſmooth, Luke 11.21. Fourthly, when they can endure the firſt itchings of temptations without rooting of them out, 2 Tim. 4.3. Fifthly, when they can pray with eaſe, and heare with eaſe, and be in company with eaſe, and alone with eaſe, they are not put to it, whereas Paul went groaning up and down, Rom 7.24.

Q. 178. Is it any excuſe, to ſay we were tempted?

A. No; for firſt, the Commandement calleth for obedience, though we be never ſo much tempted to diſobey it; temptations do not weaken the bond of Gods law, Prov. 1.10. Secondly, the firſt leſſon of the Goſpel teacheth us, we are not for Chriſts turne, except we will deny all temptation, yea though ſelfe doe tempt ſelfe, Luke 6.23. Thirdly, ſin is of a damning nature though all the temptations in the world concurre to egge us to it, though feare, though ſhame, &c. Luke 9.26. Fourthly, there's no thanke in that obedience that we have no temptations to draw us from, but bleſſed is he that endureth temptation, James 1.12. Fifthly, what excuſe can that be, when the very temptations themſelves come from our own luſting hearts? James 1.15. or elſe we put our ſelves upon temptations; as firſt, by not marrying in the Lord, 1 Kin. 11.4. Secondly, by being idle and out of our callings, as David was upon the roofe of his houſe, 2 Sam. 11.2. Thirdly, by putting our ſelves upon dangerous callings, as keeping of an Inne, or an Ale-houſe; in this caſe we ſhould ſay as Chriſt ſaid, who made me a Judge? Luke 12.14. Fourthly, by going about actions without warrant, as Dinah, Gen. 24.1. or by being in tempting places without ground, as Peter, Mat. 26.69. Fifthly, by not keeping the communion of Saints when we may; what tempted Thomas to unbeliefe but his abſence from the ſociety of his fellow Apoſtles? John 20.24. Sixthly, by doing that which another may lawfully do, yet as things ſtand, we may not lawfully do it. Abraham might look towards Sodom, Gen. 19.28. but Let might not, verſe 27. God does not forbid every man the comming neare the houſe of a whore, for ſome can go cloſe by her doore without any temptation to go in, but ſome he does, Prov 5.8. But if a man have a calling to a ſtation full of temptations he is in Gods way, which is ſtrength to the upright, Proverbs 10.29. the Angels take charge of the Saints while they are in their way, Pſ. 91.11. Though Ahabs houſe were a houſe full of temptations, yet Obadiah having a calling to be there, feared the Lord greatly, 1 King. 18.3.

Q. 179. Why doth God permit men to be tempted?

A. That he does permit men to be tempted, is plain in the example of Eve, 2 Cor. 11.3. and of Hezekiah, 2 Chron. 32.31. and ſpecially of the wicked, Act. 14.16. and the reaſons are, firſt, becauſe he is not bound to keep men from being tempted, he made man upright, Eccl. 7.29. Secondly, becauſe he may juſtly do ſo, ſeeing men have ſinned againſt him; as when Iſrael had ſpared the Canaanites contrary to his command, he left them to be tempted by them, Judge. 3.1. Chriſt left Peter to be tempted by a damoſell, for he preſumed of his ſtrength, Mat. 26.33. and therefore, Firſt, let us pray, Lord leave us not, Pſalm 27.9. If we be foiled at any time, we may thank our own ſelves, for he hath made us a promiſe not to ſuffer us to be tempted above what we are able, 1 Cor. 10.13. and therefore we wrong our own ſoules, if we do not flye to it and ſue it forth; for if we be his, he hath ſaid, He will not ſuffer our foot to to be moved, Pſalm 121.8. Again, ſecondly, let us watch, Mat. 26.41. If he do but leave us to be tempted, and grapple with temptation, we are gone; if he ſhould but ſuffer our feet to ſlip, they will ſlip for certain, and therefore let us watch towards him, who hath ſaid, he will not ſuffer them, Pſalm 66.6. Thirdly, let us beware leſt we provoke God to permit us to temptation; let us take heed we be not joyned to a luſt,

for further God will lay, Let them alone, Hos. 4.17. Fourthly, that is accompanied with no comfort, no temptation escapes God's power, No, not by reason Job 1.12. God hath Satan in a chain, Jud 2.6. he can but tempt, except God permit, Mark 5.

Q. 180. How shall we know, whether a temptation [illegible] is from Satan?

A. This question is somewhat dangerous, for any evil, yea blasphemy is sometimes proceed from our own heart: Mat. 15.19. and yet it is some signe it is from Sathan, first, when a man is tempted to that which he is naturally averse from, Mat. 4.6 Secondly, when the temptation is suddain, like a flash of lightning, Luke 4.5. Thirdly, when the temptation comes without any coherence with that which one was thinking upon, Sathan cares not what he suggesteth one with, for he stands at one's right hand there ready for the service, Zech. 3.1. Fourthly, when a temptation is in a hurrying manner, skipping from one thing to another, when it is with importunity, like Summer Flies upon a sore, or a Bald-head when it is as though it would never have done, Luke 4.2. Fifthly, when it is with the delusion of the senses, Mat. 4.8. Now the way to beat the Devil off, is not to rayle at him, Jude 9 but first by Faith, 1 Pet. 5.9. Not by a naked quoting of Scripture, for he will quote Scripture himself, and put a false glosse upon the same, Luke 4.10. but Secondly, by fleeing it, as to cleave by obedience unto it, verse 12. not by making of crosses on our brest, for how can that drive him away, when Christs own bodily presence did not feare him away? verse 9. but thirdly, by a hope and persuasory detestation of his motions to abandon him, verse 8. and fourthly, by considering that Christ was in all points tempted as we are, finne onely except; Heb 4.15. and fifthly though the Devil can find a great deale of matter for him in us, yet he could find nothing in Christ, John 14.30? Sixthly, by looking at the end that the Lord will make, Rom. 5.11. for though Sathan be trodden under our feet, yet he shortly shall, Rom 16.20.

Q. 181. If brother do these two clauses, Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from all evill, make but one Petition?

A. First, it matters not much whether they make but one or no; for it is a signe of Pride to strive about words, 1 Tim 6.4. Secondly, 'tis more likely that they make but one Petition, and that is, as our Saviour summes both the clauses up in one, that our heavenly Father would keep us from the evil, John 17. 15. For first, the one clause is Negative, and the other Affirmative; now the Negative and Affirmative make but one truth As we see in this passage Thou shalt die and not live, Isa. 38.1. Secondly, our Saviour does not put them down copulatively, Lead us not into temptation, and deliver us from evill; for then they thought have some colour of being two, but he unites them with a for, as though the first were not a whole Petition without the second, Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evill, Luke 11.4. Thirdly, it is enough to say, it is one Petition consisting of two parts. The one for preventing Grace, to prevent us from falling into evil, the other for recovering Grace; that at the furthest, if we fall into evil, yet howsoever the Lord would deliver us out, according to that of the Psalmist, Psal. 37.24. Fourthly, that conceipt of the Papists to make seven Petitions in the Lords Prayer, according to the number of the seven Graces of the Spirit, is but frothy, for there be many more graces of the Spirit. His grace is manifold, 1 Pet. 4.10.

Q. 182. Because this last clause speaketh that we are naturally under the power of evill, whereof the Devill is the Captain; shew me then, how that naturall men are under the Power of the devil?

A. He hath his Shop-house in all the children of disobedience, and he worketh in them, Eph. 2.2. yea, he reignes and rules in them, for the Devil hath his Kingdome, and in whom hath he it, if not in them? Mat. 12.26. For first, the Lord the just Judge leaves them over to the Devil, because they will not be ruled by him: next ease, the Devil shall have them no more to rule over them; yeadly, he shall be their God, though they be blind and see no such thing, 2 Cor. 4.4. and he gives the Devil charge over them, as he gives the good Angels charge over his godly, Eph. 2.2. Secondly, because the Devil can find none that will do his workes but onely them, Joh. 8.44. and therefore great is their misery, for first, they are his Slaves, and he holds them captive at his will, 2 Tim. 2.26. Secondly, they are so tyrannized over and kept under by him, that he will not let them look after Heaven, or any good to any purpose, he doth oppress them, Act. 10.38. Thirdly, he hath power over their death, that they shall never dye well though they seem to dye never so well, Heb. 2.14. Fourthly, he leads them, though they little think it; he that lyeth, little thinks he that the Devil fills his heart and yet he doth, Act. 5.3. Idle persons and tatlers, 1 Tim. 5.13. little think they that they turn after Satan, and yet they do, verse 15. he that committeth sin, little thinks he that he is of the Devil, and he is, 1 Joh. 3.8. enemies of righteousnesse, they little think that they are the children of the Devil, and yet they all be, Act. 13.10. For first, the Devil is a Spirit, and therefore he can be in the wicked, and they never spy it, Rev. 16.14. Secondly, he can transforme himselfe into an Angel of light, and therefore he can make them believe, he is a good Spirit, 2 Cor. 11.14.

Qu. 183. Are there no more evils that we have need to be delivered from?

An. Yes the whole world is full of evils, Joh. 17.15. we can walk in no way but there be many evils attending upon it to defile us, and happy is he that is undefiled with them, Psal. 119.1. We cannot tread one step, but there be evils ready to have dominion over us, except the Lord deliver us therefore, Psal. 33.5. First, in our outward callings, as we are in danger in being over much, or not enough in them, of savouring them too much, so that we cannot savour the word, the Sacraments, and Sabbaths, for fleshly fears and distrustful grasping too many things, Improvidence, hampering our selves with the wicked so that happy is he whose God is the Lord, for he is faithfull to keep us from the evil, 2 Thess. 3.3. Secondly, in Prosperity, we are apt to think we shall dye in our nest, Job. 29.18. hoping it will not end yet nor yet, we are apt to be lazie, and delicate, and tender, and unhardy to forget the afflictions of Joseph, to be self-confident, to prize heaven the lesse, to be the unfitter for humiliation, and the other irksome duties of Mortification; such evils wise Agur saw in being full, Prov. 30.9. Thirdly, in adversity to be impatient, discontented, to be murmuring, to use unlawfull means, to be Pusillanimous and base, to be dead to good things, David himself in his affliction found a want of quickening, Psal. 119.107. Fourthly, in our eating and drinking, as the Israelites murmured upon their Onyons and Garlick, and flesh-pots, their soul loathed the Manna, when we drink, we are ready to be caught with the rednesse of the Wine, when we eat as Esau with the rednesse of the Pottage, at feasts we are subject to surfeit, feare, we are in danger of Intemperance, curiosity, pleasure, and therefore blessed is he that hath Faith in Gods word, to pray that his meat may be sanctified, 1 Tim. 4.5. Fifthly, in our delights and recreations, to be too jesting, and light and tickled immoderate, unseasonable, over-long, to be unfitted thereby to graver and seriouser things, which are great evils, for they do exceedingly dead us towards Christ, 1 Tim. 5.6. Sixthly, in our company, to be infected some way or other, and carried away, Gal. 2.13. Seventhly, when we are alone, Eccl. 4.10. though the more Grace we have, the lesse we are alone when we are alone, Jer. 16.12. Eighthly, when we are about godly duties, there be evils about us too, and therefore we had need to take heed, Luke 8.18.

Qu. 184. It appeares then, GOD is the onely deliverer?

An. Yes, Psal. 70.5. for first, he is strong enough, Kings and Princes are not able to be deliverers, 2 Kings 6.27. He onely is our Rock, and therefore our onely deliverer, 2 Sam. 22.2. Secondly, in him onely may we trust for deliverance, Psal. 144.1. and therefore, First, we should fly onely to him for deliverance, Psal. 91.15. Secondly, this condemnes them that fly to any other for deliverance; for it is a heavy curse when a man is given up to such a [illegible] time, let us take notice that our deliverance cometh from him, and let him have a song of Praise, Psal. 27. Fourthly, let us labour to be such as he may be willing to deliver: at first, let us see our selves utterly undone without him, Obad. 10.12. Secondly, let us climbe up to mount Sion, deliverance dwells there, Joel 2.32. Thirdly, let us set our selves to be holy, Obad 17. Fourthly, let us be importunate with God not to tarry long before he deliver, Psal. 40. 17. and yet Fifthly, wait too till he is pleased to deliver, Lam. 3.26. Sixthly, let us look to the Holy one, Isa. 31.1. Seventhly, if any deliverance be offered any other way, let us not accept it, Heb. 11.35. the Lord doth deliver, First, by keeping away the evil, Job. 33.17. Secondly, by removing it away when it is come, Psal. 51.14. Thirdly, by disanulling the force of the evil, Dan. 3.27. or the hurtfulnesse of it, Marke 16.18. Fourthly, by altering of the nature of it, and turning it to good, Gen. 50.20. Fifthly, by taking one away from the evil, 2 Kings 22.20. which few men doe consider, Isa. 57.1. And therefore first, God hath more wayes to deliver his people then one, Psal. 44.4. Secondly, though never so many wayes of deliverance be blockt up, yet let Faith say, God hath another way yet, Esther 4.14. for God is skilfull and well verst in delivering his, 2 Pet. 2.9. Thirdly, let our Faith be indifferent; may be God will be with us in trouble, and that is a deliverance, Psal. 9.15. may be God will keep us in it, and that is a deliverance, Psal. 25.20. may be he will keep us from sinking, and that's a deliverance too, Psal. 69.14.

Q. 185. What doe you learne from these words, For thine is the Kingdome, the Power, and the Glory?

A. That prayer is to be pressed with arguments, as Moses his Prayer was, Exod. 32.11, 12, 13. so was Asa's, 2 Chron. 14.11. First, because God is a God of infinite understanding, and therefore when we speak unto him, we had need to speak reason, Job 13.3. Secondly, because Prayer is a pleading, which must be full of good reasons, Job 23.4. Thirdly, because Prayer is a main part of Gods service, which is reasonable, Rom 12.1. for even a mortall man stands much upon reason, Job. 32.11. much lesse hath the wise God delight in fooles, Eccles. 5.4. Therefore first, we should well ponder our Prayers; before we doe pray them, David calls his Prayers his meditations, Psal. 5.1. we must ponder upon what ground we come to God, otherwise he will send us away without hearing, Judg. 10.14. we must ponder what correspondency we have with him, otherwise he will indite us of impudence, for our comming into his Court, Jer. 11.15. when we Pray to him rightly, God saies, Come let us reason together, Isa 1.18. Secondly, hence we see that wicked men, be they never so learned, and gifted in Prayer, yet they cannot Pray, for lack of Spirituall reason, they are unreasonable men, 2 Thes. 3.2. That is a comfort to good Christians, that have the Lords attributes all on their side, for God will be sure to heare such, Job. 9.31. Hence it is that they doe not faint in Prayer, as others doe, because their reasons are never exhaust, they have still more and more reason, Luke 18.17. Jacob had such reasons that he would not let the Lord goe, Gen 32.26. The Prophet Isaiah his mouth could never be stopt, he had still more and more to say and presse the Lord with, Isa. 62.1. and therefore, first, when we have a good argument, we should lie a tugging with it, and follow it hard, as Joshua did, Josh 7.6. 9. Secondly, when our arguments seeme to be answered, we should recover them againe, Mat. 15.22, 23, 24.

FINIS.

Hidden Manna:

OR,

The MYSTERY of Saving Grace.

WHEREIN

The peculiarity of Gods especiall Grace to the Elect is asserted and proved, and divers Objections of Pelagians and Arminians, about the power of the Will of man to supernatural good, are fully Answered and Confuted.

By that Reverend, Learned, and Faithfull Minister of Gods Word, W. Fenner, B.D. late of Rochford in Essex.

Perfected many years since by the Author, whilst hee was Preacher at Willingsworth in Staffordshire.

JOHN 14. 22.

Judas saith unto him (not Iscariot*) Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thy self unto us, and not unto the world?*

Imprimatur, Edm. Calamy.

LONDON,
Printed for R. I. and are to bee sold by William Gilbertson at the Bible in Gilt-spur street. MDCLVI.

Hidden Manna:

OR,

The MYSTERY of Saving Grace.

WHEREIN

The peculiarity of Gods especiall Grace to the Elect is asserted and proved, and divers Objections of Reformists and Arminians about the power of free will or man to any spirituall good are fully Answered and Confuted.

By that Reverend, Learned, and Faithfull Minister of Gods Word, W. Fenner, B.D. late of Rochford in Essex.

Perfected many years since by the Author, whilst hee was Preacher at Allington in Sussex.

Joan 14. 22.

Judas (not Iscariot) saith unto him (our Lord) how is it that thou wilt manifest thy self unto us, and not unto the world?

Imprimatur, Edm. Calamy.

LONDON.

Printed for R. I. and are to bee sold by William Gilbertson at the Bible in Giltspur street. M DC L VI.

TO THE

Worſhipfull my very loving friends, Mr. John Wollaſton (now Sir John Wollaſton Kt. and Alderman of the City of London,) and Maſter Thomas Parkes Eſquire.

Grace and Peace from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

He will of man is more wilful, than the underſtanding blinde; The Prophet, ſpeaking of the Learned Scribes and Doctors, ſaith, They have known the way of the Lord, but they have altogether broken the yoke, Jer. 5. 5. more wilful than blinde; yea, the very Pagans, When they knew God, they glorified him not as God, Rom. 1. 21. Yea, They were haters of God, verſ. 30. Who knowing the Judgement of God, that they which commit ſuch things are worthy of death, not only do the ſame, but have pleaſure in them, and do them, ver. 32. The reaſon why I ſay a wicked man ſins more out of wilfulneſs, than blindeneſs, is threefold, the firſt is taken à cauſâ, from the cauſe, becauſe his wilfulneſs is the cauſe of his blindeneſs: For fools hate knowledge, Pro. 1. 22. or at leaſt they regard not to know it, Prov. 29. 7. Neither is this only true of thoſe people that have preaching, who actually refuſe inſtruction, and will not learn amendment of life, of whom the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks; They know not, neither will they underſtand, Pſal. 82. 5. But it is true alſo of thoſe blinde ſouls, that live under blinde guides, they do potentially, and innato habitu, reject the Doctrin of newneſs of life, of whom Salomon ſpeaks; Speak not in the ears of a fool, for hee will deſpiſe the wiſdome of thy words, Pro. 23. 9. The ſecond is taken ab effectis, from the effects, becauſe the effects ſhews his wilfulneſs, more than his blindeneſs; Hee knows that drunkenneſs, and company keeping is a ſin, yet hee will live in it; hee knows that interloquutary ſwearing is a ſin, and yet hee will continue in it; That worldlineſs, or pleaſure-hunting is a ſin, yet hee will go on in it; like Ovids Medea, that knew the good, and yet would not do it; his ſin is not ſo much ignorance of the ſin, as hatred of good: The wicked ſhall bee caſt away for his malice, Pro. 14. 32. and therefore Moſes calls the ſin of the wicked, A root of Gall and Worm-wood, Deut. 29. 18. they are ſharp and piquant againſt purity, and bitter againſt the power of godlineſs; they are ſaid to walk after the ſtubbornneſs of their heart, verſ. 19. all οὐ δίδας τὰ πρακτέα.

Εἰ κοσὶ πλημμελοῦντες. Chryſ.

Video meliora proboq; deteriora ſequor.

shewing, that they are more wilful than blind. What wilt thou say now, saith S. Chrysostome? thou knowest not what things are to bee done? thou both knowest them, and willingly refusest to walk in them. The third is taken, ab experientiâ, from experience, experience tells us, that the wicked are more wilfull than blind! wherefore else could Elias, that was a Prophet thirty years, and Elisha that was a Prophet in his room sixty years, wherefore could they do no more good upon the people? Wherefore does St. John after his so many scores of years teaching, break off with this speech? Hee that is filthy let him bee filthy still, Rev. 22. 11. The Drunkard hears us preach against drunkennesse, and hee will not obey; the Blasphemer hears us preach against Blasphemy, and hee will not bee reformed, the Church-sleeper, hath heard his Church-sleeping condemned, and yet hee will not mend it. If Nero could not endure Vespasian, because hee slept at his musick, how can God endure such as sleep at his Word? yet no restauration.

Hierom & Nicephorus.

Whence wee see, that the will is more corrupt by wilfulnes, than the understanding by blindnes; The heart is deceitful above all things, Jer. 17. 9. Above all things, That is, the heart is corrupt above all things, namely, the will above all things else, and therefore above the understanding. The heart of the wicked is like an Oven, as hot as fire, Hos. 7. 6. That is, the will is like a red-hot Oven, where all sinnes are baked with the heat of Concupiscensi. And therefore wicked men are very oft said to walk after the stubbornesse of their heart, Jer. 9. 14. Jer. 11. 8. Jer. 13. 10. Jer. 18. 12. Jer. 23. 17. Eccl. 11. 9. There bee three reasons why the will is more corrupt of the twain.

1 Ratione Originis, because the Will was it that first rebelled against God, for the Serpent could not have deceived the understanding of Eve, unless shee would; the understanding as long as it was in innocency could not be deluded by the Devils guile, unless it would, for otherwise God had made the understanding imperfect with a sinful ignorance; the understanding it self like a natural agent, understands, and works, ad ultimum virium, as well as it can, and it suspends not its consideration it self; now it is the will only that is essentially free, and a free worker of its own works; and now freely itching to sinne by its private influence into the understanding, suspends it, not to consider, and libertate participated, by participated freedome, not to observe Satans policy. Thus Adam and Eve, willingly guld, ate the forbidden fruit, and first sinning willingly, they and wee are most punished in the will, most corrupted in will. And therefore all sinne is devolved upon the heart, as the first inward cause thereof. The Atheism of the Atheist is cast upon the heart; The fool hath said in his heart there is no God, Psal. 14. 1. The mischeif of the mischievous is turned upon the heart, But mischief is in their hearts, Psal. 28. 3. the Iniquity of the vain man is truly fathered upon the heart; His Heart gathereth reth iniquity to it self, Psal. 41. 6. Our Saviour Christ sets all corruption upon the hearts score, Out of the heart proceed evil thoughts Murthers, Adulteries, Fornications, Thefts, False Witnesses, Blasphemies, Mat. 15. 19. St. Chrysostome addes more, Reviling, touchy, teatty words, filthy talking, &c. And I may adde, Out of the heart proceeds drunkennesse, and company keeping, &c. That is, out of the Will, for the heart is commonly put for it. Λοιδορία καὶ ὀργίλα ῥήματα. &c.

2 Ratione Reatus, because the will is it that indeed is guilty of all the evil in the soul, yea of all the said errors, and ignorance of the understanding, and therefore saith God of the wicked, They do always erre in their heart, Psal. 95. 10. Errour is not in the heart, but in the minde, and understanding, but says the Text, They do err in their heart; because they do erre, and they would err. They walked in the Counsels and Imaginations of their evil heart, Jer. 7. 24. Counsels and imaginations are properly in the understanding and minde, and not in the heart; but sayes the Text, They walk in the Counsels and Imaginations of their evil heart. For the understanding, as it sayes the sin is delightfull, and gainfull to flesh and blood; so it would say also, that it is forbidden by God, and punished with death, but the will gives in to that word, the pleasingness and the profit of sinne, but will hear no more, or else bridles the understanding, that it considers no further. And therefore these broken Counsels, the imaginations by halves, as interrupted ones of the heart, are of the heart. Hereupon it comes to pass, that as the will is free by native disposition, and the understanding free by participation; so is the understanding blinde, and ignorant, and deceived subjectively by inmate errour, and the Will by a circular communication. And seeing the Will is guilty of all the evil in the Soul, all the blame God layes upon the will, and plagues it with the first spiritual plagues, that it is most wilful.

3 Ratione ipsius, In regard of it self, because the will was best while it was good, now it becomes worst when it is bad. As a good King is the best of men, so a wicked Tyrant is the worst of men. A good heart is Gods, My Sonne give mee thy heart, Prov. 23. 26. A wicked heart is the devils, Satan hath filled thy heart, Act. 5. 3. Every conceit of the understanding is not evil; But every imagination and thought of the heart is onely evil continually, Gen. 6. 5. The heart is the fountain, Jam. 3. And when God would curse all the rivers and streams, hee curs'd the fountain, the heart. Now as in a corrupt fountain, the nearer yee come to the fountain head, the more corrupt the water is, so the nearer the heart, the more corrupt. And therefore the outward actions being corrupt, the outward members are more corrupt, they being corrupt, the fancy is worse corrupt, that corrupt, the understanding is worse corrupt, that being corrupt, the affections are still worse and worse corrupt, and they being corrupt, the heart is worst of all corrupt, for that is the fountain. Out of the abundance of the heart the minde thinketh, the sense remembreth, the fancy imagineth, the mouth speaketh, the hand worketh Corruptio optimi pessima. Τὸ περισσὸν τοῦ ἐνδον. Chryl.

eth, the foot walketh, out of the abundance of the heart; so that that which is at all in the other faculties and members of the man, is in abundance in the heart.

Whence again wee see that the will doth not alwaies follow the understanding; for the Wise-man presupposeth that a mans understanding may bee right, and yet the will not follow it; and therefore bee saith, Bee yee wise, and refuse it not. Prov. 8. 33. Thus how many thousands, their own knowledge, yea and their own conscience haling them from, yet will run upon sin: The envious, revengeful, malicious man, his own knowledge testifies against this sin, and yet hee will revenge; his own conscience reproves him for this sin, and yet hee will bear malice. The lukewarmling, and the civilist, his own knowledge in the Scripture tells him, hee must live holier and ferventlier, his own conscience checks him for not living better, and yet hee will not live better; like the knowing Pharisees, Yee are of your Father the Devil, and the lusts of your Father yee will do, Joh. 8. 44. Indeed its true, that the will must needs follow one dictate or other in the understanding, for it cannot see its object but by the understandings spectacles. Nevertheless the understanding having nothing but a political or a suasive power over the will, it can but tender the dis-junction, and leave the assumption to the wills choice, for any imperative power that it hath. As for example, worldlinesse, true, it is a gainful sin, you may bee better to live to the eye of the World, that you may get by it: but then it is a dangerous — sayes the understanding. Let mee have it, let mee have it, sayes the will, I will care, I will care for the World, &c. This I will do, I will pull down my barnes, and I will build greater, and there will I bestow all my fruits, and my goods, Luk. 12. 18. and then I will say to my soul, &c. ver. 19. I grant likewise, that an inordinate act of the will presupposeth an errour in the understanding too, I say, an errour in the understanding, but not alwayes an erring understanding; it presupposeth errorem materialem, non semper formalem, in case the will immediately before this inordinate act were an incorrupt will, and the understanding an inlightened understanding, as the Angels, and Adam before their fall. It is a goodly Apple, fair to see to, sweetly likely to taste on, and the Serpent tells mee I shall not dye, sayes the understanding: Well, I will put it to the hazard, I will eat it, sayes the Will. These were the seeds of an errour, but not an errour it self, till by the wills intervening itch, the understanding began to bee darkened in a moment. Now that the will, will not follow the understanding alwayes, may appear by these reasons:

1. Because the blessed Angels, albeit extrinsecally they bee confirmed in grace, and by the vertue of extrinsecal actuating, are finally, and infallibly, and intrinsecally settled in their wills upon grace, yet they have an inbred radical mutability of will possibly to depart from the grace revealed.

2. Because, if the will must needs follow the understanding, then there could bee no sin in the will against knowledge, much lesse the distinct difficult and obscure knowledge, which is to bee seen in the sin against the Holy Ghost, wherein the wilfulnesse of the will, rises up in the face against the very face of more special knowledge. And although there is ignorance, in the weakest and darkest measure of all regenerate, admixt with that knowledge, yet that ignorance is not the cause, but a continuance of the wilfulness, of perfect wickedness, which is a sin against the Holy Ghost.

3. Because the will is so far from following the understanding, that the more the understanding is in gendred, the stouter the will is, as is evident by the wicked, who the more they grow learned, and Politick, the further they are from the meekness of their corrupt Wills. Some of the deepest heads, that could answer all the Objections in their brains, by their unsanctified Science out of the word of God, that any earnest man can bring to perswade them to live in any one sin, and declare that they must live so and so, if they themselves meane to be saved, yea, and in this particular, at this particular time, together with all circumstances of Practicall knowledge, to match the ending, have unsanctified hearts, and therefore Satan notwithstanding, charged as aforesaid upon their understanding, has changed us also to be wise unto evil. Prov. 1. 5. yea, take the great Clerks of God, the most knowledge they have, the more they are apt from scripture, from the strength of zeal that they have against sin, notwithstanding the exact rule and direction of their sanctified wills, and the heart, and cast a mist before the eyes of the understanding, so that it does not hinder the truth of the opinion, but the heart is secretly wicked, then the mistake is blinde, but in that the mistake is blinded, and the wilfulness growing upon the knowledge of scripture, perfect plainly, that it is the more wilful of the two, the knowledge of scripture truth being so adverse to the flesh, as the practise thereof; and therefore Solomon having bidden us get knowledge, he commands us also to get it with our heart. Get understanding. Prov. 4. 5. And love her and she shall preserve thee, &c.

4. Because this acquaintance of those which have not made profession of the last day, the unsanctified sinner, may be inserted upon three grounds. They say, it must needs be, because the Sinner loves that which the understanding frames it unto, and that a perfect love to his own love. And at some time or other the Will goes forward and takes hold. That is, as a delightful profitable sinne, and there is no hope that God will ever have to do with him, or damne him for sin, as Christ died for our sinnes, and that is powerfull, and as whosoever a sinner doth repent him, &c. And therefore I may do the sin, I say, this may be recoyled back upon them, because this is but a base subtilty, which the will would faine have, and therefore suggests unto its lusts, the understanding like a partial judge, and a fee'd Counseller, and a crafty Lawyer, or else Jury, pleads, Judges, and counsels, and gives verdict according as the unregenerate Will would have it.

For

For the understanding and will, are somewhat like Simeon and Levi, brethren in evil, sworn brethren in wickedness. The will will yield to the understanding in some things; and the understanding to the will in other things. [illegible] Controversies in Religion [illegible] in a matter, that [illegible] the understanding and the will, the former by [illegible] to understand, [illegible] the latter by [illegible] the will do, as the understanding prescribes it. Sometimes the will deals with the understanding, as Michal would with the Bloodhounds, shuts out its eye, as it can in some other way. Sometimes it [illegible] that may not look upon this or that lust, with scrutinous look, as Balaam's Asses, but view it only with the left eye, with oversight it, what gain it will bring in, what pleasure it will afford, when [illegible] what confusion and death to follow.

Thus the flame will smoke the fire, will counsel the fire, will interpose to maintain the fire, that he would fain maintain the fire: Thus the will gives the understanding its cause, and prompts it, what it would have said, and then follows the advice when it hath done. Loved things are in his heart, he imagineth evil at all times, Prov. 6. 14. He imagineth, how so? because loved things were before in his heart. So that here was one for the desperate effect of the corrupt will: It is not only Hosea's volumen, a will in a sheet but dark, how all the light in a dead man's sheet but the white: neither is it enough that the will have a power, a power of willing from [illegible] for the will is more willful, than powerful. It is well observed by St. Austine. The devil is dark on fire, it is God that worketh in you the posse, the Velle is in the field, God worketh in you the power to will, but it is God that worketh in you the will and the deed, Phil. 2. 13. I will put my Spirit into you, and cause you to [illegible] able to walk in my Statutes, but I am [illegible] to [illegible] this for you, I will make you to do it, Ezek. 36. 27. The will of it self, as more [illegible] to be corrupted, more is unwilled, [illegible] and [illegible] it: For the taking occasion by the [illegible] commandement, wrought all manner of concupiscence, Rom. 7. 8. Nitimur in vetitum, semper cupimusque negata. Like the running current, that having nothing to stop it, runs [illegible] swifter, as ab obice levior, but being hindered, runs the fiercelier.

Behold then here, what is secret the grace of God, that converts this profligate will, which I have proved you with, and so much the rather, you [illegible] Love Sirs, because I would have you know the [illegible] of our Countries [illegible] fulness unto you, and such as you are in that famous City, that have [illegible] many Jobs, bring in your sheep and laid to devour the [illegible] fold, with [illegible] plantation of the Gospel in our Nation, and [illegible] Thessalonians, that [illegible] could come into any Christian heart, [illegible] the People might go to God, but when the word of the Lord came from Jerusalem, Esa. 2. 3. [illegible] Now this is the word of the Lord is come forth of your Jerusalem and profits [illegible] by your Famous Anglers, our Colledges [illegible] Land is no Country so to Heaven to all [illegible] as [illegible] Deus nobis hæc otia fecit, decrees of this part [illegible] as a [illegible] from my [illegible] Judicial to this one of you, and from the Country in general to the whole of it. And Lord God [illegible] the hearts of many such as may help forward the Work of the Lord.

December 29. 1625.

Your loving Friend, and poor Labourer in Christs Vineyard, from Stillingfleets.

[illegible]

[illegible]

HIDDEN MANNA: OR,
The Mystery of Saving Grace.

Psal. 25. 14.

The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and hee will shew them his Covenant.

SAving Grace is a secret, that no man knows but the elect, and the elect cannot know it neither, without special illumination;

1 Special shewing: Shew mee thy ways O Lord, saith David.

2 Barely shewing will not serve the turn, but there must bee a special teaching, And teach mee thy paths, vers. 4.

3 Bare teaching will not avail neither, but there must bee a special inculcative teaching; Teach me in the ways, to vers. 8.

4 Inculcative teaching will not do the deed neither, but there must bee a special directive teaching, Guide in Judgement and teach, vers. 9.

5 Directive teaching will not bee sufficient neither, but there must bee a special manu-ductive teaching, Lead me forth in thy truth, and teach me, vers. 5.

6 Manu-ductive teaching will not be effectual, but there must be also a special choice teaching, a determinating of the very will; an elective teaching, Him will he teach the way that he shall chuse, vers. 12.

And what secret is this? not common grace, for that is not the secret of the Elect, but special and peculiar Grace.

1 The special grace of prayer, Unto thee, O Lord, I lift up my soul, vers. 1.

2 A special grace of Faith, My God, I trust in thee, vers. 2.

3 A special grace of Repentance, Remember not the sins of my youth, &c. vers. 7.

4 A special grace of hope; My hope is in thee, vers. 21.

5 A speciall grace of continual living in Gods sight, and dependance upon God, Mine eyes are ever toward the Lord, vers. 15.

6 Which is the root of all Gods special and eternal favour and mercy; Remember O Lord thy tender mercy, and thy loving kindnesses, for they have been for ever, vers. 6. even Gods special mercy to him in particular, vers. 11.

This is the secret, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will shew them his covenant; That is, the secret favour and grace of the Lord is with them that fear him, and not only with them, but with none else, as Austin speaks. The Greek translates it, κραταίωμα, The Lord is a strength to those that fear him; but as a reverend divine notes upon the text of the Hebrew, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, for God hath hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hath revealed them unto babes. Whence wee gather this point of doctrine, that saving grace, or the things of God have, is a secret that none in the world know besides; So saith the Wise man, Froward people are abomination to the Lord, but his secret is with the righteous, Prov. 3. 32. even the secret of heavenly grace, which hee hath hid from the wise and prudent, saith St. Matthew, yea this very badge of this secret, Job calls a secret, The secret of God was upon my tabernacle, Job. 29. 4. this is the hidden Manna that the godly eat, Rev. 2. hidden in a pot of gold in the Ark, that is, Christ; Heb. 9. This is the white stone, and a new name written in it, which no man knows of, saving him that receiveth it, Rev. 2. 17. whereby the children of God are absolved from the wrath to come; a phrase taken from the Heathen, that used to condemn malefactors with black Stones, and for others with white Stones, as Ovid speaks, this therefore is that same ὑπὸρ σάζουσα that saving pardoning secret that no man knows, but hee that receiveth it, and therefore the Children of God are called, Gods secret ones, Psal. 83. 3. This secret is called a secret three ways.

לא יגלח בי אם ליריאיו

Mors erat antiquis niveis utrisq; lapillis his damnare reos, illis absolvere culpa. l. 15. metam.

1 Secret to the eye of sole nature, and thus it is not meant; for so the grace of Christ is a secret only to Heathens, and such as are as blind as they, for common Christians know it, the rinde of it.

2 Secret to the eye of taught nature, nor thus is it meant; for so the grace of Christ is a secret only to the ignorant sort of Christians, many Carnal Gospellers that sit under a good Ministery know it, and the barke of it.

3 Secret to the eye of inlightned nature, and thus it is meant; for so the grace of Christ is a secret to all unsanctified professors, whether learned or unlearned, namely, the pith of it: for though great Doctors, and profound Clerks, and deep studied Divines unconverted, know the Doctrin of Grace, and the truth of Grace; though they can dispute of Grace, and talk of the glory of Grace, yea and taste a little the good word of Grace, yea and understand it generally; it may bee as well as Saint Paul, and St. Peter, as Judas did, yet the special and the spiritual knowledge thereof, for all their dogmatical illumination is a secret unto them, this The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and hee will shew them his Covenant. And that for three reasons

The first reason is taken a naturâ rei intelligendæ, from the nature of this secret, and therefore it is called a mystery, a mystery kept secret, Rom. 16. 25. The wisdome of God is a Mystery, even the hidden mystery, 1 Cor. 2. 7. The mystery of God, 1 Cor. 4. 1. The mystery made known unto mee, Ephes. 3. 3. The mystery of Christ, vers. 4. The mystery hid in God, vers. 9. The mystery hid, Col. 1. 26. a rich glorious mystery, vers. 27. The mystery of Faith in a pure conscience, 1 Tim. 3. 9. Yea the Gospel, though fleshly men may learn and preach it, yet the saving knowledge of it is a mystery that none but Gods Saints knows, the mystery of the Gospell, Eph. 6. 19. Yea though the Trinity be known unto the wicked, yet none but Gods children know it spiritually, and therefore that is called a mystery, the mystery of God, and the Father, and Christ, Col. 2. 2. Yea Christian religion though the wicked notional understand it, assentingly believe it, yet indeed it is a secret that none but the godly perceive, and therefore called a mystery, even the mystery of Christs. Col. 4. 3. The articles of faith, albeit the wicked can lay them by rote, and credit them universally, as for example, the Resurrection, yet none but the holy ones may believe it, and therefore it is called a mystery, 1 Cor. 15. 51. The judgements of God, though the wicked feel them, and perceive them, yet none but the Heirs of Heaven truly enjoy them, and therefore they are called a mystery, The mystery of God shall be finished, Rev. 10. 7. Popery, howsoever the wicked Protestants some of them know it, and the policy of it, yet none but Gods marked ones see it, to avoid the mystery of it, and therefore that is called a mystery, the mystery of iniquity. 2 Thes. 2. 7. the very Devil himself that would be worshipped as God, would have his mysteries too, τελετὰς ἀῤῥήτους saith Dionysius Halicarnasseus, unutterable mysteries. Saint Chrysostome compares the mystery of Christ, in regard of the wicked, to a written book, that the ignorant can neither read nor spell, hee sees the cover, the leaves, and the letters, ἐπὶ βίβλου ἄντε ὄψει, hee understands not the meaning of what hee sees, hee compares the mystery of grace to an indited Epistle, which an unskilful Ideot viewing, hee cannot read it, χάρτην καὶ μέλαν ἴσασι hee knoweth it is paper, and Ink, but the sense hee perceives not; so the wicked, never so learned, they perceive the bark of the mysterie of Christ, but not the inward sense of the spirit, as Theodoret said of the Philosophers, ἔξωθεν τῶν ἀῤῥήτων ἵστανται, &c. they are like singing Parrots, that can imitate mans voice, but they skill not the meaning; so the wicked can speak gracious things by rote, and understand not what they speak; no, that is a secret; The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant.

The second reason is taken, a modo intelligendi, from the manner of perceiving the secret of Grace, which is spiritual; the natural man receiveth not the things of the spirit of God, neither can hee know them, for they are spiritually discerned, 1 Cor. 2. 14. and hee that doth know the minde of the Lord, that is, the secret, hee must have the minde of Christ, vers. 16. Indeed the wicked that have learning, may perceive and know these things of the spirit, but they know them in a carnal manner, not in a spiritual wise; and howbeit they may reform their outward courses, and cut off many acts of sinne, and like Grace somewhat in their hearts, thus farre, and further may the Carnal man go, being but changed, not renewed. Now they cannot spiritually discern Grace, for in regard of spiritual discerning they are in the dark, even as eyes, saith the same Father ὡς βλέποντες χωρὶς φωτὸς ὄψεις even as eyes, if they would see without light, the eye-sight, and the goodness, and excellency of the ball will not avail to make them see; so the wicked, even the learnedst of them all, they cannot see Grace because they have not the spirit of discerning light, their learning, and their wit, and all their good parts, cannot suffice them to discry this secret, they see it indeed, But seeing see not, and hearing hear not, and perceiving understand not, Mat. 13. 13. Why the knowledge of this secret is not given to them, but only to Christs Disciples, vers. 11. and therefore it is called the Unction of the Holy Ghost, yee have an Unction from the holy one, and yee know all things, 1 John 2. 20. That is, you know all the secret, it is called eye-salve, Anoint thine eyes with eye salve, that thou maiest see, Rev. 3. 18. This same eye-salve, the Phisitians tells us, is an ointment to purge away all filth and fluxes, and ophthalmics out of the eyes, that they may clearly see. κολλύριον

Its called the opening of the eyes, Open thou mine eyes, that I may see the wonderous things of thy Law, Psal. 119. 18. Its called the lighting of the eyes, Lighten mine eyes, Psal. 13. 3. Its called seeing, because all the wicked are blinde to this secret, and the eyes of the blinde shall see out of darknesse, Esa. 29. 18. Alas, the natural walks in the blinde shadow of death, and is not acquainted with this gracious light; no, that is a secret, And the secret of the Lord, is with them that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant.

The third reason is taken a forma intelligentis, from the condition of the party that must perceive the secret of grace, hee must have another secret thing to bee made capable of this secret, and that is the new creature, Gal. 6. 15. which is called the hidden man of the heart, 1 Pet. 3. 4. Its called a hidden life, Your life is hid with Christ in God, Col. 3. 3. and therefore the word of God is closed up in the godly, that the wicked understand it not, Dan. 12. 9, 10. they are like scrauled blotted Papers that cannot receive. The law is sealed up in the godlies heart, and the ungodly, whether learned or unlearned cannot read it, Esa. 29. 11, 12. Seal my Law amongst my Disciples, Esa. 8. 16. A garden inclosed is my sister, my spouse, a spring shut up, a fountain sealed, Cant. 4. 12. That is, mysterium, the mystery faith Ambrose, even the signed and sealed mystery of Faith and Grace; for as a private letter to a friend contains secret matter that no man else may read, because it is sealed; so is grace sealed up, it is under the privy seal of heaven, that no man can break open, but the faithfull, to whom it is sent. The secret of the Lord is revealed to them that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant.

My first use shall be for instruction.

Is Gods secret with them that fear him? then the godly are the friends of God. Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you, John 15. 14. Henceforth I call you not servants, for the servant knoweth not what his Lord doth, but I have called you friends, for I have made all things known unto you, vers. 15. Mysteria digni facti sitis, saith Theophylact, I have thought you worthy to bee acquainted with my secrets, and Abraham was called the friend of God, Jam. 2. 23. Who shall I hide from my friend? Shall I hide from Abraham the thing that I do, Gen. 18. 17. μεγάλη τις ἡ εὐγνωμοσύνη, saith Chrysostome, Oh! how greatly God condescends to the godly! hee speaks to them as a man would speak to his friend; there is no profitable secret that hee will not impart unto them, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will shew to them his Covenant.

Secondly, Is Gods secret with them that fear him? then the godly are all one with God: As Orestes and Pylades loved one another so well, that they were all one with another: Orestes was called Pylades, and Pylades was called Orestes, so are the godly all one with each other: St. Paul calls the Godly, Christ, yea Christ saith as much, That they all may be one as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us, Joh. 17. 21. ὁ ἐκείνων ἕνωσις τοῦτο, saith St. Chrysostome, so farre forth as is possible for man to bee one with God, so here the honour of the godly, they are admitted to Gods secrets to bee one with him. Tiberius Cæsar thought no man fit to know his secrets, and yet the Lord vouchsafeth the godly to know his own secrets, as Eliah could tell the secrets that were spoken in the Kings bed-chamber, 2 King. 6. 12. so the godly know the secrets of Gods chamber, even of the King of Kings Presence-chamber. O the honour of the Godly, saith a sweet Father against the Persians, none but noble men, Lords and

Dukes

Duties might be made parts in the State-Sermon, that is, the Doctrinall sermon of God-head, or divine things; saith Aretius, the godly [illegible] heavenly all ordinances, and other Preparatives [illegible] the glory of the subject, that is in favour with God, and the [illegible] secrets are the glory of the godly. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant. [illegible] Dei sectandus est, sibi vel Reprobis, that [illegible] God to [illegible] Away then with Pelagius and Semi-pelagius, and Arminius, what shall I call them? Scabiosus tesserula sar possidet. Their guilt is [illegible] must say, God gives no secret thing to any one man more than another, that rifle up all Gods secrets, and would have all men so many Tarnhafers, that swallow up St. Pauls Sea at once; it were a depth of no depth. But Paul cryes out, Oh the depth! Rom. 11. 33. Oh how secret are these things! and these Malcontents, Quasmagers, pick-lock Gods secret chest, and expose his hidden treasures. St. Paul here claimes, this time, who hath known the mind of God? who hath known these secrets, Arminius or Corvinus, Arnoldus or Vorstius, Arminius vel Corvinus, Arnoldus vel Vorstius, divinum mind, or mens, as Junius the Satyrist speaks; let me translate it Arminius and his company ransack all Gods secrets, divulge and communicate them to the seed of the woman, and of the serpent all alike; they make Gods eternall love of election no secret, but a vulgar Idea; they make the mystery of Christ, and him crucified, no secret, but an Apothecaries drug. Catholicks, they make the especial grace of God, no secret, but a common quality; Faith no secret, but a generall vertue; repentance and the new creature, no secret, but an universall gift, no secret favour to St. Peter, but make God a fanny Asse, not to love St. Peter more then Judas, no secret intent to any one person more then another, but that Christ might have died for all him, and never a man saved, no secret working of the Lord in any more than other, but for any thing that either God the father hath done by creating, God the Sonne by redeeming, or God the Holy Ghost by sanctifying, all the world were left to their scrambling, take in, if you will it you will not, these; they say God would have men to be saved, but that hee will not work it for his own part, rather for this man, or that man determinately that hee bee saved, as Aristo said that Words were made for deeds, Verba facta sunt, man is no man, an universall is never a man, for is neither this man, nor that man, for why not this man, as well as that man? so say they, Christ died for man, that is indeed for no man, not this, nor that man, for why rather this man, than that man, or that man, more than this man? Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Paul, and John, and all the Saints might have been damned for all God: and Esau, and Ahab, and cursed Herod, might have been saved, and not they, for all him, no secret reference to God in this man, rather than that man, but blessed Lazarus in heaven, is no more bound unto God, than damned Dives in hell, Nam quis te discrevit? No secret putting a difference betwixt Angel or Devil, but if David bee better than Saul, hee may sacrifice to his own net. Thus these Heretical Opinionists (chimaricall Quodlibetists, so I may call them,) are worse than the Roman blabs that Paulus the Lawyer speaks of, that disclosed secrets, for they cut off all Gods secrets at one blow. But we beloved see, let us hold this as a foundation, Nevertheless the foundation of God remaineth sure, and hath this seal, The Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. The foundation is faith, as St. Austine speaks, and as a foundation is secret under God, so is faith secretly grounded in the hearts

Man in regard of Gods Grace, is like Pontilian, Sepæ salutatus nunquam prior ipse salutas, sic erit æternum Pontiliane, vale. Martial. l. 9. Ep. 67. Hee was often saluted first, but hee never began first, so that he gave a continual farewell. So God often prevents man, but man never prevents him first, and were it not for God he would give an eternal farewel to all grace.

hearts of those that are Gods. This seal is Gods confirming grace, faith Christ-ward, and as a seal is set upon secrets, so is this grace secretly ministred, and abiding in them: this knowing, the Lord knoweth who are his; hath secret Election of God, saith Augustine, as if the Apostle should say, though Hymenæus and Philetus, and such like were of the Church, without seals, and erred concerning the faith, and fell off from what they seemed to have. Nevertheless Gods secret is with his, the foundation of God is sure, and hath this seal, the Lord knoweth who are his. For the secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant.

My secret is for my Consolation.

O! but what incomparable comfort is this to Gods people, Gods secret is with them, God hath and will reveal his secret mysteryes unto them, God hath given them a prospective Glasse to look by into his secret things, they are Gods friends, and as they turn my Text in another, they know Gods secret intent, they are so honoured with the Lord, that God hides no good thing from them which is necessary for their salvation. All the earth is Gods, but such as obey Gods voice are Gods peculiar treasure, Exo. 19. 5. Gods special jewels, Segullah it is in the Original, that is Gods proper ones, or Gods secret ones that he keeps in store for himself, and for especial use, κειμήλιον, as the Greek turns it, like a jewel which the King delivers not into the hands of any of his officers, but keeps himself in secret, saith Rabbi Menahim, hee hath chosen them to bee a special people to himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth, Deut. 7. 6. that is a secret people, out of these generation, a royal Priesthood, a holy Nation, a peculiar people, 1 Pet. 2. 9. that is a secret Nation, his peculiar pearl, Psal. 135. 4. that is his secret gem, all shewing for their comfort, that God gives them some special peculiar secret grace, that hee gives to none else in the world but to them. Christ hath given himself for them, That hee might redeem them from all iniquity, and purge to himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works, Tit. 2. 14. that is a secret generation. God loves a mysterion, and a special claim to them, as Symmachus useth the word, for to them alone hee maketh known the mystery of his will according to his good pleasure Eph. 1. 9. even his secret will, and hidden pleasure. They are Gods portion, Deut. 32. 9. The lot of his inheritance, as a great Inheritor reserves in some secret box, or some secret closet, his bonds and writings, hee keeps them secretly under lock and key; so are the godly. Oh! what a blessed and happy estate is the estate of all that fear God! Dost thou serve God in thy family? Dost thou serve him in thy calling? Dost thou stand to his truth openly, and indear it above all riches privately? Dost thou make conscience of every of Gods commandements? fear not, the Lords secret is with thee, there is no evill shall ever hurt thy soul. For in the time of trouble he shall hide thee in his Pavillion, in the secret of his Tabernacle, shall he hide thee, and shall set thee upon a rock, Psal. 27. 5. Do the proud insult over thee? Do the wicked Tongues nickname thee? God shall hide thee in the secret of his presence from the pride of man, God shall keep thee secretly in a pavillion from the strife of Tongues, Ps. 31. 20. Gods grace is a speciall grace to such as you are, and such as you are only. Christ Jesus is your Saviour, for hee will save his people, Mat. 1. 21. This ransom is a special ransom, a ransome not for all, but for many, Mat. 20. 28. His bloud-shedding was not special bloud-shedding, nor for all, but for you many, Mat. 26. 28. Sanctification is a special sanctification, not of all, but of you, Joh. 17. 19. Justification is a special justification, not of all, but of you only, his christ, Rom. 8. 33. Intercession is a special intercession, not for all, but for you alone, vers. 34. Christ is the Head, a spiritual head, not to all, but to you his Church, Eph. 1. 22. Christ his purchasing was a special purchasing, not of all, but of you his church, Act. 20. 28. Christ his prayer is a special prayer, not for all, but for you, John 17. 9. Christs redemption was a special redemption, not of all, but of you that are his Sonnes, Gal. 4. 4. Christ is the author of a special salvation, not to all in general, but to all you that obey him, Heb. 5. 9. Specialiter, saith St. Ambrose, especially for you, whom hee hath made with himself co-heirs of salvation. It is a secret that God hath given you, none of the wicked in all the world know it, it is a secret favour that he hath vouchsafed you, no covetous, nor drunkard, scrape-penny, nor swearer, nor any ungodly man, or woman in the earth partaketh of it with you.

elect

Bee comforted, then whosoever thou art, that hast given over thy wicked wayes, and betaken thy self to newnesse of Life. For the secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will them shew his Covenant.

But thou wilt say, Alas, thou canst not pray, thou canst not beleeve, thou canst not serve God.

Answer, Though these things do not openly manifest themselves, yet Gods seed may abide in thee, 1 Joh. 3. 9. Seed is secret in the ground, and seems to bee hid, yet it sprouts out in its time, and groweth; so grace may bee as hidden seed in thy heart, secretly sown in thy soul.

But thou wilt object again, Alas, I cannot feel any such matter.

Answer, what if thou canst not, it may bee secret as from others, so from thy own sense and feeling, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant.

My fourth use shall be for terrour to the wicked.

Here's horror to all the ungodly, they are strangers from God, they are not admitted unto Gods secrets. The godly are signed with the Spirit, saith St. Ambrose, a secret obsignatum, Gods spirit is their Sign, saith Theodoret, a secret seal, they are his Sonnes, and sealed with his Spirit, saith St. Chrysostome, a secret Son-ship. But the wicked have neither secret sign, nor secret Seal, nor secret Son-ship, nor any secret special or peculiar thing of God, they are aliens from God; Reveal not thy secrets to a stranger, saith Salomon, God reveals not his secrets to such as are strangers to him. As Aristotle said of his Acroamaticks, , that they were ἐκδεδομένα set out, but not ἀνεκδεδομένα set forth; so may I say of the Law, and the Gospel in regard of the wicked, it is expressed, but not expounded to them; now when they rebelliously reject all obedience, hee will close their eyes, and hoodwink both wicked Ministers and people, Esa. 29. 10. Yea the Psalmist curseth them that their eyes bee darkned that they see not, Psal. 69. 23. Pour out thy indignation upon them, and let thy wrathful anger take hold of them, vers. 24. As if hee should say, ipissimam perditionem, saith Marlorat, let them bee damned, and all with damnation it self, for Gods ways are kept secret from them, and not with them. Art thou a drunkard, and hast not Gods secret to keep the from drunkennesse? here thou seest thou art in the state of damnation? Art thou a worldling, and hast not Gods secret to keep thee from worldlinesse? thou art in the state of damnation. Art thou malicious, and a hater of thy brother, and hast not Gods secret to keep thee from it? thou art in the state of damnation? Art thou a Swearer, a lyar, or a luke-warmling, &c. and hast not Gods secret to keep thee from thy sinnes? thou art in the jaws of hell and vengeance, brutus, stupor, as Calvin speaks, a brutish stupidity possesseth thee, the secret of the devil is with thee, thou hast thy secret too, but it is the devils secret, thou keepest the Devils counsell. O my soul, come not thou into their secret. Gen. 49. 6. Well may some bee called the Devils secret, for the Devil hath power over the wicked secretly, and they perceive it not; the secret counsel of the wicked, Psal. 64. 2. The secret of mockers, so it is in the original, Gen. 15. 27. as for the secret of the Lord, that is with them that fear him, nemini nisi, saith Musculus, with none else, The secret of the Lord is with them, that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant.

of

Is the grace of Gods children such a secret that none in the world knoweth besides them? then let mee commit this to the Arminian consideration, what mischief hee doth to his own Soul; God saith this grace is a secret thing, only revealed to his secret ones; God saith, it is a mystery opened only to those that are his; God saith, it must bee spiritually discerned, and without a special eye-salve can never bee perceived; God saith, it is a fountain sealed up from the men of this world, a book clasped up, that nor learned, nor unlearned can read, but onely they to whom it is especially given from above; God saith, it is a depth, it is unsearchable, and a peculiar treasure, a peculiar pearl, a special gift; but the Arminian looks for no other grace but what is not secret, not peculiar, not special, but common grace, hee looks for no other grace save that which God vouchsafeth to all, even reprobate and all. Oh! what and if this Metaphysical grace they hazard their souls upon, should prove uneffectual, I beseech these men to chew upon this point; I do not say they do debarre themselves from Salvation, but if they would ruminate this thing seriously, I think they would not dye as they do for ten thousand worlds, let them hear a little, and I pray let their Consciences intently ponder.

1 Must it bee a secret grace of God that the world hath not, if a man bee the child of God? Oh then (I quake to think of it) how do they look to bee the Children of God only with their universal grace?

2 Must it bee a special redemption that a man must have if he bee redeemed? how do they look to be redeemed with a general?

3 Must God give faith in a special manner, or else a man cannot believe? how do they look for faith by an universal gift?

4 Must a man have a peculiar grace, or else he cannot bee of the redeemed of the Lord? how do they look for it that do not so much as pray for it by their tenent?

5 Must a man bee beholding to God in a special manner, if he bee chosen out of the world? Oh! how do they look to be vouchsafed, that professe themselves not so much as to owne God any thanks for it?

6 Must a man bee determinately converted to God in his will of God, or else hee cannot bee converted? how do they look for it that professe they do not look for it from God, but from their own freedome?

7 Must Christ pray in a special wise for those that are his, that their wills may bee quickned, how do they look to have the will and the deed, that professedly maintain, that they will not bee beholden to Christ for his prayers no further, but to have the power of will; yea, and that Christ must pray them, if hee mean to have the will it self, that do even dispute the case, contend, and give out in effect, that there

They salute God with thanks by the halves, like as Apollonius saluted Decimus by the name of Quintus, Mar. l. 4. Epig. 22. As Martial called Cinna, Dominus, when hee meant no such matter, 5 Ep. 58 So these men call God Lord, whereas they mean no such matter, but themselves Lords over their own hearts.

to

is no special prayer, nor special quickning, they will not acknowledge any secret matter in it, yea they write, and bitterly do they realon it too, that if God do no more to them a priori than to the vilest damned Cast-away, give them meerly the Catholique posse without any special esse, yet they can bee saved. They say that they can beleeve, that they can repent, that they can bee converted, is from God; but that they beleeve, that they do repent, that they are converted, is from the liberty of their own wills, But what hast thou that thou hast not received? and if thou hast received it, why boastest thou as if thou hadst not received? 1 Cor. 4. 7. Well, I will tell thee, if thou boastest thus, sure I am thou hast not received it; but thou wilt say, as Cornelius à Lapide, That I do beleeve, that I do repent, that I am converted, is from mine own will, but I received the power of God, and I do it by the vertue of that grace which I received of God. Nay, but oh man! the very eliciting and drawing of this act from that which thou hast received, cannot bee without a special act of God; for the wicked that have received so farre, yea having received further, even this secret too, do not beleeve, do not repent, are not converted. Thou beleevest thou repentest, and not Judas, and not Elimas; Dost thou? well then, either St. Paul is a lyar, or thou must have received more than an universal grace, or else thou art a lyar, thou beleevest not, thou repentest not, thou art not converted; Of what boastest thou saith Theodoret, of thine eloquence? but God gave it thee: of thy knowledge, but God conferred it on thee; he might go on of thy power of beleeving, but it is the gift of God; of the deed it self, but it is the work of God; of any the stock of good that God should joyn with thee upon it but that was the effect of God too. Saint Peter thou sayest hath Free-will, and Judas hath the same: Saint Peter had power of God to beleeve, and Judas hath the same; Thus farre God goeth along (thou sayest) with Judas as well as with Peter. St. Peter doth beleeve, and hath faith it self, and Judas hath not; and what now say I (and yet not I, but Saint Paul) hath St. Peter, that hee hath not received? and if hee have received it? how can Saint Peter boast, that hee hath not received, no more then Judas, that hath not received at all, Saint Peter and Judas, have both free-will of God, there they agree; Saint Peter and Judas have both power of God to beleeve, there they agree too, thou sayest, Judas doth not beleeve, St. Peter doth, there they differ; And who made thee Peter to differ from Judas? Certainly when Saint Paul asked the question, Who hath made thee differ from another? 1 Cor. 4. 7. hee never thought the question could, or should bee so answered, that thine own will made thee differ from another. Take heed, O man, shall a Beggar stand at the door and tell thee, hee doth not stand in need of this, or that alms, but can help himself well enough, without receiving ought from thee; wouldst thou help him? I trow not to such a boasting beggar. Alas poor Mendicant! and how doest thou look for the τὸ credere, the τὸ resipiscere, for the Alms of actual faith, and repentance at Gods mercy gate, and bee at these tearms with God? This is to deal with God as concerning grace, as the Egyptians for the watering of their Country, they said they were not bound to the gods for it, but to Nilus. So thou sayest, by this opinion thou art not bound to God for it, but to the freedome of thy will; no, the Psalmist reads us another Lecture, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him. Tremble then, O dust and ashes, to disanul Gods secrets, shouldest thou make some mens secrets no secrets, but shouldst commonly spread them, ἐκπύσσειν τὰ ἀπόρρητα, saith Diodorus Siculus, Thou shouldest have have thy tongue cut out; O what a fearful sinne doest thou run into, if thou dost display the secrets of the Lord of Heaven on this fashion? Dost thou not read of Gods special grace every where in scripture, before thou canst read of any good in any man or woman? As it was said of Pherecides, that hee got his learning by the Phanycean secrets, so thou mayest finde in Holy Writ, that all the elect got all that they had from Gods special secret, even his special and secret grace; Adam and Evah were faithfull, but was it not first said of God; The seed of the woman shall break the Serpents head? Gen. 3. 15. not — him, so as Adam and Evah might, if they would break the Serpents head; no, hee shall break it, is a word de facto, He shall break the Serpents head; Seth was faithful, but was it not first said, God had appointed him, Gen. 4. 25. and not Cain? Noah was faithful, but was it not first said, before hee heard one syllable of good in Noah, Noah found grace in Gods sight, Gen. 6. 8. and not others? Abraham was faithful, but had not God first called him, Gen. 12. 1. and not the rest that were in Ur of the Chaldees? Isaac was faithfull, but was it not first said, In Isaac shall thy seed bee called, and not in Ishmael? Jacob was faithful, but was it not first said, I have loved Jacob, and not Esau? Rom. 9. David was faithful, but was it not first said, The Spirit of the Lord came upon David 1 Sam. 16. 13. Iob was faithfull, but doth not the very Devil acknowledge Gods special blessing to him first? Job 1. 10. &c. Wherefore serves all this, but to teach thee how to beware, lest thou sinne against Gods special secret, O the Lord will not suffer this indignity at thine hands, as to abuse his secrets; even the Devils in Hell, that are called Gods Apes, among the Paynims, they would have their secrets inviolably preserved.

Like Fabulla that having gotten anothers hair, swore it was her own hair, Martial. l. 6 Ep. 12. like Fidentinus, that repeated Martials books for his own, l. Ep. 30.

Pherecydes.

Dionisius Halicarnassæus tells us of the Pinarii Arcanorum custodes, that looked to the secrets: and verily the sacred Lord of unsearchible glory is tender of his secret. Consider how wretchedly thou wrongest thy Maker, in saying, the reason why one is converted and not another, is from the free arbitrement of the will, for thou robbest God of his secret jewel, The secret of the Lord saith the Psalmist, the secret of the will, so it should bee, sayest thou; that is, the secret cause why this man is converted rather than some other. I beseech thee quake, and dare not so great audacity. Is not mans will said every where to bee passive, and all to magnify this secret? Are not the children of God said to bee elected, called, converted, redeemed, justified, adopted, sanctified? Are not their wils said to bee turned, mollified? All passive, all to shew, all to bee from this secret. Thou that art an Universaller of grace answer mee, Why was Jonas sent to Nineveh, and not to Tarsus? Why was Elias sent to the Widow of Zareptah, when there were other widows in Israel as well as shee? 1 King. 17. was it not of this secret? Why was Paul commanded to go to Macedonia, and not to Bythinia, Act. 16. 7. was it not from this secret? Why hath such and such Countries means of Salvation, and others again for many hundred; nay, thousands of years not? was it not from this secret? Why are some Asses and tools, like beasts in knowledge to their dying day, and others not, is it not from this secret? Again, answer me, Wherefore were all almost that were converted in Scripture then converted, when their own wills were about no such matter, but rather the clean contrary, but only to set up this secret? Pauls will was to persecute grace, then did hee light upon conversion of grace, Act. 9. was it not from this secret? Levi, when he was sitting at the grating receipt of Custome, then he rose to the receipt of grace, Mark, 2. 14. was it not from this secret? Were it from the liberty of the Will? then Conversion should bee when the Will is most intent upon it; wherefore was the man possessed with a Legion of devils, turned in the instant, could that bee from the first choice of his own Will? Mar. 5. 2. nay, hee cryed out against Christ, vers. 7. but even then was hee converted, vers. 13. was it not from this secret? Wherefore are Publicans and Harlots oftner saved than other orderlyer people, is it not from this secret? wherefore was that same παλλακὶς τῦ Νέρωνος as Chrysostome calls her, and not Seneca? was it not still from this secret? Again answer mee, why is not every blessing of God universal, if Saving grace were to bee universal? God doth not give strength to all, nor beauty to all, nor wit to all, nor riches to all, nor houses to all, nor learning to all, nor any left hand favour to all, and will hee give saving Grace to all? Shall wee deny that to God, which wee account an injury to offer a denial of to the meanest of Gods Creatures? May not a mother love one child more than another; yea while they are considered in themselves both alike? May not a Master love one of his servants more then another, though respected alike? May not a Prince raise up a favourite out of the rest of the people, though circumstantiated alike? Yea very fowls love some young one more than another, though qualified alike; yea the very viper will affect one of her brood more than the rest, though shaped alike; The Sunne doth not shine upon all places alike, nor the Moon upon all corners alike; the mother Earth doth not feed all her plants alike, but some more, some lesse, some not at all. And wilt thou say that God gives universal grace alike, and deny him to do with his own whatsoever hee pleaseth? The Psalmist here teacheth ye better Divinity, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and hee will shew them his Covenant. O remember, it is the part of a slanderer to discover secrets, Prov. 11. 13. Prov. 20. 19. and verily thou slanderest Gods wise and hidden Counsels, that thus broachest all his secrets, yea, thou takest part with mockers, that revile the Saints, who say to the godly; Oh, forsooth, what secret have you? Oh, belike you are of those special ones; even as Eliphaz abused Job, Hast thou heard the secret of God? and dost thou restrain Wisdome to thy self? Job 15. 8. What knowest thou that wee know not? What understandest thou that is not in us? vers. 9. With us are both the gray-headed, and the aged men, much older than thy father; ver. 10. Is there any secret thing in thee? vers. 11. yes mocker, there is a secret with them, and God reveals it to his babes, and leaves the wise and the aged many times in their folly, and it is Gods glory to conceal this secret from them, Prov. 25. 1. not as if the godly can, or may pry into Gods secret Ark, but this secret is the knowledge of their own vilenesse, which Zophar calls the secrets of wisdome, Job. 11. 6. This is a secret that God reveals to them alone. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will shew them his Covenant.

Ionas. 1

Grace,

Nero's harlot.

Seeing the grace of Conversion is a secret, how comes it about then, that the wicked, that have not this special secret afforded them, are bound to be converted, and shall be judged for not being converted?

For answer hereunto, I must needs use a little extravagancy: The Prophet Jeremiah saith, Woe, bee unto thee, O Jerusalem, wilt thou not bee made clean? This is a plain question, and therefore ναὶ ἢ οὐ ἀποκρίνου, the people should answer yea, or no; suppose they answer down-right no, we will not bee made clean; then their wilfulnesse plainly appears, they will not bee made clean: suppose they answer Yea, wee will be made clean, then their wilfulness appears to bee double, for they are not only wilful, but lyingly wilful; wee will bee made clean, but when shall it once bee, saith God? they do but dally with him, so that hee is fain to denounce a woe, Woe unto thee, O Jerusalem; and question again, as being not yet satisfied, When shall it once bee? It is evident then that they were wilful in their impenitency; They kept not the Covenant of God, and refused to walk in his Law, Psal. 78. 10. that is, neither did they, nor would they: The wicked refuse to do Judgement, Prov. 21. 7. They would not hear, Esa. 28. 12. Children that will not hear the Law of the Lord, Esa. 30. 9. And they would not, vers. 15. They would not walk in Gods ways, neither were they obedient to his word, Esa. 42. 24. They would not bee ashamed, they would not receive correction, Jer. 5. 3. They refuse to return, Jer. 8. 5. They refused to hearken, and pulled away the shoulder, and stopped their ears that they should not hear, Zach. 7. 11. So that here wee see the wicked are wilful against Conversion; That they are wilful, may be gathered,

1 From the corrupt nature of their will; their heart is desperately wicked, Jer. 17. 9. רע מאד that is deadly wicked, saith Buxtorfius, Remedio expectatio nusquam apparet, saith Tremellius, There is no good to bee expected in it; and therefore as it wills sinne, so it will will sin, and Will will not bee converted. The carnal heart is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the Law of God; neither indeed can bee, Rom. 8. 7. that is, it doth not barely not do good, but it is an enemy of God, it doth not onely not obey, but is adverse it cannot obey, and why can it not? Quia non vult, as Haymo speaks, because it will not, for [because it can not] is not put as a reason of its not obeying, but is a parenthesis, as if he should say, It is not subject to the Law of God, because it is an enemy, it will not, indeed it is true it cannot, but that not the reason, for it rebels against it; Rom. 7. 23. it will not bee made clean That they are wilful, may be gathered,

Buxtorf.

Secondly, from the abominable spawn of hideous conditions in the heart, for a wicked heart is πανσπερμια κακιων an al-seminary of sinne, an universal rot, or seed-plot of rebellions. Tell it of new obedience, it simply wills not, They would not consider his ways, Job. 34. 27 urge it, it perversely wills not, The ungodly man scorns judgement, Prov. 19. 28. urge it further, it strongly wils not, A fool regards, and is carelesse, Prov. 14. 16. presse it yet more, not only outwardly by preaching but also inwardly, by the strange motions of Gods Spirit, it stubbornly and contumaciously wils not, They resisted the Holy Ghost, Act. 7. 51. winde into it, and excite it, it maliciously, and desperately wils not, He hath done despight unto the spirit of grace, Heb. 10 29. their will is the very tunnel of hell it self, so that the Sinne against the Holy Spirit is in the bottome of the heart, and the reason why all do not break forth into it, is, because God doth not follow and presse all the wicked hearts with such grace.

That they are wilful, may bee gathered, Thirdly, from the Fathered their corrupt heart, the Devil, For the Devil worketh and ruleth in the children of disobedience, Ephes. 2. 2. It is the devil that poysoned the heart, and what poyson hath hee brought into the heart? even like a Serpent, the poyson that hee hath in himself, namely willingnesse to disobey, and wilfulnesse (either actually or radically) in disobeying, and therefore a wicked heart is wilful upon sinne, It is dead in trespasses and sinnes, Ephes. 2. 1. But what death is that that the Apostle tells us, a wilful desiring, self-minded wilful death; vers. 3. ἐν ταῖς ἐπιθυμίαις τῆς σαρκὸς ἡμῶν, saith St. Chrysostome this death is an elective death, dead the will is, and dead would bee, My people love to have it, ſo, Jer. 5. 31. whence I deduce this ſure concluſion, That the reaſon why wicked men are not converted, and do not repent, is not becauſe they cannot, but becauſe they will not. The Lord doth not ſay, Canſt thou not bee made clean, but wilt thou not? Indeed a wicked man cannot repent; For no man can come unto mee except my father draw him, Joh. 6. 44. No man can come unto mee except it bee given to him of my Father, vers. 65. that is, beleeve in mee ſaith St. Auſtine; Hence it is, ſaith the ſame Father, that the preaching of the Croſs is pereuntibus ſtultitia, to them that periſh fooliſhneſſe, but unto them that are ſaved, it is virtus Dei, every wicked man is like Lazarus dead in the grave, faſt bound, and a ſtone upon him, ἀδύνατος προσκαίρος, it being an impoſſible thing to raiſe himſelf again: as a foundered horſe cannot but limp, ſo a wicked heart cannot but be impenitent: there is a neceſſity, though not a violent, yet a cruel neceſſity, as Avitor cals it, not as fatal, yet a willing miſſed neceſſity, as Bernard calls it; So that Luther gives the free will of a wicked man in regard of grace, a good title, Res de ſolo titulo, A naked ſingular thing, no ſuch matter. Yet notwithſtanding, albeit the wickeds will cannot but be impenitent; the cauſe why it is impenitent, is not becauſe it cannot be other, but becauſe it will not be otherwiſe penitent, it doth not repent, and it will not, Sic voloſt ut pro ratione voluntas ſo I will, this will is the reaſon. Chryſoſt.

Je,

Thou wilt ſay, thou wouldeſt repent, although thou bee a wicked man, I would if I could, but alas I cannot, though I would. Object.

I anſwer three wayes:

Firſt, Haſt thou a will in thee to repent? many will boaſt every one of his own goodneſs, Prov. 20. 6. It may bee ſaid to thee, as Seneca ſaid to his friend, of a wicked youngſter, that ſaid hee would bee good; I do not ſay, ſayes hee, hee lyes, but putat ſe cupere, he thinks hee wills, but hee wills not. Thou ſayeſt thou haſt a will to repent, whom may I beleeve ſaith St. Bernard? truly, I dare not beleeve thee, if thou liveſt in wicked courſes, thou haſt a will to live in them. Thou art a ſcorner and wilt hear no rebuke, Prov. 13. 1. Thou art ſo, and thou wilt bee ſo, thou wilt not be made clean.

Secondly, I anſwer, thou ſayeſt thou art offended with thine own iniquities, I do not deny it, what damned devil is not? Homines vitam ſuam, & amant, & oderunt, wicked men hate their own lives, and love them both at one time, their own conſcience gripes them, and ſo they muſt needs finde fault with themſelves, but then their corrupt deſires tranſport them. Thou doſt not will to bee wicked, and yet thou doſt will to be wicked, like old wife Abra, that ſaid ſhe would not, and yet ſhee would; like a Whore that would bee ſtrange, forſooth. Oh! ſhee will not, and yet it is becauſe ſhee may cogge the more the love of her Paramours. Thou wouldeſt repent, and thou wilt go on in ſinne, thou haſt a fetled will to ſinne, but a ſorry would, or a months mind to repent. The truth is, thou calleſt for mercy, thou prayeſt, thou repenteſt, for a faſhion to humor thy Conſcience, and ſinne the freelier; For the Soul of the wicked wiſheth evil, Prov. 21. 10.

Thirdly, Thou ſayeſt thou wilt repent; the glutton when hee feels his head to pain him, his paunch to burden him, his belches to annoy him, hee will not bee ſuch a gluton again, what ſaith the Stoick? Stomachum illi facta luxuria, cito remittet ingratum, his gluttony hath turned his ſtomach a little, hee'l bee friends with his ſinne next time again. The wicked Iſraelites they ſought God, and enquired early after the Lord for a while, Pſal. 78. 34. but, how long did it hold? Alas, Their heart was not right with him, they would not abide his Covenant, nam, verſ. 37. Wicked Ahab now hee is faſting and humbling himſelf in ſack-cloath, 1 King. 21. 27. A man would have thought Ahab will now become a new man, but preſently the byas was turned, by and by hee is as bad as ever he was, hee hates Gods Miniſters, 1 Kin. 22. 8. So that ſtill the truth is infallible, that a wicked man, the reaſon why hee doth not give over his ſins, is not becauſe he cannot, but becauſe hee will not.

1 Becauſe hee will never indeed try whether hee can or no, but hee is like Salomons ſluggard, vult & non vult, as the vulgar tranſlates it, hee wils, and hee wils not, Prov. 13. The Soul of the ſluggard deſireth, and [hath] nothing, verſ. 4. There is never a wicked man ſhall be able to ſay to God at the day of judgement, Lord, I would have repented, I did what ever I could to repent, but alas, thou Lord thou knoweſt, I could not: No, The ſluggard lets his field bee overgrown with thorns and nettles, and the wall battered down, Prov. 24. 31. Happily his field is barren ground and cannot bear fruit; but is that the reaſon that it hath no fruit? Indeed if hee did hedge it, and dung it, and plow it, and harrow it, and weed it, and then it would not bring any increaſe, it were another matter, Cupiunt conſequi non & ſequi, the wicked would arrive in heaven, but he doth not ſtrive to his power for heaven.

Secondly, a wicked man doth not, not repent, becauſe he cannot, but becauſe he will not, for if he truly and fully would, he could, for the will is the miſtreſſe of all the powers and faculties of ſoul and body: He that would be ſober, might bee ſober, unleſs hee would gagg his mouth, and pour in liquor as into a barrel; He that would ſpeak holyly, may ſpeak holy words, unleſs hee were dumb, or one ſhould ſow his lips; Thou wouldeſt leave thy company at the Tavern, thou lyeſt unto God, there is no man hales thee into it, as a Calf to the Shambles with a rope, thou art not tyed there by a chain, as a Bear by the noſe at the ſtake; No, thou wilt not, Non velle in cauſa eſt, non poſſe prætenditur, I will not, is the cauſe, I cannot is pretended: No, the ſcorner will not go to the wiſe, Prov. 15. 12.

Thirdly, A wicked man doth not, not repent, becauſe he cannot, but becauſe hee will not, becauſe hee ſhews hee hath ſtill in every action more Can-does, then Wil-does; Eſau could weep for repentance when hee ſaw hee had loſt his Fathers bleſſing, Heb. 12. but hee runs a hunting and ranging at other times, is not this a will not? Simon Magus could pray Peter to pray for him one while, Act. 8. and at other times play the Sorcerer, and ſeduce the people, and not look after his own, not Peters prayer; is not this A will not? Saul could ſacrifice to God, and confeſſe his ſinnes now, but anon hee will not obey God, but malice David: Is not this A will not; Wicked ſwearers ſay they cannot leave their oaths, and yet in ſuch and ſuch company they will forbear; was not that A will not? Wicked drunkards ſay that they cannot but be overcome ſometimes, yet they can abſtain while they are about their worldly profits: Was not this A will not?

Fourthly, A wicked man doth not, not repent, becauſe hee cannot, but becauſe he will not; for his Can-not, is a willing Can-not; he ſaith, hee cannot but ſinne, but might not hee in the loyns of his firſt parents have kept him out of ſinne if hee had would? but that is paſt alas! hee cannot now chuſe, ſolus Deus non nocet, There is no man willingly wicked; Ariſtotle the very heathen can confeſſe, he falſifies with God, and the carnal Phyloſophy of man cannot help them. Well, to let paſſe the Original Will-not, there is a new actual Will-not, E. g. the Spend-

Spend-thrift, hee saith, hee hath not wherewithal to give to the poor, hee cannot give; but hee hath willingly spent his mony upon potting, or apparrel, or pleasure, or vanity, and therefore a willing Can-not. Many cannot remember the lessons of the word preached, to repeat them in their households, but their minds have willingly roved in that interim, a willing Can-not. He cannot repent, but hee willingly lyes in sinne, that debarres him from repentance, this also is a willing Can not.

Quod est voluntarium a parte ante, illud est voluntarium, Axiom.

Fifthly, A wicked man doth not not repent, because hee cannot, but because he will not; for when the means to remove or abate his Can-not are sent him, he willingly refuses them. Holy conference is a means, and he willingly refuses it; Powerful preaching is a means, and he willingly misliks it; to bee reproved of his sinnes is a means, and hee willingly repines at it. So that the reason why a wicked man does not repent, is not because he cannot (though he cannot) but because he will not.

Qui tollit media voluntarie, voluntarie tollit finem.

Now then for answer, do ye ask, Why is a man commanded by the Ministery to repent, and turn unto the Lord, when he hath not Gods secret, but cannot? because the reason why he doth not repent is, because hee will not, nor he cannot.

Yea, but thou wilt say, Preachers cannot bid him, as for example; hee cannot command Judas, or Cain, to beleeve that their sinnes may bee forgiven them; because Christ never dyed for the Reprobate, I answer, Mentiris Cain, thou lyest Cain, Christ dyed for thy sins, and that five ways. Augustine.

1 By way of Proclamation; remission of sinnes is to bee proclaimed unto thee, if thou wilt beleeve, so saith Paul, Bee it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through Christ is Preached unto you forgiveness of sinnes, Act. 13, 38. yea, among all Nations, Luke 24. 47. To him give all the Prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive forgiveness of sinnes, Act. 10. 43. so that Gods Ministers are bound to preach that thy sins may be forgiven thee, if thou repent and beleeve the Gospel.

2 By way of Obligation; thou art bound to beleeve, that thy sinnes may bee forgiven thee in Christ, remission of sins is one of the Articles of thy Creed, that thou art commanded to beleeve, Repent and believe the Gospel, Mark. 1. 15. and therefore its called, the Law of Faith; Lex à Ligando, the Law bindeth, Rom. 7. 2. All are bound to beleeve in Christ Jesus, to the remission of sins, even reprobate and all. they are bound as well as the Apostles themselves; For our Saviour commands them, to command all creatures the very same things that hee commanded them; Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, Mat. 28. 20. so that thou art bound to beleeve that thy sins may be forgiven thee.

3 By way of Obsignation; Remission of sins is so far forth offered unto thee in Christ, that God hath sealed this serious offer in thine own Conscience, thine own Conscience tels thee, or hath told thee, that it hath in it for to tell thee, that God doth truly offer this grace of Christ unto thy soul, and thine heart can witnesse with thee that it is thy fault, if thou do not repent, and beleeve to the remission of sins. Thus saith our Saviour, Hee that believeth in him is not condemned, but hee that believeth not is condemned already, because hee hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Sonne of God, Joh. 3. 18. Τῇ τῆς πίστεως φύσει, saith Saint Chrysostome! The not beleeving it self accuseth thee, namely in thine own Conscience, so that thine own reins check thee, for not beleeving that thy sins can be forgiven thee.

4 By

4 By way of general Intention; for God intended his Son generally for Man-kind, to lay down a ſufficient price to the remiſſion of ſins for the ſame, even for the reprobate men, and all comparatively more than for the reprobate Angels generally; I ſay, in the reſpect of the condition, that if any man or woman did repent, they ſhould not periſh everlaſtingly, John 3. 16. although I do not ſay generally, in reſpect of abſolute purpoſe. Thus ſaith the Apoſtle, Verily hee took not on him the nature of Angels, but hee took on him the ſeed of Abraham, Heb. 2. 16. And leaſt one ſhould think, why then hee took not on him all man-kind, therefore Moſes ſaith it larger, The ſeed of the woman, Gen. 3. 16. in whoſe loyns were all the world. This is no ſmall thing, ſaith the ſweet father, ὁ γὰρ ἀγγέλοις τοῦτο ἐχαρίσατο, he did not vouchſafe this mercy to Angels. So then, thou art taxt with a ſin over and above the ſin of the devils in hell, if thou doſt not repent, and beleeve to the remiſſion of ſins.

5 By way of ſpecial intention too, for all that thou knoweſt God means to work faith and Repentance in thee unto remiſſion of ſins. Peter cals upon Simon Magus the Sorcerer, Not to deſpair, but to repent of this his wickedneſs, and pray God, if it be poſſible, the thought of his heart might, bee forgiven him, Act. 8. 22. εἰ ἄρα ἀφεθήσεται σοι, ſaith the ſame Father; Peter did not ſay thus, as if hee made any Queſtion (or would have him make any queſtioning doubt) of the poſſibility of his forgiveneſs, if hee repented, but only to ſhew the grievous condition that hee was in, that hee might provoke him to faith and repentance; ſo that thou ſinneſt againſt Gods unſearchable ſecrets in counſel, if thou doſt not beleeve that God may in a ſpecial manner vouchſafe thee forgiveneſſe of ſins. Excellently then ſaith St. Hilary, Omnia Omnium, Chriſt hath ſatisfied enough for all the ſins of all men and women. Whence we may learn, that now its worſe with the wicked man, if hee will live in ſin without amendment of life, than before this new Covenant had not been made, accidentally; for now his ſin may bee forgiven him; God hath offered to condeſcend with him from the rigour of the firſt, wherein hee could not bee forgiven; and to proceed in the new with him, wherein hee may, Firſt, abſolutely to be forgiven, in regard of Chriſts ſufficiency, which is enough for all ſins of Man-kind in the world; yea, as Eccius ſaith, the Redemption of Chriſt his bloud is ſufficient, ſo that if there were a hundred mundi, a hundred worlds, it might ſerve for all; yea more, were there as many worlds as the Epicureans held, μύριοι κόσμοι infinite worlds. Aquinas is bold to ſay, That the bloud of Chriſt is of a ſufficient value to redeem them all à toto: Secondly, mollifiedly à tanto, be forgiven on their own part, aſſiſted with Chriſts efficiency. I ſpeak of Chriſts perſwading, exciting, and to ſome general duties enabling grace, whereby though he do not give them Free-will, yet he truly profers them to diminiſh the extream bondage thereof, and without doubt doth in ſome. And therefore if hee bee obſtinate in his ſins, hee is accidentally I ſay in a more woful condition than ever before, for now, Curſed is hee becauſe hee continues not in all things that are written in the book of the Law to them; Hee devolves himſelf upon the old Covenant, and ſhall anſwer for the breach thereof. Now, Curſed is hee too, becauſe hee beleeves not in the Sonne of God, hee Ship wracks himſelf againſt the New, and ſhall anſwer for the contempt thereof. God comes ſo graciouſly unto him in the power of the diſpenſation of the Goſpel of Chriſt, that it might bee the better with him under the Law of faith (although God do not go ſo farre with him as with his Elect) but hee makes himſelf guilty guilty of the blood of the New Testament, and turnes this May bee forgiven into a double Never shall be forgiven, yea and by the just judgement of God into a desperate Never can be forgiven.

Hom. 15. de pæn.
Diog. Laer. Proſp. reſp. ob Vincent.

But (suppose Ministers may bid them believe, because God hath commanded them so to preach, yet how can God himself bind Cain or Dives, or any other reprobate to believe, when Christ did not dye for them? or how can God judge them for not believing in the Son of God, who never was incarnate for them? can they be tyed to believe that to be so, which is not so?

I answer, 1. Put case that Christ did not dye for them, the Preacher, or God in the Preacher doth not command them to believe an untruth; for faith comes by the word Preached, and look whatsoever the word saith, they are bound to believe. The word saith, That he dyed for those that believe. For blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for those that repent. The word saith, They are bound to repent, &c. And if they do repent, if they do hunger and thirst after him, then the word assures it, Christ dyed for them. So that, a man cannot bee bound to beleeve that which is not so, because that were a lye. This is not true, when that which is not, by beleeving is made to bee so. Ergo, It is false that a man is an Angel, it is false that a man is a spirit, yet if a man bee an Angel, he is a spirit, that's true. It is false that a fool is discreet, It is false that a fool is wise, yet if a fool were discreet, he were wise, that's true. So it is false that a reprobate hungers and thirsts after Christ. It is false Christ dyed for him in particular, yet if he do hunger and thirst after him, Christ did dye for him is true. It is false that a reprobate doth beleeve, and false that Christ dyed for the reprobate in particular, yet it is true, that if hee do beleeve, Christ dyed for him.

Secondly, That which a man is bound to beleeve, is true: It is true, not only that he is bound to beleeve, but also even that thing which he is bound to beleeve, but no further then hee is bound to beleeve it. But a wicked man, ut sic, as yet a wicked man, going on in sin, is no where in Scripture bound to beleeve that Christ dyed for him; but he is bound to beleeve, that is, to bee in statu qui credat, in that state wherein hee may beleeve, and so mediante hoc statu, under supposal of that state hee is bound to beleeve. He that is bound to the antecedent, is bound to the consequent of that antecedent.

Thirdly, To beleeve that Jesus Christ dyed for him in particular, is not the faith that every one is immediately bound to, but the sequel of true faith. Credere in Christum est fides, to beleeve in Christ is the faith it self, that is to go out of himself, and cast himself wholly upon Christ for his salvation.

Fourthly, God in his special mercy gave Christ to his elect, to work their salvation, and the application of the condition, for all is from him, our redemption, and the having thereof: Because they could not effect the former Covenant, hee gives them an easier, and inables them to do it. Now God in his general mercy, or in his conditional mercy (speciall too in regard of the devils, to whom he vouchsafes it not, and in regard of their former stricter Covenant, which hee tyes them not to, so they do beleeve) having devised a sufficient means for all the worlds salvation, sets the wicked reprobate a rule to live by, namely, faith, repentance, new obedience, which hee will not inable them to do, nor is he bound so to do, for a power of beleef was included in their primæve innocency, as minus in majori. Adam himself before the Fall, was to go out of himself, and cast himself upon another. Now man since the fall, is bound to nothing but the same. Here is the difference, before the Fall he was to go out of himself, to deny himself, ratione alius meriti, and to cast himself wholly upon the promise. Since the Fall man must go out of himself, and deny himself, ratione boni too, and to cast himself upon a new promise, that promise was the promise of bounty, this the promise of mercy; that promise was in his Son God, &c. and this promise in his Son, both God and man, Mediatore, so that the faith differs from the other, but onely in the sundry modifications of subject and object.

Lastly, the reprobate are justly condemned, because they do not beleeve in Christum sufficientem servatorem, not to speak of efficacem, for though they know that Christ is a sufficient Saviour, this is not a credere Deo, but a beleeving that God sayes true, who saith that Christ is sufficient; they may beleeve that Christ is a sufficient Saviour, but sure it is, that they do not beleeve in Christ a sufficient Saviour.

The Lord stablish the peace of Sion, in heart and mind, through Jesus Christ our Saviour.

FINIS.

THE RICHES OF GRACE.

A TREATISE

SHEWING

The value and Excellency of a gracious Spirit, by comparing it with the Nature and Spirits of wicked and ungodly men, which desire not the ways of the Lord Jesus.

By that Reverend, Learned, and Faithfull Minister of Gods Word, WILLIAM FENNER, B.D. sometimes Fellow of Pembrook Hall in Cambridge, and late of Rochford in Essex.

Perfected many years since by the Author.

LONDON,
Printed by R. I. and are to bee sold by William Gilbertson at the Bible in Gilt-spur street. MDCLVI.

CHRISTIAN PRAYERS

TO THE CHRISTIAN READER, GRACE, MERCY, AND PEACE.

THere was never any age or time (Christian Reader) since the beginning of the world, how corrupt soever, that was comparable to this our divine unhappy age, in all kinds of corruption, wickednesse, and sinne, with grief of Conscience I speak it, with weeping I behold it, and with sorrowful heart I lament it, and therefore seeing wickednesse doth so abound, the Lord (lest his children (frozen in the dregs of their sinnes) should perish with the wicked) raiseth up, in his mercy, good men (as wee see the Author of this Treatise, a man of rare parts) to pluck off the Vizzard of sinne from their faces, and to lay it open to the view of the whole world, to the end that every one may see the vilenesse of his wicked wayes, and the filthy dregs of sinne, thrown in their face, may blush at the same, bee ashamed, repent, amend, and turn to the Lord Jesus, and so eternally be saved.

In this Treatise is drawn to the life, the sins and wickednesse of ungodly men, which desire not the way of the Lord Jesus, together with the Excellencies, riches, great value of a blessed and gracious spirit.

The Author of this Treatise was a man of a pretious spirit, as may appear by this and other works of his in Print: A Reverend and worthy Divine gives this Testimony in his Commendations, that hee was a Minister very Conscientious, one that had a great ability

lity given him of God to Preach unto, and work upon the hearts and consciences of men, to awaken the sleepy, to inform the erroneous, to settle the doubtfull, to confirm the wounded, all that live was a worthy divine; both in regard of his unwearisome paines in preaching, consuming his own body to save the Souls of others, as also of his Learning and Exemplary Piety. They that knew him did love and reverence him, and if any did dis-esteem him, it was because they did not fully know him. Hee is now a shining star in the firmament of heaven, also that there were hundreds of people that will blesse God to all Eternity for his paines, he needs not our praises, but our imitation.

It is true that this birth is Post-humum opus, and commeth out after the death of the Author, but I hope it will be the more pleasing, to revive the memory of him, whose life and labours were deservedly pretious in the esteem of Gods people.

This Treatise is one of the sparks of the zealous (dead, yet living) Author, finished by himself, which might have lain covered in the ashes of forgetfulnesse, had it not been blown up by one (well minded) which received it from the Authors own hand: it hath been viewed by a Reverend divine, to prevent errours, and to make it compleat for the Press, which is here presented to thy view.

Therefore Christian Reader, let me obtain thus much at thy hand, to accept of his labours as pretious, well-wishing towards the truth, and the professour thereof.

The subject of this ensuing discourse is published for thy benefit, read it, the Lord give thee understanding to conserve and practice it in thy life and Conversation. Amen.

THE

THE RICHES OF GRACE

JOB 21. 14.

Therefore say they unto God, Depart from us, for we desire not the knowledge of thy wayes.

Obs. Friends disputing against Job, that hee was a wicked man, because the wrath of God in so grievous a manner lay so long upon him; Job returns answer again, If this be true doctrin you speak, that God scourgeth none but wicked men, how is it then that wicked men so oft, and so much prosper in the world, abounding in all worldly pleasures and delights?

Now Job shews that wicked men may prosper in five things.

First, In life and health: as the Raven may live five times longer than cleaner birds, vers. 7.

Secondly, In their multitude of children, vers. 8. A foul Sow hath more young than an Ewe hath Lambs.

Thirdly, In Tranquillity and safety, vers. 9.

Fourthly, In successe and increase of their substance, vers. 10. as the wicked men have a Proverb, the worse man the better luck.

Fifthly, In wealth, security and pleasure: hearts ease, say they, is the best flower in the garden, vers. 11, 12, 13.

Then Job sets down two things.

First, The sin in the verse read unto you, They say unto God, Depart from us, for we desire not the knowledge of thy ways.

The punishment in the 13. vers. In a moment they go down into the grave, and vers. 30. The wicked are reserved for the day of destruction; every wicked man, God hath laid up, and purposed him to hell, hee gives him of prosperity to fat him up; that his damnation may bee greater.

The verse read, containes in it three things.

First, Wicked mens contempt of grace, in these words; We desire not the knowledge of thy wayes.

Secondly,

2. Secondly, Their contempt of the means of grace in these words, Depart from us: they could well content that the Lord should depart for ever from his Ordinances; if no preaching, no praying, no Sabbath, no sight of God amongst them, they would not much care, nor much lay it to heart, nay they also desire it, they say unto God, Depart from us.

3. Thirdly, The prophanenesse of their lives: They say unto God, Depart from us: though few say so with their mouths, yet by their lives, so they live, as they behave themselves.

From the first of these, viz. a wicked mans contempt of grace, we observe this Doctrin.

Doct. That a wicked man does not so much as desire saving grace.

For the clearing of the point, wee will define the true desire of grace. A true desire of grace, is a super-natural appetite to grace not had, for the goodnesse of it. There are four things in the true desire of grace.

First, It is an appetite of the soul to grace; when the heart doth even go out of it self for the obtaining of grace: there are words in the 119 Psal. 3. vers. which sets it down expressly, by the hungry soul, the word signifieth, a running soul, a soul that not only goes to grace and the means of grace, but runnes to it with an eager desire and speed. An hungry appetite, which signifies an hunger unfained, which is

1. First, Unsupportable without meat, so that hee that truly desires grace cannot bee without grace. As one said, Take away heaven and you take away all from mee, so it is with the poor soul, take away grace, if it bee out of hope of grace, it can never rest, it can never bee the want of it.

2. Secondly, Insatiable, without meat, nothing can satisfy hunger meat, though hee had all the wealth in the world, yet hee could not bee satisfyed without meat. So it is in the true desire of grace, give one all the gold of Ophir, all the honours and pleasures of the earth, all contents under heaven cannot satisfy him, but grace he must have, grace, no content in any thing else, but grace, grace.

3 Thirdly, Hunger is Irrepulsable, it will bear no repulse of all, when it will afford to give large summes for mean food, nor of him, as appeareth by the woman that went five miles in the famine for food, it will bear no repulse: for were a man a Lord, it would make him rather than withstand it. So the true desire of grace is irrepulsable, who so truly desires it and cannot get it, hee will not let God alone, nor suffer him to rest, but begs and cryes for it, oh! hee could be content to give all hee hath for it, and if any thing in humblest kinde, he will willingly cast it off, be will go through thick and thin, he will endure any contempt, any disgrace, for it. If he suffer any disgrace any reproach for grace, he glorieth and rejoyceth in it.

4. Fourthly, Hunger is humble, it is not choice in its meat, if it cannot have pleasants and dainties, it will bee content with Farmers food, yea any thing. Pigeons dung will bee good food, so hee that truly desires grace, is of an humble heart, he can be content to welcome children crummes, and account it preferment to sit with Christ his dogges: though with Paul widow they wash the Saints feet, though with David they bee door keepers in Gods house, yet so they may have grace, they care not though the whole world trample upon them, though they be accounted the off-scowring of all things.

2 Secondly, It is a Supernatural appetite, and that to distinguish from a natural, which natural men have, and not here grace. Every man naturally hath a care of his own preservation, wherefore loving life can not bee saved, but must eternally perish in hell without grace, hee will desire it as a man may give way to cutting off of his arm or legg, rather than his whole body should perish, though hee hate the cutting off of those members, yet seeing an unavoidable necessity, that otherwise hee must dye, or the like, hee doth willingly desire it. So the foolish Virgins Mat. 25. desired Oyl in their Lamps, not because they loved light, for their deeds were full of darknesse, but they saw they should bee shut out of heaven and cast into hell without it. As a dogg that desires to vomit, not because he hates the meat, for afterwards he licks up his vomit again, but because something troubled his stomach. So many a man vomits out his lust, gives over his drunkennesse, whoredome, pride, malice, and many other sinnes, because they trouble his conscience, and hee is evidently convinced that hee must go to hell if hee live in them; but when his conscience is quiet again, and the pinch over, hee doth willingly yeeld himself to all his former lusts. Some have shewed from that place, 1 Pet. 1. vers. 12. that the very devils have desired the knowledge of the redemption by Christ, though others bee of judgement that it is not the meaning of the Apostle in that place, yet certainly it is a truth, for hell were no hell if damned men and damned devils, did not desire to escape it, but this is not the desire of grace, it is a super natural appetite.

Thirdly, It is an appetite or desire After grace not had: the love of Grace is a good thing whether had or no; delight is in good when had, desire is in good though not had; a good though wee attain it not, not possesse it, yet wee love it, because wee judge and see it to bee good, or to have goodnesse in it, and therefore wee finde wee delight in it when wee have it, and in the want of it wee desire to have it. A man may desire good that hee hath, but then it is imperfectly had, which may be two wayes. 3.

First, In regard of the haver of it, or person having it, by reason of some incapability in him of not receiving it. Grace is a whole thing, so is faith, repentance, love, zeal, &c. they are whole, and intire graces, which go together, but because wee see how good they are, therefore we desire them in a high degree, that desire is of grace not had, it is plain, Esa. 55. 1. 1

Secondly, In regard of the thing had which cannot be had, but successively, as a Sermon cannot bee delivered all in a word, but something must succeed, wherefore if there bee any goodnesse in a people, seeing and hearing the goodnesse of one part, they will desire the other. 2

Thirdly, For the goodness of it, or that is in it, a wicked man may desire grace for some other reason, but never for the goodnesse of it, a swine may desire to bee raking in the dung-hill where there is a pearl, but it is not for the pearl, but for the muck that is there. So as long as the Gospel and plenty go together, the Gospel, and Father, and Mother, and Wife, and Lands and houses, and Life go together, so long they will hear the Gospel and seem to love it, but when the Gospel, and these things part, then they and the Gospel part also. But the true desire of grace is for the goodness that is in it. Balaam could desire even the very heart of a righteous man, but it was when hee should bee dying: for hee saw that if hee had it, there was hope of heaven and salvation, but otherwise hee must down to hell. But this desire is nothing. Now that 3

the true desire of grace is not in a wicked man, is clear from Isay 33. 2. where the Prophet speaking of Christ, who is the fountain of all Grace, saith thus. There is no form nor comelinesse, and when we shall see him, there is no beauty in him that we should desire him; this is meant of the body of Christ, for as the learned have writ, Christ had all parts in the perfection of a body, and of his soul, for it was replenished with all Divine graces. In him dwelleth the fulnesse of the God-head bodily, and therefore there was beauty enough in him to have ravished all Angels, yea all the world, and ten thousand more if there were so many. But men in their natural estate see not this, wee that are carnal, wee that are sinfull, wee that are in our sinnes, wee that are not truly changed nor renewed in our minds, wee see no beauty in him that we should desire him, unlesse hee will bring gold and silver, Hawks, and Hounds, Cards, and Dice; if hee would bring these, then wee should see some beauty in him, but if hee bring nothing but weeping and mourning and repentance, the strictnesse and precisenesse, mortifying and crucifying their earthly members, there is no beauty in these things that wee should desire him; wicked men may have a would, but not a willing desire, they will thus and thus, but as the old Proverb is Wishers and woulders were never good housholders, but there is no true desire in them of saving grace.

Now as no love is love indeed, but true love, otherwise it is hatred, no fire, fire indeed, but the true fire, no holinesse, holinesse indeed, but true holiness, for otherwise it is but hypocrisy, so no desire is desire indeed, but true desire.

Reas. 1 First, Because grace is above the reach of nature, and therefore as Asse cannot desire to bee a man, because hee cannot conceive better of a man than of himself, for an Asse seems best to an Asse, a drunkard to a drunkard, a whore to a whore-master. Now if so bee that a natural man cannot conceive better of grace than of himself, hee cannot desire it: if all the world were fools except one man, that one man would bee accounted the fool, and all the rest wise men. So bee that is a true natural fool is highly accounted of by his fellows: so a natural man accounts of spiritual men as mad men, The spiritual man, saith the Prophet, speaking in the language of wicked men, are mad. 2 Cor. 2. 14. The natural man perceiveth not the things of God, for they are foolishnesse unto him: a natural man may perceive sweetnesse in the world, in his gain, in his profits, in his pleasures, in his delights and vanities, and in his lusts, for these things are carnally discerned; but not in the things of God, for they are spiritually discerned, a wicked man may have a great deal of knowledge, that a child of God cannot speak of more truths, nor understand more than he doth, but though a wicked man understand spiritual things, yet not spiritually, but carnally onely, and in a carnal sense: this is the reason that a worldling had rather have a 1000. pound, than true grace, that the covetous man had rather bee in his counting house, accounting his interest money and his gains, than at the house of God to hear a sermon; because they are carnally discerned, but these things of God are spiritually discerned. If wee that are the ministers of God could drop shillings and pounds amongst men in our preaching to them, they would come to the Church more duely, and hear more eagerly and affectionately; but when wee deliver the things of God and the everlasting Mysteries of Salvation, which are above their reach and understandings, if they come to Church, they can sit quietly in their Pews, being no whit affected with the word as if it were nothing them. Second-

Secondly, Because Grace is contrary to nature, fire cannot desire wa- Reas. 2 ter, nor water fire, because they are contrary, one expelling the other, for either the water will quench the fire, or else the fire will lick up the water; so nature and grace do thwart one another. Nature would have a man love himself, Grace forbids it, and commands to love God. Nature would have a man to bee wrathfull, cholerick, and given to revenge upon every small provocation; but Grace forbids all these and the like. The wisdome of the flesh is enmity against God, Rom. 8. 17. Take Nature in its best wits, take a naturall man in his best understanding, best apprehension, and sweetest affable disposition, take the very flower and height of nature, though never so learned, and yet it is at enmity with God and grace, and therefore impossible it should desire Grace. Hereupon it is that the Magistrate neglects true justice, is cold or lukewarm in the cause of God, let Grace call for the contrary; Fathers and Masters will not Catechise and instruct, and bring up their children and servants in the knowledge and fear of the Lord, though Grace reprove them never so bitterly for the neglect of it. Divers Christians will bee earthly, dead, lukewarm, let Grace stirre them up never so earnestly, yet still Grace is not welcome, it imposeth things contrary, suppose a man should come to a fire, and use all the rhetorick and arguments to per-swade it not to burn, let him threaten it, burn not fire, if you do I will pull you all to peeces, yet it will burn still; for it is contrary to the nature of fire to suspend burning, so it is contrary to nature to suspend its lusts.

Because Grace is not only above and contrary to nature, but it is a hell Reas. 3 into nature, grace is a hell to a natural man. Now a Rogue cannot desire the stocks, a theif cannot desire the Gallows, nor a vagrant the house of correction, no more can a Natural man desire Grace, for Grace arraigns and commits a man and sends him down to hell gates, into hell it self, if he repents not. I grant a wicked man may think he desires grace, when he wisheth, O that I had Christ, O that I were the child of God and that I had Grace; but if one should come to this man and tell him what it is to bee a child of God, to have Christ and grace, that thus and thus hee must bee qualified, hee must take up the Crosse of Christ, and follow the precise and strict rules of Christ, and the directions of Grace; this man then would even hate those conditions, and so consequently his former wishes, Amos 5. 18. Woe unto them that desire the day of the Lord, to what end is it for you? the day of the Lord is darknesse and not light. As if the Prophet had said to all wicked men, you think you desire the day of the Lord, that Christ the Saviour might come into the world, but to what end is it? I tell you the day of the Lord is not such a day, Christ is not such a Saviour, as you do imagine: The day of the Lord is darknesse and not light, a day of sorrow, of grief, of Condemna- Mal. 2. 17 tion unto you: So the Lord complaineth by the Prophet, You have Mal. 1. 12, 13 wearied me; wherein have wee wearied thee, say they? For have prophened the Table of the Lord, you have snuffed at it, saith the Lord: But who desire the comming of the Lord; yea saith the Prophet, The Lord shall suddenly come, but who can abide the day of the Lord? or who can stand Mal. 3. 1, 2 when hee appears? For hee is like Refiners fire, and like Fullers Sope:
Thou desirest Grace, thou that livest in thy sin; I tell thee that is hell and vengeance to thee; for it commandeth thee to crucify thy lusts, and to descend unto the gates of death, in the true humiliation of thy soul, or else it will damn thee in everlasting condemnation of hell.

Because nature in a wicked man is in its full strength, how if nature in the child of God, in whom it is in some measure mortified, and subdued, bee such an opposite and enemy to the working of Grace, stirring up cursed lusts, and the like, to quench the motions and comfortable living of Grace; how much more when nature is in its full power and force where there is nothing else? But meat into a dead mans mouth, and there is no absolute resistance. The child of God is like a sick man troubled with ill humors and diseases, hee hath true desire of Grace yet weak and low, not raised to that height and power which they shall bee, when they are perfectly recovered. Therefore the Apostle exhorts the people of God, 1 Thes. 5. 19. Quench not the spirit, because even in them there are some lusts, and corruptions springing out of the heart, which will be ready to put out the fire of Grace.

Use 1. This is for comfort for all poor broken hearts in whom God hath ingendred the true desire of grace, let such know that the first step to Grace, is to see they have no grace, and the first degree of Grace, is the desire of Grace: it is not with the body as with the Soul, if you will bee healed you shall bee healed; a man may desire to bee healed corporally, and yet his disease continue upon him; but it is not so with the Soul, if thou wilt say Christ heal mee, thou shalt bee made whole. If a man have but the true desire of Grace, it shall bee given him. Psal. 10. 17. Lord thou hast heard the desire of the humble, when the poor soul is humbled before God in the sense of the want of Grace, and breathes and desires after it, the Lord will grant such desires. So Psal. 145. 19. He will fulfil the desires of them that fear him, he also will hear their cry and will help them. One said the greatest part of Christianity, is to desire to be a christian. And another said the total summe of a mans Religion in this life, consists in the true desires of saving Grace. This was the perfection that Saint Paul attained unto, Rom. 7. 18. To will is present with me, but I finde no means how to perform that which is good. Saint Paul yee I know was the child of God, and one dearly beloved of God; yet there was the pitch of his godlinesse, it consisted more in desire, than in accomplishment. Canst thou approve by evident and sound arguments that thou hast the true desires of Grace? then know for thy comfort that the Lords spirit of Grace hath been moving and stirring in thee, Phil. 2. 13. It is God that worketh in you, both the will and the deed, and that of his good pleasure, not onely of his bounty, from whence hee hath bestowed many graces, even upon such as hee will damn afterwards, for their accursed abuse of them, with the neglect of the power thereof. But if God have set thy will, and the stream of thy affections and desires to himself and to grace, it but thy will, yet it is Gods good pleasure from which hee did at first elect thee, and gave his sonne to redeem thee. As it is with sinne, so it is with Grace in this; The desire of murther, is murther, the desire of adultery, is adultery, the desire to steal, is theft: So it is with Grace, the desire of Faith is faith, the desire of repentance, is repentance: but thou wilt say, What good is it to desire to believe and not to believe; to desire to repent, and not to repent, to desire to have an humble heart, and a broken heart, and yet not to have the heart humble and broken? I answer, he that hath the true desire of Grace, hath the greatest part of Grace. Suppose a man should bee scraping and raking and grinding the face of the poor, to hoard up a great deal of treasure and riches to himself; which I pray you is the greatest part of his covetousnesse, the laying up of the money, or his greedy desires and oppressions. Surely I judge his covetous desires and oppressions. For any even a child of God, may lay up and gather riches, when it pleases God to cast them upon him, so that it is not the having of Riches, but the coveting of them that proves a man to bee a covetous man. For not onely great Usurers and oppressing Land-lords are covetous worldlings, for I tell thee covetousnesse may be in a begger, and under thy leather coat, if thy minde bee running after the world, thou that art never at quiet, but thy heart, thy head, thy hand, and all is taken up after it, whether thou accomplish thy covetous lust or no, yet thou art one of those covetous persons spoken of in 1 Cor. 6. 10. Suppose a man should attain to a great measure of Grace, that hee is marvellously humble, marvellously zealous, marvellously holy and strict in all the wayes of God, I would know which is the greatest part of his Grace. I suppose his strong and vehement desire.

Secondly, Set it forth by a similitude, suppose a man should bee in a great strait; that all his goods were to bee confiscated unto the King: now an execution is ready to seise upon them, unlesse speedily hee make them over to some friend, who will keep them for him, now may bee his friend is an hundred miles from him, so that by no meanes hee can come to him, now hee thinks, Oh! that I had such a friend, whom if I could but come at, I would cast my whole estate upon him, and repose much trust in him. So the soul that apprehendeth the wrath of God, and the curse of the Law ready to seise on it for damnation, it would fain go to Christ, but hee cannot tell how, the sense of his vilenesse keeps him off, oh! hee would bee glad to leave and cast away all his lusts, and dearest sins, and take up the cause of Christ, and if hee could but reach Christ, oh! then hee would think himself safe, hee would lay all upon him, his very soul and Salvation. Certainly this man hath true Faith in Christ; for a man would trust him well, before hee would cast his whole estate upon him. There is an excellent place for this in Hag. 2. 6, 7. I will shake all Nations, and the desires of all Nations shall come: where are three things.

2.

First, Its a marvellous instinct of the Spirit of God, whereby hee stirres all the children hee hath in the world, humbling their souls, and terrifying their consciences upon the sight of their sinnes, and they stand in the calls off, cast-aways.

1.

Secondly, Their desire of Christ.

2.

Thirdly, The desire of all Nations shall come, that is, Christ shall come, where observe that Christ is not called the assurance, but the desire of all Nations, because that there is no child of God, but doth truly desire Christ, though many bee his who have not the assurance of it: never did any man desire to eat, which had not eaten before, so [I desire to believe] comes from [I do believe.] Let then none bee troubled, and fear and complain for the want of faith, for true desire springs from faith as the root of it.

3

Hence wee may see, that Grace which wicked men desire, is not true Grace.

Use.

You will say men come to Church, they pray, they come to the Sacraments for Grace; they professe they would have grace, and will you say that they do not desire it?

Obj.

I answer with Salomon, The Soul of the sluggard desireth, and hath nothing; but the Soul of the diligent shall bee made fat. As it is with a sluggish man that desires his ground should bee tilled, but yet will take no pains

Ans.

paines to plough it; who desires that his business should go forw[ard] that hee might have the harvest, yet will not bee at the cost and [pains] gets neither for it; hee may wish and desire a harvest, but shall have nothing: So the Soul of a sluggish Christian, of a lukewarm profes-sor, desires faith and repentance, but gets neither, but the soul of a diligent Christian shall have enough to justify him, Grace enough eternally to save him. But the soul of a carnal Christian desires Faith, but gets but a lazy faith, a faith that will not justify him, a lean or perhaps a lazy repentance that will not save him, a dead performance and profession together, Rom. 11. 7. Israel saith the A-postle, hath not obtained that which he sought for, but the election hath obtained it, first carnal Israel sought for the promises of Christ, but they got it not, but the Election hath obtained it.

Obj. 2. Oh but our Saviour saith, seek and ye shall find.

Answ. 2. I answer, true, if you seek well; this word is of few letters, but of great force, it is the very form of all Arts; for Rhetorick is the Art of pleading well, and Logic of disputing well, so is Divinity the Art of seeking well, of living well; it is nothing to desire Grace, un-lesse you seek it well: the truth is, a wicked man desires not true grace, but something that seems to him to bee true grace. Now suppose a man were sick, and five pills would cure him, hee thinketh four will do it and therefore neglects the fifth and dyes for want of it. So a man hav-ing his conscience convinced from the word of God, that unless he have such and such faith, such & such Graces of the Spirit of God, such know-ledge, such holinesse, hee shall be damned. Hee thinks if I can bee but thus and thus, if I can do but thus much, I shall bee saved, where-upon he will hear the word of God, hee will pray, hee will keep the Sabbath, give over his and that sinne, leave his drunkennesse, his swearing, and yet when all comes to all, hee goes to hell. Why? be-cause true grace which was commanded, and which he should have had, hee accounted and called Puritanisme and preciseness, and re-jected as a superfluous thing; hee thinks if hee can attain to such a pitch as to live justly and quietly, and to bee well governed, and to follow his particular calling, and keep the Church, and perform some good duties, though hee bee not zealous for God, not in the wor-ship of God, will not indure reproach for Christ, and for his strict pro-fession: such a one shall bee damned though hee have all the Grace hee looks for. A crimson shooe cannot cure the Gout; so fine comli-nesse of carriage in a natural man, cannot heal the infection and poy-son of corrupt nature. An Asse is an Asse still, though hee bee never so well trapped: so a natural man is a natural man still, though ne-ver so well qualified: Hath hee love, hath hee knowledge, meeknes, gentlenesse, and a kind of humility and liberality? comes hee to the Church, hears the word, receives the Sacraments? yet unlesse he bee mortified and converted, changed and renewed by the spirit of God, it is impossible hee should bee saved; Tit. 2. 11, 12. The Grace of God which bringeth salvation, hath appeared unto all men; and teacheth us, that we should deny ungodlinesse, &c. as if the Apostle would give us to understand that there is a grace that bringeth not salvation, but that which bringeth salvation teacheth us to deny all ungodlinesse and worldly lusts, and to live soberly, righteously, and godly in this pre-sent world: if then that Grace thou desirest and hast attained to, teach not thee to cast away all sinfull corruptions, and do not make thee live holily, it cannot bring thee to heaven. This grace which (saith the Apostle) teacheth us to deny ungodly lusts, as if hee had said, I know know is hath appeared to all, all the world hath it offered to them, it hath appeared to them, but they will not learn of it, to deny ungodlinesse, and worldly lusts, and therefore in stead of Salvation it bringeth Damnation to them, but it teacheth us and brings Salvation to us. But now because men are apt to say every one boastings, that they desire grace, therefore for the third use

Use. 3 Come, examine thy self or thy soul, and we will lay it bare before the Lord, that if thou hast Grace thou maiest know of it, if not, thou mayest bee convinced of it, and so perswaded in time to seek truly for it.

Now if thou hast a true desire of Grace, then it purifieth the conscience from all dead works. If thy Conscience now tell thee, that thou hast any sinne and corruption, that thou art not willing to lay off, it is an evident demonstration, that thou hast no true desire of Grace. A man that hath his hands full of base luggage, if a pearl should bee at his feet, unlesse hee empty his hands hee cannot take it up, and therefore if hee will not cast away that base stuffe, wee would say hee hath no minde to the pearl. Now thy hands and thy heart are full of corruption, so that though Grace lye even at thy feet, yet thou canst not receive it up, unlesse thou empty thy hands and thy heart.

1 Mark, 1 Wherefore if there be any lust, though never so dear, any bosome sin, which thou wilt not part with; it is an evident sign that thou hast not a true desire of Grace. Heb. 3. 12. Willingness and desire to live honestly, and a good Conscience are joyned together, noting, that so a man cannot have a desire to live piously according to Gods will, but hee must have a good Conscience in all things: If then thy Conscience tell thee that thou wilt swear now and then, thou wilt tell a lye upon occasion and be scandalous to others now and then, and wilt reserve some passage for thy lusts; know that thou canst not, thou dost not desire Grace. For true Grace animates the soul to lay off all hindrances of the Grace desired.

2 Mark, 2 It is a vehement desire, if true; a lukewarm desire is no true desire. As a man hath a desire to a peece of cloath, and goes to the Draper shop to buy it, hee judgeth it to bee worth twenty or forty shillings, now if the Draper should hold it at three or four pound, hee scorns the motion, and flings away with detestation of it; he desired it, but his desire was stinted, upon such a condition, at such a price above which hee loathed it. This is the reason why the Ministers of Christ are so unwelcome to men, and their Ministery too. Because they would bring the men beyond the price which they would bid for Christ and Grace; they would willingly have Christ, have faith, have heaven, but they are loath to take so much pains, to bee at so much cost, as they must be at, if they ever have it. Suppose thou give over thy Whoring, thy Swearing, for grace, yet if not thy company keeping, thy lying, thou hast no true desire of Grace, though thou give over all thy gross sins, yet if thou retainest thy deadnesse, thy lukewarmnesse, though thou give over all thy sins save one, though but in a corner or a nook of thy heart, though I say thou come to this price, yet unlesse thou give all thou hast, no true desire of Grace. For the man that truly desires Grace, his desires are vehement, such as will part with all things for it, 2 Cor. 7. 11. Yea what vehement desire, the word signifies desire upon desire, one desire upon the back of another, and all for Grace, Gen. 30. Give me children or else I dye, saith Rachel unto Jacob: So the heart cryeth unto the Lord for Grace, as for a thing without which it perisheth; Augustine saith, that the desire of Grace is the thirst of the soul, it is a burning and gnawing desire, that will confound a man with desiring. Here therefore the whole world is convinced of their unprofitable desires. For what dead prayer? what dead hearing? what dead receiving? as if men would teach God how to deny them, or as if they would bid the Lord keep his graces. They will come and say prayers, and give an eat, but they have no burning nor thirsting desire.

which

3 Mark. 3 Delight in the means of Grace: though delight be an effect of true desire, yet it is a sign of Grace, because grace in potentia, is in the ordinance of God; therefore the man that desires grace, he will delight in the Ordinances of Grace; he that desires learning, delights in reading and studying the means of it: so he that desires mortification, delights in the powerful preaching, whereby he may have all the corruptions of his heart layd open; he that desires Grace, delights in all the means of it, Psal. 37. 4. Delight thy self in the Lord, and he shall give thee the desire of thine heart; Doest not thou only pray, but doest thou delight in prayer? Doest not thou onely hear the word, but delightest in hearing the Word? doest thou not onely come to the Sacraments, but delight in the receiving? Then thy desire is true desire, when the heart hath this delight. there is an inward drawing the heart to it: Canst thou finde a forcible tugging and moving of thy heart and soul to all holy duties; that thou canst not but must at them: but if thou art aukward and untoward unto holy duties, to the worship of God, thy desires are counterfeit.

4 Mark. 4 The more delayes the greater desire, delayes are as Oyl cast into the fire, which makes the flame the greater. As a stone the further it is from its center, the faster it goes to it: so if thou dost truly desire grace, the longer thy soul is before it can attain it, the more thou art affected after it. The Comick hath a pretty Proverb, When a man is a thirst, it is a miserable thing to go digge a Well to quench it, for every shovelfull will but aggravate his drought: So it is with men that desire grace: Prov. 13. 12. Hope deferred maketh the heart sick, when a man desires are held off and still deferred, that yet hee cannot have it, it doth even make the heart sick with grief: a man that wants health is sick because hee cannot get it, hee tumbleth, and tosseth, and turneth from this side to that side, cannot bee at rest, so the soul that truly desireth grace, is even sick for it, it cannot have content in this not in that, it is never where it would be, it is as a stone cast up from its own center, till it have gotten Christ and his graces; every delay, though never so small, seems tedious to a man at such a time. But on the contrary, thou hast been without grace, it may be these 20. 30. 40. 50, or 60. years; what are thy desires? are they more than before? No, but as before, so they are still; as thou didst pray before, so thou prayest still, as thou heardst before so thou hearest still, and as thou was faint in thy desires, so thou art still. and such are thy endeavours, it is an evident argument that thou didst never truly desire Grace; true desire the longer the more earnest. Therefore the Prophet beginnes his prayer, Psal. 13. with a How long Lord, shall I have this proud heart, shall I never be humble? How long Lord shall I have this unbeleeving and impenitent heart, shall I never have faith to rest upon thee, and repent of my sinnes committed against thee? How long Lord shall I have such a dead heart, such earthly affections in thy worship and service, shall my heart never bee quickned, and my affections never drawn to thee, and inclined nearer to thy service? How long Lord shall my heart bee under these corruptions, shall I never get victory over them? how long shall I serve the devil, shall I never serve my God? how long, ere I shall be a fit for for heaven, as I have been for earth? If thy desires bee true, then thou hast gotten some grace: As it is in the veins of a mans body, the more they are opened, the more they are filled with blood: and as the bellows, the more they are opened, the more they are filled with wind: so it is with the heart, the more it is opened with enlarged desires unto God, the more it is filled by God with grace; the Psalmist hath a sweet passage, Psal. 37. 4. Thou hast given him his hearts desire, there is no desire on mans part, but there is a (hath given) on Gods part, Psal. 145. 16. there is no living thing in the world that can desire, but the hand satisfieth the desire of it. Examine therefore thy self, hast thou desired Faith, and yet doest thou distrust God? hast thou desired repentance, and doest thou live in thy sins, never the humbler, never the lowlyer, for all thy desires but as thou wast yesterday, so thou art to day, as the last week, so this as the last year, so this? certainly thy desires are not true. For then thou shouldest finde God satisfying of them: as thou desirest so thou speedest: little desiring, little speeding; great desire, great speeding: A lamentable thing it is, that the desire of Grace, so great a thing, should bee so little esteemed in the world; men say they have good desires, but they are like wicked Godfathers and Godmothers at the Font: who if the Minister asketh them, Do you forsake the devil and all his works, the vanity and pomp of this world? &c. We forsake them all: Now let the Devil but tempt them to pride, malice, drunkenness, revenge, and the like, presently they yeild to it, they say they forsake them all, but they do but lye. So ask them, Do you desire grace? Yes, that is my desire, saith one, and I desire it saith another, but they desire not to cut off their sins, or if they do, it is as Saul cut off the witches, he cut them off with one hand, and required of them with the other, when he was in a straight: So men can bee content to cut off their sins, till a pinch come to draw them to them again, they can lay aside their covetousnesse, till a bait be offered them, to revenge again, to drunkennesse again, and so to gaming, whoredome, and the like: that these men do not desire grace is evident. 5 Mark.

heart

They that truly desire Grace, desire the means of Grace: men that desire a crop of corn, they will bee at the cost, charges, and pains, for plowing, harrowing, and sowing of their ground, and all other requisites, but notwithstanding their desire of Grace, they are loth to bee at the cost and pains to hear the Word of God and keep it: Paul and Barnabas going to Pisidia: Paulus Samius hearing of it, presently desireth to hear him Preach: no sooner can a faithful man come to a Town, but the godly Christians will bee at him, to preach to them: No sooner did the Eunuch espy Philip, but he presently calls him into his Chariot to expound the Scriptures to him: But thou mayest hear the word every Sabbath day, but it may be thou wilt sit at home at the Alehouse, or if thou hearest, it is but with a light ear: Christ hath commanded thee to pray for Ministers, how many prayers hast thou put up to God for faithful Ministers, such as may break to every one his portion in due season? I fear there are many thousands amongst us, to whom these things are as Riddles, men do not desire the breath of Grace. I know there are many talkers, but few doers, talkers by the ell, but doers by the inch, men must first bee doers and then talkers; some are onely great speakers of Religion and holinesse: and now you all sit in your Pews, I know not which is the best Christian among you, you all hear and look up on the Minister, but the trial is anon when the Church doors are shut, and you gone home to your houses, by your meditations, repetition, prayer, and the like duties, to engrave it into your hearts, and that your lives may bee guided by it. Many hearers are like Ale-houses, with fair inscriptions engraven at the entry or walls of the house, as love God, fear God, honour the King, pray continually, be watchfull, and the like; yet there is nothing but drunkennesse, and cursing, swearing, and all hellish ungodlinesse within: So it is with them that make fair motions, fair shews, like Ezekiels hearers; they will hear well enough, but they do not; As talking without doing is nothing, so there can bee no doing without talking; a man that hath true Grace, hee desires to bee speaking of it; wee beleeve, and therefore wee speak; if a man have Grace in his inward Soul, it will cast forth a savour into his lips, it will season his speech; the voluptuous man talks of his hounds, and Hawks; the Drunkard of his cuppes; the worldling of his plough and Cart, and Cows; the Trades-man of his wares, and the women of their household-stuffe, this or that matter, but scarce a word of God, or the work of Grace.

Men desire not the companions of Grace; like to like, and as the Proverb is birds of a feather will flye together; Where shall we have the Drunkard, but at the Ale-bench? the whore-master, but at the drabs house? the gamester, but at the gaming-house? the worldling, but with worldly men? They cannot indure the society of the Saints, for they cannot rip up an oath, but some Paul will rebuke them saying, My brethren, swear not at all; they cannot tell a lye, but some Jehu will tell them of hell, That they shall have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone; they cannot drink a pot or two, and bee a little merry, but some Paul will tell them that Drunkards shall not inherit the kingdome of heaven; they cannot play the wantons, but some one or other that takes Christs part, will check them and tell them that Hell openeth her mouth wide to receive them. I never read in any history, sacred or prophane, that ever any of the governours of Sodome did visite Lot, but when they would have done him mischief.

And again, when they desire not the works of Grace, Grace bids men live in love and amity, and forgive wrongs, now where men conceive malice, and revenge, and receive 6. 10. 20. Sacraments and swallow up wrath and hatred, and spend a thousand shillings in revenge, these desire Grace no more than the Devil: nay, Grace will teach a man to deny his lusts, and sinfull pleasures, and corrupt desires: I know many think they desire grace; O they would have it fain, but they will not have it in Gods sense.

There was a fool sent to fetch wood from the stack, hee would not go up to the top of it, but stood pulling at the bottome, and had got but a few sticks, which if hee had gone to the top, hee might have had a great many more in lesse time, but while hee was pulling at the bottome, at last the whole stack fell upon him, and killed him. Just so it is with all men, all the world hath a stack of sin, lying upon their backs, and consciences; now they must take take away the whole stack before they can bee converted: True it is, men pray, O Lord convert mee, O Lord give mee thy grace, but they cast not away all their sins, they may be a pulling at this or that, but retain others; they live in their deadnesse and lukewarmnesse in Gods worship, and in carnal performance of Gods duties; at last the whole pile of their sins falls upon them and damns them, body and soul in hell for ever.

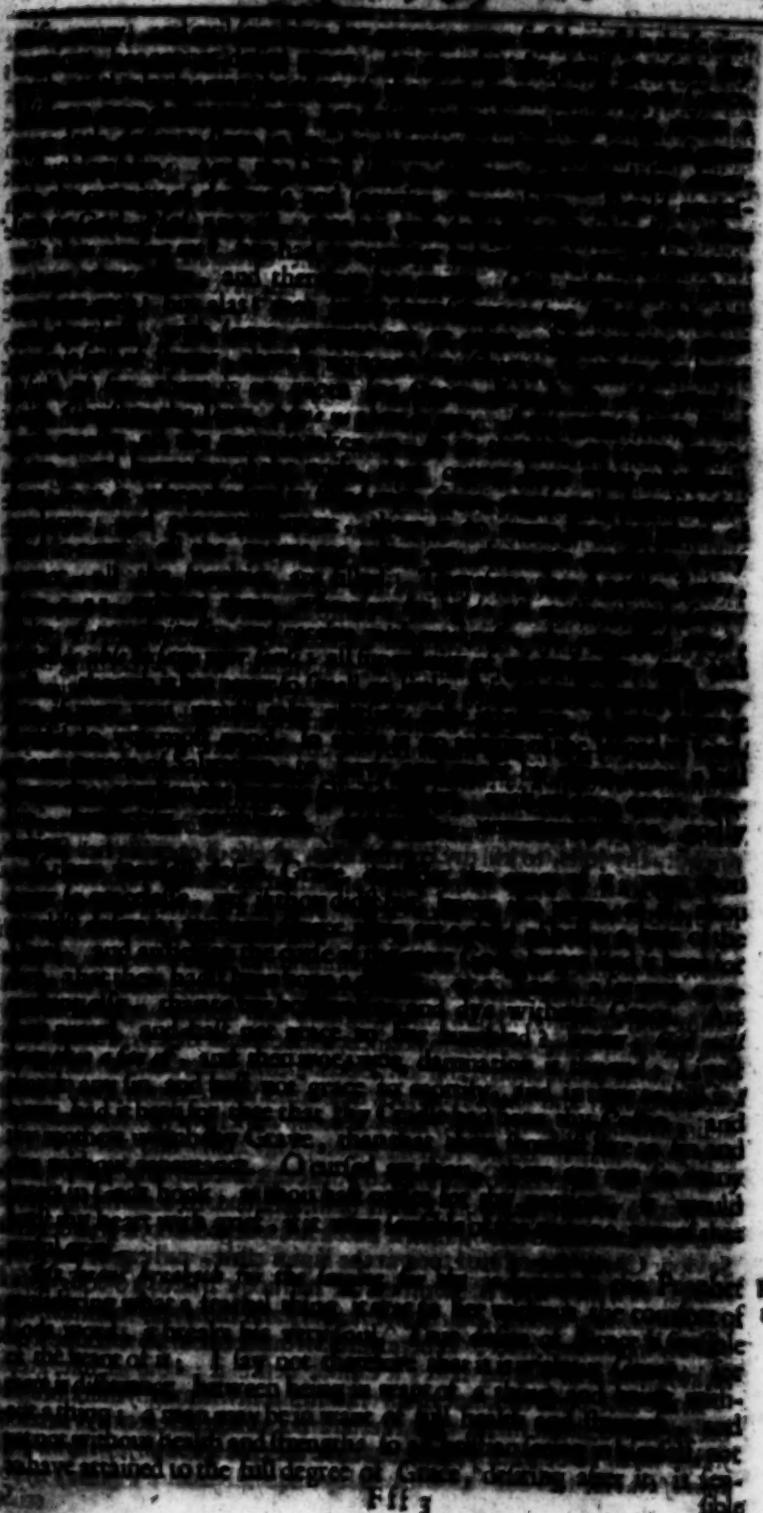
And lastly, It is an evident sign that men have not true desire of Grace, for when Grace is offered, then they will not accept of it nor take it. Can a man desire an hundred pound, and yet when it lyeth at his feet, and offered him, will not take it up? God offers thee grace, he calls by his Ministers, How long will ye love foolishnesse? forsake your wayes yee foolish, and yee shall live, and walk in the way of understanding, Proy. 8. But now men will not, they cast grace from them. I tell thee hereafter, thou mayest desire Grace when Grace will not be found; Thou shalt seek mee, but you shall not find me; saith Christ. Now I bid you repent, but you will not beleeve and receive the Gospel, but the time shall come, that you shall seek for me, and that grace which was offered you, but you shall not finde me, Ezek. 24. 13. Because I would have purged you, and thou wast not purged, thou shalt not bee purged from thy filthinesse any more, till I have caused my fury to rest upon thee: even so the Lord saith to every soul, to whom hee offers the means of Grace, Because I would have converted thee, and plucked thee from thy sinnes, but thou wouldst not, I would have purged thee from thy drunkennesse, and whoredomes, and from the foul filthinesse of your corrupt heart, but yee have neglected and contemned all those means of purging, wherby I would have purged you. Therefore now mark Gods final sentence upon thy destruction, Thou shalt never bee purged, thou shalt cry and call for mercy, yet thou shalt never have it;

Mark it now, yee that have Grace preached unto you, and will not take it, now accept it, God will not let you have it hereafter, if you would never so fain, but they that neglect Grace now, grace will neglect them hereafter.

But how shall we get our hearts truly to desire grace?



Answer, first, Learn to know it: Grace is such an admirable thing, that if men knew it, they could not but desire it. All men desire good, though it bee but a seeming good; this is the reason that drunkards desire drunkennesse, and angry men revenge, because they conceive a good in it: but if the drunkard did but know and consider, that his drunkennesse would lead him to hell; if the angry man knew that the end of his envy was damnation, they could have but a small (if any) desire to them, or comfort in them, but if you would desire grace, then labour to know it; Teach me the way of thy Statutes, and I shall keep them, saith the Prophet, Psal. 119. 33. Psal. 9. 10. They that know thy name will put their trust in thee. That man that knows and is acquainted with God, that knows what it is to be patient, humble, holy, lowly, meek, and despised for Christs sake, that man will put his trust in God, and seek after such excellent ornaments, let come what will come of it, that which all men know to bee good, all men desire, and therefore few men desire the true good, because few men know it; knowledge of salvation in the Scripture is put for salvation; a man cannot have his sinnes pardoned, his heart subdued, and all his corruptions mortified, but hee must know what it is. Luke 1. 7

God never knows any, but they know it themselves, unlesse that by vertue of their knowledge, and yet live in their sin, know not God; they have perhaps an intellectual and carnal knowledge of him, but no saving knowledge of him, 1 Pet. 2. 9. Therefore our God, if all the learning in the world were put together in one mans, yet it is not so much as the most ignorant Child of God; though never so rude and weak in apprehension of other things, yet if hee be truly acquainted with Christ, he hath more knowledge than all the Doctors in the world, have by their humane learning.

The taste of Grace is sweet and dainty, that if wee could but once taste it, our hearts would ever water after it, and wee should have little but to the contrary evil; Luke 5. 39. Thou that tastest of pride, of covetousnesse, of worldly-mindednesse, thou tastest of very rank poyson; but if once thou tastest of the pure liquor, and of the good things of faith, repentance, holinesse, purity, and the like, things of God, thou wouldst never desire the other again: The Prophet David knew not how to bring men to trust in God, but by willing them to taste how good the Lord is, Psal. 34. 8. Hath there any man had the least relish of Grace, though now they mock at it, and reproach it, and their consciences tell them as much?

Before the Israelites tasted of the Manna, they cryed out, what manner of meat is this? Here is stuffe indeed, but when once they had tasted of it, they adventured the breach of the Sabbath to get it. So men cry out at the Preaching of the word, what Preaching is here? thundring indeed, of wrath and revenge, hell and damnation, and the like: what, can we not go to heaven without all this pudder and stirre? Alas, men know not the power of the word, men unfeignedly know God and his ways: like a fool hearing of a Physitian, tastes the pill, and because the pill is bitter, hee casteth away the Physitian: So thou hearest of this and that Commandement, to mortifie thy lusts, to kill thy corruptions, or else of opening hell for all, thy lips stick in these bitter pills, and therefore thou rejectest the living sweetnesse of the word of God. But I have given over my drunkennesse, my swearing, and the like will some say, yet I feel no sweetnesse by it, they say it is a glorious thing to be a professor, to do this and this, but I see no such matter. Thou fool, thou tastest but the paring and the rinde only of Religion, and dost thou therefore conclude that there is no more sweetnesse in the heart of it? Know this whatsoever thou conceivest, yet Gods people that have tasted the sweetnesse of it account it otherwise, so David, in the 119. Psalme 103. verse: How sweet are thy words unto my taste! yea sweeter than honey to my mouth!

If you would desire Grace, then purge out the ill humours of sin out of thy soul; suppose a man hath attained to some knowledge of Grace, and taste of it, yet if sin be not purged out, it will dead his desires, Barzillai refused to sit at the Kings table, and eat of the Kings meat, because of the evil humours of his body: So, so long as the old man is not cast off, though the soul stand in never so much need of Grace, though it feeth and judgeth of it self damned without it, yet sin pres the soul out of taste, it cannot desire it; Sin is like grease to the horses feede, it takes away his stomach, though there bee never so much meat in the rack, he hath no minde to eat: Wherefore when the Apostle exhorts men to desire the sincere milk of the word, 1 Pet. 2. 2. he first exhorts them to lay aside all malice, guile, hypocrisy, Pſal. 119.115, 120.

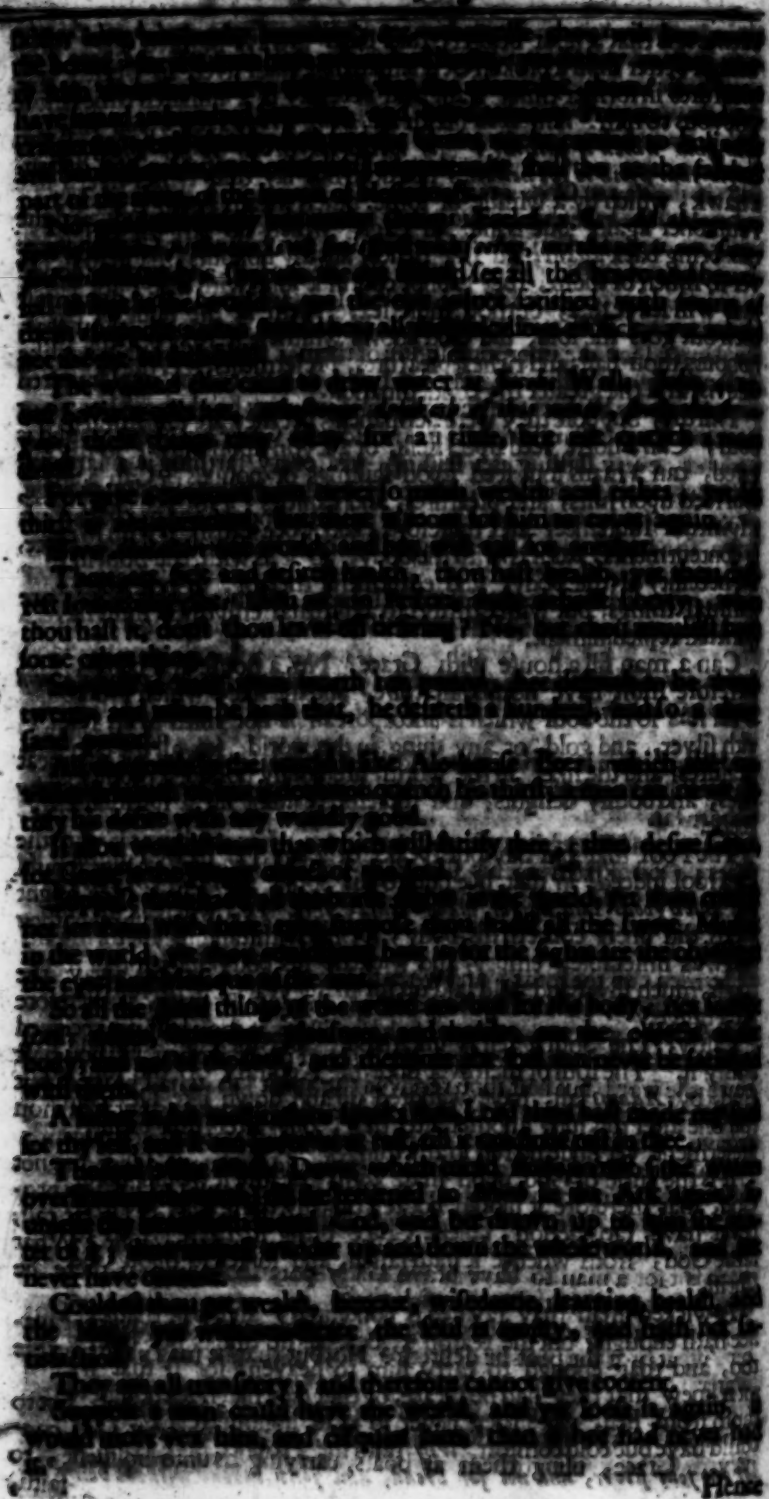
Answ. 3

Mot. 1.



Mot. 2.

Obj.

Answ.

wych Grace, using them as boats, carrying us unto holinesse, to faith,

whether it be that a poor beggar, that hath always indured want, can take it better than a broken Gentleman that hath lived in wealth and welfare in former time, want and necessity is a hundred times more grievous to him. Wilt thou (saith Salomon Prov. 23. 5.) cast thine eye upon that which is nothing? for riches taketh her to her wings, as an eagle that flyeth to the heavens, hee doth not say that riches flyeth like a hawk, which by a whistle or some other means, will come to the Falkoner again, but is like an Eagle, which no Art under heaven can bring back again; all thy riches, all thy honours, though thou never so much of them, they cannot continue long with thee; for either they will leave thee, or thou must leave them at the hour of death, then out goes the soul, and God knows whither; it may bee the more honours thou hast, and riches, pleasures, preferments, &c. the worse thy case is, and the greater thy condemnation.

Thirdly, Suppose they were permanent, yet they are unnatural to the soul; Can a horse feed upon flesh, or a Lyon upon straw? so my beloved, can a mans soul feed upon shillings or pounds? Can a mans soul feed upon lusts, and pleasures, and vanities? No, the Soul is of a spiritual substance, and therefore cannot bee satisfied with worldly contentments: as it is with the body, so it is with the Soul in this, the necessity of the body, and emptinesse thereof, is not filled with spiritual things, but with earthly, so a spiritual emptinesse must have a spiritual replenishment.

Can a man fill a house with Grace? No, a house is a body, and therefore must have houshold stuffe, and the like, which are bodies to fill it: so the Soul which is incorporeall is not filled with bodies, with silver, and gold, or any thing in the world, for all the honours, pleasures, and the like, in the world, are bodily honours, bodily pleasures, and bodily delights, and therefore cannot fill a spiritual emptinesse.

The Fool that our Saviour speaks of Luke 12. shewed himself to bee a fool indeed, in that hee said to his Soul, Soul take thy ease, thou hast much goods laid up for many years, vers. 19. whereas all those goods did onely concern his body, for notwithstanding all them, his soul was miserable, empty, and wicked; his body indeed had much goods, much silver and gold laid up for many years, but his soul had never a rag.

Lastly, The Soul it self is unsatiable, and therefore nothing can satisfy it. The soul of men ever since the Apostasy of the soul from God, by Adams fall, have wandred up and down like Devils, men run one after this lust, another after that, one after this profit, that preferment, yet finde no rest in any thing.

It is the curse of God upon mans soul, because it would not rest on God, that therefore it should not rest on any thing else, the soul shall never have satisfaction, unlesse Grace bring it back again to the same God, from whence it hath fallen, and to set it upon God and Christ.

A wicked man may say hee is contented, and hee thanks God hee hath enough; but the reason is, because he thinks hee hath grace too, and that enough to carry him to heaven: for if that wicked man knew that they had no Grace, or that they had not enough to free them from hell, were they never so rich, honourable, &c. yet they could have but cold comfort. Why saith the Prophet Esay 55. 2. do you lay out your silver, and not for bread, and your labour without being satisfied?

risfied? Why do you bestow all your thoughts and meditations, all your pains and labours to get the world, to get gain and preferment, to satisfy your lusts? Know this is not bread, it is a Scorpion; it is not fish, but a Serpent; will your feed your bodies with them for a while, and starve your souls for ever?

Suppose thou hast got all that thou canst desire of these goods, and thou commest to lye upon thy death-bed, afflicted with many pains and aches of thy body, and troubled with the stings of an accusing conscience in thy soul, some man would tell thee of thy great honours and preferments, of thy large revenews, and present thy golden coffers, and should say; Sir why do you complain of pains, and aches, and agonies? think of these things: alas; they cannot give ease to the least of thy torments, they cannot shelter thy soul from that fearfull dooms sentence, Go ye cursed into everlasting fire: it is not gold nor silver, nor all the wealth in the world, that can deliver a sinner from the wrath of God: wouldst thou have true good? God is onely good; hee is good in the highest perfection, hee is an absolute good without evil, all other good hath its mixture of sorrow, grief, and hatred, with love, delight, and joy. But God is the onely good, Prov. 11. 23. The desire of the Righteous is only good, he desires God, and Christ, and the eternal love of God in Christ to be manifested unto him, and therein hee rouls and rests himself, but the hope of the wicked is indignation, hee onely desires the base pelf of the world, but the wrath of heaven is with it, and hee shall bewail his own soul, that for such base things he should refuse the eternal good and neglect it.

Secondly, God is eminent in all goodnesse, all other good hath for the most part but one good in it, or three at the most, meat will not cloath a man, nor cloth will not feed a man, but in God there is all good, infinitely greater than mans soul is or can bee capable of. Dost thou desire riches? go to God, and then thou shalt have all that thou canst desire. Dost thou desire honour, and length of daies, even eternity? go to God.

When a man goes to one place for food, they must go to another place for cloaths; shouldest thou go to the Drapers shop for cloaths, then thou must go to another place for meat. Thou takest an hundred wayes in vain, that seekest after the things of this world if thou wouldst go to God, thou mightst have all thy desires accomplished, and all thy wants supplied at once in him.

Thirdly, God is such a good, that without him nothing is good, when thou desirest Gold, thou desirest not the earth, but the good of it, if thou couldst have the good use of it, thou wouldst not desire the earthen matter of it: the good of gold and silver, of apparrell, and the like, is from God; whatsoever good it bee, if God be not in it, it is not its self, thou hast money in thy purse, if thou hast not God in thy heart, it is not treasure, but Canker; thou that art cloathed with never such costly garments, if withall thou art not cloathed with Christs Righteousnesse, they are not garments to cover thee, but badges of thy loathsomenesse, and nakednesse before God; the gold, of thy gold; the honour, of thy honours; the pleasure and delight, of thy delights; the garment of thy garments is Gods love in them all. In joy God, and thou hast good of them all. Psal. 63. 1. O God thou art my God, my soul thirsteth after thee, my flesh longeth greatly after thee, in a barren and dry land.

land without water; a barren good, the Juyce and ſap of the heart, and the roote of all good is from God alone.

Laſtly, if God is ſuch a good, that if thou haſt him not for thy great good, who is of all infinite goodneſſe to his people, who have choſen and preferred for their only good; The ſame God will bee a God of infinite terrour and wrath to all ſuch as have rejected him, and choſen falſe Gods to themſelves. Is God become this evil? juſtly maieſt thou tremble, and fear all, all the Devils in hell, without the wrath of thy God, whom thou haſt rejected, the flames of Hell would not bee terrible, but the Lords wrath as a fire, and a river of Brimſtone doth kindle it. Our God (ſaith the Apoſtle) is a conſuming fire: the very hell of hell, the fire of fire will God bee to thy ſoul without grace. Wherefore if thou wouldſt deſire any thing to do thy ſoul good, then deſire Grace, grace, or elſe thou periſheſt; grace or elſe thou dyeſt; get grace, or elſe thou art damned in hell for ever.

FINIS.

FINIS.

THE CONTINUATION OF CHRIST'S ALARM TO Drowsie Saints.

WITH

A Treatise of Effectuall Calling.
The Killing power of the Law.
The Spirituall Watch.
The New Birth.
A Christians ingrafting into Christ.
A Treatise on the Sabath.

Which were never before published.

BY
The Reverend and Faithfull Minister of JESUS CHRIST,
Mr. WILLIAM FENNER,
Late Minister of Rochford in Essex.

LONDON,
Printed for John Rothwell at the Fountain in Cheapside, and Tho. Parkhurst at the three Crowns against the great Conduit at the lower end of Cheapside.
MDCLVII.

To the Reader.

Christian Reader,

HE that should speak to the praise of this Authour should commit the same solœcism that he did who writ De laudibus Herculis, of the praise of Hercules, whom no man ever dispraised. Should all men be silent, stones would speak for him, those at least, of whom through Gods mercy he raised up children to Abraham. He was a man of great abilities, great experiences, and great industry; which three concurring, must needs make him a workman that needs not be ashamed. He was a man well seen in the state of soules, and one who knew with wonderfull prudence and judgement to accommodate himselfe to mens various conditions, which is a chiefe part of a spirituall Physitian. The subject here presented to thee is of great worth, and great difficulty; it is about the best created object, a Saint, & de corruptione optimi, the corruption of the best, the eclipses of those Lights; the falls, or rather the tremblings of those pillars: a point wherein, if in any, there is need of great accurateness, lest a man [illegible], whiles he avoyds one extreame runs into another: Need of great wariness, lest a man either harden the hearts and strengthen the hands of evill doers, or sadden the hearts of those whom God would not have made sad. It is one of those points which, it is like, many think fitter to be smothered in perpetuall silence, because of the sad consequences will almost unavoidably follow upon it. But surely there is a great deale of truth in that saying, To search into those things which God hath thought fit to conceale is boldnesse, and and curiosity, to neglect those things which God hath revealed, is grosse ingratitude. And therefore leaving events to God, for our parts we conceive the pains of this Reverend Authour are to good purpose, and such a subject deserved to be handled by such an hand. The former part (setting aside what concerns the Ministers of Christ, &c.) speaks to dead Christians, to the sect of Nominales, such as had meerly a name to live, but were dead; and distinguisheth between the dead child and the living. This second part speaks to the distempers of living Christians, who, though they shall not die death, yet may with Epaphroditus be brought nigh unto death; yea, with Eutychus may be taken up for dead, and so judged by the standers by: You have here a Christian in his Autumne, or his winter, wanting not only the blossome of a glorious profession, but also the fruit of a pious conversation for ought that either himself or others conversing with him can discover.

Quæ Deus abscondit, ne scrutemur; quæ in apertum protulit ne negligamus; ne aut unâ ex parte nimiæ curiositatis, aut alterâ ingratitudinis damnemur.

Surely this is one of the sadest and most amazing meditations that a gracious heart can pitch upon: it is one of the secret things, the hidden things of God, which we shall never throughly understand the reason of, donec Elias venerit, untill the comming of Elias: for the prosecution of this point, the Authour takes the course which a prudent Physician doth in the cure of bodily distempers: First, he opens the natures, shews the causes, gives the signes both Diagnostick and Prognostick; and then comes to the Therapeutick part. And all of them handled so substantially, and seriously (no more so) that we doubt not, those that feare God will look upon it as a singular providence of God, that hath brought such a Treasure to light. We may well conjecture that it will be a Book wherein the people of God will be seriously conversant, the subject matter thereof being of such constant and necessary concernment.

To this is added a Treatise of Effectuall Calling, and other

other Treatiſes, wherein you vvill meet vvith divers things vvorthy of the Authour. And although all of us vvho have ſubſcribed this Epiſtle have not perused the vvhole, yet vve have good cauſe to hope that it is a book, vvhich if it be read vvith prayer and conſideration vvill adde to thy ſpirituall ſtature and comfort in Chriſt: onely remember that it is not enough to be a formall reader, vvithout perſonall and practicall application. But vve vvill not detain thee by our Preface from this profitable piece, vvhich vvith thy ſelfe vve commend to the rich bleſſing of the Almighty, through our deare adored Saviour, in whom vve are thine in the ſervice of the Goſpel, London, Octob. 21.

1656.

Simeon Aſhe.

William Taylor.

Matthew Poole.

John Jackson.

John Seabrooke.

Imprimatur

EDMUND CALAMY.

Errata in the Continuation of Christs Alarm.

Page 8. l. 44. r. Jeremy. p. 9. l. 20. r. strive with. p. 10. l. 4. r. sinning against. p. 28. l. 27. r. are bidden.

Errata in Effectuall Calling.

Page 4. l. 25. r. of Darkness. p. 7. l. 6. may r. must. p. 14. l. 21. r. restore unto me the joy. p. 33. l. 50. r. and what. p. 39. l. 17. r. a Reception on mans side. p. 44. l. 35. r. no possibility. p. 47. l. 2. r. define faith. l. 45. r. throw thy self. p. 51. l. 40. r. Hope of. p. 56. l. 24. r. a talk. p. 58. l. 53. r. torpey. p. 60. l. 36. r. have him. p. 69. l. 29. r. thine hand. p. 72. l. 47. r. what a sanctifying. p. 78. l. 2. r. that hath affiance. p. 79. l. 5. r. every man.

Killing power of the Law.

Page 5. l. 8. r. Damnable. p. 11. l. 53. after meaning dele e.

A Table for the Second part of CHRISTS Alarm to Drowſie Saints.

Point 1.

WHy a child of God may think himſelf dead when he is not p. 1
Cauſes of falſe livelineſſe.
1 Novelty of religion and grace p. 1
2 Violent commotions p. 2
3 Indiſcretion 3
4 Preſumption
5 Aliveneſs of natural diſpoſition
6 Extraordinary aſſiſtance 5
7 Freedome from temptations 6

Point 2.

How far forth a child of God may be dead ſhewed in theſe particulars 6
1 All by nature are dead
2 The liveliеſt of Saints have ſome deadneſſe 7
3 The deadeſt of Saints have ſome life.
4 The point is tickliſh and dangerous if it ſhould be not taken 8
1 It may imbolden the adverſaries of the Church
2 It may harden ſuch ſtanders by who are dead in ſin.
3 It may render ſuch people dead and careleſs who were once ſtirred.
5 The point though dangerous yet needfull 9
6 How far forth a child of God may be dead 9
1 He may loſe his zeal
2 He may loſe all his affections 10
3 He may grow to be ſenſeleſs of ſin and grace 11
4 He may grow notoriouſly vain, worldly and guilty.
5 The ſervice of God may be a burthen to him 12
6 He may be ſo dead that nothing can quicken him.
Queſt. If a Saint be thus dead where is grace all the while?
Anſ. It cannot be taken away, becauſe
1 The ſeed of God remains ſtill in him 13
2 Supernatural habits remain.
3 He ever hath an anointing.
4 He hath remaining ſome little ſtrength.
Uſe 1 To ſtir us up to labour againſt ſin 14
2 Let the beſt of Saints ſtand on their guard.
3 Comfort for thoſe who are dejected with dead hearts.
7 A child of God may fall into foul ſins 15
1 Into Idolatry
2 Apoſtacy
3 Perſecution of Saints
8 A child of God may be hardned in ſin 16
9 He may be long in ſin.
Reaſ. 1 In regard of Satan.
2 Of themſelves 17
3 Of God himſelfe who leaves them to themſelves that
1 they may be patterns to others (18
2 to puniſh their careleſneſs.
3 that ſo they may ſee they ſtand meerly by grace.
4 that they may be ſenſible towards their brethren 19
5 to humble them 20
Uſe 1 How to order our ſpeeches concerning grace, which though it be ſufficient
1 to bring a man home to God
2 to keep him from falling away finally
3 from falling away totally 21
Yet Gods people are to ſtand upon their guard, becauſe 22
1 Grace looks for this
2 Promiſes are conditional 23
3 Experience in all ages proves the falling of Saints upon Gods withdrawing 24
Qu. Is grace then indifferent in particular paſſages?
Anſ. No. For
1 Grace ſets up in the ſoul an univerſall versall principle to serve God in every particular.

2 It sets up a watch in the soul.
Use 2 To work out our salvation with fear and trembling 25
Use 3 Not to stumble at this doctrine.
Use 4 Not to raise false comfort to our selves from this doctrine. 26
Causes of deadnesse.
The cause in Generall is giving way to sin, which is 1 A soul-killing thing
2 It grieves the holy Spirit 27
3 It puts a hard task on the soul to goe through 4 It defiles the conscience 28
5 It weakens all assurance of welcome with God 29
Causes in particular.
1 The nigardlinesse of people in Gods service
2 Their unwatchfulnesse 30
3 Contenting themselves with a low kind of religion 31
4 The vanity of mens minds 32
5 Mutuall example.
6 Covetousnesse and worldinesse.
7 Spirituall sloth 33
8 Neglect of secret duties 34
9 Neglect of inward duties 35
10 Contenting themselves with what they have attained unto 36
Means of quickning.
1 Believing and looking up to Christ 37
2 Learning of the word preached 38
3 Shunning all causes of deadnesse.
4 Being earnest with God to quicken us 39
5 Diligent in all Christian duties and worship 40
6 Exercising that grace we have.
7 Considering former and present examples 41
Motives to shake off deadnesse 40
1 Consider the ingredients of this sin of deadnesse 42
As
1 Dulnesse and blockishnesse of mind to good.
2 Awknesse and averuesse of heart to the waies of Jesus Christ 43
3 Senselesnesse of conscience.
4 Coldnesse of affections.
5 Faintnesse of endeavours.
6 Drowsinesse of the whole man.
Mot. 2 Consider that while we are dead we cannot pray nor hear, &c.
Mot. 3 We can have no true sign of true grace 44
Mot. 4 We cannot grow in grace 45
Mot. 5 We shall grow deader and deader.
Mot. 6 This sin of deadnesse worse then other sins in these respects 46
1 Deadnesse is in all the whole man.
2 It is against all Gods Commandments.
3 It is deeper in the soul then other sins 47
4 It is an estate of sin.
5 It is a second death.
6 More special threatnings against deadnesse.
Considerations to quicken us.
1 Consider that we owe to God our life and affections 48
2 All the world is alive in their own courses, let Christians be alive in theirs.
3 Consider the worth of what is lost by deadnesse 49
4 If we be quickned, nothing will be hard.
5 We shall have much joy and comfort
6 All Heaven will rejoice at our quickning.
7 We shall be enabled thereby to do good to others 50
Remedies against deadnesse.
1 Be watchfull 51
Observ. It is an excellent and soveraign thing for a Christian to watch 52
Reas. 1 In regard of our selves, our selves are false to our selves.
1 We should watch our hearts.
2 Our thoughts 53
3 Our affections. 4 Our consciences.
5 Our tongues.
2 In regard of the world, lest it get into us ibid.
3 In regard of Satan 54
Because he is 1 A subtile enemy.
2 Diligent. 3 Strong. 4 Malitious.
5 Hath nothing else to doe p. 55
4 In regard of the wicked.
5 In regard of good things 55
1 Our graces that we may preserve, encrease and exercise them 56
2 All good duties: before, in, after duty ibid
3 In

3 In regard of God.
For 1 Sometimes he comes neerer us then at other times.
2 Sometimes doth extraordinarily help us.
3 Doth ſometimes afflict us 57
Uſe 1 Lament the neglect of this duty ib.
2 Be exhorted to take up this duty ib.
1 Conſider the miſery of them that do not watch ibid.
2 The good of watchfulneſs.
3 That men doe watch in outward callings.
4 We have examples of the Saints.
Remedie 2 Strengthen the things that remain 58
Mot. 1 Becauſe they are remainders.
2 Becauſe thoſe remainders are ready to die
3 Becauſe thy works are not perfect.
Doctrine. It is a Chriſtians duty to labour to be ſtrengthned, eſpecially if he hath formerly had more grace 58
2 Weakneſs. 1 Of people unconverted.
2 Of Children of God, which is double
1 In beginning. 2 In declining.
Reaſ. 1 We can have no other comfortable argument of true grace 60
2 Elſe we can doe no act of new obedience.
3 Nor overcome temptations 61
4 Nor recover after a fall 62
5 Nor obey God with eaſe.
Uſe 1 To condemn. 1 Thoſe that have no ſtrength at all.
2 Thoſe that doe not ſtrengthen the good things they have 63
Uſe 2 To direct us what to doe that we may ſtrengthen, &c.
Direction. 1 Labour to have ſtrong minds and underſtandings 64
2 Strong wills 66
3 Sound affections 67
Dir. 2 Labour to believe
3 Fly all occaſions of evill.
4 Maintain a conſtant purpoſe to pleaſe God 68
5 Frequent the Ordinances of God.
6 Put forth your ſelves to the utmoſt in good duties 69
7 Remember we alway need new ſupply of ſtrength.
8 Take heed of ſinning againſt knowledge 70
9 Make conſcience of uſeing and improving Sacraments.
1 Baptiſme. 2 Lords Supper, which is of great uſe to ſtrengthen believers. For 1 It is the nature of the Sacraments.
2 It is a ſeal of Gods covenant 71
3 It is Communion with Jeſus Chriſt
4 A Sacrament of Communion with the members of Chriſt.
Therefore 1 Let us ſo come to this Ordinance that we may be ſtrengthned 72
2 This condemns the moſt Chriſtians.
3 This ſhews reaſon why we doe not receive good by the Sacrament.
Reaſons why men do not receive good by the Sacrament 73
1 Becauſe they come not with lively ſenſe of their wants.
2 Without true repentance 74
3 Without faith.
4 They do not ſeek to God to bleſſe the Sacrament to them 75
5 They doe not behave themſelves well at it.
6 Do not afterward examine what good is got by it.
7 If they get good, they do not interpret it to be by the goodneſs of God in the Sacrament.
8 They do not ſtir up the Sacraments that they formerly partook of 76
Doct. A child of God cannot fall from Grace 77 which is 1 Not from any thing in himſelf.
1 Becauſe the beſt ſhould look on himſelf as one that may fall into any ſin in himſelf 78
2 Becauſe they are bidden to feare themſelves 78
3 To take heed that they do not fall away totally.
4 Becauſe they are commanded to grow in grace 79
5 Becauſe examples of Apoſtates are propounded for the Saints to take warning by.
6 Becauſe people of God are fain to pray God to keep them.
7 Becauſe no grace received can hold out without continuall influences from heaven. 80
But 2 from the meer favour and goodneſs of God 81
Qu. What is it that doth and ſhall ever remain in a believer 82

Anſ. An anointing from the holy one: for 1 A child of God if he ſinne cannot carry it away as others 83
2 cannot ſtand it out as others do.
2. Luſting againſt every known ſin 84
For 1 He never ſins but againſt his ſtanding purpoſe.
2 Againſt the ſtudy and compoſure of his heart.
3 Something or other breaks the fulneſs of the voluntarineſs of it.
1 Ignorance. 2 Inconſideration.
3 Paſſion. 4 Violent temptation.
4 Cannot make a trade of ſin 85
5 Hath an apneſs to riſe again.
3 A tender diſpoſition to look after God 86
For 1 he cannot lie down in ſpirituall diſtempers.
2 He hath a feeling of his hardneſs.
3 He cannot be ſo ſecure as to forget God.
4 A love to the Image, mercy, holineſs, goodneſs and Ordinances of God.
5 A diſpoſition to check and chide his ſoul for ſin 87
6 The habit of grace.
Uſe 1. For confutation of thoſe that hold falling from grace 88
2 For comfort to people of God againſt fears, temptations, perſecutions.
3 Labour to make ſure that we be godly.
Doct. A particular Church may periſh 89
Four notes of a true Church that may be loſt.
1 Sincere preaching of the Goſpel 90
2 True and ſincere uſe of the Sacraments 92
3 Sincere profeſſion of the Word of God 93
4 True diſcipline.
Seven marks of a falſe Church 94
1 Antiquity, 2 Univerſality, 3 Succeſſion of Paſtors, 4 Unity, 5 Miracles, 6 Pomp, 7 Outward proſperity 95
Reaſ 1. becauſe the Church is Catholick, not tied to any place 96
2 God needs no place or perſon.
3 No particular Church hath a promiſe of continuance.
Uſe 1. To confound the Church of Rome.
2 To warn all particular Churches 97
Doct. The ſecond Covenant requires works Works neceſſary, 98
1 By neceſſity of preſence,
2 By neceſſity of inſeparable effects,
3 By neceſſity of ſigns 99
4 By neceſſity of commandement.
5 By neceſſity of end.
1 to glorifie God in the world,
2 to do good unto others 100
3 to purifie our ſelves,
4 to qualifie us for heaven,
5 to proportion our reward.
6 By neceſſity of thankefulneſs 101
Uſe 1. See how the Papiſts wrong us, by accuſing us to be againſt good works.
2 Let Miniſters call on people to have working faith.
3 This diſcovers them to be graceleſs who do not follow Chriſt in doing good.
4 Be exhorted to good works.
Mot. 1. Good works are ſigns of our election and ſtate.
1 Of election, 2 Effectuall calling, 3 Juſtification, 4 Adoption, 5 our love to God 102
2 The reaſon why we pray no more is becauſe we are not abounding in good works.
3 They would cheer us in an euill day.
4 The want of them the cauſe of temporal judgments 103
Doct. The covenant of grace requires perfect works 104
Not a perfection of degrees, but of parts.
Difference between Legall and Evangelicall perfection 105
1 The law requires performances, as well as the will and deſire.
2 The perfection of the Law ſtands in quantities as well as qualities.
3 Upon full meaſure, whether a man have power or no.
4 Admits no failings 106
5 Makes nothing of repentance.
Doct. We ſhould labour to be perfect. 107
Reaſ 1. From the nature of God
2 Becauſe God hath commanded us to be ſincere.
3 Becauſe God knows our hearts.
4 God will let down the Covenant lower.
5 All Gods Saints have been perfect.
Uſe 1. To reprove the want of uprightneſs 108

2 To humble the people of God. 109
3 To exhort us to be upright.
Mot. 1. God delights only in an upright heart.
2 This is the total sum of all that God requires p. 110
3 The least grace with uprightnesse is better then all the goodly performances in the world.
4 God will bear with grievous faults where there is uprightnesse.
5 Uprightnesse will help us to profit by all ordinances 111
6 Is most excellent ground of comfort.
7 Will make us and our posterity blessed 112
Use 4 For examination.
Signs of uprightnesse.
1 An upright man is universal in regard of all Gods commands.
2 In regard of all graces.
3 Of all places and company 113
4 Of all times.
5 Of all his parts, understanding, will, memory, &c. 114
6 Of all conditions 115
7 Of all relations. 116
8 Of all the circumstances of his actions 117
Doct. 2 As we must be perfect, so we must be perfect before God 118
1 Not so as God should approve our works in strict justice.
2 On account of his mercy in Jesus Christ.
Reas. 1 Because God hath so commanded.
2 Otherwise a man hath no faith 119
3 This is the end of Christs redemption.
4 This is the end of election.
5 Because God will search us out 120
6 God only doth esteem of the wrath of holinesse, &c.
Use 1 To condemn the ceremonious devotion of many.
2 For humiliation 121
3 For exhortation to be upright.
Doct. God will search whether we be perfect 122
Difference between Gods searching and mens.
1 Mans searching may be without prayer.
2 Hath ignorance foregoing.
3 Is properly so called.
4 Is necessary for knowledge.
5 Is for himself 123
God searcheth five wayes.
1 By his own spirit.
2 By the spirit of man.
3 By conscience.
4 By his word 124
5 By his providence. Whereby God discovers mens secret works. 1 By leaving his people [illegible] men. 125
2 By letting his people injure wicked men.
3 By guiding his Ministers to home preaching.
4 By their own lusts and corruption 126
5 By persecution.
Reas. 2 It is Gods prerogative to search.
2 God will have hypocrites discovered 127
3 It is for Gods glory to search men out.
4 It is for Gods truth.
5 For his justice.
Use 1 To reprove those that consider not that God will search 128
2 Take heed of hiding our sin from others and our selves 129
Use 3 For comfort to people.
1 Against others that judge them.
2 Against their judging themselves 130
4 Teaching us to be able to stand when God searcheth.
1 When offences come.
2 When afflictions and persecutions comes.
3 In time of difficult commandments
4 At judgement. 131
5 Let us search our selves.
Mot. 1. Otherwise we can never repent of what is evill in our hearts & our works.
2 It is a mercy of the Lord to search himself.
3 If we do not, it will be the worse for us.

Doct. It is an excellent thing for a man to be able to say, that God hath effectually called him. p. 1.

1 Because then a man may reflect on all his life, and see Gods love to him in all. p. 3.

2 This interests a man in all the promises.

3 Sweetens all the promises.

4 Helps a man to pray.

5 Encourageth to all good undertakings. p. 4.

6 It is a foundation for a godly life.

7 It is an help to rise after a fall.

Reas. 1. Because it is an argument of election.

2 Sure pledge of all Gods acts of mercy. p. 5.

Use 1. Then a man may know his effectual calling.

Proved. 1 Because it is the office of the Spirit to make known the things of God. p. 6.

2 Because we are commanded to make our calling sure. p. 7.

3 Because we are required to be thankful for it.

4 Because the making known our calling is one of the ends of the Word of God. p. 8.

5 Because the soul hath a power of reflecting and knowing its own state.

Obj. Why then are those who are called so doubting?

Ans. 1 Because this knowledge is gradual Experimental. p. 9.

Spiritual. p. 10.

2 Because it may be hindred for a time

1 By a lothsomness of heart to leave some lust. p. 11.

2 By ignorance.

1 Of the voice of the spirit. p. 12.

2 Of the work of grace.

3 Of his Christian liberty. 4 Of the tenderness of Christ. p. 13.

3 By melancholy.

4 By the unskilfulness of a Minister.

The evil of wanting this knowledge. p. 14.

1 Conscience must needs charge sin on you.

2 You can have no joy in Christ or his promises. 15.

3 You cannot tell what to make of Gods mercies.

4 Thou knowest not what to do in time of affliction.

5 Thou canst not pray with courage

6 Thou canst not go on sweetly in the ways of God.

7 It is seen no difference between thy self and a very unbelieving wretch. 17.

8 Thou art of all men most miserable.

9 If thou be totally ignorant, it is a sign thou art not yet effectually called.

Qu. What difference between the uncertainty of believers and unbelievers?

Ans. 1 A believer cannot say it, yet cannot deny it.

2 Believers question their calling in their haste.

3 They will let others question their grace.

4 They most love them that urge them to seek this knowledge.

5 Their uncertainty breaks their hearts.

6 Though at present uncertain, yet believe they shall be certain.

7. Their doubts is of a contrary nature to their doubting.

8. Christ is to them the power of God.

Doct. Effectual calling is the first bearing of men unto Christ.

Reas. 1 Before effectual calling he is without Christ.

2 Before this all was within God.

3 All other works follow this calling.

4 From the names given to effectual calling.

5 Because it is the first external election.

Use 1 Then very dangerous to rest in this.

Reas. 1 Because this is the foundation.

2 Because a believer must often have recourse to it.

3 Because it is the beginning of Gods works on the soul.

Use 2. See the reason why Scripture urgeth the making this sure. p. 27.

1 Because it is a work but once done.

2 Because all the promises meet here.

3 Because this is the first of all obedience.

4 This is the only way to go forward p. 29

5 Because this is the main ground to keep from falling away.

Math.

March 12. 28.
Doct. There is a preparatory work unto effectual calling p. 30
Proof. 1 From Texts full of terrour p. 31
2 From the spirits office.
3 Because the Gospel follows the Law
4 From Christs design in coming to save that which is lost.
5 From Gods working with believers after grosse sins p. 32
6 From Scripture examples.
Reas. 1 To declare Gods justice p. 33
2 To sweeten mercy p. 34
3 That God may bring men home to Christ p. 35
4 To wean men from sin.
5 To knock men off from everything else. p. 36
Use 1 To reprove dauntless
Be content to bear the curses of the Law preached p. 37
2 To comfort those that have had this work p. 38
Thes. 2. 14.
Doct. The Gospel, or generall tender of grace is, that by which God calls men home p. 40
1 Because this is the surest ground of faith p. 41
2 Because this is the best answer to Satan p. 42
3 Because this is true before all acts in man.
This is the only thing which every man is bound to believe p. 43
Obj. Christ is given only to the elect.
Ans. 1 The Gospel must be preached without restraint to election.
2 Otherwise the elect would have no ground for faith.
3 Because in reference to men, calling is before election. p. 44
4 Because there is a difference between men and Divels.
Use 1 To comfort and encourage believers p. 46
2 To confute those that define faith by assurance p. 47
3 To encourage all that are without p. 49
4 To terrifie the obstinate.
Col. 1. 23.
Doct. God in the generall tender of mercy works some hopes in the soul. p. 51
1. What is this hope?
2 And it arises from the faith of possibility p. 52
2 How does this hope agree with that which follows justifying faith?
Ans. Both are of God. 2 Both are wrought by the Gospel. 3 Both set the soul on work. 4 Both are the anchor of the soul. 5 Neither of them shall make a man ashamed p. 54 3 How differs this hope from that which follows justification?
Ans. This arises out of the seeds of grace, the other out of grace it self.
2 They come from several apprehensions p. 54
Reas. 1 To prevent despair 55
2 That a man may not be disabled looking after heaven.
3 Because God will not do all at once.
4 That he may be sought to for every mercy p. 56
Use 1 To shew the graciousness of God.
2 To comfort believers.
3 To inform how God works this hope p. 57
1 By rooting out all vain hopes.
2 By setting a look upon the Gospel.
3 By removing all impediments.
Use 4. Labour not to diminish any hope p. 58
Dir. 1 Look to the power of God. 2 To the fulness, and certainty, and universality of the promises.
3 Send often unto God by prayer.
John 6. 45.
Doct. When God calls the soul, he makes it hear a particular voice. p. 60
Reas. 1 Else no man could come to Christ p. 61
2 That we may have a ground for our faith.
Qu. Why is this all attributed to the Father?
Ans. 1 Not as though Christ did not speak p. 62.
2 Not as though we should set up a conceited distinction of works in the Trinity p. 63
Qu. What is this voice of the Father.
Ans. Neg. Not distinct from the word preached.
Aff. 1 It consists in the opening a mans senses.
2 In taking away a mans lameness p. 64
Called a voice. 1 Because joyned to the Word. 2 Because

2 Because it hath a similitude of a voice.

Qu. How may we know whether the soul hath heard Christs voice p. 63

Ans. 1 There is a power goes along with the word.

2 This voice makes a more inward thing then any creature can speak.

3 It is the irrefragable propounding of the promise 66

The second act of faith which is the believing that in Jesus Christ he shall have eternal life 67

To distinguish,

1 A natural man may believe the power of God 67

2 An unrooted confidence of the will ibid.

3 Presumptious confidence p.68 ibid.

3 Confidence of the godly

1 In special perswasion of Gods love ibid.

2 A constant expectation ibid.

Confidence in Christ for life and salvation is justifying faith p.68

Arg. 1 From the several expressions of faith in Scriptures.

1 Trusting. 2 Relying. 3 Staying on God. 4 Resting your self on God. 5 Adhering. 6 Believing on God p.70

Arg. 2 From the name of Christ.

Arg. 3 Because faith is a coming to Christ p. 71

Arg. 4 Because the Doctrine of justifying faith is no proposition but Christ himself p.72

Arg. 5 Because true faith is faith of union p.73

Use 1 No absurdity to say faith is in the heart as will is in the mind c 75

Use 2 A believer may not be sure in regard of sense.

True faith may be without sense and feeling.

Arg. 1 The event is not the object of justifying faith

Arg. 2 The event is conditional till a

Arg. 3, & 4.

Arg. 5. Not the work but the promise of faith apprehends the event. p.80

Doct. It is faith to set to make a man obey the call of God

Reas. 1 Because faith seeth Gods mercy and mercy to whom irresistible attracts Reas. 2 Because faith looks on Christ merely as a Saviour

Reas. 3 Because faith cleaveth to the promises

Reas. 4 Because faith looks for a for heaven as well as a title to Reas. 5 Is omnipotent, all that a can do

Qu. How doth faith make a man

Ans. 1 By setting to seal a man by exceptions.

2 By carrying a man to God

3 By making a man improve abilities

4 By making a man rely on

Qu. How doth faith fetch power Christ?

Ans. 1 As an instrument.

2 As a moral means.

Use 1 See what little faith is world

Use 2 Of examination of our obedience

1 It is willing

2 Works resignation to God.

3 It puts forth all a mans strength God

Use 1. To condemn ſecurity 42
2 to reprove the neglect of it in the godly
3 to direct how to walk.
Dir. 1. Count watchfulneſs your life 43
2 Watch univerſally.
3 Proportion it to the duty in hand.
4 Take heed of hindrances,
1 Vain company, 2 ſpiritual drunkenneſs.
5 Set God before your eyes 44
Use 4. To exhort to watchfulneſs.
Mot. 1. Otherwiſe it will be ill with us at laſt.
2 Our ſoules are ſickly.
3 We are already awakned 45
4 The badneſſe of the times, places, & families we live in.

The New birth. John 3. 6.

Doct. The Spirit of God regenerates all the Saints 47
Qu. 1. What is regeneration? 48
Anſ. 1 A renewing of a man.
2 A renewing of the whole man 49
3 Is done by degrees.
4 Is according to Gods Image 50
5 Is Gods Image in Chriſt Jeſus.
Qu. 2. Why called Regeneration? 51
Anſ. 1 To ſhew the great corruption of nature.
2 Becauſe great reſemblance with generation.
1 In both there is a father.
2 In both there is a mother 52
3 A ſhaping in the Womb before life.
4 Pain in bringing forth.
5 A new being attained.
6 New kindred gotten.
Qu. 3 Wherein doth it conſiſt? 53
Anſ. 1 There is a paſſive receiving of Chriſt.
2 An active power to become Sons of God.
Qu. 4 Why doth the Spirit work regeneration? 54
Anſ. 1 It is the good pleaſure of God.
2 No other agent can doe it.
3 Man of himſelf is totally againſt it 55
Qu. 5 How doth the Spirit work regeneration?
Anſ. 1 By the Word of life 56
2 By a ſecret ſupernatual power.
Use 1 To confute Papiſts, Pelagians, &c.
2 To inform of our need of the ſpirit 57
3 To exhort. 1 Not to grieve the ſpirit.
2 To doe any thing for God.
3 To pray for the ſpirit.
Use. 4 For examination whether we be regenerated 58
Signe 1 When doing good is natural.
2 When heart is a good ſoyl for grace 59
3 When a man cannot live in ſin,
4 When it is pleaſant to do Gods will 60
5 When grace gets the upper hand.
6 When a man loves the children of God
7 When a man loves to profit others ſpiritually.

Chriſtians ingrafting into Chriſt.

Qu. 1 What is Chriſts body into which men are ingrafted 62
Anſ. 1 It is the Church of God.
2 It is gathered out of all Nations.
3 Predeſtinated unto life 63
4 Begotten again by the Word.
5 Knit and combin'd to Chriſt.
Q 2 What is it to be put into this body 64
Anſ. 1 It is part of the ingrafting into Chriſt.
2 It is done by faith.
3 It makes us have a common life with all the reſt of Chriſts members 65
4 It makes a man be of one conſent with all the people of God everywhere
5 Is for mutual help, care and ſympathy 66
Qu. 3. Why doth the ſpirit of God doe this? 67
Anſ. 1 None elſe is able to doe it.
2 None elſe fit.
Qu. 4 How doth the ſpirit doe this
Anſ. 1 By being one and the ſame ſpirit in all the members of Chriſt.
2 By tying a knot between theſe members.
Use 1 Informs that the want of the ſpirit is the reaſon of the difference of men in the World 68
2 Let none put aſunder whom the ſpirit joyns.
3 Try our acquaintance hereby.
4 Stir up Sympathy 69
Qu. 5 How ſhall we ſympathize with Chriſts members.
Anſ. 1 By informing our ſelves concerning one another.
2 By viſiting fellow-members.
3 By laying to heart their afflictions.

Of

Of the Sabbath, Exod. 20. 19.

Prop. 1. There muſt be ſome ſet time for the worſhip and immediate ſervice of God. 70
Reaſ. 1 All actions cannot be done at once.
2 Becauſe of our dulneſs.
Prop. 2. There muſt be ſome ſet time every day.
Reaſ. 1. Elſe we live like beaſts 71.
2 Every morning God renewеth mercies
3 God is the beginning and ending of all things.
Prop. 3. Every day is in ſome ſort a Sabbath.
Reaſ. 1. Gods covenant with us requires it
2 Not to do ſo is a brand of hypocriſie
3 Bleſſedneſſe conſiſts in it 72
4 This is the ſum of the law of righteouſneſſe.
Prop. 4. There muſt be a particular ſpecial day,
Reaſ. 1. That in this life we may have an Emblem of Heaven.
2 Gods honour requires it. 73
3 God ſometimes calls for extraordinary dayes,
1 Of rejoycing.
2 Of faſting. 1 When judgements are feared 74
2 Mercies wanting. 3 Souls tempted.
4 Some notable work undertaken.
4 It is moſt equitable 75
1 That God ſhould have one day,
2 That our ſouls ſhould have one day.
Prop. 5. One day in ſeven is to be ſet a part for Gods worſhip.
Reaſ. 1. Gods poſitive command 76
2 It is Gods day.
3 That ſervants, cattel, &c. may have reſt.
4 God hath ſanctified it.
5 Becauſe we are apt to be worldly, &c.
Prop. 6. That day of ſeven is to be kept holy on which God reſted 76
Prop. 7. All that is in the fourth Commandement is not eſſential to it.
Prop. 8. The fourth commandement continually to abide in force. 78
Reaſ. 1. Becauſe the Sabbath was inſtituted before there was room for ceremonies.
2 The Sabbath was kept before the Law given.
3 It was written by the finger of God 79
4 God often urgeth this Commandment as well as any other.
5 Elſe we have not ten Commandements.
6 Chriſt plainly tells us ſo.
7 The Heathens have ever kept a Sabbath day b
Prop. 9. The firſt day of the week is now the Lords day b Reaſ. 1. From Pſal. 118. 24.
2 From Rev. 1. 10.
3 Chriſt calls himſelf Lord of the Sabbath b
4 Chriſt commanded the Apoſtles keep this day.
5 Chriſts wiſdom would not leave ſo things uncertain.
6 Who ſhould inſtitute this day, but he that is the head?
7 All Chriſtians have kept this ſince the Apoſtle time.
8 Gods judgements on the profaners of this day do evince it b
Uſe 1. Then we are to keep an whole b
Reaſ. 1. We have ſix whole dayes our ſelves.
2 God reſted an whole day.
3 From Levit. 23. 32.
4 God never inſtituted half holy dayes. b
5 It is the judgement of Divines in all ages.
Uſe. 2. Then ſports are unlawful on this day.
Reaſ. 1. Becauſe working is otherwiſe commanded, ſporting only permitted.
2 Working doth leſs diſtract the mind,

THE

The Second Part of CRISTS Alarm to DROUSIE SAINTS.

REVEL. 3. 1.

Thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead.

HAve spoken of the life of the affections, and now I should come to the next thing, namely, to shew how far a child of God may be said to be dead; but before I handle this, there is another point that would be spoken to in a word or two; and that is this, Why a child of God may think himself to be dead when he is not, and think he is grown deader then ever he was, and there is no such matter; and others may think he is grown cold and negligent, and yet the truth is, he is more affected, and more alive towards God then formerly; this is a very needful point, and there be several causes of false liveliness which a child of God may have, and when they go on, he may seem to be deader then he was, whereas indeed he is not so. The first is novelty of Religion and grace, when grace is yet new, and the word comes fresh to a man, and the promises of eternal life look freshly into a mans heart, they will affect him much, and not only raise his sanctified affections, but his unsanctified too; for the unsanctified affections will be at a novelty; a man that hath no grace at all, nor any life, will be moved at a new thing; as when the Apostle preached new doctrine to the Athenians, Acts 17. 32. we will hear thee again of this matter, say they; they cared not how often they heard this, because it was news to them; so when Christ preached up and down, O what new doctrine is this! say they, never man spake as this man, Joh. 7. 46. it was a new kind of preaching, new life, this stirred them mightily; so it may be with a true Christian, when the word of God comes first to him, and grace comes first to him, the novelty of grace may affect him; when God first opens his eyes, how strangely will he be moved in prayer? how strangely will he carry himself at a Sermon? his very bowels yearn at a Sermon, and he will cry out, Oh the infinite mercy of God to my soul! what a beast was I before? I was an hell-hound, a child of the Divel; and now the Lord hath made me a child of God; I went on in the high way to perdition, and now God hath brought me into the right way; this is admirable; but do you think these are all good affections? there is a great deal of corruption in these; as new beer, when it is first tunned, it hath a great deal of working then, but when it is staler, it doth not work so much, yet then is the Beer more powerfull, and hath more life; as it is with a mans first entrance into an hot bath, it doth so stir him, as if it did scald him, but after he hath been in a while, he is sensible of little or no heat; the heat is as much as it was at the first, and works upon him as much, but he feels it not so much; so a good Christian doth not seem to be so much affected afterwards as formerly; are his true affections therefore down? no, but his unsanctified ones are down; may be a man hath not lost a jot of his true, and sound, and sanctified affections, but only his unsanctified ones; for when grace comes first into the soul of a new convert, there is a greater Army raised up for God then

1. Point why a child of God may think he is dead, or deader then ever, when there is no such matter.

Seven cases of false liveliness.

1. Novelty of Religion and grace.

then is likely to continue; there are a company of mercenary Souldiers stepping in and seem to go out and to fight for God, as well as the rest; you shall have more fears in these men, then are true; and more desires then grace then are true; carnal desires, and joys, and delights, these will be all up at the first, and will go out, though they never go to the journeys end; it is with a new convert, at his setting out towards heaven, as it was with the children of Israel, when they came out of Egypt, there went a mixt multitude went up with them, Exod. 12. 38. (viz.) the plagues of God had wrought upon many of the Egyptians, and they would go up with them, but they would not go into the land of Canaan, but returned back again; the true Israelites, that were affected truly, they only went into the Land of Canaan, but others company went up with them; so when a man sets forth towards heaven, there is a mixed company in that mans bosome, goeth along with him, mixed joy, and fear, and hope, and even corrupt nature is raised up at first; for you must think the fears of God lying upon the soul, and the newness of Religion, (he was in hell before, now he is in heaven) that will raise up even corrupt nature, for a time a man will seem to be so affected and so lively; now after a while these mercenary Souldiers, this mixed company go back again, and leave nothing but the bare sanctified affections; and now the man seems to be deader then he was; as if he had lost all; and may be he complains he is not the man he was, he was thus, and thus moved before, and enlarged to good duties, now he is down the wind; I say this doth not follow, it is even as if a man that hath bought a bushel of peaſe at the Market, when they are shell'd, and the pods are off, and none but the bare peaſe left, should complain he hath less then he had at first; so it is here, there is nothing gone but the meer trash and husks; when a man is first converted, there is a great deal of trash with a great deal of corrupt nature that will leave a man in the lurch afterward, yet it follows not, but the man hath the same sanctified affections he had formerly.

2. Violent Commotions.

Secondly, Violent commotions may stir a man, and make him seem to be more affected then he is; there are many seem to be full of life, when if they were searched to the bottome, there is nothing but violent commotions, that will come to nothing; a child of God at first setting out, may be marvellously quickned & stirred, and seem to be mighty zealous and fervent, when in truth the greatest part of this, is nothing but violent commotions; a little grace will seem a great deal when there are these violent stirrings; this man will make a greater shew, then the same godly man afterward, when he hath more grace a great deal; as James and John seemed to be very zealous, Luke 9. 54. as zealous as Elias; you will say were they not affected? when they saw the Samaritans would not receive Christ, they thought they, they deserve to be burnt down to the ground; Wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven to consume them, as Elias did they could have been content to have fired whole Towns that would not receive Christ; you will say this is admirable; but these were nothing but violent commotions; now when Christ had stilled these violent commotions, will you say they were grown cold and dead, and not so lively as formerly? you know the torrent, though it run not so violently as in a great flood, yet still it runs; so it is here, may be a godly Minister at his first entrance puts forth himself more, and preaches as if he would fly in the face of the ungodly; afterwards he preacheth more gently and evenly; shall we say he is grown more dull and dead, and not so well affected as before? no, he may be more affected; so for a private Christian, it may be so soon as ever God turned his heart and inclined him towards his heavenly Kingdom, and made him look out for the good of his soul we we shall have him pray with such violence and such extended affairs, he will breath forth himself in the confession of sin, as if he would trample upon himself, and in his petitioning for grace, as if he would wrastle with God, and in his acknowledging of Gods goodness, as if he were affected more then a thousand Christians besides: but afterwards when he comes to have his spirit better enlightned, to see what a deal of froth was in these things, and how dead he is in regard of true saving life, now he begins to be ashamed of himself, he doth not say them over, but he should have them in more mode. Now shall we say this man is more dead and lesse affected then he was before? no, but this man hath lesse violent commotions.

Thirdly, Indiscretion will make a man seem to be more affected then he 3. Indiscretion.
is: as a good man than that is rash and indiscreet, he thinks of a thing, he will be so zealous and earnest, nay, he will be so cholerick, that if men do not yeild presently, he is in a combustion: afterwards, when God gives him more knowledge of his wales, and more discretion to reprove, he will not be so cholerick, and in such a passion: hath this man lost affections now? no, this doth not follow, he may keep his affections still, and it may be hates sin a thousand times more then he did before, but he goes another way to work, and deals more composedly, and gravely, and prudently, for the good of the mans soul, as when Paul saw the Philippians so loving in the midst of all his afflictions, and suffering for the Gods sake, sending him so many hundred miles a great present, as called for his necessity, what doth he do? doth he bid them abound in love? encrease in it more and more saith he, but let it be with knowledge and judgement. Phil. 1. 9. a thing that is not a loving nature, when he hath parted off with charity, and all vain and proud charity, whereby he doth things out of pride, ostentation, and vanity, as he will do when he comes to more understanding; if he do not discern and compare himself with the mind of God, he may seem to abate in his love, but he is not less loving, but more judicious. So Samuel at first, he was so zealous against Saul, when he had sinned against Gods commandment, that he would not stay with him by any means, no, saith he, you have rejected the word of the Lord, when he confessed his sins, and entreated him to stay, and was very earnest, by no means: what, stay with a wretch that hath rejected the word of the Lord? 1 Sam. 15. 26. yet afterwards he did stay, will you say now Samuel was grown cold, and less affected against sin? no, but he was more judicious, he began to consider, certainly if I do not stay, it will be a disparagement to the Lords anointed, I may disparage the Lords ordinance, and disparage the Kings Authority, and cause the people to scorn him: he began to see that Saul spake with sense, honour me before the people; and he did stay then: so he was not less affected, but more judicious.

Fourthly, Presumption may make a man seem to be more affected and 4. Presumption.
concerned a great deal then indeed he is: as Peter seemed to be so mightily converted and enlarged towards Christ, and so full of zeal for him, though all men forsake thee, yet will not I: he thought he was so affected, that he could compare with all the Apostles and Disciples of Jesus Christ, and go beyond them all: but afterwards when Christ asked him, Peter, lovest thou me? for his infirmity, Joh. 21. 15. his answer was nakedly, Lord thou knowest that I love thee: he would make no more comparisons, though Christ put him upon it there, but he would not be induced to compare any more. Now was he less affected towards Christ? no, but he was less presumptuous.

Fifthly, Activeness of natural disposition may make a man seem to be 5. Activeness of natural disposition.
more affected then indeed he is, for a man the more active his nature is, and the more spirit he hath, the more stirring he hath: a man that hath such a disposition, will go further then another of a slower spirit, there is a great great deal more grace required to make an heavy dull natured man to speak a word for God, then to make a cholerick man strike a blow for God: naturall temper, some men are more active naturally; may be one man is full of activity and stirring, another man is of a dull disposition; will you say this man is dearer then he? no, this man may have more life of grace then he; it is all one as if one man should swim with the stream, and another against the stream: he that swims with the stream, will more easily swim a mile, then he that swims against the stream, will swim half a mile; will you say that this man cannot swim so well as the other? no, he may be a better swimmer of the two; for this is the thing, we are not to judge of the life of our grace, by what we do, but by what labour we take in doing, as the Apostle saith, remembring without ceasing, your work of faith, and labour of love, 1 Thes. 1. 3. may be another man is of a more loving nature then this man, but the man that is more unkinde naturally, and harsh-natured, if he labours a thousand times more abundantly then the other; who hath most grace of love now? the other hath most natural love, but this man hath most grace of love, as Paul proves he had the life of grace in him, because he laboured more abundantly then they all; it is not what thou doest, but what thou labourest to do, he that swims down the stream, doth not labour, if he should do nothing but stir his hands and feet without any labour, the stream will carry him, so when a man hath nature to help him, he need not labour much, but when a man must fetch all out of the hard flint, how is he fain to labour then? thou tryest by the life of thy affections, not by what thou prayest, but by what thou labourest in prayer, not by what thou remembrest at a Sermon, but though thou hast a blockish memory, how dost thou labour to remember? so it is not the not doing of sin, but the labouring against sin, hereby thou mayst know whether thy zeal and affection be abated in thee: So again, a man feels, may be he was more active heretofore, had a more nimble wit and temper of body, now he is grown more sad and melancholy, his wit is distempered and grown more weak, his memory fails, and his understanding decayes, that quick disposition of his body is taken down, and he cannot do as he did before, is the man therefore not so quickned as he was before? is he grown more dead? may be the man complains, certainly he hath cause to suspect himself, and he doth not think he is right, for when he could remember a Sermon, he fixed in meditation, be attentive at the word, be fervent in prayer, and put forth himself in this fashion as he cannot, he was so lively before, now he hath not the same affection, and therefore begins to call all into question, certainly all is not right: I answer, this doth not follow, it is true, in many a man it is the deadness of his heart, and the decayedness of his spiritual estate that causeth this, but it doth not follow that it is so with thee, but the cause is this, may be thou hast worn out thy tools, therefore no marvel thou canst not work so well as formerly; take a skilful Musitian, whose instrument is cracks and rusty, he cannot make so good musick upon this instrument, as he could when it was sound, doth it follow, he hath lost his skill? no, give this man a sound instrument, as he had before, and he will play as well as ever: all our operations, not only external, but also internal, do much depend upon the disposition of the body; as for meditation, may be when the body was lively and active, a man could fix his meditations upon a thing, now it is weakned he cannot, may be he hath the same desire and delight as he had before, but he cannot do it; so may be he hath as great a desire as ever to remember the word, but his memory is gone; so may be he hath as great a desire to put forth himself in any ordinance of God as ever in all his life, but his body will not bear it, I say, the spirits depend much upon the body, you may see this in natural operations; let a mans eyes fall, will any man say, say, that the soul of that man is less able to see then it was? no, the soul is as able to see in a blind man, as in a seeing man; in an old man whose eyes fail him, as in a young man that hath the quickest sight: if this man had an excellent eye given him, he would see as well as any body else; the soul is able to do it, but it wants a tool: so many Saints of God cannot do many duties as they were wont, not for want of love and zeal, and affections, but for want of tools: it is said of Saul, that when David was old, they would not let him go out into the field. did they look upon David now as less worthy then before? no, they looked upon him as more worthy then before; the text saith, they looked upon him as the very light of Israel, though he could not fight for Israel so well as he did before; so you shall see many a godly man, and reverend father upon his death bed, [illegible] no great matter in his dying what he is, and is not the man he was? no, but because he hath worn out his tools, he is not the man in point of operation, though he hath the same affections he had formerly.

6. Extraordinary assistance

Sixthly, Extraordinary assistance may make a soul strive more lively and quickned then indeed he is; for God doth assist his people extraordinarily in their beginning, 'tis true some of his people he doth extraordinarily assist all their life long, but he doth not usually do it, he doth choose rather extraordinarily to strive and help his people at the first, and afterwards he leaves them only ordinarily, leaving them to fight with their own corruptions; why? because it is an extraordinary case when a child is young, parents will extraordinarily help him to go, and will not lay the weight of his body lie upon any one step, but help him in every step; afterwards they help the child, but more ordinarily they look the child should go alone, as may be now he gets more knocks then he did before, and falls oftner; will you say the child is now grown weaker? no, he is stronger then he was, there is a difference, he had extraordinary assistance before, now he is left to himself and to his own legs: so it is with God towards his children, when they are new beginners, when they are newly born again, he has compassion upon them extraordinarily, helps them in prayer, and against their corrupt lusts: and if the Lord should not do thus, it is impossible they should stand; as the Lord saith of Ephraim, when he was a child I loved him, and taught him to go, Hos. 11. 1, 3. he carried him in his arms as a child, when he was young, afterwards he looks he should go along; not as if any of Gods children could go alone, they have need of his help every day; but they must go alone in respect of extraordinary help, for God hath given them access to the throne of grace, and hath given them understanding, and some strength; and he looks they should use these things not although they could use them without his assistance, but without extraordinary assistance; now when God leaves his child to walk by himself, he will fall oftner then before; you shall have many grown Christians fall oftner then young beginners; why? because they are weaker and less quickned? no, but because they have not such extraordinary assistance; they can go alone. I speak not as though it were without the assistance of God, but without extraordinary assistance; and though for want of care and watch they get a fall, yet they are not weaker; few new beginners ever fell as David and Peter fell afterwards; no, the Lord bears them in his arms, but afterwards he lets them go alone; now when the Saints of God feel duties become so heavy, extraordinary assistance being gone, they think they are grown dead and lumpish, why? the load lies heavier upon them then ever it did before; yet it doth not follow they are more dead; A child whom his father bears in his arms, may be carried along from one end of the house to the other, sooner then another child that goes alone, and yet is in thrice as much time; will you say this child is weaker then the other?

better? no, this child goes alone, and the other is extraordinarily helped by the people of God, when they are first converted, they must know they are extraordinarily assisted, and they must take heed lest they be proud and conceited, lest they think they have gotten such a deal of grace and life already; no, no, else you shall see what you have when you come there.

7 Freedom from temptations.

Seventhly, Freedom from temptations may make a man seem to be more quickned then he is: as a heavy dull tempered man, may go faster a great deal having no clog, then the nimblest man in the Country with a clog at his heels; a man at his first conversion, God will not let him be tempted, he is but in his nonage, in his entrance into the Kingdom of God, and if God should let temptations presently fly upon him, before he hath more grace and judgement, and more experience of the vileness of his own heart, and the goodness of God, he would break his neck; now God will never suffer a man to be tempted above what he is able; therefore when his people are first converted, he frees them from temptations a while, and then they go roundly on; afterwards when they have been ten or twenty or thirty years in grace, may be they are fouly overtaken, and go heavily on; but they therefore complain they are deader then they were? as an horse, when he carries single may go roundly; afterwards, the same horse being put to carry double, he goes more heavily: will a man say the mettal of the horse is grown worse? no, but he carries double; so it is with the Saints of God; may be formerly they carried single, now they carry double, the Lord lets more temptations fall upon them then he did before; will you say that Joseph was grown cold, because he had gotten that vile custome of swearing in Pharaohs Court? he never sware at home, alas he had no temptation at home; if he had had those temptations at home, and had had no more grace then he had then, it would have been the bane of his soul; no wonder he goeth on more heavily, because he hath more temptations; you may see how heavily David drew on, 1 Sam. 27. 1. I shall one day perish by the hand of Saul; formerly he could believe admirably, and trust in Gods providence wonderfully, he fought against the Lyon and the Bear, and was mightily affected with God; but now he goeth heavily on; what hath he lost his faith? no, but he is more tempted then he was before; may be the man hath more grace of life in him then before, but he was more tempted, and carried double.

How far forth a child of God may be dead.

We come now to the next thing, to shew you how far forth a child of God may be dead and lose his quickning, not only seem deader, but be deader indeed then he was; and this point we will shew you in these particulars.

1. That every man by nature is dead to all goodness. 2ly, That the liveliest of Gods servants have some of this deadness still remaining in them. 3ly, The meanest of Gods servants that have least grace, have some life, and cannot be quite dead. 4ly, We will shew you this is a very tickliſh point, and very dangerous, a world of mischief may come of it by reason of the corruption of mens hearts. Yet 5ly, It is a very necessary point. 6ly, The particulars wherein he may be dead. 7ly, The uses of the point.

1: All by nature dead.

First, We are all by nature dead, we have no heart to seek reconciliation with God, no heart to get his Image in our hearts, and to have communion with him, and approve our selves unto him; we see naturally, how the world lights these things; they seek how they may live, and do as others do; but to look after righteousness, and holiness, and pleasing of God, they have no heart to these things; and though God afford them good motives, and helps of conſtitution, and all helps, yet people have no life at all to these things; Eph. 4. 18. they are as Paul speaks there, alienated from the life of God; and as he father speaks of his prodigal son, this my son was dead, quite dead; by nature we have not the son of God, and therefore have no life; as Christ saith, the dead shall hear the voice of the son of God, and live; he speaks of the elect people that naturally are dead to all good, so though a man be alive to many of the acts which the Saints of God do naturally, yet to those works that a Saint doth as he is a Saint, he is altogether dead; as a beast, though it hath a life of its own, yet he is dead to the life of a man; Indeed it can do many things a man doth, it can hear, see, and hear, and goe up and down as well as a man doth, but for those acts a man doth as he is a man, there it altogether dead; for those acts it cannot discourse, how many things are in a man which a beast looks not after? it is altogether dead to them; so a natural man is alive to all what the Saints of God doe as they are them, because he is such himself; as they are Saints of God, and have the life of God in them, he is altogether dead to that; he cannot carry himself as the Saints do, he cannot cast himself of all his lusts as the Saints of God do; you cannot if you would never so fain bring a natural man to those things, you may as well bring a dead man to walk up and down among men, as to make a natural man to be so strict and precise as a Saint.

life

4. Difference of the acts of the point

Secondly, the liveliest of all Gods Saints have some of this deadness remaining in them, the child of God, though in one part, sc. the spirit, he be alive, yet in the flesh he is dead, Paul himself tells us, I am not perfect, neither have I yet attained, Phil. 3. 13. David was as lively a man as any in the Old Testament, yet he cries out Psal. 143. 11. quicken me O Lord for thy names sake; the Saints are like to a man sick of the numbe palsey, he is dead on one side, the Saints are dead on one side, like the Moon, that side the Sun shines upon is light, but the other side is dark; so when God shines upon his Saints by his Spirit, there is light: but they are dark on one side, for though sanctification be perfect in this life, yet sanctification is still but imperfect, the guilt of sin may be fully forgiven here, but the power of sin is never here fully destroyed; none of the Saints of God but find some clog, they go not so quick as they should or would do: Paul himself groans under this burden, Rom. 7. 24. and Christ doth not quicken his servants all at once, Job. 10. 10. Christ doth put life into his people, yet so as that it goeth gradually on, he gives them more and more, he makes them more and more agile and quick in good duties; the best of Gods Saints are like to a goodly tree, that may be hath a hundred dead boughs upon it, though the root and body be alive; may be a young tree hath fewer dead boughs, yet it is weak, and there is less strength a great deal in it then in the other, and less fruit; so I say for a Saint of God, though he be consolidated and settled, and grown substantial, yet there may be abundance of dead boughs.

2. Liveliest of Saints have some deadness.

Thirdly, The meanest of Gods Saints, the deadest of them all have some life, they cannot lose all their life, they have an eternal life, Joh. 1. 36. he that believes on the son hath everlasting life, a child of God, though he may lose all his liveliness yet he cannot lose his life, there is a difference between liveliness and being alive, as Exod. 1. 19. the Hebrew women there are said to be lively; any woman is alive, but not lively: so all the children of God are alive, they may lose their liveliness but not their life; as the wise Virgins all slumbred and slept, but yet their oyl was not gone out; though old Eli was grown marvelous dull, and heavy, and lumpish, and had no zeal for God and liveliness in him, yet he was not altogether dead, as appears by his answer to Samuel, and his care of the Ark of the Covenant; for the life of a Saint of God, is like a vessel of Canary that cannot be quite drawn up; a child of God, though he be never so cold and frozen, yet he

3. Deadest of Saints have some life.

shall shall not be altogether frozen up, he shall have some life still, the seed of God remaineth in him, 1 Joh. 3. 9.

4. Dangerousness of the point.

Fourthly, This is a ticklish point, and marvellous dangerous, unless great heed be taken: those that hear it, that hear how far a child of God may grow dead, may recieve much mischief by it; and I was once of the mind not to have spoken of it, in regard of the evil consequents that may grow upon it.

Fourthly, This may greatly embolden the adversaries of the Church of God. In some sense it were well that the adversaries of the Church did think the Church were more lively then they are; it might be a great means to curb them of doing that they do; as it is noted of the Scribes and Pharisees, that conceiving that the people were more lively then they were, it did withhold them from what they otherwise would have done; as when Christ spake of Johns baptisme, they would have vilified it, but that they thought the people were so affected to his ministry, that they would stone them: I do not think they were so affected and wrought upon; I do not think there would have been such a stir in the Country, but this was well they thought so, for it saved a great deal of mischief, Mat. 13. 25. when the good men servants were asleep, then the enemies sowed tares; so when the enemies of the Church shall see thee grown dull and careless, and sleepy, the Sabbaths are little sanctified, and the holy ordinances of God, and powerful preaching little looked after, nay even such as were strict people are grown cold; this doth imbolden them to bring in errors, and broach what they list, what they durst not do if the Church were lively; so that it is something dangerous to tell this in Gath, and publish it in the streets of Askalon.

Secondly, This may hearten abundance that are standers by, that are dead in sins and trespasses, to be hardned under their deadness, and to be secure; for when a Minister shall shew how that the children of God may be marvellously dead, and may be quite off the hooks, and their zeal be quite gone, the life and liveliness that hath been formerly is not seen; when they hear this, this may help them to hope, 'tis true I am dead, and my heart is like a stone in prayer, and like a block at the hearing of the word of God; I have no spirit, nor heat, nor affections in the ordinances of God; yet Gods blessing on the Ministers heart; I heard him say a child of God might be dead like a dead tree, and I hope I may be a child of God in all this: no question when a carnal heart shall read how Christ upbraided his own Disciples with unbelief and hardness of heart, no question when they read such passages, but they have a great deal of succour to their own consciences; for when their consciences flie in their faces for their untowardness and heartlessness in any thing that is good, they think the Saints of God have a great deal of heartlessness, and so reckon themselves to be Saints of God; and so the Church of God when it was grown to be marvellous remiss, and prophane, and loose (Jer. 7.) though God had told the ten Tribes that he would cut them off, yet they comforted themselves; how did they comfort themselves? they comforted themselves in this, they thought verily they were a Church; so people, if they can get any word that falls out of the Ministers mouth that may make for themselves, they catch at it; if any word drop out from a Ministers mouth, or if any miscarriage or distemper be seen in a godly mans life, they lie at catch for these things; therefore it is dangerous.

Thirdly, It is dangerous because it may teach people how to be dead: many people that were stirred at their deadness, and saw an infinite need of laying it aside, and took pains to do it, yet when they hear this Doctrine, through the corruption of their own hearts, they may grow careless, and think, what

what need I keep ſuch a pudder? I am a child of God ſtill, though I am ſo dead and heartleſs, and have no more feeling under Gods word, yet I may be a child of God; I heard a Miniſter make an excellent Sermon upon that point, that a child of God may be very dead: but let me tell you, if any of you came to Church this day with a kind of joy and delight, oh, this day we ſhall hear how a child of God may be dead; if it be thus, you may juſtly ſay that you have a rotten heart; for what is this a ſign of? but that your hearts lie at catch, and if you have but any argument to make you think you are a child of God, this is enough; I know this may be a comfort to the children of God, but they are ſuch as are abſolutely dejected and caſt down, and wrought upon; and whatſoever they hear out of the word of God, they uſe it for their help, that they may be recovered out of their dadneſs; but if any of you hear this to the end you may be ſecure, this will be your bane.

Fifthly, Though it be dangerous, yet it is a neceſſary point to be inſiſted upon, the people of God may have need of it; but you will ſay, it is pitty ſuch a Sermon ſhould be preached to ſhew how far a child of God may be dead, there be ſo many ſtumbling blocks, and ſuch a deal of miſchief; I anſwer, whatſoever truth may tend to the eſtabliſhing of the people of God, and the building of faith, is not to be omitted, though thouſands of reprobates break their necks at it; as Chriſt, when the Phariſees ſtumbled at his doctrine, Mat. 15.12. ſee how he anſwers, ver. 13. Every plant which my heavenly father hath not planted, ſhall be rooted up; ſo I ſay we muſt hazard that; we muſt tell people what danger they may catch if they take not heed; and we muſt deliver the truth, for it is helpful to the people of God; we know that the credit of his ſervants is precious in his ſight; and he hath diſgraced his ſervants in the Scriptures as it were, and hath left their dulneſs and untowardneſs upon record, that the world may know it, who ſhould ſay, it is of ſuch uſe to all generations to know this, that it may not be concealed from the world; you may ſee thoſe horrible ſins of David, and fowl offences, that one would think the ſpirit of God would caſt a vail over; yet he is ſo far from hiding of that his murther and adultery, and making Uriah drunk, that he doth not only record his murther and adultery once, 1 Sam. 11. but again, Pſal. 51. and committed the Pſalm to the Muſitian, to be ſung in the Church to the end of the world; ſo Peters denial of his Maſter, one would have thought the Scripture would have ſaid nothing of that; what a Diſciple of Chriſt to deny his maſter, and curſe and ban himſelf? yet the ſpirit of God is ſo earneſt to have this known, that he will have all the Evangeliſts ſet it down; you have things of great importance, that our eternal life depends upon, yet there is but one Evangeliſt toucheth them; but every one tells us of Peters fault; how ſhamefully he did forget himſelf, and how he was carried away with his luſts, ſo that it is very needful to be known: now then to come to the ſixth thing, how far a child of God may be dead; for this we will ſhew you theſe particulars.

5. Needfulneſs of the point.

6. How far forth a child of God may be dead.

Firſt, he may loſe all his zeal; you know zeal is a thing that God baptizeth his people with, not only with the holy Ghoſt, but with fire; yet a child of God if he ſtand not upon his guard, and looks to himſelf, if he grow ſecure and drowſie and give way to ſin, he may come to this, to loſe his zeal; it was the caſe of many of Gods people in Laodicea, though the chiefeſt bulke in the Town were lukewarm; yet it is plain that many of thoſe that were neither hot nor cold, were Gods own children; for he ſaith, Rev. 3. 19. as many as I love, I rebuke and chaſten: ſo in the daies of Saul, when Religion went down the wind, and the Ordinances of God were ſlacked, every thing went to wrack during his government, you ſhall see how the Church of God had lost their zeal, 1 Sam. 17. 16. it is said there, that when Goliah of Gath came into the host, and all Israel were there, and the main bulke of the Church of God were looking on, and hearing what this fowlmouth said, there he stood defying and blaspheming the Army of God, and he shewed himself so forty dales together, and all Israel heard him, and they were all dull and blockish, and not a man stepped out to hasard his life to appear in Gods cause, until it pleased God to make a little child take up a weapon, and fight against him; so our Saviour Christ shews us in the last times (which is strange) for in the last times knowledge shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold, Mat. 24. 12. you know what zeal is. It is when a man doth not only walk in Gods commandements and do them, but useth Gods arguments, and useth them with all his heart, and stirreth up himself to take hold on God; he presseth hard after the mark; he is a man that stands upon his guard; a man that will be precise and strict in every thing; he will eschue every evil; if he find any sinful thing, he is never at quiet till he get it down again; if this man be in company, he will not stand upon curtesie to see who will begin to speak, but if others will not, he will; and he will not stand upon terms and difficulties, but come what can come, he will stand for God; now 'tis strange how this zeal may be taken off, in a man that is otherwise a good man.

Secondly, He may lose all his affections, which is a strange thing; you know what the affections are, they are the wings of the soul; if the wings be cut, the bird cannot flie; now a child of God may lose all his affections as it was with Saints, they had not only lost all their zeal, but their affections, Rev. 3. 2. strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die; they had lost all, and but a little remained, and that little was ready to die; what a poor heartless, lifeless creature was Asa? he was grown to that pass, that though God sent his Prophets to him, yet his affections were not stirred, nay, they were stirred the clean contrary way; he was angry with him; and when God laid afflictions upon him, he was so little affected with his sins, that he sought not to the Lord, but to the Physitians; a child of God may lose his sorrow and grief for sin; though he be prone to a world of corruption and distempers, and dulness, and blockishness, yet he is not able to relent and grieve for them, there is no sorrow in his heart; as David, when he had committed those horrible sins, there were no affections in him; when Joab sent him word that Uriah was dead, which he had laid hand in, one would have thought it should have made him cry and roar, and made his heart to burst; but he was so far from being affected with the matter, at that he made nothing of it; oh saith he, tell Joab, the sword devoureth one as well as another, 2 Sam. 11. 25. so a child of God may lose all the affection of shame. It is one of the duties we owe to God, that all the corruptions and untowardness that is in us, we should be ashamed of them; but a child of God may lose this shame; David when he had committed adultery, he was not ashamed of it, he did not blush, nay he was impudent, he durst let his servants know it, and be privy to his villany; he could send them, go and seek me the woman, 2 Sam. 11. Again, he may lose all his delight in good duties, and the ordinances of God; he may go to them, but with poor delight; what poor delight do you think David had in good duties for the space of ten months, till Nathan came unto him? we may well think what a blockish and seared heart he had; again, he may lose all his desires and yearnings; he may pray, and have no heart to lift up his soul to God, or be earnest for the having of those graces he stands in need of, but pray coldly, as if indeed he would teach God to deny him; again, he may lose all his fear, he may grow to be so marvellous venterous and bold, he may grow to be familiar with sins, he may grow to come neer the occasions of sin, and thrust himself upon temptation; again, he may lose his affections of love, and have hardly any love at all to God, as Christ complains of Simon, who otherwise was a good man; he forgave his sins, and yet he complains he loved him but a little, Luke 7. 44 &c. in one word, a child of God may lose all his affections.

2 Chro. 16.

grow

Thirdly, He may grow to be even senseless of sin, and of the grace of God; I may shew this in divers examples; to instance in the Patriarchs, they conspired the death of Joseph, afterwards flung him into a ditch, which was a most horrible and unnatural thing; one would think this should have been as an arrow unto their hearts, and they should have been ashamed of themselves; but were they sensible of this, or moved at it? no, but they sate down to eat and drink when they had done, Gen. 37. so for the children of Israel in the wilderness, when they had committed that horrible sin, of making a golden calf, and the Text shews that many of the children of God were guilty of it; when they had done, did their hearts smite them? were they affected with the sin? did it work any impression upon their hearts? no, they sate down to eat and drink, and rose up to play, Exod. 32. 6. so David, when he had committed those horrible hainous sins of murther and adultery, for which deserved death by the Law, his fault was aggravated by many circumstances; he had wives of his own, he was not a young man, but well grown in years, he was no novice, he was not ignorant of God, but an old disciple, and one that had had a great deal of experience of Gods goodness, one that was the most noted man in all Israel for forwardness for God, one (as himself confesseth) had more understanding then any one in the world, more then his teachers; these do aggravate his sin, but when he had done, was he sensible of this? no, he was so far from it, that he laboured to father his bastard upon Uriah; Uriah had been a great while from his Wife, and must have known it to have been a bastard, if he had not sent him down to his house; now thought he, if I can but get him to go down to his house, and lie with his Wife, the child may be thought to be his child, and not mine; nay, when Uriah spake words that might have burst his bowels, when he bade him go to his house, you may see what a gracious answer he gave him, 2 Sam. 11. 11. The Ark and Israel, &c. as who should say, I had more need to be at prayer, and keep a fast; all Israel is in the field against their enemies, therefore I had more need to seek God, then look after my pleasures, and respecting my body; now one would think this should have been as a dagger to Davids heart, and made him ashamed; yet he was so senseless that he laboured to do it more and more, and was never at quiet till he had made him drunk, thinking he would go home; thus we see that a child of God may be senseless of his sins.

Fourthly, A child of God may grow to be notoriously vain, and notoriously worldly, and to be notoriously guilty of sin. I do not say to live in sin, but to sin notoriously, that a man that hath but half an eye may say, Yonder man is notoriously proud and conceited of himself, he is marvelous forward and given to his passions; yonder man is marvelous remiss in his place and calling, marvelous dull and idle, and sluggish; and even those that are without may see this, much more the children of God; thus it was with many of Pauls brethren and companions he had at Rome; though he did conceive these were the children of God, yet they were grown notoriously and grossely worldly; when Paul had occasion to send some Minister or other to fight against the false Apostles, he spake it seems to all his brethren and acquaintance, to intreat them to go to Philippi, but he could not get one of them to go; what excuse they made we know not, whither they were loth to be at that charge, or whither they loved their own ease, but

Phil. 2. 21. he breaks out into this ſpeech, they all ſeek their own, and none the things that are Chriſts: Not as Calvin notes upon the place, as though they had no grace or life in them, but they were grown marvelous worldly and earthly, and carried away with their luſts, marvelouſly tender of their profits, ſeeking their own, and not the things of Chriſt; though Paul told them, it was the cauſe of Chriſt required it, yet it was againſt their profits and eaſe, he could get none of them to go; ſo David, that ſin of numbring the people, it lay upon his heart nine months, and he came not to repentance; yet Joab ſaw this thing, and he uſed gracious arguments to divert him; he ſaw plainly that he was tranſported with ſome luſt or other.

Fifthly, The child of God may grow to that paſs, that the ſervice of God may be a burthen; 'tis true, it cannot be abſolutely a burthen to any child of God; ſo the wicked only are abſolutely without zeal and affection, they are abſolutely wicked and worldly; therefore this cannot be abſolutely in a child of God; yet it may be horribly and groſſely, even to be tired and jaded under Gods ſervice, even to count it a burthen, to cry out with thoſe Mal. 1. what a wearineſs is it Lord! even to be loth to go to prayer, to go to it dully, as a trewant goes to his book; and when they are at it, to be blockiſh and without any ſpirit in it, and have no life, not ſo much as to heave up their hearts to the Throne of grace; nay, they may think it too long, and wiſh it were done; and they may think the opportunities to hear and receive good come too often; this is an horrible thing, yet thus it may be; what was the reaſon that the Galatians were ſo open-eared to the falſe Apoſtles that came with another Goſpel, that ſeparated from the Goſpel of Chriſt? what is the reaſon that they opened the ear to them, and were even poyſoned by it? O ſaith the Apoſtle, be not weary of well doing, Gal. 6. 9. as who ſhould ſay, you are weary of well doing; you were once affected with the word, and would have plucked out your eyes to do me good; you were wonderfully wrought upon, and went on in a right manner in ſome meaſure; Oh be not weary of well doing; as who ſhould ſay, the cauſe of your yielding is becauſe you were weary of well doing; you ſeek out for new opinions, and errours, and are ready to receive falſe doctrines, contrary to the doctrine of Chriſt; therefore, take heed that you be not weary of well doing.

Laſtly, A child of God may be ſo dead that nothing can quicken him; nay, the whole Church of God may be ſo dead, that the Goſpel may be going away, and God may be ready to depart, and ſhew ſigns of his going away from them, and yet they may have no heart to humble themſelves, and ſeek the Lord, to be moved and ſtirred to get more life, and intreat God to turn away the plague, as God ſaith, Iſa. 59. 16. I wondred there was no Interceſſor; he ſent Prophet after Prophet to tell them that he would take away his Kingdom from them, and ſcatter them among the Nations, but though he had told them of theſe things, over and over again, yet there was none to ſtand in the gap; he ſpeaks in the general, there was not a man (though otherwiſe good) that could cry to God in this diſtreſs; ſo that I ſay, a man may grow to this paſs, that nothing can quicken him; all the ordinances of God cannot, nay, though he have many judgements of God upon him, and his conſcience lies digging in his ſide from day to day, yet nothing may work upon him, unleſs the Lord be more ſtrangely merciful to his ſoul; till a whale was provided to ſwallow up Jonah, there was no bringing of his heart to relent.

Qu. But you will ſay, Where is the ſign of Gods grace all this while? may a child of God be thus dead? certainly the life of the children of God is eternal; and when God gives his children grace, it continues for ever, it is ſpringing up to eternal life; now if a Saint may be thus dead, where is grace? is he unchilded again?

Anſ. I anſwer, the grace of a child of God can never be taken away, not for any goodneſs in himſelf, but through the goodneſs of God.

For firſt, there is the ſeed of God remaining ſtill in him, 1 John 3. 9. a godly man cannot commit ſin, ſaith the Apoſtle, for the ſeed of God remaineth in him; that is, he cannot commit ſin as the wicked commit it, he can never grow to be a wicked man again, to do as the wicked do; why? the ſeed of God remaineth in him; you know ſeed is a little thing, there is a little thing left ſtill in that man, that ſhall ſtill difference him from ungodly men, that he cannot commit ſin with that fulneſs of ſway as the wicked do; now by this ſeed the Scripture means regeneration; regeneration is immortal, it is that ſeed which remaineth for ever, 1 Pet. 1. the laſt.

Secondly, As there is a ſeed of God remaining in him, ſo there be ſupernatural habits; and the difference between this ſeed, and theſe ſupernatural habits is this; this ſeed is immediately in the ſoul, though it runs through all the powers of it; but theſe ſupernatural habits are immediately in the powers and faculties of the ſoul; now theſe habits are ſuch, whereby they have heavenly inclinations to good, and inclinations againſt evil; and theſe ſhall never be quite extinguiſhed, though they be not like to moral and natural habits; for they do actually incline but ſupernatural habits do never actually incline that way, but upon concurrence of ſpecial grace; though they be in the ſoul yet they do not actually incline but upon concurrence of grace; now theſe habits can never be taken from a child of God, as David ſaith, Pſal. 37. 24. though the righteous fall, yet he ſhall not utterly be caſt down; he may fall upon his hands and knees, but he ſhall not quite fall; he ſhall have ſomething or other to moderate and break the fall.

Thirdly, A child of God ever hath an anointing, 1 John 2. 27. that is, a gift and grace of God, whereby he doth enlighten his eyes by the ſpirit of revelation, whereby he looks upon God, and all ſin and iniquity, and the ordinances of God, with an heavenly eye; now I ſay, this eye can never be taken away; let a child of God be at the loweſt ebbe, he looks upon ſin, and Gods wayes after another faſhion then other men; he looks upon corruption after another manner then any other man; ſo he looks upon Gods holineſs, and righteouſneſs, and graciouſneſs, he looks upon theſe ſo as no natural man does; if a man do but talk with him, he will ſee that he hath anointing at the loweſt ebbe; he will not talk of the wayes of God as a natural man; he will diſcover that he hath ſomething of God, ſomething of this oyntment left in him ſtill.

Fourthly, There is a little ſtrength in his heart, as the Lord ſaith, Rev. 3. 8. A child of God, take him at the loweſt ebbe, yet he hath a little ſtrength; I ſpeak not here of actual grace, for a child of God may have no actual grace ſtirring, it may be quite in a ſwound; as David; I hardly think there was any grace ſtirring in his heart when he lay with Bathſheba; but I ſpeak of the frame of a child of God; when he is grown dead in his general bent, frame and inclination, he hath yet a little ſtrength; he doth a little fear God, though it be much born down; he hath ſome good deſires, though but weak and in a great meaſure ineffectual; he hath a little endeavour to pleaſe God, though the pleaſing of his fleſh and corruptions be ſo much, that his grace doth ſcarcely appear.

The firſt uſe is this; Is it ſo, that a child of God may thus far grow dead? Uſe. let it know, this is not to encourage any man in ſin, that any man ſhould conclude, well then it is no great matter though I ſin now and then, and lie and ſwear now and then; in many things we offend all, and we are all ſinners; the Miniſter told us to day how dead a man may be, and yet be a child of God for all this; this is a damned uſe of this doctrine, there is no doctrine, no example recorded in all the whole Bible, to encourage men to ſin; therefore when we look into the lives of Noah, of Abraham, of Lot, &c. and read of their great falls, this is not to encourage any man to ſin, but rather to ſtir up a man ſo much the more to labour againſt ſin; for if the children of God that have his favour, and have got into his covenant, and have got power in grace, and have traded in Religion, and have waded far in mortification and newneſs of life, and have gone many degrees towards Gods Kingdom; if theſe men give way never ſo little, may be dead if ſin may get dominion over theſe; how ſhould others quake and tremble, and reaſon thus, Did David and Peter fall? how then ſhall I ſtand? how careful ſhould I be? David had a thouſand times more grace then I, and was more mortified then I, and had a better heart then I; if he were ſo weak to overcome ſin, when he had given way to it; if he could not preſerve his affections from being deaded; and if he could not preſerve his ſoul from being a block in Gods ſervice; if he had ſo many advantages beyond me, and yet giving way to idleneſs and drowſineſs, were born down in the faſhion; oh how ſhould I take heed then?

Uſe. 2. Secondly, If a child of God may be thus dead, then let the beſt of Gods Saints and children that are now moſt zealous and lively, take heed; let them follow hard after the mark, let them ſtand upon their guard, let them fight againſt idleneſs and drowſineſs of ſpirit, let them not be carnally confident to truſt in their own hearts; take heed, thou knoweſt not how thy heavenly father may deal with thee; for this is certain, no child of God can get up again (though he had the moſt grace that ever man had, beſides the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, if he give way to ſin) except the Lord help him; we are like to a little babe, if it falls, there it lies till the parent help it up; ſo when a child of God falls, there he lieth in woful diſtreſs all this while, and cannot get up for his life; and if he had a thouſand ſouls, and they were all to be damned, he could not ſave one of them, unleſs God aſſiſt him, Lam. 5. 21. turn us O Lord, and we ſhall be turned; therefore art thou never ſo full of life? take heed, deſpiſe not prophecying, deſpiſe not preaching, deſpiſe not prayer, deſpiſe not any ordinance of God, deſpiſe none of theſe things, never grow ſecure; if thou doſt, woe unto thee; may be God will help thee up again, but who can tell? the covenant of grace is certain for nothing but for eternal life; if a man take heed, and ſtand upon his watch, he may the better build upon God, that he ſhall not fall, Pro. 28. 4. therefore take heed that you paſs the time of your ſojourning here in fear, 1 Pet. 1. 17. and having theſe promiſes, let us cleanſe our ſelves from all filthineſs of fleſh and ſpirit, &c. 2 Cor. 7. 1. as who ſhould ſay, let us labour to have this holy fear in our heart, ever to conſider how weak and impotent we are; if we grow drowſie and careleſs at any time, we give advantage to the Devil, we let him in, and God knows when we ſhall get him out again; therefore let this work fear and trembling.

Uſe. 3. Thirdly, This may be for comfort to thoſe people of God, that have been fooliſh, and have deceived their own ſouls, and have given way to Satan, and let in this cruel and damned enemy that hath done a world of miſchief, that they are now come to deſpair almoſt; they are afraid they ſhall never get up again; never were any of Gods ſervants ſo dead and dull as I am; Gods children can never be thus; I ſay, is there ſuch a one among you? let this doctrine be a thred let down from heaven ro help him up again; as the Apoſtle ſaith, all things are written for our learning, Rom. 15. 4. ſo theſe Scriptures that ſpeak of the falls of Gods Saints, are written for such peoples learning, that they may take comfort in the Scriptures, that they may not be altogether out of heart, but have something to lay hold on; as Paul speaks of his sins of being a persecutor, and a blasphemer, he saith, it is recorded, that I afterwards may be an help to them that shall believe, and as the sins of Gods elect before conversion are recorded; that this may be a means to perswade Gods elected (not yet converted) that they may find grace; though they be never so vile sinners; for God hath left a pattern and pledge, he hath been merciful to hainous sinners; so the fall of Gods Saints and children after conversion, are recorded to this end; and I can tell you in time of temptation, when conscience shall be awakned, and the wrath of God shall stick in a mans soul, a man cannot spare any one sweet proposition in Scripture, nor any one example in Scripture, nor any tittle of comfort, it will be little enough to bear up the soul from despair and from being overwhelmed; all will be little enough to assure the soul of Gods favour, and that he can and will pardon such transgressors; therefore I say look upon this doctrine, it is for those that are dejected with their dead hearts, that they may yet receive some comfort to their souls. 1 Tim. 1.

for

The last day I shewed you how far forth a child of God might be dead; some may say, I cannot believe a child of God may come to this; and you are confident thou shalt not come to this; therefore I will speak a little further of it. The deadness of a child of God amplified.

And first, Let me tell you, there is not the fowlest, haynousest, abominablest, the most notorious, scandalous sin in the world, but the most dear, godly mortified man upon the face of the earth may fall into it, if he take not heed, (except the sin against the holy Ghost) I will instance in some particulars. A child of God may fall into very foul sins.

First, For Idolatry, gross Idolatry, will you think that ever a child of God, that believes in his name, and is acquainted with his word, and his goodness and mercy, and his jealousie against this sin and iniquity, should fall into it, should fall down and worship a stock, a stone, a creature? you will never believe it; yet you shall see the wisest man that ever was, and one that was beloved of God, did fall into this sin in a great degree, 1 Kings 11. 4. Solomons wives drew his heart away from God; they drew away his heart from God in an high degree; and they did not nakedly draw away his heart from God, but they drew his heart after other gods. If a man should say, I hope I shall never fall into this sin; I say let us hope so still, and go on using the means; if we be so confident, let us take heed that none of us come to bowe to the creature; let our own hating and abominating of it, be a watch-word to us to take heed.

Secondly, What say you to apostacy? nay, almost totall apostacy, that a child of God should grow to be an apostate, which of you would think it; that he should come to curse and bann himself, if ever he knew Jesus Christ, or loved him, or ever did countenance him? yet you may see a child of God, and a notable one too, fell in this fashion; Peter, he did curse and ban himself, that he never knew the man; Mark 14. 71. this is very fearful.

Thirdly, What say you to persecution? to persecute a man that is godly; can you think that a man that hath the image of God in him, that hath the knowledge of the Scripture, that hath the fear of God before his eyes, and sympathy with all the Saints of God in the world, that this man should ever persecute one that is godly, and for his godliness too? would you think this? yet directly thus it is; Asa, a godly man, for a fit, as long as the time lasted, when the Prophet reproved him for his sins, and dealt roundly with him, what was this but gracious dealing? yet the man did not only not submit to the Prophets reproof, but his very heart rose up against againſt him, and he caſt him into priſon, he was a perſecutor of him 2 Chro. 16. 10. in one word, what enormous flagitious ſin in the world is there, but a child of God (if he look not to himſelf) may actually fall into (but the ſin unto death?) Noah a Preacher of righteouſneſs, the holieſt man upon the earth, the world had not his fellow, yet he fell to be once drunk; David a man after Gods own heart, a man of admirable experience, a man that traded as far in mortification, in holineſs and righteouſneſs, and walking with God, and acquaintance with him and his Laws and promiſes as ever any Saint in the Old Teſtament; yet he fell into the ſin of murther and adultery, yea, to make a man drunk, and that otherwiſe a good man too, one of the worthieſt of all the Kingdom; you ſee this is clear, there is no ſin ſo deſperate (the ſin againſt the holy Ghoſt excepted) but a child of God may fall into it; therefore he had not need to be carnally confident.

2. A child of God may be hardned in ſin.

Secondly, When a child of God hath fallen thus into ſome fowl ſin, he may be much hardened, wofully deaded and benummed, and grow blockiſh and untoward to call upon God, and go on in any of his waies, become marvelouſly unfitted and indiſpoſed to the uſe of Gods ordinances; nay, he may be grown to that paſs that he ſhould never riſe up more, but that for the infinite goodneſs of God that doth bring him again home, and lift him up again by renewing his faith, and his repentance; you may ſee what 2 Chro. 19. Jehoſhaphat had ſtruck with Ahab, and helped the ungodly, and loved him that hated the Lord, though he were ſmitten in the field, and were like to have loſt his life, and ſaw what danger he was in for joyning with Ahab, yet all this did not humble him; the Lord ſent after him by hue and cry, rouſing up his conſcience by his Prophets; if he had not done thus, God knows how long he might have lain thus; ſo David he found a deadneſs in all goodneſs, when he had committed thoſe foul ſins, he found no working of Gods bleſſed ſpirit, his own ſpirit grew dull, his own heart grew dead, he was as if he had never known what grace meant; create in me O Lord new heart, Pſal. 51. 10. his ſin was like to a ſweeping rain that leaves nothing like to a conſumption that waſtes all; it was even like a Thief, that breaks into a mans ware-houſe in the night, and a man knows not what he hath loſt, till he caſts up his accounts, and then he ſeeth he hath loſt almoſt all his eſtate; ſo it is with the beſt of Gods ſervants; if they give way to ſin contrary to evangelical obedience, God knows what a Thief they let into their ſoul; they know not what they have loſt, till God give them an heart to caſt up their accounts, and then they may ſee that they have loſt almoſt all that they have; who knows what God may do? it is a fearful thing; you ſee a child of God may not only fall into foul and fearful ſins, but he may lie in them.

3. A child of God may be long in ſin.

Then Thirdly, To go further, when a child of God is come hither, then you will ſay, certainly this man muſt riſe up again quickly, grace will not let him lie dead; 'tis true, God will not for ever let him lie dead; but for how long he ſhall lie dead, no man nor Angel can tell; as the Church ſpeaks concerning her miſery, there is never a Prophet, never an ordinance of God, all is gone to wrack, and there is none among us can tell us how long, Pſal. 74. 9. ſo when a man hath fallen into ſin, and hath pulled diſtempers into his ſoul, there is none among us can tell us how long; 'tis true, Peter got up again within a few houres; but David got not up again till after ten months; and may be another not till after ten years, may be twenty, forty, nay, who can tell how long? grace is free; therefore no man can preſcribe any time, John 3. the wind blows where it liſteth, and how long it liſteth, and how long it will be ere it blow again who knoweth?

Reaſons of the point.

1. Reaſ.

The Reaſons of this are firſt in regard of Satan, he fights moſt of all againſt the

the children of God, his fingers itch to be at them, and at them moſt; his greateſt ſpight is againſt them, the very bowels of the enmity is between him and them; the children of God come to take his place that he once had in heaven; the children of God are ſet up againſt Satan, as David was put in the room of Saul; therefore I ſay, all the ſtrength of hell is ſtill a working againſt the Church of God, and the Saints of God, and every one of them, from that very moment that the woman was delivered of a man child, he ſought to deſtroy it: Simon, Simon, (ſaith Chriſt) Satan deſires to winnow thee, &c. Luke 22. 31. he is the god of this world, and his temptations are welcome enough with any body but the children of God; none reſiſt his dominion but they; he is the Gaoler, and hath all the world in cloſe priſon, but only them; they are the only ones that have broken looſe, that have gotten away out of the power of Satan; therefore all his malice, and all the gates of hell, they are up to ſend hue and cry after them, to book them in again if they can; he is juſt like a Pyrate; a Pyrate will rather ſet upon one rich ſhip, then upon a thouſand beggarly barks, becauſe there he may have a rich prize; ſo the Divel knows he can advantage his Kingdom, if but one fall that is a Saint, more then by the falls and the notoriouſeſt falls of millions of others; therefore no wonder that a child of God ſhould grow remiſs and careleſs at any time, that he may have a miſchief; for it is all the Divels buſineſs, he hath nothing elſe to do but do miſchief, to be buſie to get a child of God down, and if he have him down, to hold him down if he can. Rev. 12. 13.

Secondly, Another reaſon is, in regard of the children of God themſelves; they carry fleſh about them as well as other men, they have a Traitor in their own boſomes, that lies in ſcout every moment to work them woe; as Paul ſaith, I find another law in my members, &c. Rom. 7. 23. though a child of God hath wounded all his luſts, nay, though he hath given them their deaths wound, yet there is never a one but may revive and make head again, if he take not heed, and that in a woful degree; as the Lord ſaith of the Caldeans, Jer. 37. (I quote it only for a ſimilitude) ver. 10. though you had ſmitten all the whole army of the Caldeans, yet they ſhall come and fire the City; when Judah had provoked God, though they had wounded all the Caldeans, yet thoſe wounded men ſhould come and fire the City; ſo let a man take heed he doth not give way to ſin; for though his luſts be mortified, and he hath given them their deaths wound, yet theſe wounded Caldeans may come and fire all his ſoul, if he take not heed. 2. Reaſ.

Thirdly, In regard of God himſelf; God is pleaſed to try his people, to withdraw himſelf now and then from them, to leave them to themſelves, and the grace they have received; to let them alone with that; and when he doth thus, no wonder though they fall; for every man hath ſome vileneſs and rottenneſs in his heart; the wholeſt ſimpleſt heart in the world hath a deal of rottenneſs in it; I ſay, the Lord doth ſometimes leave his children to themſelves, as he did Hezekiah in the buſineſs of the Ambaſſadors, 2 Chro. 32. 31. as the Church ſaith, Cant. 5. 6. my beloved had withdrawn himſelf; the lovingeſt mothers may ſometimes let their little child go alone, though they know he will fall; they provide may be a rouler about his head that whither they fall backward or forward, or any way, they may not break their ſkull, and do themſelves a miſchief, to undo themſelves; but when they have done thus, they will ſometimes leave them to themſelves to go, though they know they will fall; ſo the Lord doth put a rouler upon his people, that when they fall, they may not fall totally and finally, as the wicked men do; they ſhall never ſtrike into a wicked courſe, as the ungodly of the earth do; that he takes order for; but he doth many times leave them, not out of any ill will to them, but he leaves them 3. Reaſ.

to themselves, though he knows they will fall; and that for divers reasons.

First, That they might be patterns to others of Gods people, that if they should fall (as they may do) when they are down, they may have wherewithal to get up again; I say, the Lord leaves the eminentest of his people to themselves, to fall into lamentable miscarriages, that they may help inferiour people, and they may have something to encourage them that God will recover them, and relieve them again, and that God will not cast them off for ever; as Paul shews 1 Tim. 1. 16. saith he, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first, Jesus Christ might shew forth all long suffering, for a pattern to them who shall hereafter believe; as who should say, there may be a persecutor, a blasphemer smitten, a vile wretch, a fighter against God and Jesus Christ, such a one may be smitten, and come to see his damned estate; a thousand to one, but this man will be overwhelmed and drowned in despair; but saith he, The Lord, though I was one of his elect, yet he let me fall to this pass, that I might be a pattern to them which shall afterwards believe; so we may say of Gods children after conversion; David may say, For this cause among the rest the Lord left me to my self, the Lord let me fall so foully, and lifted me up again, that I might be a pattern to many poor people to the end of the world, that they may see the loving kindness of the Lord, and the infinite compassions, and bowels of mercy that is in the father of mercy towards them that trust in his name; we should never believe the mercy of God, the freeness of his grace, the goodness of his nature towards his beloved, towards those whom he has effectually called, were it not for such examples.

Secondly, The Lord doth this for to punish the carelessness of his people, and their security many times; what sin is there that is more apt to grow upon them then security? it is a stealing sin, it is a secret and cunning sin that comes closely and slightly upon a man, before he is aware, if he look not to himself; now when a man grows to be secure, the Lord takes this course many times to eat it out, to punish the security of his people; Peter when he had gotten faith in Christ, and affection to Christ, when he felt that his bowels did yearn after Christ, and his heart was enlarged towards
Mat. 26. him, he grew secure upon it; though all forsake thee, yet will not I; he was confident, but it was carnal confidence; for though the thing a man trusts in be the grace of God, yet as long as it is grace received, it is trusting in mans self; he therefore was carnally confident; now he would venture himself into the high Priests hall; thought he thus, affections will never be drowned; he might go any whither; well, he comes into the high Priests hall, and there comes into the very mouth of temptations and dangers; he doth not dream how easily his heart may be caused to deny Christ, he did not dream what a fleshlish heart he carried in his bosome, he grew to be bold and venturous; now the Lord to heal this security, let him fall in a desperate manner; he let him get a knock almost to beat out his brains, even
Mat. 26. 74. to curse and ban himself; not only to deny Christ, but with abjuration; the Lord seeth it is needful to do this when people grow secure; we ought alwaies to carry a covenant about our eyes, to take heed where we look; and when we are in company, to have a bridle in our mouth, to take heed what we speak; now if we grow careless and negligent, and this bridle is gone, and this covenant is gone, and our watch is taken away, no marvel though the Lord be provoked against us, to punish us, and that soundly, and let many of his people get a knock; and who knows how great a one, and how hard to heal again?

Thirdly, the Lord sometimes leaves his people to themselves, that so they may see they stand meerly by grace; I doe not mean by grace reve-ved, though they had all faith, though they had never ſo much knowledge, never ſo much experience and intereſt in God, never ſo much ſenſe and feeling of him, never ſo much life, and zeal, and quickening, whatſoever it be, all the enlargements that ever any man had, I doe not mean this; for a man never ſtands by this, but by the free favour of God, that is the grace a man ſtands by, the free good will and love that God doth bear unto him. Now when a childe of God ſhall have received a great deal of grace, a great deal of knowledge and faith, &c. he is apt to be remiſſe in ſeeking of God to direct him in that thing he knowes; he thinks he can direct himſelfe: we ſee, let a man have very good parts and knowledge, and be able to preach, how apt is he to be the leſſe in prayer to God to help him to Preach, and guide him to deliver the Word? So let another man have a great deal of knowledge, may be the man will be the leſſe ſenſible of his own wretchedneſſe and ignorance, and aptneſs to miſtake and erre, and goe aſide, and ſo to be leſſe eager and earneſt with God for his continual aid, and teaching, and aſſiſting of him every moment: So let a man have a great deal of zeal, and life, and quickening, he is apt to diſcern the leſſe proneneſſe to coole again: And ſuppoſe a man hath mortified a luſt, nay, all his luſts, he can hardly feel he hath any deſire after ſuch a ſin; hardly any motions or ſtirrings in his heart; I tell you this man, if he takes not heed, will be a venturing; oh he thinks he is cock-ſure! he is ſo taken off from the luſts of the fleſh, that he can never catch hurt, and he may be ſometimes will admit of occaſions, and admit of drawing ſomething neer the pits brink; he is ſo mortified, he fears nothing. Now the Lord in his infinite goodneſſe to his people, leaves them to themſelves; are you ſo mortified? come, let us ſee how mortified you are, and leave him to himſelfe, to ſee what the man can doe with all his knowledge, and zeal, and mortification; and now this man falls: Look how far God leaves a man, ſo far he falls; he will have his people ſee that they ſtand not by grace received, but by the free grace and favour of God: It is not in him that willeth, nor in him that runneth, but in God that ſheweth mer- Rom. 9. cy. No, though a man have never ſo many gracious endowments, and heavenly vertues, it is not in him that willeth, but in God that ſheweth mercy; it is in the fountain of mercy and loving kindneſſe in God. Let a man keep cloſe to God, let a man ſtill obſerve the pleaſing of God, that there may be a continual fountain open, running down upon him from day to day; for if he grow ſecure, and look not to himſelfe, he expoſeth himſelf to woful dangers.

Fourthly, The Lord leaves his people ſometimes thus fearfully to themſelves, that he might teach us to be ſenſible towards our brethren, to be mild, and meek, and pitious, and full of bowels and compaſſion towards the weakeſt and meaneſt of all the Saints of God; if we ſee but any thing of God, nay, but any likelihood that a man is of God, to be tender, for fear we ſhould wrong a childe of God; the Lord doth this of purpoſe to breed bowels, and meekneſſe, and gentleneſſe towards his people: As God lets men fall horribly before converſion, that they may carry themſelves meekly towards thoſe that are unconverted, for fear any of them ſhould be of the Elect of God; ſo he lets them fall after converſion, that they may carry themſelves ſo towards them that are converted; I ſay the Lord lets his people fall horribly into woful evils, that though they ſee a man fall never ſo much, yet they may not want any thing to doe him good, that they may not be taken off from their bowels and compaſſion; who knowes but this man may be of God? for I was as wretched as he once, as Paul would have the Cretians take notice of this, they were horrible ſinners before converſion, lyars, ſlow-bellies; now ſaith he, Tit. 3. 2. Speak to them that they ſhew all meekneſſe to all men. Mark, his his reaſon, ver. 3. We our ſelves alſo were ſometimes fooliſh, diſobedient, &c. We our ſelves were thus, therefore let us ſhew meekneſſe to all whatſoever, and let us be kinde, and full of bowels and compaſſion towards them, ſtudying how to doe them good, and prevent all manner of evil, and labour to win them, if it be poſſible, with all meekneſſe and condiſcending; who knows but they may be of God? for we our ſelves have been malicious and ſpightful, ignorant, haters, and have ſerved divers luſts and pleaſures: ſo it is with people after converſion; the Lord lets them fall into horrible ſinnes, and diſtempers, that ſo they may be gentle, and that they may have the ſpirit of meekneſſe towards all men; a man is apt to be ſevere, and rude, and rigid towards others, if he hath gotten any thing himſelfe; if he hath gotten a little knowledge, a little zeal, a little faith, a little humility, a little ability to pleaſe God, he is apt to think it ſuch a deal, and he is apt to cry down every one that is not as he is, You are ſo proud, and ſo thus and thus; and to take off his heart from doing thoſe duties which he owes towards him; a man is apt to be very inſolent in the Church of God; many are thus, till God doth take them down; therefore the Lord by this means doth teach his people gentleneſſe and meekneſſe; indeed God teacheth people many wayes beſides this; if they will take warning by his Word, or ſome other courſe, they ſave him a labour; but if that will not doe, God takes this courſe with a man, to make him ſee his pride, and conceitedneſſe, and his want of mercy, and unlikeneſſe to Chriſt, in bowels, and pity, and compaſſion towards his brethren.

Thirdly, The Lord leaves his own children to themſelves ſometimes to fall ſo foulely, that he may humble them, and bring them down low, that he may make them ſee yet further into the corruptions of their own hearts, that ſo he may make them capable of more grace; for he gives grace to the James 4. humble. Now when he would give more grace to a man, may be he lets him fall into ſome horrible ſinne, that he may be the more humbled, and ſee the naughtineſſe of his own heart, that he may be driven to God, and may be deeper in mortification; may be he thought he could goe no further; he did pleaſe himſelfe in his prayers; as I have heard of one that ſaid, when he had prayed, he could hardly ſee any ſinne in his prayer. Now when the Lord is pleaſed to beſtow upon them more grace, he doth ſhew them their corruptions. You know how often God let his people fall in the Wilderneſſe, and that horribly, by murmuring, and repining, and infidelity, though they were his own choſen, yet he let them fall at the waters of ſtrife, and at the red Sea he let them fall; he let them fall concerning Manna: under what was this? the text ſaith, The Lord thy God he proved thee, he led thee all theſe forty years in the wilderneſſe, wherein were Scorpions and fiery Serpents, that he might humble thee, and doe thee good in thy latter end, Deut. 8. 15, 16. Meaning, the Lord let them fall into thoſe horrible evils, that he might humble them, that they might ſee the wickedneſſe of their own hearts, and the infinite need they had of grace, and the fear of God, and ſtanding upon their guard; this did [illegible] to humble them, and do them good in the latter end.

Uſe. The firſt Uſe may ſeem to condemn thoſe ſpeeches that commonly goe up and down in Chriſtians mouths, let me tell you they are wicked ſpeeches; O, ſay they, grace will not let a man have ſuch pride and vanity in him; grace will not let a man do thus and thus: I ſay theſe ſpeeches are not good: they ſavour of a world of Ignorance of the grace of God: Indeed in three caſes theſe are admirable ſpeeches.

1. Firſt, Certainly grace will bring a man home to God that belongs to him; it will put him into Jeſus Chriſt; it will certainly make him a new creature, and bring him out of the eſtate of ſinne; he ſhall not live in the

eſtate

eſtate of ſin; grace will do that, and God in the covenant of grace doth ſet down that it is a fundamental promiſe, he will do this for every one; as the Apoſtle ſaith, Eph. 4. 7. this grace will ſurely undertake that a man ſhall be a believer (if he belong to God) and he ſhall be juſtified and ſanctified in ſome meaſure, he ſhall hate ſin, and love goodneſs in ſome meaſure, and delight in Gods ordinances in ſome meaſure; he ſhall be in the eſtate of grace, and not in the eſtate of ſin; grace will do this; this we may boldly ſay, if a man have grace he, muſt do this, for God will teach him to do it.

Secondly, Grace will undertake that a man ſhall not fall finally away; that is certain, that we may boldly ſay, if a man be of God, grace will teach him that he ſhall not fall away finally, grace will uphold a man and maintain him; when we ſee a man fall away finally, we may conclude he had no true grace; Gods children ſhall never fall finally away, God will preſerve and keep them; whom he loves he loves, to the end: of all thoſe that my father hath given me I have loſt none, ſaith Chriſt, Joh. 17. neither life, nor death, things preſent, nor things to come, ſhall ever be able to ſeparate us from Joh. 13. 1. the love of God in Chriſt Jeſus, ſaith Paul, Rom. 8. ult. that is moſt certain, bleſſed and happy is he that hath his part in the firſt reſurrection, for over ſuch the ſecond death hath no power, Rev. 2 26. that is, ſuch a man can never come to be damned, he can never fall finally away, or periſh everlaſtingly; there is no condemnation to them that are in Chriſt, that walk not after the fleſh, but after the ſpirit, Rom. 8. 1. & v. 30. whom God hath predeſtinated, them he hath alſo called, &c. there is an individual nexture of all the links of the chain of predeſtination; in all the ſeveral buckles of it, there is an indiviſible connexion; if a man be called, he ſhall be juſtified, and if he be juſtified, he ſhall be ſanctified; and if he be ſanctified, he ſhall be glorified; ſo that grace will undertake this, that a man ſhall not fall finally away.

Thirdly, We may ſay that grace will not ſuffer any man that is of God to fall totally away; as not finally for ever, ſo not totally; he ſhall not be altogether without grace, from that moment he began to have it for ever and ever; he that drinketh of the water ſhall never thirſt, &c. Joh. 4. 14. that is, he ſhall never thirſt with total indigency again, he ſhall never thirſt with total want; he ſhall ever have ſome grace, and ſome of the image of God, and ſome of the fear of God, and ſome of the love of his truth, and ſome deſire to his name, and ſome hatred of ſin, though in a poor degree, yet he ſhall have ſomething of God in him; there ſhall be the ſeed of God remaining in him at all times, 1 Joh. 3. 9. my feet were almoſt gone (ſaith David) Pſal. 73. 2. they were but almoſt gone, they were not quite gone; as it is ſaid of the Church of Philadelphia, ſhe had a little ſtrength; ſo let a child of God be at the loweſt ebbe, yet there ſhall be a little water of life, it ſhall Rev. 3. 8. not be quite exhauſt; though he fall he ſhall not be utterly caſt down, for the Lord will uphold him, Pſal. 37. 24. ſo that all this you may boldly ſay, for in theſe things it is not conditionally Gods covenant, but abſolutely for God will give thee ſtrength and power, and faith, and direction, and aſſiſtance; he will not only give thee the thing, but the condition alſo here, that a man ſhall be a believer, and a new creature; and if a man be once a new creature, he ſhall never be an old creature again altogether; the covenant of grace is ſo, which is an everlaſting covenant; God will forgive their ſins, and remember them no more: but now for particular paſſages; for a man to ſay that a man cannot be proud and diſtempred, but grace will heal him; a man cannot have an hard heart, but grace will ſoften it; theſe are ill ſpeeches, men know not what they ſay when they ſay thus; for in particular paſſages the children of God have no promiſe, but only upon condition that they ſtand ſtand upon their guard; but to be defended from particular evils, and to be ſaved from particular diſtempers, and horrible diſtempers, without ſtanding upon their guard, and taking heed, and cleaving unto God, without carefulneſs, and watchfulneſs, and having a diligent eye to their wayes, they have no promiſe for this; as the Prophet told Aſa; you know Aſa was a good man, it ſeems he was of this mind, grace will teach a man and ſo forth; but ſee what the Prophet told him, 2 Chron. 15. 2. the Lord is with you, while you are with him, &c. he doth not mean that the Lord would forſake Aſa and all his people in regard of eternal life, that they ſhould not have eternal life that forſake him, that they ſhould be altogether without grace, but he ſpeaks here of particular paſſages of this or that ſin, or this or that danger, this or that miſchief either in ſoul or body; ſaith he, the Lord is with you, as long as you are with him; and if you ſeek him, he will be found of you; but if you forſake him, he will forſake you: this is moſt certain; 'tis true, God doth not do thus alwayes, but when he doth not do thus, it is more then we can expect; for if we be careleſs and negligent, we can look for nothing at Gods hand; we may look up to him that he would not undo us, and caſt us off for ever, but we cannot look that he ſhould free us from this ſin, or this diſtemper, from this dulneſs and untowardneſs in going on; we cannot look that God ſhould free us from theſe ſins, unleſs we draw neer to him, and cleave to him, and keep by him; if we forſake him, he will forſake us; as for inſtance, ſuppoſe the Sacrament of the Lords Supper were to be adminiſtred; now a true believer may comfortably look to have peace and comfort, to have the promiſe ſealed to his ſoul, and to have his faith ſtrengthned, and his ſpirit revived, and his graces enlarged by the Sacrament, for there be promiſes made to him for this purpoſe; but how are they made? not ſimply and abſolutely, that howſoever he comes it ſhall be ſo, but let him prepare himſelf for the Sacrament, let him examine himſelf, let him whet his heart, and be ſenſible of his wants and neceſſities, let him be earneſt with God to be with him in his ordinance; but if a man do neglect this, when he hath been at the Sacrament, he ſhall not have peace and comfort, nor the promiſe of God ſealed to him, but he ſhall be more doubting then he was before, and more with the wrath of God in his ſoul, and ſhall have more diſtempers and overwhelmings then he had formerly; ſaith the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 11. 31. ſpeaking of the Sacrament of the Lords Supper, we muſt judge our ſelves, and then we ſhall not be judged of the Lord; the Lord will bleſs us, we ſhall eat and drink ſalvation to our ſelves, we ſhall eat and drink to our own peace and comfort, and glory, and to our increaſe in grace; but if we do not judge our ſelves, we ſhall be judged of the Lord; here is a condition; ſo for the preaching of the word, we have the miniſtry of the word among us up and down; we hear it day after day, line upon line, precept upon precept; this is very good, there is a promiſe for the children of God to grow up in knowledge, and that they ſhall thrive under theſe bleſſed ordinances, and be ſtrengthned by them, for temptations, miſeries, and woful times, they ſhall be well ſtored with a great deal of knowledge and experience; 'tis true, if you be careful while you have the word, and receive it with thankfulneſs and good affections, and ſtir up your ſelves to prize the word of God, and ſtir up in your ſelves an eager and earneſt hunger and thirſting after it, and will not ſuffer in your ſouls awkneſs, and untowardneſs, and formality to creep upon you; but if you hear Gods word, and do not apply it aright, God knows what woful miſeries you may fall into, if you look not to theſe things; in all theſe things the Lord looks his people ſhould ſtand upon their guard.

Why Gods people are to ſtand upon their guard: 1 Reaſ.

The firſt reaſon is, becauſe grace looks for this; 'tis true, Gods covenant is everlasting; but for particulars, grace must be stirred up; if thou hast any faith, thou must provoke thy faith; if thou hast any promise belonging to thee, thou must make use of that promise; if thou hast any fear of God, thou must look to cherish it, and nourish it, and look that it doth not die and decay; for grace is of that nature, it must be stirred up, 2 Tim. 1.6. as it is with a bowle, though the bowle be made never so right, and fit to run this way, and that way, yet if a man doe bowle it on the ground overgrowne with grasse, it will have an hundred rubs, and will not goe; so if thou let thy heart be overgrown with lusts and corruptions, grace will move dully, unlesse you make way for it, and stir it up, it will gather rust, and a rusty key will not readily open the door; a rusty grace, a neglected grace will never work kindly: Take faith, or knowledge, or experience, or any other grace, if you neglect it, if you stir it not up, it works but poorly, not although a mans stirring did the thing; no, it is grace that doth all.

Secondly, Another reason is, because there is no promise in all the Bible for the keeping of the children of God from this or that sin absolutely, but only upon condition; there is no hold that a soul can have upon God to bear him up, if he be careless; 'tis certain that God in his infinite wisdome hath not left the conversion of people, and their standing in grace in this fashion, that in case they will be converted, so; if not, let them die and perish; no, but he will convert them, and he will give them a will to yield; he will make them of unwilling to be willing, and will turn them home unto him; and when they are converted, he doth not say, this man I will bring to my Kingdome and Glory, if he stand upon his guard, and be carefull; if not, he shall perish; no, God is absolutely minded he shall be saved; and though he hath played the undutifull beast, He will chasten him with rods, but his loving kindnesse he will not take away for ever; nay, he will give him an heart to cleave to him for ever, that he shall not goe quite away from him; and this is the infinite goodnesse of God, that he doth not hang their eternal life upon their own wills; if he did, no flesh would be saved; here is the goodnesse of God: but now for particular passages, they have no such hold of God, but they are turned to the use of the meanes; a man is tyed to the use of the means in the other too; a man cannot think to stand in grace, to hold out at all, but he must look to the use of the meanes; but in case men have neglected, God will not take his people upon the lurch; but here he may take them, and for ought we know, he will take them upon the lurch, if they grow careless; when we meet with a temptation, we venture upon it, suppose it be to be earthly, and vain, and omit good duties, and heed; who knowes what God may doe? how he may break our heirts, and rend us, and teare in pieces; who knowes what may fall for dulnesse, and deadnesse, and untowardnesse, and want of peace of conscience, for irksomenesse and awkwardnesse, that a man hath an hellish life from day to day; we may fall into this; the best of all Gods people, if they stand not upon their guard; nay, watchfulnesse is the thing that is commended to us. God hath shewed us when we may have all grace, and be kept from all deadnesse, and when we may have life, and comfort, and quickening, and when he will be found of us, namely, when we seek him with all our hearts; but let a man be careless of seeking of God, he will be careless of him; and if a man doe not stir up the grace of God, let him know he falls into the hands of a consuming fire; he is not only so to the Reprobate, but even to his Saints and children, if they grow careless; therefore when Paul was about to leave the world, he gives Timothy this charge, O Timothy, preach in season and out of season, &c. what followes? watch thou in all things; as who should say, may be you shall meet with many temptations and discouragements, and therefore watch in all things, 2 Tim.

2 Reason.

2 Sam. 7. Jer. 32.

Tim. 4, 5. as Chriſt ſaith, What I ſay to you, I ſay to all, Watch, Mark 13. 37.

Becauſe we ſee this by experience in the Saints of God in all ages, that ſometimes God leaves his people; and when he doth leave them, they fall into grievous ſinnes; this cannot be denied; for experience proves it in every generation: You ſee Jacob himſelfe, how grievouſly he ſinned, he yielded to his Mother to tell a lye, thinking to get a bleſſing by an untruth, by ſaying he was Eſau, when he was not; and you ſee what miſery he brought upon himſelfe by it; even twenty years bondage that one ſinne did coſt that poor man; he thought to get the bleſſing; for it was Gods promiſe; but by his unlawful going about it, God kept him from it in a terrible manner, and brought him a wide way about; and ſo we might inſtance in many other Saints of God; for this is moſt certain, let a man be the deareſt of Gods ſervants, yet if ſinne be yielded unto, it will diſuſe a man of Gods Ordinances, and make a man untoward to good duties; it will make a breach between God and the ſoul; it will drive him, and carry him into thickets and buſhes, as Adam; the Spirit of God will turn away the ſaile of his breath, and then how uncomforeable a man ſhall be in good duties, we may think with our ſelves, and reaſon the caſe in our own ſouls; it will be ſo, for God is an holy God; for though he love his people that rejoyce in his name, yet he hath ſaid, that all their wayes ſhould be with trembling, Pſal. 2. 11.

Queſt. But you will ſay, Is grace indifferent in regard of particular paſſages? grace will work, a man ſhall be converted, and ſhall not fall totally and finally away; but in particular paſſages is grace indifferent, to let a man do what he liſt? God forbid; that man hath no grace that hath ſuch thoughts.

Anſw. For firſt grace when it comes into the ſoul, it ſets up an univerſal principle to ſerve God, not only in the main courſe of his life, but in every particular, to hate all ſinne, and in every particular, to love all good duties, and every particular, to be careful at home and abroad, and in his calling, in company and alone; in health and ſickneſſe; in all eſtates; whether he be rich or poor; whether he be perſecuted or not perſecuted: in all conditions of life to hate all ſin, and follow all goodneſſe; grace ſets up this principle whereſoever it is; but yet a man may fall into a thouſand ſinnes, if he be not watchful; but if there be not ſuch a principle in thy heart, thou art not a child of God, and a believer. Pſal. 119. 3. The people of God are deſcribed by this, They doe no iniquity, they walk in his wayes. He ſpeaks of this principle, not that they may not fall; but if they doe, it is meerly againſt the principle; if a man hath true grace, he hath a principle to love and fear God, not only for the main, but in every particular paſſage.

Secondly, It is plain that cannot be the meaning of it, that grace is indifferent, becauſe that if grace be truly in any man, it doth ſet up a watch in the ſoul to preſerve it, that the man ſhall be eager not to ſin in any particular, and deſirous in ſome meaſure, and careful in ſome degree, to doe all manner of good; if a man give way to the luſts of the fleſh, his care may be brought to a low ebb; but grace ſets up a watch in the ſoule, and breeds care, and deſire, and purpoſes, and reſolutions, and revenge upon his own luſts, and abundance of things, as you may ſee 2 Cor. 7. 11. So that grace will not let a man be indifferent; therefore when we ſay for particulars, God doth not undertake this or that; the meaning is not as if grace would only convert a man, and keep him from falling totally and finally away; but for particulars it is indifferent; this is to blaſpheme the grace of God; but the meaning is, though a man be the childe of God and never ſo much mortified, if this man ſhould grow careleſſe, and remiſs, miss, and secure, and give way to sin, grace doth not undertake to keep a man from the fearfullest falls that can be, nor from the fearfullest distempers. Indeed when a man hath play'd the beast, God may preserve him, but a man cannot look for this at the hands of God; who knows how God will deal with him, if he be unthankful to God for his grace and goodnesse, and mercy vouchsafed unto him?

The second Use. Is it so that a child of God may be left to himselfe to fall fouly, then let every one that hopes he hath any grace, learn the words of Saint Paul, Work out your salvation with fear and trembling, Phil. 2 12. Hath any man gotten quickening? goe on with fear and trembling; hath any got softnesse of heart? in the fear of God goe on with a trembling heart, and consider how brittle your hearts are; they are like glass, you had need goe charily and tenderly up and down; grace is a fine delicate thing; if it be cherished and preserved, and stirred up, what a deal of good may a man attain unto? if God hath been good to any of us, to give us any saving grace, we are very fooles if we look not to it; it is a dainty and delicate thing; it cannot enter indeed into a mans heart to conceive what a great mercy God hath vouchsafed unto him, if he hath bestowed any grace upon him; therefore be chary of it, and remember Lots Wife; remember those fearful examples; remember how David brake his bones; remember the miserable, distressed, uncomfortable condition thou mayst bring thy soul into, if thou dost not take heed to thy selfe? and if thou beest in such a condition, consider what gracious promises there are to help thee up again, and what gracious examples, to make thee think with thy selfe, there is yet grace, and mercy, and quickening for me; and if I seek God, he will assuredly be found of me. Use 2.

The third Use. Is it so, that a childe of God may fall so foulely? Then let not any man stumble at this Doctrine; let not any think a childe of God cannot fall to be so dead; I say, doe not stumble at it, but rather see if it be not thy case, if thou art not fallen down into this depth of misery; for what have I said? did not I say that a childe of God might lose his zeal? Look abroad what zeal is up and down, what yearnings when the Church is in misery; nay, what need we look abroad? who hath zeal against his own sins and corruptions? Again, did I not say that a childe of God may lose his affections? what affections are now a dayes? we heare Sermons, but what affections are stirred up, either in hearing, or speaking the Word of God? So for prayer, what affections are there in prayer? So for sin, what griefe is there for our sins? There is no affection or sorrow at all in us. Where is that same anguish of heart that should be in us for our corruptions? they are even lost; I speak not of wicked men only, but even of good people, though they be sensible of their deadnesse, and hardnesse of heart, though they see it, yet they are not able to relent at it; Then for desires, where are they? Did I say a childe of God may have hardly any desire almost, not be able to wrestle with God for grace, and tug for it; and is not this our case? What frozen prayers? what cold devotions are sent up from day to day? So, did I say a childe of God may be senselesse of sin? How far hath this distemper grown upon us now a dayes? our hearts might even ake to be privy to that backwardnesse, and untowardnesse, and unfruitfulnesse; I say, it might make us to be at our wits end, until we were delivered, and yet no man complaines; there is complaining in a dull manner, but no mans heart bursts almost. Again, did I say a childe of God may grow palpably vain, and proud, and worldly, that a man that hath but halfe an eye may see it, and take notice of it? is not it thus among us? how do we discover our shame whersoever we come? those that have but half an eye see how worldly we are, and how we have Use 3.

no mind to God, and the things of eternal life; is not this our conversation from day to day? nay, the very world sees it, they see how heartless good people are grown.

Use. 4. The last use may be to rap all mens fingers off, that think to comfort themselves with this that hath been said; there are these things will answer these conceits; first, all this is nothing to thee, unless thou wert once a godly, holy, zealous man; for all these examples are of men that were once zealous and forward for God and goodness; they were once changed from the estate of nature to the estate of grace: And again, when they were fallen, they gat up again, and were the more wary and watchful afterwards, but it is not so with thee.

Causes of deadness. 1. Gener. Now we come in the next place to shew what are the causes of this deadness of mens hearts, in these times wherein God hath revealed himself more fully and clearly; the general reason of this is the giving way to sin, and not looking to themselves to abstain from sin, and have a care of the commandments of God, and walking before him as they ought to do, which thing is an horrible deader of the heart; as Solomon speaks concerning the adulterer, he knows not that the dead are there; when a man gives way to sin, to worldliness, or passion, or any other corruption, he doth even go where the dead are, and there where the guests of hell are; if a man give way to pleasure, to be carried away with sinful delights, this will dead mans heart; as the Apostle sheweth of the Widows that lived in pleasure, 1 Tim. 5. 6. they were dead while they were alive; as soon as ever David gave way to his sinful corruptions, his heart was deaded presently upon it, as may appear by the prayer he had afterwards, when he came to himself, and to look out for quickning, uphold me with thy free spirit, Psal. 51. 12. as who should say, I feel a base dull slavish spirit come upon me, that former liveliness that was in me it is wofully decayed; sin had made a mighty breach in his soul, it had knockt off his wheels and made him dull, and therefore he fain to pray that God would give him a free spirit again; so it was with Peter, as soon as ever he had given way to his curiosity, and security, and presumption, he would needs go and see fights, he would go into the high Priests hall, and see how the business went; he did not see the proneness of his heart to be carried into sin; now you may see how wofully it deaded his heart in a moment, as soon as the damsel spake, thou also wert with Jesus of Galilee; a man would wonder how no life at all almost appeared in the mans heart; if he had had any life, would he have carried himself in that fashion? his life was so gone, that he cursed and sware that he never knew him; if he had any life in him, he would rather have said, what if I was with Jesus of Galilee? I was with him, and I am with him, and I will be with him, I am ready to dye with him, I profess my self to be his Disciple; he had no heart in the world to stand for Jesus Christ; he had no heart to appear in pleading for him, and expose himself to danger for him; he was now called to it, but he had no heart at all; sin it is even like ashes cast upon the fire, the fire cannot then send forth its heat; so sin doth even cast ashes upon the soul, that it cannot express such life as otherwise it would.

The first reason is, because sin is a soul killing thing; it is like Mare Mortuum, the fishes dye as soon as ever they come there; so when the Divel hooks a man into sin, he hooks him into the dead sea; as the Apostle saith of the Ephesians, you were dead in sins; if the Divel can but hook a man into sin, he is presently in the dead sea; Hos. 13. 12. It is said of Ephraim, when he offended in Baal he died, &c. before, when their affections were up, and they trembled before God, they were lively; but when they gave way to sin and iniquity, the Church presently died, they withered away more and more till they came to nothing; therefore the Apostle calls the Law of sin, the

Mat. 26. 47.

Prov. 9. 18.

Eph. 2.

Hos.

the Law of death; the Law of the ſpirit of Chriſt hath freed us from the Law of ſin, and of death, Rom. 8. 2. ſin doth even bring a man to deaths door; it doth weaken all the powers and faculties of the ſoul, that a man cannot ſtir to any duty; it makes a man like a ſnake that is frozen with the cold, it cannot ſtir; ſo it is with a man when he gives way to ſin and iniquity, it benumbeth all the powers that are in him, and leſſeneth all the powers of Gods ſpirit; it is even like a weight, as the Apoſtle calls it, Heb. 12. 1. If a man ſhould have a great weight upon his back, fetters upon his legs, how can that man go? he muſt needs go very dully; ſo it is with ſin and iniquity, when a man gives way to it, it is like plumets of lead, like great weights and burthens that clog a mans heart and affections, it makes them dull and lumpiſh and heavy to any thing that is good; as Chriſt ſpeaks of the cares of this life, if a man give way to them, they will overcharge the heart; they will lie heavy that the heart cannot ſtir, Luke 21. 34. ſin poyſons all the ſoul, it poyſons the mind, that a man cannot look upon things as he did; it poyſons a mans heart, though his heart were deeply affected towards God; it is ſtrange, If a man give way to ſin, how it will take off the affections from God, it ſeparates between God and the ſoul, and comes between God the fountain of life and the ſoul, and therefore muſt needs be a killing and deading thing.

Secondly, Sin is a deading thing, becauſe it doth grieve the holy ſpirit of God that dwels in a man; you know all the quickning of a Chriſtian conſiſts in the gracious aſſiſtance of Gods ſpirit; as long as Gods ſpirit is pleaſed to go along with us, and work our works for us, then we can pray and deny our ſelves, then we are fitted to every good word and work; but if the ſpirit of God retire, if it withdraw and ſuſpend his actions, and forbear his operations, what can a man do? a man is even a block without the ſpirit of God; now though the ſpirit of God delight never ſo much in doing good to the Saints, and delight in accompanying of them, and aſſiſting of them, and enlarging of them in all their wayes; yet if they give way to ſin directly, he will be grieved, and ſent ſad back again to heaven, as it were; and when the ſpirit of God is grieved, all muſt needs go ſad and heavy with the child of God; ſuppoſe a child of God give way to vain talk and diſcourſe; you ſhall ſee what the Apoſtle ſaith, this will grieve the ſpirit of God; grieve not the ſpirit of God, whereby ye are ſealed to the day of redemption, Eph. 4. 13. he ſpeaks of that very ſin, if a man give way to it, the ſpirit of God will be grieved; though formerly he was pleaſed mightily to help, yet now he will withdraw; and then how dully ſhall a man goe? ſo if we ſhould give way to the ſuffering of our hearts not to be affected with God and his truth, not to ſee God in all his wayes, in all his goodneſs, and dealings, that we ſhould not be thankful, this will quench the ſpirit of God, it will quench its motions; as if a man ſhould pour pail-fuls of water upon the fire, ſo this will quench the ſpirit of God, 1 Theſſ. 5. 18, 19. there is a manifeſt dependence between all thoſe exhortations; and this is certain, let a man once not be affected with God, let him not ſee Gods goodneſs in all his wayes, let him not be affected with Gods mercy and loving kindneſs, it will quench the ſpirit of God; and then conſider what a lamentable caſe a man ſhall be in.

Thirdly, Sin muſt needs dead a mans heart, becauſe it doth put a moſt vaſt bitter hard task upon the ſoul to go through; for you know hard tasks ſtir up reluctancy againſt them; when a man hath an hard task to go through, the very thought of it dulls him; it is like a ſtone upon his heart; now let a man ſin againſt grace and the goodneſs of God, and Gods gracious dealing, let a man ſin againſt theſe, it doth put a man to a moſt hard task to go through, to go and humble himſelf before Almighty God; and the ſoul ſhall find a world of conflicts, that he is loth to come to it, loth to deal about this bitter buſineſs, to go about to renew his repentance with bitter remorſe for his ſins; it is like a deſperate debtor that hath run himſelf over head and ears in debt; the very thought of coming to a reckoning is death to him, he cannot abide to think of it; it is like a boy that hath made falſe Latine; if his Maſter ſhould call him to conſtrue and pearſe it, and give a rule for every word, he knows it is not according to rule, he hath not looked after rule, and every thing is falſe; now he cannot abide to come to conſtrue and pearſe it; ſo when a man hath provoked God by his ſins, and hath broken his covenant, and ſlighted his ordinances, when God calls him to conſtrue and pearſe, what do you make of ſuch an action, and ſuch a word, and ſuch a thought? the heart is even afraid of theſe things, as a dog is of a whip; it is an hard task to be brought to this; as David, when he had yielded to his ſecurity, and idleneſs, and unwatchfulneſs, and ſo had given way to Satan, you may ſee what an hard task he brought upon his ſoul, and how his ſoul was ever afraid to go about humiliation; how many frowning looks doth a man caſt upon the pykes he muſt go through, if he mean to obtain mercy; it even deads him as a dagger at his heart; David was loth to come to this, to come to a reckoning, to come to be humbled; when Bathſheba ſent him word that ſhe was with child, then God called him to a reckoning to be humbled; God told him to his face it is high time to be humbled, and aſhamed; God hath been laying rods in brine for thee, and to bring thee upon the ſtage, and to make thee odious and vile in the ſight of the world; yet he was loth to come to a reckoning, he ſhun'd it, and ſhut his eyes from ſeeing it, he deviſed tricks to get Uriah home to his Wife; and when this would not be, but Uriah carried himſelf conſtantly, with feeling of the caſe of the Church that then lay in the field againſt their enemies; this could not but call for humbling, yet he ſhunned it ſtill, and inſtead of humbling himſelf, he went further into the briars, and made Uriah drunk, thinking then he would go home; it is impoſſible but he ſhould ſee the hand of God in all this, that he gave him warning to down on his knees; but he ſhunned it again, and inſtead of humbling himſelf, he deviſed the death of Uriah, and when news came Uriah is dead, which one would think ſhould have been as an hammer to have knockt him down, he puts this off, the ſword kills one as well as another, and till the Lord was pleaſed to ſet it on, he could not be brought to humble himſelf; thus it is, ſin puts an hard task upon a man; a man may eaſily fly into ſin, it is a merry way unto it; but when a man is once in, he cannot get out again, without tearing and rending, and abaſing, and caſting himſelf down before God; this is an hard task, and the ſoul ſhall find abundance of reluctancies, and the very thought of it deads the ſoul, unleſs the Lord be the more merciful.

A fourth reaſon why ſin deads a man, is, becauſe ſin defiles the conſcience, for ſin is a dead work, and it goes into the conſcience and defiles it, until it be purged by the blood of Chriſt. Heb. 9. 14. ſin is a dead work, and the winding ſheet of it is the conſcience; preſently as ſoon as a man doth iniquity, this dead work runs into the conſcience; and catcheth hold, and this defiles the conſcience, and puts guilt into it; and nothing in the world more deads a man then a guilty conſcience; why becauſe it knocks a mans fingers off from that which ſhould enliven and quicken him, it makes him ſee that he doth defile Gods promiſes if he medle with them, Iſa. 38. 16. the promiſes of God are the things by which men live; now when the conſcience is guilty, it doth even knock a mans fingers off from the promiſes, it tells him this guilt muſt out firſt, before he can apply the promiſes, nay, the very hearing of the promiſes deads his heart, and this is the reaſon why good people, as long as they have not clear consciences, rather call for Sermons of judgement then of mercy; and their consciences say the promises doe not belong to me; I know God is an holy God, and his promises holy; and it is no meddling with them without holinesse; therefore when a man gives way to sin, he must needs dead his heart, because he defiles his own conscience; and therefore no wonder that there is so much deadnesse up and downe, when there is hardly a clear conscience in the Country; nay, good people, how slightly doe they deal in this case, and hinder their own life and quickning, because they have not a care to come before God with a cleare conscience!

people

The fifth Reason is, Because sin doth either utterly destroy, or mightily weaken all assurance of welcome with God; and therefore no marvel if it dead the heart; for if a man cannot look for comfort and entertainment with God when he goeth to him, it takes man off from that willingnesse to come into Gods presence, it makes a man idle of God, and of Jesus Christ, and his Ordinances; it makes a man that he hath no desire to pray almost, nay, sometimes he hath no heart at all; nay, sometimes he totally omits the duty, he is so afraid, he cannot goe to God without carnal fears and misgivings, and horrours; and this takes the heart quite off for a time, that he cannot pray at all; it is like a childe when he hath committed some villany that he knows his father knowes, he is shy of coming into his fathers presence, he is afraid to come where his father is, he knowes he shall be chid, and hear of his doings; so it is in this case; it is not thus with wicked and ungodly men; for they can look God in the face; but Gods own people, when they sin against God, it must needs take off that cheerful willingnesse to goe before God, that delight to be in his presence, that comfort in prayer; sinne makes it an irksome thing; sinne makes a man to have little heart to deal with God; for the heart doth not love to be caught by God in Satans company, or of any lust; as a servant cannot abide that his Master should take him in any villany or unfaithfulnesse; if he hath been unfaithful, it would kill his heart that his Master should take him in it; so it is with Gods children, let them sinne against God, it doth dull and dead their hearts, in regard of the throne of grace, it makes them have small heart to come before it: See it in Jonah; when he had fled away from God, and had put off Gods charge, and was gone downe to Joppa, and was shipped into the Sea, see whether he had any minde to pray, or call upon God or no; he had none in the earth; nay, he was afraid of God, and shy of his presence, he knew he should be upbraided; indeed when God laid it upon his conscience, then Jonah prayed; but he did not pray before that, if he did, it was as good as nothing: So it is noted of David, when he had committed his sins, he confesseth he roared to God, but we can hear of no prayer; but when God sent Nathan, then he could pray; it is the title of the 51. Psalm, A Psalm of David when Nathan came to him; then he could pray; but all the while sinne lay upon his soul, he could not pray; or if he did, he did but roar, he came before God with horror, and unbelief, and dismay, and had no comfort: Now when a man is privy to sin, what man that hath the knowledge of God, how ill God likes these courses, how ill he likes a mans pride and security, and neglect of worship and service; how can it chuse but the thought of these things should gall his heart? And thus we see for the general, that it is sinne that deads mens hearts, when they give way to it. Jonah 1.

Now for particulars, What are those sins that cause this deadnesse up and down? First, the niggardlinesse of people in Gods service, they will do no more for him then they must needs doe, whereas a quickened heart that loves quickning, will rather overdoe then underdoe, and will rather superabound, 2 Particu. 1.

a bound, then be wanting; there are many duties in Religion that we have no expreſs text of Scripture for, for ſuch a quantity, or ſuch a meaſure, or ſuch a time, or how often: as how often we ſhould pray in ſecret every day, how often we ſhould meditate, and how long at a time, how much we ſhould give out of alms, how much we ſhould doe thus and thus; the duty is commanded, but the quantity for time or frequency is not expreſſed in Scripture; there be a thouſand things of this nature. Now a man that loves his own quickning, will rather overdoe in this caſe then underdoe; as it was with Philemon, Phil. 21. Paul you knowv was to entreat him to doe an act of kindneſs to receive Oneſimus; now, ſaith he, I know thou wilt doe more then I ask of thee, &c. He would rather overdoe then underdoe; So it was with the Iſraelites, when God would have them offer to the building of the Tabernacle, he did not tell them how much, but they would rather overdoe then underdoe, Exod. 36. 5. They brought ſo much, that the Lord was fain to ſay there was enough, and too much: So it was with the Macedonians, 2 Cor. 8. 3. Paul asked a little, they gave more: So it is with a man that loves quickning; if God bid him pray twice a day, rather then fail he will pray thrice a day; If God have required ſome time in his ſervice, he will rather give him more time then afford him ſmaller time, as Chriſt ſaith, If a man will have thy coat, let him have thy cloak alſo; as who ſhould ſay, rather overdo then underdoe, If thou beeſt called to doe any thing for the glory of God, and the good of thine own ſoul, or the good of others; we ſhould imitate God in this; God gives his people above that which they ask; ſo we ſhould doe more then is asked. I doe not mean as if we could do more then God bids us; for God requires all the heart, and all the minde, and all the ſtrength; but I ſpeak of a frank and free heart; when he doth not know what meaſure God ſets down in his Word, he will rather doe more then leſſe; he will rather be with the forwardeſt then with the backwardeſt, if he love his own quickning; but when a man growes niggardly in Gods ſervice, and will doe no more then needs muſt, and takes advantage that he may doe as little as may be, this deads the heart; becauſe there is no expreſſe place in Scripture for prayer in this kinde, he will take any advantage in the world, for his own ſecurity, and worldlineſs, and littleneſs in Gods ſervice, he lieth at catch; in this caſe this man ſets open his heart to all deadneſs; therefore no marvel he hath no life; where is a man in town or country, that is like to Philemon, that a Miniſter may ſay, I know thou wilt doe more then I ſay? It were well if we could ſay, thou wilt do as much as I ſay; nay, it is come to this paſs, we may ſay, I know you will do nothing at all; I may bid thee doe this and that, but thou wilt do nothing at all; people will hardly regard the Communion of Saints at all, they will hardly regard ſecret prayer at all, they will heartily regard any of thoſe duties upon which life and quickning ſo much depends; and this is one cauſe of the horrible deadneſs that is everywhere.

Matth. 22.

Secondly, Another cauſe is unwatchfulneſs; people doe not watch over their ſoules, and over their wayes, they doe not ponder their paths; they have not an eye to their wayes; this is a great cauſe of deadneſs of heart therefore here when Chriſt chargeth the Church of Sardis with deadneſs, I know thou haſt a name to live, but art dead: In the next words he gives a remedy, Be watchful therefore; as who ſhould ſay, here is the cauſe of thy deadneſs, thou haſt not been watchful; if thou hadſt been watchful, thou hadſt eſcaped all this deadneſs; if thou hadſt ſtoop upon thy guard, and looked well to thy wayes, this had never been; if a man be quickened at any time, the Devil lieth at catch; and if he doe not watch, he will be deaded again, as the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Pet. 5. 8. A man had need be watchful, elſe he can never preſerve himſelfe from the temptations of Satan; when when a City is beleaguered with the enemy, there are ever some Watchers and Scouts that lie in wait, that so if any danger be towards, they may give warning, lest it be surprized on the sudden; so when God doth good to our hearts, how should we keep watch over our soules; for we are beleaguered on every side, sometimes with presumption, and sometimes with despair; we are every way in danger, therefore we had need to watch; no sooner had Eve gone apart from her husband, and looked here and there, but the Devil took her presently; no sooner had Noah begun to tast the liquor of the grape he had planted, and delighted in it, but presently the Devil hooked him in, which he might have prevented if he had been watchful; the Devil is that Nimrod, that greedy hunter, that goeth up and down, and makes pits, and layes snares to catch souls, and if we doe not watch, we fall into them, 1 Cor. 2. 3. Paul saith, I was among you with much feare; he knew what danger he was in, therefore he was in much fear; if we did love our own quickning, and the cherishing of whatsoever grace we have received, we would watch over our selves; but where is this? generally all the world is fast asleep, even good men and all; the Devil may sow what tares he will, there is no watching in prayer and in hearing of the Word, and doing good duties; no watching in observing the Sabbath; no watching in company; no watching alone; what may not the Devil doe, when we are all as sleepy dogs, and love to snoar? and dulnesse, and deadnesse, and blockishnesse, and worldlinesse, and unsettlednesse grows upon us to the utmost; there is no body watching against temptations, they may come flowing in like violent waters, there is no withstanding of them; people are like to Saul, that was marvellous finely quickened at one time, he would not goe on in his envy against David, he should not die by any meanes; no, his heart was so enlarged, that he bound his soul by a covenant, that he would be as good as his word, As the Lord lives he shall not die. Jonathan had used many arguments, and they so wrought upon him, that he could give the right hand to David, and all his malice was out, and David was a great man at Court again, 1 Sam. 19. 6, 7, 8. But for want of watchfulnesse, within a little while the evil spirit came into him, and he would have murthered him again; so Jonah, when he had run from God, and God had humbled him, now he would never follow lying vanities any more; now he would goe to Nineveh and preach, let what danger would come; but by and by, not looking to himselfe, he is as much out of tune again as ever he was, as if he had never had these things, he was overgrown with passions, I doe well to be angry, even Jonah. 4. unto death; I cannot tell which was the fouler distemper.

A third Cause of our general deadnesse, is the lownesse of Religion, which men generally content themselves withal; a low kinde of Religion, that will never reach half way to Heaven, that will never attain to any quickning; Religion, it is a very high thing, Prov. 15. 24. It is a thing alone, a man must raise himself aloft, when he means to come into the way of eternal life; it is an high calling, Phil. 3. 14. It is said of Jehoshaphat, that his heart was lifted up in the wayes of God; Jerusalem, that is above; all 2 Chron. 17. godly souls that have true Religion indeed, are men above: Now people generally content themselves with a low kinde of serving of God, that doth not come out of the suburbs of Hell and condemnation; the suburbs of hell Gal. 4. reach a great way, a man may goe even to heaven-gates, and yet be in the suburbs of hell; but to get into heaven, and escape hell beneath, is an high pitch; but men seek out a low way by the valleys, they think to come to heaven this way, it would choak most people to say, that their conversation is in heaven, as the Apostles was; that they are strangers upon earth, as Phil. 3. the Patriarchs were; that they hate every sinne, as all godly men doe, that they they go mourning all the day long under their corruptions and failings, and that it is the greatest grief of their hearts that they walk not according to Gods goodness, and that they use all means to get rid of their sins; that they delight in every ordinance, that they delight in Gods Sabbaths, and hunger and thirst after righteousness; it is the greatest desire of their souls and hearts to do thus; it would choak them to say thus, no they never attain it; this is the way of life that is above, but it is too high for fooles; therefore no wonder that men never come to quickning, for they are not in the way of life, for the way of life is above, and Bro. 15. they grope after the things below, and have not their conversation above; now how can we look for quickning, when we do not go in the way of life which is above?

Fourthly, Another reason is the vanity of mens minds; this is the cause of horrible deadness, Psal. 119. 37. vanity when a man gives way to it, it doth horribly dead the heart; vain thoughts, vain speeches, vain expence of time, vain meetings together without benefit, these are deaders, they lock up mens hearts, and exhaust all the good, and all the sap of any goodness in them; 'tis true, the children of God may talk how things go in a far country in the Church of God and other places, and they may talk of their business in the world, and this may be like bottle-beer; when it is first poured out into the cup it seems to be all froth, but by and by it turns to good liquor again; so though these discourses about worldly affairs, and how things go are froth, if they go no further; yet if they turn to good discourse, and are sanctified, and brought home to the heart, to edifie and instance, and are sanctified, and brought home to the heart, to edifie and awaken, and bring a man nearer to God, now they are good where there is a good use made of them; but otherwise they are horrible instruments of death, and soul-murther among men.

Fifthly, Mutual example; we do even dead one another; for people are apt to look upon one another; Ministers upon people, and people upon Ministers, and Ministers one upon another, and if we be not much cast down one another, we hope all is well with us; this is that which deads people hearts; whereas people should follow Gods light, Gods dealing with them, and not look upon others; and if we look upon others, we should look upon those that are quickned, Luke 7. 44. seest thou this woman, &c. there was a woman was quickned indeed, her bowels melted, her eyes were fountains of tears, her very soul was affected, she was quickned indeed; seest thou this woman? so if we will look upon others, upon the Saints of God, seest thou this woman? look upon those that are most quickned; but when we look upon others, and say, such a one doth so and so, and why may not I? I may do as well as he; when we do thus, this is apt to dead our hearts.

The sixth cause of deadness, is covetousness and worldliness; Christians that have been weaned from the world, so long as they keep their minds off from the world, and set them upon better things, they are full of life and quickning, and are able to pray and confer sweetly; but when they once they come to let in the world again, this doth mightily dead and damp their hearts, this doth wonderfully lay bolts and fetters upon their soul, that it cannot go on as formerly, as the Apostle shews, 2 Tim. 4. 10. as soon as ever a man gives way to look after the world, presently, if he had any faith he errs from it, if he had any quickning before, he is now dead; this deaded Demas his heart; for a time he was so full of life, that he was able to hold company with St. Paul, but when this came once to take possession of him, Demas hath forsaken me, he was gone, he was able to hold 2 Tim. 4. company with Paul no longer; worldliness will quickly take off all the affections, and all the quickning that was in the soul, it will presently fall and die, and decay; therefore you shall see when the Lord would set down how how dull Ezekiels hearers were, and how heartless, he sets down this as a reason of it, their heart is gone after their covetousness, Ezek. 33. no marvel then they went not after Ezekiels Sermons; for their hearts could not go after both at once; so long as their hearts were after the world and profits, they must needs be dead and untoward to the word of God; therefore the Apostle saith, Eph. 5. 3. let not covetousness be named among you, as becometh Saints; as who should say, it will utterly dead and kill all your Saint-qualities and dispositions that are in you, if you suffer your hearts to grow earthly; the damps of the earth as one saith, doth not more quench a candle and put it out, then the love of the world doth damp grace, and put it out presently; and this is the cause of that deadness that is grown among us; we are grown worldly, and the world carries us away; we are all for the world, so that all our words, thoughts, affections, carriages, they are all little else but worldly; most people have many businesses abroad in the world, riding abroad into the world; but who takes that short journey into his own heart? people can tend businesse with every body else but themselves; they know what is done beyond sea, and the countries round about, and yet hardly any one marks how things go in his own soul, whither he goes backward, or forward; whither he gets, or loseth; every body can ask how others do, but no man looks how his own soul doth; people are grown at great distance from themselves; I speak not of drunkards or prophane persons, such as are absolutely dead in sins and trespasses, but I speak of Christians in whom we should look for life; we are grown strangers to our selves, we are out of our own reach, we are grown to a mighty distance from looking to our own estates and conditions as we ought to do; our minds are scattered and down about other things; therefore no marvel we are so heartlesse towards God.

Seventhly, The next cause is idleness and spiritual sloth, when men let their minds go as a boat without a guide; the boat goeth uncertainly when there hath no body to guide and steer it; so people let their thoughts, and hearts, and minds run at all adventures; people do not take pains with their own hearts, and hold them to that which is good; we let our hearts be like the field of the sluggard, any thing may grow in them for all us; we do not look to our hearts, that we may have good things grow in them, and that we may fence our hearts from those things which may make us untoward in the wayes of God; if we have any stirrings at any time, we are like idle fellows; when the liquor hath done working they forget to stop up the bung-hole; so when men have any stirrings, then they are in motion and affection; but when they are gone, they let their hearts get a vent and they are deaded again, as if they had nothing at all; as Solomon shews, Prov. 19. 15. though a man hath enough for the present, yet if he grow idle, when that is spent he will famish and starve, and die; the idle soul shall suffer hunger; may be he hath something now, but if he be idle and sluggish, that may be all spent, and then for want of supply he may famish; so it is with the soul; though it hath something for the present, yet if it be idle, and sluggish, and slothful, and take not pains from day to day, it must needs go to wrack; when God gives us knowledge of sin, we should improve that knowledge to root out sin; when God gives us insight into graces, we should apply it, that we may get those graces; if God give us his ordinances, if he give us a Sermon at any time, we should presently work with it. As it is with a graft that a man cuts off to plant and set, if he lets it lie till it be dead, it will never grow, but if he presently plant it, it will take in the ground and prosper: so if a man would presently take a good motion when it comes, if he would presently take hold of a reproof or counsel given him out of the word of God, while it hath life in it, and works upon his heart, the heart might receive much benefit; but when people are blockish and dull, they are not willing to take any pains, no wonder though they go down as they do, Eccles. 10.18. by much slothfulness the building decayeth, &c. It is so in the spiritual building; if people be slothful, all gracious things must needs vanish away, and go out more and more; and this is a most grievous thing; it is generally among all people, nay, among the better sort; for wicked men that live palpably in sin, they are struck dead in sin, and never had any colour of life; but I speak of those that have had some kind of quickning, yet notwithstanding suffer themselves to be deaded through idleness; when we go to prayer, we do not put forth our selves in prayer, our prayers are dead; when we go to the word, we do not put forth our minds, and therefore our hearing is dead; our hearts are like to a sieve; when it is in the water it is full, but when it is once taken out again, not a jot remains; so it is while people are at a Sermon, may be they seem to drink in something, and their hearts are affected (yet these people are rare too) but when they are gone, all is gone, all leaks out again for want of stopping, for want of observing the things they have heard; this is the reason there is no more life among Christians, because they are so idle and sluggish; thou evil and slothful servant, saith Christ; when a man is a slothful servant, he must needs be an evil servant; Christians will confess may be now and then of grace, but with such loose thoughts that there is no edification or quickning; nay, their hearts grow dull and sleepy under the same; how is it possible a man should get any quickning, or keep it without labour and pains? men must labour for it, as the Apostle saith, give all diligence to make this sure; it is said of Paul, that he followed hard after the mark; there is nothing can be done in this thing without labour; as it is with our outward callings, if a man will have a living in the world, he must labour for it; the earth will bring forth no fruit unless he till it, and take pains about it; so it is here much more; a mans heart by reason of sin, is cursed as the earth is, and it will bring forth nothing but weeds, vanities, fooleries, and vile passions, and inordinate affections, unless a man be still husbanding it; therefore unless a man be diligent in this work, he can never be quickned.

Matth. 25.

2 Pet. 1. Phil. 3.

Eighthly, In the next place, the neglect of secret duties is the cause of the deadness of our hearts in all duties of Religion; secret duties are the best quickners; when a man goeth alone, and serveth God alone, as it is spoken of Peter, when his heart was dead and untoward in the high Priests hall; if he had had any life, he would have stood for Christ; What if I be one of them? what say you to that? I am one, and I confess it, and if that be my fault, it shall be my fault still; but he was dead and had no life; now what course did he take? he went out (and went by himself) and wept bitterly; he went to a private and secret duty, to humble his soul before Almighty God; when a man is sick and would recover his health, he goes and betakes himself to a chamber, and shuts the windows, and will not let the air come in; so if a man would recover life and quickning, the saving health of his soul, he must take himself to his chamber, and privately deal with God concerning his own soul, as the Prophet speaks, Zech. 12. every family apart, the house of David apart, and the house of Nathan apart; when Jeremiah would humble himself before God, Jer. 15. 17. I sate alone, saith he; so even go and sit alone.

Matth. 26.

But you will say, are not publique duties better then private? 'tis true they are so, when we may have publique duties as on the Sabbath day, or any other day, when we may go to publique ordinances, then to go to private duties, to private prayer, &c. this is to despise Gods publique worship; but if we be not diligent in secret duties, in private calling upon God, if we be not frequent frequent in these, all outward duties of Gods worship will do us no good; the preaching of the Word will do us no good, except we preach to our selves; the prayers in the congregation will do us no good, if we pray not in our closets; now when men neglect private prayer, and seeking of God; when a good motion comes into their mind to seek God in secret, they put it off, they will do it anon, they shall have more leisure another time, and if they do it, they do it lothly and hoverly, even so, so, they do not do it roundly and throughly as they ought to do; this deads their hearts, Lam. 3. 28. the Church sate alone; that is the way to be quickned; if a man did love quickning, he would plot and study to be alone, nay, he would search all the corners of his house for privacy; if he did love his own quickning, he would do thus, he would be frequent with God in secret; it is noted that the greatest work that ever Jacob did, it was in private, Gen. 32. 24. he had sent all his company away, and dispatched them over the brook, he was left alone, and so went to tug with God all alone, and there wrestled so hard, that he would not let the Angel go until he had blessed him; so this were the way for people to take God aside, and go between him and them, and there afflict their souls and acknowledge all their vileness, there to be instant with him, and look up to him and bless him; as it is noted of our Saviour Christ, he would shift out of the way many times, and go and pray alone, Mat. 14. 23. We may do that when we are alone, that we cannot do in any company; we may speak that in private, which is not fit for the Wife, or the brother to hear; a man may do that alone, which he is not able to do when he is in company; how many secret arguments hath a man to move God in private? many secret businesses that only God and his own soul knows off; so that if he would be diligent in private duties, he knows not what good he might do to his own soul: Now the neglect of this blessed Ordinance of God, of seeking of him in secret, is the cause of this deadness; nay, the want of this duty is the cause why publique Ordinances do us no more good.

Ninthly, The next cause of deadness is the not looking after inward duties in a mans own breast; spiritual life and quickning is an inward thing, and it is inward duties that must cherish it; and the omitting of these duties doth most destroy it and let it die. I say inward duties; outward duties it is more ease doing of them; as for a man to pray, and hear, and receive the Sacrament, and externally to observe the Sabbath, or outwardly to confer and sing Psalms, and read a Chapter; these outward duties a man may do them with more ease; nay, hypocrites may do them, and do do them, and yet never come to life and quickning; they do them after their manner; but there is no man can do them aright, but they that are quickned up in God; but I say men may do this, and never be quickned; but now there be inward duties, and these are the main quickners of the heart, and the carelesnes of these is a great cause of deadnesse; but what are these?

It is the setting of God before a mans eyes, thinking when he goeth up and down of God, of his holiness, of his precepts, of the danger of being under his displeasure, and of the happiness of being in his favour; it is for a man to be striving against temptations, and opposing his own wickedness; if sin rise up at any time, to beat it down; these be inward duties, which no man can see; if a man were in the market cross, he might do these duties and no man see him; no man can tell what a man thinks, what he is doing in his bosome; now I say, if a man would be careful of these inward duties, what a deal of good might he gain? these inward duties are they that raise up quickning, Mal. 2. 15. take heed to the spirit; many take heed to their lips, they will not speak; and to the outward man, they will not do evil; but take heed to your spirit, Eph. 5. 19. speak to your selves, saith the Apostle, we speak, may be, to others about God; this is an outward duty; but we should speak to our selves; if a man loved quickning, he would reason the case with his own soul, and speak to himself, and ever and anon upon occasion retire into his own bosome, and recolle upon his own heart, and commune with himselfe; this is it, to be inwardly resisting the Devil, and cherishing of good motions; this is an excellent thing, and nothing deads a Christian so much as the neglect of these duties. It is observed of Nehemiah, when he was speaking to the King, he was doing of an inward duty at the same time, Neh. 2. 4. At the same time that he spake to the King, he was careful of the inward duty to speak to God to blesse him, and to be with him: So when Moses was exhorting all Israel to believe in God, Exod. 14. 13, 14. At the same time when no body knew what Moses did, he was doing of an inward duty, he was crying to God; as the Lord saith, ver. 15. Moses, why criest thou unto me? This was when he was conversing with Israel, and talking with them; these inward duties may stand with any duty; they run along in prayer, and hearing of the Word: they run along when a man is in company, and when he is alone; when he is at home, and when he is abroad; when he is eating and drinking; these inward duties, if men would make much of them, it would make a man to have a gracious living heart. Now what should ayle us but that we may doe these duties? we have no excuse for the not doing of them; when we are in company, what should ayle us but we may think thus? I will take heed now, I will not speak words that my heart may reproach me for afterwards, I will behave my selfe as I ought; though a persecutor of Religion were in company, can he know our thoughts? No man can persecute or mock him for any of these; a man may think as good thoughts as he will, if he hath an heart to them; and this will keep up a mans quickning; when a man goeth abroad, what should hinder but he may be imployed in inward duties, considering seriously, and thinking solemnly, how it stands between God and his soule? what should hinder a man from these duties? Now the neglect of these is the cause of the deadnesse of mens hearts; people come to Church, and hear Sermons, but what do ye do within? do you set up Gods Ordinances in your bosomes? do you set up a Christian watch in your bosomes? and prayer in your bosoms? how do you go up and down all day long? is heaven in your bosoms? is the fear of God in your bosoms, preserving and keeping of you? This is that which will quicken you; and a man can never be quickned, if he make not conscience of this.

Lastly, Another cause of deadnesse, is peoples contenting themselves with what they have attained unto; if they have gotten any thing, they are apt to set up their staves there, and content themselves as if all were well: this is the cause of the deadnesse of peoples hearts, because every link sufficeth them; if they have but any hope that they are of God, and for his name; if they finde they have any thing in them, they are apt to be secure, and not to be earnest to grow in grace from day to day. Now when this gets into a mans heart, it will dead him presently; therefore the Apostle, when he perceived many of the Hebrews deaded their hearts this way, he shakes them up, Heb. 6. 1. Leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection: As who should say, Let us on, on, for shame unto perfection, let us proceed further, let us not ever be learning and never come to the knowledge of the truth; let us not be ever laying a foundation, and never building thereupon; let us not be ever going about repentance, and faith, and the first principles of the Oracles of God, and never come to perfection: This is the effect of the Epistles of Peter, that people should not content themselves with what they have, but that they they may grow and goe forward; Deſire the ſincere milk of the Word, that you may grow thereby, 1 Pet. 2. 2. and grow in grace, 2 Pet. 3. 18. He is bearing upon this, that no man ſhould content himſelfe with any meaſure already attained; if he do, his heart will be deaded, and made dull and blockiſh to all goodneſſe; and this is another cauſe of the deadneſs of peoples hearts, they are at a ſtay, they are at a ſtand; every man (may be) would be a good Chriſtian, and a childe of God; and if he can get but any hope that he is a childe of God, now he is ſafe, and now he goeth dully and blockiſhly on, if he can but hold there; and if he hath any fears that he is not right, then may be he begins to ſtir himſelfe a little; but as ſoon as ever he gets any hopes again that he is right, he goeth on in a blockiſh manner, and paſſeth over holy things otherwiſe then he ought to doe; and then if any ſpurs come into his conſcience, and awaken him, may be he ſtirs again, till he gets up a little hope that his condition is good, and then he falls off, and grows as ſecure again as he was before; and this deads the hearts of people.

I come now to the meanes how a man may be quickened, and the firſt is this. If we would be quickened, we muſt believe in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, we muſt goe to him (I ſpeak now to good people) if you would be quickned, you muſt goe and fetch it from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; he is a fountain of life opened unto all that come unto him; I am come (ſaith Chriſt) that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly, John 10. 10. Chriſt is not only come to quicken the dead, and raiſe them up that they may be alive towards God, barely, and nakedly; but he came to make all his people lively, that they ſhould have more life and quickning, and be more enlarged in grace; he came not onely to work the thing, but to work a growth and increaſe of it more and more: Now if you would know how to come by this life in Chriſt Jeſus, the only way is to believe in Chriſt, John 7.38 He that believeth in me, out of his belly ſhall flow Rivers of living water; there ſhall be rivers of ſpiritual life in that man, that ſhall never be drawn dry; ſo then, doe any of us ſtand ſticking at this, how ſhall we be quickned, and ſhake off this deadneſs that is in us? I ſay, look up to Chriſt, and labour truly and unfainedly to deſire him, and hunger and thirſt after him; if we did ſearch after Chriſt, wee ſhould be quickned preſently; there is no man is dead, but he that hath no care to look after Chriſt, and deſire him; if we would have Chriſt, if our hearts be open to him, if we doe but deſire him, and long for him, if we have but theſe groanes, and outgoings in our ſouls, oh that I had but Chriſt ſhed abroad in my heart! if I had him, I ſhould have life and quickning; if I had him, I ſhould have right and title to all Gods heavenly comforts; if our hearts did but goe up and down longing after Chriſt, this is the way to attain to quickning. Iſa. 55.1. Ho every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters, &c. Come, and ye ſhall have waters that ſhall never be dried up; the want of faith is the cauſe of hardneſs of heart, and of deadneſſe; as our Saviour Chriſt, when he ſaw they were dead, Matth. 16. he did upbraid them with unbeliefe: if a man did but once believe, if a man did but truly caſt his ſoul upon God, if he had but once his eyes opened to ſee the vanity of all other things, to ſee the danger of ſinne and iniquity, the miſery of all unregenerate people, and to ſee the worth of Chriſt, and the infinite goodneſſe of God in Chriſt, what an admirable pearl it is to enjoy him; how it is better then life it ſelfe, better then the whole world, yea, then thouſands of worlds; if a man did but ſee this, and had his heart affected with this, to be drawn to Chriſt, and to have his heart and minde run after him, to be poſſeſſed of him, this is faith; you that would know whether you have faith or no, if you had all the faiths in the world, you are

Means of quickning. 1. Means.

Infidels

infidels without this faith; but if you have this faith, you have true faith; if you have a heart running after Christ, minding him, and longing for him, and casting your soules upon him for all good, accounting this your principal, and total, and main good, and accordingly affecting this, these are the works of faith; and if you have these works, you may be quickned; beljeve in the Lord Jesus Christ, set your hearts upon him, and seek after him, and you shall have all manner of good, even life it self.

Second means. The second meanes is, a carefull learning of the Word of God preached. When the Corinthians were marvellously blocked u in their minds and hearts, and were straightned in good things, 2 Cor. 6 12. mark what the Apostle saith v. 11. Our mouth is open to you. &c. as who should say, In our Ministery there is abundance of grace, abundance of life, and largenesse of heart, abundance of gracious things; all manner of good things we bring with us in our Ministery; peace, and comfort, and hope, and all the promisses of God, and all the rich treasures of Jesus Christ; we come with our armes full; you are not straightned here, but you are straightned in your own bowels; as who should say, you may be enlarged sweetly by our Ministery; we deliver unto you abundance of grace and mercy, and abundance of supply; all those deadnesses, and lockings up of heart in you, would be healed by the Ministery of the Word; so may, I say, if your hearts are locked up, certainly it is for not taking what the Word offers; if you would come hungerly and greedily to the Word of God, with an heart desirous to be edified and instructed, and to apply what the Word speaks to your soules, certainly you shall here meet with abundance of grace and life; for the Word is the Word of life, and the Ministery of the Word is the Ministery of the Spirit of God and life, so that the deadnes of all people is meerly from their own bowels; you are not straightned in us, saith the Apostle, in the Ministery of the Word is abundance of life.

The third meanes is, A carefull shunning of all those causes of deadnes which we named formerly; we must take heed of sin; for if we give way to sinne, it will dead the heart, it will make a make a man shy of God, and put a man to woful tasks, and breed lothnes to goe about duties; it will make a man to have a guilty conscience, and dead a man that way; it will grieve the spirit of God, and quench all the operations, and sweet influences, and gracious motions of the Spirit, that the sweet livelinesse of his workings will be gone away, if a man give way to sinne; if he give way to the world, or slackning in a godly course; if a man give way to pride or vanity, or any sin; this will dead the heart, a mans heart will presently be deaded, if he give way to the Devil, and to his temptations. In particular, you must take heed of niggardlinesse in Religion; they that love quickning, must labour for a frank and free spirit, that will rather overdoe in Gods service then underdoe; as long as a man hath a free heart, he shall have a quickened heart; therefore labour to preserve it; doe as Philemon, I know thou wilt doe more then I say. Paul knew he had a free spirit, that if he commanded him a little, he would doe more; he would rather overdoe then underdoe; our Saviour Christ calls for this free spirit; If a man take thy coat, give him thy cloak also; rather overdoe then underdoe in any good thing; have a free heart; if God bid thee pray, pray three times, five times a day, rather then not often enough; there be many duties that God doth not set down how often, and how frequent, and how long; now labour for a free spirit; rather do twice as much, then underdo.

Again, Take heed of lownesse of Religion, of taking up a low, and base, and mean kinde of Religion, that will not reach the Kingdome of God;

God; there is a low kinde of Christianity, that will not be able to attain to salvation; a low faith, that doth not make a man to have his conversation in heaven; a low repentance, that reacheth not to mortification; a low profession of Religion, that comes not to the power of Godlineſs, Prov. 15. 24. The way of life is above; it is an high thing, therefore take heed of low Religion; for people think that any kinde of righteouſneſs will ſerve turn; if they have but a little Reformation and Religion, they preſently think this is godlineſs; but let us take heed of this low Religion, that will never do the deed.

Again, We muſt take heed of want of Watchfulneſſe; we muſt ſet up a gracious and Chriſtian watch in our hearts from day to day; when the Lord had found fault with the Church of Sardis for being dead, in the next words he bids them be watchful: as who ſhould ſay, the want of this watchfulneſs, and looking to your ſelves, and having a care over your thoughts and affections, leſt you ſhould be drawn aſide, the neglect of this is the cauſe of all deadneſs.

Again, We muſt take heed of vanity; as David ſaith, Pſal. 119. 37. Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity, and quicken me O Lord.

Again, We muſt take heed of covetouſneſs; for we ſhall never have any gracious work upon us, if we give way to it.

Again, We ſhould take heed of ſlacking and abating private duties; we ſhould carefully call upon God every day in ſecret, when there is no body by but God and our own ſouls; if we finde backwardneſs to this duty, know it comes from the Devil, that would drown us in perdition if he could; therefore we muſt reſiſt him, and goe about it; for certainly otherwiſe we cannot be quickned.

Again, We ſhould take heed of ſlighting inward duties, the holy ordinances of God in our boſoms, holy meditations, gracious ſtrivings againſt corruptions when they ariſe, ſetting the Lord before us, ſeeking Gods preſence in all places; we muſt have a care we have gracious purpoſes and endeavours, and ſtrivings inwardly in our boſomes.

Laſtly, Let us take heed of contenting our ſelves with any pitch we have attained; but ſtill labour to grow in grace, leſt we fall ſhort, and never enter into Gods reſt.

The next meanes is to be earneſt with God to quicken our hearts; to pray to God for his grace, that God would be pleaſed to put life into us; we ſhould make Eliahs prayer, that prayed to heaven for fire to come downe upon the ſacrifice; ſo pray earneſtly to God to ſend down his celeſtial fire into thy heart, to warm thee, and heat thee, and ſtir thee up to that which is good; as the Church doth, Pſal. 80. 18. Quicken us, and we will call, &c. Of all Petitions under heaven, we ſhould pray moſt of all for life, next unto the glory of God, and the ſalvation of our ſouls (nay indeed, as the very meane for both) we ſhould pray that God would quicken us; into all our prayers let us put in this Petition, that God would quicken us, evermore to have it as the ſtanding deſire of our ſouls, and the daily requeſt and ſuit we have at the throne of grace that God would quicken us; there is no grace we have more need of then this; and indeed it is that which ſets all other Graces awork; if we did know how ready God would be to welcome ſuch a ſuit, we would be more ready to pray to God for it; there is no man ſo tenderly welcome to God, as he that prayes for quickning; the more he is weary of deadneſs and common profeſſing of God, the more welcome to God; he would fain fear God indeed, and pleaſe God indeed; when a man is poſſeſſed with deep ſtudies how to attain to this, this man is a welcome man to the throne of grace; therefore let us ſtir up our ſelves to this; there is no mercy better then this, that God ſhould quicken us, Pſalm 119. 156. The fourth meanes.

119. 156. Great are thy tender mercies, quicken me, O Lord! He takes here quickning for all Gods gracious mercies and tender compassions; he takes the quickning of his heart as a gracious effect of Gods infinite mercy to his soul; if we had but this, how welcome would good duties and opportunities of doing and receiving good be unto us?

5. Meanes. The fifth meanes is to be diligent, and to take earnest and effectual paines in this work, and in all Christian duties, in all the worship of God; there is a secret blessing of God upon those that take pains, even in the meanest calling; you shall have poor Widows that have four or five small children to keep; yet being painfull, it is a wonderful thing what a blessing of God is upon them, that they make a shift to live, and never come to trouble the Parish; such a blessing of God there is upon the diligent, as Solomon saith, The hand of the diligent maketh rich, Prov. 10. 4. So it is in regard of spiritual life; there is a secret blessing of God upon the men and women that labour, and are diligent about the meanes of grace, and are careful to take paines to have them made profitable to their souls; upon those that are diligent in prayer, and striving against sin, diligent in hearing of the Word, diligent in partaking of the Sacrament when it comes, and diligent about the Sabbath, that they may not lose the benefit of it; it is a wonderful blessing that shall accompany such men; they shall thrive in grace, when as others shall be like Pharaohs lean kine, that devoured all their fellows, and yet were lean and ill-favoured still; it is not the greatness of a mans comings in that makes a man rich, but the well-managing of it; there is many a rich Heir comes to poverty, when as another that was never born to a foot of Land, yet with paines, and labour, and industry, is well able to live, and give more to any good use, then twenty base Idle fellows; let a man hold but a little ground, twenty acres, he may grow more rich upon it, being a good husband, then another man that holds twenty times as much, and is a spendthrift, and lazy, and careless, and never looks how business goes forward; there is a blessing of God upon labour and industry, as Solomon saith, Prov. 13. 11. He that gathers by labour shall encrease. So it is here; it is not he that lives under the best Ministery, that is most quickned, but he that lives under a poor Ministery, and is diligent, he is better then hundreds that live under the powerfull Preaching of the Word and never are carefull to improve it. It is noted of Johns hearers, that many of them had more life, then they that sate under Christs Ministery: It is noted of Job, though he dwelt in Midian, where was no meanes of grace, yet he had more grace and life in his heart then almost all the Church of God that dwelt in Zion; there was hardly a man in all Israel like Job; Paul, though he came into the Vineyard after all the Apostles, yet by his labour and diligence he got before most of them all; so a man that sits under the Ministery, and takes paines with his heart, that the Sermons he heares may do him good, that he may be the better for them; if a man labours to get good by the Sacrament, to get good by conference; if he labour to have every Ordinance of God made profitable to him; this man, with a little grace, shall grow more then thousands that goe on lazily, and yet have more helps then he; therefore if we desire to be quickned, let us be diligent, and take pains, and not go with our hands in our bosoms, like Solomons sluggard.

6. Means. Sixthly, Another means is to exercise that grace we have; there is never a man in this Congregation hath so little grace, but if he did exercise it so far as it would goe, who knows how much quickning he might quickly have? which of you do not know that there is a God? and that there is a Heaven, and an Hell, and the Principles of Religion? if you would but make conscience to make use of all the checks of conscience, and the know-knowledge you have, if you would but make use of that knowledge you have now and then, and the motions you have now and then, if you would but make use of them, and exercise them, this is the way to quicken you: let a man have but a little knowledge, and let him exercise it and improve it, and frame his life and conversation accordingly, knowledge shall be multiplied to this man; and so again, let a man have any relentings, any meltings now and then at a Sermon and exercise these, strike while the iron is hot, and put them to the utmost, this is the way to be quickned: as it is the saying of one, Every thing is increased with the exercise of its own kind; as it was with the bread in the Disciples hands, while they were distributing of it, it increased; so it is with the graces of Gods spirit, peculiar and saving graces, and common graces; let a man exercise the graces of Gods spirit, this is the way to abound in them, and to have them quickned and strengthned, and made more and more operative in a man; therefore let us exercise all the graces of Gods spirit, and improve them all: grace is like a snow-ball, the more it is rouled up and down, the bigger it grows; so let a man but go and improve all the graces of Gods spirit that he hath bestowed upon him, there will be addition to every one of them: by repenting a man may learn to repent; and by relenting, a man may learn to relent; and by striving against sin, he may learn to strive against sin more and more.

7. Means. The last means is to consider the examples of the worthies in all ages, and such as are even in our dayes, we should consider them, and these will quicken us up to be more forward; when St James would quicken up the Christians to whom he writes, to waite with patience the coming of the Lord, he quickens them by the example of Job, and the Prophets: so when he would quicken them up to prayer, he presseth them by the example of Elias, he was a man as well as we, saith he, and had his infirmities, yet he prayed when the heavens had been shut three years and six moneths by the Gods like this: the zeal of others may provoke us; specially if we see it before our eyes, we should think with our selves, What he so holie, and I so full of doubting? he so lively, and I so dull and blockish? he so affected, and I so untoward? this should shame us, and provoke us to stir up our selves by looking upon such, especially upon those that have taken up the profession since we did, and yet have gone beyond us; it should awaken us: this is an excellent means to quicken us; as our Saviour Christ, when he would exhort his Disciples to suffer persecution, saith he, consider the Prophets that were persecuted before you; so if we would be quickned up, we should look upon the Saints that have been quickned before us, that we may have their grace and comfort.

James 5.

1 Peter 1. Matth. 6.

Motives. 8 We come now to the last thing, and that is to perswade you by some motives to shake off this deadness. Motives are special things to quicken up a man; the Apostle when he would quicken up the Corinthians to love he useth divers Motives unto them, the first is taken from the estimation of love, with all the extraordinary gifts of Gods spirit; be shews, without love they are all nothing, though a man had all knowledge, and all faith, so that he could remove mountains, and had not love, he were nothing; so that consider love is an excellent grace, 1 Cor. 13. 1, 2, 3. Another Motive he takes from the effects and adjuncts of love, love suffereth long, &c. from the fourth to the seventh verse. Thirdly, He useth another Motive to shew how love doth generally surpass most graces in the endurance of it, Prophesie shall fail, so, knowledge shall vanish away, but love shall never be done away; love never faileth. Lastly, He compares it with the cardinal vertues, with the principal graces, namely, faith and hope, and shews how love is beyond them; hope edifies a mans self, but love edifies the whole Church of God; faith and hope must vanish, and will not go into the Kingdom of heaven with us, but love it doth alwayes accompany us; so that you see the Apostle is careful to use motives to quicken up people to that which he exhorts them unto; the Scripture as it doth bid us do a duty, so it useth motives to quicken us up to the doing of it.

And again, When it forbids any sin, it useth motives to take off our hearts from that sin; as when the Apostle would dissuade from the unworthy receiving of the Sacrament, what abundance of motives doth he heap one upon another to terrifie us from it? 1 Cor. 11. 23. &c. the first is from the institution of the Lord Jesus Christ, I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, that the Lord Jesus, &c. as who should say, what will you prophane his institution. Secondly, From the time when he instituted it, the same night he was betrayed, in his agony and in the midst of his sorrows he thought of your good, & will you prophane such a mercy & blessing? Thirdly, From the nature of the Sacrament, it is the Sacrament of the body and blood of the Lord Jesus Christ; and will you not reverence that? Another is from the end of the Sacrament, it is to shew forth the Lords death till he comes; therefore how should we have a care of this? that we may come to the Sacrament in a gracious and reverent manner, duly meditating what it is, having a lively apprehension of the Lord Jesus Christ, and to keep a constant memory of what he hath done for us. Another is from the greatness of the sin of unworthy receiving, he shall be guilty of the body and blood of Christ; again, from the danger of it, whosoever eats and drinks unworthily, eats and drinks damnation to himself; again, from the particular judgements that God hath inflicted upon that score, for this cause many are sick among you, and many sleep; and questionless it is for this cause, for your unworthy receiving of the Sacrament; you see what abundance of motives he brings for this; and I say if Motives be good in any point, look whatsoever we exhort people unto if it be good to use Motives to stir them up to it, then much more in this point; in the point of deadness to shake it off, in the point of quickning that they would labour to get it; and indeed when a man useth Motives to faith and repentance, it is not only to get that, but to quicken them up to faith and repentance; when a man spurs a horse, it is not only to make him go, but to quicken him up to go; we are all dull and careless and blockish, now Motives serve to stir us up, Eccles. 12. the words of the wise are as goads to provoke and stir up people.

1. Motive. Well then, The first motive shall be this, to consider the woful ingredients of this sin of deadness, the horrible sins that are contained in it, what a compound of spiritual diseases are in this sin.

First, There is a dulness and blockishness of mind, dull and heavy to learn any thing that is good; as it is said of the Jews, Acts 28. 27. when a man hath an unteachable mind, though he be never so long under the word of God, it cannot strike into his heart, and enter into his understanding, his mind cannot feel the weight of divine truths; take outward truths of profit and pleasure, a man may lead him up and down with these truths, he feels weight in these; but for the word of God he hath no understanding in that; may be he can tell what the Ministers say, and talk of it, but for the weight of divine reason, the mind is blockish to this; men are like to a blockish scholler that hath gone seven years to school, and yet is not beyond the primmer; so when a man shall sit so long under the Ministry of the word, and yet be a stranger to it, as if he had never heard of it; he hears discourses of faith, and can speak of it, and talk of it, of the letter of it as well as the best believer, and yet is as blockish to go about it as can be; what an horrible thing is this? that the truth should come to a man indeed, and a man should be dull to conceive it.

Secondly,

Secondly, Another evil is awkneſs and averſeneſs of heart, liſtleſeneſs to the wayes of Jeſus Chriſt; as Chriſt ſaith of the Jews, Mat. 15. 8. their hearts cannot be pulled to that which is good, their hearts are untoward, and have no lift or diſpoſition that way; even as if a man ſhould go about a thing that he hath no heart to, ſo people go about prayer and the hearing of the word, as if they had no heart to it; they have no heart to prayer, they have no heart to think ſoundly of God, and of their latter end; they come to duties, but their hearts are a thouſand miles off.

Thirdly, There is ſenſeleſneſs of conſcience, it is not tender of little ſins, it feels them not at all; and as for great ſins, it feels them but a little; may be peoples conſciences find fault with them from day to day for doing what they do, and tells them they ought not to do it, but yet they will not leave their ſins; it tells them thus and thus they ought to do, but it hath no power to make them do it; may be it accuſeth them, but they are never the better, peoples conſciences are dull and blunt and have no force at all.

Fourthly, For coldneſs and lukewarmneſs of affections; the affections of a man are not ſet upon God; they pray without affections, and hear without affections, the doctrine of eternal life doth not affect their hearts; love of evil is cold, and love of God and goodneſs is cold, as Chriſt ſaith, the love of many ſhall waxe cold, and ſo their deſires are cold and languiſh and come to nothing; we can find tears for other matters, but not for our ſins; we can have our affections ſoon ſtirred when our ſelves and our own wills are croſſed, but God may be diſhonoured a thouſand wayes, and we never grieved or moved at it; ſo when we hear a fine ſtory, and carnal news, this delights; but when we hear the word of God, the truth of God that concerns our eternal well doing, we are not moved, or affected at with that. Matth. 24.

Fifthly, Another ingredient of this ſin is the weakneſs and faintneſs of endeavours; if people have any endeavours, any kinde of putting themſelves forth to that which is good, it is with faintneſs, as if they cared not whether they went about it yea or no; as Solomon ſaith, Prov. 13. 4. People deſire mercy and pardon, and would have hope and ſalvation, and the Kingdom of God, but will not be at the coſt and charges they ought to be at for theſe things; this is nothing but the deadneſs of our hearts.

Laſtly, That ſame dulneſs and drowſineſs of the whole man; though men be careful enough of outward things, yet how careleſs are they of their ſouls? were our hearts broken and contrite under theſe things, we ſhould be ſoon quickned; as the Lord ſaith, Iſa. 57. 15. I revive the ſpirit of the contrite one; ſo God would revive us if we were ſenſible of theſe diſtempers of ours; if we would humble our ſelves before God, and plead to him for help, he would help us; but when we do not lay theſe diſtempers to heart, and ſeek out to God for redreſs, no marvel though we are dead and dull ſtill; well then, is it ſo? that there are ſo many horrible ingredients in this ſin of deadneſs, then how ſhould we labour to ſling it away, and uſe all means to be quickned? the Apoſtle being to diſſwade from following the will of the Gentiles, he uſeth this very argument, the abundance of the vile ingredients that is in the will of the Gentiles, 1 Pet. 4. ſo you may ſee how the wiſe man diſſwades, Prov. 26. 25. when he ſpeaketh faire believe him not; for there are ſeven abominations in his heart: ſo let us think there is ſeven abominations, yea ſeventy times ſeven abominations in this ſin of deadneſs; therefore let us look out that God may help us and quicken us, and revive us in all our wayes.

The ſecond motive is to conſider that as long as we are dead we cannot 2. Motive.

pray, Psal. 80. 18. Lord, quicken us and we will call upon thy name; as who should say, Lord, we are not fit to pray and call upon thy name except thou quicken us; therefore quicken us, that we may call upon thee: So Ministers cannot preach unless they be quickned; as Dr. Ames tells a story of a godly man of France, there was such cold preaching that he was fain to go out of the Town to sit under a powerful Ministry; therefore we cannot preach if we be dead; the Scribes and Pharisees preached without Authority and life, they were dead, and therefore had no authority in their preaching, but Christ preached with Authority; if we were quickned we should be the better able to preach: So again, you are not able to hear unless you be quickned; a dead heart may hear a thousand Sermons, but what doth it work upon them? even as good as nothing; if Paul or Apollos, or an Angel from heaven should preach to us, unless God quicken us, all is nothing; as Christ tells us, that his own Ministry, and Johns Ministry, there were not two such in all the world again, yet how dead and fruitless were they, whereunto shall I liken this generation? &c. Mat. 11. 16. &c. the meaning is this, John the Baptist he came mourning and in a doleful manner, fasting and afflicting himself, and crying out Repent; he mourned but none would relent; Christ he came piping, he came in another manner, he came eating and drinking, and he preached gracious things, the Kingdom of God and the acceptable year of our Lord; now saith he, you have not daunced, all these things have not affected your hearts a jot, you are as blockish as if you had no Ministry at all; as Christ saith, Mat. 8. 22. let the dead bury their dead; what doth he mean by that? he means those that are dead in their souls; those that are dead in their spirits and souls, they are fit for dead employments and nothing else; the coherence was this, there was a man came to Christ, and was willing it seems to be the Disciple of Christ; but oh saith he, first I pray thee, let me go and bury my father; bury thy father saith he, any man may serve for that, let the dead bury their dead, those that are fit for nothing else may do that; but if thy heart be alive, thou art fit for me, thou art fit for spiritual employments; but when a man has a dead heart he is fit for nothing; as Christ, he gave the bag to Judas, he was the fittest man for that; so let a man be in office, if he be dead, he has no heart to punish sin, no not so much as to use his faithful endeavour to root it out; nay, he will pull down the guilt of the sins of the parish upon his own soul, rather then he will stickle a little for God, Judg. 4. 8. how backward was Barak to go against the enemies of the Lord? if you will go, I will go, saith he to Deborah, otherwise he had no heart to go; so Esther, how dull was she to stand for the Church of God? she would let the Church be ruinated rather then she would go and speak to the King in the behalf thereof, but that Mordecai stirred her up soundly; now is not this a sufficient motive to stir us up to labour for quickning? how can we do the things God calls for from day to day, we should stand for him, and call upon him, and set up his worship in our families; we should fear his name, and set him before our eyes, and fight against sin, and labour to please him in all our ways; now without being quickned we are fit for none of these things; now what a woful thing is it when we shall not be furnished to every good work as we should, and fitted to do that which God requires of us; therefore let us shake off this dullness and blockishness of spirit.

3. Motive. Thirdly, Another motive is this, we can have no true sign at all to be found that we have any true grace at all as long as we are dead; when Christ is said to give a man grace, he is said to quicken a man, Joh. 5. 21. conversion is called the life of the dead; a mans repentance is no better then the repentance of a reprobate, unless it be repentance from dead works, and repentance unto life; if a man hath faith, it is not the faith of Gods elect if it doth not quicken him, I live by faith, saith Paul, Gal. 2. 20. justification is coordinated only to a man that is quickned; God together with justification doth quicken a man, he doth revive him and make him alive towards God: nay, we have no argument that we have our sins forgiven us, unless God hath quickned us, Col. 2. 13. he hath quickned them, having forgiven them all trespasses; when God forgives the trespasses of his people, he doth quicken them, he takes away the dulness of their hearts, and the blockishness of their minds, and the senselessness of their consciences, and their rudeness and untowardness to that which is good; he doth quicken them up to every man hath life, for we see how lively men are in seeking after carnal profits and pleasures, people have life enough, but it is upon things below: and they have affections enough, love enough, and hope enough, and joy and delight enough in the world, but they are set upon carnal things: but if grace comes into the heart, it is the vigour of the heart: now so long as we are dead and dull, what sign of grace can we have? or if we have grace, yet we cannot have any profit and comfort of it as long as we be drowsy and dull; it is true, no man can have any grace but he hath quickned it, but if he doth not quicken up himself, he hinders himself of the profit and comfort that otherwise he might have; hence it is that the consciences are troubled, and people are unsettled, and are so full of fears to dye, hence it is that people are so like to the sea, the waves whereof cannot rest; their minds are so quiet and unsettled, it is for want of quickning; if we were quickned we should have great peace come into our souls.

doth

Fourthly, We cannot grow in grace unless we are quickned; as long as we are dull and heavy and lumpish to the things that are good, we cannot grow in grace. Hos. 14. 7. They shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine; first they shall revive, and then grow; first God quickens a man, and then he makes him grow; the Philippians love was dead to Paul, afterwards it quickned again, now saith he, your love flourisheth, Phil. 4. 10. now their hearts were quickned, it began to grow; but when a man hath a dull heart, how can he grow? as he said, Job. 35. 4. can the branch bear fruit without the vine? so may I say, can a mans heart grow in goodness without life? it is only a living creature that can grow; if a plant be dead, it withers away and cannot grow; if a man have a dead heart, though he should hear lectures and sermons every day, he would never grow, he would be never the more holy, never the more godly; if he should have family prayer, closet prayer, yet if he should be dead, he should have never the more ability against his temptations, though the ordinances of God be desirable helps to growing, yet if a man be dead and dull, they will never help him to grow in grace; though grace be of a growing nature, yet a dead heart starves all the graces that a man hath.

Fifthly, Another motive is this; as long as we are dead, we shall be so far from growing, that we shall be hardly able to keep our own, Rev. 3. 2. strengthen the things that remain, that are ready to dye; as, who should say, they are so far from growing, that the good things that are in thee are even ready to dye; thou wilt lose that very good that is in thee if thou dost not quicken it: this deadness and carelessness, and heartlessness to that which is good; as it is with a man that hath a consumption upon his body, he is far from growing, that he rather pines away, he waxeth more and more lean, and grows thinner, and waxeth nearer to his end, he pines away; so when a man is dead, (though he be not quite dead, his heart is dead), he dies away, and this Prophet saith, Ezek. 33. 10. if we pine away, how shall we do? even thus it is with a man that hath a dead heart, he doth pine away; and oh, how is it possible for a man whose heart is dead to prayer, and he hath no affections to any thing which is good? if there be any spirituality to that which

1. Motive.

2. Motive.

3. Motive.

which is good, he hangs off; how can this man doe otherwise but wax worse and worse? for he wants that which should work out sin; if it be a springing water, it will work out the mud; but if it be a standing water, it will grow thicker and thicker, and will be noysome; so if the body be alive, though it be never so full of ill humours, if it be lively, nature will work them out; but if the pangs of death be upon a man, every disease and distemper gets the victory, his nature cannot work it out now; so it is with a man that hath a dead heart, he cannot work out the corruption that daily bubbles up in his heart; as Eli, though he had never so many corruptions, he had no heart to root them out; 'tis true, he reproved his sons, but it was to no purpose, as good never a whit as never the better; so when Solomon was grown dead, and had lost his former life of grace, afterwards when corruption grew in his heart, he could not work it out; for when God had chosen Jeroboam to be put in his room, though Solomon knew that it was of God, and he set him up to be King, yet he could not work out this corruption, but his heart to his dying day rose up against Jeroboam, and he sought to kill him; he wanted the life of grace he had before, and sin got up, and he could not work it out soundly to his dying day. Now is not this a most grievous thing? the very consideration of this, how should it provoke us to shake off this deadness? Can that body do well that hath lost his expulsive faculty? when distempers arise it cannot expel them, it must needs be the destruction of the body; so when the life of the soul is either in part or wholly taken away, how can he work out his corruptions and distempers that daily arise in him? we have need of grace, and life, and quickning; we are tempted every day, and the corruptions that dwell in us, are ever boyling up. Now if we have not the expulsive faculty to purge them out, the heart must needs be in a woful condition.

6. Motive. Sixthly, This sin of deadness, in some sense, is worse then any other sin, and that in six respects.

First, Other sins, for the most part, are in one part of a man; as drunkenness is in the appetite, and covetousness is in the concupiscible faculty, and pride and ostentation is in the heart, and ignorance is in the mind; but deadness is in all the whole man; as it is with a languishing disease; other diseases, one may be in the head, another in the neck, another in the back; but a Consumption runs over all the whole man; So it is with deadness; as it was with the Church of Laodicea; when they were grown dead and careless, he chargeth them that they were dead all over; Thou art poor, and blind, and wretched, and naked; this heaps all miseries upon a man; such a man is like unto Judah, From the crown of the head, to the sole of the foot, there was no sound part, Isa. 1. 6. It is a general disease; it is like the deluge that drowned the whole world, it drowns the whole man; Intemperate drunkenness, and adultery, and such particular sinnes, may kill and damn a man; but I say by accident, deadness is worse then they; 'tis true, drunkenness, and adultery, and prophanesse are worse, but why are they worse but because they have this deadness also? but if they could be taken alone, and a man might have a living heart towards God otherwise, they should not be worse then deadness.

Rev. 3.

Secondly, Other sins are against one commandement of God, or two, or so; but this deadness is against all the commandements of God; it is a sin against prayer, for we should pray with life; it is a sin against hearing, for we should hear with life; so is a sin against the Sabbath, for we should keep it with delight; so is a sin against all the Ordinances of God, for we should come to them all with life and affection. Suppose a servant his Master should bid him do a thing; he bids him goe to one place, he goes to another; he goes & drinks, and swills; another servant he goes about that his Mr. bids him, but whatsoever his Mr. bids him do, he goes about it slothfully, and by halfs; this servant is a worse servant then the other: why? because this servant offends in all the business he hath to do: whatsoever his Mr. sets him about, he marrs it, and doth it to halfs: So deadness of heart, it disables a man to every duty, to whatsoever God requires of a man; and this is one of the reasons why he that breaks one of the commandements of God, is said to break them all, Jam. 2. 10, 11. Why? because he deads his heart, a man that gives way to sin against any one commandement, deads his heart to all; and so by reason of that deadness, he becoms guilty of all.

Thirdly, Other sins are not so deep in the soul; but this deadness is deeper then all; a man will be willinger to lay down any sin, then deadness, and to take up any duty then quickning; a man had rather do any thing, if he may do it without life: if the bare hearing, praying, and profession will serve turn, may be he will do that; but to do all with life, this the heart is loth to come to; when it comes to lay out all the strength and vigour of the whole man upon God, the heart cannot abide this. Judah was content to turn to God; but to do it with life, this they would not do, Jer. 3. 10. Treacherous Judah hath not turned to me with the whole heart, &c. He doth not deny but they turned unto him; but they would not do it with their whole heart, with life, with all their power and strength; thus they did not turn unto him. As it was with the Ruler in the Gospel, he was content to observe the commandements of God, not to murther, not to commit adultery, not to steal, not to swear; All these have I observed from Matth. 19. my youth, saith he; but when Christ came to call for life, that he should sell, forsake all, and follow him; that is the life of a man, the soule and love of a man must be put forth; he was sad at that saying; so Laodicea was content to do any thing; the spirit of God layeth nothing to her charge, he chargeth her with no particular sin, but lukewarmnesse onely; she would do any thing; but to be fervent and zealous in it, to lay out her strength for God, that she would not do; so that we had need to take heed of deadness of all other sins; it is a deep sin, and is the harder to be gotten out; and the harder it is to be gotten out, the more paines is to be taken.

Fourthly, other sins may be but acts; as a man may be drunk, but he may not have the habit of drunkennesse; as Noah was drunk, but he was not a drunkard; we see David committed adultery, but he had not the habit of adultery; but deadness is an habit, Eph. 2. 1. Now when a man leaves sin in a dead manner, he leaves it, but his affections are not crucified to it; he doth good duties, but he is dead to them; this man comes nigher to the estate of sin: now an estate of sin is worse then any particular act of sin.

Fifthly, Other sins are the first death of the soul: we are all under transgressions and sins, Rom. 5. Death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned. We are all by nature the children of wrath; we were all once dead, but now if after we are Christians, we grow dead again, we grow twice dead; of all sins we should take heed of deadnesse, for that causeth the second death; not the second death of damnation, but of being dead after a man hath been quickned; as Saint Jude speaks ver. 12. twice dead; so we are twice dead. Now other sins do make a man but once dead; but after the Gospel hath come among us, and hath stirred up our hearts, and quickned us in some measure, if we grow remiss and dead, and cold again, we are twice dead, or at least grow and tend that way, and so our estate is more dangerous; therefore how should we take heed of this!

Lastly, Other sins, though God threatens hell and damnation against them, them, yet more specially against deadness; did you ever hear of a more special threatning then that 2 Thess. 2. 10, 11, 12. when men do not receive the truth in the love of it. He doth not say, When they do not receive it, but When they do not receive it with affection, with all their hearts. You may see there how terribly God threatens, when we do not receive the truth in the love of it; we do not love Gods Word; we do not love prayer, and his ordinances; we do not love the communion of Saints; we do not love obedience to Gods truth; this is a most woful thing, though we doe receive it, yet if we do not receive it in the love of it, see there what he saith, For this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie, that they might all be damned, &c. So when Ephesus left her first love, God threatned to remove the candlestick, Rev. 2. 4, 5. When Laodicea was grown cold and careless, and of a middle temper, Gods threatens to spue her out of his mouth, Rev. 3. 16. When Eli was grown cold and remiss, and wanted zeal and life to stand for him, see how terribly God threatens him, I will do a thing that whosoever hears it, both his ears shall tingle, 1 Sam. 3. 11. Nay, saith he, I will judge his house for ever for this thing, v. 13. What remains then, but that we should with all our might, and all care and diligence, even set to both our shoulders for the casting off this sin of deadness, that if it be possible, we may come to be quickned, and serve God as we ought to do, and follow his heavenly Kingdome with eagerness, that none of these things we have spoken may befall us.

Consider first, we have life, and why may not God have it? He hath breathed into our souls the breath of life; in him we live, move, and have our being; he hath given unto us all life and breath; and if we have life, why may not God have it? if he hath given us affections, why should they not be given to him again? if he hath given us thoughts, why should we not bestow them upon him? if he hath given us dispositions and inclinations, why should they not be set upon him? The Rivers that come from the sea return to the sea again. It is said of the Macedonians, that they did yield themselves to the Lord, 2 Cor. 8. 5. So we should yield our selves to the Lord. If God did ask any thing that were not in us, it were another matter; if we had no thoughts and affections; if we had no heart and inclination, then no wonder though we did not give him them; but when we have them, why should not he have them? all things are of him; therefore let all things be to him; shall our lusts have our thoughts, and not God? shall the world carry away our minds, and not God? that is against reason.

Secondly, Consider that all the world is alive in their own courses: let Christians be alive in theirs; as the Prophet speaks, Micah 4. 5. Every man walks in the name of his god, let us walk in the name of our God. So it is, every man follows his god; those that have their belly for their god, all their minde and affections run that way; those that have their pleasure for their god, and their profit for their god, how eager are they after these things? as one saith, the world is like the Ant; poor little creatures, they goe carrying of straws after their manner, and are so busie; so it is with the world, what a deal of drudging up and down; and going this way and that way is there in the world? one for one thing, another for another; one for his Mammon, another for the lusts of his flesh, and the pride of life; men are busy and stirring; every one is getting forward; why should not we be as forward in our way? if we be Christians, and the servants of God, why should not we bestir our selves for him? the Devil himself is so busie, and is working and busie, as himself saith, Job 1. 7. Then let us walk up and down, and bestir our selves this way, and that way and every way for God, and be as active and agile for him; let us consider how the poor prisoners in Ludgate beg for a token, what eagerness they use, that though [illegible] had had no mind to, yet their importunity will make him give them nothing; and shall not we beg earnestly of God to pardon our sins, and quicken us, and humble us for our deadnesse, and for the time to come, to make us earnest for the Kingdom to come? if men be so earnest for babies, how earnest should we be for these precious jewels?

Thirdly, Consider the worth of these things; the worth of the Kingdome of Heaven, the worth of eternall life, the worth of the Gospel, the worth of prayer and all Gods holy Ordinances; are they such poore beggarly trifles, that we follow them with such a slender pursuit? are they such beggarly commodities, that they are not worth the labour after? Certainly Heaven may justly challenge our best labours, our best affections, our best paines and endeavours, and the best and chiefest of all our parts and learning, as the Church saith, Cant. 7. 9. My beloved is sweet; so our beloved is sweet; sweet things goe down pleasantly; so how should the word and prayer be? how sweet should all the things of our beloved be? they should goe sweetly down, nothing should delight us more. When Solomon set up his Throne, it is said that he laid but the best gold upon it; so if we would have the crown of life, we must lay out our best parts, and affections, and endeavours upon it; how sweet should the calling upon God, and the going to Gods house be? what a shame is it, that when such heavenly things, such precious jewels are to be had, people will not come to them, whereas these things should be the sweetest things in the world? if we were carefull of the good of our soules, and were affected with Heaven and heavenly things, as we ought to be, we should be tender of this; how should we take heed of pride, and covetousnes, and any thing that should hinder us of so great salvation?

Fourthly, Consider, If we be quickned, nothing will be hard: all the difficulty of Religion is over, if a man be quickned: for nothing is hard to a willing minde, when a mans heart and soule is set upon it; nothing is hard, as the Apostle saith, to him that loves God, His commandements are not grievous; 1 John 5. all the difficulty, that we cannot pray, and hold our hearts to the word, and overcome our corruptions, although in the deadnesse of our hearts; if we would have mastery over our corruptions, if our hearts be dead, we must look for the more toyle, as Solomon saith, If the iron be blunt, if a man doth not sharpen the edge, he had need put the more strength to it, Eccles. 10. 10. So when a mans heart is dull and dead, there is the more difficulty in the overcoming of any lust, in the doing of any good duty, every thing comes hardly off. Now when a mans heart is quickned, it is like oyle to the wheele, it makes it goe easie; when a mans heart is quickned up towards God, what is it but that man can do?

Fifthly, Consider, If we be quickned, we shall have a great deale of peace, and joy, and comfort. I may say as the Church in another case, Revive us again, O Lord, and we shall rejoyce in thee, Psal. 85. 6. So I say, if we be revived, if we be quickned, if we were earnest with him to do it, and we could once attain unto it, we should rejoyce in God; those that follow God with an earnest heart, they have those joyes, which no other can intermeddle with; God gives them unknown comfort, unknown peace, and unknown support; the more a man followes after God, the more he shall partake of God, a man shall have joy unspeakable and glorious.

Sixthly, We should make all heaven to rejoyce; when the Father had his prodigal Son come to him, that was before dead, and was now alive, saith he, It is meet we should be glad, Luke 15. 32. So when any poor creature that was dead before to all goodnes, is now made alive, and is quickned up in all the wayes of God, it is even meet that there should be mirth in Heaven, that the Angels in Heaven should rejoyce; whereas if a man go on in Gods service dully and blockishly, it is as vinegar to the teeth, and smoak to the eyes, and the heavens are sad over us.

Seventhly, If we were quickned, we should not only do our selves good, but we should do others good too; we should be earnest to do it; there is an excellent place for this in the story of David: David being marvellously quickned, just as he came from Gath, there met him 400 poor destitute and afflicted men, and presently he made the 34 Psalm, wherein he saith, O taste and see how good the Lord is; blessed are they that trust in the Lord: presently he calls upon them to be quickned also. So Paul, when he was quickned up himself, though he were before the Judge, and went upon life and death, yet he regarded not that, but he laboured to quicken Agrippa too, insomuch that he made him to cry out, Thou perswadest me almost to become a Christian; and he would not leave him there, but saith he, I would to Acts 26. that thou only, but that all that do hear me this day, were not only almost, but altogether such as I am, excepting these bonds. O, though he, that all this company were but acquainted with that I feel and finde; a quickned heart will labour and strive to do good unto others.

Rev. 3. 2.

Rev. 3. 2.

Watch therefore and strengthen the things that remain, that are ready to die, &c.

WE told you this Epistle contained three things. First, a Reproof of the most of them in that Church for their grievous sins. Secondly, a Remedy to cure them of those sins. Thirdly, A Commendation of certain vertues in those persons that were not carried away with the iniquities of those times. The Reproof we have spoken of already; and now we are come to the second part, and that is the Remedy: for when Christ doth reprove them, he doth it not for ill will, but for their good; and therefore he gives them good directions. The Remedies he gives this Church are five.

The first is, Be watchfull, as who should say, This is the reason you goe down the wind, and want life, and are dead and dull in Religion, because you are not watchfull. Five Remedies given the Church.

The second Direction is, Strengthen the things that remain: as who should say, If you would be careful to fortifie those good things that are in you, you may stand out against these temptations; a little grace will go a great way if it be well managed. Now he doth urge this direction three wayes. First, because these things they have are but remainders; they had a great deal more once. Strengthen the things that do remain; as who should say, all is even almost quite gone; you had a great deal more zeal and forwardnesse, but what you have now, is but the remainders and the leavings; therefore it is high time to look about you.

Secondly, Because even those remainders were almost gone too, Strengthen the things that remain, that are ready to die; as who should say, they will be gone too, if you bestir not your selves, and look well to your estates and conditions.

Thirdly, Because thy works are not perfect; they are nothing else almost but hypocriticall and unsound, I have not found thy works perfect before God.

The third Remedy is, Remember how thou hast received and heard, &c. as who should say, consider how thou hast been formerly; consider how the Word hath been delivered, and how thou hast received it. Verse 3.

The fourth Remedy is, Hold fast; as who should say, labour to get up again, and hold fast, that the Devil, and the world, and the temptations to sin, may not get away the good things that are in thee, that they may not spoil thee of the good things of God, and of the hope of eternal life.

The fifth Remedy is, Repent; that is, bewail thy selfe, and lament thy unfruitfulnesse, and unwatchfulnesse, and carelesnesse this way, and humble thy selfe before Almighty God; thou mayst yet have mercy; when a man doth confesse his sinne, God is just to forgive them, and is ready to vouchsafe mercy and quickning, and comfort; therefore repent, saith he. 1 John 1. 9.

Well then, the first remedy is to be watchfull; to watch, is to be attentive, to be considerative, to look what may doe a man good and what may doe a man hurt, that he may thereafter carry himselfe; it is for a man to have his eyes in his head, to have his wits about him for spiritual things: This is the subject of it, it is properly in the minde, and in the heart, it is a Metaphor taken from the body; for the body when it is asleep, the senses are lockt up; the eye cannot see, the eare cannot hear, they are all wrapt up, they are not lively and operative; but when the body is awake, the senses are all open, the eye can see, and the eare hear, and the senses are ready for every Object; from hence it is derived to the soules of men, they may be said to sleep or watch; for when the soul is careless and negligent towards a thing, may be dangers are towards a man, and he doth not fear them, nor study to prevent them; may be there is a great deal of good coming towards the soule, and he goes drowsily about it, the soule now is said to be asleep; but when the soule looks seriously and consideratively about things, then it is said to watch; so that there is a sleep of the soule, and a watch of the soule, as the Apostle speaks, 1 Thes. 5. 6. so that this watchfulnesse is nothing else but the active prudence of the soule, whereby it stirs up all the faculties to look about, that if any good be towards it, it may get it; if any danger be towards it, it may abhor it; this is the watchfulness here spoken of; for this drowsinesse and sleepinesse is a part of the corruption of our natures, whereby we are marvellous careless of God and eternal life, that though we be in the gall of bitternesse, and by nature the children of wrath, yet this is the corruption of our nature, to lie sleepily upon this, that danger may be upon us, and we never observe it; and though there be eternal life to be had, yet we are as it were asleep, we doe not study how to attain it; though there be misery insupportable, and unspeakable, and sure and certain to fall upon us, unlesse we be delivered, yet we doe not think of these things, we have no fear at all, or else our hearts are drowsie, and are content to make any thing serve the turn. Now when the soule is rowzed up, and made to have a due consideration of these things, now is is awakened, now it is watchful.

Observation. The Point we observe from hence it this, That it is an excellent & soveraign thing for a Christian to watch; and therefore Christ commends it to his disciples, and commends it to all people to the end of the world, Mark 13. 37. And what I say unto you, I say unto all, watch. Now it is good to watch in two respects.

1. Reason. First, In regard of our selves; for our own selves are false unto our selves; if we be godly men and women, we are two selves; we have a bad self, whereby we are apt to be proud, and carnal, and ungodly in all our ways, and to forget God; and we have a good selfe, that is better minded. Now it is an excellent thing, when this good selfe shall watch over this bad self, and have an eye to it; as if a man had a pilfering servant in his family, would he not watch him, and eye him? would he not watch him what money he had in his house, and observe what is in his house from day to day? So we having such a deceitful selfe about us, we had need to watch continually, as the Apostle speaks, 2 John 8. Look to these, that we lose not those things, &c. As who should say, you will lose the benefit of all the good things that are in you, if you doe not look to them? there is a thief in thy bosome, a deceiver that will steale and cosen thee of all, if thou look not to it.

And here first we should watch our own hearts; for our own hearts are deceitful, as the Prophet speaks, The heart is deceitful above all things, Jerem. 17. 9. It is very slily, and how easily doth it deceive us, and carry us aside? therefore we had need watch over it, as the wise man saith, Prov. 4. 23. Keep thy heart with all diligence. If a man were to ride upon a wilde horse, would he not have a care to keep the bridle? would he let the bridle goe? then he he would run away and he should hardly catch him again: his business will be hindered and his time spent; so it is here, a mans heart is like a wild Colt, like an untamed Heifer, if a man let it go; a man had need alwayes to have the bridle in his hand; if a man do not watch it and observe it, and hold it in, it will run away, and a man cannot catch it again; as a man that is ringing a bell, if he let the rope go, he cannot readily get hold of it again; so a mans heart is slippery, therefore a man had need ever to be watching of it.

Secondly, We had need watch our thoughts? what slippery things are our thoughts if they be upon that which is good? will they be long there? they are now there, now gone again; therefore how careful should we be to hold our thoughts to that which is good? the thoughts are so loose and fickle, and unconstant, and uncertain, that though they be on good things for a minute of an hour, they will be ten times as long upon vain things; there is no trusting of our thoughts, we need not say as David of the men of Keilah, will they deliver me to Saul? will the lusts of my heart deliver me to Satan? nay, they will deliver us, if we watch not over our selves. 1 Sam. 23. 11.

Thirdly, We should watch over our affections; they are admirable things, if we set them upon the things that are above, and be watchful to keep them there: what admirable advantages are they? they are the wings of the soul to help us in prayer and any good duty we go about; they will wipe away the difficulties of the wayes of God; but they are marvelous uncertain things, that if we be not alwayes looking to our selves, though our joys and delights, &c. be upon heaven and heavenly things, they will run upon the world again and lose themselves there, so that our affections had need to be looked into.

Fourthly, The Conscience had need to be looked unto; for though the Conscience be the best part of a man, yet it will flatter us and speak peace unto us if we look not to it, where is no peace, and will check us very carelesly, and will not hold forth our duties nakedly, if we do not watch over it.

Fifthly, So again, We should set a watch over our tongues, over our very words that we speak; as David saith, I will set a watch before the door of my lips, Psal. 141. 3. when a man speaks his words, it is as if he should bend his bow to shoot; now when a man bends his bow to shoot, he had need level well, or else he will not hit the mark; so if we be not watchful over the words we speak, we shall speak vainly, and to Gods dishonour; therefore saith Solomon, he that keeps his mouth, keeps his own soul; he that watcheth over his lips that he may not offend, watcheth over his own soul. Prov. 13. 3.

Secondly, It is good to watch in regard of the world, for the world will get in, and undo us if we take not heed, when we are about our callings, when as we let our eyes look upon our wares and commodities, upon our barns or our Cattel, or the like; whatsoever comes into our eye is apt to poyson us, and whatsoever we see or touch, or handle is apt to do us mischief; how many thousands are carried away by their eyes, by what comes into their senses? as Amaziah cryed out, 2 Chron. 25. 9. What shall I do for the hundred talents? he could not lose an hundred talents, but his eyes were marvellous eager after them, they were a stumbling block to him, he could not go so freely about the commandments of God for fear he should lose them: Demetrius having commings in by his calling, when the word of God shewed what an unwarrantable calling he had, he had rather put off the word of God then his calling; O saith he, by this calling we have our gain: So powerful is the world over men, that it can keep men in unwarrantable courses; the world windes into men and makes their affections earthly; how many thousands are there that can hardly find any competent 2 Reason. Acts 19. 25.

time

time to serve God: they are so taken up with the world when they come to the Ordinances of God; their hearts are so spent upon the world, that the Ordinances cannot work upon them; therefore had not a man need to watch over himself? as a man that eats fish may choak himself if he take not heed; so our Saviour tells us, that the cares of this world are choaking things; a man had need be careful how he speaks of the world, and thinks of the world, for fear he be made listless and heartless to the things of God; this is the reason why people have no more heart for heaven, because they do not watch against the world, the world poysons and choaks them: let a man have never so sweet dispositions, and be never so awakened and startled, yet if he give way to the world, and the things of the world, his heart will be taken off again from these things.

Mark 4.19.

Reas. 3. Thirdly, It is good to watch in regard of the Divel, in regard of Satan; it is the Apostles own exhortation, 1 Pet. 5. 8 be vigilant and sober; for your adversary the Divel goeth up and down like a roaring Lyon, seeking whom he may devour.

Consider first what a subtle enemy he is; if a man were to deal with a subtle enemy, he would watch and have a care of himself, lest he should have advantage against him; he would think with himself, There is some mischief intended towards me; he would look to all his wayes, lest a snare should be laid for him; when David knew that Saul dealt subtilly with him, you see how he looked to himself, he scouted everywhere, that Saul could come nowhere but David looked to himself; he was very careful of himself, so that Saul saith, I hear he deals subtilly: So it were good that the Divel heard that we dealt subtilly; for he deals subtilly with us, and collogues, and colours, and varnisheth; in matters of evil, he sets the best side outward, and in matters of good, the worst side outwards; if any good be to be done, he labours to make a man dead in the doing of it; if any thing be sinful, he hides the danger of it, and shews a man nothing but the pleasure and delight and profit of it, and a man shall see nothing else almost; the Divel is so subtle that he knows what we delight in, and where he may have us; he knows what sins we are prone to, and where he may get us; he knows what will hit our humour best, he knows what will like us best; there was but one passage wherein Peter was naked, and the Divel caught him there; if he had taken any other course, a hundred to one but he had withstood him; he seeth where the water is low, and there he leaps over; therefore how careful should we be when he is so subtle?

1 Sam. 23.22.

Secondly, Consider how diligent he is; he is ever trudging up and down from place to place: as Saul hunted David up and down Town and Country, so the Divel hunts up and down; all places are full of him, the streets, the market, the house, the fields, our beds and closets, our Pulpits; whersoever we are, he will be sure to be there too; he is diligent to follow us everywhere: now if we do not watch we shall be caught by him; we may say of Satan in some sense, as David of the spirit of God, whether shall I go from thy spirit, and whether shall I flee from thy presence? &c. so, whether shall we go from Satan? we can go nowhere but he will follow us; he is as busie as a fly about a bald head; though they be beaten off again and again, yet they will come again; though our Saviour Christ beat him off, yet he comes again and again, and hath more and more flings at him; nay, he set Peter to tempt Christ; he rangeth over all the earth, therefore we had need watch.

Thirdly, Consider his strength; he is a strong enemy, he is the strong man, Mat. 12. 29. 'tis true, notwithstanding all his strength, he cannot force us to sin; he can but say as he did to Christ, cast thy self down; he can but say lye, and covet, &c. he cannot force a man; nay, whatsoever he puts into us, it is not a sin if we give not way to it; a man may put it out again if he

he will; he did but provoke David to number the people, he might have resisted it; he cannot force a man; but yet he is a strong enemy, and comes with fiery darts, and he is strong in regard of our lusts and corruptions that are so strong, there lies the Divels strength; he hath that to set our own bosomes that is so mightily on his side; therefore we had need to watch. Ephes. 6.

Fourthly, Again, Consider the malice of this enemy; he is the enemy that doth it, as the Apostle Peter saith, your adversary the Devil; but it an adversary κατ' ἐξοχὴν, his temptations may be overthrown, but his malice can never be overthrown; a man can never make his peace with him, so long as he lives in this world; he is like a frenzy man, as 'tis said, he is full of Rev. 12. 12. wrath, knowing his time is short.

Fifthly, Again, Consider the Divel hath nothing else to do; If the enemy had something else to do, a man might be the less careful; as it was a comfort to David that Saul had something else to do; when Saul was on one side of the mountain, David on the other, because he had something else to do, the Philistines invaded his land, this took him away; but the Divel hath nothing to employ his time about, but only to watch to do mischief; therefore we had need be wondrous watchful over our selves.

Fourthly, It is good to watch in regard of the wicked, the Divels instru- Reas. 4. ments; and where shall we not meet with them? we must go out of the world, if we will go where they are not, they are every where; Now if we do not watch, it is impossible for us to walk up and down in the world, but we shall be surprized and learn their works; how many thousands are poysoned with the errours of the wicked for want of watchfulness? the Galatians, if they had watched, they had never been drawn from the truth; for practical errours, how many cursed principles get into mens hearts, and appear in their lives? that such kind of Religion is good Religion; that such kind of faith is good faith; they have abundandance of cursed principles: Now if we look not to our selves, how shall we be carried away, as the Apostle saith, 2 Pet. 3. 17. to may be thou art in a wicked family, as Lot in Sodom; now I say it is impossible for thee to stand in such a place, but thou shalt be hooked in in an horrible manner; the Apostle puts a chiefly upon the Saints in Cæsars house, Phil. 4. 22. chiefly those that are of Cæsars household; it is a wonder of wonders there should be Saints in Cæsars house; it is impossible for a man to be among the wicked, to have wicked neighbours and companions, but he shall be drawn away by them, if he be not watchful over his own soul.

Fifthly, It is good to watch in regard of good things. I speak to the Reas. 5. Saints of God.

First, It is good to watch in regard of our graces; look what grace a man hath, it is as a precious jewel, and thou mayst lose it, if thou be not watchful; thou mayst lose a great deal of faith, and quickning, and heavenmindedness, or any good that is in thee, thou mayst lose a great deal of it, if thou look not well to it. As a sheep that hath a great deal of wool, if he go among briars and thorns, how soon may a great deal of it be torn off; so a poor creature that walks in the world among so many briars and thorns, among so many temptations, he may have all good things torn away if he look not to it; if a man had a great deal of money in his purse, and were among cursed & cheaters, would not a man have an eye about him? it is said of a godly one, 1 John 5. 18. he keeps himself, he looks what he hath and carries about him, that he may not lose it.

Again, We should watch our graces, to encrease our graces, and strengthen them; watchfulness is an excellent thing to strengthen graces, as it is in the Text, watch, and strengthen the things that remain; wherever the man man do not watch, his graces will dye and decay, every temptation will overcome him; now we have need of more grace, though we be mortified, and lively, and fear God, and regard his name, and are humble, &c. yet we had need be more humble, and more vile in our own eyes: now, how can we have this unless we be watchful? the Apostle therefore when he had called upon Christians to be watchful, in the next words saith he, grow in grace, 2 Pet. 3. 18. for if a man be watchful, it is the way to grow.

Thirdly, We should watch our graces that we may work with them, and exercise them, and improve them upon all occasions, we should watch all opportunities to occupie with our talents; it is said that God will have his people to seek God, Amos 5. 14. to seek how to do good from day to day; so we should watch all opportunities to do good, and to stand for God, and glorifie his name, and adorn the Gospel that we profess; opportunities do not come so often, we had need take them when they come, they are precious things; now if we do not watch, God will many times tender us these things, and we shall have no heart to them.

Secondly, It is good to watch all good duties; What is the reason that people pray no better, hear no better, draw neer to Gods table, and partake of the Sacrament no better, they get no power against sin, no power against corruption? it is because they do these things without watchfulness, Mat. 26. 41. Christ saith, watch unto prayer; we must be watchful if we will get good by the Ordinances of God.

First, We should watch before the duty; when we are going to pray, and going to Gods courts, we should be watchful; a prudent man looketh to his goings, Prov. 14. 15. wheresoever he goeth he looks well about him, that he may observe all circumstances, how many thousand lets and impediments are there which if a man take not off aforehand he cannot perform the duty aright; if we had been watchful we might have done the duty a great deal.

Secondly, We should be watchful in the duty; when we call upon God, we should take heed how we come into his presence; when we hear the Word, we should be careful that we be not carried away with vile thoughts, not suffer any thing to attempt us when we are about any good duty; the Divel will be about us to interrupt us, therefore we had need be watchful against him.

Again, We should watch after the duty, that we may not lose the fruit and benefit of it; most people when they have been at the Ordinances of God, are as if they had not been there; when they have been at prayer, as far from power against sin, and drawing mercy down from heaven, as if they had never been down upon their knees.

See more of this in the Sermons upon 2 Tim. 4. 5.

Thirdly, It is good to watch in regard of God.

First, Sometimes God comes with motions, and draws nearer to us than he doth at other times; therefore now we had need take hold of them, Isa. 55. 6. call ye upon him while he is neer; as who should say, Sometimes God is neerer then at other times; O now have your eyes in your heads, and let not God go, but make use of this; if ever God speaks to our souls, or opens our eyes, let us make use of these things, and be up and a doing, lest they slip away from us.

Secondly, Sometimes God doth extraordinarily help us, and make an extraordinary favour; let us watch those favours, for then the Divel is most busie; when God doth any notable thing for us, when he gives us peace, or joy, or comforts, or power against sin, or whatsoever it be, then Satan is most busie; so soon as Christ had that extraordinary favour from his Father to be owned from heaven before all the standers by, This is my beloved Son, &c.

March. 3. 17.

the

The next newes we hear of, he had a terrible assault by Satan; when God had shewed great favour to Saint Paul, in wraping him up into the third Heaven, the next thing he met with, was Satan to buffet him.

Thirdly, Sometime God doth punish us and afflict us: now how should we watch to get good by our afflictions? This is the reason that afflictions, and crosses, and distresses are so often among us, and do no good, it is for want of watchfulnesse.

But so, that it is good to watch? Then how may we lament the horrid neglect of this duty? I speak not to drunkards and prophane persons, no wonder though they doe not watch, neither doe I speak to the common sort of Christians, that content themselves with civility and the carriage; but I speak to those that are of the better sort, how horribly is this duty laid aside? this is the reason of the want of grace, and that people go down the winde, and that there are so many Apostates and Declinors; and this is the reason that so many become very unsavoury and untruthfull in their lives; the reason is because they do not watch; what drowsie thoughts have we to be delivered from the wrath of God? what lumpish hearts have we to doe good duties? This is the reason of the vanity of our minds, and the hardnesse of our hearts, and that so little good is done by preaching among us, because people doe not watch. When you sow your corn, you set hullers to drive away the fowls: so why doe you not set up hullers, to watch over your own hearts, that so if temptations come to pick away the Word, and the benefit of it, you may refill them? how should we labour to hide the Word in our hearts, that it may do us good?

Use 1.

The second use is to exhort us all to take up this duty of watchfulnesse, to watch in all things, as the Apostle speaks, 2 Tim. 4. 5. to watch in eating and drinking, that we may not eat and drink our bane: to watch in company, that if they be good, we may get good by them; if ill, we may get no hurt from them; we should watch in good duties, for we shall meet with the Devil there too; every one that hath the fear of God before his eyes, whatsoever grace he hath, he should watch over it, whatever good work he hath to doe, he should watch, that he may goe on in it; the watchfulnesse is an helpfull duty; watch and pray, it is helpfull to prayer, and so for all other duties: it is a duty destinated to another duty, so that we can doe no other duty without watchfulnesse, therefore we had need to watch.

Use 2.

First, Consider the misery of them that doe not watch, they must needs decline, and wax worse and worse; you see the Church of Sardis here for want of watchfulnes grew dead, nay the very good things in her were ready to die.

Secondly, Consider the good of watchfulnesse; if we watch we shall be enriched with grace; if we have grace, we shall increase it. Prov. 10. 4. The slothfull hand makes a man poore, but the hand of the diligent maketh rich. Prov. 13. 4. The soule of the sluggard desires and has nothing, but the soule of the diligent is made fat. It is true, as in outward things, so in spirituall things, a man may be drowsie and slothfull, he shall be a poor man and a beggar, and shall have nothing to shew for eternall life; but if thou wilt open thine eyes, and look about thee, thou shalt be furnished with bread, with the bread of life, with the image of God, with righteousnesse and holinesse, the more thou watchest, the more abundantly will God bless thee.

Thirdly, Consider that men in their outward callings are watchfull, the shepherds watch their flocks, and the husbandman watches his seasons, when to reap his corne, when to sell it, and when to buy it; how much more should we for the good of our soules?

Fourthly, We should consider the examples of Gods saints; David he Psal. 119. 92. watched, I will arise and praise thee, saith he, he would rise out of his bed in the night, and pour out his heart before God, and bless God for his goodness; he would not doe it in his bed, but he would goe out of his bed and doe it by his bedside upon his knees; how should this stir us up to watchfulness?

2. Remedy. Now I come to the second Remedy, and that is to strengthen the things that remain, and the rather, because they are but remainders, and ready to die, and their deeds are not perfect before God. These words are diversly interpreted by Divines; some understand them personally, Strengthen those persons that remain; as if he should say to the Angel of the Church, Thy people are generally cold and dead, and drowsie, there is hardly any life in them; now those that do remain, strengthen them, that they may be awakened, they are ready to die, there are hardly any of thy hearers that are upright and sincere before God, therefore strengthen them; thus Pareus, and many others interpret it; and this is a very good sense; for a Minister is bound to strengthen all his people, if any be drowsie, to awaken them; if any be dead, to quicken them; and the Lord complains against Ministers when they do not doe thus, Ezek. 34. The diseased have they not strengthened, &c.

But then there is another Exposition of these words given by Divines that understand it of things, and not of persons; and to it is in the Greek, Strengthen the things that remain; that both Minister and people would strengthen the good things that were in them; for the Ministers grown weak and remiss, and the people weak in all good things: Now the Spirit calls upon the Angel of this Church, and in him upon all the Congregation, to strengthen the good things that were in them.

Observation. So that the point of Doctrine is this, that it is every Christians duty to labour that he might be strengthened, specially if he hath had more strength formerly then now he hath; it is every Christians duty to strengthen the good things that are in him.

For the opening of this word strengthen, it hath an opposition to weakness. Now there is a double weakness.

First, Of those people that are unconverted, that are weak to the resisting of sin, and doing any that is good; they have some principles in them to resist sin, and doe good, but they are weak, as common illuminations, and natural conscience, and fear of wrath, and hope of Heaven, and shame of others, and the good example of others, and living under the means, and restraining grace, and the like; these things may do a great deal of good, but they are weak, and cannot make them resist sinne, and doe good soundly; thus unconverted people are weak. This is not properly the weakness that is opposed to strength, that he would have them get out of the weakness of unconverted people.

Therefore secondly, There is another weakness, and that is of the children of God themselves; they have weakness to resist sinne, and doe good, and this is twofold.

First, There is a weakness of Beginning. Secondly, of Declining.

First, In beginning; when a childe of God is a beginner in grace, and is but a babe, Heb. 5. 12. When for the time ye ought to be, &c. Such as are babes have need of milk, they cannot digest strong meat, they are too weak for that; as may be a new beginner hath gotten faith, but it is weak, he is not able to apprehend the promises of salvation, and the assurance of Gods goodness and mercy towards him; he hath much ado to apprehend Christ himself, and to hold his heart; so a man may have some knowledge, but it is weak; and some resolutions and endeavours, but they are weak, corruptions bear him down, and his mortification is weak; he cannot master many of his heady and mighty lusts. Now such people as these are to be exhorted to strengthen these good things that God hath begun in them: Hath God begun any good things in thee? any lively fear of his name, any hatred of evil, any love to goodness, any longing and thirsting after righteousness, any moderate after eternal life, any faith; then labour to strengthen these things, that they may abound in thee, and that they may be confirmed and established in thee, that thou mayst be made unblameable against the coming of the Lord Jesus; but [illegible] is more the meaning neither.

his

Secondly therefore, There is a weakness of declining, when a man hath been stronger, and now hath abated of his strength, and is grown weak; a strong man may grow into a consumption, which may spend him away till he comes to be an Anatomy, and so is grown weak; so many Christians that have been stronger, they are now grown weak, they are grown into a consumption of grace, they are grown to be as Anatomy, as nothing but even skin and bone; they were more lusty to approve and a promise, but now they have more doubting; they could pray lively, but now they are faint and weak; they were powerfull in every good duty, but now they are down the wind; they are like a Jack that wants winding up, they had need be wound up again; they are grown more cholerick and peevish, and pettish, and have less strength over their corruptions, and are made more ready to be drawn away. Now such persons are exhorted to strengthen these things; and the rather, because they are but ready; you have had more grace, and have let it die and decay; therefore strengthen that which remains, and is ready to die; so that there are two parts of this Doctrine.

First, That every man should be earnest, and use all manner of help Part 1. and means to strengthen himself. 'Tis true, First it is every Ministers duty to labour to get strength into his people, to strengthen their understanding, knowledge, and judgement, to strengthen them in the promises, to hold forth Jesus Christ nakedly unto them, to expound the free grace of God, that they may be strong in faith; So if a Minister see they are weak to bear afflictions, he should labour to support and bear them up, and pour the spirit into them, and enable them to bear; So if he finde they are unable to bear temptations, he should use all arguments to piece them up that they may stand against the wiles of the Devill; a Minister hath his own strength given him of purpose to strengthen his brethren, Isa. 35. 3. the Lord saith, Strengthen the weak hands, &c. He would have Ministers call upon people for strength, and to use all means by preaching, and teaching, and exhortations, to get some strength into his people; it is a Ministers duty, not only to make Saints, but to perfect the Saints; whither should the people come but to the Minister to get strength in grace?

Secondly, It is every neighbours duty to strengthen his neighbour; Christians should strengthen one another in all manner of good duties, as coals that are dead, we doe warm and heat one another when they are together; but if they be severed, they will be dead; so Christians, when they meet together, should labour to warm, and heat, and quicken one another; Solomon wrote to the Thessalonians to mark all the weak and feeble people among them, and to strengthen the feeble-minded, 1 Thes. 5. 14.

But then thirdly, Every man should do his duty to himself, to strengthen the good things that are in him; we see all the world labours to be strong in outward things, some to be strong in riches and wealth, some to be strong in the Court, and others to strengthen themselves in their friends and allies; as Absalom laboured to be strong for the house of God, for he knew he should be no body if that went down; if a man have a cause to defend, he will make himself as strong as he can to defend himself; if a man be to fight a battel, he will make himself as strong as he can; nay, people will strengthen themselves in their wickedness. Now if it be so, then how much must should we labour to be strong in the grace of God? If we have any good things given us of God, we should strengthen them; as Paul saith to the Corinthians, when he saw they were babes still and were weak, and never came to strength, he calls upon them as fast to strengthen themselves. 1 Cor. 1

1. Reas. Because we can have no comfortable argument to our souls that we are true Christians except we get strength; every true Christian is a very able man as Paul saith, Phil. 4. 13. I can do all things through Christ that strengthens me. He was a strong man, and able to doe great things; what man of a thousand can be rich, and not be proud and vain, and let his heart follow after pleasures and the things of the world? yet a true Christian can be rich, and yet not be thus; so what man almost can be poor, and not be discontented, and repine against God, and take unlawfull courses? yet a true Christian is able to be poor, and yet not deny God, nor distrust God, nor fall a carking and caring; so likewise a true Christian can have a peevish nature, and yet not be peevish, he can have as crabbed a disposition as any body else, and yet not be crabbed; he can have as vile a cursed nature as any man under heaven, and yet have a good disposition; he is able to do all things, as Job saith, Job 9. 19. If you talk of strength, God is strong. So it is with a childe of God that hath the image of God in him; if you talk of strength, he is strong; a man cannot have any true argument to his soul that he is a true Christian, unless he be strengthened to doe the things of God; unless he be lifted up of God to doe supernaturall things; a true Christian is no weakling; a man saith, I cannot doe thus and thus, it is my weakness, then thou canst not say thou art a true Christian; for a true Christian is an able man, a mighty man; nay all the graces of Gods spirit are strong, that if a man hath any degree of them, he may doe wonders with them. 1 John 5. 4. This is our victory that overcometh the world, even our faith, it doth not say great faith, but our faith; a little faith, though but as a grain of mustardseed, is able to overcome the world; a true Christian can overcome sin, and the world, and the Devil, and whatsoever is contrary to him; a natural man may believe in some sense, but he can nothing with his faith; it is not of the right stamp; but a true Christian he can doe wonders with his faith; he can draw neer to God, and cry Abba Father; he is able to purifie his own heart; all things are possible to him that believeth, it is a powerfull thing; Gen. 32. 28. Jacob had power with God, saith the Text; he is able to fit himself against every lust, and goe about every duty, and please God in all his wayes in some measure; a little faith is strong; so love is a strong grace, it is as strong as death, Cant. 8. If a man hath but a little true love to God, it will enable him to doe strange things, it will make him suffer any thing, doe any thing, leave any thing for God. Now natural people they love, they love God, but it is a weak love, it cannot make them leave a lust for God, it cannot make them doe any thing for God, it cannot carry a man beyond nature; but all the graces of Gods spirit are marvellous strong things; therefore as ever we desire to have a sign and token that we are true Christians, and have the grace of God in truth in any measure in us, we should labour to strengthen all the good things that are in us; for if we doe not strengthen them, they are not of the right stamp.

2. Reas. Secondly, We can never doe any act of new obedience unless we be strengthened, as the Lord saith to Joshua, Josh. 1. 7. Onely be thou strong, and do my commandements, &c. He would have him strong, that he might observe all the Law of God; as who should say, Joshua, thou canst never be able to observe my Law, there be mighty performances, things that flesh and blood can never reach unto; therefore unless thou hast strength, and divine strength, thou canst never be able to doe this; therefore be strong, strengthen thy self labour

bour to have all the courage and might that may be. God bids us not only love him, but he requires all the strength of the whole man. Thou shalt love the Jer. 12. 5.
Lord thy God with all thy heart, and all thy strength. It may be compared to a man that must be to rowe with the tyde and the wind: the wind and the stream will carry the vessel, but if he be so much against the wind and tyde, he must put forth all his strength, else he shall not come to it. It is the same contrary way; so if we would please God, and work the work of God, and attain to his heavenly kingdom, we must come against wind and tyde, and without toyling and halting, and pulling forth a great deal of strength, we shall never do it. Suppose a man be provoked and stirred up to anger, he cannot be quiet an houre together, but he is troubled and ruffled and mocked, and opposed, now he cannot be patient unless he do put forth all his great strength to daily himself. Ephes. 4. 2. Be strengthened with all might according to that glorious power, to all patience and long suffering with gladness. As who should say, if you would have patience, you must be strengthened with all might, specially if you would be patient with joy.
Why a man may be patient, but then he is surly and lowring, and all patient may he be here, but he is like a block or stock, he cannot joy in afflictions, he had need have a great deal of strength to do that. So if a man could pray, can he pray without a great deal of strength? it is not a little love will life up a mans heart to God. I lift my heart to thee, he gave a Psa. 25. 1.
great life to his heart; and Heb. 5. 7. it is said that Christ prayed with strong cries: we cannot pray aright unless we come with strong cries and strong tears. So if a man hear the word, if it awaken him and quicken him, he will lose all again, and be as blockish as he was before, unless he be strong. 1 John 2. 14.
A man can do no good duty without strength, and therefore we had need pray for strength.

Thirdly, We can never overcome temptations, nor make our part good 3. Reas.
against temptations without strength: nay, we cannot resist them, nor combate with them, or stand in the field against them, but we shall be beaten and be overwhelmed if we have not strength: if we would go to heaven we shall be sure to meet with abundance of temptations; and if temptations can put us out of the way, we shall have enough of them: Satan can sway and make us do this and that, we shall not want temptations: if a bowl hath bias, the strength of the arm will take away that, though the bias be never so strong, as long as the strength of the arm lasts, the bias goeth not according to the strength of the arm, when the strength of the arm is gone, then the bias begins to sway it also: if a man have strength, it will swallow up the bias of temptations; but when a man hath no strength, then the bias of temptations carries him away, then the world bows him, then pleasures and his natural inclination sways him this way and that way, whereas if a man had strength he might resist temptations. 1 Cor. 15. 58. Be stedfast and unmoveable, abounding in the work of the Lord: thus if you were strong, you would be unmoveable, and abound in the work of the Lord; the world could not withdraw you from the work of the Lord, for all temptations, you would abound in good things: what strength need have we to resist temptations? none of us can arrive at heaven, unless we be able to go through thick and thin, and a world of temptations: blessed is the man that endures temptations, he shall have enough of them; and happy is the man that can endure them, and overcome them: if we be not strong, if we have not this spiritual might, what shall become of us? if we have not strong love to the truth, we shall be hooked away from it; if we have not strong love to obedience, we shall be disobedient; if we have not strong love to the wayes of God, we shall be pulled away from them by force of temptations.

Fourthly

4. Reas. James 3. 2. Thirdly, Without strength, if we should chance to fall, we cannot get up again; In many things we offend all. How often doth the godly man fall into sin, through weakness and infirmity, and ignorance, and sometimes in a grosse manner? now if he have spiritual strength in him, then he may rise up again; if he hath a strong relation to God in Jesus Christ that cannot be broken, then he may get up again, as suddenly, if it hath abundance of sorrow, and blains, and diseases upon it, yet as long as the strength of nature holds it out, it will overcome again; if you give sick man Physick, as long as the strength of nature lasts, Physick may do him good, but if the strength of nature be gone, the disease will overcome him, it will be his death; so it is with a Christian, as long as there is any spiritual strength in him, he will get out of any sin and corruption; but if he hath not these, he can never get again, as the Apostle saith, Heb. 12. 12, 13. lift up the hands that hang down, and the feeble knees, and make strait paths for your feet, &c. As who should say, If you will strengthen your feeble knees, then though they be lame, they will rather be healed then turned out of the way; but if you let your feeble knees be weak still, then if you have any lameness or any distemper, you will be turned out of the way; but if you strengthen your feeble knees, when you have been lame, and have any distemper, you will rather be healed then turned out of the way. You shall see when Israel was without the true God, and were divided, they were Idolators, and the number of witches was grown upon them; now when God would have Asa purge out these abuses, see how he calls upon him, 2 Chron. 15. 7. strengthen, &c. and the words following we may see Asa did strengthen himself, and reformed all the abuses, and set up the worship of God, and went on valiantly in that work; now he had gotten strength.

5. Reas. Lastly, If we have not strength, we can never do any thing God bids us with ease; but if we have strength, we may not only do what God bids us, but do it with ease; as when a man hath a strong memory, he can get any thing by heart with ease, he hath it presently; another that hath a weak memory, will be conning and conning it I know not how long, and as fast as he remembers one thing, he forgets another; he hath much ado to get it; so if a man have a strong judgement and understanding, though he meet with an hard word or passage, he will understand it, and pick out the meaning; whereas one of a weak understanding may be studying all the dayes of his life, and yet never apprehend it; so when a man hath spiritual strength, he can do what God bids him do; and leave what God bids him leave with ease; he may pray, and humble and deny himself with ease, and lay those lusts aside, which before he had as live have parted with his blood as parted with them; when a man is strong in his love to God, and strong in the consideration of Gods goodness and mercy, he can do these things with ease; Matth. 11. 30. my yoak is easie (saith Christ) and my burthen is light; whereas to a natural man it is the heaviest yoak and burthen in the world for a man to be tied to abstain from all vanity, from all vile passions, and inordinate affections, from all sinful pleasures, and covetous desires; is a burthen intolerable for a natural man, it is because of his weakness; but now a gracious heart that hath gotten spiritual strength, can do it, and do it with ease.

Use. 1. The first Use is to condemn those that have no strength at all, that are not capable of this Exhortation, we cannot say strengthen the good things that are in you, because they have no good things in them at all, they have nothing nothing of saving grace and of the covenant of life wrought in them: they have nothing but the common graces, that may be in a reprobate as in a faithful, Rom. 8. 7. of the carnal mind, it is not subject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be; It cannot be subject; there is no strength of grace there is strength enough, but it is let out upon the world: a man may have strong parts and gifts, but there is no strength to this duty; to be subject to the Law of God, he is not able to do it; as Christ saith of the corrupt tree, it cannot bring forth good fruit; it hath as much strength to suck from the earth, and to bud and blossome, and bring forth fruit, and as much sap as a good tree: but it cannot bring forth good fruit; so a natural man thinks as much, and speaks as much, and eats and drinks, and sleeps as much as a godly man doth, and goes about the business of his calling, and hears the word of God may be, and prayes as often as a godly man doth, but he is not able to bring them to a good end, to do them well, he hath no strength at all: as Christ saith to the Scribes and Pharisees, how can ye escape the wrath to come? they had great parts and strength in other matters, but to escape hell, and shun the wrath to come, they had no strength: and that, they were as weak as water there; what a woful thing is this, that a man hath no strength to overcome his sins, and deny himself? Men have eyes full of Adultery, and cannot cease from sin, 2 Pet. 2. 14. it is a miserable condition for a man to be in. Matth. 7. 18.

Secondly, This may condemn those, that though they have some good things in them, yet they do not strengthen them that are of the strain of the Church of Sardis, that let their graces dye and decay, and go down the wind and perish and consume; they suffer a consumption in their graces, and then watch and strengthen the things that are in them; what a lamentable thing is this? though our faith be never so weak, we are hardly able to lay hold upon one promise; and when we study to find sign of evidence in us, we can hardly find any; and yet notwithstanding people will not strengthen their faith, and other graces. Let us not deceive our selves. If we be Christians let us shew it by the strength that is in us; for if we be true Christians, we must be able Christians to do all the works of God, able to fight against our corruptions, able to do good duties, able to obey the Gospel: he that hath the least strength of true saving grace is able to be upright in all his ways, he is able to observe all the commandements of God in some measure, he is able to carry himself uprightly against every evil way, in one word, he is able to keep all the word of God in some measure; he that hath but the least strength of grace is able to do this as the Lord saith, Rev. 3. of the Church of Philadelphia, though she had but a little strength, yet she kept the very word of God; a little strength of saving grace will make a man more then the whole world can do; it is able to make a man reach above all the reach of nature, and all natural parts, and morality and civility, and all the fair carriages that ever were; it is able to go beyond all: there is more wisdom in the least degree of saving grace, than in all the politicians in the world; and more knowledge in the least fool in Christendom, than in all the wise men under heaven; I mean true saving knowledge; therefore let us not deceive our selves, but as we desire to be able to say that we are true Christians, let us labour to strengthen all the good things that are in us, that our faith we think we have to shew for heaven may be a strong faith, and that our hope may be a strong hope, that we may purifie our selves by it, and that the fear of God may be a strong bridle to make us depart from hell beneath, & so that our desires may be strong to the throne of grace, and our endeavours strong against our corruptions, and our care & consciences strong from day to day to do the works of God.

Use 2. The second Use is an Use of direction, what we are to do to strengthen the the good things that are in us, and for us. Let us labour to have all the powers of our souls strengthened by the strengthening the powers of the soul. I mean this, you know that divine operations are above nature, above the reach of the powers of a carnal man naturally. Now if we would be strong to do these great things, we must get our hearts to be raised and lifted up to a higher strain, to a sublime pitch, as it is in the Hebrew, 2 Chron. 17. His heart was lifted up in the ways of God. That is, his heart was strengthened to walk in the ways of God, and was lifted up above Flesh, above the course of nature, so he did great matters, he cast down the high places, and took away the Groves, and made the Priests and Levites do their duties, he did admirable things for the glory of God. Now if we would have all the powers of our souls lifted up to God, we are not able to do it, unless God hath raised up our minds, and wills and affections to a high pitch. So Judg. 2. 16. when God raised up Judges to deliver Israel from their enemies, it is said, they were never able to deliver them, but when God lifted up their spirits, and lifted them up, that they were not cast down under the sense God had given them: So Jer. 51. 11. it is said, he raised up the spirits of the Medes, they were a weak people, they durst not meddle with Babylon, but when God had raised up their spirits, and lifted them up to an higher pitch of courage and strength, they not only durst go against them, but to overcome them: so we must get our minds to an higher pitch, we are not able to know God aright, we are not able to do good, and mortifie sin, and be crucified to the world, we are not able to go about these things; but when God hath lifted up our hearts, and the powers of our souls, we can do these things, as the water is not able to boil the meat, it falls down from the fire, and cannot raise the water to an higher pitch, to seething heat, so it is not able to boil the meat, so it is with a mans heart, there are many lets in the heart, we must labour to be strengthened by the Lord in the use of all good means, that we may get the powers of our souls raised and lifted up on high, that they may be able to reach the things of God, and attain unto them.

And first labour to have strong minds and understandings. I do not mean strong literal knowledge, for with a little of that a man may have a great love to God, and zeal unto his glory, as we may see in the book of Martyrs, Bradford, and Rowland Hayn, and others, they were many times unlearned men, when they were asked what a Sacrament was, and how many there were, they could not tell, and yet were admirable Martyrs, and zealous to God, such according to that knowledge they had, and laid down their lives for the Gospel, that they had true light of knowledge, therefore we must not think that though that be very good, and without some literal knowledge the mind cannot be good, as a man may have literal knowledge without grace, but he should have no grace without literal knowledge, therefore it is good, but not sufficient, we must labour to have strong spiritual understandings, that we may understand spiritually the things of God, as Dan. 12. 34. Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy Law, as who should say, if ever any be able to do this spiritual duty of love, it is because he doth not only know it literally, but he doth understand it spiritually, he doth see how excellent it is that God would have him love him, and his ways, and understand the mysteries of that heavenly and spiritual way of his will, how to do them well, that he might understand it savingly, powerfully, and effectually, and did not only have his Law in his head, but in his heart, Psal. 119. 29. Remove from me the way of lying, and grant me thy Law graciously, that is, let me not only have the knowledge of thy Law, but let me have it graciously, let me understand it savingly, let me have it in the manner as a man never else can have it, but as he that is effectually called, who we are sure do not only think more well of our

of our selves; when we are worldly, we are deceived; for we think the world is better then it is; so when we are dead to good duties, we are deceived; for we look upon Gods wayes and ordinances, as if they were not such admirable things; it is through the deceitfulness of our understandings that we give way to sin. Now if our understandings were strengthened, we should be fenced against the deceivableness of sin, that when the Devil comes with his delusions, and the temptations of the flesh with false colours to put us upon sin, the understanding would be strong, and see the weakness of all such reasons; every man follows reason; reason is a strong thing, and leads all the world; no man doth any thing, but he hath some reason for it; the worldly man hath some, though not true reason why he is so carnal, he is afraid he shall not know how to live; therefore we should be earnest with God to strengthen our understandings, that we may see the falseness, and beggery, and folly of all such vile reasons as these; if the understanding were sound, it were a marvellous strong thing; A wise man is strong, yea a man of knowledge encreaseth strongly, Prov. 24. 5. Therefore I say we should labour to have sound understandings, that God would give us to know his Word as it is, and to look upon things as they are, that the world may not seem to be otherwise then it is, and our names, and credit, or any thing in the world may not seem to be more beautiful then they are, but we may look upon things in their own colours, that we may have light; if we had the light that comes from above, we should be marvellous strong; Paul saith, Let us put on the Armour of light. So Heb. 10.32. saith he, After you were enlightned, you endured a great fight of affliction. When they had Rom. 13.12. the light come into their hearts, that they durst not be impatient, then, though they had mighty afflictions upon them, they endured them; they had light come in, they could not rise up against God; if our knowledge were strong, our corruptions would be weak, our carnal hearts would be weak, we should not be so able to goe against God and his commandements; I can do nothing against the truth, saith Paul; why? he had a strong light, he saw so clearly that it was the truth of God, and it 2 Cor. 13. 8. was the way to be damned for ever to goe against it, and he saw so clearly what an admirable thing the truth was, that he could do nothing against it. So Joseph saith, How can I commit this great wickedness, &c? He had such a light, and so saw the nature of the evil, that he durst not do it for a Gen. 39.9. world; the understanding is a very strong thing, see it in that which is in wicked wretches; what a deal of strength hath that little knowledge of God that is in their hearts? when a wicked man knowes that his courses suit the Devil, and he is informed and reads it in the Word of God, he knows his wayes are condemned of God. I tell you this knowledge keeps a great deal of stir in his heart, and makes his conscience afraid, and sometimes qualms come over his heart, and sometimes makes him resolve I will be a drunkard and adulterer no more; it makes him that he cannot goe so easily about his wicked courses, Mark 6.20. When Herod knew John Baptist was a godly man, this made him fear him. So when Saul knew assuredly that David should be King, though he went out to destroy him, he let him live; nay, every persecutor, if he knows they be the people of God he persecutes, it will make his very heart ake, and will make him give over his persecution, except he be marvellous strong, Isa. 11.9. Why? how will God handle persecutors? The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord. There shall be such a deal of knowledge, that they shall not be able to hurt in my holy mountain; nay this knowledge may make wicked men mightily to deny themselves. Balaam, though he was greedy after riches and preferment, yet when he knew that it was Gods mind that he he should not curse Israel, he should provoke God; saith he, If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot goe beyond the word of the Lord, &c. Nay, knowledge may work Reformation, After they escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of Jesus Christ, 2 Pet. 2. 20. Now if knowledge be such a thing where it is not rooted soundly in the mind, then how strong would it be if we did get our understandings soundly informed? if we would get knowledge rooted in us, the very knowledge that God hath commanded us to serve him, and fear him, that he hath revealed his wrath from Heaven upon all disobedience; that Christ is the Saviour of the world, it would strengthen us against sin, and to doe good; therefore let us labour to have strong minds.

Secondly, Let us labour to have a strong will, as David had, Psalm 119. 15,16. I will meditate in thy precepts, I will delight my selfe in thy statutes, I will not forget thy word. You see how absolutely he is set upon it, I will do thus and thus, and I will not do the contrary; this is a strong Will; and therefore you see what admirable things he could do, because his Will was strong; what is the reason people are so weak? they cannot resist sin, they cannot give over such a lust, they cannot get life and quickning in prayer and other duties; if an Enemy come, they cannot put it up; if affliction come, they cannot bear it patiently; if they are called to stand for God, they cannot put off carnal fears; this is the weakness of our Wills; if our Wills were absolutely set that way, we should be marvellous strong, and break through all oppositions; all the strength of a man is in the Will of a man; if a mans Will be set upon a thing, he will go through fire and water, he will do it; therefore we should labour that our Wills may be strong in the works of God, to the pleasing of God, and hating of evill, and opposing of all the wayes of the flesh; as David saith, Psal. 119.10. I have sought thee with my whole heart. We should doe thus; we may see this in wicked men, when their hearts are absolutely set to do evil, how doe they goe through difficulties? nothing shall hinder them; how wonderfully did Saul persecute David, over hills and dales, and caves of the earth, over rocks and craggy places? if he had not been furious and mad, he could not have followed him in such places; nay, he spurned against conscience; God met with him oftentimes, and infatuated his counsels, which could not but be as hedges in his way; but he broke over all. Whence was this? his Will was absolutely set, 1 Sam. 23.23. he was resolved, if David were to be found under the copes of heaven, he would have him; so if our hearts, our wills were absolutely set to finde God and his grace; if we would say, if Christ be to be found, we will have him, if he be in Heaven or Earth we will have him; we will run over all ordinances and duties; what sin will we not leave? what course will we not take? if he be to be found, we will have him. A man might go through any difficulty, if his Will were absolute; the Will is a strong faculty, it hath the command over the whole man; the mind thinks, and the heart intends, and the affections stir, and the tongue speaks, and the foot walks, and the hand works, but the Will sways all; nay if a mans appetite be to a thing, yet if he will not doe it, he may refrain it; the Will is the strongest faculty in a man; as soon as we heare the Prodigal had a Will to goe to his Father, the next newes we hear, he did goe; I will arise and goe to my Father, and now nothing could stay him; if our Wills were set earnestly towards God, that we would serve him, and obey him, and would not be carried away with our lusts, what a deal of strength would this help us with? we should be strong to trample Satan under our feet, and mortifie our lusts; and this is the reason God accepts the Will above all, if there be a willing mind, God accepts it, nay not only accepts it, but rewards it also, 1 Cor. 9.19. If I doe it willingly; I have my reward. The Will is the strongest faculty God knows; if he he hath a mans will, he hath all that ever a man can do, he hath all his power, nay, he hath more then his power; the will is able to go beyond a mans power; as it is said of the Macedonians, 2 Cor. 8. 3. they did to their power, and beyond their power; the will is a mighty strong thing; therefore if we will be strong in the Lord, let us labour for strong wills.

Thirdly, Let us labour for sound affections, that our affections may be conversant about God and all his holy laws and commandments; which way a mans affections run, so they run mightily; that way a mans strength runs; as the Prophet saith, Isa. 63. 15. look down from heaven; where is thy zeal and thy strength? that is, when God is zealous for his peoples good, he puts forth his strength for their defence; therefore the Prophet cries, Lord, where is thy zeal and thy strength? so we may say, where is our zeal to God, and against sin, where is our zeal for good duties, for heavenly-mindedness, and the spreading of the Gospel, and doing good in our places? If we were but zealous and earnest in our affections, we should not go so dully and faintly in the ways of God as we do: it would make us strong; we see how strongly men follow after the world, when they are zealous for the world; so if we were earnest after God, we should be strongly carried after him.

Secondly, If we would get strength, let us labour to believe; for when a man hath once gotten faith, now, though he be never so weak, he may say, God is my strength, Psal. 73. 26. A man that hath gotten this faith, may say as David, Psal. 71. 16, I will go in the strength of the Lord; I will go to hear, to the word; to the Sacrament, I will go about my calling, when I set upon my business, I will go in the strength of the Lord to do it; if a man wants strength, he goes and even borrows strength from heaven, Heb. 11. 34. by faith, of weak they became strong; as the rivers that watered Paradise, their heads and springs were out of Paradise; so though there be streams of mercy and grace, and power, and love communicated to us, yet the heads of these are out of us; Christ is the head from which we must fetch all; I can do all things (saith Paul) through Christ that strengtheneth me, Phil. 4. 13. I can do all things; you will say, this is to brag and boast; alas, I am able to do nothing, it is Christ that strengthneth me; like the Ivy that creeps up by the wall, so a Christian creeps up by Christ; there lies all our strength, therefore all our care should be to believe, to get off from our own bottoms; a true Christian is never so weak as when he will be himself, when he goes about actions himself; if he would let Christ do all, and he only take that course Christ bids him, and never go his own way to work, he were a strong man, Isa. 30. 7. It is your strength to sit still; the children of Israel were so busie to help themselves, they would to Egypt, and they should help them; saith God, you shall never have help this way; your strength is to sit still and wait upon God, and trust in him; so I say, then is a true Christian weak, when he departs from Christ, and doth not keep close to him; suppose a man should be in misery, there be but two wayes to help him, the one is by himself, the other is by Christ; now, suppose a man were in such a straight, that he must be delivered in a quarter of an hour, or else he is undone; shall a man go to prayer now, or to his own strength? to prayer it were, for a mans life; now when a man goes to his own strength and parts, this weakens him; we should do every thing better if we would go to Christ, and set our hearts upon him, if we would use the means, but hang upon God, this were our strength.

Thirdly, We should fly all occasions of evil; may be a child can contain it self from the dug (when it is newly weaned) so long as it comes not near it; but when the child seeth the dug, now the fancy runs upon the dug again, and now it cries for the dug again; it is because it is not perfectly weaned; if it were perfectly weaned, though it saw the dug, it would not look after it; ſo we are not perfectly weaned from ſin; therefore though when we reſiſt occaſions and temptations of ſin, we are able to abſtain and contain our ſelves, yet becauſe we are not perfectly weaned, if we give way to occaſions we loſe all; when we will raſhly venture upon the occaſions of evil, we loſe our ſtrength; therefore ſaith David, Pſal. 101. 3. I will ſet no evil thing before mine eyes; as he would not do it, ſo he would not have it in his ſight; every man is privy to himſelf, and may know what thoughts, what deſires, what appearances, what cuſtoms, what ſpeeches are occaſions of evil to him; he might know what doth occaſion him to ſin; may be he had not committed ſin but for this or that; now when a man ſhall give way to theſe occaſions, and not ſtand upon his guard, this loſeth all a mans ſtrength; as Saul he was privy to himſelf how teſty and furious he was, and if he had any inſtrument of fury in his hand, he had no power over himſelf; yet he would ever be with his javelin in his hand, when he was in the field, or in the houſe, ſtill he had his javelin in his hand; now you may ſee what miſchief he expoſed himſelf unto, he flung it twice at David, and a third time at his own ſon Jonathan; if he had been careful not to have given way to the occaſions of ſin, knowing how weak he was, and that he had not command over himſelf, he might have eſcaped this; a man that is furious had not need alwayes to have a ſword about him; a man had need ſhun all the occaſions of evil; Joſeph was a ſtrong man, how can I do this wickedneſs? &c. all the temptations of his Miſtriſs could not allure him; what was the cauſe of this? he would not hearken to his Miſtris, nor be with her, Gen. 39. What made Achan to be ſo weak? he muſt needs take the Babyloniſh garment, and the wedge of gold; he gave way to the occaſion, I looked upon it, ſaith he; he being privy to his own covetous heart, ſhould Joſh. 7. 21. have been ſhy of giving any occaſion to the fleſh; but he giving way to the occaſion was weak and not able to ſtand.

Fourthly, We ſhould never go up and down without a conſtant continual purpoſe to pleaſe God; when we firſt riſe in the morning, we ſhould think with our ſelves, well, I purpoſe to take heed of ſin this day; ſo when I am at dinner, I will take heed that I let not the remembrance of God go out of my mind; I will have freſh thoughts of him while I am at board; as it is ſaid of Daniel, he purpoſed not to defile himſelf with the Kings meat: So
Dan. 1. 8. when we go into the fields, we ſhould think with our ſelves, I purpoſe God willing, to beware that I may not come home with a guilty conſcience, & do things that may be to my ſhame and wounding another day; when we are to come among wicked people, we ſhould reſolve before we come, I will let fall nothing to diſhonour God; thus if we would go armed up and down, we ſhould go ſtrongly; if we would make ſerious reſolutions to cleave to God, and not to do evil, this would ſtrengthen us; now when temptations meet us unreſolved, we are not able to put them off.

Fifthly, We ſhould frequent the Ordinances of God. Firſt, We ſhould be careful of hearing the word of God in a godly manner. Strength and beauty are in his Sanctuary, Pſal. 96. 6. there is ſtrength to be had in Gods houſe, in Gods courts, his Word and Ordinances are the food of the ſoul, that as bread ſtrengthens a mans body, ſo this ſpiritual bread of life ſtrengthens a mans ſoul. So again, For prayer, to go to God in prayer, that would ſtrengthen us, Prov. 18. 10. So the Sacraments, they are a means to ſtrengthen us; to go to the Lords Table with hunger and thirſt, and ſerious conſideration of our own unworthineſs, and of our need, and with true faith unto it; the Lords Supper is a means to ſtrengthen, as it is noted in the primitive Church, Acts 2. 42. ſo again for meditations, if we would meditate of the things we hear, of Gods word, and his bleſſings, and judgement, and warning we have from day to day; if we would digeſt theſe things things, and chew them from day to day, they would yield a great deal of nouriſhment unto us; as David ſaith, Bleſſed is the man whoſe meditations are in Gods Law, he ſhall be like a tree planted by the rivers ſide; and his leafe ſhall not wither, Pſal. 1. 2, 3. that man ſhall flouriſh like a green bay tree: So for holy conference, that is a great means to ſtrengthen all good things; as thoſe good people, when the times were bad, mark how they ſtrengthned themſelves, that they might not be infected with evil; they that feared the Lord ſpake often one to another, Mal. 3. 16.

Sixthly, We ſhould put forth our ſelves to the utmoſt in good duties; it is our lazineſſe and idleneſs that we are not more able to do good, and that we are ſo frail and infirm to do any thing that is of God; if we would take pains and put forth our ſelves, we ſhould be ſtrong; and indeed what is ſtrength but taking of pains when a man puts forth himſelf? as Eccleſ. 10. 10. that is, a man muſt take the more pains; the more pains a man takes, the more ſtrength he puts forth; there is no creature that God hath made beſides man, but doth act to its utmoſt ſtrength; the fire burns as much as ever it can; and the light ſhines as much as ever it can; and the ſtone goes down as low as ever it can; every creature works as far as it can; but now man he can limit his ſtrength, becauſe he hath reaſon and will, and according as he ſees a thing more or leſs neceſſary, according as he ſees it eaſier or harder to be attained, accordingly he leſſens or puts forth his ſtrength; and it is great reaſon that God ſhould give man power to limit his ſtrength, for he is to deal with the creature as well as with the Creator; and if he ſhould love and ſeek the creature as much as ever he can, this were Idolatry; therefore the Lord hath given a man power to limit his ſtrength, not to let out all his love or fear upon any thing here below; but yet God doth not give a man that power to limit his ſtrength, and the exerciſe of it towards his Maker, but he ſhould let out all towards God; as David ſaith, let all that is within me praiſe the Lord; he opens his floodgates wide, and lets out all towards God. Pſal. 103.

Seventhly, Conſider that all received ſtrength is worth nothing unleſſe God give us new ſupply; wherefore are true Chriſtians weak at any time, but becauſe they think thus? I had true grace in the morning, and an hour ago I had the fear of God and the hatred of ſin; and the conſideration of this makes him that he is not ſo careful to keep cloſe to Chriſt, and to take heed of falling; he thinks, I had power the other day, and I was able to reſiſt temptations then; this makes a man weak; he thinks he had grace a while a go, and ſo truſts to that; for if a man do not ſtill look up to Chriſt, and cleave unto him, as if he had no ſtrength, the man is preſently a weak man, as weak as another man, and cannot ſtand; a man cannot be ſtrong in the grace that is in himſelf, but in the grace that is in God; Eph. 6. 10. Brethren, be ſtrong in the Lord, and in the power of his might: And as Paul ſpeaks to Timothy, though Timothy were a man that was as ſtrong as any man upon the face of the earth almoſt, yet he bids him not count himſelf ſtrong in the grace that was in him, but in the grace that is in Chriſt Jeſus, 2 Tim. 2. 1. As it is with the air, which is not ſtrong with the light that is in it ſelf, but with the light that is in the Sun; therefore we are careful not to ſhut the windows; for if we ſhut the light of the Sun out, the air though it be light now, will be dark again in a moment; therefore though the room be light, yet we keep the windows open, for the light of the air is ſtrong in the light of the Sun; ſo a Chriſtian ſhould keep his windows ever open towards Chriſt; if a man ever turn his back again upon Chriſt, and neglect Chriſt, if he do not cleave to Chriſt, and take heed he do not provoke Chriſt againſt him, he is gone, he is as weak as can be; as Ezra ſpeaks, Ezr. 7. 28. I was ſtrengthned as the hand of the Lord was upon me; no otherwiſe, if the Lord ſhould take away his hand, he were gone though he had never ſo much ſtrength, wiſedom and parts; he were no body without God.

Eighthly, Laſtly, Take heed of ſtriving againſt knowledge, or willingly that weakens us horribly; and in particular take heed of pride; no man is weak as a proud man, nor ſo ſtrong as an humble man, as a Divine ſpeaks; a man that is ſenſible of his own weakneſs, of his own being no body, of his own folly, and that he is able to do nothing of himſelf, he that is ſenſible of this is ſtrong; as Paul ſaith, 2 Cor. 12. 10. when we are weak, then are we ſtrong; that is, when we are humble and weak in our own apprehenſion and conſideration, when we lay this to heart, that we are weak, then are we ſtrong; for this makes a man lay about him, to cleave unto God.

I have laid down divers directions for the ſtrengthning of thoſe good things that are in us, and I will now adde one more, becauſe it is ſeaſonable for the time.

Direct. Make conſcience of uſing and improving the Sacraments, for they are excellent Ordinances to ſtrengthen a man.

Firſt, The Sacrament of Baptiſm; I do not mean the meer receiving outward baptiſm, that is a weak thing; but when a man hath a care to improve his baptiſm. It is noted of Abraham, that he had faith before his circumciſion; but he received circumciſion, the ſeal of the righteouſneſs of faith for this, that he might be the father of the faithful, Rom. 4. 19. Now he could believe incredible wonderful ſtrange things, that would have ſtaggered him before: So when David was to fight againſt Goliah, he was a great warrier, and a mighty ſouldier, and David a weak ſtripling; now ſee how he ſtrengthned himſelf againſt Goliah, he uſeth three arguments, and they taken from the Sacrament of Gods covenant; he was an uncircumciſed 1 Sam. 17. man, but David was circumciſed, and within the covenant; What is the uncircumciſed Philiſtin, to one that is circumciſed and in covenant with God? and he hath given me the Sacrament of it, that he will help me and be with me, and ſtand by me in all eſtates and conditions. So it was with the Gaoler; before when the Magiſtrates bid him put Paul and his fellow in the worſt priſon, he durſt do no other; and when he ſaw the priſon doors Acts 16. open, he would have killed himſelf, he was not able to have any power over himſelf; but when he had faith and was baptized, now he was able to take them out of the priſon, and carry them to his own houſe, and give them the beſt entertainment; though the Magiſtrates counted them Rogues and vagabonds, he had gotten ſtrength now.

Secondly, The Sacrament of the Lords Supper is of great force, being uſed with faith and due preparation according to Gods Ordinance; it is a Sacrament for the very nonce to help a mans faith, and ſtrengthen him in every good thing.

Firſt, Becauſe this is the very nature of the Sacrament; it is the Sacrament of growth and increaſing in grace; the other Sacrament puts a man into the eſtate of grace, and this ſtrengthens a man in the eſtate of grace; Matth. 26. therefore when Chriſt adminiſtred the Sacrament, he tells us, we may receive it as our very bread; now Pſal. 104. 15. bread ſtrengthens a mans heart: He tells us if we come to the Sacrament aright, as our bodies receive bread and it ſtrengthens them, ſo we may receive that which will nouriſh our ſouls; take, eat, this is my body; will not this bread nouriſh you? directly my body is ſuch a thing, that do but take it by faith, it ſhall ſtrengthen you, 1 Kings 19. juſt as this bread ſtrengthens the body; as Eliah went in the ſtrength of that meat he eat forty dayes and forty nights; ſo if we come to this Sacrament underſtandingly and preparedly, it is moſt certain we ſhall have ſtrength; may be not that we would have our ſelves; may be we would have more grace,

grace, and more aſſiſtance, but we ſhall have that ſtrength whereby we ſhall be able to go on in the ſervice of God, doing good, and ſhunning evil from day to day; My fleſh is meat indeed, &c. And indeed it will nouriſh a man; as it is ſaid of Jonathan, he was weak and faint, and his eyes grew dim; but when he taſted a little honey, his ſtrength came to him again: So the Sacrament received by a true Communicant, that ſets himſelf to prepare his ſoule to partake of it, he ſhall have his eyes enlightned, and his heart quickened, he ſhall have ſome ſuccour and reliefe from it to goe about every good word and work. John 6. 55. 1 Sam. 14.

Secondly, It is a ſeal of Gods Covenant, and therefore muſt needs ſtrengthen a man that is in Covenant with God, if he come to it as it ought to be come unto; for what is the Covenant a true believer is in? I will make an everlaſting Covenant, never to turn away from them to doe them good; and I will put my fear into their hearts, &c. Jer. 32. 40. It is an everlaſting Covenant, I will never let them goe, I will put a ſtrong fear into their hearts, that they ſhall not doe as the wicked doe, they ſhall ſtand in awe of God; it is a ſtrong light; others ſhall be deluded; they ſhall not be deluded; it is a ſtrong apprehenſion of the Word and Will of God; this is the Covenant of God. Now when a man ſhall come to have this ſealed, when God ſhall give this Sacrament to make this good, and he takes the Sacrament upon it, that he will walk according to this Covenant, according to the grace that God hath given him; this man hath all the witneſſes in heaven and earth; why ſhould he be weak in faith then? There be but three witneſſes in heaven; he hath theſe that hath faith; there be but three on earth, the ſpirit, water, and blood; by ſpirit, is meant the ſame ſpirit that works true faith and obedience in the hearts of his people; then water, that is the water of Baptiſm; and blood, that is the blood of the Lords Supper; the Lord doth witneſſe eternal life to this mans heart; therefore what can this man want? 1 John 5.

Thirdly, This Sacrament is Communion with Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Cor. 10. 16. The cup of bleſſing which we bleſs, is it not the Communion of the blood of Chriſt? &c. So that when a man comes to the Sacrament aright, he hath communion with Jeſus Chriſt; therefore he muſt needs be ſtrengthened, though he were never ſo weak before; as Solomon ſaith of the Conies, they are a feeble folke, and yet they make their houſes in the Rocks, Prov. 30. 26. So true Chriſtians are a feeble folk, yet they make their houſes in the Rock, where they eat this ſpiritual meat, and drink this ſpiritual drink; they drink of that Rock Jeſus Chriſt; when they draw neer to this Table, they draw neer to Chriſt, and therefore muſt needs gather ſtrength; they come to this Rock to be rooted and eſtabliſhed in this Rock; and therefore muſt needs get ſtrength.

Fourthly, Becauſe this Sacrament is a Sacrament of communion with the members of Chriſt; a man that rightly receives it, doth increaſe the Communion of Saints over all the world; though he never ſaw them, yet he is loved more and more of all the Saints; therefore he muſt needs grow ſtronger: Take a man that is woven into every man, there is hardly any man of any power but loves him, he hath friends everywhere; this man is a ſtrong man, as it is ſaid of Abſolom, he grew ſtrong, for the people increas'd continually with him, 2 Sam. 21. 15. So a Chriſtian muſt needs grow ſtrong, that truly hears the Word, and receives the Sacrament; for people ſtill come flocking more and more into him; for ſtill as the Church comes to grow, or any ſoul comes to believe in Chriſt, he ſtrengthens himſelfe; as Paul was ſtrong in every Town where he went, in regard of the Communion of Saints; ſuch a man is ſtrong in regard of his infirmities, he hath many to help him to bear them; he is ſtrong alſo in regard of advice and coun-counsel, he shall have the counsel of the Saints, Job 4. 3. If a man be doubtful what course to take when instruction comes, it strengthens a man much: Now when a man hath communion with all the Saints, what abundance of counsel hath he? you may see how weak David was, he was not able to beat down his wrath and impatience: Now when Abigail came with her good counsel, he blessed God for it.

1 Sam. 25.

Use 1. Let us have a care to come so to the Sacrament, that we may be strengthened in all good things, that we may be more quickned up to every good word and work; for it is a strengthening Ordinance; it is appointed of God for the very nonce to strengthen Gods people in all business and employment they have to doe from day to day. When Moses and all Israel received the Passeover, God smote the first borne of all Egypt, Psal. 105. 30. This was a seal that God smote all the strength of the Egyptians, but there was not one weak person among the Israelites: So if we did receive the Sacrament aright, there should not be a weak Christian among us, God would smite the Egyptians, and weaken the strength of all their lusts and corruptions; is therefore any among us weak, and he cannot do this and that? his lusts are like the sons of Zeruiah to David, too hard for him; Though I be anointed King, I am weak, &c. 2 Sam. 3.39. So dost thou say, I am very weak this day, and though God hath anointed me King over my lusts, and I am a Christian that should have power over my lusts, yet these base lusts and curs'd corruptions are too hard for me: I say, if we did but wisely and carefully, as we ought to do, goe to the Word and Sacrament, and the rest of Gods Ordinances, we should have marvellous supply and help to carry us on in our Christian Combate: It is a very remarkable thing, that when God would have Joshua and all Israel goe about that same hard work, to goe and encounter with 31 Kings of Canaan at one clap, and they were now newly come into the Land of Canaan, and were hemmed in, the waters of Jordan came back, and they could not goe back again, it is to be noted that before God would have them strike a blow, he would have them take the Sacrament of Circumcision; you know the Canaanites might have come and cut their throats when they were sore; nay when they were circumcised, God would not have them goe fight yet, but they must take the Sacrament of the Passeover, which would cost them seven dayes; one would think this was not the way to be strong; but this was indeed the way to be strong, to go in the strength of heaven; this made the spirits of their enemies melt, for they were now within the Covenant of God; therefore how should we help our own souls, if we would but go in the strength of Gods Covenant to prayer and every business we have to do, and if we would but rightly partake of this Sacrament as a seal of the Covenant? nothing would make it so strong as this.

Josh. 5.

Use 2. This may seem to condemn the most of us all generally. How do Christians misse of the partaking of the Sacrament? what a deal of weakness is there among us? where is there a strong Christian? they can hardly doe any thing, or suffer any thing; whence is all this? this comes from not receiving the Sacrament as they ought to doe; as the Apostle saith of bodily weakness, 1 Cor. 11. 30. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep. He speaks there of their unworthy receiving the Sacrament; this is the cause that your bodies are weak: So this is as true of the weakness of the soule; for this cause many are weak among you, and many have such sick souls; nay, many are even dead to all manner of good, even for this cause, the not receiving the Lords Supper in a right manner; for if the Sacrament were duely come unto as it doth require, it is to strengthen us in grace, and against Satan; but when people come hand over head, when they prepare themselves slightly, pray slightly before they come, and come careless and negligently, and take not pains to come in due fashion, they rather rather strengthen themselves in sinne and Satan against them; as it is said of Judas, after he had received the sop, the Devil entred into him, John 13. 27. you see he went away with more hardnesse of heart from the Lords Supper, then he came to it; he went away with more wrath and discontent against Christ and his blessed company then before; the Devil had more strength then he had before: A true Christian that comes to the Sacrament as he ought, gets more strength to his faith, more strength to his lively hope, more patience and meeknesse; he strengthens all the graces of Gods spirit, and strengthens himselfe against Satan and his own flesh, and against his lusts and corruptions; but when a man comes otherwise, he doth not only not get strength against corruption; but corruption gets strength rather; he goes away with more corruption of heart, and more guiltinesse of sinne then before, and is more heartlesse to prayer and good duties: The Devil deals with men, as the Monk did with Henry the 7th Emperour, it is reported that he was poysoned by coming to the Sacrament; for he had poysoned it, so the Devil poysons the Sacrament to most men, they eat and drink their own damnation, when they goe away from the Lords Supper they are more then when they came, more weak and unable to put off Satan, and more exposed to his fiery darts: whereas if the Sacrament were approached unto according to the due order that God hath set down in his Word, we should goe from it

Use 3. This may serve to shew the reason why people get no more good by the Sacrament, and doe not meet with this strength that the Sacrament administers to every worthy Communicant in general, because they doe not come in a right manner to the partaking of it; and when they doe not regard the manner, God doth not regard the matter; when they doe not come faithfully, and readily, and preparedly to the Table of the Lord, the Lord regards not their coming, and they shall get no good by it: a solemne saith, When a man is not ready to heare, he offers the sacrifice of fooles, Eccles. 5. 2. So when a man receives the Sacrament, and is not ready to receive, he receives the Sacrament of fooles; he doth not consider what a sacred thing it is, and what great matters are required of him, and what care and conscience is requisite thereunto; we should examine our selves, as the Apostle saith, 1 Cor. 11. 28. We must not only eat of that bread, and drink of that cup, for so even wretches and carnal people do, and never partake of any strength: but we must partake of it after a right manner, as Christ saith, Luke 12. 47. He that knew his Lords will, and prepared not himselfe to doe it, shall be beaten with many stripes; so when we know it is Gods will we should come preparedly, and we will not prepare our selves; God will not strengthen and help us against our lusts, but our lusts shal get head against us. This is generall. Now I come to speak of some particular reasons that hinder men from partaking aright of the Sacrament.

First, Because people come not to the Sacrament with a sense and feeling of their own wants; if we would partake of strength by the Sacrament, before we come we must feel our wants, how we want hope, and patience, and faith, and strength, we want spirituall understanding in the wayes of God; we should not only see this, but feel it; people, may be, see this, that they want this or that; but there is no sound feeling of their wants; they are without faith, and do not feel it; without hope and patience, and doe not feel it; they do not find the want of these things. Now Prov. 9. 4, 5. Wisedome saith to him that wanteth understanding, Come eat of my bread, &c. When a man doth want understanding, is not only without it, but feels the want of it; he is not only without strength and faith, but feels the want of it, he sees the want of wisedom and discretion, and Gods helping of him more and more; if it be so, eat of my bread, &c.

Secondly, Because people come without true repentance to the Lords Table, they do not repent of their sins, they do not break the league between them and their own wayes, they come to the Sacrament, and mean to think as they have done, and speak as they have done, and keep company as they have done, and behave themselves in their places and callings as they have done, and no otherwise then they have done; and though they cry God mercy, and make some prayers, yet the covenant between them and their wicked courses was never broken; and therefore it can do them no good: People come to the Sacrament as Judas did, he came fresh from the Pharisees conspiring the betraying his Master, and as soon as he had done, he meant to go to them again, and so got no good by it; whereas if we would get good by the Sacrament, that it may build us up in knowledge and believing, in having a care to please God, and making conscience of all our wayes, we ought to root out our sins and corruptions, and fling away our lusts and vile affections; we should throw sin out of doors, as the Israelites were to throw leaven out of doors, and not to have any in their house; nay we should deal with sin, as Ammon did with Thamar; he hated her now more then he loved her before; nay he put her out, and bolted the door after her; so though we loved vanity, and worldlinesse, and passion before, yet now we should hate them, and put them out of doors, yea bolt the door after them, that they may come in no more. This is the way to come to the Sacrament, so as to get strength thereby; and the want of this is the cause that people go away so weak.

Thirdly, Because they come without faith; they come doubting to the Sacrament, Rom. 14.23. He that doubteth, is damned if he eat. I may apply it to this; he that doubts is damned if he receive the Sacrament, his own conscience will reprove him, his own soul will say, I have not done well, I have not pleased God in comming; his own conscience will condemn him, and damn him; when he looks upon the Covenant of grace, he cannot apply it, conscience puts him off: This is for want of true faith; if people would come to the Lords Table with faith, they would receive strength, as it is said of Moses, Heb. 11.28. By faith he received the Passover; so if by faith we would receive the Lords Supper, and beat down all doubts and fears of flesh and blood, and resolve to cast our selves upon Christ and his promises, and let him have the disposing of us; if we would truly cast our selves upon Christ, and believe in his name, and so come to the Sacrament, we should have strength; how can we get strength without this? Eph. 3.17. When we come to the Sacrament, we come to partake of Christ, and receive Christ, that we may dwell in Christ, and he in us. Now he will not dwell thus without faith; faith is the wedding garment; if we come without it, we shall be bound hand and foot and cast into utter darkness; may be thou wert fettered before, but now thou shalt be more bound, even bound hand and foot, that thou canst not stir, as the Apostle saith, Above all things take the shield of faith, so I may say, if you will come to the Sacrament to your own peace and comfort, above all things take the shield of faith. When men come to the Sacrament only with bodily eyes, and bodily hands, what do they get? nothing but a piece of bread, and a drop of wine; but if they had faith, they should have the evidence of things not seen; Christ, and heaven, and the covenant of grace, are not seen with bodily eyes; faith would help them to the evidence of these things not seen; as St. Austin speaks of a worthy Martyr, when he was to suffer Martyrdome, he took the Sacrament to strengthen him to suffer Martyrdom; and the Martyrs in the Primitive Church, every day expecting Martyrdom, they every day received the Sacrament to help them with strength; but when we come to the Sacrament without faith, we deprive our selves of this benefit. Now as long as we give way to our sins, doubting will reign, and faith cannot be in our soules.

Eph. 6.

give

Fourthly, Because they do not seek earnestly to God to blesse the Sacrament to them they do not make themselves strong in heaven before they come; they do not go with strong cries and groans to the Throne of grace, that God would quicken them that they may get the good they ought to do at it. If we would come to the Sacrament of Lords Supper as we ought to do, we should be earnest with God and wrestle with him, that he would make us sensible of our wants, and that he would pluck up our hearts to come with faith, that he would strengthen us, that we may behave our selves well when we are there, and when we come away; every Ordinance of God is sanctified by the word and prayer, 1 Tim. 4. 5. Now because either people do not pray at all, or if they do, they are not earnest with God, therefore it is that they return home little the better.

Fifthly, Because they do not behave themselves well when they are at it, they are not well occupied when they sit at the Lords Table, they know not how to employ themselves as the duty requires; this is that would help us to true strength by the Sacrament, if we were well employed when we were at it. Cant. 1. 12. While the King sitteth at his table, &c. saith the Church, that is, while the King was enjoying communion with me, and I with him, I was just at the same time very well employed; I laboured in some measure to stir up all the graces that were in me, that my Spikenard might send up a sweet perfume into his nostrils, that my faith might work, and my love might work; so while we are sitting at the Lords Table, and the King stoopeth down to bid us welcome; we should labour to be well employed, to keep vanities out of our minds, and employ them well, that we may have a good meal before we go.

Sixthly, Because people when they have been at the Sacrament, they do not examine themselves diligently, whither they have got any good by the Sacrament; I have received the Sacrament, have I got any good by it? is my faith strengthned? am I yet backward to Gods will, untoward in his worship, dead in his service, am I still hovering and doubting in my conscience, have I no care of God, have I got no good by the Sacrament? if people would but call themselves to account, whither they have got any good by the Sacrament, this would do them a great deal of good; it would make them bewail and lament, and cry out if they got no good; people let things run on at six and sevens; if they get good, so it is; if they get none, so it is, but lay it not to heart; whereas a godly heart when he hath been at an Ordinance, calls himself to account, and takes it marvellous heavily if he see he hath got no good; as the Church when she prayed, and saw her prayers did not prevail, it was a bitter thing to her; Thou hast covered thy self with a cloud, that our prayer should not pass thorow, Lam. 3. 44. when she saw she prayed, and strived, and tugged with God, and there was no comfort, O how she took it to heart, she made it the burthen of her complaint; so if Christians would do thus, The Sacrament doth not take, the Lord covers himself with clouds, and hides himself from me, he will not own me; we should go crying and yelling up and down to see that we do not get good by the Sacrament; if we would do thus, we might get good by it.

Seventhly, If people do get good by the Sacrament afterwards, yet they do not interpret this to be by the goodness of God in the Sacrament; may be they meet with some comfort and assistance now and then which might do them a world of good, and strengthen their hearts wonderfully if they did look to it; when they have gotten many good blessings, now they do not construe this to be by reason of Gods Sacrament and Covenant; if they did look upon it, O this came by vertue of Gods Covenant, and the seal of his Covenant to my soul, this would make them strong in Gods Covenant, and help them exceedingly; thus David did, if he got any mercy at any time, still he laid it upon going to Gods Ordinances: this I had because I kept thy precepts; This I had because I prayed unto thee, and sought thee earnestly; I followed God earnestly, and now I see his infinite goodness and mercy towards me, how he hath rewarded me; I confess it was a poor thing I did, God might even have flung it as dung in my face, but see how he hath rewarded me: So if Christians would say, this I had because I was careful, though I had formerly neglected Gods Ordinances; yet at last I came to seek him earnestly with my whole heart, and to come more preparedly and diligently to the Lords Supper, and now this I find I had by it, how hath God blessed me since? how hath he assisted me, and lifted me over many rubs and temptations? I will have a care of this therefore afterwards, this would strengthen a man wonderfully, but for want of this people get little good.

Pſal. 119.

Eighthly, Because Christians do not rowse and stir up the Sacraments that they have partaked of formerly, they do not provoke their souls to enter the efficacy and fruit of former Sacraments; when Moses had perceived that all Israel had entered into Covenant with God, he rowseth up their hearts to look upon this Covenant, Deut. 26. 17, 18, 19. Thou hast avouched the Lord this day to be thy God, &c. As who should say, you have entered into covenant with God this very day; now rowse up your selves and and consider what God hath done; this very God hath promised you to set you up above all Nations; then stir up your selves and believe God, and say, Why should I distrust God? certainly he will blesse me, and do good to me; and this day thou hast vowed thy self to God, therefore rowse up thy self and think there is no going back; I have made a covenant, and taken the Sacrament upon it, and now there is no going back; as Luther speaks of a good Virgin, she was marvellously tempted by her lusts and corruptions; she helped herself by the covenant; I am a Christian, and am baptized, I have taken the Sacrament upon it, and will not yield; and this did marvellously help her; but when Christians neglect this, no marvel though they continue weak still; nay, most people though they have been at the Sacrament make no conscience of their vows to God, they break covenant with God, therefore no marvel they get no good by the Sacrament.

Rev. 3. 2.

REV. 3. 2.

Be watchful therefore and strengthen the things which remain, &c.

Strengthen the things which remain; As who should say, thou hast some grace in thee, but what grace? nothing but the remainder of a great deal; more thou hast had formerly; thou hast been more earnest, and more fruitful, and hast abounded in the work of the Lord, thou hast had more a great deal, thou art horribly grown down the wind, thou hast nothing but the remainders of what thou hadst, therefore it is high time for thee to go and strengthen the things that remain.

Now here by the way, before we come to the main point, we may observe That a child of God cannot fall totally away; there will be ever something that remains; though he may lose much of his good graces, he cannot lose all; though Gardis was brought to a low ebbe, yet there was something remaining; I say, a child of God can never come to such a low pass, but he shall have something remaining; he may have horrible declinings, and woful decayings of grace, but he can never come to this passe, to have no grace, no faith, no love to God, no care of his name, to be a wicked man again, there will be something remaining in him that is good; as we may see, 1 John 3. 9. Whosoever is born of God sinneth not, for the seed of God remaineth in him; a child of God that is born of God cannot sin, that is, he cannot absolutely and totally fall away, there will be good things in him as long as he lives, there will be a seed remaining in him for ever; he can never be a bankrupt, and come to nothing; he shall be a godly man, and a child of God, and one that fears Gods name for ever; he cannot lose all, though he lose much; as it is said of Jehoshaphat, though he yielded much to sin, and gave way to the lusts of his own heart in an horrible manner, yet there was something remaining in him; though he had greatly dishonoured God, and distempered his own soul, so far forth as to love the ungodly, and to help those that were the enemies of God; yet saith the Text, there are good things found in thee; he was not quite deprived of all the graces of Gods blessed spirit, but there were good things in him still; so the five wise Virgins, though they slumbred and slept, and were exceeding secure, yet their lamps were not gone out; I may compare a Christian to a cup of right Canarie Wine, that no frost in the world can quite freeze; it may freeze it very much, but yet there will be some spirits of the Wine remaining unfrozen; so godly men are an everlasting foundation, all cannot possibly be spent and consumed in them, they shall have something remaining in them. Now I will tell you, First, What is not the reason of this. Secondly, What is the reason of it.

A child of God cannot fall from grace.

2 Chron. 19. 2. 3. Mat. 25.

First, Not any thing in himself; it is not any grace received in it self, it is nothing in thee; no not the image of God in thee, nor any holiness, nor mortification; there is nothing in him keeps him from falling away; for let a man have all the grace that ever any man had, he may fall totally for all that; nay, if he were as holy inherently as Adam in his innocency, he may fall away totally; nay, if he were as holy as the Angels in Heaven, and

1. What not the Reason.

and were in the same estate that the Angels in Heaven are; they are not immutable in their own nature, therefore that they are confirmed in grace, it is Gods goodness and mercy to them, it is nothing in themselves; those Angels that do stand, may fall notwithstanding any thing that is in them; no grace received will keep a man from falling totally away, if he have not the fountain and the favour of God to keep him, if he have not a better bottom then himself; intrinsecal unchangableness is only a property of the Lord, Mal. 3. 6. All creatures may change, if they had a thousand times more of the image of God, yet they may change and fall, and lose all notwithstanding any thing they have received; it is nothing in a mans self; Now I will make this appear that it is not any thing in a mans self.

Evid. First, Because the godliest man in the world is bid to look upon himself as one that may fall absolutely into any sin in the world in himself; for all the love he hath of God, he may yet hate him; for all the fear he hath of God, he may yet slight him; a child of God is commanded to look upon himself, as left to himself, to be in a woful case; that he may fall finally and totally away, to be nothing and worse then nothing; as the Apostle saith, Gal. 6. 1. if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye that are spiritual restore such a man, knowing that ye your selves also may be tempted; that is, consider, it may be thy case, thou mayst be tempted to fall as well as he, and worse too; you that are spiritual, though you be never so spiritual, though your minds be never so wrapt up with God, and taken up with spiritual things, yet you are not so spiritual, but if you will hearken to the counsel of your own hearts, you may be carnal and brutish; look upon thy self as a poor miserable creature; though thou hast never so much grace, thou canst not keep it, unlesse thou hast a better keeper then thy self.

Secondly, Because the people of God are bound to fear themselves (I bring the very arguments that they bring that hold a child of God may fall away totally; therefore I grant them that the arguments are good, that in themselves they may fall away) and I say a child of God is commanded to fear; be not high-minded but fear; that is, though thou hast an excellent faith, and standest by faith, yet be not high-minded, do not think thou art higher then thou art, and remoter from the power of the flesh then thou art; be not proud and conceited; for all the faith thou hast, thou mayst distrust God; and if God leave thee to thy self thou mayst be an unbeliever, and as vile an infidel as ever breathed upon the face of the earth; in thy self thou hast as vile a wretched heart as any man, which if thou wert left to thy self would quickly shew what it is, Phil. 2. 12. 13. work out your salvation with fear and trembling; for God worketh both the will and the deed: As who should say, I do not deny but a child of God doth depend upon the good pleasure of God, and is built upon his eternal counsel; he is not built upon his own pleasure, he doth not stand upon the hap hazard of his own will, but upon the good pleasure of Gods will; but saith he, it is our part to fear; for we for our part may fall, we can do nothing, no more then we are holpen; no more then God doth stand by us, and keep us from falling; it is our part to fear and tremble from day to day; as the Apostle saith, Heb. 4. 1. let us fear, lest having the promises of entring into his rest, any of us should fall short: Let us fear; as who should say, we are in danger of coming short, we are in danger to fall, and not to reach the Kingdom of Heaven; how many temptations are there? what a vile flesh do we carry about with us? therefore let us fear.

Thirdly, The children of God are commanded to take heed, lest they fall totally away; where note they may for all that is in themselves, for any grace that is received; therefore God calls upon them to cling to him, and to cleave to him, that he may not be provoked to withhold himself from them them; as we may see, Heb. 12. 15. take heed lest any man fail of the grace of God, &c. Take heed, look diligently to your selves, lest any man fail of the grace of God; if you mean to go to heaven, I can tell you you must have care and diligence, and look to your selves; take heed you be not proud and worldly; take heed you suffer not security nor any other corruption to steal upon you, and hinder you from going on in a godly course; take heed lest any of you fail of the grace of God; what do these words import, but that a man in himself is in greiveous danger, in regard of falling totally away? so 1 Cor. 10. 12. he that stands, let him take heed lest he falls, though he stand never so firm for the present, though he be never so stout and couragious; no man ever went so far in the wayes of God but he might turn back if he lookt not to himself; no man was ever so zealous, but he might be lukewarm if he lookt not to it; no man was ever so quickned, but he may be deaded, if he look not to it; therefore he that stands let him take heed lest he fall.

Fourthly, Because the children of God are commanded still to grow in grace, because there is no grace yet received, or that can be received in this world, is enough to keep them from falling totally away: if a man think with himself, this grace I have is enough, I need no more, if he do stand at a stay, and limit himself, and think this will suffice, he is mistaken; there is no grace, if it were a thousand times greater then that which the best Saint in the world hath, that can secure a man from falling away; therefore when the Apostle would perswade Christians to take heed that they did not fall away, 2 Pet. 3. 17. he bids them grow in grace; would you not fall, but stand stedfast? would you not be led away with the errours of the wicked? know assuredly that all the graces you have received are not sufficient; but grow in grace, labour to be more humble, and meek, and patient, and zealous; labour to make more conscience of your wayes, to have a more tender heart, to be more taken up with God, and more careful to please him; to be more earnest and frequent in prayer, to mark his word, and look to your steps every day; labour to stand firmer and stronger yet; for all that you have attained to it is not so much, but it may be weakned and born down; Therefore grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Sixthly, Because the examples of Apostates and backsliders are propounded to the very Saints, for them to take warning by; as the Apostle propounds the example of the Jewish Apostates to the Romans; if God spared not the natural branches, &c. Look upon them, see how they are fallen away, Rom. 11. 21, how that Church is Apostatized; therefore look thou to thy self, lest that which befell them befall thee; lest thou sin against God, as they did, and so that light upon thee, which did light upon them; so the Apostle doth propound the example of Alexander and Hymeneus and Philetus even to Timothy; though Timothy was elect of God, yet he knew Timothy was of a flexible nature, and might change and fall, and fall totally in himself, if he did not look to it; O saith he, hold faith and a good conscience, &c. 1 Tim. 1. 19, 20. He propounds it even to Timothy, that the falls of Apostates might make him wary and careful to stand upon his guard.

Seventhly, Because the children of God are fain to pray that God would keep them from falling away finally & totally; which is a sign that they may fall away totally in themselves, notwithstanding whatsoever acquaintance they have with God, or whatsoever vertue they have gotten from Christs death, yet they are to go to God to keep them from falling away; as Psal. 119. 43, 44. take not away the word of thy truth, &c. As who should say, Lord, for ever keep me, do thou never forsake me utterly, though I may provoke thee to forsake me very much, yet never take away the word of thy truth utterly out of my mouth, then I shall never be able to hold out to the end; if thou wilt keep me and uphold me, then I shall keep thy Law for ever; but otherwise I shall never do it: Nay, Christ plainly tells us, that he is fain to put in, and pour out his prayers before his heavenly father, that his dearest Saints and elect may not fall away; as who should say, Father, they may fall totally away, if thou do not preserve them; as he saith to Peter, Luke 22. 32. I have prayed that thy faith fail not; faith is the best grace that any child of God hath, and love proceeding from faith is a good grace; but they are all failing things, and may be worn out by corruptions; therefore Christ prayeth his heavenly Father that it may be fed and cherished, and kept by his heavenly Father, that it may never fail; implying it would fail otherwise: Nay, the children of God are fain to confesse in their prayers it were just with God to let them fall totally away, by reason of their sins, by reason of their unthankfulnesse and unfruitfulnesse under the means, and want of knowledge of his son Jesus Christ; they confess it were just with God to be weary of them, and give them for gone; nay, the children of God, the best of them all do find that it is a very hard thing to keep themselves from decayes of grace, and declinings, and weaknings; they find that they have much ado to hold their own, much more to grow in grace, and increase more and more; to grow more and more heavenly, and more and more vertuous, and more and more selfdenying; they see how many thousand corruptions and temptations they have, and how backward their own hearts are, and how soon they are surprized, that they have much ado to keep that which is begun in them, much more to encrease it, and grow in it: Nay, the children of God may so far fall away, that in their own sense and feeling they may think that they have not a jot of grace, so that they are sometimes ready to conclude against themselves, that they have no grace, they were never wrought upon, never subdued; many times it is thus, and though they do not conclude thus, yet how often are they put to this desperate list? to look every moment when they shall fall, and fall totally and lose all, they shall not have a relique of grace in them; it is thus with the Saints of God.

Lastly, Because there is no grace received is able to hold without continual influences from Heaven; this is the nature of the grace of the second Covenant, that it is by continual influence; it is not like the first Covenant; when God gave Adam all his portion in his hand, not only for the present, but for ever; if he would he might stand for ever, he need not pray to God to keep him, but if he would obey God, he might stand of himself by the Covenant that God had made with him; but under the Covenant of grace, grace runs thus, that grace is but for the present; if a man stand now, if he would stand the next hour, he must have a new supply of grace though he be never so patient now, he may be impatient in a quarter of an hour; though he be never so humble now, he may be as proud as Lucifer in a quarter of an hour; I say, God under the Covenant of grace gives a man only for the present, so that now he may know it is in Gods hand; he is kept by the power of God, through faith unto salvation; so that grace is in a child of God, as light is in an house; light is never so in an house, but in a moment it will be dark if you shut the windows; so it is with a true Christian, he had need keep his windows open towards Christ, he hath need of continual shinings of grace from heaven; as Christ teacheth us concerning our daily bread, give us this day our daily bread; so it is much more in regard of grace for our souls; good Lord give me wisedom and faith, and patience this hour, and so the next hour, and the next day; give me the comfort of this day, and the assistance of this day, give me the concurrence of thy grace this day, and so the next; and we must never leave praying to God to accompany us with his grace from day to day; for a man ſtands not by the grace that is in him, but by the grace that is in God; as the Apoſtle ſaith, Heb. 6. 10. be ſtrong in the Lord, by the power of his might; he doth not ſay, be ſtrong by the grace ye have received, but be ſtrong in the Lord; be ſure you call upon him, and keep cloſe to him; there is all you ſtand by. So 2 Tim. 2. 1. be ſtrong in the grace in Chriſt Jeſus; if any man in the Church might be ſtrong by the grace in himſelf, Timothy might; he was as vertuous a young man as any in the Church; no man that Paul loved ſo as Timothy; I know no man like minded, ſaith he; he was ſo endued with Gods ſpirit, and the graces and vertues thereof, that there was none like him; yet Paul doth not bid him be ſtrong in the grace that was in him, but be ſtrong in the grace that is in Chriſt Jeſus; grace is in a child of God, as heat is in the water; though it be never ſo ſeething hot, yet take it from the fire, and it will ſling out all the heat, and be as cold as ever it was; ſo it is here, notwithſtanding all the graces that are in a child of God, if he do not hang over Jeſus Chriſt, and keep cloſe to him, the daily incurſions of ſin will conſume his graces; the temptations of the fleſh, and the Divel within, and the world without, will conſume them all, unleſs a man be a good husband, and receive new ſupply from Heaven; ſo that we ſay that no grace received can keep a man from falling, but that he may fall totally away in himſelf: Now to come to the true reaſons why a child of God cannot fall totally away, but ſomething of the Image of God ſhall remain in him; though he may loſe much, yet he ſhall not loſe all, but ſomething ſhall be remaining in him; the reaſon of this is nothing elſe but the meer goodneſs of God to him, that God will not let him ſo fall, and God hath covenanted ſo with him, that man that truly believes in his name, he ſhall be kept for ever through faith unto ſalvation; he ſhall not be quite broken off, but he ſhall have ſome grace, he ſhall have ſomething of God in him, ſomething that ſhall diſtinguiſh him from all wicked men in the world; as the Lord ſaith of David, Pſal 89. 33. though they did ſin againſt him, and carry themſelves unworthy that God ſhould keep them, yet notwithſtanding the Lord would whip them and chaſtize them, but his loving kindneſs he would never take from them; why? becauſe he had ſworn by his holineſs that he would never fail David; ſo that here we ſee it was meerly through the goodneſs of God to David and his elect people, that they were kept from falling away; ſo Pſal. 37. 24. ſaith he, the righteous ſhall not be utterly caſt down; a child of God may fall, and fall fouly and fearfully, he may ſtain his own conſcience in a lamentable manner, and wound his own ſoul, and diſable himſelf to good duties in a fearful manner; but yet though he fall, he ſhall not be utterly caſt down, there ſhall be ſome ſtanding ſtill, it ſhall not be an utter fall; ſo he that doth theſe things, ſhall never be removed, Pſal. 15. 5. he ſpeaks there of a man that ſhall dwel in Gods holy mount, and he names who it is, one that hath clean hands, and a pure heart, &c. ſo that you ſee it is the promiſe of God, that this man ſhall ſtand for ever; he ſhall never be totally unſetled; he doth not mean he ſhall not be moved at all, but not abſolutely, ſo as to be quite and clean thrown down; but yet no thanks to himſelf, but thanks to the promiſe; otherwiſe he might be moved, and unſetled, and break his neck, and fall and never riſe more; but the promiſe is, that he ſhall never be moved, Pſal. 112. 6. the righteous ſhall never be moved, he ſhall be had in everlaſting remembrance; the Lord will remember a righteous man in the midſt of all temptations; let all the Divels in hell ſet upon him, the Lord will for ever remember that man, and never let him go from him; ſo that you ſee it is meerly the goodneſs of God, not from any thing in himſelf, not from any grace received, but meerly from Gods goodneſs; he may thank the rock he is built upon; as Chriſt ſaith, Mat. 7. 25.

to

He that heareth these sayings, and doth them, I will liken him to a man that built his house upon a rock, &c. The house fell not, but he may thank the rock, it was built upon a rock; so a childe of God is built upon a rock: as we have a Proverb, how can he but swim that is held up by the chin? so a child of God, the Lord holds him up by the chin, he shall never sink so as to be drowned; he may fall, and fall fearfully, but not totally, but there shall be something of God remaining in him for ever, the Lord will ever keep some truth of grace in that mans soule that he hath given the truth of grace to. 2 John 2. For the truths sake (saith he) which dwelleth in us, and shall be in us for ever. When God hath put in the truth of saving grace into any of his peoples hearts, it shall dwell in them for ever, the Lord will take an order for the keeping of it; therefore though a childe of God may be grievously overcome, yet God doth ever let something or other remain he doth ever exempt something; God deals with his children in regard of their soule, as he dealt with Job in regard of his body; though he let the Devil have a great deal of power over him, yet he did limit him; he is in thy hand, but save his life; though he would not let him have power over his life to kill him, he let him have Jobs children in his hands, and he let him have his goods in his hands, his cattel and his substance in his hands, nay he let him have his health in his hands, so that he did strike him with boyles, and blains, and woful sickneſſe, but yet save his life, you shall not take away his life: so God deals with the life of his Saints; though he may let the Devil horribly tempt them, and the World horribly carry them away, and the lusts of the flesh horribly vanquish them; yet saith God, he is my childe, and the Devil, and the Flesh, and the Temptations of the World shall never kill him; save his life, let him never be dead in treſpaſſes and sinnes a wretch.

But you will say, What is it that doth remain, and what shall for ever remain in the children of God? You know David fell into adultery to lie with another mans wife; he fell to that pass, that he laboured to defend his sin, and maintain it, that it might not come abroad; he added murder to it; what grace, what fear of God, what love to his Majesty, what regard of Gods commandements, what goodneſs or holineſs at all was in Davids heart now at this time? So Solomon, when he gave way to Idolatry over all Israel, to the Idols of Moab, and Ammon, and Edom, and the Philistins round about, that the true God was not truly worshipped; what grace had he? was there any goodneſs or piety in Solomon at that time? So when Peter denied his Master, and forswore him, and confirmed it with an oath, and curſed himself if he knew the man; what grace was in Peters heart at that time? So when Asa threw the Prophet into prison when he came to reprove him; what grace remained in him at that time? Thus the enemies of this Doctrine argue against it; therefore they say a child of God may fall totally. Was there any grace at all in Davids heart when he was committing adultery and murder? was there any grace at all in Lots heart when he was committing drunkenneſſe and inceſt one night after another?

I answer, There are four things which shall ever remain in Gods children, and shall never be taken away quite and clean after they are once converted, and brought home to God.

First, They have an Unction, an anointing from the holy one, and that is in them, and shall abide in them for ever, 1 John 2. 27. The anointing which ye have received of him dwelleth in you, &c. This same anointing, it abides in the people of God for ever: By this same anointing, I mean the opening of their eyes, whereby they look upon God and Christ, and his goodneſs, and holineſs, and righteousneſs, and the commandements of God;

God, and sin, and hell, and the world, and profits, and pleasures; they look upon the things of the world, and upon the things of heaven, in another manner then any other people doe; God opens their eyes, that they look upon things in a different manner from other men; and this unction shall abide in them for ever: 'Tis true, sin may horribly dazle their eyes, by reason of the corruptions of the flesh, and the deceivablenesse of sin; they may be marvellously weakened in this unction, and darkenesse and deadnesse of soule may blinde their eyes, and dimme their lookes; but it can never be quite taken away; they will have a better sight of God, and Heaven, and Christ, and heavenly things, and of the Ordinances of God, and of the world, and their callings, and the businesse of the world, they shall see these things after a different manner from the world; as for example: A child of God shall see more of the word then any other; others may see the word, and yet continue in sin still; but a godly man shall see that in the word, that he dares not live in any sin for a thousand worlds. So for the Sacrament, he seeth more then a natural man; a natural man seeth nothing in the Sacrament, but he may come to it as he doth come to it, he may live in his sins still, he sees nothing in the Sacrament; he doth not see that he eats and drinks his own damnation if he come unworthily; but a childe of God seeth that in the Sacrament, that he dares not come unpreparedly and unworthily by any meanes; he seeth that in the Sacrament that requires preparation and worthinesse; so for sin, he seeth that in sin, that he dares not goe on in it; he will rather die at stake, rather then doe as the world doth; though through weakness and want of cautelousnesse, sin may get great advantage against him, yet it shall never bear him down, and the unction keeps him that he dares not lay the reins upon his neck. This is one thing shall ever remain in a child of God; and this appears by two things.

First by this, That if ever the Devil get a childe of God to commit sin, he cannot carry it away as others doe, but it makes the heart bleed, and wounds the conscience; he seeth such things in yielding to sin, and giving way to the Devil (I speak of known sins) the unction doth so wound him, that he cannot carry it as others doe; if he tell a lye, he cannot bear it as the wicked can doe, they can be merry, and jovial and carry it away, it never troubles them; but where this unction is, it lies heavy upon the soul; as the Prophet David had this unction in the midst of all his falling into adultery; for you may see, for all he lived ten months in the sin before he came to thorough repentance; 'tis true, he did so, yet all this while he had this unction; for so himselfe confesseth, Psalm 51. My sin is ever before me. Though he never sought to God soundly and thoroughly for ten months together, yet still good things were in him, his sins were ever before him, it did haunt him as a ghost, and wound his conscience; his unction did shew him, what a beast am I, what a wretch, what have I done?

Secondly, It appeares too by this, That a childe of God, though he hath sinned never so much, yet he cannot stand it out; but let him be soundly dealt with, he is not able to hold out, but he must submit to the Lord; it is a signe this unction is in him; for he seeth Gods Word, his displeasure, his grace and goodnesse: a childe of God may be horribly peevish, and horribly transported in this fashion, to the dishonour of God, and opening of the mouths of the ungodly; but come and deal with him, shew him his sins, he is not able to maintain bucklers against it: he seeth that in your reproof which will burst all his bones, and make him stoop, and fling away his sins, and cast away his disguisements; as it was with David, when Nathan came to him, O saith he, I have sinned; he resented presently, the unction made him see that in Nathans Sermon, that he was not able to hold out any longer, but now his ſoule bleeds, and melts within him; ſo when a childe of God comes to the word, and heares his ſins reprowed, he cannot carry himſelfe as the wicked doe; they can heare the word, and keep their ſins ſtill, but a child of God hath an unction, and when the word doth diſcover his ſins to him, he cannot hold up his hand againſt God, but he muſt fall down and bow before him.

Secondly, There ſhall ever remain in a childe of God luſting againſt every known ſin; there will be ever in a childe of God, both before and after the committing of known ſins, luſting againſt the fleſh; the ſanctified part will luſt againſt the unſanctified; he ſhall never ſin with an whole will, and full conſent, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Gal. 5. 17. The fleſh luſteth againſt the ſpirit, and the ſpirit againſt the fleſh, &c. There is a ſpirituall will in a child of God, that will ever luſt againſt the carnal will, ſo that a man cannot commit ſin with his whole will, as a wicked man doth; as Paul ſaith, Rom. 7. 25. He did not ſin with all his ſoule, with all his heart; his mind was for God, the ſpirituall part of his will was againſt his ſin; I find another law in my members, rebelling againſt the law of my minde, &c. He did not ſin with all his will; for he had another law in his heart, rebelling againſt the law of ſin and death; therefore the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 John 3. 18. Whatſoever is borne of God ſinneth not; that is, he cannot ſin with his free will, with his whole conſent. I will make this appear by five things, that a child of God can never ſin with his whole will.

A childe of God cannot ſin with his whole will.

First, Becauſe he never ſins, but it is againſt his ſtanding purpoſe and reſolution, and determination in himſelfe; a childe of God hath a purpoſe never to ſin againſt God, by uſing all manner of wayes, by ſtriving, praying, labouring, endeavouring, comming to all Gods Ordinances, and taking all courſes to reſiſt ſin; he hath this purpoſe; a wicked man now hath no purpoſe not to ſin, but he hath a ſecret purpoſe to ſin; a Drunkard hath a purpoſe when he meets with his companions to goe to the Alehouſe and drink with them; and a covetous man hath a ſecret purpoſe to be worldly; a let a man be a vain and an evill companion, he will not give over his company-keeping, they are his friends, and he will converſe with them; tell him he muſt converſe with the Saints of God, he will not, he hath a ſecret purpoſe to the contrary; but if a childe of God ſin, it is againſt his purpoſe, he hath a ſtanding purpoſe not to ſin; Pſalm 119. 27. Pſal. 39. 1. Pſ. 101. 3. So, I will never forget thy precepts, I will conſider thy teſtimonies, and I will turn my feet unto thy wayes. There are abundance of places of Scripture that ſhew that a childe of God ever takes up an abſolute purpoſe concerning holineſſe and godlineſſe of life and converſation. Now if a child of God be born down at any time, it is againſt the purpoſe of his heart, which is a ſigne that he doth not ſin with his whole will; for if a mans will were abſolutely ſet upon wicked courſes, then he would have a purpoſe and reſolution to live in them; but a childe of God hath always a purpoſe to doe the contrary, and to walk in Gods wayes.

Secondly, Becauſe a child of God never ſins, but it is againſt the ſtudy and compoſure of his heart, it is againſt his courſe, againſt the frame he compoſeth to himſelfe, which is, that he may not ſin againſt God, but that he is borne down with ſin, Pſal. 119. 112. I have inclined my heart to keep thy ſtatutes always, even to the end. He had a ſtudy and compoſure in his ſoule to keep Gods ſtatutes and to keep them alwayes, even to the end; therefore whatſoever David ſinned, it was not with his whole will; for he ſinned againſt the ſtudy and compoſure of his heart.

Thirdly, A childe of God never ſins, but there is ſomething or other that breaks the fulneſſe of the voluntarineſs of it; as for example; if a childe of God ſins, ſometimes it is out of ignorance, he doth not know that he offends finde God, if he did, he would not doe it for a world. Now ignorance doth leſſen the voluntarineſſe of a thing; a man in ignorance may doe a thing which he would not have done if he had known it; therefore when a childe of God ſinnes in ignorance, his will is not with it.

Againſt, If he ſin againſt knowledge at any time, then it is through inconſiderateneſſe, it is in his haſte; you know inconſiderateneſſe doth leſſen the will mightily; a man may in haſte doe a thing, which when he comes to think of, he would rather have cut off his right arm then have done it; therefore this is an argument that all his will was not in the committing of the ſin, becauſe he did not conſider of it, he did not doe it deliberately. Pſal. 116. 11. In my haſte I ſaid all men are lyers; in my haſte I ſaid I am cut off from thy preſence.

Againſt, If he he doe it with more deliberation, yet there is ſomething ſtill that doth leſſen the will; there be grievous and violent paſſions. Now violent paſſions doe exceedingly take away the will; a man in paſſion will do things that his will is abſolutely againſt; a man will ſtab his deareſt friend in fury and paſſion; as when David murdered Uriah, it was meerly out of paſſion, the paſſion of ſhame, leſt his ſin ſhould come out, to the diſhonour of God, and the ſhame of his Kingdome and Crown; he was overwhelmed with ſhame and fear of the diſgrace of his ſins, and in fear he did doe it. So Peter was in fear when he denied his Maſter, in fear that he ſhould be put to death, when at the ſame time I dare ſay many qualms came over his heart. O that I were not here! O that I were not put to this! So when Jonah ran away from God, it was in a paſſion.

Again, Suppoſe that paſſion be downe, yet ſomething or other there will be ſtill, that will leſſen the will, as violent temptations and impulſions to ſin; when a man himſelf at the ſame time hath a great act of his will to reſiſt theſe temptations and impulſions to ſin; when a man at the ſame time hath a great act of his will to reſiſt theſe temptations, but the temptations are greater, and ſo he is born downe; but here is not all the will; for he would not do it; a wicked man may have reluctancy, and reſiſtance againſt ſin in his conſcience, but a godly man his will is againſt it.

Fourthly, A child of God can never be brought ſo low as to make a trade of ſin; He that committeth ſin, is of the Divel, 1 Joh. 3. 8. that is, he that committeth ſin by way of trade; now this cannot be in a child of God, he is of the Divel that makes a trade of ſin; a child of God his courſe is to the contrary, it is his trade to cleanſe himſelf, and purifie his heart by faith from day to day; if he be impatient, he cannot make a practice of it; a child of God cannot ſin, for he is ſanctified. Pſal. 119. 1. 2. they do no wicked thing, &c. This is by way of trade and occupation; a child of God doth never ſin in that faſhion; therefore it is certain his full will is not to ſin, for if his whole will were after ſin, he would go on in it, and live in it, and make a practice of it; but he dares not, nor will not make a practice of it.

Fifthly, A child of God doth never ſo ſin but he hath an aptneſs in him to riſe again; a child of God hath a greater aptneſs to riſe again and repent, and love God again; he hath a gracious heavenly aptneſs above all other men in the world; let him ſin never ſo much, let his fall be never ſo great, there will be this aptneſs left, and it ſhall remain in him continually; and this is an evident ſign he never ſinned with his whole will; for if he did ſin with his whole will, he would be as unapt to repent as if he had never been converted; as Solomon ſaith, Prov. 9. 8. As who ſhould ſay, a wiſe man is apt to take a rebuke, he is apt to take it in good part; he will take it humbly and obediently, if he be a wiſe man; and this is a ſign his will is not abſolutely ſet upon folly; but if you tell him you have played the fool, and dealt unadviſedly, why would you be overtaken with ſuch a corrup-corruption? you have provoked God, &c. he will love you for it, he hath an aptneſs to to do, and this aptneſs ſhall ever remain; and this is another good thing remaining in the children of God, that is, a luſting againſt ſinne.

Thirdly, Another thing is for ever to have a tender diſpoſition to look after God, and to have an eye to God; this ſhall never be taken away quite and clean; as you may ſee in Jonah, though he had run away from God in that lamentable manner, yet ſaith he; I will look towards thy Temple; his thoughts were there, his mind was to have Gods love, his goodneſs, and countenance to ſhine upon him; he muſt have an eye to that above all things in the world; but you will ſay, affliction made him do that, he was now in the Whales belly; but you may ſee, he looked upon God before he was in the Whales belly; for when the Mariners asked him what he was, ſaith he, I am an Hebrew that fears God; and as a proof of this fear, you may ſee how he ſubmitted to God; I have run away from God, ſaith he; he confeſſed his ſin, and took ſhame to himſelf, and ſubmitted himſelf to be flung into the Sea, that God might have glory by his drowning if he would.

So that all was not drowned in him; now that this diſpoſition remains appears by five things.

First, Though a child of God ſhould grow to never ſo ſluggiſh a pace in Religion, that all his vigour in prayer is gone, he hath not the affection and heart in good duties that once he had, he is lumpiſh and untoward, yet in the midſt of all theſe diſtempers, he cannot lie down to this, but he hath abundance of heaves to God to quicken him again; as David ſaith, Pſalm 119. 25. My ſoule cleaveth unto the duſt, O quicken thou me according to thy word. His wings were off, and his chariot-wheels were knockt aſide, he could not goe on in good duties with any pace, he was lumpiſh and untoward, his ſoule cleaved to the duſt; and yet you ſee what heaves he gives, he would be quickned, he would not be at this paſſe; Oh that God would quicken him! this was his diſeaſe, and the burthen of his ſoule, O quicken me! O the lamentable throwes and ſecret yernings that are in a poor ſoule that is dead and dull! he cannot pray, nor finde the Word work upon his ſoule, he can receive no fruit and benefit by the Word of God; O the moanes, and yernings, and lookings up to God, that God would quicken him! though he hath no heart almoſt, but is marvellouſly borne down, yet he is not able to lie down under this, it is a diſeaſe to him; O quicken me!

Again, Let him be never ſo much hardened, as a childe of God may be fearfully hardened; yet in the midſt of all he hath a feeling of this hardning, whereupon he makes out after God, and will never give him over, till he hath freed him from it, Iſa. 63.17.

Again, Though a childe of God be never ſo ſecure, as he may be ſecure and grow careleſs of God, yet in the midſt of all, he can never be quite overcome by ſecurity, ſo as quite and clean to forget God; no, he muſt liſten after God, and will hearken after God, and hear the voice of God in ſome meaſure, when the word reproves him, and finds fault with his courſes, he doth hearken to it, he is not quite aſleep; as the Church ſaith, I ſleep, but my heart waketh, Cant. 5. 2. She did take notice of God in the midſt of all her ſecurity; it is the voyce of my Beloved, ſaith ſhe.

Fourthly, A childe of God can never ſo far goe down the wind, but he ſhall for ever love the Image of God, and love mercy, and love holineſs and goodneſs, and love the Ordinances of God, and the Image of God, whereſoever he ſees it; nay, he doth love the children of God, and this is a ſign a signe unto him that he is passed from death to life, when he hardly hath any other signe; 'tis true, when sin and corruption hath exceedingly defiled Gods childe, it may make him shy of Gods children, and make him winde out of their company; but yet grace makes him love them, they are the amiablest persons in the world in that mans eye, he blesseth the very ground they goe upon, he hath this ever left in him; and by this a childe of God may know that he is passed from death to life, because he loves the Brethren, 1 John 3. 14.

Fifthly, A childe of God shall never be brought so low, but in the midst of all he shall chide, and check, and finde fault with his own soule, not as wicked men doe, by reason of the terrours of conscience, but in a gracious manner; why have I done thus? is this the thanks for the redemption of the world by Jesus Christ? is this the thanks for the Gospel? are these the fruits I bring forth under Gods Ordinances? why am I thus dull to good duties? why am I thus dastardly and cowardly for God? there will be these gracious chidings; though sin and corruption makes him full of legal terrours, yet there be some gracious checkings and expostulations, as David saith, Why art thou so heavy O my soule? O be quickned, O be awakened, hear better, and pray better! He doth check and condemn himselfe in a gracious manner, and he can never like of these courses; this will be for ever.

Lastly, Another thing that shall be in Gods children for ever, is the habits of grace; they shall ever have these; though the acts of grace may be asleep, and cease working, yet the habits of grace shall ever remain; as a man, though through violent sickness he may run mad and frantick, and lose the act of reason, and be like a mad man; yet the habit of reason is in him still, because he hath a reasonable soule; and let the distemper be gone, and he will put forth the acts of reason: So a childe of God, though for the present he be horribly distempered, and all the acts of grace are asleep; yet he hath the spirit of God in him, and therefore hath the habits of grace; although no grace were shining in Davids heart in the act of them, when he fell in to the sins of murder and adultery; yet he had all graces in the habit of them, in the root of them: as a tree, though it seem to be quite dead, yet life is in the root; so a childe of God will have the habit and life of grace ever remaining in him; and this appeares by two things.

First, A childe of God in the midst of all his carelesnesse and negligence, there is a miraculous preserving of that man, that though that man hath been very careless, and wonderful unwatchful, and exposing himself to the temptations of Satan; yet he shall be strangely kept, that he shall not fall, in a wonderful manner, though it be no thank to himselfe, 1 Sam. 2. 9. This is an evident sign of Gods spirit in him, that though he let him get abundance of knocks, yet he will not let him get that fatal knock, but he carrieth him along from day to day.

Secondly, It appeares by this, that this man shall never be to be converted again, but he shall for ever be a new creature; though the spirit of God hide himselfe, and withhold his former operations, yet he will not goe quite away, because a childe of God shall never need to be converted again: 'Tis true, the rising up of a childe of God out of sin, into which he is fallen, is called conversion sometimes; as our Saviour Christ saith to Peter, When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren. Nay a childe of God may think he hath need of new conversion, and that he must begin all a new again; as David said, Create in me O Lord a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within me, Psal. 51. 10. as though he were to begin anew again: But a childe of God is never to begin anew; no, regeneration is an incorruptible ruptible thing, 1 Pet. 2.23. Pſalm 112. 6. His righteouſneſs remaineth for ever, he ſhall never have quite loſt it, ſo as that he ſhall be to ſeek again, as if he had never had it; for if regeneration were to be renewed, a man ſhould be reprobated again; but there is but one Faith, one Baptiſm, one Lord, Eph. 4. Therefore if there be but one Baptiſm, there is but one Regeneration; The faith is but once delivered to the Saints, Jude 3. God delivers his vertues and graces but once to the ſoul, and is never to deliver them again; indeed they may be ſmothered and choaked ſometimes, and lie under the aſhes, as coals under the embers, but they ſhall never be quite extinguiſhed; there needs nothing but a ſtirring up and provoking of the gift of God that is in them; and this is a ſigne that they never fell totally away; for if they fell totally away, they muſt have new repentance, as if they had never had it, and they muſt be converted again, and regenerated againe with a ſecond regeneration, which was never heard of.

The firſt Uſe may ſerve for the confutation of thoſe that hold that a childe of God may fall totally away; here you ſee he cannot; though he may fall never ſo grievouſly into foul ſins and grievous diſtempers, yet he ſhall never fall totally, but ſome good things ſhall remain in him, Pſal. 37. 28. The Lord preſerveth his Saints. And Jude 1. they are called a people ſanctified by God the Father, and preſerved in Jeſus Chriſt. And as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Pet. 2.10. He that doth theſe things ſhall never fall. A childe of God ſhall never fall totally; it is everlaſting life that he hath; that faith which he hath is an eternal grace; he that believeth hath everlaſting life; ſo the fear of God is an everlaſting grace; The fear of God endureth for ever, Pſal. 19.9. And therefore thoſe that totally fall away, ſhew plainly that they were never the children of God; as the Apoſtle ſaith, If after they have been enlightned, &c. they fall away, it is impoſſible they ſhould be renewed by repentance, Heb. 6. Becauſe they were never right, there was never any true grace in that mans heart; but ſaith he, I hope better things of you, and things that accompany ſalvation, Heb. 6.19. As who ſhould ſay, they that have things accompanying ſalvation, can never fall totally away.

The ſecond Uſe is for comfort to Gods children. Haſt thou true faith, or any good things wrought in thy ſoule? thou ſhalt never loſe it; though thou mayſt ſuffer a great deal of ſickneſs, and fall into many decayes of grace and goodneſs, yet thou ſhalt never loſe all; there ſhall be ſome good things remaining in thee; the Lord will not ſuffer thy righteouſneſs to fall for ever, he will have thee in everlaſting remembrance; therefore what a comfort ought this to be to every true beleeving ſoule?

Again, This is a great comfort againſt all fears. Art thou afraid thou haſt no grace? I beſeech thee believe the Word of God rather then thine own ſenſe and feeling; thou haſt heard the Word of God ſay a childe of God can never be without grace, he can never fall totally away; therefore though ſenſe and feeling tell thee thou haſt none, yet believe the Word that ſaith thou haſt, 2 Cor. 5.10. We walk by faith, and not by feeling, ſaith the Apoſtle. The beſt of Gods children ſometimes are put to this, to live by faith, and not by ſenſe at all; though God help thee not in prayer, not quicken thee in good duties, and though thy ſenſe and feeling tell thee thou haſt no grace, believe it not, but believe the Word of God that tells thee a childe of God ſhall never be without grace to the worlds end, but ſomething ſhall remain in him for evermore; therefore be of good comfort, though thou ſee nothing, and thy neighbours ſee nothing, yet believe neither thy ſelfe nor thy neighbours, but rather believe the Word of God then a thouſand witneſſes; for it is certain, a childe of God ſhall never fall totally away.

Again,

Again, It may be a comfort against all manner of temptations; God knows how thou mayst be tempted & assaulted; the Devil may be let loose upon thee; but still remember and think with thy selfe, I was told, a child of God can never fall totally away one whose heart God hath once inclined, one whose soul God hath once sanctified, one whom God hath once turned, & brought home to him in some measure, I have been told he shall never fal away; therefore hold this principle even to death, against all the Devils in Hell; God is my God, and I have grace, and shall have grace, and shall never be totally off the hooks as long as I live; as David, though he said God had forsaken him in regard of sense and feeling, yet he holds this principle still, My God, my God, Psal. 22. 1.

Again, This is a great comfort against all persecutions; we know not what persecutions and what troubles we may come to, and what may become of us before we goe hence: Now it is a great comfort to hear this, that come prosperity, come adversity, come what can come, come temptations on the right hand, and on the left hand, come fire and faggot, come prison, come banishment, I tell you a childe of God shall never be a bankrupt, he shall never be void of all the spirit of God, and all the graces of God, he shall have something in him still remaining. 'Tis true, a childe of God may be brought to that pass, that persecutions may be heavy to him, and may be a grievous cut, and he may be ready to put off this, and ready to consult with flesh and blood to put it off; and unless a childe of God provide for persecution, it shall be harder for him to bear it; but yet if thou be a childe of God, the Lord will never leave thee nor forsake thee, as the Apostle saith, Heb. 13. 5. though the cross and affliction be never so bitter and irksome to thee, yet thou shalt have something or other, that shall make thee able to bear it, and to go on in it; though thou dost but hang by the fingers ends, yet something shall bear thee up, so that thou shalt not fall.

Lastly, Labour to make it sure to our souls that we are godly; for we see what an happy estate it is to be godly; once godly, and ever godly; once a believer, and ever a believer; a man that is a godly man shall never fall totally away; therefore labour to make it sure that thou art a child of God, and hast the grace of life in thy heart; and then be of good cheer, and take that comfort the Prophet takes to himself; the Lord is my hope, I shall never be greatly moved, Psal. 62. 2. As who should say, I do not indeed deny but I may be moved; but though I be moved, I shall never be greatly moved; I shall never be so moved as to break my neck, and be utterly undone; to be quite and clean forsaken, and given over for gone, so as to be removed from all hope of the Gospel, and fear of Gods name; a man may be horribly assaulted, yet a child of God shall never be at such a pass as that the Lord shall leave him utterly.

We come now to the second Motive, and that is that these remainders were ready to dye; we may take these words to concerne the whole Church, or every particular soule that was guilty of it; but we will speake of them only as they have reference to the Church:

A particular Church may perish.

From whence we observe that a particular Church may be ready to dye; this must not be understood of the Catholique Church, or any part of it; as if the Catholique Church or any members thereof could dye; for there is no true believer, that believes in Christ by a true and a lively faith, can possibly perish or be destroyed for evermore, John 3. 16. this Church is a Church that Christ hath undertaken for, to defend unto the end, Mat. 16. 18. I, I am with you to the end of the world, Mat. 28. 20. So that this Catholique Church of Christ, in all the members of it, it is a safe Church; and though all particular Churches should fail, yet shall not one member of this Catholique Church; the Church is the first born, whose names are written in Heaven, Heb. 12.22,23. and if this Church cannot be in one Town, it will be in another; if it cannot be in one Kingdom, it will be among another people: the woman in the Revelation, hath the Wilderneſs to flye unto in the moſt deſperate times: God prepares a place for her in one corner or other: it is impoſſible that the Catholique Church ſhould dye in any members or branches of it; God will have ſome to know his name; and if it cannot have particular meetings and congregations, God will have it ſubſiſt in ſome particulars; but a particular Church, a local Church, as it is taken for a company of people in ſuch a place; any ſuch Church may fall and dye and come to nothing; you ſee it here in the Church of Sardis; at this time it had only a name to live, but was dead; and what did remain, they were but the laſt throws as it were; they did go out at laſt, they were ready to dye.

Now that any particular Church in the whole world may dye, and ceaſe to be a Church, may be proved out of many places of Scripture: Chriſt ſpeaking of the Jews (that had as great priviledges as any people upon the earth) he tells them, that they might not only ceaſe to be a Church, but ſhould ceaſe to be a Church; as you may ſee, Mat. 21. 43. The Kingdom of God ſhall be taken from you, &c. here he tells them, that he will quite and clean depart from them, and take away all ſigns and marks of a true Church of God from among them; ſo the Apoſtle ſpeaks of the Church of Corinth, he tells them they may come to be no Church, and that he doth greatly fear that ſuch an evil ſhall come upon them, 2 Cor. 11. 3. he doth not ſpeak to the particular perſons that were truly converted, for they were members of the Catholique Church, but he ſpeaks to the particular Church of Corinth, they did warp and decline; though many particular members ſhould be preſerved, yet he ſuppoſeth that particular Church might fall; ſo he tells the Galatians, that he did much fear them; you obſerve dayes and years, I am afraid leſt I have beſtowed my labour in vain; ſo likewiſe he gives the Church of Rome to underſtand, though it were an excellent Church at that time; for he ſaith, their faith was ſpoken of abroad, and they were beloved of God; yet he tells them they have need to take heed, that they do not loſe their Crown; that they do not ſuffer Satan, or the world, or any other means to draw them away from their profeſſion; as goodly a Church as themſelves had come to warpe and decline and come to nothing, Rom. 11. 20, 21, 22. As who ſhould ſay, Thou haſt no priviledge of immortality, of being an immortal Church, that thou ſhouldſt ever be a Church, that God Goſpel and Ordinances, and his name ſhould ever be within thy dwellings; you have no ſuch prerogative; take heed therefore you walk worthy the Goſpel, take heed you grow not high-minded and ſecure; it may be your caſe as well as any other; ſo the Church of Iſrael, the Ten Tribes, they were a Church, but in the end they came to be no Church, they provoked God to give them over, Hoſ. 1. 9. it is a parabolical kind of ſpeech, that the Prophet ſhould marry an whore, and have a ſon, and call his name, &c. and that was one degree of removing; and the ſecond ſhould be called, &c. which was the utter renouncing of his people.

4. Notes of a true Church.

Now there are four ſeveral marks and notes infallible of a true Church; and there is no particular Church but had them once, and may loſe them every one.

1. Sincere preaching the Goſpel.

The firſt is, the ſincere preaching of the Goſpel is an infallible and inſeparable mark of a true Church of God; whereſoever there is the true Church in any Parish or Kingdom, there muſt be a ſincere Preaching of the Word of God; therefore a Church is deſcribed by the Preaching of the Word and Oracles of God, Rom. 3. 2. that is, they were a Church of God, the Oracles of God were among them, and were to be heard, opened, opened and declared among them; so Psal. 147. 19. He sheweth his word unto Jacob, and his statutes unto Israel; that is, he makes it a Church, he explains his word, and makes it known there; so Acts 14. 23. it is said that Paul and Barnabas went up and down and ordained Elders in every Church; if there were a Church, there must be Elders in it; there must be Elders, Pastors and Ministers, that may not only preach the Word, but open it aright; for the Scripture may be in an Antichristian Church, but if they in their preaching make the Scriptures doctrines of Divels, and expound them in that fashion, they are no Church; but the Elders must speak the word of God as the word of God, at least in the fundamentals; now there is no Parish or Kingdom can be said to be a Church of God, that have not true Ministers able to preach the word of God soundly, to teach the Doctrine of faith and repentance, so as people may believe and turn from their sins to God; and this is a grand mark of all other; where the voice of Christ sounds, it is a sign he hath a Church there; now I say this sincere preaching of the word of God, it is not tied to any place; there is no place but may be deprived of it, if they do not walk worthy of it; it is free, and hath all the whole wide world before it; the Lord hath not limited his Gospel to any Town or Kingdom; he may send it where he please, and continue it as long as he list, and may remove it when he thinks fit; therefore when the Corinths were something sawcy and impudent, and bore themselves upon this, that they had the word and Gospel of Christ, 1 Cor. 14. 36. saith the Apostle, What? came the word of God out from you? &c. As who should say, be humble, down with your pride, receive instruction; as the word of God is come to you, so you are not the only men in the world that the word can come to; the word may be taken from you if you take not heed; therefore receive instruction by the word, and give way to it; for the word of God may go any whether else, and you may be deprived of it if you take not heed. Rev. 6. 2. Christ had his word on horse-back; now if any Kingdom or Parish, or Congregation do not give him good entertainment, he is ready to go away; and the sincere preaching of the word is the spiritual rain; now if any people grow unfruitful, and bring not forth the blessed fruit of the doctrine of life, God threatens to take away this rain; as it was with the Church of Judah, Isa. 5. 6. he speaks here of his vineyard, the Church he had in Judah and Jerusalem, and he finds fault with their barrenness and unfruitfulness; when he looked they should bring forth grapes, they brought forth wild grapes; nothing but covetousness and security, and all manner of uncleanness, and they did not bring forth fruit answerable to the means of grace vouchsafed; therefore the Lord threatens to command the clouds that they shall rain no more upon his vineyard; thus you see the sincere preaching of the Gospel, any particular Church may lose and be deprived of; there is no place or Congregation that hath a lease of the Gospel, but it may lose it again, and be left in blindness, and sit in the region and shadow of death; now when a Parish or Kingdom is come to this, to be deprived of the sincere preaching of the word, it ceaseth wholly to be a Church of God. I do not deny but God may have some members of his Catholique Church there, for they may subsist without Congregations, though very poorly, and under a great deal of affliction; but there is no National Church, no particular Church, no Parish-Church; that Parish is not a Church of God; there may be some particular members of the Catholique Church there, but there cannot be any particular Church of God there; that Congregation is a Congregation without God; and that Kingdom is a Kingdom without God; as you may see, 2 Chron. 15. 3. when as a Kingdom is without a preaching Priest, &c. He doth not here mean by a preaching Priest, one that barely did preach; but he means by a preaching Prieſt, true ſincere preaching, at leaſt in fundamentals: now when Iſrael were without this teaching Prieſt, they were without God at that time, and therefore was no true Church; for Chriſt is ever among the candleſticks, as you may ſee in the Revelation; there is no Church but Chriſt dwells there in his Ordinances more or leſs; now when people are deprived of the ſincere preaching of the word, God goeth away together with his Goſpel from that Nation; and they are a people without God unleſs God be pleaſed to look upon them again; they are a Congregation of undone people, and not a Congregation of bleſſed people as the Church of God is, ſo far forth as the judgement of man can judge; where the Goſpel is gone in the ſincere preaching of it, they are an undone people Prov. 29. 18. Where there is no vision, the people perish: Now there is no Nation or Parish but may be deprived of the preaching of the word, if they walk not worthy of it; therefore may ceaſe to be a Church.

2. True and ſincere uſe of the Sacraments.

Secondly, Another inſeparable mark of the true Church is this, a true and ſincere uſe of the Sacraments, at leaſt in the ſubſtance of them; you ſhall find a particular Church is deſcribed by this, to have the right adminiſtration of the Sacraments; as the Church of Judah is called circumciſion, Rom. 3. 1. the meaning is, what profit hath the Church of Judah above other people? and he calls them by that name, becauſe that was a Sacrament of the Covenant of grace which God eſtabliſhed among them; and ſo it is under the Goſpel; the Churches under the Goſpel are denned by the Sacraments; as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Phil. 3. 3. we are the circumciſion, which worſhip God in the ſpirit: As who ſhould ſay, they brag that they are the people of God, and have the ſeals of the covenant, as circumciſion, and the like; but we are the people of God, for we worſhip God in the ſpirit: Now any Church may loſe the right uſe of the Sacraments; the Sacrament of the Lords Supper was almoſt left out of the Church of Corinth, 1 Cor. 11. 20. ſaith he, it is not to eat the Lords Supper: They met together, and had a Table ſpread, and bread and wine, and had a form of conſecration; yet they were come to this paſs, that they did not receive the Sacrament. So the Church of Rome hath loſt this inſeparable mark of a Church of God, they have loſt the Sacrament; for the ordination of God is quite changed in the main eſſentials of it, and they are made the badges of an Harlot, rather then of a true Wife; They withhold the cup from the people, and adminiſter the Sacrament in one kind only, whereas Chriſt commanded it to be in both kinds; again, they deliver it in an unknown tongue, whereas Chriſt commanded it to be delivered in a known tongue; again, they turn it into Idolatry, to adore the hoſt, to adore the elements; ſo how many Churches are there up and down, that yield to the Church of Rome, that have quite and clean loſt the right uſe of the Sacrament, nay, loſt the Doctrin of the Sacraments? for this is ſeen, as long as the word of God continues ſound in the fundamentals, the Sacraments continue in the doctrin of them; but the Church may loſe the Doctrine of the Sacraments, and the right uſe of them.

3. Sincere profeſſion of the word of God, &c.

Thirdly, Another inſeparable mark of a true Church, is a ſincere profeſſion of the word of God, and true Chriſtian Religion, either in truth and uprightneſs of heart, or elſe ſo far as man can judge; for though the preaching of the Word come to a place, yet it doth not follow preſently that there is a Church of God; for ſuppoſe a Miniſter come to a place where they are all Pagans, this doth not make a Church; as when Paul came among the Athenians and begun his Sermon, they were all Pagans and Infidels, they were not a Church preſently, as ſoon as ever he begun his Sermon, but when divers of them embraced the word, either ſincerely or elſe to ſee to, as far as Paul and others could judge, then they were a Church;

there

there muſt be a congregation of people that do profeſſe the pure Religion, and make it appear (at leaſt to the judgement of man) that they are godly in Chriſt Jeſus; this is an inſeparable mark of a true Church, as we may ſee Act. 14. 23. You ſhall ſee there that the Church is called a congregation of Saints, a Church of Saints; for ſaith he, as in all Churches of the Saints, that is, all particular Churches, they are Churches of Saints; not as if every one of them were Saints before God, but they were riches Saints before God in Chriſt, 1 Cor. 1. 2. I was unknowne to the Churches of Judea, which were in Chriſt; mark it, all particular Churches, are Churches that are in Chriſt; the members of thoſe Churches are in Chriſt, either truly, or before men; now I ſay, this mark may perish from any particular Church; there is no Church that is a Church of Saints, but may become a Church of Divels, and a Synagogue of Satan, all wicked, and diſſolute, and ungodly. Jer. 9. 2. Jeremiah was weary of his life, he would count it a great bleſſing of God, if he would open a place to him to be apart, that he might not be among them, he was even tired, and his life was uncomfortable; they were ſo wicked and abominable, and ſo far off from being a Church of God, he did count with himſelf in a wilderneſſe then there; ſo it may be with any particular Church, if they look not to the word of God, and the Ordinances of God, and good order and Government, they may come to loſe this eſſential and inſeparable mark of a true Church of God.

Fourthly, Another mark (though I cannot call it inſeparable, becauſe it may be ſevered) is true diſcipline, and the right uſe of the cenſures of the Church; when there is true diſcipline according to the inſtitution of Chriſt in his Church, this is a mark of the Church of God. Now a Church of God may loſe this, and be ſtripe ſtark naked of true diſcipline, to have no publique reproof, no excommunication of thoſe that are profane; nay, the cenſures may be perverted and corrupted, ſo as to uſe them againſt Chriſt, and not for Chriſt; to excommunicate, not drunkards, and adulterers, and prophane people, but thoſe that are ſincere and godly, and lead an honeſt and pure life; it was ſo with Judea, John 9. 22. Theſe words ſpake his parents, &c. Here you ſee diſcipline was out of this Church, and ſo far out that it was quite perverted; and ſuch as ſhould be counted the only members of the Congregation, they threw them out; if any confeſſed Chriſt to be the Redeemer of the world, which was a neceſſary truth, they threw them out of the Church; ſo that we ſee the cenſures may be quite loſt. Now 'tis true, this is not an inſeparable mark of the Church of God, it is not a ſign of the eſſe of the Church, but it is a ſign of the bene eſſe, the well being of a Church: A Church of God, 'tis true, may be without diſcipline, as the Church of Pergamus; the Spirit ſaith, it was a true Church, and commends this Church; yet (ſaith he) I have a few things againſt thee; what were thoſe? namely, that they wanted diſcipline, that they did not throw out wicked and rotten members, and ſuch as were erroneous in doctrine and manners; this Church was guilty of ſuffering this; if they had thrown them out, God would never have charged them with it; the Church cannot hinder but there will be wicked and ungodly men, but as long as they throw them out of the congregation, not to have communion with them, the Church hath waſhed her hands; but it ſeems this Church had not waſhed her hands of this. So the Church of Thyatira, Rev. 2. 18. the Spirit of God calls it a true Church, yet verſ. 20. he tels them plainly, it was a grievous offence to God that they had not diſcipline in the Church; Notwithſtanding I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou ſuffereſt that woman Jezabel, &c. Thou haſt ſuffered this, and let her alone, and doſt even countenance her, and art guilty of all her errours; for thou didſt not throw her out, and diſcard her from being an outward member of the Church; ſo that we ſee the Church may be without diſcipline in the being of it; yet I make this a mark of the Church of God, becauſe though a Church may be without this, yet it is mightily defaced, and wants its beauty: And again, it is a Church that cannot continue; for when they doe not reprove and rebuke offenders, and deal ſeverely with them directly, they will infect the whole body, and it muſt needs weaken and decline, till at laſt it comes to nothing; therefore I make this a ſigne of a true Church. Thus we ſee there be four notes of a true Church, which it may have, and afterwards come to be no Church.

4. True Diſcipline.

of

Marks of a falſe Church.

Now in the next place I will ſhew you there be ſeverall notes of a falſe Church; and the Church that once had thoſe true notes, may have none but falſe notes.

1. Antiquity.

As firſt Antiquity. You ſhall have ſome Churches, as the Church of Rome, they brag of Antiquity, they have Antiquity for their prayers for the dead, and Purgatory, & the like, and they ſhew 5, 6, or 700. years for theſe things; and none but a company of upſtart fellows, as Luther, and Calvin, and Perkins, did ever condemn theſe things. This is a falſe mark; and a Church that hath this mark, may be a Synagogue of Satan, and not a Church of God: For, as a Divine ſaith, no Church can be ſound becauſe of Antiquity, unleſs it hath been from the beginning; as Chriſt, when the Jewes pleaded Antiquity, he ſaith, It was not ſo from the beginning. All Antiquity is nothing, unleſs it be from the firſt beginning, when Gods Inſtitution and firſt ordering was; a lye will be a lye, notwithſtanding its Antiquity; and ſo an whore, the elder ſhe is, the impudenter ſhe is; and Errours and Hereſies in proceſs of time grow to be more infectious, they take deeper root. Now if they were once new, what if there were a thouſand yeares upon ſuch a Doctrine, and ſuch a manner of Adminiſtration of the Sacrament, what is this to the purpoſe, if there were a time when this was a novelty and a new device? as the Apoſtle ſaith, 2 Theſ. 2. 7. The Myſtery of iniquity worketh. Therefore no marvel it is grown ancient, no wonder it is come to be gray-headed; this is nothing, we are not to pick our Religion by yeares, but by Scripture; let a thing be never ſo old, if we cannot prove it by Scripture, this is nothing; if the Church have no other mark to plead that they are the Church of God, but Antiquity, that is a poor plea; as Paul thought before his converſion, I am of the Church; He was exceeding zealous for the traditions of his Fathers, Gal. 1. 14. This is a poor thing; Religion may be a vain Religion for all this. 1 Pet. 1. 18. If any people come to be redeemed by Chriſt, Chriſt comes to redeem them from ſuch Religion as this; the drunkard may ſhew Antiquity for his drunkenneſs, and the adulterer may ſhew Antiquity for his uncleanneſs, &c. But he is a true Chriſtian that can ſhew the Scripture for his title; and that is a true Church that maintains for matters of Faith, and walks for matters of manners, according to the Scriptures. Now if a Church hath no better mark then Antiquity, it is a falſe Church.

2 Univerſality

Another mark of a falſe Church is univerſality; when they have no other mark to ſhew, but that the moſt are of their ſide, they can ſhew the greateſt bulk; if you go and count, there is moſt of their number a great deal; this is a ſure mark of a falſe Church; yet the Church of Rome makes uſe of this mark; for they conſute our marks of a true Church, and will have multitudes to be their mark; and by this we may ſee they are Antichriſt, Rev. 13. 12. ſo Rev. 13. 8. All that dwell upon the earth, whoſe names were not written in the book of the Lamb, worſhipped the beaſt; the reprobate are the greateſt part of the world; now here he ſaith, all that dwell upon the earth almoſt ſhall worſhip the Beaſt; if this were the mark of a true Church, Chriſt had miſcounted himſelf when he counted his flock a little flock. Luke 12. 32.

Fear

Fear not little flock, &c. And again, he ſaith, Strive to enter in at the ſtraight gate, &c. He deſcribes a true Church by the fewneſs, and not by the univerſality of it; therefore what a madneſs is this to make univerſality a note of a true Church?

Thirdly, Another is ſucceſſion of Paſtors from the Apoſtles times to this very day; this they make a mark of a true Church; O ſay they we can ſhew ſucceſſion down from Peter here at Rome, even to this day: The Proteſtants are not able to ſhew this; this is a poor mark; Caiaphas that condemned Chriſt, could ſhew ſucceſſion from Aaron; ſo a Church may be a Church that renounceth Chriſt, and is an Antichriſtian Church, and yet may ſhew ſucceſſion; and other Churches, as Alexandria and others can ſhew ſucceſſion as well as Rome; ſo that ſucceſſion of Paſtors is nothing, unleſs they can ſhew ſucceſſion of Doctrine. 3. Succeſſion of Paſtors.

Fourthly, Unity, They make that to be a mark of the true Church; and this is a falſe mark too; others ſay they, have not unity among them, but we have unity; thus you may as well prove the Divels in Hell to be a Church, for there is unity; as our Saviour ſaith, If Satan be divided againſt Satan, how can his Kingdom ſtand? ſo Acts 4. 27. you may ſee what an unity was there, they were all of one knot and one mind; there was a marvellous great unity among them all to condemn Chriſt; the Church muſt be proved to be a true Church, before unity can be brought to be any ſign of it; for the more unity is in a wicked way, the more helliſh is the conſpiracy. 4. Unity.

Fifthly, Miracles is a note of a falſe Church; now the Papiſts ſay, We can ſhew miracles for our Religion; where can you ſhew miracles? Chriſt ſaith, we may know Antichriſt and his adherents by this, Mat. 24. 24. there ſhall ariſe falſe Chriſts, &c. False Chriſts and ſuch as make as though they were Chriſtians, and the people of God, and come to you in the name of the Lord, and they may ſhew you ſigns and wonders to make you believe them; but they are the Divels ſigns, and they ſhall be very ſtrong to delude the world; ſo 2 Theſ. 2. 9. the Apoſtle ſhews us that the coming of Antichriſt ſhall be after this manner; therefore no marvel that they plead ſigns and wonders, and apparitions of the dead, from their doctrine of the Maſs and Purgatory, and prayers for the dead, &c. this is an argument that their Church is Antichriſtian; that which is a true Church according to the Scripture, needs no new miracles; therefore Calvin and Luther that propounded nothing but the truth of the Scripture, they need bring no miracles to confirm it if indeed they had brought any new doctrines of their own heads, they had need to have brought miracles to confirm them; but when they brought nothing but what they could prove out of the Scripture, Scripture-miracles were enough to prove this. 5. Miracles.

Sixthly, Another mark is pompe and ſtatelineſs; a Church may come to have no other mark but this, that it is a goodly and ſtately Church, a pompous kind of ſerving God; things are ſet out pompouſly, this is rather an argument of an Antichriſtian Church; for the Kingdom of Chriſt is not of this world, and that which is highly eſteemed amongſt men, is abominable in the ſight of God. 6. Pompe and ſtatelineſs.

Laſtly, They make outward proſperity and happineſs to be a mark of the true Church of God; but this is rather a mark of a Synagogue of Satan, For all that live godly in Chriſt Jeſus, muſt ſuffer perſecution, 2 Tim. 3. 12. And if any man will be my Diſciple (ſaith Chriſt) let him take up his croſs and follow me. I ſay the Kingdom of Chriſt is not of this world; therefore proſperity and felicity is not a ſign of a Church of God; thus we ſee that a Church that was once a true Church of God, may come to be no true Church; they may loſe all the true notes of a Church of God, and have no other notes, but ſuch as prove it to be no true Church, but rather a Church of Infidels and unbelievers. 7. Outward happineſs and proſperity.

The

Reas. 1. Because the Church is Catholique.

The first reason is, because the Church of God is Catholique, that is, it is not tied and pent up in any place, God may carry it where he will, he may set up his Church in what Country, and Town, and Family he will, and choose what particular person in the whole world he will; God is not tied to any; therefore when the Jews bore themselves upon this, that they were the Church, and Gods Ordinances and Oracles were appropriated to them, they came at the first hour of the day, at the first hand; but if the Gentiles were a Church, it was but at the second hand, they came but at the eleventh hour; he takes up a parable, Mat. 20. and saith, they that are last, shall be first, &c. and he gives a reason, shall I not do what I will with mine own? so God may do with his Ordinances, and gifts and graces of his spirit; he may bestow them where he will, he may give his Gospel to a Kingdom, and take it away at his pleasure; and he may stay as long as he will, and be gone when he will.

2. God needs no place or persons.

Secondly, God doth not need any place, any people; though a place be never so glorious and stately, and though it be never so admirable a Church, God doth not need that Nation, but if it grow malevert, and stiffe and stubborn against him, the Lord will make them know he hath no need of them, and cares not for them; as the Jews, when they bore themselves upon this that they were the people of God, and had Abraham for their father, and were barren and fruitless and dissolute in their lives, you may see how John Baptist answers their foolish conceit, think not within your selves, we have Abraham to our father, &c. Mat. 3. 9. he hath no need of you, you are the children of Abraham, but know God can cast you into Hell for all you are the children of Abraham, and can make Heathens and Infidels children of Abraham; so when the Jews boasted, Mal. 1. that God had chosen them, he hated Esau, and loved Jacob, and they grew to be insolent and disobedient to God, and polluted his holy Temple, and despised his name; see what God saith, I will accept none of these things at your hands, I will gather me a people among the Heathens, Mal. 1. 13. As who should say, I want not people, I can go among the Heathen, and there have my worship regarded which you have slighted and neglected.

3. No particular Church hath a promise of continuance.

Thirdly, There is no particular Church in the world hath a promise alwayes to be a Church, but if they grow careless and secure and unprofitable under the means, the Lord will be gone; he hath made no such promise to continue with them for ever; 'tis true, there is never a godly soul, never a member of the Church but God hath promised he will never leave him, 2 Tim. 2. 19. and Mat. 28. 20. he saith so of his own people, he will never leave them, but the good things he hath begun in them, he will perfect them in the day of Christ; nay, though all particular Churches should be destroyed, God will have a care of these particular Saints of his Catholique Church, that not any limbe of it shall cease; but for particular Churches God hath made no such promises, but upon condition, Rom. 11. 22. if a Parish or Kingdom continue in the fear of Gods name, and regard his commandements, & be fruitful under his Ordinances, and thankful for his goodness, then he will stay; but otherwise saith he, thou shalt be broken off, though thou be the famousest Church in the world.

Vse 1. To confound the Church of Rome.

This may confound the Church of Rome, who promise to themselves they shall never be unchurched; though they have been unchurched many years, yet they brag they are the only Church in the world; Bellarmin brags that St. Peters chair shall never go from Rome; and no wonder, for the spirit of God foretold it, Rev. 17. I sit as Queen and shall never be a Widow, I shall be a Wife, a Spouse for ever, I shall see no sorrow; you see how secure she is, just the child of her proud mother Babylon, Isa. 47. 8. So 'tis with the Church of Rome, I am, and none else; I am; she calls her self the Roman Catholique Church

Church, as if there were no Church but Rome; all the Nations of the world, if they will be a Church, must be members of that Church; as it was said of Rome in Augustus time, If Jupiter should come down from Heaven, there is no Country for him to come into but Rome; look into this or that country, Rome hath to doe there; so Rome, notwithstanding her Apostacy, is grown to that height of pride and security, as if she were, and none but she. O poor deluded company, there is scarce any true note of a Church of Christ among them, and yet they make themselves to be the onely Church.

Use 2. To all particular Churches.

This may be an Item for all the particular Churches in the whole world, for England, Denmark, France, whersoever is any. Here you see the Church of Sardis had but a name to live, and was dead; there was nothing but remainders in her, and they were ready to die and come to nothing. But what speak I of the Church of Sardis? Where are all the famous Churches of Asia, of Pergamus and Thyatira? &c. what is become of those famous Churches? are they not turned into a wilderness, and to worship Mahomet and Idols, and are even grown as bad as Heathens? But what need I speak of these? Look upon the Church of the Jewes, that were the principal people of God; no Church like that; Israel is my first borne; there was never any Church under the Gospel that was his onely Church; but Judea was his onely one, his pleasant Plant; nay they were the Fathers of Jesus Christ according to the flesh, Rom. 9. yet notwithstanding that Church was cut off. When the holy City proved a Harlot; when these people grew to be weary of God and his Ordinances, and grew to be loose, and would not be ruled by God and his Word, the Lord gave them a Bill of Divorcement, and sent them away; therefore let us be warned by them; it is a fearfull thing when God for Idolatry shall cast off Churches, and yet we not tremble, but live under security and hardness of heart, and take not warning by it. Jer. 3. 8. God saith, Yet her treacherous sister Judah feared not, but played the harlot. When God cast off the ten Tribes, Judah saw this, and heard of this, and could not chuse but understand this, and yet she did not fear for all this: So when this Parish, or any other Parish shall hear of any Parish that is unchurched and unministred, and God hath taken away his presence from among them, and there shall be no signe of his gracious presence any more, the Gospel is gone from such a place, and we hear of it, and yet doe not fear, but are as secure as ever, as unfruitful under the means as ever, and doe not stir up our selves to be more obedient to God and his Ordinances, but goe on to play the harlot, and goe a whoring from God from day to day; nay we are even ready to promise our selves peace for all this; this is a fearful thing. Mark what the Lord saith, Jer. 7. 11, 12, 13, 14, 15. He speaks there of Jerusalem: So when God hath poured out his plagues and punishments upon other Parishes, and other places, and hath taken away his Ark and the glory is departed from them, and they are left in the shadow of death, and we see it, and yet tremble not at it, God calls upon us from day to day to amend our lives, that we might finde mercy with him; God tells us, as he hath done to other Parishes in the Kingdome, so he will doe to us; the Lord will lay us desolate and waste as other parts of the land are; and certainly the Lords wrath and vengeance is hard at our heels if we doe not speedily repent; who knows how soon God may deprive us of his Word and Ordinances? For I have not found thy works perfect before God.

If we take these words in sunder, they containe these five Propositions.

First, That the covenant of grace requires works.

Secondly, That these works should be perfect.

Thirdly, That they should not onely be perfect in the sight of men, for that is nothing; but perfect in the sight of God, before God.

Fourthly, That the Lord Jesus searcheth whither they be so or no.

Fifthly, Upon due search he finds it out many times, not onely in particular persons, but in particular Churches, as we see here in the Church of Sardis, that their works are not so.

Observat. 1. The second Covenant requires works.

For the first of these, That the second Covenant requires works, we see here that the Lord Jesus looks for works in the Church of Sardis that were in covenant with him; 'tis true, there is this difference between the two Covenants; the first covenant requires works as the condition of it; He that doth them, shall live in them, Gal. 3.12. The doers of the Law shall be blessed, Rom. 2.13. Therefore it is called the covenant of works, and that in two senses.

First, In that works are the condition of it.

Secondly, In that it is left unto man; God gives onely a power not to sin, if so be that man will; but he doth not give the will. Now the second covenant is not a covenant of works; the condition of it is not works, but the condition of it is faith; The just shall live by faith, Rom. 1.17. Therefore it is called a covenant of grace, and that in two respects opposite to the former; not onely in regard that these works are done by another, and so nothing is required of the party justified, but onely faith for his justification; but also because though the covenant of grace require works, yet God doth not expect a man should doe any thing of himself, but it is by grace; we are saved by grace through faith, and not of our selves, it is the gift of God. I say the second covenant is a covenant of grace, and yet it requires works.

And works are here necessary. First by necessity of presence; for though faith be the condition, yet it is such a faith as hath necessarily good works together present with it; as the Apostle speaks, Faith if it have not works is dead, Jam. 2.17. Good works they are inseparably joyned together with true faith; for as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also; not as though works were the essential forme of true faith; but the nature of faith, if it be true, is such as doth necessarily call good works to accompany with it.

They are necessary by necessity of inseparable effects; good works are not onely present together with faith, but they are so present, as that they doe flow from faith. God hath required such a faith in the covenant of grace, as doth produce good works; they are not onely inseparable from faith, but thus inseparable, that true faith must needs produce them; He that hath this hope, purifies himselfe as he is pure, 1 John 3.3. That is, He that hath this faith, he sets down faith by the effect hope, and sets it down by another effect, it must needs purifie, it makes that man purifie himself as Christ is pure. So Christ having exhorted them to believe, having raised up their minds to believe the things that are above, Lay up your treasure in Heaven, Mat. 6.20. in the next verse he shews this will have the effect of all manner of good works; For where your treasure is, there will your hearts be also; it will draw up your hearts, and make you heavenly-minded, and make you seek the things that are above; where your treasure is, there will your hearts be also. So likewise we may see Heb. 11. thorow the whole chapter, what abundance of effects are set down of true saving faith: By faith Abel offered sacrifice to God. By faith Noah being warned of God, obeyed God, and did the things that God commanded, verse 7. And so by faith Abraham when he was called, yielded to God. So by faith believers wrought righteousness, and did wonderfull things, subdued Kingdomes, &c. They were able to work wonderful effects; so that when a man hath not works, works, when he doth not obey God through the power of faith, he hath not faith it ſelf

Thirdly, Good works are neceſſary by neceſſity of ſigns; they are not only to be in a Believer as effects, but as proofs of his faith; for a man muſt juſtifie his faith by his works; they are ſignes and proofs whereby he may know whether his faith be true, and of the right ſtamp or no; for if a mans faith be a lively faith, a faith that doth juſtifie, though in the act of juſtification it be alone, yet in exiſtency it is not alone, but it hath good works together with it, as ſigns and marks of the ſame; as 1 John 1. 6. If we ſay we have fellowſhip with him, and walk in darkneſs, we lye, and doe not the truth. Hereby we may know that we are deceived; we may think we have faith, and ſo fellowſhip together with him; yet if we walk in darkneſſe, we may know we lye; for this could not be if we had fellowſhip with God. So 1 John 2. 4. He that ſaith I know him, and keepeth not his commandements, is a lyar. If a man ſhould once think that he knows God with the knowledge of faith, and yet keeps not the commandements of God, by this very thing he may know that he is a lyar. Hereby ſhall all men know ye are my diſciples, if ye love one another, ſaith Chriſt; and as it is a ſign to others, ſo it is a ſign to a mans own ſelf; hereby we know that we are paſſed from death to life, if we love the Brethren. He ſets down one good work in ſtead of all other: if we bring forth the works of new obedience, and if our hearts be purged of God if we bring forth the fruits of holineſs, this is a ſign we have faith: for faith makes a man to chooſe God for his God, and riſes a man up to ſee him to be the chiefeſt good of all, and to ſee all happineſs in him, and a ſupply of all the good we need in him, and ſo it makes a man to love God, and by love to doe the works of God.

Fourthly, Good works are neceſſary alſo by neceſſity of commandement, not onely to be effects and ſignes of faith, but they are alſo ſuch things as are commanded of God; God hath commanded good works, that we ſhould walk in all holineſs of converſation, to be holy as he is holy, that we ſhould be holy in our carriages and behaviour, Tit. 3. 8. The ſame God that commands us to believe, commands us to maintain good works, as we may ſee there; we ſee that Miniſters are to urge people, and maintaine it againſt all gainſayers, that there is a neceſſity of good works, and that the Lord will have us to go on in them; for faith through the Object of it, as it juſtifies, is the promiſe of God in Chriſt for forgiveneſs of ſins; yet faith in it ſelfe looks upon the whole word of God, and looks whatſoever it ſeeth joyned together by that, it joynes together of it ſelf; as the Promiſes and Commandements are bound together by an inviolable knot, ſo faith joynes them together; it cannot take the promiſes of God, but it muſt take the commandements of God alſo; faith looks upon God, and as it ſeeth him to be gracious, whereby it comes to have faith to rely upon him, ſo alſo it ſeeth him to be holy, a God that is ſevere againſt ſin, and hateth unrighteouſneſs; ſo that it is neceſſary that works be together with faith, for the commandement and nature of God require it.

Fifthly, They are neceſſary alſo by neceſſity of end; for God hath ordained his people to this end, that they ſhould bring forth good works. Eph. 2. 10. We are his workmanſhip created in Chriſt to good works, which God hath before ordained, that we ſhould walk in them. We are created in Chriſt Jeſus, not onely that we ſhould be ſaved, but that we ſhould bring forth good works. Now good works are neceſſary by neceſſity of end in divers reſpects.

Firſt to this end, To glorifie God in the world; Let your light ſo ſhine before men, &c. Matth. 5. 16. So 1 Pet. 2. 12. the Apoſtle ſaith, Having your converſation honeſt amongſt the Gentiles, that whereas they ſpeak againſt you as evil doers, &c. For when a Christian that professeth he believes in God and Jesus Christ, is plentiful in all manner of good works, this stops the mouth of all gainsayers; You know Piety and Religion is hated in the world, the Gospel finds opposition among men. Now when those that are Professors are loose and licentious in their lives, this opens their mouths against the truth; but when our lives and conversations hold forth Jesus Christ, as we take up the profession of his holy name, so they are agreeable to his will, they are just, and holy, and righteous, and good; this makes men think in their conscience this is of God; this stops their mouths that they cannot rail at the Gospel.

Secondly, They are necessary to doe good to others, and convert others, as the Apostle instanceth in women that believe, if they be zealous of good works, if they be chast, and humble, and meek, and discreet; by this means they may be instruments to convert their husbands that believe not, 1 Pet. 3. The Lord looks that his people, all that believe in him, should be fruitful in good works, that they may winne and gaine others to the faith.

Thirdly, Another end is to purifie our selves; for it is vertue that must throw out vice; we are all borne by nature filthy and unclean, and full of noysome lusts, and the way to expel these is by the contrary vertues, 1 Pet. 1.22. Seeing you have purified your soules by obeying the truth.

Fourthly, Another end is to qualifie us for Heaven; we cannot be qualified for the Kingdome of heaven unless we be holy and godly in Christ Jesus, except we have our conversations honest as becometh Saints; for though it be faith that entitles a man to the Kingdome of Heaven, and gives a man right to the Kingdome of God; yet holinesse and conformity to the minde of God, and the image of God, is that which doth fit and qualifie a man for to enter into the Kindome of God; as Christ saith, Except your righteousness exceed the righteousnes of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye can in no wise enter into the Kingdome of Heaven. Though it be true, we are saved by grace, and so good works have no causality, no proper efficiency in our salvation; yet notwithstanding they are a cause sine qua non, without them there can be no salvation; we cannot enter into Gods Kingdome, except we be humble, and meek, and lowly; except we fear God, and be according to his minde in all things in some measure, we cannot enter into his Kingdom. Mat. 5.8. Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. A man cannot be admitted to the Beatifical Vision of God, except he be pure in heart; and he cannot enjoy the Kingdome of grace neither here unless he be pure in heart, Rev. 21. 27. Without holines no man shall see the Lord, Heb. 13. It is impossible we should enter into Gods Kingdome by having actual possession of it, except we be holy and fitted for it, as the Apostle saith, Col. 1.12. It is impossible that drunkards, and unclean persons should have society with the blessed Trinity, with the eternal God, with the Spirit of holinesse, to dwell with them for evermore; we must be made meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in light.

Fifthly, To proportion our Reward; for though we are saved only by grace, yet God doth proportion our reward, according to the multitude, and zeal, and fervency of our good works; for Gods Covenant is a remunerating Covenant; for mercy doth not consist only in the pardoning of a man, but also in the sanctifying of a man, and the inclining of a mans heart to new obedience, that there may be remuneration; for though God doth not reward people for their works, yet according to their works he doth. 2 Cor. 9.6. He that soweth sparingly, shall reap sparingly, &c. Though a man be a Believer, and a godly man, if he be sparing in his godlines, he shall fare accor-accordingly, and if he be abundant in the work of the Lord, he ſhall reap abundantly; for as there are differences and degrees of torments to the wicked, ſo there be degrees in the Kingdom of God, and in glory, and the Lord doth reward his people according to their works.

Laſtly, Good works are neceſſary by neceſſity of thankfulneſs; it is neceſſary that we having received the forgiveneſs of our ſins, and God being pleaſed to be our God, and to deliver us from the wrath to come, and the power of Satan, that we ſhould be thankful for theſe mercies; as David ſaith, Pſal. 128. 19. Let the peace of God rule in your hearts, and be thankeful, Col. 3. 15. When David had conſidered what the Lord had done for his ſoul, ſaith he, what ſhall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits? as ſoon as ever God hath been good to a man to open his eyes, to let him ſee his damned eſtate and condition, and to let him have hope, and comfort, and encouragement in him, concerning deliverance from it, and beſtowing upon him his heavenly Kingdom and glory, it cannot be but the ſoul muſt be thankful; what ſhall I do unto thy Lord for all his benefits? you know there is nothing that we can do back again for theſe benefits, except we will praiſe and glorifie him, by living unto him and not unto our ſelves; therefore when the Pſalmiſt had reckoned up the benefits of God to Iſrael, Pſal. 105. 46. he concludes that they may keep his ſtatutes and obſerve his Laws.

Uſe 1. First, Here we ſee how horribly the Papiſts wrong us when they ſay we do not teach people good works, and therefore nickname us, and call us Solifidians, whereas we maintain a neceſſity of them, and as great a neceſſity of them as they; only we beat down the merit of them, that no man may think to be ſaved by works; as a reverend Divine Mr. Carter ſaid, we teach people holineſs and righteouſneſs, and good works, as if there were no way to be ſaved but by good works; and again, we teach that there muſt be as much hanging upon the grace of God, as if we could ſhew no more to be ſaved then the vileſt drunkard or adulterer; all our righteouſneſs is as a menſtruous cloth, and it is Gods mercy that any of us have an heart to do good; you ſee how the world runs after their hearts luſts, and every man is of this diſpoſition; and it is Gods grace and mercy to incline any mans heart to walk in that way that tends to his heavenly Kingdom: and if God ſhould not be infinitely gracious to pardon us for our beſt doings, they would riſe up in judgement againſt us; God might condemn us for all our prayers and performances.

Uſe 2. Secondly, This teacheth Miniſters how to preach to people, to call upon them that they have an operative faith, not only to believe, but to have a faith that may be fruitful, and make their lives not to barren in obedience; and to be abundant in the works of the Lord, and to ſerve him, and fear him, and glorifie him in the world; as the Apoſtle having ſhewed how Chriſt gave himſelf for us, to purchaſe to himſelf a people zealous of good works, ſaith he, theſe things ſpeak, Tit. 2. 14, 15. We muſt ſpeak theſe things, and rebuke our hearers with all authority; rebuke evil workers, and tell them they turn the grace of Chriſt into wantonneſs, they trample the blood of the Covenant under their feet, and kick at the ſpirit of grace, and miſconſtrue the meaning of the Covenant of God in Chriſt, and rend themſelves off that they cannot enter into life; for no man without holineſs ſhall ſee God; Miniſters ſhould tell people plainly, and affirm conſtantly, that unleſs they bring forth good fruit they ſhall be caſt into the fire; and that without holineſs they cannot have licenſe and diſpenſation to enter into the Kingdom of Heaven; for God is an holy God, and our faith is an holy faith, and the promiſes are made to none but thoſe that lead an holy and a godly life; we muſt preach theſe things, and reprove with all Authority, and let people know that are looſe Chriſtians, and Hell-hounds, that if they do not depart from iniquity, they ſhall ſee God as a Judge to condemn them for evermore.

not

Uſe 3. Thirdly, This confutes all the graceleſs conceits of men, that think to be ſaved by Chriſt, and yet walk not after Chriſt; they caſt not away from them the works of darkneſs, nor renounce their wicked wayes, and yet hope to be ſaved by Chriſt; this is a curſed and blaſphemous hope, whereby a man blaſphemes God, 1 Joh. 3. 6. whoſoever ſinneth, hath not ſeen him, neither known him; if a man live in his ſins ſtill (that is the meaning of it) and walks not after the ſpirit, but after the fleſh, that man hath not ſeen him, neither ever known him; he doth not know Jeſus Chriſt otherwiſe then the Divels know him, otherwiſe then Hell-hounds and reprobates may know him; for the ſecond Covenant is as holy as the firſt, and rather more holy, and before God hath done, it ſhall bring a man to a nearer communion with God, and a nearer likeneſs; it will raiſe the powers and faculties of the ſoul, ſo as I believe Adam in innocency never attained unto ſo much participation of God, as God by degrees will bring a man unto by the Covenant of grace; therefore no man can look to be ſaved by Chriſt except he mean to be ruled by Chriſt, and to have him for his Lord and Maſter, and to obey him in all things; if a man ſhould lie ſick in his bed of a burning feaver, and ſhould ſay he were well, would you believe him? ſo if we ſee a man that is burning in luſt, wallowing in ſinful courſes, that hath a carnal and a worldly heart, unmortified and unſubdued to God, if he ſhould ſay that he were in Chriſt, and hoped to be ſaved by him, believe him not; all the world cannot ſave this man; for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath this very name Jeſus, not only becauſe he ſhall ſave his people from hell, but alſo from their ſins, and make them fruitful in all the works of God.

Uſe 4. Fourthly, To exhort that we would conſider of this, the Goſpel doth call for works as well and as ſtrongly, yea, and more ſtrongly then the Law, and there be neceſſary uſes of holineſs and obedience and all manner of pious works under the Goſpel; as the Apoſtle ſaith, Tit. 3. 4. let us maintain good works for neceſſary uſes, &c. We are barren trees; whatſoever we are, we are barren and dead Chriſtians, and have no life of God in us, if we bring not forth good works; for good works are neceſſary for many uſes.

Motive 1. Firſt, They are for ſigns, to ſhew us what eſtate and condition we are in; we may know what eſtate and condition we are in by our carriage and converſation; whither it be earthly or heavenly, holy or prophane, ſo is our condition either happy or damned.

Firſt, They are ſigns of a mans election, 2 Tim. 1. 20. this is a ſign and a badge, and a token whereby we may know that we are veſſels of honour, if we be ſanctified and made meet for our maſters uſe, and furniſhed and prepared for every good work; if we do not deny all ungodly luſts, and live righteouſly and ſoberly in this preſent world, we have rather badges and tokens of reprobation then election; we cannot ſay that God hath appointed us to attain ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt, but have rather marks of hell and deſtruction upon us; and what is the reaſon that men that profeſs Chriſt, do ſo much queſtion their election? no wonder when we are ſo ſcanty in our holineſs and obedience to God, and ſo backward to do good; there is no nickling of Gods everlaſting favour breaking out, whereas if we were plentiful in good works, it would break forth as the Sun out of a cloud.

Secondly, They are ſigns of effectual calling, Jude 1. if a man be called of God, he is ſanctified alſo and kept in an holy courſe; preſerved in Chriſt. 2 Pet. 1. 3. you are an holy Nation, a peculiar people, to ſhew forth the vertues

of

of him that hath called you, 1 Pet. 2. 9. so that we may be sure that we yet abide in darkneſs, and are under the power of ſin and Satan; if we have not given over our ſinful courſes, and conformed our ſelves to the Goſpel of God, we were never called according to Gods purpoſe, but lie under the wrath of Heaven to this day; It is holineſs and righteouſneſs that is a ſign of our effectuall calling.

Thirdly, They are ſigns of juſtification alſo; as the Apoſtle ſheweth, but you are waſhed, &c. 1 Cor. 6. 11. you ſee if we be juſtified, we are alſo ſanctified; ſo 1 Joh. 1. 7. if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, &c. We have not one drop of the blood of Chriſt ſprinkled upon our ſouls by Gods eternal ſpirit through faith, unleſs we walk in the light, and bring forth the works of the light.

Fourthly, They are ſigns of adoption, John 8. 39. If you were Abrahams children, you would bring forth the works of Abraham; ſo if we were Gods children, we would do the works of God, the will of God: The Apoſtle having ſpoken of the adoption of Saints, behold what love the Father hath ſhewed to us, &c. preſently he tells us that holineſs and righteouſneſs follows from hence; he that hath this hope purifieth himſelf, as he is pure. So Rom. 8. 14. As many are led by the ſpirit of God, are the ſons of God; this is an infallible ſign, if we be the ſons of God, we are led by the ſpirit of God; ſo that we have no mark that we are the children of God, but rather of the Divel, unleſſe we walk in pureneſſe of converſation from day to day.

Fifthly, They are the marks of our love to God, as Chriſt ſaith, if you love me, keep my commandements, John 14. 15. we love not God except we keep his commandments; as ever you would be able to ſay in truth you love me, keep my commandments; look that you yield not to the corruptions of the world, look that you renounce the Divel and all his works; I will conclude you love me not at all, if you keep not my commandments; and he that loves not Chriſt, let him be Anathema Maranatha, ſaith the Apoſtle.

Secondly, Conſider this, that the reaſon why we cannot pray better is Motive 2. becauſe we are no more abundant in good works; not only becauſe we want faith, but becauſe we want good works; for certainly this is a great help to prayer, a great ſupport to the ſoul, a great encouragement to go to the Throne of grace, and a great ſign that God means to hear a man when God hath given him an heart to fear him, and love him, and make conſcience of his wayes; as the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 John 3. 22. Whatſoever we aske we receive of him, becauſe we keep his commandments, and do the things pleaſing in his ſight: As who ſhould ſay, when we go to God, and intreat him to be merciful to us, and intreat ſuch and ſuch favours that we ſtand in need of; we know that we ſhall receive them, becauſe we keep his commandments. Theſe are admirable ſupports to hold up the hands to the Throne of grace, and to make us importunate in prayer, and confident, becauſe we know God hath poured forth his gracious good will and pleaſure into our hearts, and hath given us a mark he loves us, and beares us good will indeed. Why can we pray no better, our hands are weake and our knees feeble; there is no power in our ſupplications to the Almighty, the ſpirit of grace is departed from us; why the ſpirit of holineſs is gone; there is the reaſon of it, when people are looſe and do not mortifie their luſts, when they are not abundant in following God, in fearing God, and ſerving God, and obeying the commandments of God, they cannot have confidence at the Throne of grace.

Thirdly, Conſider this would be a great chearing and rejoycing in the Motive 3. evil day; whatſoever afflictions come upon us in this world, if we can carry carry letters testimonial in our own conscience, that we do serve God with a pure conscience in this world; as Paul saith, 2 Cor. 1. 12. God knows what evil may befal us before we are a little older, what temptations may await us; what distresses and calamities may fall upon us; happy are we if we have the testimony of a good conscience, that we walk in the wayes of God, and fear him, and love those things that are beloved of God; if we love his children, his Ordinances, his glory, and are tender of it; a good conscience tender of the commandments of God and his wayes, it the best comfort a man can have in the world, setting aside his faith in God; and this is an evidence of his faith too: how can we tell what may be? may be the best of us may come to Davids pass; you know how he was put to it once in the time of his misery and affliction he was fain to look if he could see an honest life and conversation, whither he had pleased God: saith he, I communed with my spirit, and made diligent search, Psal. 77. 6. How have I pleased God, and followed God? what manner of life have I led? he ransacked all his life and conversation, and would be glad to see he had done the things pleasing to God; it would be more comfort then if all the Angels in heaven had spoken comfort; so temptations or afflictions may be upon us, that we would be glad to see signs and tokens of Gods favour in sanctifying our hearts, and making us to be obedient to his will, and tremble at his word; and if we cannot see these things, woe unto us, 1 Tim. 6. 19. charge them that be rich in the world, that they be not high-minded, &c. So we do not know what times may come, we had need lay a good foundation for comfort against the time to come, and charge rich men that they be rich in good works; charge all Christians, all that desire to find in the evil day, to be rich in good works, and abound in them, and lay up in store a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold of eternal life.

Lastly, Consider that your want of obedience and good works is the cause of all Gods temporal judgements, why God doth stop the bottles of Heaven, and turns the Earth into dust, and parcheth our Corn; we see God hath begun the plague among us in the principal place of the Kingdom; wherefore is all this? see what the Prophet saith, Jer. 3. 3. therefore have the showers been withholden, because you have been wicked; thou hast a whores forehead, and refusest to be ashamed; thy carelessness and barrenness under the means of grace, thy impenitency and hardness of heart, these have caused the showers to be withholden, and have made God to deny the former and latter rain.

Doctrine. The Covenant of grace requires perfect works.

The second point is this, As the Covenant of grace requires works, so it requires perfect works he tells the Church of Sardis that he looks for works, and perfect works, but cannot find them; so that the second Covenant requires perfect works.

Objection.

But you will say, how can that be? Paul himself that was as forward a man, and had as perfect works as any man, yet he confesseth he was not perfect, Phil. 3. 12. so likewise here we know but in part, 1 Cor. 13. 10. perfection is not yet come; in the world to come it may come. Heb. 12. there we read of the spirits of just and perfect men; then men are made perfect, but they are not perfect in this life.

Answer.

I answer, 'tis true, therefore there is a double perfection. First, A perfection of degrees, to be perfectly perfect, and so no man can be perfect by any perfection inherent; indeed the Covenant of works requires this perfection, but the Covenant of grace doth not; indeed when we come to glory, there shall be this perfection, but not in this life; in this life the Lord only subdues our sins, but casts them not into the bottom of the Sea till the life to come; therefore this perfection cannot be looked for upon earth.

There-

Therefore secondly, There is another perfection, and that is a perfection by way of sincerity and uprightness. Job 1. 1. was a perfect and upright man. Now this perfection differs from the other five ways; the perfection God requires in the Gospel from that in the Law.

First, The Law stands upon performances, as well as the will and desire: and a man is not perfect, unless he perform all as well as desire to doe it; but now the perfection of the Gospel is without those performances; indeed a man labours for as many performances as he can, but it may be only by desires, Rom. 7. 18. Paul was perfect by Evangelical Perfection, he was upright before God, yet he could not reach performances; no, he had a will to be good, he did unfeignedly desire to be godly, and serve God in every thing unfeignedly, endeavouring after godly courses, yet could not attain to that which he did desire. So it was with Nehemiah, and all the good people of God, Nehem. 1. 11. O Lord, I beseech thee let now thine ear be attentive to the prayers of thy servants who desire to fear thy name. He could not say that he did perform it, but he did desire it; he could not say he did love, and obey God, and doe his will, but this he would say, he did desire to doe it, and unfeignedly desire it; as Solomon saith, Prov. 21. 21. He that followeth after righteousness and mercy, findeth life. He doth not say, he that reacheth it; he cannot reach it may be; but he that followeth after it shall have life: it is a sign that he hath the life of justification, and that he shall have the life of glory.

The difference between Legal and Evangelical Perfection.

Secondly, The perfection of the Law it stands upon quantities as well as upon qualities in truth; it is not satisfied though a man be never so truly holy and religious, unless man hath quantities, that is so much holy: but now the perfection of the Gospel, indeed he will have as much quantity in a man as can, but yet it will stand with truth, though a man hath not that quantity of humiliation and self-denial, and power against sin, yet if he have it in truth, he is Evangelically perfect in some measure, he is sincere and upright before God; as Solomon saith of his Father, 1 Kings 11. 6. My Father had grace at mercy according as he walked before thee in truth. He doth not say he walked before thee in legal perfection; he was perfectly righteous; but he was truly righteous; he was humble in truth; and holy in truth, and zealous in truth; he had none of all these things to the utmost, yet he walked before thee in truth: So Josh. 24. 14. Fear the Lord, and serve him in sincerity and truth. He doth not say, serve him as if you could doe every thing he commands, but doe it in truth and sincerity. Now sincerity is, when there is no commandement but a man sets himself to doe it; there is no sin but he labours to avoid it; and there is no right manner, but he sets himself to doe it in the right manner to his power; this is the perfection of the Gospel.

Thirdly, The perfection of the Law stands upon full measure; whether a man have power or no, that is nothing to the purpose; the law will have all holiness and righteousness, whether a man hath power or no; But now the perfection of the Gospel by way of sincerity, it looks at what measure God hath given and bestowed, and no more but what God hath given and enabled a man to doe: as you may see the Lord doth not require the gain of ten talents, where he gave but five, nor the gain of five when he gave but two; the widows two mites were accepted and taken for a good and larger gift, because she gave all that she had, Luke 21. 4. as the Apostle speaks, 2 Cor. 8. 12. If there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that a man hath not. The law will have perfection whether a man hath power or no, or else it will damn a man; but in the Gospel a man may say as Peter to the lame man, Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, that give I thee. Lord, such a memory, many, and such parts and gifts have I not; but such as I have, that give I thee; according to that measure of knowledge I have, according to that grace I have, I will give it thee: If a man can say thus, he is accepted, not according to that he hath not, but according to that he hath; as it was in the law of Moses, Levit. 6. 7. A trespasse offering should be a lamb or a kid, but if a man were not able to give that, then two turtle doves, or two young pigeons; If he be not able to give that, he may give two or three handfuls of flowre, Levit. 5. 11. So Levit. 14. 30. Let him give according as he is able, he shall be accepted according to that. This is the perfection of the Gospel, according to the help and assistance God gives a man, and according to the means God affords a man, it shall be accepted.

Fourthly, The perfection of the law admits of no failings; if a man fall, no matter though it be out of infirmity, the law condemns him, the law requires perfection without failings; but the perfection of the Gospel by way of sincerity admits of failings; as the best gold hath his allowance, so it is with a true Christian; he may be sincere and upright though he hath a thousand failings; as it is said of David, 1 King. 15. 5. He did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord in all things, but only in the matter of Uriah. That indeed would not stand with sincerity, his sincerity was not in a sweven then that could not stand with sincerity; if he had gone on to sin in that matter, he could not have been sincere; but in all other things he did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord. You may see he had a thousand failings, yet saith the Text, they all stood with sincerity, he numbred the people, and God was mightily angry with him, and you know how unjust he was in the matter of Zoah and Bathsheeth; you know how he told a lye to Abimelech, and was the occasion of the death of the Priests of the Lord; you know how he committed adultery himself, and he had horrible disorders in his family, and had lost the power of command over his children; were not these horrible failings, and what a company of Wives and Concubines had he? yet all these stood with sincerity, because they were either done out of ignorance, or want of due consideration sometimes, or through humane frailty and infirmity, or through violence of temptation, contrary to his constant course and intendment and purpose; they might all stand with sincerity and an upright heart according to the perfection of the Gospel.

Fifthly, The perfection of the Law makes nothing of repentance; if you break the commandements of God, if you shed tears of blood, and repent your heart out, what cares the law? the law will have perfect obedience, or else to hell you shall. But now in the perfection of the Gospel, repentance is a great matter; nay, if a man be never so vile and wretched, if yet he humble himself before God, and be unfeignedly sorry for sinning against God, this is a great matter; this man is an upright man, that is unfeignedly humbled and abased before God; The sacrifice of God is a broken heart, a broken and contrite heart thou shalt not despise. This is the voyce of the Gospel. So Ezek. 18. 21. If the wicked will turn from all his sins, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die. As it is, Ps. 25. 17, 18. He holds a plain way, and if any said I have sinned, he will forgive me, he suffers me not to go down into the pit. In the Gospel a man is an upright man, if he come before the throne of grace with shame and confusion of face for all his sins, with unfeigned sorrow that he hath broken Gods Covenant; if he hath never so many failings, if he set himself to please God, and when he falls, he repents, and humbles himself before God, this man hath the perfection of the Gospel. Thus we see the meaning of the words, Perfect before God.

Doctrine. Every man ought to labour for perfection.

The point of Doctrine is this, That every man is to labour to be perfect, that is the thing that God will require, and enquire after at the laſt day, whether we be upright. You ſee this, 1 Cor. 5. 7, 8. and ſo likewiſe in other places of Scripture.

The firſt Reaſon is from the nature of God, with whom we have to doe, he is upright; therefore it concerns us to labour to be like him; he himſelfe is an upright God, and there is no unrighteouſneſs in him, his wayes are perfect, and his judgments are truth; therefore if a man be not perfect, he cannot be like him. Mat. 5. 48. Be perfect as your heavenly Father is perfect. we know his ſpirit is the ſpirit of truth, himſelfe is the God of truth, his Son is the way, the truth, and the life, he is the faithful witneſs; and as God is upright, ſo he looks that his ſervants ſhould ſhew what Maſter they ſerve, that they may make it appear that their Maſter is an upright Maſter, Pſalm 92. ult. to ſhew forth that the Lord is upright; This is our duty; God is upright, and Chriſt is upright; and therefore we ſhould follow his ſteps, 1 Pet. 2. 21, 22. Reaſon 1.

Secondly, God hath commanded us to be ſincere; though he remit from the firſt Covenant of abſolute and perfect righteouſneſs and holineſs without ſin, ye he will have his people truly fearing him, and hating ſin, univerſal in obedience, that they ſhall be from the bottome of their hearts followers of him; therefore this ſtung David to the heart when he committed ſin: O thought he, Thou deſireſt truth in the inward parts, Pſal. 51. 6. As who ſhould ſay, thou lookeſt into the heart, thou requireſt truth of thy ſervants; O what a falſe heart have I had in this buſineſſe! God hath many hypocrites in this world, ſuch as they are; but God cares for none, but ſuch as deale faithfully in his Covenant; as Chriſt ſpeaks, John 4. 24.

Thirdly, God knows our hearts; therefore though we ſerve him, and do duties to him; though we call upon his name, hear his Word, come to his Table, obſerve his Sabbaths, keep his Ordinances; yet if we doe not doe theſe things in truth, his eyes are ever upon our boſomes, he caſts his eyes upon the ſecrets of men; if our hearts be rotten, and proud, and vaine, and looſe, and filthy; if our hearts be not of a right frame, all is nothing; if there be any way of wickedneſſe in us, if there be any ſecret ſins, or curſed corruptions that we favour our ſelves in; if there be any falſe way we ſecretly haunt, the Lord ſhall ſearch it out, for the knowes the ſecrets of our hearts; therefore it becomes us to be upright; as he ſaith of Ephraim, Hoſ. 5. 3. I know Ephraim, he is not hid from us. So if we preach never ſo zealouſly, and doe not according to our preaching, the Lord knows it; ſo if we hear never ſo zealouſly, and doe not practice what we hear, he knows it; therefore it concerns us to be upright.

Fourthly, Becauſe the Lord will let down the Covenant no lower. Now God hath been pleaſed to moderate the firſt Covenant, which it was impoſſible for us to keep, and hath brought it down to the Covenant of faith, to believe, and to be ſincere in all our wayes; this God requires, and will let it down no lower. Iſa. 63. 8. the Lord ſaith there, Surely they are my people, children that will not lye; and ſo he was their Saviour. So he requires his people ſhould be children that ſhould not lye, and be baſe-hearted, and deal deceitfully and crookedly in his Covenant; he was their Saviour, ſo they would be children that would not lye. So Eph. 6. 24. Grace be with all them that love Chriſt in ſincerity. There is no man is under the Covenant of grace, unleſſe he be ſincere in all the will of God in Jeſus Chriſt: There are two things the Covenant of grace gives; the one is the forgiveneſſe of ſins, the other is a ſincere heart; if a man hath not theſe two, he is yet in his ſins; as we may ſee, Pſal. 32. 2. Bleſſed is the man, &c.

Fifthly, The Examples of all the Saints in all Ages; all the people of God that ever were upright, to begin with Noah, Gen. 6.9. The text ſaith, he was a juſt and perfect man in his generation. You know it was in a corrupt time, all the Earth had corrupted their wayes; no queſtion a man that was religious in thoſe dayes, he could not chuſe but be ſcorned and derided; but what cared he? he would be a juſt man, and was perfect in his generation; though it were a deviliſh generation, yet he was an upright man, and would not doe as the world did, but he would draw near to God, and walk with him from day to day. So it is ſaid of Job, Job 1.2. That he was an upright and perfect man; though Job lived in a blind corner out of the Church, and ſetting aſide 304, generally the whole Countrey were Heathens and Pagans, and he was as an Owl in the Deſart; yet he would not doe as the world did, but keep himſelf to God. So Luke 1.6. Zachary and Elizabeth were both righteous before God, &c. You know the times were then very bad, and all the devotion that went for currant, was nothing but to be zealous of humane inventions and traditions, and worſhipping God after the imaginations of men; this was the holineſs of the world, yet the Text ſaith this man and his wife would be righteous before God, and walked in all the Ordinances of God blameleſs; not in the Ordinances of the Scribes and Phariſees, but they were righteous before God, and walked in all the Ordinances of God blameleſs.

Uſe 1. Reproof.

Then this may ſerve to reprove theſe dayes, and times, and places of ours where we live; where are hardly any upright people? we may ſay of them as the Prophet Micah ſaid of his time, Micah 7. 2. The good man is periſhed off the earth. As who ſhould ſay, we had a great company of godly and holy people, religious Miniſters, painful in their places, and abundance of private Chriſtians, faithful before the Lord; but now there is hardly an upright man; there are ſo many drunkards and adulterers, ſo many unclean perſons, ſo many covetous; there are ſo many mockers, and enemies to ſincerity, ſo many complementers with God, ſo many ignorant, nay willingly ignorant, though they live under the means of knowledge, ſo many that have a form of godlineſſe, but deny the power thereof, ſo many that are come to the birth, but have no ſtrength to bring forth, they will never come to be godly indeed; there are ſo many that are dead-hearted, and never were quickned by Jeſus Chriſt, nor endued with the life of the ſpirit of grace, that we may ſay as Solomon ſaith, A faithful man who can finde? Prov. 20.6. Many fathers we have among us, but a faithful father who ſhall finde, that doth diſcharge his duty towards his children? many Maſters we may finde; but who carries himſelf towards his ſervants as he ought to doe? ſo we have many in place of Authority, that might ſtand for God, and hinder ſin, and doe ſome good in their places; but a faithful man who ſhall finde, but here one, and there one, rare birds, and they are the offſcouring of the world, and are hated; and mocked and perſecuted: ſo we have a great many that have gotten a great deal of light, God hath awakened their conſciences, and made them ſee their miſerable condition, but a faithful man that doth diſcharge a good conſcience in that place wherein he is, that carries himſelf uprightly under the means of grace, under the Word, under the preaching of it, under Gods Ordinances, ſuch a man where ſhall we finde? as David ſaith, Pſalm 12.1. Help Lord, &c. He had occaſion, through the perſecution of Saul, to travel thorough the moſt of the Towns of Iſrael, and all were ſo looſe and licentious, and carnall, and worldly, and ſerving the times, and pleaſing and humouring the Court; he ſaw the Countrey ſo empty of goodneſs, that he prayeth Help Lord, &c. and as the Lord ſaith, Iſa. 1.21. How is the faithful City become an Harlot? &c. So we may ſay, How is the faithful City become an harlot? a faithful Town, that hath had the Word ſincerely taught, that hath had main walking ſincerely in obedience according to the Word in ſome meaſure, and hath ſet up the power of the Word in their Families; but what is become of them? there was judgement and righteouſneſſe; but now where is it? there was truth, and truth could have abode, but now it can have no admittance: But how may we complain that our faithful Countrey is become an harlot? I doe not ſpeak of Papiſts, and Turks, and Pagans, but of the Church of God; the faithful are diminiſhed from among the ſons of men.

ny

Secondly, This may ſerve to humble the beſt of all Gods children, it may ſerve to aſhame us before God, to think what a deal of corruption is in our hearts; if David might complain of himſelf, how much more may we? Lord, ſaith he, thou doſt require truth in the inward parts, Pſal. 51. 6. As who ſhould ſay, Lord how far am I from it? who would ever have thought that Davids heart ſhould ſo play faſt and looſe, that ever he ſhould ſo abuſe Uriah his faithful ſervant, that ever he ſhould ſo abuſe Bathſheba that good woman, and bring her to ſin? If David himſelf may thus complain, how much more may we complain and loath our ſelves for the deal of rottenneſs that is in our hearts! O what windings and fetches are there! Augu. himſelf ſaith, I can hardly tell when to believe my own heart; ſo I ſay, what a company of windings, and turnings, and tricks, and ſtarting-holes are there in the hearts of Gods people? ſometimes we are ready to think we have the good we have not; and what evaſions have we to put off any good duty, if we have not a minde to doe it? what put offs, what tricks will'p our neck out of the collar if we doe not like it? what a company of ſcalts are in the heart? So what a company of ſlights to doe evil? ſuch a company of blindings, and beſottings, and carnal reaſons; and fooliſh arguments, as if we did well in doing it, whereas it is but the falſeneſs of our hearts? As Mr. Hearn ſaith, It is better for a man to be delivered up to the Devil, then to his own heart. We read of a man delivered up to Satan, as Paul ſaith, and yet we read that that man was brought home again; but we never read of any man brought home that was delivered up to the corruptions of his own heart; therefore if God hath made us ſee the falſeneſſe of our own hearts, and made us humble our ſelves before him for it, and made us to endeavour more and more after ſincerity; what a mercy of God is this? but the people of God have cauſe to complain of the falſeneſs of their hearts. Uſe 2. Humility.

Thirdly, Is it ſo that we muſt be upright, then let this ſerve to exhort us that we would be upright more and more; for this is that which the Lord doth look for and eſpecially look for: What though we ſhould do things never ſo good for the matter, yet if we do them not with an upright heart, all is nothing, though the children of Judah faſted and that for 70. years together, four times in a year they ſought the Lord extraordinarily, yet becauſe they did not ſeek him thoroughly, he did not count it ſincerely done, Zach. 7. 4, 5. As who ſhould ſay, You did not faſt unto me. Doubtleſs they themſelves thought they were very religious; what not only to doe the duties of religion, but to doe extraordinary duties, no queſtion they thought this was very much; yet every one were caſt off, becauſe their hearts were not upright before him. Amaziah, the Text ſaith, did thoſe things that were good in the eyes of the Lord; yet the Text makes this exception againſt him, that it was not with an upright heart, 2 Chron. 25. 2.

Conſider firſt, That God delights only in an upright heart. Prov. 11. 20. They that are of a froward heart are an abomination to the Lord; but thoſe that are upright in their wayes are his delight. Upright Prayer, and upright hearing of the Word, and upright Preaching of it, upright walking in a mans Family, an upright carriage in a mans converſation, when a man carries himhimſelf uprightly in all his wayes, this man is a delight to God, as he ſaith, Iſa.66.2. I can look over heaven and earth, but at him will I look that trembleth at my Word. The prayer of the upright is his delight, Prov. 15. 8. When a man can make faithful pleas to the throne of grace for mercy, faithful pleas that God would pardon him, faithful pleas that God would enable him, and accept him, and he doth not make theſe pleas falſly, but his own heart can ſay, there is no ſin, but he ſets himſelfe againſt it, and there is no commandement but he ſets himſelf to obey it; but the ſacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to him, he cannot abide it; let them pray a thouſand prayers, God abhors their prayers, if they have not upright hearts. So 1 Chron. 29. 17. ſee what David ſaith; as who ſhould ſay, Lord, thou haſt pleaſure in uprightneſs; and then certainly thou haſt ſome pleaſure in me.; for with an upright heart, and in the ſincerity of my ſoule have I ſought thee. Now on the contrary, if a man be not upright before God, if a man have a looſe converſation, and he be not ſincere, the Lord abhors that man.

Secondly, Conſider that this is the totall ſumme of all that God requires in the Covenant of grace, that they ſhould be upright and faithful in his Covenant; as when he made his Covenant with Abraham, *Gen.*17.1. he ſaith, Walk before me, and be upright. This is that God requires, and he would be an Almighty God unto him, and bleſs him, and do him good to all generations. 1 Sam. 12.24. It is the ſaying of Samuel to the people, Only fear the Lord, and walk before him with an upright heart. As who ſhould ſay, this is the onely thing, and God requires no more; if God had required more, he might lawfully have done it; if he had required the fulfilling of the Law to the utmoſt rigour, he might have done it; but this is the onely thing that God doth ſtand upon, that we ſhould be upright before him; he doth not look that we ſhould be Angels upon earth, but that we ſhould be ſincere, and not go a whoring from him wittingly and willingly.

Thirdly, Conſider, The leaſt faith, the leaſt grace and goodneſs, if it be with uprightneſs, is better then all the goodly performances of the whole world; God liked more of the poor womans two mites, then of all the abundance that the Scribes and Phariſees caſt into the Treaſury; And he that gives a cup of cold water to a Prophet, in the name of a Prophet, ſhall not loſe his reward: Therefore you ſhall ſee many poore beggarly things, over thoſe things that other men have done, have been accepted; whereas the building of Hoſpitals and Colledges have been rejected; though a man have but a little knowledge, as many of the Martyrs hardly knew how many Sacraments there were; yet having uprightneſs, died at ſtake; ſo if a man have but a little faith with ſincerity, it ſhall paſs, when a thouſand preſumptuous fools ſhall goe to hell.

Fourthly, Conſider, God will wink at manifold and grievous faults, ſo there be ſincerity and uprightneſs. Aſa his faults were horrible faults, 1 Kings 15.14. yet his heart was perfect: What a company of faults had he? what an horrible failing was this that he ſhould caſt the very Prophet of God into priſon that reproved him? Now God anſwers, he had his failings, and horrible ones; yet he was a good man, for his heart was upright before me. Aſa was not himſelfe in that buſineſſe; Aſa was not Aſa then; his heart was upright with the Lord. So good Jehoſaphat, a man that was grievouſly beſmeared with corruptions and infirmities, and thoſe no ſmall ones; how fearfully did he marry his daughters into a moſt devilliſh Family, as if he had no fear of God before his eyes? he married them to the houſe of Ahab, and another time he helped the enemies of the Lord, and loved them that hated the Lord; I know not how he was hooked in to joyn with Ahab, and goe up to Ramoth-Gilead; and when he had done this, and had humbled himſelfe for this, he did it again, 2 Kings 3.7. And the Reformation he wrought was not thorough, as it ought to have been; yet saith the Text, 2 Chron. 19.3. There are good things in thee, because he was upright, the Lord was pleased to accept him; nay, I will tell you more, look upon the people at the Passover in the dayes of Hezekiah, when a company of people came to Jerusalem to keep the Passover, and came horribly unprepared? the Text saith, they were not prepared according to the law of Moses, which was a grievous thing, yet the Text saith, the Lord heard the prayers of Hezekiah for them, because they prepared their hearts to seek the Lord; they did endeavour to prepare, and be ashamed for their failings and want of preparation; now on the other side, what goodly men doth God reject, not being upright and sincere? in Jehu, what a glorious thing was he? I warrant all the good people of Judah and Israel blessed God that ever he came upon the throne, what to root out Baal, and to destroy all the Idolatrous Priests, and to be zealous in it? come and see my zeal for the Lord; these were admirable things; yet the Lord doth discharge him, and would have none of him, because he was not upright. Look upon the Scribes and Pharisees, the honestest men, and mirrours of their times, that was a Proverb in Israel, that if but two men in the world should go to Heaven, the one should be a Scribe, and the other Pharisee; they were thought to be the holiest men in the world; yet when the Lord saw this was not with an upright heart, he denounceth woe upon woe against them.

formation

Fifthly, Consider, That if we be upright, it will help us to profit by all Gods Ordinances; take the preaching of the word; Micah 2.7. the Prophet brings in the Lord speaking thus, that the word shall do such people good; is there any man in the world that walks uprightly, that my word doth not do good unto, that it doth not comfort his heart, and quicken his soul to obedience? is it not a light unto his feet, and a Lanthorne to his paths; so that an upright man, when he comes to the Ordinances of God, he shall be the better for it; when he goes to prayer, he shall be the better for it; when he comes to the Sacrament, he shall be the better for it; all the Ordinances of God shall do him good; whereas if a man have a false heart, the word hardens him, prayer deads him? if he come to the Sacrament, it is not for the better, but for the worse; if he be reproved for his sins, if he have not a sincere heart, he is so much the worse, it will do him no good, it will make his heart rise up against those that reprove him, and hardens his heart so much the more.

Sixthly, Consider that if we be upright, what a deal of comfort this will be to our hearts; there is no comfort in the world comparable to the comfort of one that hath walked uprightly; as Hezekiah when he had received the sentence of death, what did comfort him? did all his wealth, and greatness and renown comfort him? no, but remember Lord how I have walked before thee with an upright heart; marke what he saith, he doth not say, Remember Lord how I have reformed the Church, and purged the Temple, and thrown out all the abominations in the Land, and purified the Passover, and set the Ordinances of God in his house in due order; no, none of all these comforted his heart, but looke what he did he did with an upright heart, as who should say, I might have done all these things, but if it had not been with an upright heart, it had been nothing; that which I did I did from my heart, with a fear of thy command; I sought thee in it, and no by-ends; all my care was to approve my self before thee; now Lord, remember this; remember the infinite goodnesse and promises that thou hast made to those that are upright before thee. Nay, if thou hast an upright heart, whatsoever troubles come upon the earth, or upon thine own soul, if thou be cast into prison, or made to flie from one Country to another, I tell thee, in the midst of all thy afflictions and troubles, if thou hast that an upright heart, thou shalt have peace and comfort, Psal. 97. 11. In the midst of darkness, in the midst of afflictions there is some light, some comfort, some hold, some comfort for the righteous; on the other side, if a man be not upright, what a woeful case is this man in? nay, though a man be upright, yet if he doe not apprehend himselfe to be so, what a lamentable case is he in? he can have no comfort; all the skilled Physicians in Gilead can hardly fasten comfort upon that man; tell him of all his reformations and prayers, and good duties he hath performed: O saith he, all this is but hypocrisie, I am so dead and dull, God hath not all my heart; tell him of his good desires and purposes, and endeavours, he is afraid he is not righte; tell him of Gods promises to pardon him, he saith, I am not sincere, I am not upright.

Lastly, If we be upright, we shall be blessed our selves, and not only our selves but our very posterity shall be blessed: as the Prophet David saith, Psalm. 112. His seed shall be mighty upon the earth: he speaketh of the upright, not only himselfe shall be blessed, but he layeth up a blessing for the generation that shall come out of his loins; so Prov. 20. 7. his very children are blessed after him; if thou serve thy selfe to serve God uprightly with all thy heart though thou canst not leave thy children any great outward matters, yet thou shalt leave them a blessing from Heaven; thy children shall fare the better for it; if we would know what shall become of our children, and would faine provide for them, let us be upright, and that is the way to lay up a blessing in store for our children: now on the other side, if a man be not upright, he is so farre from treasuring up mercy for his children, that he rather treasures up wrath both for them and his own soule; nay, though a man hath been never such a convert to outward appearance, never so throughly reformed, that all the Country admires at it; as it was the case of Simon Magus, he was a Conjurer, yet this man was converted very much to see too, he was wonderfully reformed, and gave over his Conjuring, and embraced the Gospell, and would follow the Saints, and joyned himselfe to Peter, and to Philip also, when he came to Town; yet having not an upright heart, the Text saith, he had no Lot nor portion in Jesus Christ, nor in the Covenant of grace and mercy, but was in the gall of bitternesse, and in the bond of iniquity.

Use 4. The fourth Use is for examination, To examine our selves whether we be upright or no; and this is a very necessary Use, because those that are not sincere, are most subject to think they are sincere; and they that are sincere indeed, are most afraid they are not sincere.

Signes of uprightnesse. Therefore first, Consider, A sincere man is universall in regard of all the commandements of God, he doth fit himself in all his wayes, to obey God in all his statutes; as we may see, Psal. 119. 6. This is an upright man, that hath respect to all Gods commandements; but a false-hearted man, may be he will do something, he will pick and choose, and take what he likes of the commandments of God; some things he will doe, others he will not doe; he cannot be gotten to stoop to all Gods holy will, he will never yield to that; may be he will not commit adultery, but then he will drink horribly; may be he will not sweare, but then he will lye; if he be good in one thing, he will not be good in another; if he be diligent in his particular calling, he will be negligent in his generall calling; he will not be holy and strict, and one that doth walk in Gods holy Lawes in true upright man doth not deal with the commandements of God as the swine doth with the pease-cods, that will squeeze them, and then leave the husk; but an upright man digests all the commandments of God.

Secondly, An upright man, he is universall in all graces, he is a man of all graces, for why is God said to be the God of all grace? but in respect that

that his people have all graces in them, and he is the Author of all; 2 Cor. 8. 7. the Apoſtle ſaith, therefore as you abound in every grace, &c. As who ſhould ſay, if you be ſincere, for ſo it is in the next verſe, &c. you do not ſhew your ſelves to be ſincere in your love to God and his Church, unleſs you abound in this grace and that grace, and all the graces of Gods holy ſpirit; ſo that a man muſt have all graces that is upright; there muſt be none wanting; he muſt have the whole image of God, he muſt have the whole new cloathing, he muſt be a new creature, he muſt be endued with all the cluſter of graces, Eph. 5. 9. And as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 2 Pet. 1. 5, 6, 7. you may ſee there how all graces are concatenated and linked together, that if a man have one he muſt have all; ſuppoſe a man ſhould have faith, if he ſhould not adde to his faith vertue, what would his faith do him good? he is never the nearer, his faith cannot ſave him, he muſt adde to it vertue; and when a man hath faith, if he have not knowledge, what is zeal without knowledge? the Apoſtle preacheth the doctrine of reprobation againſt the Jews for their zeal, when they had not knowledge; a man cannot be really vertuous, unleſs he hath knowledge, and doth it with wiſedom and diſcretion; now if a man had faith, and all other vertues, and were not temperate, he were a very beaſt; and if a man had all theſe, and had not patience, a man cannot poſſeſs his ſoul; though a man hath faith, yet without patience he cannot inherit the promiſes; ſo that you ſee an upright man is one that hath all graces; ſo that a man that hath not all the graces of Gods ſpirit, if he want one, he hath never a one of them; and thus it is with every man that is not right, though he may have admirable qualities and endowments of Gods bleſſed ſpirit, yet if he have not all, he is not upright; but now an upright man hath all the graces of Gods ſpirit; 'tis true, ſome of Gods children are more eminent in one grace, and ſome in another, but every child of God hath all the graces of Gods ſpirit; if a man want one, he cannot have another.

Thirdly, An upright man is univerſal in regard of place, he is not onely good among good company, but good alſo among bad company; he is good out of the Church, as well as in the Church; and good at home, as well as in the ſtreets, among ſuch and ſuch; he is good abroad, as well as in his own Town; as you may ſee, Pſalm 16. 8. I have alwayes ſet God before mine eyes; an upright man whereſoever he is, he ſets God before his eyes, that he may not provoke him, nor offend him; The upright dwell in his preſence, Pſalm 140. 13. you wil ſay, may be they goe an hundred miles off, but whereſoever they go they dwell in his preſence, and this makes him good in all places, now a rotten-hearted man, may be he will be good in the Church, but leaves his Religion at the Church doore; may be he will be good abroad, but he will neglect his own family; or if he be honeſt and well ordered while he is in his own Pariſh, yet let him go abroad afar off into another Town where no body knows him, may be there he will flie out; you ſhall ſee many a profeſſor, that joyns himſelf to the people of God at home, and will be drunk abroad; theſe are falſe and unſound hearts, that are not good in all places; if they be godly openly, they are not ſo ſecretly; thus it is with wicked and ungodly men, if they come among good people, they will not for ſhame drinke nor ſwill nor ſwear, nor ſpeake againſt goodneſs; but if they be among wicked people, they will ſide with them, and may be gird at the Saints of God, and give them back blows; juſt as it is with water, put it into a Tub, it will have the ſhape of a Tub; put it into a Beaker, it will have the ſhape of a Beaker; it ſtill faſhions it ſelf according to the veſſel into which it is put; but an upright man is like a ſolid thing that keeps its own figure, he is the ſame in all places.

Fourthly, An upright man is univerſal in regard of time, he is good at all times, Pſal. 106. 3. Bleſſed is he that keeps judgement and righteouſneſs at all times; not as though a childe of God may not fall fearfully many times, but it is againſt the abſolute bent of his heart, and care and ſtudy of his ſoul; a Divine ſets it out by a ſpring between a couple of hills, it will alwayes run, it will either run thorough thoſe lets that ſtop it, or elſe it will run over thoſe lets; it cannot ceaſe running if it be a living ſpring; ſo a godly ſincere heart is good at all times; now an unſound Chriſtian, that never had the true grace of life in his heart, he will not be good at all times, he will be good by fits and turns; when he is ſmitten at a Sermon, when he is under the rod, under a croſs, then he will fall foul with his ſins, and when conſcience is up, then he will be good; as a Windmill goeth as long as the wind fills the ſailes; but if the wind be down, the griſt may lie long enough till the wind blow again; but a true Chriſtian is like a good boate-man, if the wind blow he may go the better, but if the wind be down he will goe too, nay, he will labour ſo much the more; he will go though it be againſt wind and tide; ſo it is with an upright man, he is good at all times, not only when he is well, but alſo when he is ſick; he is good in proſperity, and good in adverſity; good when his conſcience is up, and good when his conſcience is not ſo ſtirring; though he wants ſome helps, and drives ſo much the more heavily, yet he ſtrives and will be good; but an ungodly heart, may be he may be good ſometimes, but it will not hold; as it is ſaid of Sigiſmund the Emperour, when he was ſick, then he would be good and godly, and thought of repentance, and ſent for a Confeſſor, and would repent, and asked him Have I not repented? yes ſaith he, if it hold; but a wicked mans repentance will not hold; let God but pluck out the arrow, he will return to his old byas again, and he is never the nearer, nay, may be he is worſe then he was before.

Fifthly, An upright man is univerſal in regard of parts; as Chriſt ſpeaks of his Spouſe, Thou art all fair my love, Cant. 4. 7. She was all fair in all parts, and there was no ſpot in her; he doth not deny but there was failings and weakneſſes, but no ſuch foul ſpots as upon wicked men; ſo a godly man is all fair; his underſtanding that is teachable, and made to ſavour of the truth, and capable to be guided and informed by the ſpirit of God; you know there is rebellion in the underſtandings of men, carnal reaſons, and ſtrong holds, and haughty and proud principles of reaſoning; if they are convinced of a ſin, they will not leave it, they have reaſonings for that ſin; and if they have never ſuch convictions for a duty, there is rebellion in the underſtanding to put off this; but an upright heart, his underſtanding is good in ſome meaſure, he is unfeignedly willing to be inſtructed of God; whatſoever courſe he takes, tell him out of the word of God that it is not good, though his life depends upon it, it ſhall goe, he dares not ſtand out againſt God; but a wicked heart hath not a teachable underſtanding, it is ſtill under its ſtubbornneſs and ſtoutneſs, and reaſoning againſt God; and things he doth not like, he will not ſee; when there is any ſin he would not leave, or any duty he would not doe, as Chriſt ſaith, Mat. 13. 15. he ſhuts his eyes, and will not ſee. What wicked man that lives under the Goſpel of God, but may ſee his courſes are naught, but he will not ſee it? how many ſins do ungodly men keep? there is light enough, and reaſon enough againſt their ſinnes, but they have ſturdy mindes, and will not be convinced of it.

Again, An upright man his heart is converted and made godly, his will is made pliable to be led by God, and guided by Gods bleſſed ſpirit: the ſtone is taken out of it; there may be much hardneſs, but the ſtone is gone, the heart of ſtone is gone, and he hath an heart of fleſh given unto him, to be ſenſible of God, and ſenſible of his word, and ſenſible of the light that ſhines in his face; and his heart being converted, he is moved by an inward principle, and ſo moves the more willingly, and the more freely; as David ſaith, 1 Chron. 28. 9. He hath a willing heart. But now a carnal heart, and a heart that is not turned to God, the ſtone is not taken out, a man rebels to this day; if he be moved to goodneſſe, it is not by an inward principle, but by education or goodneſſe of nature; or by the ſtings of conſcience that overpower his heart; or by reaſon of a great light that breaks in and overawes his heart: Therefore a naughty heart, be he never ſo good and faircarriaged, may be his conſcience ſometimes makes him forbear more then he would, and makes him doe more good then he would; but a godly heart is willing to doe what good he can, nay he would doe more good then he can doe, nay he never can doe ſo much as he would, he is aſhamed of all his works; look what he doth, he doth it with a willing heart.

and

Again, A godly heart is good in his memory, as David ſaith, Pſalm 119. 16. I will never forget thy precepts. His memory is turned to good things, and made to remember good things; he hideth the word of God in his heart, that he may not ſin againſt him: But a carnal heart forgets to be good, and zealous, and pleaſe God, and obey God; his memory is not waſhed and ſanctified in any meaſure.

Again, A good man is good in his thoughts; he doth not onely purge the outſide of the platter, but the inſide alſo; he labours to have his thoughts ſet upon things above; he labours that vain thoughts may not lodge in him; nay his main care is within doors, in his own boſome, to have his thoughts upright towards God.

So again, he is good in his affections, he doth hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs, he doth deſire the things that are moſt excellent, he doth delight in God and his preſence; he mourns for his ſins, and mourns that he can mourn no more; he hath all his affections in ſome meaſure rightly ſeated and qualified; he is good all over, as the Apoſtle Paul ſaith, 1 Theſ. 5. 23. The God of peace ſanctifie you throughout. As who ſhould ſay, This is ſincerity, and I pray God give it you, that you may not deceive your own ſouls, but that your whole ſpirit and body, and ſoule, and whole man may be true in the eyes of the Lord: But now a carnal heart is not thus; though he be like a whited Sepulchre, he doth ſeem outwardly to be a good man, and a man cannot check him; if a man ſhould ſay, ſuch a one is rotten, he ſhould be thought to be cenſorious and uncharitable; yet in his inward parts he is naught; if a man be not upright, he doth not look to his thoughts, but can let them be vaine and unfruitfull, and can let his affections run at randome; he is not affected with God, he doth not mourn for his ſins, he doth not delight in good things, his affections are not ſet upon things that are above.

Sixthly, An upright man is univerſal in regard of caſes and conditions, if he be under any kinde of temptation whatſoever, as we may ſee, James 1. 12. It is nothing for a man to be godly, and meek, and patient, and vertuous, when he is not tempted; the Devil himſelfe is good when he is pleaſed, as we ſay: This is godlineſſe and uprightneſſe, when a man reſiſts temptations, when a man doth watch and pray, and is careful that he may not enter into temptations; when a man is careful of all the objects, and beginnings, and occaſions of ſin; when a man fights againſt the temptations of the fleſh, and warres againſt the ſuggeſtions of Satan, and puts on all the armour of God, to withſtand the fiery darts of the Devil; though he be tempted to be proud, and wrathful, and impatient, yet he will not; 'tis true, now and then he may be overcome againſt his principles, and care, and labour, but that is as a dagger to his heart. This is his courſe and practiſe to fight againſt temptations: nay take him in the deſperateſt caſes, yet a godly man is ſincere; take him when he is moſt afraid that he is not ſincere, when he cries out, how daſtardly am I for God? how dead in good duties? how full of unbelief? what a vile heart have I? how filthy and untoward? take him in theſe deſperate fits, he is not without ſincerity; and in this caſe he doth one of theſe two things; either he walks according to the meaſure of grace given unto him, or elſe according to the condition wherein he is; 'tis true, the conditions Gods people are in, are ſometimes better, and ſometimes worſe; ſometimes horrible diſtempers are up, and ſometimes they are down; but when they are never ſo up, he doth as a man in that caſe may doe; as a man when he is bound hand and foot, what can he doe? if he rowle himſelfe upon the ground, that is all he can doe; and this he will doe, as you may ſee what David ſaith, Pſalm 119. 40. It ſeems he felt himſelf marvellouſly dead, and dull, and wonderfully inobedient, and he could not get hold of Gods commandements to doe them as he ought; yet he rowls himſelfe, and thruſts himſelfe forward to doe them; he longed for Gods commandements, he longed for the ſpirit of grace to aſſiſt him and quicken his heart. Now a naughty heart is not good in all caſes; nay there are but a few caſes wherein he is good at all.

Again, Take an upright man in the loweſt ebb, he doth queſtion his ſincerity, and he cannot quiet himſelfe, becauſe he thinks he hath it not; but this is certain, a man that hath moſt ſincerity, doth moſt ſuſpect the want of it; that man is moſt eager, and moſt queſtions himſelfe; as David, was not he an upright man? yet no man did ſuſpect himſelfe more, Pſalm 119. 80. as who ſhould ſay, Lord I am afraid I ſhall be aſhamed in the end, I am afraid my heart is not ſound towards thee; and directly ſometimes, I am horribly afraid I ſhall be confounded in the end: Now good Lord let me be ſound in thy ſtatutes, that I may not be confounded. So it was with Chriſts Diſciples, when he ſaid one of them ſhould betray him; though eleven of his Diſciples were privy to themſelves that they had not the leaſt thought to betray him, yet eleven of the Diſciples did ſuſpect themſelves, I may be the man that he means; though they were privy to themſelves for the preſent they had no ſuch thought, nay it was againſt the love and principles they had in them; they did love him, and fear him, and believe in him to be the Saviour of the world, and they durſt not doe it, yet they ſuſpected themſelves, Maſter, is it I? As who ſhould ſay, I have a baſe corrupt heart, and it may be I for all the goodneſſe that is in me and the love I bear to thee; they were all more unquiet then Judas that was the man: indeed when all queſtioned it, he would queſtion it alſo for company.

Seventhly, an upright man is univerſal in regard of relations. Conſider him with good people, and the Saints of God, O how he loves them! he honours them that fear the Lord, Pſal. 15. 4. Though they be never ſo poor and vile, yet he honours them that fear the Lord; as Eliſha ſaith, he would not have ſpoken, but onely for Jehoſaphat; ſo an upright man he honours the Saints of God. All my delight is in the Saints, ſaith David, Pſal. 16. Pſal. 119. 63. Nay an upright man is faithful with the Saints; as it is ſaid of good Judah, ſhe was faithful with the Saints, Hoſ. 11. 12. So an upright man is faithful with the Saints, his heart cloſeth with them, they are his boſome friends, and the beloved of his ſoule: But one that is not ſound, though he take himſelf to be a Chriſtian, and one of Gods ſervants, yet he cares not for the people of God; may be he cares for thoſe that ſeem to be religious; but if a man be religious indeed, he cares not for him, he is too nice and preciſe for him, and he is falſe to the Saints, and will ſhew them ſome ſlippery trick in the end.

too

Now again, Conſider an upright man with the wicked; he carries himſelfe uprightly towards them, he will not be acquainted with them, nor all one with them, leſt he ſhould countenance their wicked wayes; as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, He deſpiſeth them that are wicked, Pſal. 15. 4. Let a vile man be never ſo brave, and excellent, and noble, and high in preferment; yet if he be a wicked man, in the eyes of a godly man he is deſpiſed; I doe not mean for his perſon; he gives him the honour due to his place, as he ought to doe, a childe to his Father, a ſervant to his Maſter, &c. as Paul, Acts 24. 1. Though they perſecuted him, he gave them their due; but he abhors their courſes and practiſes, as Solomon ſaith, A wicked man is an abomination to the juſt. Now an unſound heart, though he joyn himſelfe to the people of God, yet he cannot cloſe with the Saints of God, but abhors them, and counts them vile.

Again, Conſider an upright man with his friends; he is true to them, eſpecially to their ſouls. Conſider him with his enemies; he doth not yield them railing for railing, he dares not hate them that hate him, but bleſſeth them that curſe him, and prayes for them that deſpitefully uſe him. Conſider him in his Family; he ſets himſelfe to walk uprightly in the midſt of his houſe; if he be a Maſter, he labours to be a ſervant to Chriſt; and if he be a ſervant, he labours to be the Lords Freeman, and to be a profitable ſervant to his Maſter; if he hath Superiours, he gives them the reverence due unto them; and if he deal with inferiours, he makes himſelfe equall with thoſe of low degree. Thus an upright man is good in all relations.

Laſtly, An upright man is good in all the manners and circumſtances of his actions; he is careful to doe, not onely for matter what God commands him, but for the manner as God commands him; though he doth what God commands, yet if he doth not find the love of God ſetting him awork, he is not contented; he muſt [illegible] in a right manner, conſtantly, duely, faithfully, and to a right end, to the glory of God; he is not content to pray and hear, but he muſt pray and hear in a right manner, or elſe he is not content. Now if thou haſt theſe ſigns and tokens of an upright heart, bleſſed be God, thou mayſt take all the comforts ſpoken of before concerning an upright heart, and mayſt take all the promiſes of God to thy ſelf that are made to an upright heart; may be men may call thee hypocrite, and ſay all manner of evil of thee; but either they are ſuch as doe not know thee, or if they doe, they are ſome vile wretches, they have not the fear of God before their eyes; may be the Devil will accuſe thee, and caſt in all accuſations againſt thee before God; but what of all that? God himſelfe ſaid Job was an upright man, and yet the Devil accuſed him for an hypocrite; therefore care not for the Devils accuſations; may be thine own conſcience may accuſe thee; but if thou labour to humble thy ſelf for thy failings, and ſtir up the gift of God that is in thee, if thou unfeignedly deſire and endeavour to pleaſe God, and ſerve him, no matter though thy conſcience accuſe thee. 1 Cor. 4. 3. Paul ſaith, I cannot be my own Judge, but God ſhall judge me. 'Tis true, conſcience is a judge, but it is ſubordinate, and muſt be guided and ruled by the Word of God; as the clock is the judge of the day, but it muſt be ruled by the Sun; Davids conſcience was his judge, I have cleanſed my hands in vain, but the clock lyed; ſo thy conſcience may lye, and accuſe thee falſly, and ſpeak things againſt thee that are not ſo; but if thy conſcience hath things againſt thee indeed and in truth, that thou art guilty of ſuch and ſuch ſins and failings, yet it doth not follow but thou mayſt be ſincere; therefore believe not conſcience, when thou haſt haſt the Word of God on thy ſide; nay, may be God himſelfe will ſeem to accuſe thee, and to be thine enemy, and diſcountenance thee, and will not own thee for one of his children; when thou commeſt before him, he will ſeem to daſh thee under his feet, and give thee no countenance, but look upon thee as an enemy; yet be not diſmayed, if thou haſt theſe things in thee in any meaſure; the Lord doth this, that he may doe thee good in thy latter end; he doth it that he may humble thee, and try thee, whether thou wilt live by faith or by ſenſe, and whether thou dareſt truſt him; but if thou haſt not theſe ſigns of uprightneſs, thou art in the gall of bitterneſſe, and bond of iniquity, and thou canſt have no true comfort to thine own ſoul.

Doctrine. We muſt labour to be perfect before God.

The next point is, That as we muſt be perfect, ſo we muſt be perfect before God; I have not found thy works perfect before God. As who ſhould ſay, I lookt thou ſhouldſt be perfect before him, and I have not found it ſo. Well then for the meaning of the word perfect before God; that is, ſo as God may approve and allow of them. Now a mans works may be perfect ſo as God may approve of them two wayes.

Firſt, So as God may approve of them in his ſtrict Juſtice; and ſo no mans works can be perfect. Pſal. 143.2. Enter not into judgement, &c. No man living can be juſtified before God. So Rom. 3.20. By the deeds of the Law ſhall no man be juſtified before him. This therefore is not the meaning.

Secondly, To be perfect before God, ſo as God ſhall approve of us in his mercy in Jeſus Chriſt for his owne faithful people; as it is ſaid of Zachary and Elizabeth, Luke 1.5. This is the meaning of the place.

Now if you would know what it is to be perfect before God, it is this in one word: when a man is for matter and for manner right in the eyes of God; not only right in the eyes of men, to be ap[illegible]ved of men, but right in the eyes of God, to be approved of God; for matter, [illegible]n a man doth thoſe things that God commands him; and for manner, [illegible]n he doth them as God commands him, out of faith in God, and love to God, and fear of God; when a man doth it with all his heart, ſoule, and ſtrength, when a man doth it conſtantly, and frequently, and livelily in ſome meaſure, this is to be upright before God; you may ſee both theſe ſet down in one verſe, Deut. 6.25. Here is the matter, If ye obſerve to doe his commandements; and then here is the manner, right in the eyes of the Lord as he hath commanded. If we doe thus, then we are upright before God. Now if either of theſe be wanting, we are not upright before God; if we doe not for matter what God hath commanded; if we lye, or ſwear, or be covetous, or proud, or worldly, theſe things are of the Devil, and not of God; we doe the things of the Devil, and not the things of God.

Again, If a man ſhould bow the knee to Baal, and doe the inventions of men, this is not to be unright before God; but if we doe the things that God doth not bid us, God will ſay as he did, Matth. 15.9. If we doe for the matter the things that God hath commanded, yet if the manner be wanting, if we doe them not as God hath commanded, if we doe them not with faith, and love to God, with conſcience, and fervency, and quickning, all is nothing; as it is ſaid of Amaziah, he did thoſe things that were right in the eyes of the Lord, but the Lord cared not for it, 2 Chron. 25.2. it was not with an upright heart; Therefore when both theſe concur, this is to be upright before God.

Reaſon. 2. Firſt, Becauſe God hath ſo commanded, thou ſhalt have no other gods before me; that is, I will have thee ſincere before me; As who ſhould ſay, thou mayſt vow and ſwear, and proteſt thou doſt love God, and fear God; but but if it be not ſo indeed, thou haſt a falſe heart; if thou haſt carnal ends, if thou loveſt the world more then God, and thou loveſt thy luſts more then him, if it be ſo, woe unto thee; God will have thee upright before him. As God ſaith to Abraham, Gen. 17. 1. Walke before me, and be upright; As who ſhould ſay, Abraham, if there be any way of wickedneſs in thee, thou art not for me; look thou be perfect before me; if thou doſt acknowledge that I am God Almighty, and I am able to help thee, and ſuccour thee in all eſtates, then be upright before me; when a man ſins, it is for ſomething he ſins; now, what is there that is good but we may have it in God? God is Almighty, and therefore he would have us upright before him; and if we be not upright, he is Almighty and can cruſh us and deſtroy us for ever; ſo that we ſhould not only be upright before men, but before God.

Secondly, As the Law is ſo, ſo is the Goſpel; if a man hath not faith in Chriſt Jeſus, that man is no true Chriſtian; howſoever he may hope to be ſaved by Chriſt, yet if he be not upright before God in all his wayes and commandements in ſome meaſure, in ſtudying and endeavouring to keep himſelf unſpotted of the world in all things, he hath not faith, he doth not believe in Jeſus Chriſt, Pſal. 116. 9, 10. as David ſaith, I will walke before the Lord in the land of the living; how comes David to ſpeak that? O, I believed, therefore I have ſpoken; if a man believe in God, it will make him walke well not only before men, but before God who is privy to all his thoughts and affections; privy to what he doth both at home, and abroad; privy to what he doth alone, and in company, in his ſhop, and in the market; unleſs he be upright before him that knows all things, he is not a believer; though Simon Magus were baptized, and did partake of Chriſtian Religion, and had ſome kinde of faith, and joyned himſelfe to Philip and the Church, as a member of the Church, and gave over his witchcraft and wicked courſes, yet when Peter ſaw his heart was not right before God, marke what he ſaith, Acts 8. 21. God hath ſworne an oath, that whomſoever he delivers from ſin, from Satan, from Hell, from the wrath to come, they ſhall be holy and righteous before him. Luke 1. 73. God will not be forſworne; if thou doſt hope to be ſaved by Jeſus Chriſt, and prayeſt, and howleſt, and crieſt in thy afflictions from the bottom of thy heart, with all thy eagerneſs to be ſaved by Jeſus Chriſt, God hath ſworne an oath thou ſhalt not be ſaved by him, unleſs thou wilt walk in holineſs and righteouſneſs before him all the dayes of thy life, and be conformable to his will in all things; ſo that you ſee the Goſpel requires it, that we ſhould be thus.

Again, This is the end of the redemption of the world by Chriſt, that they ſtould not only be upright, but upright before God; as Paul tells the Coloſſians, chap. 1. To preſent you holy and unblameable in his ſight; not only to preſent you holy and unblameable before men; for if a man in his outward carriage be civil, and honeſt and faire, this is to be holy and unblamable before men; but if a man be holy and unblamable before God, he muſt have a pure conſcience, and his ends muſt be right; this is the end why Chriſt redeemed his people, to purchaſe to himſelf a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

And as it is in the end of redemption, ſo it is the end of election; whomſoever God doth elect to eternal life, he doth elect to this end, not only to be holy before men, but before God. As the Apoſtle ſaith, Eph. 1. 4. he hath choſen us to be holy before him, not only to be holy before men (though thoſe that are not holy before men, cannot be holy before God) but it is not enough for us to be holy before men, but before the piercing eye of the all-ſeeing God; that he may ſee who knoweth our hearts, that we do unfeignedly deſire to ſerve his name, and walk before him in the ſhunning of all ſin, and in the practicing of all good things; ſo that we have not an argument of our election, unleſſe we be upright before him.

argument

Fourthly, Becauſe the Lord will ſearch us out; certainly though we be upright before men, if we be not upright before God he will ſearch us out; it is not our profeſſion ſhall bear us out, if we have an unbelieving heart, to depart from the living God; if we have a minde to live in any one ſin, and to allow our ſelves in any one wicked way, God will finde us out. Neh. 9. 8. he ſpeaks there of Abraham; what a comfort was it to Abrahams heart that God found his heart upright before him? God will ſearch us, and put us upon the trial, and bring ſomething or other, that if we be not upright, though we be affected, and pray, and be Proteſtants, and ſeem to be godly, and ſeem to hold our godlineſs and uprightneſs, yet if we be not ſound at the core, God will have ſomething or other that ſhall diſcover us, and it ſhall appear what we are; nay, God doth of purpoſe bring in hereſies, that thoſe that are approved may be manifeſt, 1 Cor. 11. 19.

Laſtly, It is God only that doth eſteem of the worth of things; holineſs is nothing, but that which is holineſs in Gods eſteem; and Religion is nothing, but that which is Religion in Gods eſteem; Religion is a divine thing, and no man hath the judgement of it but God; It is God only that hath invented Religion, and framed it to us, and it is he only that can tell the worth of it, and approve of it; and unleſs we fear his name, and hate all ſin, and be upright before him, all is nothing. As the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Pet. 3. 4. concerning meekneſs in women, in the eſteem of God it is of high price; may be a beautiful woman, of rare parts and great gifts, this woman is of high eſteem with ſome men; but a woman of an humble and meek ſpirit, ſhe is a mockery in the eyes of the world, but in Gods ſight it is of great price: ſo for a man to be outwardly Religious, this man is very devout and religious in the ſight of men, but it is the broken heart, and the contrite ſpirit, one that is holy inwardly as well as outwardly, that is upright as Paul ſaith, 2 Cor. 5. 9. all our care and labour is that we may be accepted of him; it is no matter what the world ſay of a religious man, and a devout man; all our care is to be accepted of him, that he may account us upright, for we muſt appear before him.

Uſe 1. This condemns the ceremonious devotion that many content themſelves with, eſpecially the Church of Rome; they are ſo religious, and whatſoever they do, they think it is with ſuch devotion; therefore they have ceremonies for every thing; they have ceremonies to ſhew that we muſt be ſtrangers and Pilgrims upon earth, therefore they have Pilgrimages to ſuch and ſuch places; other ceremonies they have to ſhew that we muſt take up the Croſſe of Chriſt, and follow him; they will have a ceremony to ſhew that they believe that Chriſt was offered for a ſacrifice; and a ceremony to ſhew that they believe he was God and man, and ſo mixe Wine and water together; the one ſhall ſignifie that they believe he was God, and the other that he was man; again, they will have other ceremonies, to ſhew that they believe the departure of the Saints, therefore they bring in a catalogue of the Virgin Mary, and of the Saints; again, they have another ceremony to ſhew that they honour the Lords prayer; another ceremony they have to ſhew that they believe the reſurrection of the dead; another ceremony to ſhew that they ſhould not be aſhamed of the Chriſtian faith; and they are ſo devout and think themſelves the only Saints in the world. ſo that they account a man that is godly indeed, according as God would have a man to be, that makes conſcience of the word, that is careful to pleaſe God, and fearful to offend him, and ſcruples every thing that is not according to the word, this man is worſe then a drunkard, or an hell-hound in their account; they are counted the vileſt hypocrites and diſſemblers that can be; what an horrible thing is this! men love alife ſuch a Religion as this; this ſhakes no

Corn,

Corn, this breaks no bones, what care men for this. *Mat.*15. 8. there is an excellent place for this; you know we are bound to be pure, and alwayes pure; now the Jews to ſhew this, they would never eat nor drink but they would waſh their hands, to ſhew that they muſt be pure: which was as good, and as clean, and as handſome a ceremony as ever was in the Church of Rome; and would you think that Chriſt ſhould ever finde fault with ſuch ceremonies? they took on becauſe they neglected this, Why do thy Diſciples tranſgreſs the tradition of the Elders, by eating with unwaſhed hands? now Chriſt was ſo far from bidding his Diſciples yield to this, that he calls the Scribes and Phariſees hypocrites for it, and tells them they made the commandment of God of no effect through their traditions; If this were to be devout and religious, the vileſt drunkard may be religious, for they may perform this as well as any other, therefore this is nothing.

Again, This may ſerve to condemn carnal Proteſtants, who give God now and then the hearing of a Sermon, and frequent the Sacrament, and do the outward things of Religion, but never come to worſhip God in ſpirit and in truth; let me tell you all this Religion is nothing at all; ſuppoſe a man comes to Church only, and lives in his luſts, what then? *Who required this at your hands to tread in my courts? Iſa.*1.12. Who? why God requires it; 'tis true, but not without uprightneſs; to be proud ſtill, and worldly ſtill, he requires you to come into his courts, but not in this manner; ſo likewiſe for preaching, it is an ordinance of God, but if a man will preach, and doth not lead an holy and mortified life, and is not zealous for God and againſt ſin, and to hold forth a bleſſed pattern of uprightneſs, God had as live have that mans room as his company, *Pſal.*50. 16, What haſt thou to do to take my word into thy mouth, and hateſt to be reformed? As who ſhould ſay, what makeſt thou here? it is fitter for thee to be in an Alehouſe then in a Pulpit; ſo God hath commanded prayer, but if a man pray not in ſpirit and in truth, and is not an holy man, his prayers are nothing. *Prov.*15. 8. The prayer of the wicked is an abomination to God; As who ſhould ſay, if you prayed with an upright heart, your ſacrifice would be a delight to God; but ſeeing you are not upright, all your prayers and ſacrifices are abominable in the ſight of God.

For humiliation to humble us; how ſhould we be aſhamed, there is no uprightneſs among us? the moſt of us are not upright before men, much leſs before God.

For exhortation, that we would ſtrive and labour to be upright, and upright before him; that we would cry out with the Prophet David, O let my heart be upright before thee, that I may not be aſhamed; if we find liſtleſſneſſe, and backwardneſs for God, if we find our hearts ſide with the ungodly, let us know we are wicked people, and cannot be of God; therefore let us labour to be upright before God.

Rev. 3. 2.

I Have not found thy works perfect before God.

Doctrine. God will search whither we be perfect.

THe point of Doctrine is this, that the Lord will search whither those that seem to be upright be so or no; finding presupposed searching, I have not found thy works perfect. Now for the meaning of this searching, we must know that Gods searching and mans searching do much differ, and they differ in five respects.

First, Mans searching may be without finding; though a man search all that ever he can, yet may be he cannot finde out the matter how it stands; Laban searched in Jacobs tent, and Leahs tent, and the two maids tent, and in Rachels tent for his images, and when he had done all he could not tell where they were; but now when God searcheth men, he is sure to find men out; O Lord thou searchest me out, saith David, Psal. 139. 1. This is the reason why men that are sligh and subtill, they care not much though they be tried by men, especially if there be none to witness against them; you shall have them swear and swagger they were never guilty of such a thing, because they are confident it shall never come to light; but if God searcheth, he will be sure to find.

Secondly, Mans searching hath ever ignorance foregoing, though after search may be he comes to know, yet before searching he knows not; Job. 29. 16. the cause I knew not, I searched out; he searched because he knew not, but God as after searching he is sure to know and find out, so he knows before all searching; as the Church saith, if we be false in thy covenant, shall not God finde us out? for thou knowest the very thoughts of the heart and the reins, Psal. 44. 21. you see God searcheth because he doth know, man because he doth not.

Thirdly, Mans searching is properly so called; but when searching is spoken of God, it is after the manner of men; God doth rather act a kind of searching, then search indeed; as he doth act a comming down, whereas properly he doth not come down, for he is everywhere; and so he acts a kinde of ignorance, as if he knew not, and yet he knows all things; as he speaks to Abraham concerning Sodom, Gen. 18. 21. I will goe down now; there is an horrible noyse, what horrible sinners these Sodomites be; I will go down now, and see whither it be altogether according to the cry that is come up unto me; if not, I will know: He speaks after the manner of men; he need not come down, for he is present everywhere, and cannot move from one place to another; and whereas he saith, if not, I will know; these things are improperly spoken after the manner of men.

Fourthly, It is mans duty to search if he know not any particular passage of his life, whither it be warrantable or no; so Magistrates ought to search matters before they determine sentence, otherwise they may judge unrighteous judgement; now God searcheth not as though he had any need of searching, but to tell us our duty, to give us a good example; this phrase is given to him, to shew us what we should do; as when there was an horrible attempt in the old world among the Builders of Babel, they would build a Tower whoſe top ſhould reach up unto Heaven. Now the Text ſaith, The Lord came down to ſee the Tower and the City that was built; not as if he came down, ſo as taking this phraſe unto himſelfe; but to ſhew what our duty, and Magiſtrates duty is; to ſearch before they paſs ſentence, and to ſee whether reports given out be true or no.

in

Fifthly, Mans ſearching is for himſelfe, that things may appear to himſelfe: but when God ſearcheth, it is not that it may appear unto him, but to the world, that it may be manifeſt abroad, that a mans ſelfe and others may ſee it; it is ſpoken onely in regard of the nature of the thing; ſome things are manifeſt, and ſome ſecret. Now God is ſaid to ſearch, when he makes other things that in their own nature are hidden to men, when God brings them abroad, and unveils them, and unmasks them, and openly reveals them. 1 Cor. 4.5. Judge not before the time, till the Lord comes, who will bring to light the hidden things of darkneſs. He ſearcheth them not for himſelfe, but to make them manifeſt; he ſaw them before, but they were not manifeſt abroad; they were under the hatches, no body could tell whether they were ſo or no. Now God is ſaid to ſearch to bring them abroad.

Now God is ſaid to ſearch five manner of wayes.

Firſt, By his own Spirit, 1 Cor. 2.10. So ſaith David, Whither ſhall I fly from thy Spirit? if I goe up into heaven, thou art there, &c. If thou ſhouldſt goe into the Alehouſe, or any bad place, God is there a ſpectator; though the Devil onely, and ſuch as are his Imps, are there keeping company with thee, yet God is there beholding thee; though we ſhould dig never ſo deep, God can trace us, and finde us out; though we ſhould be never ſo cloſely and cleverly wicked, God can dive into us what we are; Come in thou wife of Jeroboam, ſaith the Prophet, why diſſembleſt thou thy ſelfe to be another? The Spirit of God revealed it. When Gehezai wiped his lips, O thy ſervant went no whither; Did not my ſpirit goe with thee, ſaith Eliſha, when the man returned? He ſhewes how the Spirit of God, which he calls his ſpirit, becauſe it dwelt in him, did reveal his wretchedneſs.

Secondly, As the Lord ſearcheth by his own Spirit, ſo alſo by the ſpirit of man; as for example, by the ſpirit of the Magiſtrate, he doth ſearch out ſly offenders; when Solomon had ſaid, The King doth ſcatter the wicked, Prov. 20. 27. in the next words he anſwers an Objection, How ſhall he finde out whether ſuch a man be wicked or no? A man may be brought before a Magiſtrate, and yet have all the hands in the Pariſh for his good behaviour: Now how ſhall the Magiſtrate finde it out? ſaith he, The ſpirit of man is the candle of the Lord; that is, as Tremelius expounds it, the Lord helps the Magiſtrate to finde out theſe fellows, though they be never ſo ſubtle; and how doth he help him? by the Magiſtrates own wit and wiſedome; it is the candle of the Lord, the Lord gives him light to ſift things, and bring things to light; and though wicked and ungodly men hang together, though they ſwear and combine themſelves hand in hand together, yet if a Magiſtrate be an able man, and gifted of the Lord, the Lord hath ſet a candle in that mans minde, to light him how to diſcover them: As when the two Harlots came before Solomon, the ſpirit of Solomon was the candle of the Lord that lighted him to diſcover which was the mother of the childe.

Thirdly, God doth ſearch a man by the conſcience in a man himſelfe; ſometimes you ſhall have a childe of God much afraid that he is not ſincere, and calls all into queſtion; anon the Lord diſcovers he is ſincere, and reveals he is upright; how doth he doe it? by his own conſcience; as the caſe was Davids; one time he concluded all was naught, and he had nothing of God in him, and God was gone quite away, and had ſhut up his mercy for evermore; at laſt God revealed David to himſelfe, and that by his own conſcience; My own ſpirit ſearched, ſaith he, Pſal. 77. 6. and then he ſaw that it was but his infirmity; his own ſpirit and conſcience, the Lord ſtirred it up to make diligent ſearch, and David perceived himſelfe to be as he was; ſo on the contrary a wicked man may ſeem to have good hopes to be godly, and to have an honeſt & ſincere heart, and be a good Chriſtian, and he profeſſeth himſelfe to be ſo; and if any one ſhould charge him with the contrary, he would ſay they were uncharitable. Now this is a ſecret. Now the Lord ſearcheth him out by his own conſcience; thus it was with Pharaoh; he thought he did well in not letting the children of Iſrael goe, nay he thought Moſes was unreaſonable to demand ſuch a thing; what, to let ſix hundred thouſand of his ſervants to goe out of his Kingdome at once! there was no equity he ſhould let them goe. Now the Lord diſcovered this was nothing but the wretchedneſſe of his own heart, and made his conſcience cry out, The Lord is righteous, and I and my people are wicked. Rightly doth he call for it at my hands, and rightly doth he puniſh me for not doing of it, and I am a wicked man, and have done it out of the wickedneſs of my heart.

Fourthly, The Lord ſearcheth men out by his Word; he doth thereby diſcover men to be what they are, Heb. 4. 12. The Word of God is quick and powerful, ſharper then a two-edged ſword, &c. and is a ſearcher and diſcerner of the thoughts and intentions of the hearts; the Word of God doth ſearch and diſcover men; though they be never ſo ſecretly covered, yet notwithſtanding the Word of the Lord finds them out; as you may ſee it diſcovered the woman of Samaria; it made her give over all her wrangling and diſputing the caſe with Chriſt; it made her cry out at the laſt, O come and ſee a man that hath told me all that ever I have done, John 4. 29. So the Apoſtle when he would exhort the Corinthians to expound the word in a known tongue, he gives this reaſon; O ſaith he, if you doe thus, it will diſcover people; if a man ſhould come in, he will be judged by you, and the thoughts of his heart will be made manifeſt, 1 Cor. 14. 24. The Word of God is a divine thing, and it is a plain ſign that it is the word of an all-ſearching God; for it can meet with mens thoughts, and mens ſecrets. When King Ahaſuerus ſaid, What ſhall be done to the man whom the King delighteth to honour? what man living could tell what Haman thought at that time? yet the Word of God revealed the thought of his heart, Heſt. 6. 6. When David was dancing before the Ark, and Michal looked out at the window, what man could tell what ſhe thought in her heart? yet the Word of God ſets it down, She deſpiſed him in her heart, 2 Sam. 6. 16. When Felix was talking privately with St. Paul friendly and kindly, what man or Angel could imagine what Felix thought at that time? yet the Word of the Lord layes it open, He thought to have a bribe: You will ſay, who could tell that 'tis true? men know not peoples hearts; yet many times the Word meets with them, inſomuch that they are ready to ſay ſometimes, who told the Miniſter of me? certainly he hath ſome blab, how ſhould he come to know this, and ſpeak of this in the Pulpit? the Word of God meets with them.

Fifthly, the Lord ſearcheth men by his providence; though men carry it out never ſo handſomely and fairly, and can goe in the dark, and under the hatches for a long time; yet the providence of God will have a time to finde them out, as Job ſpeaks, Job 12. 22. He diſcovereth the deep things out of darkneſs, &c. That is, he doth it many times by his providence, he reveals things that are otherwiſe ſecret and unknown, and lie hid, yet he brings them out; men may blear the world, and deceive their own ſoules, but

but the providence of God in the end will ſearch out all ſecret things, and make them as manifeſt as things done on the houſe top; it is a ſtrange thing to ſee how many, that have boyled in their hearts againſt the Saints and Miniſters of God, and they have carried it out ſlyly and fairly, yet God hath diſcovered their malice and ſpight, and their venemous ſpeeches, and the envy they have borne againſt the people of God: What ſtrange things hath the Lord diſcovered? when men have concluded no eye ſhould ſee it, I hope no body ſhall know it; yet the providence of God comes to finde it out either firſt or laſt. Now the providence of God diſcovers mens works that are in ſecret divers wayes.

Firſt, By letting his people to ſuſpect men; 'tis true, we ought not to give way to an humour of ſuſpition, for it is directly againſt charity; for charity thinketh no ill; therefore we ſhould take heed of ſuſpition without juſt cauſe of ſuſpition; for hereby we may wrong perſons, as the Diſciples, though Paul was a true Convert, yet they ſuſpected he was not, and ſo wronged him: It is a dangerous thing to ſuſpect any man without infallible ground; yet many times the providence of God doth diſcover men by this meanes, as you may ſee an example in thoſe falſe-hearted ones Ezra 4. they would come and build with Zerubbabel and Jeboſhua; they made as if they did intend the promotion of the Church and Commonwealth. Now verſe 3. they ſuſpected them. Now when they ſaw that they were ſhy of them, they diſplayed themſelves, and laid themſelves open, and turned to the contrary ſide, and did them all the miſchiefe they could.

Secondly, by letting of good people to injure and wrong them; this is very true, that the children of God ſhould wrong no body, eſpecially none that are Chriſtians, that we may have any hope they are godly; if a child of God ſhould wrong any man in the leaſt degree, he is guilty of all the miſchief that ſhall follow after; therefore we ſhould be marvellous careful that we wrong no man in thought, word, or deed; but yet it will be ſo long as we dwell here in the fleſh; wrongs will be committed by good people ſometimes againſt their wills, ſometimes by corruptions riſing in their hearts contrary to their minds and principles they goe upon. Now when theſe wrongs fall upon thoſe that are not ſound, this diſcovers them; for their venom and madneſſe falls not onely upon them, but upon all Profeſſors; theſe are your Profeſſors, and preciſe fellows! nay let but the children of God be indiſcreet, this by the providence of God doth divers times diſcover men; as Saul a great hypocrite, indeed he had many admirable things in him, he had admirable Government; and though he were not a man that truly loved holineſſe, yet he did abundance of good things, and he hoped he was right. Now the Lord diſcovered him by this, by letting him have ſome indiſcretion ſhewed towards him; as the women in the Song, Saul hath ſlain his thouſands, and David his ten thouſands; it was indiſcreetly ſpoken of them; though it were true, they ought not to have made ſuch a Song of it; though no queſtion the women meant well in what they did, and were honeſt and well-minded people; yet through their indiſcretion Saul ſtomachs David, and grows to be a perſecutor; From this time forward he eyed David.

Thirdly, By guiding of his Miniſters to home-preaching; this diſcovers people what they are; if they be godly and upright, when the word of God meets with any corruption of theirs, then it ſhews they are of God; for then they fall down before God, and acknowledge their ſin, and repent of it, and part with it, and loath it, and cry to Heaven for the pardon of it, and labour to have it rooted out of their ſoules and conſciences, and ſo they are diſcovered to be ſound; but when this meets with an unſound ſound heart, and comes to diſplay his ſecret luſts, and vile courſes, not being able to ſtoop to this, it ſhewes what it is; as when Chriſt preached ſomething ſharply, John 6. 55,60. O ſay they, It is hard hard ſaying, who can bear it? And from that time many of his Diſciples forſook him. It fares with Gods Church in this caſe, as with Iſhboſheth; Abner ſeemed to be his dear friend, and ſtuck cloſe to him; yet when Iſhboſheth told him of his faults, of his whoredome, and lying with his Fathers Concubines, then he was mad, and was not able to brook him; preſently he falls off from Iſhboſheth, becauſe of this away he goes, and turns his enemy: So it fares with the Saints of God, many ſeem to be their dear friends, and keep cloſe to them, and joyn with them; but when they are dealt withal about things amiſſe in them, they diſcover what they are, they do not like ſuch men, they care not how little they come in their company, they fall off, and ſo are made manifeſt what they are.

2 Sam. 3.8.

Fourthly, By their own luſts and corruptions; for you ſhall have men many times hear the Word, and being wrought upon in their conſciences by the Word, or by Gods judgements, that ſtartles them, they give over their ſins upon this, and reform, and will have good orders in their Families, and take up good duties; and not having a ſound, but a falſe heart, a covetous heart, in the end this worldlineſſe, or any other luſt that is unmortified, the Lord doth uſe it as an inſtrument to diſcover that all theſe Reformations of theirs were never ſound; in the end they come to count this a burden, and ſuch a burden as they are not able to bear, and ſo grow to be ſomething weary of their ſtrict courſes, and give over by degrees not to be ſo careful in their Families to pray morning and evening, and ſometimes omit it, and not to be ſo forward for God and goodneſſe; and at the laſt they come to ſhew plainly that there was never any ſoundneſſe in them; thus the Lord doth many times lead them forth among evil doers, Pſa. 125. 5. and ſo ſuch as have kept company among good doers, are diſcovered to be evil doers, thus Demas was diſcovered; for a time he followed St. Paul, but having a worldly heart, the Lord diſcovered him by it in the end, it made him weary of Pauls company, and he fell to embrace this preſent world, 2 Tim. 4.10.

Laſtly, By the times, by perſecutions that ariſe againſt the Church of God; and this knocks off all that were but meer hangbyes; it knocks them off from the good courſe they ſeemed to follow before, and they follow the contrary; as Chriſt notes, Matth. 13. 20,21. They that received the ſeed into ſtony ground, when perſecution aroſe, they fell off. When perſecution and trouble did ariſe, they were offended; this diſcovered them; as if there be any riſt or unſound place in the houſe, a ſharp tempeſt will diſcover it, and ſhew where is a flaw in the building; ſo if there be a flaw in a mans faith or profeſſion; if a man be not right towards God, the times will diſcover this.

Reaſon. 1. The Reaſons of this are, Firſt, becauſe it is Gods Prerogative thus to doe, becauſe the perfection of mens works; though men may give a gueſſe at it, yet it is a ſecret. Now it is Gods Prerogative Royal to reveale ſecrets, Jer. 17. 10. I the Lord ſearch the heart, &c. The heart is deceitfull above all things, who can know it? 'Tis true, but I the Lord ſearch the heart, and try the reins. So you ſee God takes it to himſelfe as his own Prerogative Royal, to ſearch men out what they are: And indeed the Lord ſometimes in Scripture is deſcribed by this very thing, the ſearching of the heart. Rom. 8. 27. He that ſearcheth the heart. Who is that? The Apoſtle doth not tell us who it is, but you may gueſſe who it is by the Epithite he gives him. So that God, I ſay, is known by this, and will be known by this, by ſearching mens hearts, and diſcovering what men are, and aym at.

it, and intend, what men hate, and what they love; what things they do, and how they do them.

Secondly, As this is Gods Prerogative Royal, so of all things in the world he will bring that which is secret out, whether men be sincere or no. Men make a shew, O they are baptized, and come to Church, and take paines in their places and callings, and what can you alledge against us? Now of all things in the world, God will discover this, if men be not as they seem to be; if men have malice in their hearts, and pride; if they seek the worlds and be ambitious, and seek to please men, and make as if they would please God; if they be false-hearted, God will discover this: he will discover all things, but specially Hypocrisie; if any will be Adulterers, and will not be known to be such; if any will be proud, or Scoffers of Religion, and will not be known to be such, God will bring this to light; as Job saith, If you secretly except persons, God will surely reprove you, Job 13. 10. God will bring all the world, and all their doings to light; but of all things, if men have secret haunts, and back-doors to do evill; if men have devices and colours to put off their actions, if men can dawb up wretched and filthy cases as if they were good, if men will goe about in this fashion to dawb with untempered morter, such sins and powers as these, God will lay before him, as Moses saith, Psal. 90. 8. As who should say, thou layest all our sins before us; but if we have any secret sins, thou layest them upon a rock in the open Sun, the Lord especially eyes at them; there be many persons in the world, that are godly and honest, and yet are covered by the scoffs and reproaches of the world, as if they had no good, nor did any good; and there are others again that are bouldered up in the world, as if they were good men, and better then those that keep such a pudder. Now the Lord, as he will bring every thing abroad, so specially this.

Thirdly, Because it is for the glory of God to search men out, as Solomon saith of a King, Prov. 25. 2. It is the glory of a King to search out a matter; as when the two Harlots were brought before Solomon concerning the child whose it was, there was no way in the world to know it, there was nothing but their own asseverations; the one said it was hers, and the other said it was hers; the one affirmed, the other denied it before the King; now we shall see what a glory it was to Solomon to search out who was the mother of the child; the Text saith, all Israel feared King Solomon because of this thing, 1 Kings 3. 28. They trembled before him, they saw he could search out secrets and hidden things, therefore they durst not do wickednes in secret for fear he should finde them out; so it is the glory of God to search out secret matters, and bring them on the stage; if a man be upright, and this man is spatted and spit upon, and born down in the world, if the Lord should not search it out, what a dishonour would it be to God? and if a man should goe for a good Christian, and is not, and God should not finde them out, what a dishonour would it be to him? it is the glory of God to search out secret matters.

Fourthly, It is for the truth of God; he hath said he will search every one out, as you may see Job 34. 22. So he hath said, He that hideth his sins shall not prosper, Prov. 28. 13. So he hath said, He that walketh uprightly walketh surely, but he that perverteth his wayes shall be known. If God hath said thus, certainly it concerns his truth to see it made good; and therefore he must search them out.

Fifthly, This is for the Justice of God, that God should search out every one what he is, and what his works be, how should God judge the world else? therefore when God said he would judge Judah, and punish them because they had forgotten him; he gives this as the reason of it; Therefore ſaith he, I will diſcover thy skirts upon thy face, that thy ſhame may appear. So when God means to glorifie his Saints, and beſtow the Kingdome of Heaven upon them, therefore he will diſcover their honeſty, and lay open their godly ornaments, and reward them for all the taunts and vile reproaches of the wicked.

The firſt Uſe may ſerve to reprove moſt men generally; we do not conſider that God will ſearch us; what a company of pleas are there to doe evil? what a company of put offs to doe good duties? if men can but find any ſtarting hole, glad are they; and if they can but finde any filly pretences, then they are made, then a man can never get them to doe that which is good. When Moſes was loth to goe to Pharaoh, what abundance of pretences had he to put it off? O, ſaith he, I am unworthy, who am I that I ſhould goe before Pharaoh? and another time, I am not eloquent. He made as if it had been his modeſty, he was not fit for the office; he did not conſider that he was to deal with God, that could ſearch him out; Moſes, ſaith he, goe before Pharaoh, for they are dead that ſought thy life. As if he had ſaid, I know thy thoughts, thou haſt killed a man in Egypt, and thou art afraid that Pharaoh will kill thee; but that Pharaoh is dead, therefore goe. So when a man is unwilling to doe a duty, he will have a thouſand excuſes; bid men have prayers in their Family, they will ſay they are no book-learned, and cannot pray; and how prove you it to be a duty? any thing God bids them doe, they are willing to doe; if you ſhew them but a place of Scripture for it, they make this the reaſon; but this is hypocriſie, the reaſon is, they care not for God, nor for the Family; they care not whether they be ſaved or damned; they care not that the fear of God may be in their children and ſervants, they care not for this; but they will not believe this is the cauſe. Again, bid another be diligent in his Office, alas what ſhall a man doe? I ſhall doe no good, he is a peaceable man, and he ſeeth all the Pariſh bandy themſelves together; if he ſaw there were any hope of doing good, he would doe it; as if he had a very good heart to doe what God would have him, in the end God diſcovers his hypocriſie, it was becauſe he cared not for God, he did not hate ſin, he had no zeal to Gods glory, he is a lover of men more then God, he loves his owne eaſe more then holineſſe, or piety, or good order; therefore let us know what a dangerous thing it is for a man to dally and double with God, when we doe not conſider that God will ſearch our hearts; the Lord knows whether thou art loth to have ſuch a thing to be a duty, or whether thou doſt ſecretly deſire it may not be impoſed upon thee; the Lord knows it, therefore doe not put off God in this faſhion, for God will ſearch thee out; it is but a folly for us not to conſider that God will ſearch us out; as Solomon ſaith, Prov. 10. 18. He that covereth hatred with lying lips, is a fool; that is, if a man doe bear ſecret malice againſt a man, doe not love a man, and is not in ſincere charity with him, may be the man covers it with lying lips, O 'tis not for this reaſon and that reaſon, God forbid I ſhould hate him, whereas indeed he doth not love him; ſaith Solomon, this man is a fool; as who ſhould ſay, God will finde him, and diſcover him; therefore what a folly is it not to lay this to heart.

The ſecond Uſe is to bid us take heed how we hide our ſins from others, or from our ſelves.

Firſt, From others, you ſhall have children, ſo they can hide their faults from their parents, that is all they care for; and ſo ſervants, if they can but hide their faults from their Maſters and Miſtreſſes, they care not how bad they be, or how falſe; ſo it is with many, you ſhall have many a man his own boſome knows what an hard heart he hath, what a dead heart, how careleſſe he is of God, how that he hath no delight in good duties;

yet

yet if he can but cover it from the Saints, that when he comes to pray before them, he may carry it off ſomething handſomely, this is all he cares for, or look after; what an horrible thing is this, that people ſhould have no more conſideration that God will ſearch us out? we had as good that all the world ſhould know it, as that God ſhould know it; if we do iniquity, and be careleſſe of his commandements; if we do evil, though never ſo ſecretly, it were better all the world ſhould know it then God; now God will ſearch it out. Jer. 23. 24. Prov. 5. 21. Therefore we ſhould ever take heed that we may not have this humour in us, to venture to do evil, ſo we can hide it from men; for what though no man knows it? yet we ſhall finde that God knows it, and will bring it to light one day.

Secondly, We ſhould take heed how we hide our ſins from our ſelves; this is fearful, and in ſome ſenſe a great deal more fearful then the other; for many times when a man hides his ſins from others, he knows them himſelfe; but when a man hath a deceitful heart, that he hides them from his own eyes, how can he repent? a man cannot repent without the ſight of his ſins; yet, as a Divine ſaith, men deſire to hide their ſins from God, and from others, but moſt of all from themſelves: Now what a madneſs is this, though a man do hide his ſins from himſelf, he cannot hide them from God, God will ſearch it out; though a man hath never ſo many colours for his ſins, he will not believe it is a ſin; alas poor creature, God will finde thee out; as a pluraliſt, he will think it lawful to have two livings, but what doſt thou get by hiding it from thy ſelfe, God will finde it out; ſo for jeſting, they think it is lawful to do it; Eliſha jeſted; and did not Ariſtotle account it a vertue? and the like; I deny not but men may have jeſting if it be convenient, but when men are exceſſive in this, and have no meetings without jeſting, and will ſtand for it, God will find them out; ſo men that will not believe that a man ſhould be ſo ſtrict and preciſe, God forbid that none ſhould be ſaved but ſuch; thus they hide it from themſelves; but when they have done all they cannot hide it from God; but God will diſcover them at the laſt day, may be in this world: ſo a man that was never converted, nor never had faith, he thinks he is converted and hath faith, and is religious, and a good Chriſtian. Thus he hides his woful and vile eſtate from his own eyes; but canſt thou hide it from God? aſſure thy ſelfe God will ſearch thee out.

Thirdly, This may be for comfort to good people. Firſt, It may be a comfort againſt others that ſhall judge them. Secondly, againſt themſelves. Firſt, Againſt others that judge them; may be others are harſh towards them, and think all manner of evil of them, and may be ſpeak it too. Now this is a great comfort, that God will ſearch them out; as they be true and upright, and as they doe from the bottome of their hearts ſet themſelves to pleaſe God, ſo they ſhall not be judged by mens conceits, but by the Lord; this is that which comforted Paul againſt the cenſures of the Corinths; 1 Cor. 4. 3, 4. I count it a ſmall matter to be judged by you, 'tis the Lord that judgeth me. As who ſhould ſay, I ſhall not ſtand or fall at your ſentence what you think of me; no, the Lord judgeth me; this is a great comfort. So this comforted Peter when Chriſt put that triple query to him, Simon thou ſon of Jonah, loveſt thou me? As who ſhould ſay, thou ſayſt thou loveſt me, but how can I think it? haſt thou not denied me thrice? therefore I ask thee thrice doſt thou love me; what ſaith he now? Lord, thou knoweſt all things, thou knoweſt that I love thee. This was his comfort, that God that ſearcheth the heart knew it was his weakneſſe, and he loved him unfeignedly; as who ſhould ſay, men may judge me to be a wretch and an Apoſtate, and that I love my life and my liberty more then thee; they may juſtly judge thus; but thou knoweſt how I have grieved for it, and have been aſhamed of it, and it hath been as a dagger to my heart; Thou knowest all things, and thou knowest that I love thee.

Secondly, This may be a comfort against their own selves; as a mans Conscience many times may have shrewd things against the people of God; for the conscience by nature is legal, and by nature a man is borne under the Covenant of works, and conscience is apt to be very strict and severe against the children of God, and so have shrewd things against them, that they can hardly tell how to answer. Now what a comfort is this to them, though their consciences be unquiet many times, to think that God will search them out, they shall not be judged by their consciences altogether, but the Lord shall judge them! As Paul did not only set down a comfort against the censures of the Corinths, but against his own conscience, I am not my own Judge. Many times conscience may be abused, and cry out, there is nothing good, nothing sounds true good in my soul. Now a man should say I must not judge my selfe, but the Lord must judge me, and search me out; so that this is a great comfort to the people of God, that God will search every man.

Thirdly, This may stir us up to be able to stand out Gods search, when he shall come and search.

First, That we may be able to stand when offences come. When offences come, the Lord searcheth whether people love themselves, or love his commandements, and love his servants: there be such horrible offences sometimes, that if he doe not love God indeed, he will stumble; the commandements of God, and his pure worship and service may be so defiled and opposed, a man may be offended at it that professed it before, if he love it not indeed, therefore Matth. 18. 10. our Saviour saith, Woe to the World, because of offences. As if he had said, when offences shall come, they shall discover thousands in the world to be naught; woe to the world when they come, for these be searching things; therefore let us labour when offences come, that we may not be offended, as Christ saith Matt. 11. 5. Blessed is the man that is not offended in me. That man is a blessed man, that when all offences arise, nothing can make him offended at Jesus Christ: This doth plainly shew that a man hath the grace of God in him, when nothing can offend him, not the means of Christ in the world in his members, not the crosse that doth accompany Religion, not the multitudes of evil men, not persecutions, revilings, nick-names, poverty, and disgrace, nothing in the world can offend him, but he will love God, and feare him, and keep close to his commandements; this is a sign we shall stand when God searcheth us.

Again, Let us be able to stand out against afflictions and persecutions; these search men: as it is said of Joseph, when he was laid in prison because he would not yield to his Mistris, the Text saith, The word of the Lord tryed him, Psal. 105. If he had not been sincere, when he saw how the times went, he would have been afraid, and yielded to the temptation; but the Word of the Lord tryed him, and he was found to be sincere and godly indeed. So when God afflicted Job, Job 10. he saith, Thou searchest for my sins. When God afflicts us, or persecutes us, or suffers any evil to fall upon us, then he searcheth us, and then if we be hypocrites, and have onely a forme of godlinesse, and are not sound at the bottome, then God will finde it out, it will appear; when crosses and afflictions come, it will lay a man open; therefore let us be able to stand in afflictions to be dead to the world and worldly things, to be able to deny our lives and livings, and forgoe all the world rather then any of Gods commandements, that when we come to be tryed, we may be found to have faith more precious then gold.

Thirdly

Thirdly, Labour to stand in time of difficult commandements: sometimes God calls a man to difficult commandements, that he cannot doe except he cut off his right hand, and pull out his right eye, except he will lose his life, except he will be driven up and down like a vagrant Traitor, and cast into prison: sometimes may be God puts a man upon commandements that he must lose all that he hath if he doth them. Now know, God comes to search whether we love him best, whether we will rather obey him or the world, whether we love profits, or credit, or any thing more then him. So when the young man in the Gospel made as if he were well-minded to enter into eternal life, he was an observer of the commandements of God: Now when Christ would search him he doth it with a difficult commandement; the man was rich, and he bids him goe and sell and give it to the poore; this was a very difficult commandement, and this discovered him to be a very wretch, he was not able to doe it, nay he went away sorrowful; this commandement could not sink down into his heart: It is so many times, the Lord puts a man upon difficult commandements; such commandements, that if he doe them, the world will think him mad; such commandements, that if he doe them, he must part with his living, and all that he hath. Now if we be not able to doe this, we shall be discovered not to be good.

Lastly, Let us be able to stand out against judgement, for then God searcheth people most of all; there may be something left after all the other searchings; a man hath stood out persecutions, and yet hath turned Apostate; but when the pangs of death, and the day of Judgment comes, nothing shall be hid then: therefore let us labour to stand then, when the King of terrours shall appeare before us; nay, when the Judge of quick and dead shall stand before us.

The last Use is for exhortation. Will God search us out? then we should search our selves what our works are, whether good or evil; as the Apostle saith, 2 Cor. 13. 5. Examine your selves whether you be in the faith.

First, Consider, we can never repent of what is amisse in our selves, or in our works, except we search our selves. Let us search our selves, and turne unto the Lord, Lam. 1. 43. If there be hypocrisie or hollow-heartednesse in us, if we doe not search it out, we cannot bewaile it, and shake it off.

Secondly, Consider it is a character and mark of the childe of God that he doth desire, and is one that doth search himselfe; nay, he doth not onely use all the meanes he can to doe it, but he doth cry and groan to God to help him: as David saith, Psalm 139 23. Search me, O Lord, &c. As who should say, Lord, help me to search my heart, I have looked into it, and turned it thoroughly, and I cannot finde but I am upright, but I feare my selfe still; O help me; if there be any way of wickednesse in me, shew it me. A childe of God is one that doth indeed desire to know himself, and to know the worst of himself.

Thirdly, Consider, if we doe not search our selves, it will be the worse for us, for God will search us; and if we doe search our selves, we shall escape well when he comes to search us; but if we neglect this duty, what saith Job, Chap. 13 10. So I may say, Is it good that God should search us out? is it good for us to leave all this work to him? to neglect our owne soules, to lay aside our lives, and consciences, and bosomes, and never to ransack them from day to day, never to enquire into our owne bosomes, that we may reforme our selves, but leave all to God to search us? doe you think this will doe well, saith Job? Then when afflictions, and death, and judgement shall come, that then God should search you, and lay before you your works; therefore as you desire when God shall search you you may be found upright, be careful to search your selves.

that

FINIS.

2 Tim. 1. 9.

Who hath ſaved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpoſe and grace, which was given us in Chriſt Jeſus before the world began.

IN this verſe the Apoſtle declares what God hath done for him and for Timothy, he hath ſaved us, that is, he hath redeemed us with the blood of his Son, and freed us from ſin and from Satan, and from hell, and hath given us title to eternal life, he hath ſaved us.

2. He hath called us, that is, he hath given us a pledge of this, that we ſhall be ſaved, that we ſhall certainly have ſalvation compleatly and fully, for he hath called us. Now he illuſtrates this two wayes; firſt, by ſhewing what kinde of calling it is which he here means, and that is an holy calling, he hath called us with an holy calling, and then, 2ly. By ſhewing the reaſon why God would do theſe things for him and for Timothy, theſe are great things, what to ſave them, and make them heirs of his Kingdome, and to call them to the fellowſhip of Jeſus Chriſt, and give them intereſt in all Gods goodneſs and mercy? what ſhould be the reaſon that ſhould move God to do ſo much for Paul, and for Timothy? he doth here expreſſe this three wayes. The reaſons of Gods mercies to Paul and Timothy.

Firſt, by removing all falſe cauſes, not according to our works; as who ſhould ſay, it is not for any thing in us, there was nothing in us that moved God to do this. The removing of falſe cauſes.

2ly. He layes down the true cauſe of it, in the next words, but according to his own purpoſe and grace; that is, he hath done it freely, out of his own mercy, and love, and according to his own purpoſe. The true cauſe of it.

Laſtly. He proves this, and that by three arguments, that this muſt be the cauſe and no other: the firſt is this, it was a gift that was given us, therefore it muſt needs be free. 2ly. It was given in Jeſus Chriſt, as who ſhould ſay, he did not look at any thing in us; there was nothing in us that was in his eyes, no it was meerly for the merits of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Laſtly. Another argument is taken from the time when, and that is from all eternity, before the world began. Proved by three arguments.

The point that I will handle out of theſe words, is this; that it is an excellent thing for a man to be able to ſay, that God hath effectually called him, the Apoſtle here ſpeaks it, as a great comfort to his ſoul and the ſoul of Timothy, and as a pledge of Gods everlaſting love and ſalvation to them both, that the Lord had called them, and had been pleaſed to take them out of the world, and to make them partakers of his Kingdome and glory. Doctrine.

For the opening of the point

Now for the opening of the point, I will here first shew you what kinde of calling it is that is here spoken of, and it is not that calling whereby God doth call people to an office, as of a Magistrate or a Minister, but he speaks of a general calling, of a calling out of the Kingdome of sinne and Satan, into the Kingdome of his dear Son, to be made partakers of eternal communion with himself. 2ly. It is not an outward call, whereby wicked men that go on in their sins are called, for so a reprobate may be called, he may be called out of his own sinful courses, and wretched estate and condition, to the participation of Jesus Christ, thus every man is called, all men are called by Gods Ministers, as *Mat.*22.9. the King sent out his servants, to bid all that they found to the marriage.

How a reprobate may be called.

Secondly, A reprobate may be called inwardly by Gods Spirit, I mean the Spirit of God may go along with Gods Ministers, to strive and wrestle with the soul and conscience of a man that remains in his sins. Prov. 1.24. because I called, and ye refused, therefore will I laugh at your destruction, and mock when your fear cometh.

How a wicked man may be called.

Thirdly, A wicked man may be called, not only with an outward call of the Minister, and with an inward call of the Spirit, but with some efficacy it may go a great way, so far forth as to make a man come in some kinde, as it was with the man, *Mat.*22.12. He was called together with the rest to come to the wedding and he came, but he came without a wedding garment, now none of these callings are meant here, for in this sence, many are called but few are chosen, Mat.22.14. But the calling here meant, is a different calling from them, and that in three things.

A calling to Gods purpose.

First, It is a call according to Gods own purpose, when God calls a man, and hath a purpose to make a man come in deed, and to come home, this is the calling here spoken of, *Rom.*8.28. We know that all things worke together for the best to Gods children that are called according to his purpose, as God calls them, so he doth purpose to make them come to himself, and make them partakers of everlasting mercy; God hath no such purpose when he calls the reprobate, he hath a purpose indeed to do them good, if it be not through their own default; but yet notwithstanding he hath no such purpose, and absolute intention to do them good, he hath no such purpose to bring them to his Kingdome, and carry them quite through in the business.

How one calling differs from another.

Secondly, This is a secret in Gods own bosome, and that is another difference, wherein this calling differs from the other; it is such a calling wherein God puts forth his power, and the greatness of his power too; God called the light and it came, God called the Heavens and they came, when as they were not, God calling of them they were made to come: so when God doth call a man by his Spirit, he calls a man powerfully, he doth powre in divine instincts of grace and faith, and all other holy vertues, whereby the soul is made able to come to God; the Lord gives the heart a kinde of touch, that being touched by his Spirit, it must, and shall, and will know God in Jesus Christ, it puts in divine things into the soul, whereby the soul must needs know him, and come to him, and be reconciled to him, 1 Joh. 3.9. he puts his own seed into him, he that is borne of God sinneth not, for the seed of God remaineth in him; the Lord puts an holy kinde of ointment upon his eyes, and makes him see, and that abides in him, 1 Joh. 2.27. The holy anointing which ye have received abideth in you.

Gods call is an effectual call.

Thirdly, It is a continual call, it is not a call and so away, a call for a year and so an end, but it is a continual call; he never leaves calling of him, till he comes home to him, as 1 *Thes.*5.24. Faithful is he that hath called you, who will also do it, as who should say, he hath called you, and doth call you, and he is faithful, and will do it; he hath called you heretofore, and made you come to him in truth and sincerity; and he will still continue his call, he will will ſtill do it more and more, the Lord draws his people nearer and nearer to himſelf.

Now I will prove the Doctrine by divers particulars.

Firſt, Becauſe, a man then may be able to look back upon all his life, even from his cradle to this day; even before his call, and ſee Gods love to him as Paul, though he could not ſee it before, yet when God had effectually called him, he is able to look back upon all his former time and ſpace he had lived, even from his mothers womb, *Gal.*1.15. Who hath ſeperated me (ſaith he) from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace, and ſo it was with David, I have been caſt upon thee, (ſaith he) even from my mothers belly, Pſal.22.9,10. it is not likely, that David was converted then, but when God had effectually called him, then he was able to go back all along, even to his very infancy, and trace Gods goodneſs towards him in this and that, even to his very bringing him into the world. Then a man may reflect on his life paſt.

Secondly, This intereſts a man in all the promiſes of God, 2 Pet. 1.3. Who hath given unto us all things pertaining to life and godlineſs, through the knowledge of him, that hath called us to glory and vertue, if we know that God hath called us to glory and vertue, then we know that God hath given us all things that pertaine to life and godlineſs, to this life, and the life to come we know it; when God hath effectually called us, we know that all the promiſes belong unto us, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Acts 2. 39. For the promiſe is to you, and to your children, and to yours that are afar of, even as many as the Lord our God ſhall call, look how many God calls, ſo many do the promiſes belong unto, all the promiſes of mercy and grace, and comfort, of ſtrength and direction, and eternal redemption, the compleat working of it, all theſe promiſes from the firſt to the laſt, they all belong to a man, when God hath called him: when the Lord effectually calls a man, he takes him out of the world, to have fellowſhip with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and in whatſoever he hath done, or ſuffered, or purchaſed for his people. This intereſt a man in the promiſes.

Thirdly, It doth ſweeten all Gods promiſes to a man? what is the reaſon we can hear ſuch admirable things out of the Word, and yet they affect people generally, for the moſt part no more then a dry chip, though they hear of the promiſes of God, what promiſes he hath made to his people, to their Prayers, to their hearing of the Word, to their receiving of the Sacrament; what promiſes he hath made in adverſity, and proſperity, in ſickneſs, and in health, in life, and death, when they ſin through frailty, what promiſes they have to help them up againe when they are to do any thing, what promiſes to aſſiſt them, and go along with them, when they are called to any employment, what promiſes to ſuſtaine them, and bear them out; I ſay though all theſe things be delivered to people, things that were ſweeter to David, then the hony, and the hony combe, Pſal.119.103. Yet generally, people are not affected with theſe things; the reaſon is, becauſe they are not able to ſay, that God hath effectually called them, therefore when they heare ſuch things, the heart cannot lay hold upon them, they think with Francis Spera, I have no part in theſe things, they think 'tis true, they are ſo to Gods people, but they think there is little comfort, little ſweetneſs in them, becauſe they cannot ſay, that they are effectually called of God. It ſweetens the promiſes to a man.

Fourthly, If a man be effectually called, this helps a man to pray, Pſal. 119.94. I am thine ſave me, when David was able to ſay, thou haſt called me to be one of thine, then he was able to pray to God, Lord ſave me, Lord help me, I am thine, thou art my God; when he was able to ſay, that he had intereſt and propriety in God; this did exceedingly help him, and encourage him with boldneſs in prayer; but when a man queſtions his effectual calling, every petition a man puts up, it is choaked, a man cannot pray to God, but he is beaten off, there is no ſtrength in ſuch a prayer, as ſoon as ever Paul was converted, It helps him to pray.

verted, ſaith God to Ananias, behold now he prayes, Act.9.11. Paul had prayed a thouſand times before, no man in Judea prayed more then he, but God took no notice of his prayers, but when God had effectually called him by his grace, now the Lord took notice of his prayers, and obſerved them, and heard them, and regarded them, and inclined his ear to them, behold now he prayes.

Knowledge of our effectual calling, a help to good actions.

Fifthly, This is a great encouragement to all goodneſs in outward things, it is a great encouragement to a man to take them in hand, when he ſeeth he hath a calling thereunto; Gideon was very earneſt with the Angel, that he might ſee he had a calling to that he was to go about, *Judg.*6.11. So it is in this divine calling, it is a great encouragement, when a man can ſee that he is called, true it is, that every man is called, but I ſpeak not of the general calling, but of the effectual call, when a man can ſee that he is effectually called of God, this helps a man in all good actions, then a man may go to God, as to a Father, he may go to the Sacrament as the ſeale of his righteouſneſs and faith, then a man may take Gods name into his mouth, God challengeth the wicked for doing of it without his call, *Pſal.*50.16. What haſt thou to do, to take my name into thy mouth, ſeeing thou hateſt to be reformed? now a man may take up the profeſſion of religion, and hold forth the name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as Paul ſaith to Timothy, fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life; now marke the encouragement, whereunto thou art alſo called, 1 Tim.6.12.

A foundation of godlineſſe.

Sixthly, It is an excellent ground of a godly life, when a man can ſay he is effectually called of God, that man hath laid a good foundation to be a godly man, he hath laid it low, he hath built it upon ſuch a ground, that can never be ſhaken, nor removed; he that builds upon this foundation, ſhall never be removed. What is the reaſon why ſo many thouſands undertake to be godly, and are never able to carry it through; others go about it, and through the mercy of God are carried through ſtitch with it? the reaſon is, becauſe thoſe that are effectually called of God, they have a good foundation, they go upon the right ground, as the Apoſtle Peter exhorting Chriſtians to holineſs, and ſanctity, and righteouſneſs of converſation, be ye holy in all manner of converſation; he doth preſently lay down the ground, whereupon he exhorts them, whereunto you are called, ſaith he, 1 *Pet.*1.15. ſo 1 *Pet.*2.9 ſaith he, ye are a choſen generation, a royal Prieſthood, an holy nation, &c. that you ſhould ſhew forth the prayſes of him that hath called you out of the darkneſs, into his marvellous light.

A help againſt falling.

In the laſt place, this is the beſt means to help a man up againe; ſuppoſe a man have fallen, as the beſt of all Gods Saints and Children may fall, and fall fowlly; but when a man is effectually called of God, this doth help a man up againe, as it was with David, *Pſal.*51.14. Deliver me from blood-guiltineſs, O God of my ſalvation, &c he being able to ſay, that the Lord was the God of his Salvation, this made him to get up againe; as who ſhould ſay, Lord I have committed murther, I am guilty of innocent blood, yet Lord thou haſt called me by thy grace, to be a God unto me, thou art the God of my ſalvation; I beſeech thee purge me from my filthineſs, and cleanſe me from my ſins: whereas there be thouſands, when they have committed murther, it breaks their necks, they never get up againe, they are never able to finde repentance, and a broken heart, and to obtaine favour of the Lord, that the ſin be not laid to their charge; but David, though he had ſuch a heavy fall, and though it burſt his bones, and put him to much grief, yet he got up againe, becauſe God had effectually called him.

Reaſ. 1.

It is an argument of his election.

The firſt reaſon of the point is this, becauſe effectual calling is an evident argument of a mans election unto life, it is that which flows from election to life, as *Rom.*8.30. Whom he hath predeſtinated, thoſe hath he called, &c. as who ſhould ſay, them, and none but them, this is the loweſt linke of that golden chaine, chaine, if a man can but once finde that he is effectually called of God, he hath a part of that chaine, whereof one end is eternal predeſtination to life, and the other is eternal glory; now he knows that all the whole chaine of mercy, from firſt to laſt, from eternity to eternity, all belongs to him, when he finds himſelf to be effectually called.

Secondly, This effectual calling, is a ſure and certaine pledge, that a man ſhall have all Gods acts of mercy, when God effectually calls a man, he doth this for him, not only as that particular mercy, but as a pledge of all after mercies, as it was with the delivering of the people of Iſrael out of Egypt; he did not this onely as a parcicular mercy, but as a pledge of future mercies for time to come; therefore whenſoever the Lord would aſſure the people that he would ſhew them mercy, and do them good; many times this is ſet down, I have brought thee out of the Land of Egypt, open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it; Pſal. 81.10. Nay, when they pleaded for mercy, they pleaded this as a pledge, that God would ſhew them mercy, Neh. 1.10,11. Now theſe are thy ſervants, which thou haſt redeemed by thy great power, we beſeech thee let thine ear be attentive to our ſupplication. So it is with effectual calling, it is an evident pledge, and ſure token, that God will ſhew a man all his other mercies, when a man is once effectually called, though he hath all yet to do, all the whole buſineſs, yet to wade through, it may be he hath abundance of eſtates and conditions to fall into before he dye: why? now he hath the whole compaſſe of Gods mercy to carry him along in it, God hath given him a pledge of it, and he may ſay to God, Lord thou haſt effectually called me by thy grace, I beſeech thee to juſtifie me, I beſeech thee to ſanctifie me and help me by thy grace to pray, and to go on through the ſeveral paſſages of this life, to bear afflictions, to humble me in proſperity, and to ſtand upon my guard, in ſickneſs Lord ſuſtaine me, and in troubles and afflictions Lord give me patience; thou haſt called me, and I have the pledge, therefore I beſeech thee do this for me, as Paul ſaith, 1 Cor. 1.9. God is faithful, who hath called you to the fellowſhip of his Son Jeſus Chriſt; as who ſhould ſay, when God called you to the fellowſhip of Jeſus Chriſt, he did not this as a particular mercy to you onely, but as a ſure pledge that he would ſhew you all other mercies; and aſſure your ſelves, he will be faithful, and make good all theſe mercies to you; go on with faith and affiance, and courage, for God will be faithful as the Apoſtle Peter ſaith, 1 Pet. 5.10. marke how he pleads, that God would be pleaſed to give them grace, the God of all grace that hath called you, he make you perfect, eſtabliſh, and ſettle you; he that hath called you ſettle you, he that hath given you a pledge, he that hath vouchſafed you a pawne, he will make it good, he will ſtrengthen you, and enable you, and carry you through, from the beginning to the end.

It's a ſure pledge.

Uſe 1. Then certainly the thing is a poſſible thing, a man may be able to ſay ſo, it is a thing may be known; effectual calling, whoſoever is partaker of it, that man may know he hath it, though it be ſuch a great jewel, ſuch an admirable thing, and happy is that man that ever he was borne when he ſeeth it, yet it is ſuch a thing you may come to ſee and know; every man may know what eſtate he is in, whether he be good or bad, the conſcience doth not onely excuſe in good actions, but alſo in a good eſtate, preſerve my ſoul, for I am holy, ſaith David, Pſal. 86.2. his conſcience did not excuſe him onely in that he had done holy duties, but in that he was an holy man, his conſcience could witneſs with him, that he was an holy man: and on the other ſide, the conſcience doth not onely accuſe in evil actions, but alſo in an evil eſtate, I and my people are wicked ſaith Pharoh, Exod. 9. his conſcience did not onely accuſe him, that he did evil actions, but that he was in an evil eſtate, not onely that he had done a wicked thing, but was a wicked man: and the reaſon of this is, becauſe how elſe ſhould a man be commanded to ſhun a bad, and follow a good estate, if it were not discernable who are in a good and bad estate, as we see we are called to avoid the one, and follow hard after the other, therefore it is a thing that may be attained to; nay it is not onely a thing that may be attained unto, but the children of God are wont to know it, as Paul here to Timothy, he hath called us; we are able to speak it, our consciences choake us not in speaking of it; nay the doubtfullest man that ever was, was Heman, Psal. 88. 1. O Lord God of my salvation, I have cryed night and day unto thee? as who should say, I am very much bewildered, and much to seek, and lost in doubts and fears, marvelously oppressed and overwhelmed; yet this I can say, thou art my God, the God of my salvation; thou hast effectually called me to pertake of thy mercy, and I have relation to that thou hast given me union with thee, thou art the God of my salvation; and so it was with David, when he was at his worst, hath God forgotten to be gracious? will he cast off for ever, &c? Psal 77. though he had named all their grievous passages, of feare and despaire as a man would think, yet at the self same time, ver. 5. I have considered the dayes of old, he was able to lay hold upon this certainty, I have been called, such a time the Lord was gracious and merciful unto me, I have believed, I have tasted of Gods goodnes, and pertake of his mercy, and known the forgivenes of my sinnes, he looked unto the dayes of old, he could not deny it, though he were now miserably put to it, he could not deny this, but in the dayes of old, God had been his God, and he his servant: and so Jonah, when he was dejected, and cast down, and seemed to be in the belly of hell, Lord (saith he) I am cast out of thy sight, as if he had been cast off, and quite at a losse, yet at the selfe same time, (saith he) I will look towards thy holy Temple, Jon. 2. 4. as who should say, I cannot deny, but thou hast effectually called me, I have looked to thy Temple heretofore, I have looked to Christ, and rested upon thee for eternal life, and for mercy, and thou art my refuge, therefore I will look againe to thee. So Joh. 14. 5, 6, 7. Thomas he speaks as if he had not known Christ, Thomas (saith he) ver. 7. thou dost know me, nay when he made a vow, that he would not believe, except he saw the print of the nailes, yet this was but in a fit, for within a little space, (he saith) my Lord, and my God, Joh. 20.

Uſe 1.

I will prove this by reason, that a man that is quite to seek; that a man that is not able to speak with any certainty, he hath not a jot of faith in this point to believe that he is the Lords, for that man walks in darknes, our Saviour makes it a brand of a man that walks in darknes, that knoweth not whether he goeth, Joh. 12. 35. He that walks in darknes knoweth not whether he goeth, whither to heaven or to hell, whither he goes right or wrong, to Christ or not; it is a shroad signe, that that man is in a bad estate, that God never yet took him out of the world, to the fellowship of Jesus Christ.

The spirit makes known the things of God.

The first reason is, because it is the office of the Spirit to make known to a man, the things given him of God, 1 Cor. 2. 12. now saith he, we have received the Spirit, not of the world, but the Spirit of God, that we might know the things, that are freely given to us of God, as who should say, as God hath given us such and such things: So we have the Spirit of God, that can tell us the things that God hath freely given us, when God hath given a man effectual calling, it is a free gift, and then it is the Spirits office to let a man know it, and the Spirit will do his office; nay, when God effectually calls a man by his Spirit, the Spirit saith to a man, as the disciples of Christ said to the man that was brought to Christ, Matth. 10. 40. Be of good cheare; he calls thee, so when God effectually calls a man, the Spirit saith, arise, be of good cheare, the Lord calls thee; the Lord of heaven and earth, gives thee a gracious call to come to his heavenly Kingdome, to believe in his name, and to rest upon him for Salvation, and for every needful thing, for this life, and the life to come: the Spirit whereby a man is called, doth speak internum verbum, (as Divines speak) ſpeak) an inward word, which the ſoul hears, as well as the outward eare hears the external word; our Saviour ſheweth this, Joh. 6.45. he that hath heard and learned of the Father (ſaith he) cometh unto me; when a man is effectually called to come unto Chriſt, he hears of the Father, there is a word that the Father ſpeaks, not onely the word of the Miniſter, but an inward word, and that man hears a word from the Father, and how can it be but a man may know it, when he hears it? for there is a word, and an audible word, a word whereby the Lord of glory ſpeaks to a man, when he effectually calls him to come out of his ſins.

How to make our calling and election ſure.

Secondly, Becauſe a man that is effectually called of God, he is commanded by God to make his calling and election ſure; as we may ſee, 2 Pet. 1.10. as who ſhould ſay, you may make it ſure; 'tis true, in legal precepts this doth not follow; that if ſo be God bid a man to do it, therefore it is poſſible to do it; for the law commands things, not poſſible to be done, by reaſon of the weakneſs of the fleſh, but this is an evangelical precept; now when a man is effectually called of God, and is commanded to make his calling ſure, he may do it, the thing is poſſible and it may be performed, and it is a mans own fault if he do it not; if a man that is effectually called of God, do not know it, it is his own fault, and negligence, and careleſneſs, when God bids his people that are called, make their calling ſure, it implyeth, they may do it, the Lord lies no impoſſibility upon his own ſervants, that he hath called to his Kingdome and glory, but together with his precepts, he ſheweth them, where grace is, and the throne of grace is open for them, and they have an intereſt in God that quickens the dead, and have an open highway to the throne of grace to have any thing that they are required to do.

Of the knowledge of our effectual calling.

Thirdly, Becauſe the knowledge of our effectual calling, is the ground of thankſgiving for it God requires, that they that are effectually called to have ſuch mercies, ſhould be thankful to God for it? now how can a man be thankful for that which he is ignorant of, whether he have it or no? that is but a mockery, as carnal people in their thanks, will put in things they know not, we returne unto thee O Lord, all poſſible praiſe and thanks, for election, vocation, juſtification, &c. Carnal people put theſe things into their graces, bleſſing God for theſe things; now if a man come to them, do you know that you are elected, and called, and juſtified, and have a true ground and hope of glory? nay, that we cannot tell ſay they, this is a fooliſh thankſgiving, this is to make a mock of God, and to lie before him, the Lord will have no ſuch thanks, but ſing praiſes with underſtanding, as the Scripture ſpeaks, he will have real, and reaſonable ſervice, now unleſſe a man know this, he cannot be thankful to God aright. The Apoſtle willing the Corinths to be thankful for their calling, the poore Corinths that were deſpiſed, and ignoble and mean, and of the lower rank of all the Town, he wiſheth them to glory in Gods goodneſs, and in nothing of their own; how doth he urge it? you know your calling, not many wiſe men after the fleſh, not many noble, &c. but God hath choſen the fooliſh things of the world to confound the wiſe, &c. 1 Cor. 1.26. you ſee it, many there are that God hath called among you, and you ſee what manner of perſons they are, it is palpable, and you cannot deny it, therefore I would not have you glory in your ſelves, but in God, ſo Col. 1,12,13. giving thanks unto God the Father (ſaith he) that hath made us meete to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints, who hath delivered us from the power of darkneſs, and hath tranſlated us into the Kingdom of his dear Son, the Lord expects thanks for this effectual calling, when God hath delivered us from the power of darkneſs, and tranſlated us into the Kingdome of his dear Son, that is, when he hath effectually called us, we ſhould give thanks to God for it, now how can we give thanks to God for it, when we are uncertain and ignorant of it? ſurely the Spirit of Chriſt, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt loveth the glory of God, and that God ſhould have praiſe from his people for every mercy; therefore without doubt they may come to know it, becauſe otherwiſe God ſhould require that of them, which they are not able to performe.

Why the word of God is written to us.

Fourthly, Becauſe this is the very end of the word of God, it is one of the ends why the word of God is written to us: indeed there are other ends beſids this, it is to convert, to ſtrengthen, to direct, to comfort, to counſel, it is to build up, and to pull down; the end of the word is to pull, and hew ſome down to be caſt into the fire; but one end is to acquaint the people of God with the mercies of God, and with graces, and mercies, and kindneſſes, he hath laid up for them in Jeſus Chriſt, and how they are called to theſe things; this is one end of the word, that they may know theſe things that God hath vouchſafed, 1 Joh. 5.13. Theſe things have I written unto you, that believe in the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life, &c. I have written to you that do believe, to you that are effectually called, that you may know that you have eternal life; you have it, but I would faine have you know that you have it: Now the Word is a ſure Word that will not faile us.

The ſoul hath the power of reflection.

Fiftly, Becauſe the ſoul of a man, it hath the power of reflection in it, and it is able to reflect upon it ſelf, and know what it ſelf doth, and what it ſelf hath; the ſoul of a man is a reflective being, and reflects upon its own boſom, whereby it is privy to what it thinks, and what it ſaith, and what paſſages there be therein, 1 Cor. 2. 11. What man (ſaith he) knoweth the things of a man, but the ſpirit of a man? the ſpirit of a man that is in him, knows the things that be in a man, it is privy to its own affaires, as it is with wickedneſs, ſo it is with good actions and thoughts: now for wicked courſes, we ſee that the conſcience is privy to what ſins and corruptions are in a man, as Solomon told Shimei, thou knoweſt all the wickedneſs which thy heart is privy to, that thou didſt to David my Father; thou knoweſt it, thy heart is privy to it, thou canſt reflect upon thine own boſome, and canſt tell what wretched ſpeeches thou didſt ſpeak, thou art able to utter them in order, as thou art privy to it, as Solomon ſaith, Eccl. 7 22. oftentimes thine own heart knoweth, that thou thy ſelf likewiſe haſt curſed others, he ſpeaks of one that hath curſed, thy own heart knows that thou haſt done it ſaith he; ſo it is in good actions, and things that are in a man, a mans heart is privy to it; if a man obey the call of God, how can a man do it, but he muſt know that he is effectually called? if a man do mourn for his ſins, and grieve for his iniquities, the heart knows its own bitterneſs, it is able to reflect upon what it ſelf doth; ſo if a man do deſire grace, and hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs, and pant after the living God, he is able to ſay I do this, Pſal. 42.1. As the hart pants after the rivers of water, ſo doth my ſoul pant after thee O G; his own heart ſhall be able to reflect upon it, if thou humble thy ſoul, and ſet thy ſelf to prayer, and approve thy ſelf to God from day to day, look into thy boſom, and there thou may ſee it.

Obj. But it may be objected then, how is it that thoſe that are effectually called, are very doubtful, and have many queſtions, and are uncertaine whether they are called or no? if it be ſo; how come theſe doubts, and troubles, and perplexities that are in the minds of good people that are effectually called of God, and we find by experience that they were effectually called?

Anſ. I anſwer, firſt we muſt know, that though the knowledge of a mans calling may be had, yet it is had by degrees, it is a gradual knowledge; a man cannot know it all at firſt daſh, God doth not manifeſt his favour and love all at once to his people; and when he gives it, he doth not preſently tell a man what he gives him, though there be wayes for him to know it, and find it out; yet the Lord doth not open himſelf to his people all at the firſt; nay, he doth not ſo to his own Son Chriſt Jeſus, in reſpect of his humanity, as he grew in ſtature ſtature and wiſdom. ſo he grew in favour with God, Luk. 2.52. The divine nature manifeſted it ſelf more and more to his humane; ſo God doth manifeſt his favour and love; and openeth himſelf to his people more and more; according as they grow in goodneſs, they grow in this knowledge, as they are more and more pure in heart, the more do they ſee God, and Gods goodneſs to them, and what God hath done for them; this knowledge, though it be to be had, yet it is to be had by degrees, and the people of God have it not all in one degree; ſome have it in a higher degree, and ſome in a lower; but every man hath ſome of this knowledge that he is called of God, it is impoſſible that a man ſhould be effectually called, and be wholly, and totally ignorant of it.

The knowledge of effectual calling experimental.

Secondly, As this knowledge is gradual ſo it is experimental; a man knows that he is called by experience, chiefly and mainly; as when a man knows by experience, that he comes to God and draws near to God, and that he doth abſtract himſelf from the world, and worldly wayes and practiſes, and layes aſide more and more the carnal wayes of men, and doth approach nearer and nearer unto the things of God in Chriſt: if a man hath experience of theſe things, he comes now to ſay God hath effectually called me, and hath been pleaſed to do me good; when he finds this by experience, that theſe things are wrought in him then he can conclude this: at the firſt he was like a man in a viſion, he could hardly believe that God had effectually called him; as it was with Peter, when the Angel delivered him out of priſon, he was as one that had ſeen a viſion, he had not thought it had been a real thing, he could not tell what to make of it, Act. 12.11. but when he came to himſelf, now ſaith he I know of a ſurety that the Lord hath ſent his Angel, and delivered me out of priſon. At firſt, he could not tell what to make of it, but afterwards, when he ſaw he was in the ſtreets, and that the iron gate opened to him of its own accord; now ſaith he, I know of a ſurety, that the Lord hath ſent his Angel, and delivered me. So it is with the people of God; at firſt, when they hear ſomething from the Father, they know not what to make of this call at the firſt, but afterwards, when they come to ſee this luſt, and that luſt fall off, and theſe and theſe heavenly works in their ſouls, they now know of a ſurety that God hath ſent his Spirit into their ſouls, and delivered them from ſins, and Satan, and hell, and damnation, &c. At firſt they were like dreamers, they were not able to ſay, whether they were called or no; as the children of Iſrael, when they were delivered out of captivity, they could hardly believe it at firſt, Pſal. 126.1. When the Lord turned away the captivity of Zion, we were as thoſe that dreamed, we could hardly perſwade our ſelves, that God had delivered us out of captivity, with ſuch a mercy, ſo great a favour, ſo unlikely, ſo improbable, it could never enter into their hearts almoſt; we were like thoſe that dreamed; but when they ſaw they were in Jeruſalem, and were helped, and aſſiſted, and heard the Gentiles talke of it, and all the people runne up and down when they ſaw it was ſo, and had experience of it, then they ſaw God had done it indeed, and did believe it; ſo when a man is firſt effectually called to come out of his ſins, the Lord knocks off his bolts, and plucks him out of the jaile of hell, and ſets him as it were in Jeruſalem, he is at firſt as a man that dreams, he can hardly believe it is ſo; as it was with David, when God called him to be King, he could hardly believe it, it could hardly enter into his heart, that he ſhould be King over Iſrael, eſpecially being dayly perſecuted by Saul, and calamities heaping up themſelves againſt him, he could not conclude it; but when the Lord had ſet him in his Kingdome, and given him victory over his enemies, now (ſaith he) I know that the Lord ſaveth his anointed, now he could ſpeak it, and found it by experience, that the Lord had made him his anointed, and ſaved and delivered him from all his enemies, before he was ready to deny it, and ſay Samuel was a lyar, he had anointed him to be

King, but I said in my haſt all men are lyars, but when he had experience of it now (ſaith he) I know that the Lord hath ſaved his anointed.

The knowledge of effectual calling ſpiritual.

Thirdly, As the knowledge of effectual calling is gradual and experimental; ſo likewiſe it is very ſpiritual, it is a marvellous ſpiritual work, and therefore no marvel though it be ſomething inſenſible, indeed there be things in it, which are very ſencible and conſpicuous as may be, a reprobate may be galled at a Sermon, he may have his eyes broad open to ſee his ſins and iniquities, and may be wonderfully wrought upon, and may have the ſencible work of vocation, by the very Spirit of God; but the very ſpecificalneſs of it, whereby this effectual calling doth differ from all other callings; this is a marvelous Spiritual thing, and therefore no wonder that it is inſencible ſometimes, and many of the people of God, feare they have it not; theſe things may be done in the ſoul of a man, and a man not know it, and yet it may ſeem ſtrange, that the eyes of the blind ſhould be opened, and the feet of the lame ſhould walk, and the dead ſhould be raiſed, and the devils ſhould be caſt out! it is ſtrange I ſay, that theſe things ſhould be done in a mans ſoul, and yet the man in whoſe ſoul they are done, ſhould be ignorant of them; it is a ſtrange thing, but the works of the Spirit are wonderful ſecret, the actions of the Spirit are very inviſible; when a man humbles himſelf, and prayes, and mournes, theſe are ſencible, he knows what they are; many talke of hunger, and thirſt, and reformation, &c. But to ſee the ſaving, ſanctifying, gracious work of God in theſe things, that is a marvelous hard thing to find this, and it is very ſpiritual, as Solomon ſaith, Eccl. 11.5. As thou knoweſt not the way of the Spirit, nor how the bones grow in the wombe of a woman that is with child; even ſo thou knoweſt not the works of God, who maketh all: if it be ſo in natural things, that we know not how the bones of the child grow in the womb, much leſſe theſe things of the Spirit, ſo our Saviour Chriſt ſaith, Joh. 3.8. The wind bloweth where it liſteth, and thou knoweſt not whence it cometh, nor whither it goeth; even ſo is every one that is borne of the Spirit; that is, every one that is effectually called of God, for regeneration is a part of this effectual calling, to be effectually called of God, it is the blowing of the wind, a man knows not whence it cometh nor whither it goeth; there is a world of ignorance about the wind, ſo there is about the workings of Gods holy and heavenly Spirit; when our Saviour was a working of regeneration in Nicodemus, his heart was at the ſame time, ſaying, how can theſe things be? Chriſt was working theſe things in his heart, and the very ſame time when he was queſtioning, how can theſe things be? So Gideon at the very ſame time when God ſaid unto him, the Lord is with thee, thou mighty man of valour, Judg. 6.14,15. Gideon was doubting that the Lord was not with him, and that he had no might nor ſtrength, as our Saviour ſaid of the ſeed that was ſown in the ground, Mark. 4.26. As if a man ſhould caſt ſeed into the ground, and ſleep night and day, and the ſeed ſpringeth up and growes, he knowes not how: ſo ſaith he is the Kingdome of God, and ſo our Saviour ſaith, ſo it ſhall be at the laſt day when Chriſt ſhall ſay come ye bleſſed of my Father, inherit the Kingdome prepared for you, for I was hungry, and ye fed me, &c. But marke at the very ſame time, the righteous that did all this and our Saviour Chriſt did witneſſe to their faces that they had done it, the righteous ſhall anſwer, when ſaw we thee hungry and fed thee? &c. They hardly knew they had done theſe things, the actions themſelves they could not but know of, they knew they had fed and clothed the poore children of God, but that they did it to Chriſt, for Chriſts ſake, they could hardly ſee this, when did we ſee thee thus and thus, and did ſo and ſo that they looked at Chriſt in this, they had hardly ſo good eyes, hardly ſo good a heart. ſo I might inſtance in more, I ſay the works of God, they are marvelous ſpiritual, and of a wonderful ſubtil ſubtilnes, they may be wrought in the ſoul of a man, and yet a man may be ſomething doubting, and queſtioning whether they be wrought in him yea,

yea, or no; nay, a man may be afraid they are not.

Fourthly, Another reason is, because the knowledge of a mans effectual calling may be very much hindered for a time, partly in regard of loathnes of heart to leave some luſt, though a mans heart may be ſubdued, and humbled for the maine; yet there may be a great deal of holding back; though a man cannot ſtand out in ſin as the wicked do, yet there may be a great deal of backwardneſs, and unmortifiednes in the children of God, and conſcience may ſee it, now when conſcience ſeeth it, conſcience will hide effectual calling from a man, and object, how can you ſay you are effectually called, when you are ſo borne down with ſuch a luſt, and hanker ſo much after it? now if our own heart condemn us, God is greater then our hearts, and ſhall condemn us? much more, it is a pitiful thing, when a mans own heart ſhall condemn him, and his own conſcience ſhall be queſtioning whether he be right or no: ſometimes it falls out thus, even thoſe that are called, yet in regard of unmortifiednes, there is ſuch a deale of matter that the conſcience hath to object, that a man cannot believe indeed, and ſoundly, that he is effectually called: for at firſt when Chriſt comes into the ſoul, before it hath gotten the maſtery and victory, the Spirit doth work exceedingly in the dark, as when it works poverty of ſpirit, ſorrow for ſin, endeavour to leave all ſin, hatred and deteſtation of a mans own waye; loathing of a mans own ſelf, ſhame, confuſion before Gods footſtoole, there is ſuch a ſmoak in the ſoul, where the Spirit doth theſe, that a man cannot ſee them; as if a man be working in a ſmoaky houſe, though he work excellent things, a man can hardly perceive what he doth; ſo there is ſuch a deal of ſmoak in the heart, ſuch a deal of corruption ſtirring, that it hides the ſight of the work of God from a man, yet the work of God goeth along, as ſuppoſe two armies in a field, and the battel be doubtful, the guns fly off, and the ſwords clatter, and the duſt ariſeth, and there is ſuch a confuſion, that neither themſelves nor others, know which way the battel will go, but ſometimes ſome fall on one ſide, and ſometimes ſome on the other ſide; and if a man ſhould ſtand on an hill, and ſee this battle, he cannot tell on which ſide it will be; ſometimes he thinks it will be on this ſide, and by and by, it is turned on the other ſide; and ſo while it is doubtful, it cannot be determined and concluded on which ſide the victory will fall. So it is with the war between the fleſh and the ſpirit, the war is very doubtful before the odds begin, for there is a great deal of evenneſs at firſt; nay, the Spirit ſeems to be the weaker ſide, and the fleſh to be the ſtronger, and there are many falls and foiles given to the ſoul, and the fleſh is too ſtrong; afterwards, it begins to be ſomething equal, and the battel to be poyzed: now while the battel is ſo doubtful, a man cannot tell on which ſide the victory will be, whether on the ſpirits ſide, or on the fleſhes ſide; whether on graces ſide, or on ſinnes ſide; but when the warfare is accompliſhed (I do not mean perfectly, for that will never be in this life) a man may then ſee on which ſide the victory will go; a man may ſee ten thouſand corruptions lie dead, with their throats cut, and the Spirit ſtanding triumphing and conquering more and more, we may now ſee which way the victory will go; the Spirit reigns, and grace reigns, and humility reigns, and heavenly mindedneſs reigns, and all the graces of Gods Spirit have dominion over the whole man.

The knowledge of a mans calling hindred for a time.

Another reaſon, why the knowledge of effectual calling is hindered, is becauſe of ignorance; a child is a man, though he doth not know it, ſo it is with a man that is a new beginner in Religion, he is a new man, though he doth not know it, he hath that in him, that let him have but time, let him but grow, he will quickly be able to look upon it, and be able to ſee what it is; ſo it is with the people of God, they are at firſt very ignorant what God hath given them, as the Apoſtle prayeth for the Epheſians, Eph. 1. 17. that God would let them be no longer children, but that God would open the eyes of their underſtand-

The knowledge of our effectual calling, may be hindered by ignorance.

ing, that they might know what the hope of their calling was, that he would let them know what he had given them; they hardly knew what they had at the first, they had an effectual calling from God, and they had a thousand hopes, they might hope to be strengthened against corruptions, to be delivered in six troubles, and in seaven, they might hope when they died, to be translated into the Kingdome of immortallity and glory for evermore: they had this hope, now (saith he) the Lord of heaven and earth, open the eyes of your understanding, that you may see the hope of your calling, and the exceeding riches of those things that God hath prepared upon you.

A young believer is ignorant of the voyce of the Spirit.

Againe they may be ignorant of the voyce of the Spirit, they do not understand the Spirits language, when a child of God is first effectually called, he comes into a new world, and meets with a new language, he is a Barbarian to it, and that is barbarous to him, he cannot understand the language of the Spirit, the Spirit speaks many comfortable things, and there are many works of the Spirit, whereby the Spirit doth speak to a man for his comfort and consolation, if he could take them as a man that comes into a strange Country, he lives a very uncomfortable life at first, he hears them speak, but he cannot understand them, they speak strange language, he cannot tell what to make of it, but the longer he is there, he comes to understand such a word, and then such a word, and it may be a sentence now and then, and so in the end, he understands them plainly; so at the first, when God calls his people into a new world, the Spirit speaks many things to them, but yet it is in an unknown tongue, it is gibberish to them, they cannot tell what to make of it, but when they come to understand the dialect, they come to rejoyce.

A child of God is ignorant of the work grace.

Againe, the children of God are ignorant of the work of grace, they think certainly, never could any of the children of God that were aright, be in that estate that I am, they never find their hearts so like a log in prayer, when I go to the Sacrament, sometimes I behave my self like a block, and cannot behave my self in any competent manner as I ought; certainly none of Gods people can be thus as I am; they are ignorant what may be in the people of God, what may stand with the truth of God, and so they question their estates and conditions out of ignorance, afterwards when they come to more experience, and finde the wayes of God in them, and come to have a knowledge of their owne corruptions, and of the goodnes of God in purging them out more and more, in the end they are able to speak it to Gods glory, and their own consolation.

How the knowledge of effectual calling may be hindred by ignorance

Againe the knowledge of a mans effectual calling may be hindered by being unresolved of a mans Christian liberty, when there be Christian liberties that a man hath need of every day, and yet notwithstanding a man is not resolved upon it, many a man thinks verily, if he should finde any delight in the good creatures of God, if he should be merry or chearful at any time, if he should be talking of his calling in the world, and speak of it in his communication, and follow his calling diligently, if he should be angry, and let bitter words fly at any time, though his nature make him so, he thinks verily, and concludes that he hath no grace, he is a very worldly carnal man, he favours of these things here below, he favours of the creature, and he is carnally merry, though a man may take care for outward things moderately, and be chearful & be for anger a man may be angry, be angry saith the Apostle, but sin not; now if he be angry at any time, though the thing be lawful, and he hath Christian liberty in the thing, yet not knowing his Christian liberty, this doth exceedingly trouble a man many times, and makes him question his effectual calling; there be abundance of Christian liberties, that we have need of every day, and have need of the knowledge of, and when the soul and conscience doth not know his Christian liberty, (I do not speak of this in regard of the world, they had need have ſtraight limitations & curbs, and we had need put in all the caveats that can be, for they are apt of their own accord to take too much elbow-roome, every man is ready to ſtand upon his liberty, what he may lawfully do, but though wicked men damne their own ſoules in theſe things, yet it is fit the children of God ſhould have their portion, and know it, and the want of this knowledge hinders a man from the knowledge of the things given him of God.

Againe, a man may be ignorant of the tenderneſs of Jeſus Chriſt, and of the infinite bowels of the Sonne of God, and how chary he is over his people, and that he regards a graine of wheat, under an heap of chaffe: it is very probable, that the ſon of Jeroboam had a taint of the family he was taken from, which was marvelous foule; yet notwithſtanding God takes notice of the good things that were in him, though in the Churches in the Revelation, foule and grievous things were found, yet the Lord notwithſtanding takes notice of any thing that was good in them, if there be but a drop of true ſaving grace in the heart, God will take notice of it; though a man be but ſmoaking flax, God will be tender of it, now many a child of God doth not know the tender compaſſions of Jeſus Chriſt, and that he will accept them notwithſtanding a thouſand weakneſſes, and though they have but a little hold, and a little ſtrength to put forth in the wayes of God, and they ſee how many thouſand things they can ſay againſt themſelves, when they ſee not the tender compaſſions of Jeſus Chriſt, and what a tender Saviour he is, the tender mercies of our God, as it is, Luke 1. This hinders them from the knowledge of that, which otherwiſe they might know.

A man may be ignorant of the tenderneſs of Jeſus Chriſt.

Againe, it may be hindered very much through melancholy, it is the very coach that the devil rides in, as Divines ſpeak, it corrupts a mans imagination, and fills it with groundleſſe fears, and doubts, and makes a man ſpeak he knows not what, and he ſaith he doth not do thoſe things he doth, when as thoſe that ſtand by can ſee the contrary: this humour blinds a mans eyes, and perſents he knows not what to a mans minde, as when David was in that paſſion, he cryed out, I am caſt off, what is the matter? Pſal. 31. 10. he was in a melancholy fit, grief hath even waſted me, he was even waſted and pined with grief, ſorrow deading his heart, and mouldring, and pining, and waſting of him, this made him ſpeak words, that he would never have ſpoken at another time: the Apoſtle ſhews, that when a man is overmuch ſad, and grieved, and dejected, and caſt down, and lyeth moaping, and the devil hath a great deal of advantage by this: therefore he ſpeaks to the Corinths, to have a care of that poore man that had committed an horrible ſinne, and it pleaſed God to humble him, he was excommunicated, and delivered over to Satan: now the Corinths were ſomething harſh to this poore man, and were ready to trample upon him, and tread upon him, as if he were not humbled enough, 2 Cor. 2. 7. O ſaith he, forgive him and comfort him, leaſt he be ſwallowed up of overmuch ſorrow: wherefore I beſeech you confirme your love towards him, leaſt Satan ſhould get an advantage of us, ver. 11. that was the reaſon why he would have him careful of this, leaſt Satan ſhould circumvent us, the meaning is, leaſt the devil ſhould make us guilty of overwhelming a poor man, and others by that example might do the like, and ſo the devil might have advantage in after-times.

It may be hindred through melancholy.

In the next place, it may be hindred by the unskilfulneſs of a Minister, many times thoſe that are effectually called, may chance to lye a long time ignorant of Gods mercy, unacquainted with the work of grace which God hath begun in their ſoules, by the unskilfulneſs of the Minister, the Minister that ſhould bind up thoſe that God hath broken, may be like thoſe that afflict him whom God hath ſmitten, Pſal. 100. he doth not feed the lambs of Chriſt, and hold forth the grace of Jeſus Chriſt, perhaps he may preach good truths, admirable

Grace may be hindred by the unskilfulneſs of a Miniſter.

mirable excellent passages, and yet make those sad, whom God would not have made sad; and make those grieved, whom God would not have grieved, as the Lord complains, Ezek. 34.4. The diseased have ye not strengthned, neither have ye healed that which was sick, neither have ye bound up that which was broken, neither have ye brought again that which was driven away, &c.

A Minister though he preach the wayes of God, and Jesus Christ, and the promises of the Gospel, and eternal life; yet if he preach it not in a right manner, if he carry it not as he ought to do, rightly dividing the word of life, he may do a world of mischief, if a man preach hell and damnation, (indeed if a man be going on in his sinnes, and be hardened in his wicked courses, we are to preach hell and damnation to him) but if a man preach hell and damnation to a man that is sencible of his sins, and is of a tender conscience, and ready to think too hardly of his sinnes; it is as if a man should take a beetle to kill a fly upon a mans forehead, to lay a heavy load upon those that are not able to beare it. Ministers may do a great deal of hurt, by preaching the law without distinguishing, and all exceptions being shewed, when he hath not a tender heart towards those whom God hath wounded, and doth not always put in that that may do them good; when a Minister knows what it is, and hath gone through the pikes himself, he can the better stay up the souls of those that are dejected, and yet belong to Christ; therefore David prayeth, give me the way of thy salvation, and then I shall teach sinners the way unto thee, Psal. 51.12,13. as who should say, if I do not know what belongs to the comforts of the Spirit, if I have not waded through these things, and know not how they are given, and how they are taken, I shall never teach sinners the way unto thee, I shall never carry my self aright in that way; he that is a Surgeon, had not need to have a hard hand: so those that have a tender heart, and those that are truely broken for their sins, and are of a contrite spirit, a man had need deale gently with them, according to the estate and condition wherein they are: Ministers many times are too blame, in not preaching Christ aright, as they ought to do, and so may be a hinderance to the comfort of their people.

A Minister ought to preach the word of God in a right manner.

What a woeful thing is it when a man is not able to say, thus, what labyrinths, and meanders is such a soul in, and what heart-aches, and terrible fears, and terrours, and affrightments, and quakings, and misgivings are they subject unto? they must needs be in a miserable, and pitiful case, for whether can they go? what can they hang upon to get comfort? and this is the case and condition of most of those that are amongst us, even of the best sort, though many of them have some good things in them; yet who almost comes to know that he is effectually called of God? these are declining times, and languishing dayes, and people are marvelously scattered for want of care and diligence, and watchfulness, and paines-taking in the wayes of God; there is a woeful deale of unsettling, and want of groundedness in a good estate, people are very much off, and all to pieces; and that you may see what a woeful thing this is, do but consider these particulars.

First, Your consciences cannot but accuse you, you cannot say Christ bare your sins, you know not whether you are in him or no; you know Christ bare the sins of his people, but whether he bare your sins or no that you cannot tell, all your sins and iniquities lie upon your consciences still, though you have been bewailing your sins and confessing of them, and craving forgiveness of them, yet all your actual sins they stil ly upon your consciences: what your consciences could accuse you of formerly, they accuse you of still, such by-thoughts, such wandring prayers, such unprofitable hearing, Paul could say, 1 Tim. 1.15. This is a good saying, that Christ came into the world to save sinners, whereof I am chief; you cannot say so, though you can say that of sinners you are the chief; yet that you have obtained mercy, your consciences will not let you you say it, you question whether you ever had any mercy, or any hold of the mercy of God; therefore you must be like a dry leafe driven to and fro, or a reed shaken with the wind, and as weak as water, you are altogether unstable: what a miserable thing is this, that all a mans corruptions and miseries should lie upon a man, notwithstanding all his prayers, and asking forgiveness, and many tears and sighs, that they should yet lie upon him, as they do until a man knows that he is effectually called of God; all the guiltiness lieth upon his soul, he cannot say he hath obtained mercy of God, he is without God, and without Christ, and is yet in his sins for ought he knows.

First, conscience doth accuse.

No joy in Jesus Christ without knowledge of our interest in him, &c.

Secondly, As your consciences must needs accuse you, so likewise you can have no joy in Jesus Christ, nor any of his promises, nor any of the gracious things in his Covenant, because you know not whether they belong to you or no; when a man knows not a thing, he cannot have any joy in any thing, as Prov 27.1. Boast not thy self of to morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth, a man cannot boast of that he knows not, can a man boast of to morrow? O I shall have a fine day to morrow, when he knows not whether he shall have a morrow or no; he may be dead by to morrow, or his house may be burnt over his head to morrow, he cannot rejoyce in it: So when a man knows not whether he be effectually called of God or no, what joy can he have? what joy can he have in Christ or his ordinances, when his conscience knocks him off, and his soul stands in doubt whether these things belong to him or no? he may catch at these, as Josephs Mistres catcht hold on him, but he left his garment and fled away: so they catch at the promises, and these things, but they fly away from them, and leave them as a shadow, and they are as much to seek as before: and it will be thus as long as a man doth not go on to make his effectual calling sure.

We cannot tell what to make of Gods mercies, without this knowledge.

Thirdly, Thou canst not tell what to make of Gods mercies and blessings to thee; God hath given thee many blessings, life and health, and means, and maintenance, and sweetly provided for thee from thy cradle to this day, and hath recovered thee out of many sicknesses and afflictions, and hath given thee the means of grace, and thou hast heard Sermon upon Sermon, and hast had the acquaintance of his children, and hast dwelt in the land of uprightness, and seen the Saints of God, and the examples of Gods Saints, and thou hast had the motions of Gods Spirit from day to day, and many good things. God hath vouchsafed: but while a man is questioning and doubting, whether he be effectually called or no, he cannot tell what to make of these things; whether he should call them mercies or no, whether they be in wrath or no, to lay him up against the day of wrath, to whom much is given, of him much is required. It is said of the Virgin Mary, when the Angel saluted her graciously, and comfortably, the text saith, she was much troubled, wondring what manner of salutation this should be, Luk. 1.29. So when the Lord sends abundance of sweet mercies, the soul is troubled what mercies these should be; are these mercies that come from Christ, and flow from Gods goodness, as pledges of his grace and favour or no? he is troubled, and cannot tell what to make of them, what are these mercies: and he is afraid he had been better to have been without them, and better he had never known them; it is a miserable thing when a man is uncertaine of his effectual calling; for uncertaine of that, uncertaine of all.

We know not how to beare our selves in afflictions without this knowledge.

Fourthly, Thou dost not know what to do in time of affliction, when affliction comes, (as thou canst not but expect it every day) yet when it comes, how wilt thou bear it? how wilt thou be able to suffer for Christ, and to go to prison for Christs sake; when thou dost question whether the truth ever made thee free? if thou wert able to speak of God as thy Father, and a Kingdom prepared for thee, this would cast out fears, fear not little flock, it is your

Fathers

Fathers pleasure to give you a Kingdom, Luk. 12. 32. but when a man questions whether God be his Father or no? questions whether he hath given him a Kingdom or no? yea whether any such thing belongs to him? may be thinks he is a wretch, and he should wrong God, if he should lay hold on such things; this exposeth a man to fears; what is the reason that many fall away in time of persecution? it is because they want hold of God, as Demas, what is the reason he could not beare Pauls afflictions, but fell away and embraced the world? it was because he wanted Pauls hold: a man must have hold some where, if not on God, some where else: this is the reason why many break their necks, and when persecution comes, they are troubled, and put by, and make shipwrack of a good conscience, and forbear to go on in that way which they ought to go on in; and to yield to those things which they know they ought not to yield to. When a man knows he is effectually called of God, this will make a man suffer for God, as the Apostle Peter speaking of the sufferings of the Saints, hereunto saith he were you called, knowing that Christ suffered for you; when a man is able to say, Christ suffered for me, and God hath effectually called me to his heavenly Kingdom, to pertake of Christ and his benefits, and sufferings; now this will beare a man out, this makes able to endure the losse of liberty, of means, maintenance, or any thing for the Gospels sake; but before, what shall a man do in afflictions? as long as a man doth not know that he is effectually called, he doth expose himself to hazards, and breaknecks, and who knows what may be?

We cannot pray without this knowledge.

Fifthly, Thou canst not pray with any courage, thy prayers are but faith and lanke and weak as water; thou canst not come boldly to the throne of grace, thou art afraid thou art none of Gods, and none of Christs; afraid that thou hast not received the Spirit of God, that thou mayst be the child of God, and art afraid that thy prayers are not accepted of God, but he turnes them into sin, thou canst never have boldnes, (unles it be the boldnes of impudence) but never the boldnes of confidence, how shall a man call upon him, on whom he hath not believed? a man without faith cannot please God, he cannot pray to God: O my Lord, saith Manoah, &c. Judg. 13.8. if he had not prayed with faith, knowing that God was his God, his prayer had not had successe; let this made him pray with the more boldnes and strength; when the Priests of Baal had done praying, and God would not hear them; marke what Elias saith, I am thy servant, Lord heare me, 1 King. 18.36. as who should say, let the people praying, they pray they know not what, and to they know not whom; they are none of thine, but I am thy servant heare me Lord, he comes and acts a better part, and he will be heard before he goes, and finde acceptance before he departs; when a man can say, Lord I am thy servant, I am one whom thou hast redeemed, and effectually called, heare me Lord, this man prayes indeed, he prayes to some purpose.

We cannot go on in the waies of God without this knowledge.

Sixthly, Thou canst not sweetly go on in the waies of God; all the duties of Religion will be a burthen to thy soul, and thou wilt be weary of them, which would be light and pleasant, if thou didst know thy effectual calling of God: but now they will be burthensome; and thou wilt think the Sabbath comes too often, and good duties come too often about; they come so fast, that thou hast no heart or minde to them, for want of that which should sweeten the wayes of God to a man; the knowing of God, and what he giveth about, and the knowing of him he hath to deale withal, without this a man can never go on, nay it is a wonder that thou hast not broken thy neck before this day, that thou hast not turned back to folly, and revolted cleane to the wayes of sinne, that thou hast not turned back to be a drunkard and prophane person againe: it is a wonder that thou prayest in thy family, that thou hast not given over all holy duties, and reassumed the works of the flesh, and cast off all the courses of a godly life; it is a wonderful mercy of God, that thou hast haſt not apoſtatized Take a man that knows he is effectually called, it is a wonder to ſee that man fall; I marvel ſaith Paul that ye are ſoone removed, *Gal.*1.6. A man may wonder what ayleth that man, that knows he hath an effectual call of God, and falls; that man is beſides himſelf, he is not his own man certainly; if he turne back to folly, when he knows God, to turne from his Commandements, to yeild to the luſts of the fleſh, and grow careleſſe and negligent; it is a wonder that ſuch a man ſhould be removed back, but he that never knew of any ſuch things; he hath no knowledge of Gods goodneſs towards him; it is a wounder that he doth not quite fall off, for the knowledge of a mans effectual calling is that which doth preſerve a man, Jude 1. the Apoſtle ſaith, Jude a ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, to them that are preſerved in Chriſt and called; when a man hath an effectual call, he hath that which ſhould preſerve him; therefore when a man comes to know it, what a ſweet thing is this, to be preſerved of God; to be kept and carried through, when Gods people know not this, they are ſubject to falls, and returning back without the Lords wounderful mercy.

Seventhly, What difference is there between thee, and a very wretch, as long as thou knoweſt not that thou art effectually called of God? what difference between thee, and one that is in darkneſs, and under the power of darkneſs, in thy own ſence and feeling? when David was but afraid of falling into this paſſe, *Pſal.*28.1. O Lord (ſaith he) be not ſilent, leaſt I be like them that go down into the pit; he was afraid of falling into that eſtate of doubting of Gods love, and the aſſurance of his love and favour, leaſt he ſhould be like unto thoſe that go down into the pit: ſo may I ſay of thoſe that are unſetled in their minds, and do not know whether they have any good at all wrought in their hearts; what difference do you ſee between your ſelves, and thoſe that are wicked and abominable? you can hardly pitch upon any thing, wherein you differ from a wicked man, as Throgmorton ſaid, brother what will you ſay, if I dye a reprobate? ſo ſuch ſpeeches may come out of thy mouth; what will you ſay, if I dye a reprobate? as David when he had committed thoſe two foule ſins, and had blurred his evidences, and could not ſee Gods goodneſs and mercy towards him, he was faine to begin the world again, create in me O Lord, a cleane heart &c. as though he were to begin from the very ground againe, as if he had loſt all, and had nothing in him; what a miſerable thing is this!

We differ not from wretches without this knowledge.

Eighthly, Thou art of all men moſt miſerable, if thou knoweſt not thy effectual calling; for other men, though they have no comfort in heaven, yet they have comfort in the world; but as for thee, thou haſt neither comfort above nor here below; the wicked of the earth, they care not for thee, becauſe thou profeſſeſt religion; and thy conſcience that miſtruſts, that God cares as little for thee, becauſe thou art not right; and ſo thou art as a meteor hanging in the ayre, caſt out from men and God; conſcience will not let thee cloſe with God, nor cloſe with the wicked; not with God, becauſe thou doubteſt whether thou art his, or no; not with the wicked, becauſe thou art ſtrongly convicted, that their courſes are damnable: now what comfort canſt thou have? when a man cannot tell whether to go, this is the caſe of a man, that knows not whether he be effectually called of God or no.

We are of all men moſt miſerable without it.

Nay laſtly, Let me tell thee this, if thou be totally uncertaine, thou wert never effectually called of God to this very day, but ſtill remaineſt under the guilt of thy ſins, and the wrath of God, and the curſe of the law, and the damnation of ungodly men: for if a man be called, he preſently comes to be faithful, choſen and faithful, *Rev.*19. it is faith that makes up the effectual call, for this call differs from the other; in that this call makes a man come to God by faith; ſo that a man is a believer, if he be effectually called; now if a man be a believer, there is ſome knowledge in faith, *Iſa.*45.24. Surely ſhall

We were never effectually called if we totally want it.

one ſay, in the Lord have I righteouſneſs and ſtrength, ſaith the text: look up and down in all the Scripture, there is ſome ſurety in every believer that he hath righteouſneſs in God, that he hath ſalvation in his name, as the Church ſaith, *Iſa.*53.15. doubtleſſe thou art our Father; it is the ſpeech of people that are marvelouſly troubled with unbelief and doubting, yet at laſt they conclude it, doubtleſſe thou art our Father, they cannot deny it: ſo ſaith David, Pſal. 23.6. Surely goodneſſe and mercy, ſhall follow me all the dayes of my life. 1 Joh.5.19. We know that we are of God, he doth not only ſay it is thus, but we knows it is thus: nay take the doubtfulleſt man that ever was, which was Heman, Pſal.88.1. O Lord God of my ſalvation ſaith he: he was able in ſome meaſure to ſpeak it, that God was the God of his ſalvation, he was not totally uncertaine of it; whereſoever there is faith, there is ſome knowledge.

Obj. But then you will ſay, what is the difference, between the uncertainty that is in believers, and other people? it is true that all believers are effectually called of God, but yet a man may be uncertaine; now the queſtion is, how differs the uncertainty of a true believer that is called of God, and others? The difference is in theſe ſeveral particulars.

Anſ. How the uncertainty of beleevers differs from others.

First, A man that is effectually called of God, as it may be he cannot ſay it, ſo he cannot deny it; and as in part he cannot ſay it, ſo in part he can ſay it, though he hath a great deal of feare and terror and affrightment; and in ſome meaſure he cannot ſay it, yet in ſome meaſure he can, *Mark.*9.24. the man there that came to Chriſt, as he could not ſimply ſay that he did believe, ſo he could not ſimply deny it, but he partly did, and partly did not, Lord I believe, help my unbeliefe; though he could not ſay, he had the grace of faith, ſo he could not deny it: but other men, though they would faine ſay it; yet they cannot in ſpight of their teethes, it makes it appeare (unleſſe they be preſumptuous) that they do but deceive themſelves, and rock themſelves aſleep in a fooles paradice, but the people of God that are called indeed, as they cannot ſay they are ſo, ſo they cannot deny it.

The 2 difference.

Secondly, They that are called of God effectually, though they do not know it; but it may be ſpeak bitter things, as though they were not called, and deny it many times; yet it is only in their haſte, in an odd fit that is come upon them, I ſayd in my haſte all men are lyars, Pſal.31.22. it was only in his haſte, it was only in a pang that came upon him: but now other men, they do not ſay it in their haſte, neither is it only in a paſſion, when they queſtion their effectual calling; but they ſpeak it in their ſober witts, nay they are never in their ſober witts but then; for when they think it is otherwiſe, then they are in a paſſion, in their haſte, they are then in their ſober witts and ſpeak moſt judiciouſly, when they ſay it is not ſo.

The 3 difference.

Thirdly, A godly man as he will ſay he hath no grace, ſo he will let others ſay ſo too; and it will humble him ſo much the more, and he will be the more abaſed, and cauſed to ſeek out more then ever he did before; but an hypocrite, though he will ſay in company ſometimes, I was never yet wrought upon, yet if he hears another ſay ſo, he begins to mince and ſaith you are miſtaken Sir; bleſſed be God I have beeen wrought upon, they cannot endure to heare that another ſhould ſay ſo; but they make as though they had aſſurance, and theſe and theſe gifts and graces, though their own conſciences witneſs to their teeths, that they have it not, yet they cannot abide others ſhould ſay ſo: but a child of God, will not exerciſe himſelf in things that are too high for him; as he is to ſeek, ſo he is content to be taken to be ſuch a one, and when the people of God ſuſpect him, it humbles him, and drives him nearer to God.

The 4 difference.

Fourthly, Such perſons that are effectually called indeed, though they are very ungrounded, and to ſeek in regard of their effectual calling; yet they moſt love and eſteem thoſe that tell them of it, that they may be better grounded, grounded, and ſee God better; when a man comes to them and tells them, you are hypocritical and ſecure, and you neglect duties in your families, and you muſt give over this and that: thoſe that are effectually called of God indeed, will love thoſe that are moſt ſound, and moſt rip them up as it was with Paul, when he was converted; at firſt the Diſciples queſtioned him, Act. 9. 26. they would not believe that he was a convert; did Paul now ſtomack them, and ſhew himſelf offended? no, Paul did go on to manifeſt the truth of his grace more and more, till at laſt it did manifeſt it ſelf: ſo thoſe that are effectually called, they love thoſe moſt that are godly, and queſtion moſt their ſincerity, and it humbles them; and they love a life to be in ſuch company, and they cannot abide thoſe that dawbe them up with untempered mortar; but an hypocrite though his own conſcience queſtions it, and he is as one in a wilderneſs, and in darkneſs, that knows not whither he goeth, yet he cannot abide another ſhould beare him down ſo.

The uncertainty of it breaks the heart.

Fifthly, The uncertainty of the people of God breaks their hearts, and pulls them down before God, it burſts their hearts, and tears, and rends them, that they are not able to endure; they muſt have the favour of God, and the light of his countenance, and know where they are, and the things given them of God; and they count themſelves to have done nothing till they come to this, as David was in this caſe, Pſal. 55.5. he was in a miſerable caſe, as if he were quite loſt: what did this make him do? I went to God and mourned in my prayer, and cryed unto him, as you may ſee in the beginning of the Pſalm, it made him mourne before God, till the light of his countenance ſhined upon his ſoul; but a wretched heart that hopes he is called, though his conſcience doubts of it, this breaks not his heart, nor awakens him, but his vaine hopes build him up, and ſo he is kept off from being right as he ought to be.

Faith ſupplies this uncertainty

Againe, thoſe that are effectually called, though they be uncertaine, yet they believe they ſhall be certaine, and they follow hard after God, till he give them aſſurance, and they build upon it, that they ſhall have it one day, and this builds them up: as it was with Mr. Mayo of Norwich a reverend Divine, in all his Sermons for the moſt part, he would in one paſſage or other move his people to get aſſurance, in the end he ſickened himſelf, and called for all the good people in his pariſh, and told them, you know what Doctrine I have delivered to you; and amongſt the reſt, this was one that I frequently beate upon, that you would labour to be aſſured; now I muſt tell you that I never had aſſurance to my ſelfe, but I did ever look for it; and now by the mercy of God I have it, and as I preached this doctrine to you when I was living, ſo now I ſay unto you being a dying man, labour to get aſſurance; ſo that he did verily believe that he ſhould have it in the end, though as yet he had it not, and this ſtayed his ſoul to go on in all his wayes: as David, when he was caſt down, and had much ado to keep his hold, and had no aſſurance at that time, Why art thou caſt down O my ſoul? why art thou diſquieted within me, hope thou in God, for I ſhall yet praiſe him, who is the health of my countenance and my God, Pſal. 42.11. though he were caſt down and dejected, this was his ſtay, I ſhall yet praiſe him, &c. he did verily believe he ſhould rejoyce in his holy name, and overcome thoſe diſtreſſes, and have the Lords mercy ſealed to his ſoule, and have his mouth filled with his praiſes, Why art thou caſt down O my ſoul? I ſhall yet rejoyce in his holy name, I ſhall yet ſhew forth his prayſes, I ſhall yet be able to apply his promiſes, and be able to ſay he is my God and my Redeemer.

Faith contrary to doubting.

Againe, the children of God, that are effectually called, though they doubt never ſo much, yet their faith is of a contrary nature to their doubting, and excludes doubting. Mat. 21. If you believe and have faith, and doubt not, ſaith the text; not as though faith cannot have doubtings ſtand with it, but faith is of that nature, as excludes, and expells doubtings, and fights against it, as fire against water, and such a man fights against doubtings as he would fight against temptations to murther & adultery, he knows that infidelity is the mother of all sinne, and therefore faith fights against doubting, and goeth to the throne of grace to be established.

A child of God may doubt of his condition.

Lastly, Though a child of God doubt of his condition; yet this is certaine, that Christ is the power of God to that man, though he know not whether he be effectually called by Christ; yet Christ is the power of God to his soul, as 1 Cor. 1.24. Unto them which are called Christ is the power of God, and the wisdom of God. He is powerful to his soul, for the humbling, awakening, quickening of him, for strengthening of him against sinne, for the making him hold out in the waies of God: he is of power to him in all his ordinances, in prayer, in hearing the Word, and in all his wayes: But it is not so with others that question the effectual calling, Christ is not the power of God to them, Christ is of no effect to them; he may be of some effect, for enlightnings, and stirrings, and outward reformation; but to bring them to goodnes, and holinesse indeed, and to hatred against sinne, Christ is not the power of God to those persons, but he is foolishnes to them.

Now the next thing that I will shew you, is a point that hath been a little touched; but I will passe over what hath been spoken, and will speak more at large of it: I desire to speak more particularly, and punctually of this same effectual calling.

Effectual calling is the first gathering of men unto Christ.

And the first point we will take out of it is this; that effectual calling is the first gathering of men unto Christ, the first making of men to come to Christ, the first putting of a man into the estate of grace, it is the very portall to religion, the very entry into eternal life, it is the first bringing of a man to partake of the Lord Jesus Christ, and to have fellowship with him: so it is called in Scripture, the gathering of the elect home, Isa. 56.8. I will gather (saith the Lord) the out casts of Israel: he propheseth there of the effectual calling of the Gentiles, and God saith here, this is the first thing that I will do, I will gather them to my people, I will make them come home to the Lord Jesus Christ: this is set forth unto us by our Saviour Christ in two principal parables, one of the Net, Mat. 13.47,48. againe, the Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a Net, &c. So that here speaking of the effectual calling of people, this is said to be the first act of God in it, namely, the gathering of them for the Kingdom of heaven by the preaching of the Word, and this net is the Gospel that is preached, the sea is this world, the fishes are men, and the good and bad are elect, and reprobate, (not as though the elect were good before they are effectually called, but they are called good, because of Gods designation and decree to make them good, and he looks upon them as such as shall be good, and such as he hath purposed to make good in his time) Now the Gospel doth draw out of the world Gods elect (by a generall call, it calls both elect and reprobate) but effectual calling, is the gathering of good fishes, that in the end of the world shall be put into vessels by themselves, so that effectual calling, the first act of it, is the gathering of men home to God, the other parable is, Luk. 15.4,5. What man having lost an hundred sheep, &c. all the lost sheep of Israel, and of Gods election that are in their lost estate, as well as other people, before God takes them in hand, here you see the first act God doth towards them, before which they were altogether lost, and are now found againe, is the fetching of them home, the taking of them upon Christ his shoulders, and bringing them home unto him. I say, effectual calling, it is Gods first making of a man to come to Christ, you may see it, 1 Pet. 2.4. To whom coming as to a living stone, ye also are built up, &c. he alludes unto their first effectual calling, when God did first deale with them, he made them to come to him to be put into this building, the children of God after that they are effectually called, are said to be in this

this building, but this first act of God, is the putting of them into this building, the bringing of them to be laid into this excellent edifice, for there is no such building in the world, is it a building, whose foundation is Christ, and all the Saints of God are built upon it; it is the most admirable building in the world: now effectual calling brings a man, and layes him into this building, before a man is effectually called he is as a stray sheep, as a sheep scattered abroad, and roaming and ranging up and down the waies of sin, and of death, whom the devil hath pounded as a stray; he is departed from God, and is roaming up and down in the world; he is in a lost estate, till God come with this effectual calling and bring him home, 1 Pet. 2. 25. For ye were as sheep going astray, but are now returned to your shepheard, that is, ever since your effectual calling you are come home to God, that was your returning time; before you were as chickens subject to the kite, till this hen gathered you under her wings, and made you safe: so againe, it is called the drawing of a man unto Christ, Joh. 6. 44. No man cometh to me, except the Father draweth him, that is except the Father effectually call him, he cannot come unto me; now this bare and naked calling cannot do it without drawing, therefore it is here called drawing of a man, before which a man was altogether out of Christ: therefore this is the first act God performes upon a man, to draw him to Christ; the man is as unwilling to come to Christ naturally, as any else; his lusts draw him another way, and he is as heavy as a milstone, and his heart is lumpish to the things of God, till the father draws him, and pulls his affections, and thoughts, and minde to come home unto Christ; this is the first act God doth, and againe, it is called the bringing of a man to Christ, Joh. 10. 16. other sheep also have I, saith Christ, which I must bring unto this fold, he speaks here how that he means to call the Gentiles, (all the elect of God among them) now because they cannot come, they have no strength of their own to come, therefore he saith, he must bring them unto him.

Againe, there must be application of Christ unto a man; now effectual calling is the first step to the application of the Lord Jesus Christ to a man; we know the Lord Jesus is the Redeemer of the world, he hath taken away the sinnes of the world, satisfied the wrath of God, wrought righteousnesse for Gods elect, he hath overcome death, and sinne, and Satan, and hath expiated for us, and wrought an everlasting salvation by his own death and passion, in the daies of his flesh, Christ hath done this; now except this be applied to a man, what is a man the nearer? now the first step of the application of the redemption of Christ is wrought by this effectual calling of a man unto him: then the Lord begins to make a man have union with Jesus Christ, before a man was like a branch out of the vine, a dead branch that could do nothing, he could not repent, or serve God, or please God, or do any thing, he was estranged in minde and heart, and will: but when God doth effectually call a man, he doth first work this application of Christ, that a man may have union with him, and effectual calling is the first putting of a man into the estate of grace; the first estating of a man into eternal life, it is the first ingrafting of a man into the Son of God, it is the putting on of Christ; the Saints of God, after they are called weare Christ, and walke in Christ: but at a mans first effectual calling, there is the putting of him on: it is the first notice that a man hath of salvation, the first tydings that comes to the soul of eternal redemption by Jesus Christ; people heare it with their outward ears before, but never do they come to heare this in their souls and spirits till now; this is the first notice and inkling of it; when God doth effectually call them, then he begins this work, as Col. 1. 6. which Word is come unto you (speaking of the Gospel) it is come unto you, and bringeth forth fruit, since the day you heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth; that is, since the day you were effectually called, then was the first time of hearing this blessed Gospel; your ears were deaf till then, your hearts were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes till then; but when you were effectually called, then was the firſt knowing of the grace of God in truth; therefore it is called in Scripture, the firſt beginning of God to do a man good: it is the firſt beginning of all the goodneſs of God towards a man, as Phil. 1.6. being confident in this, that he which hath begun a good work in you, will perform it till the day of Jeſus Chriſt; that is, he that did effectually call you, as he did begin a good work in you, and did begin to put forth his eternal good will and pleaſure in you, and powred forth the beginning of his mercy, and grace and favour into your ſouls; now he that hath done this, will never leave it, till he hath brought it to perfection. So againe, it is called the firſt building of a man for heaven, this is done in effectual calling, Acts 15.14. Simeon hath declared how God at the firſt did viſit the Gentiles (ſaith the text) to take out of them a people for his name; that is, the Word had effectually called the Gentiles, and this ver. 16. is called the firſt building of the Gentiles, and the firſt plucking of them out of the other people of the world, to be a people of God. This is the firſt day of a child of Gods conſecration, it is called the forming of Chriſt in a mans heart, when a man comes to be formed in the womb of the Church, before he was a non ens, he had no being in the world, he was but a natural man; but this new workmanſhip never came into the world till now, when a man is effectually called. So againe, it is called a mans firſt entring into Chriſt, enter in at the ſtraight-gate, as who ſhould ſay, obey the call of God, come in; a mans effectual calling, is a mans firſt entring into the eſtate of grace (I ſpeak the more largely of it, becauſe I would have you underſtand the Scripture that ſpeaks of it in theſe phraſes) I ſay, effectual calling is the firſt ſtep to the application of Jeſus Chriſt, the firſt ſtep of putting a man into the eſtate of grace, the firſt bringing of a man to Chriſt.

There must be applying of Christ to a man.

Before effectual calling no intereſt in Chriſt

The firſt reaſon of this is, becauſe before effectual calling, a man was without Chriſt, and had no intereſt in Chriſt, no communion or fellowſhip with Chriſt, he was altogether dead in treſpaſſes and ſinnes, a curſed creature, a damned creature, in the eſtate of ſinne and condemnation; whatever parts or gifts he had, all were no better then may be in a reprobate, Eph. 2.12. before that time you were without Chriſt, aliens and ſtrangers from the commonwealth of Iſrael; may be you were civil, but you had no union with Chriſt; though you were conſtant hearers of the Word (which is a laudable thing) yet you had no union with Chriſt; may be you were decked with admirable qualities and jewels, as the Prophet ſhews; a man may be decked with golden vertues, and afterwards turne to droſſe; a man may have admirable things in him, before he hath this; but there was nothing of God in a man, nothing of Chriſt in a man, no ſaving operation of Gods Spirit at all in a man, no union with Chriſt: this is the firſt paſſage of a man from death to life, from nature to grace, from the devil to God, we are paſſed from death to life (ſaith the Apoſtle) this is an alluſion to a mans effectual calling, afterwards a man brings forth the fruits of life, and is alive to God; but when a man is firſt effectually called, there is his paſſage from death to life, he was a dead man before. Now this effectual calling therefore is the firſt work that is wrought in a man, becauſe it is the firſt paſſage of a man from death to life; it is a tranſition from ſinne, hell, and damnation, to be in Chriſt; therefore marke how Peter ſpeaks, when he had a hope that his hearers were effectually called, Acts 8. 40. Save your ſelves (ſaith he) from this untoward generation; as who ſhould ſay, this is your firſt parting from the world, the firſt ſhaking of hands, and bidding them farewell, if you be effectually called as you ſeem to be, come out from among them, and ſave your ſelves from this untoward generation, this is the firſt burſting of the bonds between you and ſin; the firſt breaking of the league between you and carnal company; now ſave your ſelves from this untoward generation, ſeparation, and make it appeare that you are called, this the Apoſtle ſheweth, *Gal.*1.13. that before he was called he had nothing in him at all; you have heard ſaith he, how in times paſt beyond meaſure I perſecuted the Church, &c. I confeſſe I had goodly things in me, and I profitted in the Jewiſh Religion above many my equals in my own nation, being more jealous for the traditions of my fathers; I was marvellous ſtrict and forward, and for the letter of the law; I was marvellous zealous and blameleſſe: there were excellent good things in me; but I had nothing of Chriſt all this while, but when it pleaſed God, who ſeperated me from my mothers womb, and called me by his grace, &c. as who ſhould ſay, now here was the firſt dawning of that bleſſed light in my heart, now begun that to appeare when God called me by his grace, and firſt revealed his Son in me, then was the deed done, and never till then: ſo alſo he ſhews that he was a curſed creature living in iniquity; it may be himſelf, and his companions, took him to be as good a man as any was in all Iſrael, but ſee how he caſts his own water, Tit. 3 3. We our ſelves alſo, were ſometimes fooliſh, ſerving divers luſts, &c. but after that the kindneſs and love of God appeared, &c. from thence he began to be in the eſtate of grace, when God called him out of that bad eſtate, when God made a breach between him, and his old courſes; when he made the firſt rent, and diviſion, and revoke, then grace began to appeare, from that time forward I was in Chriſt: thus you ſee that effectual calling is the firſt work of God in a mans ſoul, it is the firſt bringing of a man to Chriſt, and the firſt making of a man to put him on.

Effectual calling declared in the heart.

Secondly, Becauſe before effectual calling, all was within God; what God would do with this or that man; may be he meant to ſave him, may be he meant to dam him, may be he meant to open his eyes, may be he meant to let him go on, and live and dye in blindneſs, may be he meant to turne his heart, may be he meant to let him go on with the world; all was within his own boſom, there was no inkling, that ever this man ſhould have grace, and eternal life, nor man, nor Angel, nor himſelf, could perceive any ſuch thing: a man might have vaine hopes, and falſe conceits, but no inkling from heaven, but he was as faire to be a reprobate, as the devils in hell? but when God effectually calls a man, then he begins to declare what he intends to this or that man, he begins to open his breſt, and ſhew what purpoſe he had in himſelf from all eternity, as Eph. 1.9. having made known unto us (ſaith the Apoſtle) the myſtery of his will, which he purpoſed in himſelf, &c. it was all in himſelf before, ſhut up in his own ſecret and privy boſom, but when God did effectually call us ſaith he, then did he make known unto us the myſtery of his will; it was a myſtery locked up, it was a ſecret thing that ever he had a purpoſe to bring us to ſuch things, to let us ſee ſuch mercies; now here was the breaking open of this ſeale, now it began to ſhew it ſelf, now the Lord declared what purpoſe he had in himſelf, now he makes it appeare, that we are his elect and choſen, and his beloved ones, as Paul ſaith of the Romans, to all that are at Rome, beloved of God called to be Saints, &c. Rom.1.7. you will ſay, how do you know we are beloved ones? If you be called to be Saints, I dare be bold to ſay, you are beloved of God, God hath made it to appeare that he loves you: I could not ſpeak thus before, you were as vile drunkards and profane perſons, as any were in Rome; but now I dare be bold to ſay, you are beloved of God; nay more, grace and peace be to you from God the Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, you are called to be Saints, and if you are once called, then it doth appeare you are the beloved of God; it is Gods golden ſcepter, no man could tell whom the King would call to him, no man could tell, this or that man ſhould be called rather then another, till he held out his golden ſcepter, *Heſt.*4.11. ſo it is with God; when God doth hold out this golden ſcepter to a man, now a man hath an inkling that the Lord hath choſen him, and will be good to him, and and hear him, and help him in all his wayes and pardon him, and do every good thing for him, as Mark 3. 13. (I use it onely as a similitude) our Saviour Christ was there in the mount, and the people were below in the vally, now saith the Text, he called unto him, whom he would, and they came unto him, he was in the mount, and all his Disciples were in the vally, now no man could tell, who should be an Apostle: Andrew saith Christ, come up; now he was one who should be next no man could tell, Peter come up, then they knew he was one too, &c. Therefore this calling was the first intimation of Christs purpose to them, it was secret in his own bosom, whom he would make Apostles before; but when he called them, it came forth, Andrew sees he is the man, and Peter sees he is the man, &c.

All works follow the work of effectual calling.

Thirdly, Because all other works, follow this work of effectual calling; there be abundance of works that God doth work upon his people, that he hath chosen to his Kingdom and glory, he doth justifie them, and pardon their sins, and sanctifie and cleanse them from iniquity, makes them grow in grace, hears their prayers, makes them depend upon him in all their needs and necessities, he makes them deny themselves, and works the grace of humiliation more and more, and a trade of godlinesse, and a course of holiness and piety; now not one of these works are, till a man is called, all things work together for the best to those that are called, Rom. 8. 28. this is a leading work, now all works come in; now the word works, and prayer works, and the Sacrament works, and afflictions work, and sinne works, when a man is effectually called; this is the great wheele of motion, now all things work together for the good of him that is called according to Gods purpose: this is the first ground work, the first breaking of the ice, the first setting of a man forth towards heaven; therefore we shall see when the Apostle is to write to any man or Churches, commonly before ever he bids them do this or that, the first thing he speaks to them about, is this; he tells them they are effectually called, as Rom. 1. 7. afterwards he bids them yield their members, as weapons to righteousness, and adviseth them to walk in the Spirit, and give up their bodies and souls, as a living sacrifice to God; not to be conformed to the world, but to be transformed in the spirit of their minds, and to walk in love, and redeeme the time; and abundance of other works he sets them about: but first of all he names their effectual calling; as who should say, I take it for granted that you are called; it is a folly for me to bid you do this or that, if you were not effectually called, else I should alwaies be beating, what damned and miserable creatures you are; shall I bid you pray, and professe Religion, and you not effectually called, you can never do this: therefore this is the first thing, you are called of God. So when he writes to the Corinths, 1 Cor. 1. 2. called to be Saints, it is the fore front of all his Epistles; as who should say, I shall speak abundance of things to you, but you are called of God; therefore he bids them do this and that, and the other, all works come after this effectual calling, as it is in other particular callings; suppose a man be called to be an Apostle, all the acts and performances that an Apostle doth, they come after he is called, else they are not the acts of an Apostle, but a medler; therefore in all the Apostles writings, when he doth the acts of an Apostle, to exhort them, and rebuke them in the Lord, he shews his calling, Paul called to be an Apostle; as who should say, do not judge amiss of me; you may think, what have I to do with you? we have a Minister already, what have you to do in Corinth? meddle with your own places where you live; mistake me not, I am called to be an Apostle; so that his calling to be an Apostle, is before all other actions; first, he is called, and then exhorts, instructs, reproves, &c.

Several names given to effectual calling.

Fourthly, Another reason is taken from the names that are given unto effectual calling: first it is called a mans gathering unto Christ, as Joh. 11. 50, 51, 52.

51.52. it is the prophecy of Caiphas, though he ſpake he knew not what, yet he ſpake right, as the place doth imply, it is expedient, ſaith he, that one man ſhould dye for the people, and gather together the children of God that were ſcattered; as who ſhould ſay, this is the firſt act that the Lord Jeſus doth upon thoſe that are his, they were ſcattered till then; and now when he comes effectually to call them, he puts his firſt act upon them, and gathered them to himſelf; ſo alſo it is called a drawing unto God, Joh. 12.32. When I am lifted up, I will draw all men unto me; that is, when he was lifted up upon the croſſe, he would call the Gentiles, all his elect people unto him; he doth not ſpeak of all men, but he ſpeaks of the elect, he will draw all them to him, he will call them home. So againe it is called in Scripture, the entring of a man into Chriſt, as a Scholar that is admitted into a Colledge, his name is firſt entred; ſo effectual calling is a mans firſt entring into the Schoole of Chriſt, into the family of Chriſt; when a man is firſt entred into that bleſſed ſociety, as *Joh.*10. 9. I am the doore, if any man will enter by me, he ſhall be ſaved, and go in and out, and finde paſture; he ſpeaks here of the firſt act of a mans coming before that he was quite out of doors: this is the firſt act, his firſt entring into Chriſt to be of his ſheepfold, and flock, to feed upon his paſtures, and to have the benefit of his Scepter, and be governed and guided by him, as the true ſhepheard: effectual calling enters a man into Chriſt. Againe it is called a mans coming in, *Rom.*11.25. untill the fulneſs of the Gentiles is come in, that is, until the elect Gentiles be effectually called; now becauſe he would expreſſe what effectual calling is, he calls it the coming of a man in; he was without before, as other dogs were, that had no part in the tree of life, no intereſt in the ſalvation purchaſed, as far off as thoſe that were reprobates; but now is his coming in: and ſo I might inſtance in other names.

Laſtly, Becauſe it is the firſt extract of election, and predeſtination unto eternal life, as *Rom.*8.30. Whom he did predeſtinate, them alſo he called. there was the firſt impreſſion of the ſeale upon the wax, there was the firſt image that he made, whom he did predeſtinate, them he called; afterwards he juſtified them, &c. therefore you ſhall finde in Scripture, that election & calling are put together, becauſe this is the firſt bluſh of it, as *Rev.*17.14 The King of Kings, Lord of Lords, and they that are with him are called and choſen, he puts them both together, what a marvelous comfort is this to thoſe that know they are effectually called of God! election and vocation, are individual companions, and cannot be ſeparated one from the other; that man that is elected, it is certaine he ſhall be called; this is that which makes a man actually elected; my meaning is this, though a man were elected before all worlds, though now living in the eſtate of ſinne and death, and damnation, a vile wretched ſinner; he was elected it may be, but not actually elected in himſelf, there was nothing of election in him, there was no image nor ſeale of election ſtamped upon him, nothing of it put forth in him; therefore this is the reaſon, why in Scripture vocation is called election, *1 Cor.*1.26,27. You ſee your calling brethren, not many wiſemen after the fleſh, not many mighty, &c. are called, but God hath choſen the fooliſh things of the world to confound the wiſe; the one is the image and the effect of the other, he puts one for the other, you ſee your calling, how? becauſe God hath choſen the fooliſh and baſe people, and not thoſe that are more noble and excellent; this is the reaſon, for as election is before all times, ſo vocation is in time; it is the electing, or chooſing, or calling of a man out of the world; ſo that vocation and election are very much a kinne the one to the other; it is juſt as Gods decree of creating and creating; the creating of the world was juſt according to the idea he had framed in his decree, ſo the calling of a man is juſt the image and idea of what God had decreed to a party from all eternity; therefore it muſt needs be the firſt work that is wrought upon a man.

Dangerous to erre about our effectual calling

Vse 1. This sheweth us why it is such a dangerous thing for any man in the world to mistake his effectual calling, and think he is called of God, when he is not; because it is the first work of all, therefore very dangerous to erre in it: what, to erre in the very first work of all, in the maine and principal, in the very beginning of all the whole workmanship: it is a very grievous thing: The Apostle St. James, writing to Christians professing Religion, to take heed they think not they have grace, when they have not, he bids them take heed they do not erre, Iam. 1. 16. he speaks not there in regard of particulars, but in the general it is dangerous to erre in any point, but to erre in such a thing as is of this nature, it is most woefull.

Because this is the foundation.

Reas. 1. Because this is the foundation; now it is a horrible thing in intellectuals, in matters of theory to erre in fundamentals; so it is in practicals, it is an horrible thing for a man to erre in the very foundation of Religion, in the first acquaintance with God, in the very ground and bottom of all; a man had need lay the foundation well, because else the whole building falls; effectual calling is the very ground of a mans going to God, it is the very ground of a mans laying hold upon God, and of the profession of Religion, and all the building must come to nothing, if this be not well laid; God forbid I should go about to shake any man, or call in question any mans Religion, or hope or comfort, I deny not people the professing of Gods name, or the calling upon God, or the coming to the Sacraments, I do not deny them this, but I beseech you, be sure that you have a good foundation for all, for all will come to nothing else; you remember what became of the mans house that was built upon the sands, that had no foundation, Mat. 7. 26. When the raine came, and the floods beate upon that house, it fell. the house came falling down as if it had never been built: so have a care of the foundation, it is a most miserable thing, if the foundation be not well laid.

Because man most often have recourse to it.

Secondly, Because effectual calling is a thing that a man must have a thousand references unto before he die; if he lives, he must every day have a reference to this, a man can do nothing, but he must still have a reference to his effectual calling, he must ever and anon be looking back to this; God hath called me to his glory and vertue, he will be driven to this whether he will or no; it is like a mans evidence, when any wrangling companion shall question his right in his estate, he must have reference to his evidences, and if he find them hardly currant, what a stound will he be put unto, if he find his evidences rotten and unsound, he knows not what course to take; why? effectual calling is that which a child of God must have reference unto all the dayes of his life, from the first estating of him in the Kingdom of God from the first bringing of him to partake of eternal life: when David was in affliction in body and minde, and doubts came upon him thick and threefold, he was faine to have reference to his effectual calling, and that comforted him, Psal. 119. 50. This is my comfort in affliction, for thy Word hath quickened me, when he was in affliction of conscience, and minde, and body, he began to look back, time was when I was dead in sinnes and trespasses, I never looked after God, but thy Word hath quickened me; this raised him up, this was his comfort in his affliction, the Lord had called him to his Kingdom, and made him partaker of the work of grace, and this cheared him; had he not had reference to this he could have had no hold; without this a man is as in a wilderness, a lost man; therefore what a fearefull thing is it for a man to take himself to be effectually called when he is not? it is as it were to lay a springe for a mans soul, it is as a net for the devil to take a man, and so carry him on in hopes and expectations, and then when he looks back, and sees his bottom and foundation he stands upon is nothing but conceit, this is a miserable thing.

Because it is the beginning of Gods works on the soul.

Thirdly, Because it is the beginning of the works of God; now what a thing is it for a man to strike out of the way at his beginning? if a man have a journy to go, if he go out of the way as ſoon as ever he goes out of doores, he muſt needs be wide, he had been better have ſtayed at home; a man were better go out of his way at any time, then at the beginning, if he go ten miles, and then go out of his way, there is ſome hope; it is not all in vaine, he hath gone ten miles onward of his journy; but for a man to go out of his way, as ſoone as ever he ſteps out of doors, he is caſt further off, then if he had never ſtirred a foot; it is an excellent thing when a man begins well, Gal. 3.3: Ye began in the Spirit, &c. though they ſtruck out of the way afterwards, and yielded to a great deale of carnal doctrine and fleſhly propoſitions, and were a world out of the way, yet this was to great purpoſe that they began well; St. Paul durſt not but call them the children of God, he could hardly tell what to make of them; yet he ſaith, little children ye have put on Chriſt, and done thus and thus, and went out to eternal life in a right manner, therefore God will bring you in againe certainly, you muſt come againe, you began well, you began in the Spirit; but when a man in his very beginning ſhall erre, his error was in principio, as ever he ſet out of doors, he went clean contrary, this man hardly ever returnes, nay he had been better never to have ſtepped forth; when a man ſteps into a way which ſeems good to him, commonly that way is death to him; when he hath gone a thouſand miles, as he thinks, in the profeſſion of Religion, and hath gotten the apprehenſion in his own ſoul to be the child of God, then to lay it down, it goes to the heart of him; he will build an high wall in his own imagination, certainly it is thus; indeed it is better to turne then go forward, but it is the corruption of a mans heart he cannot abide to returne, it will be a ſhame to him, and there muſt be ſuch a do, that he is not able to beare it; I do not deſire to unſettle any man, if a man hath but his fingers ends to lay hold upon Chriſt, any truth to hang upon him, let him hang, God for bid I ſhould ſhake ſuch a one; but if your error be in the beginning, and if you have gone out of the way, you were better to returne, for you will never go right.

Uſe 2. Here we may ſee the reaſon why the Scripture is ſo urgent to make our calling ſure, becauſe this is the firſt entrance, and admiſſion into Jeſus Chriſt; there is an excellent place, 2 Pet. 1.10,11. Wherefore the rather brethren give all diligence to make your calling and election ſure, for he that doth theſe things ſhall never fall; for ſo an entrance ſhall be made unto you, into the everlaſting Kingdom of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; make it ſure, why? for if you do, you ſhall never fall; that is not all neither, though this is a great matter, is not this a great matter for a man to be ſure never to fall away? but he ſhall ſtand and hold out for ever, what a mercy is this? yet this is not all; for ſaith he, ſo ſhall an entrance be made unto you, into the Kingdom of Jeſus Chriſt, as who ſhould ſay, your effectual calling is the very entrance into the Kingdom and glory of Jeſus Chriſt, it is the very firſt entring into the way of eternal life, if you are aſſured of this, you are in a faire way, you are in the gates of heaven, you are in an excellent way, if you have made this ſure; therefore make that paſſlal peradventure, that you were called indeed of God to partake of Jeſus Chriſt.

See why Scripture urgeth us to make our calling ſure.

Reaſ. 1. The reaſon to urge this, is firſt, becauſe effectual calling is ſuch a firſt work, that as God doth it at firſt, ſo it ſtands for all, a man ſhall never be called more: God doth it once, and will never do it againe; look what God gives a man at firſt, he gives him once for all, you may ſee it, Jud 1. ſaith he I would have you earneſtly contend for the faith, which was once delivered to the Saints; when God did effectually call his Saints, he delivered to them faith, and he delivered it to them then once for all, never to give it to them againe; but then they had it once for all, as it is ſaid of Chriſt, he was once offered for all, Heb 9. So when God doth effectually call a man, he doth give him this call once for all, he gives him faith once for all, and grace once for all; but you will say when God gives grace he reneweth it every day, and affoards new helps, and new assistances; 'tis true, and without this, no man can stand without supply from God continually, the very elect could not persevere unto the end; but yet God gives them no new graces, he gives them more of the same love to God, and more of the same faith, and more of the same desires, and endeavours after goodness; but the thing is never to do againe, as Christ saith to the woman of Samaria, Joh. 4. 14. Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; when Christ brings a man to this well, and gives him the first draught, he shall never thirst more, he shall never have it to do againe; God doth it once for all; that is, that man that is once effectually called, is never uncalled, if he hath once faith given him, he is never totally deprived of it, it is once delivered to him, for all times afterwards: now this shews us, that it concerns us nearly to be assured of this, when a man hath done a thing, that can be but once done, it must stand for all; and the thing is good and necessary, would he not be sure of it? such a thing is effectual calling.

Reaſ. 1.

All the promises of God, meet in a mans effectual calling

Secondly, Because all the promises meet here, as all the streams meet where the fountaine opens its self, so all the promises of God meet in a mans effectual calling; when God effectually calls a man, he saith, take my Son, come unto me, cast thy self upon me; and be ruled by me, he doth this effectually, and saith thus to him; thou shalt have my Son, and with him all things, pardon of thy sins, the peace of a good conscience; I will give thee power against all thy lusts, the gates of hell shall not prevaile against thee; I will keep thee here in this world through faith unto salvation, take my yoak upon thee, and learne of me, and thou shalt have all these things, and therefore, Rev. 19. 9. Blessed is he that is called to the supper of the Lamb, these are the true sayings of God, as who should say, though you may question it, and doubt it, and call it into controversy, I tell you it is true; these are the true sayings of God, and you may build your self upon it, you are blessed if you be once effectually called of God, all the promises of God belong unto you, Acts 2. 39. the promises belong to you, and to your children, to as many as God shall call; all that are called of God, all the promises of God belong unto them; as soon as ever Christ hath effectually called a man, he opens his liver-veine, and lets out all his heart blood upon him, all belongs to that man, it is like the first joyning of hands between man and wife, with all my goods I thee endow: when God first takes a man out of the world, to live unto him, and seek his Kingdom, and labour to please him, and from this time forward to believe in his name, with all his goods he him endows, he gives him title to eternal life, to all the helps and furtherances, that ever he shall need for this life or eternal life, he shall have all: now what a needful thing is it, when all the promises meet here, as at a fountaine head; here is the spring let forth, how needful is it I say, that a man should labour that he be effectually called of God; we should look for it every day, and pray to God to have it, and strive to have it appeare unto us, that our calling is sound: here is the very in-let of all the comforts of the holy Ghost, and all the hope that the soul can have, here is all the satisfaction and content of the soul of man; they are bestowed upon a man, when he is effectually called, there is a way set open unto him, that he may have the same.

Effectual calling is the first point of obedience

Thirdly, Because this is the first of all obedience, a man cannot obey God, till he be effectually called; nay, it is not obedience till he be called, if a man should heare Sermons, come to the Sacraments, give to the poore, it is no obedience till a man be effectually called: when once a man is bound apprentice, and his indentures are drawn, his running of errands, and all he doth is service to his Master; when thou art bound apprentice to Christ, and thy indentures are sealed, and thou art called to be a servant unto him; now all thy thy works are obedience to him, Come saith Christ, learne of me, &c. Mat. 11. 28. first he would have them come to him, and beare his yoak, and then learn of me; then be meek as I am meek, and humble as I am humble, and then bear my burthen; then it is obedience and you are able to go through, Faithfull is he that hath called you, who will also do it; effectual calling is the fill-horse of the cart, that bears up the cart, this is the first draught; a Painter cannot lay any colour, till the first draught be made: this is the very ground of a mans workings; this is the ground of all obedience, of all prayer, and hearing, here is the ground of doing all aright, otherwise God will say, what hast thou to do, to take my name into thy mouth, unlesse thou wilt submit to my Covenant and be bound apprentice with me; a man that is yet in his sins, he hath nothing to do as yet, but to lye at the throne of grace, crying that God would give him a call, for he can do nothing till he is effectually called of God.

Effectual calling is the only means to go forward.

Fourthly, This is the only way to go forward; a man cannot go forward, there is no proceeding unlesse the beginning be well done, as the Apostle saith, Heb. 6. 1. leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; as who should say, taking it for granted, that you are effectually called of God, that the principals of Religion are laid in your souls, let us go on unto perfection, let us wax better and better, and pray to God that we may encrease in grace, let us walk in holy and sincere obedience to all Gods Commandements, let us labour and strive to out-strip our selves, and amend our selves from day to day; if we have laid the foundation well, if that be first well laid, a man may go on to perfection, a man cannot otherwise go on well; nay, the further a man goeth on, the more mischief he pulls upon his soul.

Effectual calling the very ground to stand fast upon.

Lastly, This is the maine stud in the house, the very ground a man is to stand fast upon; this is the ground to keep a man from falling away, that God hath effectually called him, as the Apostle saith, 2 Thes. 2. 13, 14. We are bound to give God thanks for you brethren, because God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation, through the sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth, whereunto he called you by our Gospel, therefore brethren stand fast; when a man is effectually called, a man may say stand fast, otherwise he cannot persevere unto the end.

MATTH. 11. 28.

Come unto me all ye that are weary, and heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

WE have been large in the opening of effectual calling, and the last thing we handled concerning it, was this; that it was the first gathering of a man unto Christ, the first making of a man to come unto Christ; it is a mans first admission into the estate of grace; it is the first dawning of the light that shineth from above, the first coming forth of Gods good will and pleasure to a man.

Now before I can proceed to the particular parts of effectual calling, I must needs take a thing by the way, namely Gods preparatory work, that he doth work as a way hereunto; though it be not the work of saving grace, a man may perish for all that work, unless the Lord carry a man further on; yet there is a preparatory work, that God doth work in the soul, before he calls a man effectually, the Lord doth prepare a man, by detecting of sinne, and shewing him his misery by sinne, and letting him see and perceive what a miserable creature he is in himself; and God doth stop and silence a man before him, and leave him without excuse, and cut him and hew him down by the law, that he may see that he is a dead creature and a damned wretch; before this a man will not come, though God call him never so often, he will not here his him carry him away, and stop his ears, and harden his heart, though he seem to come, and sets divers steps to come home, yet he never comes home indeed, till God takes a man down in this fashion.

Now this is the thing we are to speak of, and we have it in the text, in the which we may observe three things: first the preparatory work which now we are to speak of, you that are weary, and heavy laden: secondly, the call it self, come unto me: thirdly, the benefit of this yielding to this call, I will give you rest.

There is a preparatory work to effectual calling.

To speak then, first of this preparatory work, the Lord brings the law to a man, and laies load upon the soul, and makes the soul labour, and toile, and sweat, and makes his heart burst within him, and he is heavily laden, as if mountaines were upon his back; God layeth load upon the soul, and then comes effectual calling: see what the Apostle speaks, Gal. 3. 24. the Apostle here speaks by his own experience, once we were strangers from Christ and absent from Christ: now how did God fetch us home? he sent the law, the ferula of the law, he sent the law to arrest us, and schoole us to Christ, it was a Schoole-Master: I can speak it for my part, it was mine as you may see, Rom. 7. from the beginning to the 12. ver. So the law fetched Paul home and struck him dead, and made him see what a miserable and wretched creature he was; it made him see he had no hope nor no hold, nothing in the world to trust to in himself, he was a dead man, the law like a sword stabs him at the heart; and so it pleased the Lord to bring him home to Christ, that he might be justified by faith: first, the Israelites were stung with the fiery Serpents, before they were healed by looking up to the brazen Serpent: first our first

first parents saw they were naked, and then came forth the promise of the seed of the woman: so first God convinceth a man of sinne, and then of righteousnes, Joh 16.8. first he convinceth a man of his sins, and then shews him where righteousnes is to be had, how he may have righteousnes, and peace of conscience, and be justified before God.

Now for the opening of the point, I will shew you three things: first, that it is thus, God doth first prepare a man, before he calls him effectually. Secondly, the reasons why the Lord doth thus: and Thirdly, the uses.

First, That it is true, the Lord doth prepare a man, before he doth effectually call him, either more or lesse, there must be a work of the law one way or other, and to prove this: first, wherefore else are those many texts of Scripture full of terrours, of sharp arrows and fierce pellets against sinners? wherefore are these but to terrifie a man, and pull a man down? and that we that are Ministers of God, should fling them against sinners, and the Lord looks that men should tremble, Amos 3.6,8. The Lord saith there, shall a trumpet be blown in a City, and people not be afraid? &c. and ver. 8. When the Lyon roars, who will not feare? all those terrible texts of Scripture, they are the roaring of the Lyon of the tribe of Judah against all that go on in sinne; now who would not tremble saith the Prophet? 'tis true many wicked and ungodly men do not tremble a jot almost, but some shall tremble, God looks upon some, and they shall tremble at his Word, Isa. 66.1,2. Proofe 1. from texts full of terror.

Secondly, Because this is the office of the Spirit of God, to be a Spirit of bondage, before he be the Spirit of adoption; he was so to the Romans, he was the Spirit of bondage in their hearts, before he was the Spirit of adoption, to make them cry Abba Father, Rom. 8.15. You have not received againe the Spirit of bondage to feare, you did receive it once, but you have not received it againe, but now you have received, the Spirit of adoption, whereby you cry, Abba Father. Now to deny this doctrine, is to deny the maine office of the Spirit, which is dangerous, for every man naturally is a bedlam: now how are bedlams tamed? they are beaten and whipt, and kept under till they come to themselves: so the Lord deals with a man as with a bedlam; he comes with the Spirit of bondage, flinging in slavish terrours and fears, and what a miserable creature he is, this sin and the other sinne, and the wrath of God is come out against him, the Spirit takes a man down from day to day, and undermines him and breaks his stomack; and then afterwards, when he hath wrought that work, he comes to be the Spirit of adoption, to teach him to cry Abba Father. 2 From the Spirits office.

Thirdly, Because the Gospels turne is not come, till the Law hath done his part; this was the method that Christ was anointed to observe in his Ministery, he would first have a man bruised and broken, and captivated, and blind, and poore, and in misery, and then he preacheth the Gospel to him, as you may see, Luke 4.19. The Spirit of the Lord hath anointed me to this order, saith he, it is an excellent place for this purpose, to stop the mouthes of those that hope there is an easier way, he will preach the Gospel, and liberty, and comfort, and enlargement, but he will have a broken heart first, and a tender spirit first. 3 Because the Gospel follows the law.

Fourthly, You may see an expresse place of our Saviour Christ, that he cannot have the other was not first a man shall be in a lost estate, and he shall be in a wilderness, and he shall have his sinnes discovered, and his misery, and then the Lord comes to those that he hath a minde to do good unto, Luke 5.31. saith he, They that are whole need not the Physitian, but they that are sick, he came to deale with a man as a Physitian, a man must be sick before he comes to him, the Physitian gives Physick to none till they be sick: no man is sick of his sinnes, till they are the diseases of his soul, till he is 4 From Christs design in coming.

in torments and misery, the Lord Jesus saith, he will not be his Physician.

5 From Gods working with believers after grosse sins.

Fifthly, Because God doth see it fitting to deale thus with his converted ones when they fall into some soule sinne, and grosse iniquity, the Lord is pleased to go this way to work, even towards his own converted ones; when they sinne, not onely through invincible infirmities, and through temptation; but when they grow stubborn, when they fall into some horrible iniquity, the Lord doth use to go even legally to work with them, though they lie under grace; therefore much more towards those that never yet were under grace, that never had any free Spirit, that never had any part of an ingenious nature, that were never yet wrought to be led by the faire means of grace, if God work so with those that he hath given in some measure his grace, and given in some measure a portion of his free Spirit unto; if when they sinne, and sinne foully, it is not all the promise of the Gospel, all the covenant of Grace, that will raise them up againe, and make them walk before God with holinesse, and zeale, and fervency; then much more will he deale thus with those that never had any grace at all: Thus David cryeth out, thy fears have got hold upon me, and *Psal.*28.4. his sinnes were as an heavy burthen unto him, too heavy for him to beare; he did not onely set his sinnes before him, they were not onely the objects before his eyes; so they are to a man that walks in the comforts of the Spirit; they are before his eyes, every man that walks in obedience, he hath his sinnes before him at times to humble him, and keep him low, and make him still hang upon Christ, and depend upon him, and esteem Christ precious to you that believe Christ is precious, 2 *Pet.*2.7. But now he sets them before them, not only as objects, but layeth them as loads upon their backs, that their sins shall not only be seen, but felt by them: now this is a legal work, when any part of a mans sinnes and misery lyes upon his soul and conscience; 'tis true, God never shews sinne to the utmost to his people, he never layeth all the load, if God should stirre up all the sinne of uncleanness that is in his people; if God should discover to them all the ugly looks of their sinnes, they were not able to beare it: As a good man said, when I see my self, saith he, it is an intollerable horror to me, it makes my very flesh to shiver and my soul to quake, to think what I am in my self. Nay, if God should lay all the burden of sinne upon the soul, the children of God their Spirits would faile, they were not able to subsist under it; but thus farre the Lord reveals their sinnes, and layeth load upon them, to break their hearts, and rend the kall of their spirits, to tame, and pull them to him, to bring them under, and to make them beare his yoake.

6 From Scripture examples.

Lastly, Because, whersoever the Scripture doth speak at large, and professedly of any mans conversation; we do not read of any conversation, but it was after this manner, by revealing their misery in themselves, and charging their sinnes upon their souls: Thus the Lord dealt with Manasses, he did mightily afflict him, he opened his eyes by outward afflictions, and then charged his misery upon his soul: Thus the Lord dealt with Ephraim, as with an untamed heifer, and then he cryed out, Convert me O Lord, and I shall be converted, Jer.31.18. And thus the Lord dealt with the woman in the Gospel, that washed his feet with her tears; you must think it was not ordinary sorrow that could make her tears trickle down in such plentiful manner as to wash his feet; thus it was with her before she had the pardon of her sinnes; and thus it was with Peters hearers; he told them, that they were the murtherers of the Lord Jesus, and then they were pricked in their hearts, before he did preach the Gospel, and bid them repent evangelically: Thus did John the Baptist deale, first, he comes with the axe and hews at them, and layes at the root of the tree, and then he tells them of Christ, there comes one after me, that is more worthy then I, &c. First, he did lay about him to detect their misery,

and

and reveale to their wretched estate, and then at the last he preached the Gospel, and poured in oyle: So it was with Paul, the Lord made it appeare that he fought against heaven, and persecuted the Lord Jesus Christ, and he laid him flat upon his face; nay, he smote him with blindnes; and sent him crying and roaring, and made him glad to go to their houses, whom before he had persecuted and scorned; and afterwards he told him that he was a chosen vessel: so the Lord dealt with the jaylor, he rent, and tore him, and burst him in peices, as if all the devils in hell were about him; and afterwards he saith, Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, Act. 16.26.

But you will say there are some in Scripture are related not to have any such work, Lidia she heard Paul preach, and the Lord opened her heart at first, and was a convert presently, Act. 6.14. So it was with Cornelius, and his company, Peter opened his mouth, and preached to them, and while he yet spake the holy Ghost fell on them all, Act. 10.24. Therefore it seems all mens conversions, and callings home, are not ushered by this legal work Object.

I answer, This is a poore Argument, that because the Scripture doth not say, this work of the Law did not go before, therefore it did not go before: a man cannot make such an inference, because the Scripture doth not repeate it, it is sufficient that the Scripture hath related it in other places, how the Lord brings his people home, and what method he useth in doing them good: first, he useth the work of the Law, and then of the Gospel; the Lord sets it down in other places, and therefore though he omits it here, it doth not follow there was no such thing in Lidia and Cornelius, and I will prove there was in both places, that there was a preparatory work in Lida, is plaine by two Arguments, for the Scripture sheweth, that before this evangelical work came, she was a worshipper of God before, noting there was something went before this opening of her heart; there was a work of the Law before, for this was the first work of the Gospel, when God opened her heart: another Argument is in the 13 ver. where it is said, that Lidia before she heard this Sermon, resorted to Paul to the Rivers side to pray; therefore it is a plaine sign that she was wrought upon by a preparatory work, before Paul converted her, and wrought upon her by the Gospel: And then for Cornelius and his friends, for Cornelius himself, it is a plaine case, that he was wrought upon before the Holy Ghost fell upon him; for in the beginning of the Chapter, it is said he was a devout man, one that called upon God, and set times apart, extraordinarily to seek God, before the Holy Ghost fell upon him, and no question it was so with his kinsfolks, for whom did he call to meet with Peter at this Sermon, but those that he had been conversant with? therefore it is likely, they were wrought upon before as well as Cornelius, otherwise he would have had little hope to get them thither: well then, the first thing we have proved that God doth thus prepare his people legally, before he doth effectually call them. Answ:

Now we come to the second thing: why God thus? and the first Reason is, because God will declare and shew forth his justice; for as God did shew forth his justice in the Redemption of his people; so he will also in the application of this Redemption, shew some part of his justice, in the Redemption of the World he poured forth the full viols of it, he required full satisfaction of the Lord Jesus, now he will not let justice be utterly swallowed up of mercy when he comes to apply this, but justice shall shew his face, and they shall come to see what Christ hath done for them; and miseries he hath waded through for a man, he shall see that God is a just and righteous God, that hates sinne, and abhors iniquity: what a consuming fire he is against them that disobey him; the Lord makes his justice appeare in the application of Redemption: you see how he takes up his people upon Mount Ebal, and delivers the curses of the Law, and makes his own people to say Amen, and subscribe ſcribe to them, *Deut.*27.26. Here he delivers the curſes, and makes proclamation of his juſtice; and ſaith he, I will have all the people ſay Amen; he will have all lye a bleeding under this curſe, and marke what Moſes ſaith in the firſt verſe of the next Chapter, it ſhall come to paſſe, if thou wilt hearken to the voyce of the Lord, he will ſet thee up above all nations; here comes in a fine Sunſhiny day afterwards; the Lord will have his people ſee his juſtice, and what it is to be delivered from ſinne; the Lord will make them ſee, that he is a juſt and righteous God, and that there is no ſinning againſt him, there is no living in his ſight, no entring into his Kingdom without righteouſneſs, I muſt be a new creature, elſe I ſhall be conſumed; he chargeth theſe things upon the ſoul, and that ſoundly too; becauſe now he will lay down the foundation of a godly life, the ſoul ſhall have need of this point as long as he lives, to remember that God is a righteous God; he hath found him to be a juſt God againſt ſinne, though he be a gracious and merciful God to them that truly repent, and ſet themſelves to obey his Name: yet the ſoul ſeeth there is no living in ſinne, no following after a mans own luſts, and the ſoul never loſeth this; for though the ſoul many times, through temptations may be carried away, yet he ſhall never be under that former blindneſs he was in; never ſo ignorant of God; never think ſo meanly and ignominiouſly of God as he did in his unregeneracy; he ſtill knows that God is a ſevere God, and there is no expecting of mercy at his hands, without holineſſe and righteouſneſs; if God ſhould ſmother up the work all at firſt, juſtice would not be ſeen: as we ſee it is among men; ſuppoſe a baſe fellow hath wronged a noble man, may be the noble man means to pardon him; but yet he will have him ſmart for it, and feele and know what it is to diſpleaſe and wrong, and impeach ſuch a great man as he. So if the Lord ſhould ſmother up the buſineſs preſently, as ſoon as ever he ſends the word to a man preſently convert a man and pardon him, and give him true and ſaving faith, juſtice would not be ſeen, and therefore the Lord firſt tramples upon a mans neck, and ſhews him his filthineſs and caſts him out of the Camp; as the Lord ſaid concerning Miriam, ſhe is unclean, carry her out of the Camp; ſo the Lord flings a perſon forth like a curſed damned creature, as if he would take him by the heeles, and fling him down to hell, and never look upon him, and then he takes him in; thus the Lord tells his people, *Iſa.*45.21. There is none but me, a juſt God and a Saviour: firſt, he makes them ſee that he is a juſt God, and then he makes them ſee that he is their Saviour and Redeemer; and notwithſtanding his juſtice and ſeverity againſt ſinne and iniquity, yet he will give his grace and mercy to them that repent, and humble themſelves under his hand.

Reas. 1. To declare Gods justice.

1. To ſweeten mercy.

Secondly, The Lord doth this, becauſe he would ſweeten his mercy to the ſoul, as you may ſee how he dealt with the Prophets widow; he let her creditors arreſt her firſt, and ſeize upon her two ſons for bondmen, and then he wrought a wonder for her, 2 *King.*4.1. now this mercy was ſweet, and came in due ſeaſon, I was in miſery, and the Lord helped me, ſaith David; as who ſhould ſay, it came in a time when I had need of it: The Lord deales, as it is reported King James did at the beginning of his reign, when ſome of his Nobles had been offenders, he let the law proceed againſt them, till they were brought to the ſcaffold, and their heads laid upon the block, and then ſent a pardon, and now a pardon was acceptable indeed. So the Lord deales with his people, he lets the law looſe upon the ſoul, yea, and the devil too, many times, and he rends them, and teares them as a Lyon, and lets them look when they ſhall periſh, and layes their heads upon the block, and then ſends hope of a pardon, and forgiveneſs of ſinnes: what a ſweet ſtaying of Abrahams hand was that, when the knife was juſt ready to be ſtuck in Iſaacks throat? ſo when the knife of Juſtice is ready to be ſtuck into a mans throat, and he is ready to periſh for ever; now mercy will be ſweet mercy, now it will be mercy indeed,

This

This is the time of love, ſaith God, Ezek. 16. 8. When God had laid his people a bleeding in their goare blood, now he paſſeth by, and ſaith, This is a time of love, he laid them in their blood and filthineſſe, he laid them vile and miſerable in themſelves, and now ſaith he is the time of love. Now the mountaines drop with ſweet wine, as the Prophet ſpeaks, what is the reaſon that people do not taſte any ſweetneſſe in the Goſpel, and Sacraments, and Ordinances of Chriſt? Alas, they were never ſenſible of their ſinnes, therefore the Lord doth thus to make his mercy ſweet to his people, that they may prize it, and eſteeme it, and make good account of it from day to day.

Thirdly, the Lord doth this, that he may fetch his people home to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for before they will not come to God, they will not come at him, as the Prophet ſpeaks, but when they are in the Margent of Hell ready to periſh, and have no hope to hold to, nothing to truſt to, they are quite and cleane at a loſs, and know not whither to go; now this makes them come home: as it is ſaid of Abſolom, he ſent once to Joab, but he would not come to him, yea, twice and he would not come, but when he ſet his Barley field on fire, then he came. So the Lord ſets his peoples hearts on fire, he fires their conſciences, and their very bowels, and makes their ſoules ake within them, for want of mercy, and grace, and favour, for want of power againſt their ſinnes, for want of Gods helping and aſſiſting of them from day to day, and this makes them glad to come home to him. You know how long it was before the woman in the Goſpel would come to Chriſt, ſhe was ſick twelve years and had ſpent all her living upon the Phyſicians and could have no help, now ſhe came to Chriſt when ſhe was quite ſpent, and her patience was come to the utmoſt, ſhe was a dead woman if ſhe came not to Chriſt, all the Phyſicians could not help her, now ſhe comes home to Chriſt. As it was with Agur when he ſaw his brutiſhneſſe, this drave him to Ithiel and Vcal, Prov. 30. 1, 2. that is, to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as it is with a Coney when ſhe is perſued by a Dogge, then ſhe runnes to her burrough. When Naomi was bereft of husband, Children, Meanes, and Maintenance, and heares there is plenty in Iſrael, ſhe returns preſently, ſhe might have gone long before, but ſhe wanted a ſcourge and whip to ſend her home, but when ſhe had loſt all, and was ready to ſink, and heard good tidings from Bethlehem, now ſhe makes ſpeed thither preſently: as the Lord ſpeaks, Hoſ. 2. 6. I will hedge her wayes with thornes, how doth the Lord make the poore Church here come home to him, that was her husband and beloved, from whom ſhe was gone a whoring? God takes this courſe, he hedgeth her wayes with thornes, ſhe would have reſts, and friends, and comforts, and ſomething to hang upon, but God knocks her off from all, and now ſhe will returne to her husband again, ſo the Lord to make his people ſtoop to his yoake, he ſhews them their miſery, and worries them, and wearies them, that they can hold out no longer, and then down go their bucklers, and now, ſpeak Lord, thy ſervants hear, now they are willing to hear him.

3. That he may bring men home to Chriſt.

Fourthly, God doth it that he may weane his people from ſinne, and take off their hearts from their own wayes: for a man is marvellous eager of ſinne by nature, and will not let it go, and will not part with it by no meanes, his heart is ſet upon his luſts, and he will have them, though he hath hell and damnation with them; when the Lord calls upon them to walk in his wayes, they ſay they will not walk therein, Jer. 6. 16. People will not be diligent in prayer and hold cloſe to God, they will not be ſtrict in their wayes as the preciſeneſſe of the Goſpel teacheth them, now the Lord breaks in upon them in this faſhion, and makes them willing. As a man deales with a young horſe or colt, when a man would tame a colt that is luſty, and head-ſtrong, and violent, he carries him out, may be, and makes him apprehend in his fancy, that he will ride him againſt ſtone-walls, and carries him, may be, into Quagmires, and Muds,

4. To wean men from ſin.

and rotten Fennes, and there he makes him go, and spurs him, and beats him, and raines him, and snaffles him, and thus he breakes his stomack, and at last he will beare the saddle, and carry a man quietly, so the Lord Jesus doth with a poor creature, he casts off the bonds of Christ, and though the truth begins to work upon his conscience, he throwes out the arrow againe, and heales himself with vaine healings, now the Lord breakes a mans heart, and opens a peep hole into hell, as though he would throw him in quick thither, and shews him his misery to the life, and to the quick, and so makes them come off, as the Lord dealt with Moses when he would make him circumcise his sonne, he was loath to displease his wife, she was against it, being a Midianitish woman, and he was loath to have her ill will, and therefore deferred it, now what course took God with him, the Lord met him, and would have slaine him, the Lord made as though he were his enemy, and would slay him, and now he was willing to do it, so the Lord deals with a stubborne soul if it belongs to him, he will overcome his heart, and make him let fall his sinnes, he will make as though he would slay him, he will make him a weary of keeping his sinnes, before he hath done with him: The Lord deales in this case as he dealt with the Philistims, they would not send home the Arke, what course did he take to make them send it home, and send it home in pomp, and great respect: God did fling down Dagon which was their chief Idoll, and the Lord smote them with Emrods. And now they think with themselves, lest us send home the Arke of the Lord, and how shall we send it home? Let us provide golden Mice and Emerods, they sent it home with cost and offerings, So the Lord deals with those that belong to him, he tires them in their own ways, and makes them willing to come out at last.

5. To knock us off from any thing else.

Lastly, the Lord doth it to knock his people quite and cleane off from all, every man naturally hangs upon something, and above all, hangs upon his good works, and good prayers, and performances, and this keeps his heart from seeing what a miserable creature he is, this keeps him from mourning, and zeal, and fervency, and all the while that he hangs upon these, his heart is hard'ned, he will never stoop and yield to God, now when the Lord means to do a man good, he knocks him quite off, and plucks out of his hands all his works, and makes him let all go, not that he ceaseth to work, but as the Apostle speaks, Rom 4. 14. He makes him as a man that worketh not, not as though he worketh not, for there is no carnall man works more then this poor soul in this estate, he keeps a great deal of stir to find out mercy, and obtaine grace from God, there is none that mournes and laments more, and goes to Sermons more, but yet he is no worker now, he is faine to go to his father, to him that justifies the ungodly, all his wayes are loathsome and abominable, he seeth nothing to trust upon, but is driven to him that justifies the ungodly, he sees he is a vile wretched creature, he sees no worth, no reason why God should look upon him, he is now penniless, and worthlesse, and miserable in himself, the Lord makes him a very bankrout, he thought he was a rich Merchant, but now he makes him a very bankrout, and makes him appeare to be naked.

Use. 1. To reprove Dawbers.

First, here all Dawbers are to be reproved that preach nothing but mercy, and the promises of the Gospel, many love alife to be upon such theames, O say they, the promises are best to humble a man, and bring him out of his sins, whom shall we believe, God or man? This not the way, Ezek. 13. 22. the text saith, Ye have strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not turne from his wicked wayes, by promising him life: When a man preacheth the promise of God before wicked and ungodly men, this hardens their hearts, and strengthens them that they will not returne from their wicked wayes, because the promises are propounded to them, and the Minister makes no distinction between the precious and the vile, this strengthens them in their sinnes, and makes

makes them think they are not so vile, but they hope they are in a good case for all this, therefore Saint Austine calls such men desolatores, not comforters, such work desolation in their hearers, and no sound consolation; such Ministers as make their Sermons to be pillowes under peoples elbowes, they make themselves guilty of the peoples blood, and their souls shall be required at their hands, they are the cause of peoples miscarriage, when a Minister thinks to do people good, by crying peace, peace, when the Prophet saith there is no peace to the wicked, this rather drives people further off from God, may be it may make them seeme outward professors, but it will never make them sound in the faith, rebuke them sharply, saith the Apostle, that they may be sound in the faith, Tit. 1. 13. sharp rebuking the powerful delivering of the Law and Gospel is the meanes to make men sound in the faith, the more humble a man is made to be, the more faith he comes to have, our Saviour saith of the Centurion, he had not found the like faith in Israel, how came this the text shewes plainly, that we shall hardly heare of a man so humble in all age as he was, he did even grudge to think that Christ should come into his house, he thought he was unworthy that Christ should come under his roofe, though he were in the dayes of his humiliation, in the forme of a servant, his heart was employed and brought low, he had no hope in himself, all the worth he saw was in Christ, this helps a man to the more faith, the more a man is emptyed, the more may be poured in. Wherefore serve all those texts in Scripture? The wrath of God is revealed from Heaven against all unrighteousnesse, tribulation, and anguish shall be upon the soul of every one that doth evill, flesh and blood can never enter into the Kingdome of God, that which is borne of the flesh is flesh, and such a one can never please God while the world stands: Wherefore serve all these texts of Scripture when Gods flings balls of fire upon men that live in their wicked wayes? Why do we not open them and presse them upon mens consciences? Why do we not apply them to those to whom they belong, are they not in the Bible? were the Prophets fooles? were the Holy Pen men of the Scripture mistaken in putting such texts into the Bible? If they be there they ought to be uttered and applied, and if they be to be applied, to whom but to those to whom they belong? Then such persons had need to look to themselves, and we that are Ministers, woe unto us if we do not preach terrour to whom terrour belongs, as well as mercy to whom mercy belongs: but you will say, are not we Ministers of the Gospel? 'tis true, and so was Christ, yet mark what he saith, repent and then believe, first he discovers their miserable conditions, and breaks their hearts, and then bids them lay hold upon the Gospel of peace, this is the Method that we that are the Ministers of God should take, first wound, and then heale, first lance, and then bind up, first detect mens sinnes, and shew them their miseries, and then shew them a remedy: first let them see what they are, and then see how they may be better.

Use. 2. Be content to heare the curses of the Law preached.

Then you must be content to let us go up upon Mount Eball and pronounce the curses of God upon those that go on in their sinnes, you must be content to have your estates and conditions ripped up, be not ready to be snappish and murmuring against the revelation of the Law, and the opening of the hellish sink of sin that is in your hearts, be you willing to hear it and let us do it; 'tis true, we must be ready to poure in Oyle into every bruised spirit, but first we must come with the hammer of the Law to breake and then bind up, let me tell you, as many as go on in your sins, and are yet without Christ, let me tell you what your condition is, be it known from the Lord whatsoever you may think, you are in the gall of bitternesse, and in the bond of iniquity, hell is moved for your coming, and the pit is digged for such as you are; you are under the wrath of heaven, and though God be gracious and full of mercy yet he will never save those that disobey him and stand out against his his Holy and Heavenly Word, though Christ died for sinners, yet he is a stumbling block and a rock of offence to those that are disobedient, and stumble at the Word, 1 Pet. 2.8. Whatsoever you may think of your selves and do not think of these things, but suffer the world and your pleasures to take up your minds, think of it, what a woefull case you are in, know that the great God of Heaven and Earth hath bitter things against you, and you shall heare it with both eares when it is too late, there is no mercy but for them that repent and forsake their sins, there is no Kingdome of Heaven for you, you have no hope, the Devils and you have one hope. What turned so many Angels of Heaven into Hell? was it not sin? you have that very sin upon you, you do not see your misery, but if your eyes were open and would but heare what God saith, you would loath your selves in dust and ashes, and your knees would knock together for anguish of heart. What no conversion yet, no new creatures yet? then no Christ, no Heaven, no Happinesse: what a woful thing is this? I beseech you think of it, and apply it, and tell your soules, either sin must down or else no Heaven to be looked for, either I must be an holy man, either God will give me grace and holinesse here, or else I shall never see his face with comfort hereafter, either I must have my life changed, and my conversation made spiritual and godly by Jesus Christ, or else I do but deceive my own soul to think of any happinesse, this is certaine, therefore do not think lightly of any sin, there is no sin so small but is able to damn thy soul unlesse thou embrace the Gospel and the Kingdome of God. If it were possible that thou never hadst sinned but one sin, that one sin will damn thee, unlesse thou be a new creature, and by Faith embrace the Son of God, thou canst not be saved, there is no sin so small, but the wrath of God from Heaven is revealed against it, if people did but see their sins like so many Devils, if they did but once see these Cockatrices stings, if people were but affected with their estates and conditions, something might be said, but unlesse mens sins be laid before their eyes, and charged upon their souls, what hope have we to do them any good?

Use. 3. To comfort those that have had this work of the Law on them.

Thirdly, this is for comfort to those that are humbled, such as have had the Law come unto them, and hath knocked them off, that they have nothing to trust to, and they see what miserable creatures they are, look up and hear what the Gospel saith, the Gospel of God sheweth mercy freely to be had, and delivers promises freely to be apprehended, and doth proffer eternal life without money or moneys worth, though a man be never so vile and wretched, if you see your misery, you have Davids own argument, go and use it, Psal. 25.16. Have mercy upon me O Lord, for I am desolate and afflicted; all the Saints of God have no other argument but this, in begging of mercy, as who should say, I am a miserable creature, no grounds whereupon to expect any mercy, I am a desolate afflicted undone man in my self, all my hope is in thee, go to God, and lie at his gate, and plead this argument, submitting to the Gospel, Have mercy on me O Lord, for I am desolate and afflicted: and here now comes in effectual calling, when the Law hath shewed a man his wretched estate, and his blindnesse, and nakednesse, and captivity, if the Lord do mean any mercy to a man, here comes in his effectual calling.

2 Thes. 2. 14.

Whereunto he called you by our Goſpel to the obtaining of the glory of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

I Have ſpoken already of the prepatory work that goes before Effectual Calling, the next thing I am to ſpeake of, is the parts of Effectual Calling, and they are two. Two parts of effectual calling.

Firſt, the offering of Chriſt and his merits, the objective propounding of Chriſt and his benefits, when Chriſt comes and offers himſelf to a man in the Goſpel, he came to his own, John 1. 11. but his own received him not, he came and offered himſelf to them, I am the way, the truth and the light, I am the Meſſias, and the Saviour of the world, and I have eternal life, and here I am, take me, and all with me, this is the firſt thing in Effectual Calling, the objective propounding of Chriſt to a man. 1. Offering of Chriſt.

The ſecond thing is the receiving of Chriſt, not only the offering of Chriſt to a man, for ſo he offers himſelf to thoſe that are not of God, even to all, but in Effectual Calling, as there is an offer on Gods ſide, ſo there is a reflection on Gods ſide, as many as received him, &c. John 1. 12. they received him, theſe two now make up Effectual Calling, the offering of Chriſt and the receiving of him, when Chriſt calls a man to him, and he anſwers to his call, thus you ſee the parts of Effectual Calling. 2. The receiving of Chriſt.

Firſt to ſpeak of the firſt, the objective propounding of Chriſt and all the things of Chriſt to a man, and this hath two degrees like the morning light that hath two parts, the dawning of the day, and the Sunnes riſing, ſo there are two parts in this objective propounding of Chriſt to the ſoul, the firſt is that general propounding of him to every creature, now the ſoul thinks what to every creature, then it is propounded to me as well as to any body elſe, but the effectualneſs of this call is that it breeds the ſeeds of grace in a man, it breeds ſaving deſires, and ſaving longings, and ſaving, and kindly mournings for the want of this ſweet good, when it ſees ſuch an excellent good, and a poſſibility of it, and that it is propounded to every creature, then the ſoule thinks I may be one as well as any body elſe, and ſo the ſoul longs after it. Two parts or degrees of offering Chriſt. 1. General.

The ſecond thing is the perſonal propounding of this to thoſe that have theſe ſeeds of Grace, the firſt was general, to one as well as to another, but now this is to this mans perſon rather then to any body elſe, and now the ſoul begins to think ſeriouſly this propoſition is to me, this tender is to me, I hunger, and thirſt, and long, and therefore this belongs to me, and the effectualneſſe of this call is to make the ſoul come to Chriſt, and caſt himſelfe upon him by faith, theſe are the parts of propounding of Chriſt, and both theſe are twofold, the firſt is the external part of it by the Word, the other the internal part of it by the Spirit. Now we are to ſpeak of the firſt of theſe, how the Word works this general call, and for this I have choſen this text, Whereunto he hath called you by our Goſpel, &c. For the coherence of theſe words in the former verſes, the Apoſtle had told the Theſſalonians of a woful falling away that ſhould be among all viſible Churches in the whole world almoſt, that there 2. Perſonal. 2. Both, 1. External. 2. Internal.

there should be a general defection, unlesse of Gods Elect, and they should have fearful declinings, and he sheweth that the power of the Devil and his instruments should be the cause of this falling away, he should come with strong delusions, and then the just cause why God doth suffer the Devil and his imps to bring this about, that all they might be damned that had pleasure in unrighteousnesse; the Lord would have them damned, and this made the Lord suffer the Devil to work Apostacy, and declining to them. Now this is a fearful thing, and therefore in the next place he comes to comfort the Thessalonians, for they for their part, the godly amongst them need not to be dismayed for fear of falling away, as if they should not hold out, but he would have them encouraged that they shall stand out for ever, and he comforts them by two Arguments: First, by Gods predestination of them to life from all eternity, God hath chosen you to Salvation from the beginning; and then he laies down the meanes God had appointed for the attaining this salvation, and that was through Sanctification in the Spirit, as who should say, 'tis true, there shall be such a falling away, but you that are godly need not be dejected, for God hath chosen you from all eternity, and therefore will sanctifie you, and keep you through his mighty power unto salvation, that you shall not fall away. The second Argument is their Effectual Calling, that is in the text, Whereunto he hath called you by our Gospel, &c. as who should say, the Lord hath given you a pledge that you shall never fall away finally, for it is plaine that God hath chosen you, and he hath given a pledge of his Election, for he hath called you, therefore be of good cheare. Well then in the words of the text you may consider these four things.

First, Effectual Calling, he called you:

Secondly, the meanes whereby he hath wrought this in you, namely, the Gospel.

Thirdly, the tearme whereunto he called them, noted in this word hereunto, which if you look into the former verse was unto Salvation.

Fourthly, what this salvation is, it is a most admirable incomparable thing, no tongue is able to speak it, Oh saith he, It is to the attaining of the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ, the very same glory that the Lord Jesus Christ was advanced to, you have part and communion therein. Now three of these points I lay aside, the point that serves our turn is the second, he called you by our Gospell.

Doct. The Gospel or generall tender of grace, is that by which God calls men home.

That the thing that calls Gods people home, it is the General tender of grace, indifferently to any man without exception, whosoever will have it, that is, the Gospel. When Christ should call Nicodemus, after he had convinced him of his blindnesse, and cursed estate, and made him see he was a fool in all the things of God, now he gives him a call, and how doth he call him? it was even this general tender, John 3. 14, 15. As Moses lifted up the Serpent in the Wildernesse, so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have eternal life: As who should say, I bring an indifferent doctrine, I propound it to all creatures, and thou maist have a part in it as well as any other; Whosoever believes shall not perish, if thou hast a heart to believe and come unto me, thou shalt not perish, but have salvation. So when our Saviour sent his Disciples to call his Elect throughout the world; mark what directions he gave them, he calls people with a general call, Whosoever will, let him take of the water life; whosoever hath a mind to be saved, to know God, and have Communion with him, and be united to him; whosoever hath a minde to these things, tell him I am for him, he proclaimes it over the whole world, tell every creature in the whole world, He that believeth, and is baptized shall be saved, here is no exception put in, but preach the Gospel to every creature, tell every creature what I have done for the sins of the world; and how I have opened the Kingdome to whomsoever will enter, thus God calls his people, his Ministers go up and down and tell them they may have pardon, and grace, and righteousnesse for nothing, come and buy without money, though you cannot give a farthing token for it, but be poor, and miserable, and cursed creatures, Come, here it is, wine, and milk, and bread; and all without money, you shall have it for taking and carrying away, so Rev. 22. 7. Whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely, it is a quicunque vult, there is none exempted, if any man will he may be saved, if he have a will, a minde, a heart to it, he may have salvation.

world

Now here be three things I would shew unto you; first, what this generall tender is, whereby God effectually calls his people. Secondly, why it is by a generall tender. Thirdly, the uses.

First, what is this generall tender of Christ and grace to every creature that hath a minde to it? and it is this, that Christ is the only allsufficient meanes to make a man happy; that whereas he is out with his Maker, he alone can set him in again; though he be under a thousand miseries in this life, and under a thousand eternall miseries in the life to come, there is in Christ an allsufficiency to make a man happy, God is the fountaine of all goodnesse, and till his goodnesse is opened in Christ Jesus, this is that same generall thing, as Paul saith, 1 Cor. 1. 23, 24. We preach Christ crucified unto those that are called the power and wisdome of God, as who should say, this is the thing we go up and down every where preaching, that Christ was crucified for the sinnes of the world, and hath power to save any man that comes to him; it was the wisdome of God, he found out this meanes; it was an impossibility in the wisdome of men and Angels, how man should be saved, the Wisdome of God hath found out the Lord Jesus Christ to be the meanes, and he is the power of God to save any man that believes, and whersoever we come we preach this Doctrine. So again you may see, Heb. 7. 24, 25. This man hath an unchangable Priesthood, for he is able to save to the utmost all those that come unto him, &c. As who should say, he is a publick Saviour, he is not onely able to save these and these, but all that come unto him, he is able to save them to the utmost, whosoever you are, though you be never so wretched, and reprobate to every good work, though never so foule, and all the nitre in the world cannot cleanse you, never so stubborne, and all the meanes and Ordinances you have enjoyed have not tamed you: why, yet here is a Saviour for you, he is able to save you to the utmost, though you be never so out with God, and though God be never so much displeased with your sinful courses, and all the Angels and all the world cannot take away Gods wrath from you, yet he is able to save you to the utmost if you will come unto him; This is the tender of the Gospel delivered to every man. Now in the next place I will shew you the reasons why God calls people home by a generall tender in this fashion.

What is this generall tender of Christ.

First, because this is the surest ground of faith; suppose a soul that is effectually called shall afterwards feare and question, and by what warrant do I hope to be saved by Christ? and by what warrant do I look to be heard for Christs sake? and how is it that I lay hold upon such promises, and cast my self upon such things in the Gospel? upon what acquaintance do I presume that the Lord Jesus will see you assisted in all my wayes, and helped in all estates and conditions, and save my soul when I die? Why? saith he, I have a good warrant, for I see in Scripture that Christ is tendered to all, and whosoever believes shall not perish but have everlasting life, and whosoever will have him, may, I could not tell indeed I was elected before I heard the Sermon, but I heard that any man might have Christ that would, and I am sure I would have him, and I finde in Scripture that he came to save that which is lost, and I am sure I am a lost creature, and if he came to save that which is lost, I have warrant to believe. This is that which grounded Saint Paul, this generall offer, This (faith he) is a faithfull saying, worthy to be received of all men, that Christ died for sinners, whereof I am chief, 1 Tim. 1. 15. As who should say, here is the thing, this is that which comforts me, and staies my soul; I see that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, and I see it is a faithful saying, and worthy of all men to be received, all men whosoever have a heart may receive it, and I am sure then he came to save me, and this is my hold, I have no other hold but this. But now if a man were called by any other call but this, a man could have no ground for his calling, if the Scripture should say they only are called that are elected, he would have no ground for his call.

Reas. 1. This the surest ground of faith.

2. This is the best answer to Satan.

Secondly, because this is the best answer to Satan, many times a man will be put to heavy straits, and will have much ado to answer Satan; sometimes a man will be under uncertainty, sometimes under want of feeling and sense, sometimes under horror of conscience; and a mans sins may come to a mans view, and feares may step up in the soul, then Satan comes, how look you to be saved? you are a wretch, you have a stiffe faith indeed! What believe and no sense and feeling? such a horrible wretch, and such a guilty conscience and you believe? What have you to shew? Is any one promise in the Bible to such a one as you that are so foul and filthy, and cannot pray, nor do any thing? you see God casts you off, where is any promise for you to hang upon? Yes, I can believe for all this, because the Gospel is not tendered to sense, and feeling, and such and such things, but to every one that would have Christ, and I would have Christ, and so much the more eager is my heart to have him, the more I am troubled and cast down, the more I would have Christ and grace, here is my hold, this is the thing, the sure Word of Faith, it is called the Word of Faith, Rom. 10. 8. Now you know the Word of God is true, whether a man believe or no, and now when faith comes in, it lays hold upon that general Word; the thing is true, so that if any man comes and believes, though I never found it before, I believed it, yet now I may hang upon it; and there is nothing in the world will put off Satan more then this, he will say, you have Christ; how can you have him? you are proud, aye but I would be humbled; you are dead, 'tis true, but that is my grief and mourning, I would be quickened, and therefore would have Christ that I may be so, and so; here he hangs upon the general tender of Christ.

3. Because this is that which is true before all acts of man.

Thirdly, because this is that same simple Scripture that is simply true in it self before all acts in man; a man cannot be effectually called by any truth, but that which is true in it self before all acts in man; now what truth can effectually call a man before any act of grace in man, but only the general tenders of the Gospel? these are the truths that are simply true in themselves. Before any thing is done upon man, it may be true that God hath elected me, but it is not a Scripture truth before something be done in me, the Scripture doth not say simply in it self that I am elected before some grace be put forth in me, if I have grace put forth already in me, then I may say, that God did specially intend it to me, and did elect me in Christ before all worlds; but now these truths cannot call a man, because before effectual calling nothing is done in a man, therefore those truths that suppose any thing in a man, cannot be calling truths, the first truths that a man is effectually called unto, a man hath no more to shew for it, then any man else in the world; therefore it must be meerly the truths of the Gospel in themselves, what Christ did, and so forth.

As for example, these be the calling truths, Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world, Joh. 1. 29. God so loved the world, that whosoever believeth in him shall not perish, but have eternal life, John 3. 16. and Matth.

Mat. 18. 11. The Sonne of man came to ſave that which is loſt; but theſe truths concerning this mans election, that God doth love him, and hear him, and accept of him; theſe are not Scripture truths in themſelves, but when a man is called then they come in; now a man may ſee that he is elected, and accepted of God, but theſe truths can never effectually call a man, becauſe effectual calling is the firſt thing that is done in a man, and this work finds nothing in a man more then in any other, and therefore it muſt needs be a generall tender.

Fourthly, becauſe this is only that which every man is bound to believe it is that only which a man is called unto; God when he doth effectually call his people, doth call them to do nothing, but that which is every mans duty to do, he calls them to believe in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is one mans duy as well as another; as Chriſt when he went to preach every where up and down, ſaith he, Repent and believe the Goſpel; as who ſhould ſay, it is every one of your duties to repent, and believe the Goſpel, it is the very ſame truth, that believed, ſaveth Gods people, and not believed, damneth the reprobates, as Mark 16. 16. He that beleeves ſhall be ſaved, and he that beleeves not ſhall be damned; as who ſhould ſay, both is the ſame truth that is propounded to this man that is ſaved, and that man that is damned, therefore they muſt be the general truths of the Goſpel; particular truths do not bind every man to believe, it is not every mans duty to believe that he is elected, that he hath intended his Son Chriſt for him, rather then any other; God binds not every man to beleeve this, but he binds every man to believe that God is the eternal good of a man, and this is to be had by coming unto Chriſt; when a man can believe this, and caſt himſelf upon it, this is true and ſaving faith, when this draws a man to God, and pulls him out of his ſins, and this is the reaſon that the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 John 3. 23. This is the Commandment of God, that ye beleeve in his Son Jeſus Chriſt; ſo that you ſee this is clear, that it is the generall tender of the Goſpel that cals Gods people home to God: whatſoever a man be, an old ſinner, a young ſinner, a groſſe ſinner, be he what he will, if his heart ſtoop that he would have Chriſt, and all Chriſt, he ſhall not periſh, but have everlaſting life.

4. This only that which every man is bound to beleeve.

Obj. But you may ſay, faith is onely of Gods Elect; how then can Miniſters tender ſuch a proffer as this, whereas Chriſt is only given to the Elect?

Ianſwer, it is true, that the Elect, when all comes to all, they only get it, yet it is ſeriouſly tendred to all; we had never heard of Election and reprobation, but only becauſe of this, becauſe that when the Goſpel is preached, we ſee that ſome receive it, and ſome receive it not; now thus you come to ſee election and reprobation, for when a man comes to receive the call, we ſee that that man is elected, becauſe no man takes Chriſt but by grace, every man would ſtand out and refuſe Chriſt; but when we ſee a man takes Chriſt, then we ſee he is elected; and when we ſee another man doth not take Chriſt, we ſee then that man is left to himſelf, and hath a wretched heart, and reprobate minde, and God lets him have it ſtill; as he will have his ſins, ſo God lets him have them ſtill; yet notwithſtanding this is very true, that Chriſt is propounded to all, and this the reaſon why our Saviour Chriſt ſaith, Mat. 20. 16. Many are called, but few are choſen, the meaning is, many are called, but few there are that do anſwer this call, there are few that have grace to do it; the moſt part of the world will rather have their luſts then Chriſt, and therefore there are but few, becauſe God hath choſen but few.

The tender of the Goſpel muſt be without reſtraint to election.

Now the reaſon why the tender of the Goſpel muſt be delivered without any reſtraint to election, is,

1. Otherwiſe the elect would have no ground for their faith.

1. Firſt, becauſe if there were not ſuch a proffer without exception to any that will have Chriſt, then the Elect ſhould have no ground for their faith;

a man cannot see he is elected till after he hath faith; no man hath faith and repentance at his first effectual call; now how shall a man have any ground for his faith when the Gospel is propounded onely to the Elect? every man will be at a stand, I know not whether I be elected or no; I am as fair for hell, as any for ought I know; I have sins to damn me, but no election, as far as I know; you preach Sermons all your life time, I can beleeve none, because you preach only to the Elect; so the children of God can have no ground for their faith, because there is no particular place of Scripture that binder a man to beleeve his election, therefore it must be a general proffer of the Gospel propounded to every man, John 6. 35. there saith Christ, He that will come unto me, I will in no wise cast off; there you see it is general, any man that will come to Christ, whether Elect of God no matter, Ministers should not stand demurring and questioning, I know not whether these be Elect or no, do you deliver the Gospel, and afterwards it will appear who are elected, and who not, by their receiving or not receiving the Gospel, leave you that to me; preach you how men may be happy, and what a miserable estate they are in, but if they will come out of their sinnes they may receive the pardon of them; tell them, that whosoever comes to me shall in no wise be cast out, be they what the, will.

2. Because in reference to men, calling is before election.

Secondly, because though election be first in Gods order, he doth first Elect a man before he calls him, yet with the Elect, with Gods own people it is clean contrary; first, they must be effectually called before they can have any inkling of their election in the point of knowing of it, therefore 2 Pet. 1.10. the Apostle saith, give all diligence to make your calling and election sure; first, make your calling sure, else you can have no inkling of your election, now when this is sure, you may be sure of your election; before the point of effectual calling there must be no talking of election, either in the Minister that preacheth, or people that hear; this election is a thing in Gods own bosom, which comes after the receiving or rejecting the Gospel, the one will reveal election, the other reprobation.

3. Because there is a difference between men and devils.

Thirdly, because there is a difference between men and devils, there is no possibility for devils, though they would never so faine, to be saved, for Christ took not upon him the nature of Angels, Heb. 2.16. he did not meddle with them, therefore now we cannot say to them, if ye beleeve, you shall be saved, because there is possibility for them, though they would never so faine; but there is a possibility for all men to be saved, if they would believe, there is sufficiency of merits in Christ, and it was intended to the soules of men, to as many as would have it, though indeed all men would have none of him, if they were left to themselves; yet notwithstanding the Gospel is offered to all, every man might have him, but that he will not have him.

But there be two Objections against this doctrine.

1. Because this seems to be the contrary to the doctrine of many godly and religious Divines heretofore, who seem to say, that the Gospel is only for the Elects sake; it is the doctrine of many Divines, if I knew who were elected, and who were not, I would not deliver it to them; this is a dangerous doctrine, yet the ground of the doctrine is true, that the Gospel is properly bestowed upon the Elect, To us a child is born, to us a child is given, that is, to the Elect, but yet this is not contradictory to that which I now deliver; I deny not that Christ is given intentionally to Gods Elect upon beleeving, yet he is tendred to others to, and intended too, upon that condition; God cannot mock people, and make as though they might have eternal life, and cannot have it though never so faine; it is not so, but God deales seriously with people, for every man shall have Christ that hath a true and sincere heart; now it is true, this heart is only given of God, because otherwise a man is ſtubborn and ſtiff-necked, and will not give over his ſins, and deny himſelf, but will rather have his own courſes then Chriſt, though he may have eternal life by him, yet the propoſition of the Goſpel is general to every man that will believe, and will have Chriſt; and this is neceſſary, and this is the very ſelf-ſame doctrine that all Divines have preached heretofore, only it is delivered otherwiſe, and the reaſon why there is a neceſſity of delivering it thus, is, becauſe this is the form of preaching ſet down in the Scripture, and this is the way to fiſh out Gods Elect, and the beſt way to ſettle their mindes, and eſtabliſh their conſciences, and this is the beſt way to feel and groap in Congregations who are of God: Wilt thou have Chriſt and eternal life, and be delivered from thy ſinnes? thou mayeſt then have the pardon of thy ſinnes, and the favour of God; now if a man be of God he will hear us, if he be not, he will not hear us; this is the way Scripture ſets down, as you may ſee, John 1. 11. He came to his own, and his own received him not; Chriſt came and offered himſelf to his own, he calls all his own people, the very reprobates are his own in reſpect of the offer, but in reſpect of receiving it; ſo the Elect onely are his own, ver. 12. To as many as received him, he gave power to be the Sonnes of God. So Acts 8. 37. The Eunuch would faine have Chriſt by baptiſme; what hinders me but I may be baptized? let me enter into Covenant with Chriſt; what ſhould let me? Mark what Philip ſaith, if thou beleeveſt, thou mayeſt, could he tell whether he were Elect or no? no, but he feels him with the general tender of the Goſpel; what lets me? he ſaith, nothing lets thee if thou canſt beleeve, he could not tell whether he were elected or no, but ſaith he, if thou canſt beleeve with all thy heart, thou mayeſt have Chriſt and all the benefits of the Covenant of grace, if thou haſt a heart and minde unto it, thou mayeſt have it, and after he profeſſed he had, he baptized him. So Paul dealt with the Jaylor, Acts 16.30,31. when Paul ſaw the Jaylor ready to ſtab himſelf; how could he tell whether he were elected or no? yea, when he cried out, What ſhall I do to be ſaved? he might ſpeak out of horror and conſcience: how did Paul know that he was elected? but he feels him with the general tender, beleeve in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt (ſaith he) and thou mayeſt be ſaved, whatſoever thou art, he doth not ſtand upon his election, but beleeve in Chriſt and his Goſpel, and believe eternal life is in him, and reſt upon him for it, let this be a means to pull thee out of thy ſins, and to ſeek after righteouſneſſe and communion with him; if thou haſt faith thou ſhalt be ſaved.

is

Obj. The ſecond Objection is this, that this doctrine ſeems to favour our adverſaries, our adverſaries ſay, that Chriſt died for one as well as for another, and the Goſpel is to be propounded to one as well as to another, and it is as much for one as for another; now if we ſay ſo too, we ſhake hands with them.

Anſw. 1. I anſwer, Firſt there is a great deal of difference between that which the Pelagians ſpeak concerning this thing, they ſay that Chriſt intended his death no more to one then to another; no more to Abraham then Pharaoh; no more to Peter then Judas; look what minde God bare to one a parte ante, he bare as good a minde towards the other; now this we peremptorily deny, and it is an horrible blaſpheming of the grace of God towards his people, for he will have one rather then another, Acts 13.48. as many as were ordained to eternal life beleeved, as who ſhould ſay, as many as God had choſen, they took Chriſt and none elſe, God did intend Chriſt to them eſpecially, more then to the reſt, he gave them a heart, and let the reſt go on in the ſtubbornneſſe of their hearts.

Secondly, they ſay, that Chriſt came to bring nothing but a poſſibility of ſal-ſalvation into the world; now that any man is ſaved, is through the ability of a mans will, that one man will be ſaved, another will not; this man will beleeve in Chriſt, another will not; This we peremptorily deny too, for this is to blaſpheme the Lord Jeſus Chriſt to ſay ſo, for 'tis true, Chriſt hath wrought a poſſibility for others, they might have been ſaved, but would not, the rebellion of their hearts damned them, their unbelief ſent them to hell, but yet he firſt brought an actuality of ſalvation for ſome, for he had his name for this, Mat. 1. 21. Thou ſhalt call his name Jeſus, for he ſhall ſave his people from their ſinnes; nay, the Father and he did indent one with another, that he dying upon the croſſe ſhould ſee his ſeed, Eſay 53. 10.

Thirdly, they ſay that Chriſt might have died and none have been ſaved, which is an horrible impiety for a man once to ſpeak, whereas certainly Chriſts death could never have been fruſtrated; if Chriſt did die for his people, he will ſave them, the gates of hell ſhall not prevaile againſt them, he will gather up all that do belong to his election.

Laſtly, the adverſaries ſay, that as there is a generality in the offer, ſo there is an univerſality in the grace; now this we deny too, that there is an univerſal grace, God gives more mercy to his own people then to others, to you it is given, (ſaith Chriſt, &c.) Mat. 13. 10, 11. ſo to you it is given, ſaith the Apoſtle, not only to beleeve in him, but to die for him, Phil. 1. 29. ſo that God gives more grace to his people then to others, he gives onely common grace to the wicked; 'tis true, God is not wanting to the wicked, God will ever be forehand with them, and they ſhall have more then they make uſe of; now wicked men the Lord leaves them without excuſe, for they ſtick not at an impoſſibility, but at a will, they will not come in that they might be ſaved, they will not do that which God hath put into the power of their hands to do, God gives them knowledge, and they will not practiſe it; God ſhews them their ſinnes, and they will not leave their ſins; may be God makes them leave their ſinnes, and then they return to them againe; it may be God makes them that they never return to their ſins again, but then they take up only a kinde of forme, and there they ſtick and go no further, thus they ſtick at the will, they will not have the Goſpel upon Chriſts termes.

Uſe 1. For the comfort and encouragement of Beleevers.

The firſt uſe of the point is this, it is a great comfort and encouragement to the faith of all Gods people; what an excellent and ſure word is this, when they ſhall finde that they have ſuch an excellent warrant to lay hold upon Chriſt, when he is ſo publickly tendred in the Scripture, there is a common ſalvation in Jeſus Chriſt, Jude 3. Chriſt hath made it to be common for any man that will have it upon the tearms thereof, it is as common as Adam was, As in Adam all died, ſo in Chriſt ſhall all be made alive, 1 Cor. 15. 22. not as though all men ſimply ſhall be made alive, for all men poſſibly are not alive, as all men poſſibly are not dead in Adam, for there might be millions of men after the world is ended; but only thoſe that are in the loynes of Adam; all men that came out of the loyns of Adam ſhall die, ſo all they that ever are in the loyns of Chriſt (as all they are) that will have him, they ſhall be made alive; it is as general as Adam, as many as were in the loyns of Adam, and lived and died ſo, ſhall die; ſo all that are in the loyns of Chriſt, and have a will to come to Chriſt, ſhall be ſaved, for it is the will that carrieth all the ſoul; when a man will do or ſuffer any thing for Chriſt, whatſoever ſin Chriſt will have him leave, he will leave it, whatſoever duty Chriſt will have him take up, he will aſſume it, he will break through all hindrances, and uſe all means, he will have it; the righteouſneſſe of Chriſt is for every one that will have it, I will have it ſaith the ſoul, therefore it belongs to me; the Goſpel of ſalvation is tendred to every one that hath a minde to it; I have a mind to it upon the Goſpels tearms, and therefore it belongs to me.

The

The ſecond uſe is of confutation, to confute thoſe that deſire faith by the full aſſurance of the pardon of a mans ſins, and the ſalvation of his ſoul, this is a dangerous doctrine, and condemns the half of the generation of God, nay, all of them at one time or other, you ſee how the Goſpel calls a man to believe, concerning juſtification and ſalvation, it calls to beleeve in the record of his Son, that he is the Lamb of God, that takes away the ſins of the world, that he is eternal life, that he is the way, the truth, and the light, that he is the hope of glory, that he is the way of coming to God the Father, now when a man hath this faith in a lively manner, and this pulls a man out of the world, & draws him to Chriſt, this is the true faith, this is the faith of the Goſpel, faith is not defined by aſſurance in Scripture, but by beleeving in Chriſt, John 3.18. by reſting upon Chriſt, *Epheſ.*1.12. by reſting upon God, 2*Chr.*14.11. by relying upon God, 2*Chr.*19.8. by adhering and cleaving to God in Chriſt, Acts 11.23. this is true faith, when a man relies upon God, when he believes this ſame bleſſed record, and throws himſelf and caſts himſelf upon it, and will obey God, I may ſay to you all that have this faith, as the Prophet Eſay ſaith to ſuch as you are, Who is there among you that feareth the Lord, and obeyeth the voice of his ſervants, though he ſit in darkneſſe, and ſeeth no light, yet let him reſt upon the Lord, and ſtay himſelf upon the God of his ſalvation? Eſay 50.10. as who ſhould ſay, though you be in the dark, and have no light, no aſſurance, no ſenſe and feeling, no inkling of Gods mercy; though you be in darkneſs and know not where you are, yet if you have a heart to fear God, and obey the voice of his ſervants, and hearken to the tender of the Goſpel, truſt in the Lord your God, relie upon him for all want of ſenſe and feeling, for all darkneſſe, for all want of light in you, for all want of comfort, and ſtay your ſouls that way, yet truſt in the name of the Lord, relie upon him for all his mercies, though you be at this paſſe.

Uſe 2. For confutation.

Object. But the ſoul will ſay, I am afraid, I have nothing, I have no intereſt in Chriſt, but what of that?

Object.

Anſw. If thou be never ſo much afraid, mark what David ſaith, Pſalme 56.3. What time I am afraid, I will truſt in thee; as who ſhould ſay, though I be in the middeſt of fears and doubts, and terrors of conſcience, what time this fear comes upon me, I will caſt my ſelf upon thee; ſo that this is that which the ſoul is to do that beleeves the tender of the Goſpel, and this draws him, and works upon him, it is not a dead faith, but an operative faith, it pulls him, and draws him to Chriſt; he muſt have Chriſt, and he muſt have righteouſneſſe; is there ſuch a faith? then relie upon God, though thy fears come upon thee, yet urge thy ſelf to truſt in God.

Anſw.

Obj. And againe it may be objected, I have hardly any hope that ever I ſhal have the pardon of my ſins, that ever God will hear my prayers, and accept my duties and performances. What of that? if thou haſt this faith?

Object.

Anſw. Mark how it was with Abrahams faith, when God told him he ſhould have a ſonne, though it were above hope, beſides hope, againſt hope, yet he believes in hope; ſo though thou haſt hardly any hope, yet above hope, believe under hope, and though thou art put beſides all hope, and art even ready to be at the brink of deſpaire; yet through thy ſelf upon God, if I periſh, I periſh; go on in the ways of God, and ſeek after the ways of Jeſus Chriſt, and reſt upon him from day to day, and ſtrive to draw neerer to him, to have communion with him, and though thou beeſt put beſides hope, yet believe under hope.

Anſw.

Obj. Again, it may be objected again, if I have any faith, it is ſuch a weak faith, that I can hardly perceive it is any at al, God will never receive me ſurely?

Object.

Anſw. I anſwer, it is not the ſtrength of faith that juſtifies, but it is faith that juſtifies; the plaiſter may heal the wound, though the hand be weak that lays it on; faith is the hand that lays hold on Chriſt, and Chriſt is the plaiſter

Anſw:

that

that is applied to the soul; now though the hand be never so weak, yet it will do the deed as well as a stronger; so it was with the Father of the child that came to Christ, he could hardly see he had any faith; he could not simply deny he had faith, but Lord, saith he, I believe, help my unbelief, he cried and spake with tears, he saw such a deal of unbelief, that the tears trickled down her cheeks, Matthew 9. 24. yet notwithing, that faith got mercy from Christ: Mark what Christ saith, Mat. 18. 10. Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; if Christ will not have his little ones despised of men, then certainly he will not despise them himselfe.

Object. Object. But you will say weak faith will save indeed, but I question whether I have any faith or no, therefore how can I lay hold, and embrace this same mercy then?

Answ. Answ. I answer, though thou beest put to this at any time, do as the servants of God have done, (for it may be the case of the very servants of God, yea of the best of Gods servants,) now you may see what they do in such a case, how they run to God, and pray to him, Psalme 61. 2. When my heart is overwhelmed, lead me to the rock that is higher then I. The Prophet Davids heart sometimes was overwhelemed, but he now went to the rock Christ, when I am in this case (saith he) lead me to the rock, shew me Christ, guide me to him, set me upon him.

Object. Object. But then it may be objected, I cannot pray; if I could pray, it were something, but I can hardly pray, I go to pray, and when I am down upon my knees, I can say nothing; this may be the case of Gods choisest servants, Romans 8. 26. Paul puts himself into the number, We know not what to pray as we ought; we know not what to speak as we should; but yet God hath appointed his Spirit to help us in such a case, though Hezekiah, Esay 38. 14. could not speak a word, but chatter like a Crane or Swallow, and mourne as a dove, yet he had experience that God heard him at that time. So Psalme 77. 4. The Prophet there confesseth he was in this case, that he could not pray, I am so distressed saith he, that I cannot speak, he meanes, to God, and it seemes he found by experience, that he could not pray, nor tell how to poure out a request to God, he was was even stopped and stifled in his prayer, yet in the first verse he could speak it that God heard him for all this: Well then, here you see is the ground of the faith of any poore soul, though he have not any assurance, yet if he hath this faith to relie and rest upon God; if the Gospel calls him, and he comes at this gracious tender; if he casts himself upon this, and this draws him to Christ; and if he love God, and labour to please him, and obey him, and throw away all whatsoever displeaseth him; if this makes him heavenly minded, and long after the knowledge of God, and the revelation of it, this deads his heart to worldly things, and makes him spiritual; if it be thus, this is true and saving faith, and not dead faith.

Use. 3. For encouragement to all that are without. This is encouragement to those that are without. How many are there among you, that are yet in your sinnes, and were never yet brought home to Christ? Consider what an excellent invitation here for you, the Gospel is sent to every Creature under Heaven, as you may see, Col. 1. 23. You may have Christ if you have a will, you may have righteousnesse, if you have a will to it, you may have redemption if you have a wil to it, you may be delivered from sin and Satan, if you have a will to it, you may have the favour of God, if you have a will to it; you may have Christ, if you will have all Christ, he will come to you, and will receive you, as you may see an excellent place for this, 1 Cor. 6. 11. The Apostle there saith, that drunkards and adulterers, and covetous persons shall never inherit the Kingdome of God; such were some of you, but you are justified in the Name of Christ; as who should say, there is no limitation in the Gospel of God, as none in the tender of it, so none in the execution of it; for if you were drunkards, and prophane, and covetous, yet you have found mercy with God by entertaining of this; this methinks should invite people, and draw people to come to Christ: whosoever hath a minde not to perish, not to go in a hard heart, not to be worldly, and without God in the world, here Christ doth envite them all to come, Matthew 22. 9. Go into the high-wayes (saith Christ) and whomsoever you finde, bid them to the Marriage; God knows who we may finde here at Church to day, may be some of you are drunkards, some enemies to God, some hardned in your lusts, some relapsed and fallen back into your carnal courses after profession of Religion, some mockers and despisers; God knows whom we finde; we are bid to go into the high-wayes, and bid all we finde; therefore in the Name of Christ let me speak to you; come to Christ, will you let your sinnes damne you, rather then receive Christ to save you? think of this, and if you will but follow Christ in all his Ordinances, He hath shewed thee O man what the Lord requires of thee, that thou shouldest be humbled, and see what a wretched creature thou art, that thou shouldest see what is amisse in thy soule, and use all courses to reforme thy selfe, he hath shewed thee how he would have thee pray, what company he would have thee keep, what kinde of carriage he would have thee use, he hath shewed thee, O man, what he hath required, hast thou a heart now to come to Christ? he can help thee to all this, and though thou hast not power to do all this, yet if thou hast but a heart to do it, to walk aright, and live aright, and spend thy dayes well in this world: Though thou canst do none of all these things, if though hast but an heart to do them, and dost beleeve that eternal life is in Christ, and this draws thee to Christ, if thou doest but beleeve that in him is acceptance with God, and he can bring thee to God for pardon and peace, and hope and glory; if thou doest beleeve this, and the faith of this doth draw thee to come unto God, I tell thee all thy sinnes shall not damne thee, never a one of thy sinnes shall rise up in judgement against thee; whatsoever thy conscience; whatsoever the devil hath against thee; whatsoever feares, terrours, discouragements are upon thee, they shall never withhold thee from eternal life; do but come to Christ and lay hold upon him, and here he offers himself unto thee, thou art not excepted or excluded, unlesse thou exclude thy selfe; If thou beleeve not, thou shalt be damned; but whosoever beleeves, shall not perish, but have everlasting life.

and

Use 4. In the last place, this is for use to those that are obstinate, namely, to be as hell fire, and the flames of Tophet, in their soules and consciences: You have heard the tender of Christ, that salvation is in Christ and none other: What a miserable taking are you then in, that will not have him; if we should carry the Gospel up and down into any place, would not every one make it welcome? If we should carry it into Innes and Taverns, and amongst the basest wretches in the Countrey, would they not say, we will have Christ? a man would think so, as God saith, Matthew 21. 37. Certainly they will reverence my Sonne, not as if God were deceived in his expectation, but he speaks of the probability of the thing, in all reason one would think, if they may have eternal life, and Gods good will and pleasure toward ward them, that they may have acquittance from all damnation, that they may be happy for ever; certainly they will receive my Sonne gladly, they will take him and receive him in all reason, one would think it were so; but we see it is otherwise, they will not take up Christ and abandon their own courses, they will be vaine, they will be company keepers, they will be worldly, and will neglect the best things; they will have their pleasures, and they will have their fopperies and fooleries, they will not have Christ; there be many things in Christ, that every man would have, the very devils in hell would have it, namely, to be redeemed from hell; to have some peace in their consciences, but the Regiment of Christ, the dominion of Christ to have all Christ, this they will not, this therefore is no comfort to stubborne sinners, but hell and damnation is the portion of all that refuse him, Ezechiel 34. 16. See what the Lord there saith, I will destroy the fat and the strong, and feed them with judgement; you that have fat hearts, and strong, your hearts are strong, and your consciences are strong, and all our Sermons are not able to make you shake, those that are fat and strong, saith the Lord, I will feed them with judgements, none of the mercies and comforts of the Gospel belong to such.

Use 4. For terrour to the obstinate.

And assure your selves, if you care not for Christ, Christ cares as little for you, as the Prophet speaks, Esay 49. 5. Though Israel be not gathered, I shall have glory in his eyes; so though you be not called and brought home, though you be not saved, I shall have glory, saith Christ, I shall be known to all eternity to be a Saviour, to be a Prince, to be the glory of the world, I shall be glorious in heaven and in earth, and in hell to all the world, to all eternity, Though Israel be not gathered, if you be obstinate and will have your sinnes, take them and perish with them, I shall never rue your absence in heaven, therefore Christ is at a point, if you will have him, here he is, if you will not, assure your selves you shall die in your sins, except you beleeve in him you shall die in your sins.

COL.

Col. 1. 23.

If ye continue in the faith grounded and ſetled, and be not moved away from the hope of the Goſpel, which ye have heard, and which was preached to every creature under heaven, whereof I Paul am made a Miniſter.

WE have ſpoken of a Chriſtians call, by the general indifferent propounding of the Goſpel to every creature without exception; now the effectualneſſe of this call lieth here, that the Lord doth put in a little hope into the ſoul; though the man be one of Gods choſen, he doth not preſently give him faith, but doth open a little door of hope to the ſoul. Firſt, the Lord brings his Law to a man, and layeth him dead in Law, utterly undone, paſt all hope of recovery in himſelf; he is a loſt creature, a miſerable wretched creature, having no hold to ſtay upon, but a fearful looking for of vengeance; he ſeeth nothing but wrath: now when God hath a minde to call a man home at the hearing of the Goſpel of peace, the Lord lets in a little hope into the ſoul, whereby he doth draw the ſoul to ſeek out unto him, and makes it look out with hope of ſalvation; the ſoul ſeeth now that there is mercy in Chriſt, and grace in Chriſt, and eternal life in Chriſt; and he ſeeth this is generally and freely tendred to all that will have it; and out of theſe two branches of general faith ſpirings this hope: now thinks the ſoul, I may have it as well as another, the dole is free, the mercy is free, and why may not I be ſaved? why may not I finde mercy and forgiveneſs, and be ingraffed into the Lord Jeſus Chriſt? before this the ſoul was groaping for hope, if it could have told where to have had it, as Acts 2. 37. they were there groaping where to have it, Men and brethren, ſay they, what ſhall we do? they do not ſay there is nothing to be done, there is no hope, but what ſhall we do? as who ſhould ſay, there is ſomething to be done, ſome courſe to be taken, you that are Miniſters of God, is there no way whereby we may be pardoned? whereby we may be ſaved? whereby we may have a new heart, and the favour of God, and be delivered from the wrath to come? but when the Goſpel comes they ſee now a poſſibility, and this breeds this hope, ſo that this is the next point.

That when God doth effectually call a ſoul by his Goſpel, at the hearing of this gracious tender of eternal life and grace in Jeſus Chriſt, the Lord doth let in a poſſibility of mercy, and every grace into the ſoule, and this doth help the ſoul with hope, and this doth make the ſoul to trace God in all his wayes, and he hath ſome encouragement that God will be found of him, and that he may attaine ſalvation; this the firſt thing; the Lord puts in hope attaining of it; the Lord deales with his people in this kinde, as he dealt with his people in delivering them out of Babylon, Zech. 9. 12. they were priſoners in Babylon; now when God would deliver them out of Babylon bylon, he did first put in hope into their souls, he made them prisoners of hope; there was first a pouring of hope into their souls, and then he opened the prison doors: So the Lord makes his people prisoners of hope; that though they be in the captivity of sinne and Satan, yet they are prisoners of hope, and the Lord gives some hope, that the prison doores shall be opened, and this we have here in the text; for though the Apostle means here by hope, the things hoped for; yet we call it hope, because as soone as ever they dawn in the soul, they breed hope, if they be the servants of God, so that this Gospel breeds hope in a mans bosom. Now here be five things I would shew unto you; First, what this hope is. Secondly, how it agreeth with that hope that follows justifying faith. Thirdly, how it disagrees with it. Fourthly, the Reasons of the point. And fifthly, the Uses.

Doct. The generall tender of mercy workes ſome hope in the ſoul.

1. What is this hope?

For the first, what this hope is, and it is an hope that ariseth out of the faith of possibility, when the Lord lets in a possibility of faith, and makes the soul believe that his sinnes may be forgiven, and he may attaine everlasting life; and he may come to be a Saint, and one of Gods dear and faithful children; he lets in such a possibility into the heart, and this hope flows out of this faith of possibility; and this faith of possibility is another-gesse thing then people take it for; every drunkard will say he beleeves that it is possible to be saved, and to finde mercy with God; but you will finde it is a greater matter then so; it is spoken as a great commendation of Abraham, that he did beleeve that God was able to raise up his sonne Isaac, Heb. 11. 19. so our Saviour Christ speaking to the blinde man, asks him this question, do you believe that I am able to do this for you? Mat. 9.23. it was a great matter for him to believe that he was able to do this for him. Sarah, though an excellent woman for faith otherwise, yet she stuck mightily here, and thought it was impossible for her to have a childe; nay, Moses as faithful a man as he was, he could not believe that all the people could be fed in the wildernesse; it is a greater matter then you think for, for every sinful wretch thinks it is an easie matter to believe that Christ died for sinners, and that they may be saved; it is an easie matter for the faith of presumption, but if a mans eyes be opened, and his conscience awakened, and he comes to have a sight of his sin, now Cain will say, his sinnes are greater then can be forgiven; and Judas is not able to flie unto Christ to believe a possibility of pardon, but goes and hangs himself, and despairs totally of the businesse; this faith of possibility, it comes within the compasse of a definition of faith, it is the evidence of things not seen, it is far above our nature, and flesh & blood cannot reveal it; that there is salvation in Christ, and that there is such a thing as a pardon to be had at Gods hands, let a man have his understanding enlightned to see what a wretch he is, and how fearfully he hath provoked Gods wrath against him, and it is not in his power to beleeve that there is a possibility for him to finde mercy, or any hope of pardon, it cannot be attained to without the work of God; a weak shelfe is able to hold, when a man lays but a book upon it, but if a man lay a great weight upon a weak shelf, it will break under it; so it is with the faith of men, when there is no weight laid upon it, the burthen of the Lord is not laid upon them, then they may think it is an easie matter to have salvation and their sinnes pardoned; but if this weight should be laid upon them, their faith would burst, unlesse the Lord should be pleased to put in a better faith then this, it is not in a mans power to look beyond the power of justice, for a man to beleeve that there is mercy in God contrary to the sentence of his own Law, and contrary to the sense and feeling of a mans own soul; and therefore when the Lord is pleased effectually to call a man, though he lay a bleeding bleeding before in the sight and sense of his misery, he opens a door of hope to the soul, he lets in a light of possibility, that he may may yet come to be quickened, and be a new creature, and obtaine mercy at the hands of the Lord, as the Lord dealt with his people, Hos. 2. 14. there saith the text, I will give them the valley of Achor for the door of hope; so when the Lord doth cast a man into the valley of Achor, of stoning and astonishment, then he opens a door of hope that he may look in, and see at a crevis some hope for him to speed; though yet I have an hard heart, yet such a thing may be, if I come to Christ, I see God may afford mercy to whom he will, and hath propounded it to every man that will have it, therefore I may have mercy, the Lord begins to stir and move the heart, and now the soul begins to have a door of hope; you see then what this hope is, it is such a thing as flowes from the faith of possibility, I do not say that it is a justifying faith, but it is the forerunner of it, to make way for it.

The second thing is, how this hope agrees with that which proceeds from a justifying faith? I answer, it agrees in five things. 2. How it agrees with that which followes justifying faith.

First, both are of God, all the hope a creature hath, if it be a true hope, it is of God, therefore the Apostle saith, the God of all hope, &c. Rom. 15. 13. God is the God of all hope, I do not say that all hope absolutely is of God, for the vaine hope of wicked men is of the Devil, and is not of God, but I speak of a true hope and courage that the soul gets to seek God in his wayes, and fear him. 1. Both are of God.

Secondly, they are both wrought by the Gospel, Rom. 15. 4. All things were written for our learning (saith the Apostle) that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope; Thus it is with a believer though he hath nothing in present possession, though he be persecuted, and afflicted, and forsaken in the world, though he hath never so many miseries here below, yet when he looks into the Scriptures, and sees what promises God hath made, he comes to have some hope, it is thus with a man that is not yet a believer, but is in the way to be a believer, the Lord works with him this way, though he see himself a miserable and wretched sinner, and undone man, cast off, and there is no hope in himself, yet when he looks into the Scriptures, and sees what a gracious tender of mercy there is to any man that will have mercy, it is not the wretchednesse of a mans heart that casts him off, but the not coming to Christ, and receiving of him that damnes him; for the fountaine of mercy is open for every one that will receive Christ; thus the Scripture gives hope. 2. Both are wrought by the Gospel.

Thirdly, both set a man on work, as suppose a man hath an hope that proceeds from justifying faith, as he believes in Christ, so this sets him a work, 1 John 3. 3. He that hath this hope purifies himself as Christ is pure, it makes him labour to be humble and meek, and to be made partaker of the Spirit of Grace, it makes him labour after the things that are above, and to be fitted and disposed to every good work, and to purge himself, and cleanse his conscience more and more, and so a man that hath not this justifying faith, but hath only this branch of effectual calling begun in him, he that hath this hope I now speak of, it sets him a work to seek after Christ, and to labour hard for the enjoying of him, and to seek him in all his Ordinances in his manner, though he cannot pray and performe duties as others do, yet he will do it in that manner he is able. 3. Both set a man on work.

Fourthly, both are the anchor of the soul, as it is with a believer, though he be a godly believer, and hath interest in Christ, yet what with temptations from hell, and his own heart, he will be tossed to and fro were it not for this hope which is as an anchor to the soul, so it is with a man that is not come thus far, but is only under the same first branch, though his tossings be fierce, and his temptations be violent and his case be doubtful and full of hazard; yet notwithstanding when this hope comes into the soul, it doth marvelously stay the heart though it see nothing but hell, and damnation, and misery, and his 4. Both are the anchor of the soul. Heb. 6. 19.

his conſcience is not purged, and his life renewed, and his ſoul ſanctified and wrought upon in Jeſus Chriſt; though he ſees there is no way but hell and damnation, yet when this hope comes into the ſoul, though he can ſee neither ſtarlight, nor Moon-light, nor nothing, it doth ſtay him much, and prop him up much, and doth encourage him to go on without diſmay.

5. Neither of them ſhall make a man aſhamed.

Neither of theſe two hopes ſhall make a man aſhamed, if a man hath this true hope, he ſhall never be aſhamed, Rom. 5. 4. Hope maketh not aſhamed, ſo it is with a man that is truly wrought upon, the Lord never deceives him; there is a working of grace for grace, before grace it ſelf comes into the ſoul, which carries a man beyond a reprobate, and this hope the ſoul hath, will never let him be in this caſe, that he ſhall need to be aſhamed.

3. How this hope differs from that which follows juſtification.

The third thing is this, how this hope differs from that hope which proceeds from juſtifying faith, and they differ in two things.

1 This ariſeth out of the ſeeds of grace, the other out of grace it ſelf.

The firſt is, that this hope I now ſpeak of, it ariſeth out of the ſeeds of grace, the other out of grace it ſelf; there are the ſeeds of grace which are ſomething of grace in the ſoul, before grace it ſelf comes, and though we have not any place of Scripture to ſhew this, yet there are abundance of places that aime at, and include this. As it may be referred to the woeings of Chriſt, Hoſ. 2. 14. when the excellency and neceſſity of Chriſt woes the ſoul, and the poſſibility of having Chriſt, theſe things allure a man, here is this work, when the ſoul begins to be a neuter, before the ſoul believes, yet there is a kinde of bending of faith, as the man in the Goſpel, when Chriſt asked him, if he believed in the Son of God; he ſaith, Lord what is he that I may believe? as who ſhould ſay, I am ready to believe if I could, I am ready to reſigne my ſelf to believe, do but ſhew me how I may believe?

Secondly, this may be referred to the forming of Chriſt in the heart, Gal. 4. 19. before the babe is organized, there is ſeed, ſo there is a ſeed of God in the ſoul, and he that hath this ſeed cannot ſin, becauſe he is borne of God, as there is a ſeed of generation, ſo of regeneration; as the prodigal before he came home to his Father, he ſaith with himſelf, I will go home to my Father, and ſay, Father I have ſinned againſt Heaven, and before thee, &c. Luke 15.16. What made him do this? they are nothing elſe but the effects of the ſeeds of grace; So the Jaylor, Acts 16. 13. that cried out, Sirs, what ſhall I do to be ſaved? what were theſe but the expreſſions of the ſeeds of grace that were in him? the next newes we heare, he did believe, now the Lord ſowes ſeeds of grace in the ſoul, and theſe break forth into hope, and deſires, and waitings for grace, theſe are the ſeeds of grace, and from thence comes this hope, but the other hope comes from grace it ſelf, it is true, that theſe ſeeds of grace are grace in themſelves, they are the work of grace for grace, but they are not grace fully and compleatly wrought in the ſoul.

2. They come from ſeveral apprehenſions.

They come from ſeveral apprehenſions, the hope we now ſpeak of apprehends nothing but a poſſibility of pardon, that he may be pardoned, and have power over his ſins, he may attaine to be a new creature, and to be one of the redeemed of the Lord, and this is that which ſends him after God, and makes him trace him up and down, till the Lord doth it for him, but the other apprehends that he hath it already, or elſe reſts upon God for it, and hopes undoubtedly for the accompliſhment of it; this hope I now ſpeak of was in the King of Niniveh, Who knows but the Lord may repent, and turne from his fierce anger that we periſh not? I cannot tell, but there is hope it may be, and who knows but God will do it? And this hope made him humble himſelf, and ſeek to God, and there was a publike kinde of reformation outwardly. So it is here, the Lord lets in ſome hope, who knows but the Lord will yet ſhew mercy? and it is not only an imaginary hope, ſuch a hope as vaniſheth eth and leaves a man in the lurch, but this hope doth ſtir up a mans ſoul, and provoke a man to look out to God for that mercy, whereof he ſees a poſſibility of attaining.

I come now to the reaſons of the point, why the Lord doth work this hope in the ſoul, and the firſt is this; Leſt a man ſhould lie all along in deſpaire, when the Lord ſhews a man his ſins and his miſery in regard thereof, if the Lord ſhould not put in this hope, a man would altogether deſpaire, it is impoſſible a man ſhould be able to ſtand, as Salomon ſaith, A wounded ſpirit who can beare? So, when the Lord chargeth a mans ſins and iniquities upon his conſcience, and aggravates all his ſinfulneſſe, a man would ſink under this burthen, and never be able to hold up his head, were it not for this hope, as we uſe to ſay, were it not for hope, the heart would break, ſo this is the reaſon why God puts in this hope, he doth it to ſtay the ſoul, that it may not ſink under the hand of God. I will revive the heart of the contrite one, I will not contend with them for ever, Iſa. 57. 16, 17. Leſt their ſpirits faile before me, as who ſhould ſay, if I ſhould let my wrath into their ſouls, and ſhould not put in this hope and reviving into their hearts, their very ſpirits would faile before me, and ſink under me, they would be at their wits end, and be utterly overwhelmed, therefore God puts in this that he may help their ſoules, if God ſhould ſhew a man his ſins as they are in his ire, and ſhew him all the corruption of his nature, and his filthineſſe from the womb, till now, and reckon with him for this in his ſoul, and conſcience, and let him ſee what a curſed creature he is, his ſpirit would faile before Almighty God, and the ſtouteſt creature under Heaven were not able to ſtand under it, but would rather take an halter and hang himſelf then undergo it; now, when the Lord deales with a man, he puts in this ſupporting hope to ſtay him up, otherwiſe the ſoul were not able to hold.

Reaſ. 1. To prevent deſpaire.

Secondly, if the Lord ſhould not put in this hope it would utterly diſable a man from looking after Heaven, when a man conceives no hope, this breaks the neck of all his endeavours, a man will not toile for nothing; and lay out his ſtrength and all that is in him, when he conceives he hath no hope at all, He that plowes, plowes in hope, &c. 1 Cor. 9. 10. therefore when a man can hardly ſee any hope, this doth ever vale a man, it makes a man rather deſpaire, it makes a man do as commonly people do when they ſee they muſt go to hell, they fill their ſouls with pleaſures and delights, there is little hope for them to come into the ſtrict way, that they will ever be able to beare it, that they may have mercy like thoſe wretches, Jer. 2. 25. There is no hope, &c. there is no hope, we have loved our ſtrangers, and after them we will go. When people have not hope to get through, this makes them deſperate, they care not what they do, and they grow careleſſe and negligent, many a man hath ſaid ſo, I was of the minde once to be preciſe, but the further I pried into it, the worſe I was, and theſe Preachers will make a man mad, when people finde humiliation ſo hard a thing, they think they are not able, to wade through and ſo leave it, when they have no hope to go on, they grow remiſſe, and looſe, and careleſſe in this kinde, it makes a man deſperate when this hope is gone, therefore when the Lord hath a minde to do good to a man and encourage him to go on in the wayes of holineſſe, he puts ſome hope into the ſoul, and when a man ſees ſome hope, then he will pray and faſt, and humble himſelf, the Lord lets in this hope, and ſo prepares a man for himſelf.

1. That a man may not be diſabled from looking after heaven.

Thirdly, becauſe he will not do all at once, but work upon a man by degrees, the Lord could put faith into the ſoul at firſt, but the Lord will firſt make a man a probationer of faith, the Lord will firſt have the ſeed ſowen, and then quicken in the ground, and then have a blade, and then an eare, and then harveſt.

3. Becauſe God will not do all at once.

Again

4. That he may be sought to for every mercy.

Again, the Lord will so do it, that he may be sought to for every mercy; and therefore first the Lord gives a man natural parts, that he may come to Church and hear the Word, and then the Lord knocks him down that he may be abased, and then he shatters him all to pieces, that he may look out for hope; and then when he hath gotten hope, the Lord makes him seek out for faith, and when he hath gotten faith, to seek out for other graces; and when he hath them, to seek for the accomplishment of them; the Lord will be sought to for every thing, and it is fit we should seek to him; though the parent doth not engender the reasonable soul in the babe, but God doth create it immediately, yet none of us do count marriage superfluous, so though God doth give this grace of faith only, yet we are not to account the using of means in vain, the Lord doth not power in humane wit into stocks and stones, but into a body fitted and ordered for a reasonable soul, so it is in respect of faith and grace, the creature shall be first ordered and fitted for grace, there must be preparation and a foregoing work, it is his manner of working. he will so work as he will still be sought unto of all his people, though they have not faith, if they have hope, they shall seek to him for faith, as it is with a Scholar, if he will be a Scholar or Fellow of a Colledge, he must fit for it, so the Lord will have a man fit for it, he will have a man fit at the pool of grace, and seek to him for it before he shall have it.

Use 1. To shew the graciousnes of God.

This shews us the graciousnes of our good God, that when he takes us to do for our sins, He remembers us when we are in our low estate, for his mercy endures for ever, Psal. 136. 23. when we are at the brink of hell, at the very bottome of destruction, and in the belly of damnation, when we know not which way to turne our selves, then he remembers us, for his mercy endures for ever, thus the Lord deals with his people for their good, as he opens the casement, that his justice may look out upon us, so he sets his mercy in the window that we may see it through the glasse, that we may not be overwhelmed, this is the goodnes of God, and were it not for this, no man should be able to abide his look, nor bear his displeasure when he breakes out upon a man, this is the infinite goodnes of our gracious God, to deal thus favourably with his people, therefore you that have gotten this hope, know, that the Lord might have held you down to this day, and he had justly served you if he had done so, therefore whosoever of you are in the briars do not repine and grumble, because you are not refreshed as others are, if you have but the least cranny of hope to hang upon, make much of it, it is more then God owes you, how easily might the Lord teare the soul all in pieces, when he comes to deal with a man, when he shews a man his sins and abominations? he might make them as heavy as rocks and mountaines unto him, and break him all to powder, it were just if he did so, now when the Lord puts in this hope, what a wonderful mercy is this? When God told Hezekiah, Behold thou shalt die, he presently bade him take a lump of Figgs and healed the disease, so what a mercy is this, that God saith, Thou shalt die, thou art a damned creature, and bids him presently take a plaister, and so recovers him.

Use 2. Comfort for believers.

For comfort to all those that are the Lords, though it be a poor faith, a poor hope that flowes from possibility only, yet I tell you that even believers may have need sometimes to have resort unto it, for how often hath the Devil been let loose upon poor souls, even those that are of God as sometimes he doth tempt them to presumption, that so they may neglect their watch over themselves, so it is his practice to drive us from one extreame to another, and hurry us to despair, and urge upon us that we have no faith, we have no grace, and are as sure to be damned as if we were in hell already, David (Psal. 31. 22.) seems to be out of all hope to be saved, as if he were utterly undone, the servants of light many of them have found this too too true, how fearfully they have been perplexed and galled in minde, seeking release, but could finde none, and pronouncing

nouncing againſt themſelves bitter things, as if they had nothing of God in them, the devil dazling their eyes that they cannot ſee, and putting out of their minds all the ſweet paſſages of the Goſpel, and preaching nothing but the terrible paſſages of the Law, he that doubts is damned, and he that wavers is like a wave of the ſea, and he urgeth them with every vain thought, with every omiſſion, with every failing, and every ſin they have committed; it is ſtrange to ſee how ſome of Gods own people have reaſoned againſt themſelves, as if all the devils logick were in them, and all mercy were gone; thus the devil ſometimes deals with Gods people, that they cannot tell where to hold; they can ſee nothing to give any comfort or ſtay, they are ready to let go all, and give over all hope; now what an excellent thing is this, if a man have this hope, that he may be never driven from God, that there is eternal life and forgiveneſſe in him, and all theſe things are attainable; I tell you, it is a great help to a man when he can ſay with the Church, Joel 2.13. Who can tell whether the Lord will turn, and leave a bleſſing behind him? a man that hath but this hope in him, it will never let him go off from God, and be quite overcome by Satan; ſo that though it be but a poor thing, yet it is worth a Kings ranſome in time of trouble.

Uſe 3. Informe how God works this hope.

To ſhew unto us how God doth work this hope, and he works it, firſt, by rooting out of the heart all vaine hopes, and bringing in a better hope, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, *Heb.*7.19. The Law made nothing perfect; when God brought in Chriſt, he brought in a better hope; when God brings Chriſt to the ſoul, he brings a better hope into the ſoul; the ſoul before had a vaine hope, he prayed and came to Church, and was civil and well brought up, and had many good gifts, and many terrours and affrightments, all theſe are nothing but legal works; a man can never have hope in this; but when God brings in a better hope, he throws out all the other, he ſhoots his Law like a great Ordnance into the ſoul, and ſtrikes him dead; and makes him ſee there is no hope, all his vaine hopes are nothing, and ſtill the ſoul will be gathering falſe hopes, and returning to them, but the Lord throws them out ſtill, and puts in a better hope.

1. By rooting out all vain hopes.

By ſetting a look upon the Goſpel, as the Goſpel tenders this to every creature, to one as well as to another, ſo the Lord puts a particular look upon the Goſpel, as Peter ſaid to the lame man, look upon me, and this made him expect to receive an alms from him, Acts 3.4,5. So the Lord makes a man look upon the Goſpel to minde the Goſpel, and regard and take notice of it, what it ſaith, for people let theſe things ſlip, but when God works this hope in the ſoul, he makes a man to mind the Goſpel, and makes as if it looked at him, and ſo he comes to have ſound hope in the Goſpel, as a beggar when a Gentleman puts his hand into his purſe, though he ſees nothing, yet he thinks he will give him ſomething; ſo the Lord puts his hand into his purſe, as it were, he lays his hand upon mercy, and lets the ſoul ſee him tendring of mercy, and this makes him hope he ſhall have mercy, he caſts a look upon him, and ſo affects and draws the ſoul, and he finds the Lord moving the ſoul, and inclining the heart, and weaning the ſoul from the world, and quickning him to ſeek after the things that are above.

2. By ſetting a look upon the Goſpel.

By removing of all impoſſibilities that lie upon the ſoul, you know there is abundance of impoſſibilities that appear, as for a man to live in his ſinnes, a man then hath no heart to Chriſt, no heart to heavenly things, no mind to pray and to ſtrict courſes; it is impoſſible for a man in this caſe ever to attaine theſe things, when he hath no heart to them; now the Lord takes away that impoſſibility, and makes the ſoul ſee it is poſſible to attain theſe things; therefore there is a kinde of ſeed of regeneration going along with this, 1 Pet. 1. 3. as there is a ſeed before regeneration it ſelf, before that hope that proceeds from juſtifying faith, ſo theſe ſeeds of regeneration are

3. By removing all impoſſibilities.

before this hope I now speak of, the soul hath something wherby it seeth a possibility, and the Lord shews him a way of recovery, and sets up a standard to guide him in the way, and takes away all impediments that hinder him in the way; and now the soul seeth it is possible to attain unto these things.

Use 4. Labour not to diminish this hope.

If we have any such hope as this, let us not labour to diminish it; but let it grow in us, it is an excellent mercy of God to begin this hope; if we have the least crevis or cranny of it, let us make much of it, let us tender it, cherish it, for it will help us to pray and seek God, and let go our corruptions, it will enable us to do many things, when a man hath gotten this hope once; therefore, if we have it, let us put it on, as the Apostle saith, if you mean to go to heaven, you shall be sure to meet with blows, therefore you should have your helmet on; the devil will say, have you any hope to go to heaven, having such a vile cursed heart? you were better give all over, for your betters have missed it; now we had need of this hope to be nourished and cherished in us; nay, though a man hath never so much faith, he should cherish this more and more.

Quest. How may this hope be cherished.

But how shall a man cherish it?

Ans. 1. Look to the power of God.

I answer, first, look to the power of God, do not say, how shall I be able to do this and that? how shall I get my lusts to be mortified, and how shall I get my heart to submit to God? but look unto the power of God, and do not limit the holy one of Israel; the Lord may pardon thy sins and renue thy heart, therefore look unto the power of God. When Christ told his Disciples, Mat. 16. 24. that it is easier for a Camel to go through the eye of a needle, then for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of heaven; they were all astonished, O say they, who then can be saved? Oh saith Christ, look unto God; 'tis true, with men it is impossible, for the heart and affections of a man are so glued to the things of this world, and he hath so much pleasure and delight in the things of this life, that his heart cannot look after mercy with zeal and fervency; it is as impossible as for a cable to go through a needles eye, but saith he, look to the power of God, he is able to work it; a rich man may be saved for all this, if a rich man be touched with the sence and feeling of his sinnes, and have a heart to come to God, though he meet with never so many difficulties in his way, let him look unto the power of God, to whom nothing is hard.

2. Look to the freeness, indifferency and universality of the promises.

Secondly, look to the freeness of Gods promises, the indifferency and universality of the tender of them, whosoever thirsteth, let him buy wine and milk without money, Esay 55. 1. when a doale is tendred to all at the doore; Why may not every beggar hope to receive it? so if mercy be free for every one that comes to Gods door for it; why mayst not thou look up with hope if thou hast an heart, to it thou mayest; if thou hast not an heart, thou art none of Gods; but if thou hast an heart, look up to God, and be not dismayed, but see the infiniteness of Gods mercy, that as the heavens are higher then the earth, so his mercies are far above our thoughts and apprehensions, and where sinne abounds, grace abounds much more; there are many poor souls that would come to Christ, but thorough their daily distempers and untowardness, and the temptations of Satan, they are repelled, they would come to God, but know not how; they have hardly any hope, these things are spoken for such poor creatures.

3. Send often unto God by prayer.

Thirdly, send often unto God, call upon his Name, as it is said of Felix, when he hoped to receive money of Paul, he sent often for him to commune with him, Acts 24. 26. So send often to God, and be often communing with God, and calling upon his name; above all duties under heaven, there is no Ordinance helps a man more with communion with God then frequent prayer doth, or that the heart is more against then that; not pray out of formality, or in a perfunctory manner, but to pray indeed; of all duties I commend unto thee that, go to God and pray often, if thou wouldest hope to receive mercy at his hands.

John

JOHN 6.45.

Every man therefore that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

WE come now to the ſecond degree of effectual calling, and that is a perſonal call of this or that man by a particular word, when the Lord doth particularize his promiſes, and tenders them to this or that man; come unto me and here is free grace and mercy for thee; come and believe, and reſt upon me for it: when the Lord doth ſpeak a particular word to the ſoul, as you may ſee, Eſay 43.1. I have called thee by name, thou art mine; when God effectually calls a man, he calls him by name, he calls him with a particular word; come unto me, here is pardon; rely upon me and thou ſhalt have it, here is peace of conſcience; rely upon me and thou ſhalt attain to it; thou art an undone creature in thy ſelf, here is mercy for thee, not only when there is a general word propounded to the ſoul, but when the Lord joynes with the word, and follows it to the ſoul and conſcience; come to me man, when God calls a man by name; ſo it is ſaid of Matthew, Chriſt ſaw him ſitting at the receipt of cuſtom, and ſaid unto him, follow me, he called him in particular, and directed a particular word to his heart, and bid him follow him and depend upon him for all good: ſo it was with Zacheus, when Chriſt looked up and ſaw him in the ſig-tree, he ſaid Come down Zacheus; he directed a particular word to him; this is the thing; now I do not meane the outward word onely in the Scripture, either preached or read; But ſecondly, when it is inwardly ſpoken by God himſelf to the ſoule, and ſet on, when God bids a man believe and come unto him, this is the thing, and this we have heard in the Text, Every man that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me; for the coherence of theſe words, you muſt know, that in the former verſes our Saviour Chriſt had told them, that he was the bread that came down from heaven, inviting them to come unto him, ver. 41, 42. and you may ſee what effect this wrought in their hearts, how they murmured at him, they were ſo far from yeilding to his call, that they fell a murmuring at him; And ſecondly, ſee how they alledge reaſons for their murmuring, v. 42. Is not this Jeſus the Sonne of Joſeph, &c. as who ſhould ſay, if he came from the earth, how did he come from heaven? therefore you may ſee what anſwer Chriſt makes, v. 43. Firſt, he reproves them, and ſaid, murmur not among your ſelves; as who ſhould ſay, this is no murmuring matter, it is a mourning and lamenting matter; you ſhould bewaile your condition, and turne your murmuring into mourning; Again he bids them not wonder at it, v. 44. For no man cometh unto me, except the Father draweth him, as who ſhould ſay, it is no news to me that you ſtumble at my words, and will not hear what I ſay, for none can come to me except my Father draw him; you care not for me, but murmur againſt me, and your hearts are ſtout againſt the Lord; you cannot attain unto it, for no man, &c. Thirdly, he ſhews that ſome would come to him for all this, though ſome would not, yet ſome would, even all his Elect, therefore he quotes this ſaying out of the Prophets, Every one that hath heard, and learned of the Father, cometh unto me; the word ſhall not only come to the outward eare, but they ſhall be taught of God, and then they will come home to me; and then concludes with the words of the Text, Every man that hath heard, &c. as who ſhould ſay, though you will not, yet I am ſure, every man that hath heard my Father ſpeak to his heart, that hath heard him preaching from heaven in his boſome, that man will come to me, ſo that God can call thoſe things which are not, as if they were; though a man be never ſo rebellious and averſe from Chriſt, yet when he ſpeaks a particular word to the ſoul, it comes.

Queſt. What is that particular word which God ſpeaks.

But you will ſay, what is this particular word which the Lord ſpeaks to the ſoul? is there any ſuch particular word to be found in all the Scripture, Thomas or Richard, do you come to me?

Anſ. It is contained in general.

I anſwer, there is a general word in the Scripture, and this particular word is in the general, ſo that though there be not a particular word expreſſively, yet there is equivalently; and this I will make appear in three or four particulars.

Firſt, what particular place of Scripture ſaith, that Thomas, or James, or ſuch a one is a childe of wrath by nature, is here any Scripture ſaith ſo of him? I anſwer, yes, this particular is in the general, we are all the children of wrath by nature, Eph. 2. 3. and curſed is every one that continues not in all the things written in the Law to do them, Gal. 3. 10. now though a mans name be not named, William ſuch a one is accurſed by nature, yet notwithſtanding he findes his particular in the general, that he is a curſed creature.

Again, what place of Scripture ſaith that Robert or John muſt love God, and is bound to love God, is there any ſuch place of Scripture? no, why will you ſay then, that you are bound to love God and obey him, if there be no ſuch place of Scripture? yes, for this particular is in the general, Thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God, &c. That Commandment is delivered to all men in the whole world: So, Thou ſhalt do no murther, thou ſhalt not commit adultery, &c. this Commandment lies upon the whole world; therefore if thou beeſt a man, though thou canſt not finde thy name ſet down, that the Lord ſpeaks to thee, yet thy particular is in thoſe generals; ſo though it cannot be ſhewn in all the Scripture that ſuch a particular man ſhall riſe againe, yet when the Scripture ſaith, that all men ſhall riſe againe, as John 5. 28. Marvel not, for the houre ſhall come that all fleſh that is in the grave ſhall come forth; if all that are dead ſhall riſe again, then every man ſhall riſe again, though his name be not named in Scripture; ſo it is hear, we read in Scripture that Chriſt ſaith, John 7. 37. If any man thirſt, let him come unto me and drink, now the Lord includes a particular in it, and brings it to the ſoul, thou thirſteſt, thou wouldeſt faine have Chriſt, here are the promiſes, here is all mercy in my Sonne, believe in him, come and receive him, take him, and thou ſhalt have them; ſo if Chriſt ſaith, whoſoever beleeves ſhall be ſaved, then Saint Paul might ſafely conclude a particular word to the Jaylor, beleeve in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt and thou ſhalt be ſaved, Acts 16. 31, ſo that you ſee here is a particular word, though not particular directly, yet equivalent to a particular, namely a particular in the general, and the Spirit of God doth ſpeak this to the ſoul, and makes the ſoul hear it, Every man therefore that hath heard it, &c.

Doct. When God calls the ſoul he makes it hear a particular voice.

When God calls the ſoul home, he makes the ſoul hear his voice, here a particular voice and word to him; believe in the Lord, come unto me for ſalvation relie upon me for eternal life; the ſinnes that trouble thy ſoule, caſt thy ſelf upon me for the forgiving of them, the diſeaſes, miſeries, diſtempers tempers thou art ſubject unto, lay hold upon me, and reſt upon me for the delivering thee from them; the Lord when he calls a man effectually, he ſpeaks it, not onely the Miniſter and the Word ſpeaks it, but the Lord ſpeaks it; and ſo the ſoul hearing of the Father comes to Chriſt; thus you may ſee the Lord holds the free promiſes of the Goſpel before the ſoul, and bids a man relie upon them; as Peter dealt with his contrite hearers, the Spirit of the Lord going along with his word, Acts 2. 39. believe, ſaith he, for the promiſe belongs to you and to your children, &c. as who ſhould ſay, when God calls a man effectually, he holds forth his promiſes, and propounds them to the ſoul, beleeve this promiſe, and reſt upon me for it; thus the Lord doth call a man home, he ſends his promiſe before him, he ſets up hope before him, he ſends the gracious invitation of the Goſpel before him, and bids him relie upon it; thus God dealt with his Elect Corinths, 1 Cor. 1. 9. God is faithful (ſaith the Apoſtle) by whom ye are called to the fellowſhip of his Sonne Jeſus Chriſt, as who ſhould ſay, when God called you, he ſpake to every one of you in particular; come and be fellow heirs with my Son, come and have every good thing with my Sonne, come and be a ſonne with him, come and be an heir of grace with him, and have title to eternal life and ſalvation, God calls you, ſaith he, to beleeve that he is faithful: So I might inſtance in many more, though there be never ſo many in the Congregation, yet the Lord doth not ſpeak to them all; they do not all hear his voice; they all hear the Miniſter, but that makes them not to come, that doth not the deed, but when the Lord calls a man, he comes, he joyns with the Word, and ſpeaks to this or that man, and takes him alone, and whiſpers him in the ear, and tells him where mercy is, and bids him rely upon him, and though ſenſe and feeling be againſt him, though all fears and objections be againſt him, he bids him believe and be of good cheere, he ſhall have all theſe mercies if he will believe in him, as he ſaith Eſay 51. 20. Look unto Abraham your father, for I called him alone and bleſſed him; mark it, the Lord took him alone, and ſpake to his heart, between him and himſelf; ſo when the Lord ſpeaks to a ſoul, and calls him by his grace, he calls him alone, and takes him alone, though all the Congregation hears the ſame Sermon, yet he takes him alone, and ſpeaks to his heart, and bids him beleeve in him, for I will never faile thee, it is a ſure foundation, he may build upon it for ever and ever.

Becauſe no man could come unto Chriſt elſe, for we ſee daily, though Miniſters call all the Congregation and aſſembly, yet people do not ſtir, they are dead in their ſins, they cannot hear the Miniſter, no, it muſt be a louder voice, and one that is more powerful and effectual, unleſſe the Lord come and bid a man beleeve, he can never do it, therefore, John 5. 26. See what Chriſt ſaith, Verily I ſay unto you, that the hour ſhall come, when the dead ſhall heare the voice of the Sonne of God; here comes an Almighty voice, that ſpeaks to the raiſing of a man out of the death of ſinne to the life of righteouſneſſe and faith, and he ſhews that there is a voice of Chriſt that ſpeaks to the ſoul, that though the ſoul be dead, yet it ſhall heare and live, ſo Epheſians 5. 14. and were it not for this call no man could beleeve.

Reaſ. 1. Elſe no man could come to Chriſt.

That ſo they may have a ground for their faith, the ſoul cannot firſt beleeve, and then come to the promiſe; but the Lord brings the promiſe firſt, and then makes the ſoul to beleeve; he lets in the promiſe firſt, and then cauſeth the ſoul to lay hold upon it; the ſoul doth not firſt come, and then look to the promiſe; but the ſoul firſt looks upon the promiſe, and then beleeves as you may ſee, Pſal. 119. 49. it is the ſpeech of the Prophet David, Remember thy Word O Lord, wherein thou haſt cauſed thy ſervant to truſt, the Lord lets in a word of promiſe into Davids heart, then cauſed him to hope in it,

1. That we may have a ground for our faith.

it, and made him look upon it as a thing tendred and propounded to him, and ſo made him relie upon it; if it were not for this call of God, who were able to beleeve? for without this call, the ſoul when it ſeeth its dulneſſe, and deadneſſe, and untowardneſſe, and unworthineſſe, it would go away, it would ſay, I cannot look to the promiſe, I cannot do this and that, and I have no faith; and what have I to do with the promiſe; therefore the Lord when he effectually calls a man, he lets in the ſight of his promiſes, he holds forth his free and gracious promiſes; ſo that now the ſoul can ſay, the Lord calls me by his grace, and though I be never ſo wretched and my heart be ſtark naught, though I be as reprobate to every good word and work, as the vileſt in the world; yet here is a free offer, and I will relie upon it, it is tendred unto me, otherwiſe why ſhould God propound it ſo freely? why ſhould he hold it forth ſo indifferently? why ſhould he confirm it with the blood of his own Son? why ſhould there be the Sacraments and ſo many Seals to eſtabliſh the truth of it? and why doth he propound it ſo freely to me? when he looks upon the promiſe, the promiſe makes him believe the freeneſſe of it, the univerſality of it, the indifferency of it to as many as will have it; the Lord puts power into the promiſe to affect the heart, & fire the heart, there is ſo much truth and goodneſs in the promiſe as is able to make the ſoul beleeve when God ſpeaks it to the heart, it is ſuch a good promiſe, and ſuch a free promiſe, and ſo Yea and Amen in Chriſt Jeſus to all that do but reſt upon it; the Lord holds the promiſe before a mans eyes, and ſaith here is a promiſe for thee, beleeve, here is mercy, here is favour, here is pardon, here is peace, here is Chriſt, here is ſtrength, here is wiſdome; thou art a fool, here is wiſdome for thee to direct thee; thou art weak, here is ſtrength for thee to enable thee; do but rely upon me, and thou ſhalt have it; the ſoul doth not firſt believe the promiſe, and then take it; but the Lord firſt propounds the promiſe to the ſoul, and makes the ſoul look up to God in his promiſe, I am a vile ſinner, but with the Lord there is mercy, and I have a curſed ſpirit within me; but with the Lord there is power to ſubdue it: the truth of the promiſe and the power of God going with it, makes the ſoul beleeve it, and this is the reaſon when God would renew the faith of his people, he gives them as it were a new call, and holds the promiſe afreſh before them, as Gen. 17.1. I am God alſufficient, walk before me and be upright, as who ſhould ſay, Abraham, go not away from me, go not any where elſe; thou mayeſt have any thing in me, I am God Almighty, beleeve in me, keep by me, go not from me, but walk before me all the dayes of thy life, and I will be a God unto thee, and in bleſſing I will bleſſe thee, therefore Rom. 9.8. the people of God are called the children of promiſe, becauſe the promiſe breeds them, and converts them, and is the ground of all unto them, they are the very children of the promiſe; now here be three things I would ſhew unto you. Firſt, why this act is attributed to the Father, the Father ſpeaks to the ſoul, the ſoul hears it and ſo comes. Secondly, what ſpeech this is, which the ſoul hears and ſo comes to God by faith. Thirdly, how a man may know whither he hath heard this voice or no.

Queſt. 1. Why is this act attributed to the Father?

First, why this act is attributed to the Father, Every man that hath heard and learned of the Father, &c. the Father ſpeaks, and the ſoul hears from the Father.

1. Not as though Chriſt did not ſpeak

I anſwer; Firſt, not as though Chriſt did not ſpeak, but he came to ſend them to to the Father, go to him and hear him, that is not the meaning of it, no, Chriſt cuts off all ſuch thoughts in the next verſe, Every man that hath heard and learned of the Father, &c. not that any man hath ſeen the Father, &c. as who ſhould ſay, I do not mean that you ſhould runne to the Father, as though I were not able to teach you, no man can go to the Father, he dwells

in

in light that is unaproachable, no man can come to the Father but by me. Matth. 1. 27. All things are delivered to me of my Father, &c. you ſee here, that is not the meaning of it, Chriſt is a ſufficient Doctor, he is the great Prophet of his Church, and is able to inſtruct his people, therefore that is not the meaning of it.

Secondly, not as though we ſhould ſet up a conceited diſtinction of works in the Trinity, as though a man ſhould ſay, now a man is under the work of the Father, and then under the work of the Sonne, and then under the work of the holy Ghoſt (as ſome imagine,) ſometimes the ſoul is under the work of the Father, as when the ſoul doth not beleeve the Father draws it and pulls it; and when it beleeves, then it is nnder the work of the Sonne, and he works upon the conſcience, and juſtifies, and ſanctifies it; and afterwards it is under the work of the holy Ghoſt, when it is ſealed with the Spirit of promiſe, theſe things are true, yet this is not the meaning, neither doth our Saviour Chriſt intend any ſuch conſtruction, neither have we any warrant for any ſuch diſtinction of works; for as this act of drawing is here given to the Father, ſo John 11. it is given to the Sonne; When I am lifted up I will draw all men unto me, and as we ſay the ſoul hears the Father, ſo it heares the Son alſo, John 5. 25. ſo that theſe are but conceits, and as the ſeal is given to the Spirit, ſo it is given to the Father and the Son ſometimes, therefore to ſay that the ſoul is now under the work of the Father, and now under the work of the Sonne, and now under the work of the holy Ghoſt, theſe things are not warrantable in Scripture; but the meaning is this, our Saviour meeting with the ſtubbornneſſe of the Jews that would not believe, but murmured and repined at his doctrine; he puts in this, no man cometh unto me, except the Father draweth him, he means their utter inability of coming to him by nature, unleſſe it be given them from above, if he had ſpoken of it againe, may be would have ſaid no man cometh unto me, except the Spirit draweth him; you muſt know that all the acts of the bleſſed Trinity are indevidable; 'tis true, the Father, as he is firſt in order of ſubſiſtance, ſo he is firſt in order of operation and working, but look what one works all work, one act flows from them all, as it is ſaid, you are waſhed in the Name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the Spirit had a hand in the ſame work, they all do the ſame work, for any further meaning of this, I know not any warrant.

2. Not as though we ſhould ſet up a conceited diſtinction of works in the Trinity.

The ſecond thing is, what this voice is that the Father doth ſpeak to the ſoul, and ſo the ſoul is made to come to Chriſt?

2. What is this voice? Not diſtinct from the word preached.

I anſwer, you muſt not conceive that here is any voice diſtinct from the Word, it is but imaginary and notional, when men dream of any other Relations beſides the Word; it is not a proper, but a metaphorical ſpeech, and it conſiſts in two things.

Firſt, in opening a mans ſenſes.

Secondly, in removing a mans lameneſſe and inability.

Conſiſts, 1. In the opening a mans ſenſes.

Firſt, in opening a mans ſenſes, in opening a mans underſtanding, a mans underſtanding is quite blinded, and cannot ſee the things of God; and though a man literally know all the Scripture, yet notwithſtanding there is a veile upon his eyes, and he doth not ſee the excellency and glory of it; now when the Spirit of God comes and anoints a mans eyes, and takes away the ſcales that they fall off from his eyes, the man now begins with open face to ſee the glory of God, and the glorious Goſpel of God; the natural man ſaw the Goſpel to be a glorious thing, yet the God of this world blinded his eyes that he could not ſee it in this glorious manner; now when the Spirit of the Father comes to call a man effectually, he doth anoint a mans eyes, Eſay 35. 5. The eyes of the blinde ſhall ſee, he makes a man to ſee the wonders of Gods Law, to ſee his gracious promiſes in Jeſus Chriſt, the freeneſſe of them them, the indifferency of them, that they are propounded to every man that hath an heart to them, and hungers and thirits after them; so that the Lord doth as it were say to the soul, here are the promises, here you see them, beleeve in me, this is the speech of the Father, these are the promises, this is the happinesse, if you will embrace it, you may be happy for ever; now the world, and profits, and pleasures are not such a thing, you may be damned for all them, therefore come unto me and you shall have eternal happinesse, thus the Spirit of the Father shewes the soul the glory of the wayes of Jesus Christ, and the glory of the promises, here they are, beleeve, that is the first.

Secondly, he opens the sense of hearing, for as the minde of a man is stark blinde, and cannot see the things of God; so the heart of a man is stark deaf, and cannot hearken to God; a man hath no ears by nature to hear God speak to him, till the Lord comes and opens his ears, as the Prophet speaks, Esay 35.5. The ears of the deaf shall hear; when the Lord comes to open the ears of the deaf, now the soul begins to hear, before it was like the deafe adder, that could not hear the voice of the charmer, charme he never so wisely; though he heard never so many Sermons, he yet heard none, his hearing was to no purpose, in hearing he heard, but perceived not; but when the Lord comes and takes away the uncircumcision of the eare, the soul now begins to heare and hearken to him; now the stone begins to vanish out of the heart, and flesh and feeling comes in the place thereof, the soul is ready to say as Samuel, Speak Lord, thy servant heareth; now the soul begins to hear a Sermon, to hear a counsel, to hear a threatning, when the Lord begins to open the ear, this is another thing whereby the soul is able to hear what the Lord saith.

2. In taking away a mans lameness.

Again, this voice consists in taking away a mans lamenesse, for as a man is perverted, and this was taken away by opening the ear, yet now a man is lame and cannot come to Christ, therefore the Lord takes away his lameness, Esay 35.5. The feet of the lame shall walk; First, he makes the soul walk, and afterwards run, and at last to flie as an Eagle; First, it walks, you shall walk in my statutes, and afterwards runnes and flies as an Eagle, thus you see what this voice is.

Called a voice, 1. Because it is joyned to the word.

Now there be two reasons why it is called a voice. First, because it is a thing joyned with the Word, because it is all one together with the Word, as Rom. 10.17. Faith comes by hearing, he doth not mean their onely outward hearing, for faith will not come by outward hearing, but he means the hearing of the outward ear, and this hearing of the Father speaking to the heart, and so faith comes

2 Because it hath a similitude of a voice.

Secondly, because it hath a similitude of a voice, the soul doth as it were hear a voice speaking to it, not as though the acts you heard of even now can distinctly be known, he doth them not vocally, he doth not open the eyes, and open the ear vocally, but as the blind man said, One thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see; but how he came to see, that he could not tell; so when the Spirit comes and speaks to his heart, a man can tell no more the way of the Spirit then he can tell how the wind blows, or the fashioning of the bones in the womb; what man can expresse the manner of Gods secret working? could the Apostles see the breath of Christ breathed upon them, when he said, receive ye the holy Ghost? no, they could not; the acts of the Spirit upon the soul cannot be discerned, but as the blind man said, once I was blinde, but now I see, so a man may say, whereas I was deaf, now I can hear the voice of God; and happy is the man that can say this, but the things cannot be discerned, but at the same time, when the Lord works these acts; the soul doth as if were hear a speech, mentally and spiritualy in the soul, Esay 30 22. Thou shalt hear a voice behind thee, saying, this is the way, walk in it, so the Lord speaks to the the ſoul, this is the way, and this is the promiſe, and this is the Goſpel of grace, and this is the mercy that I offer unto thee, beleeve it, the Lord makes the ſoule as it were heare a voice, the Lord ſpeakes, and the ſoul hears, it is done after ſuch a manner, ſo effectually, as if the Lord did ſpeak to the heart; I will allure her into the Wildernesse, the Lord doth not it were entice a man, thus and thus it ſhall be with thee if thou wilt follow me, it is done after ſuch a manner, therefore it is called a voice.

The third thing is, how we may know whether the ſoul hath heard this voice or no? Quæſt. How may we know whether the ſoul hath heard this voice.

To anſwer, firſt, there is a power goeth along with the Word, when this voice of the Father goeth with it; there is a power put into the promiſes, not only the Miniſter ſpeaks them, or the bare letter of the word utters them, but when the Spirit ſpeaks with them, there is a power goeth along with them, as Iohn 6. 44. there is a power to draw the heart, when the Lord calls a man, when he ſpeaks to a man, he puts a power into the promiſe, that it draws the heart of a man, the truth, the goodneſs, the excellency, freeneſſe, attainableneſs of it, the Lord puts a power into theſe things to draw the heart, ſo that that man is drawn to look after heaven, and come to God from day to day, the excellency and incomparable worth of theſe things, having the power of God in them, woeth the heart, and entiſeth it, and draws it, and hales it to come to God, and weaneth it from the world, and he lets them go more and more, not ſeeing ſuch worth in them to draw his minde away more and more, hence the Goſpell is call'd the power of God to ſalvation, Rom. 16. 6. when God calls a man by the Goſpel, he puts a power into all the promiſes, to draw a man home, to pull a man effectually and powerfully unto him, he is enamoured of them, and muſt have them, and will have them, and caſts himſelf upon God, for the having of them, when any ſoul obeyeth the call of God, what is the reaſon that it obeyeth it? it feels a power in the Word, in the promiſes of God, when he hears it preached, as 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. Our Goſpel came not unto you in Word only, but in power; the Lord calling of theſe good, Theſſ. By his grace, there was a power went along with the Word, and made them receive the Word, and that drew their hearts to take it, though by nature they were averſe from it, though by nature they were ſtubborn, and rebellious, and would not ſubmit to the Goſpel, yet when the Lord puts this power into the promiſe to overwoe the ſoul more then luſts and ſinnes, and things of the world could do, more then the inclinations of the ſoul could do, it came with a ſtronger power then all theſe to the ſoul, and this made the ſoul hear this voice. Anſw. 1. There is a power goes along with this Word.

Secondly, he that hears this voice, hears more then a man, or any creature, ſay unto him beleeve, ſaying unto him, come unto Chriſt, caſt thy ſelfe upon God, here is mercy, here is a promiſe, here is peace that thou needeſt, when he doth not onely hear the Miniſter ſay it, all the Congregation hears him ſpeak it, and no man ſtirs, but when a man hears more then a Miniſter ſay ſo, he feels ſuch a coming of the Word to him, that all the created powers in heaven and earth could never move him in that manner, then he heares the voice of the Spirit of God, for when God calls a man effectually, he makes the Goſpel a glaſſe for a man to ſee the glory of God thorow, as you may ſee, 2 Cor. 3. 18. he means by the glaſſe there, the Goſpel; the Lord when he calls a man, he makes the Goſpel a glaſſe to him, that he may behold the glory of God, the infinite graciouſneſſe and lovelineſſe of God, the infinite goodneſs, happineſſe, and bleſſedneſſe of God, and what an infinite fountaine of all goodneſſe he is in his own Son Jeſus Chriſt; he lets him ſee, not only the Goſpel; every man ſeeth the Goſpel, but every man hath not this glaſſe, it is not this glaſſe to him, to let him ſee the glory of God; when God turns a man he comes with this glorious light thorow the Goſpel to his ſoul, there is a great light ſhines from heaven about a man, as there did about Saint Paul, 2. This voice makes one hear more then any creature can ſpeak.

the Gospel it selfe a light, and every man seeth this light, but there is the scales upon the minde still for all that, but when God calls a man there in a great light comes into the soul, you are a chosen generation, &c. 1 Pet. 2. so much, there is a marvellous deal of light the Lord lets into the soul, that now the soul can now see how the devil, and sin, and the world deluded him, and how the world, and all profits and pleasures are now meer painted things, and are meerly vexations of Spirit; now he sees how to distinguish between things and things, there is a glorious and a marvellous light come in, he sees the wiles of his own heart, and how he was beguiled before, and betwitched by the devil before, he seeth all the folly and the Popery of his own heart; such a deal of light comes in that it discovers all so far forth as is necessary to bring him to God; now he sees that his moaping and blubbering upon his sins, and condemning of himself, it had a form of humility, but it was nothing but pride and stubbornesse of heart, and he would rather have him be without mercy, then have it upon Gods termes, he beholding the glory of God, seeth the wyles and deceits of his own soul, this light sheweth him the glory of God, and propounds to him these things, and makes him beleeve them.

3. It is the irrefragable propounding of the promise.

Thirdly, this same voice of the Father, when the Father speaks to a man, it is the irrefragable propounding of the promise to him, when the promise of the Gospel are delivered in an irrefragable manner, contrary to all the objections of the heart of man; all the pleas that can be brought against it, it comes in an irrefragable manner, and holds itself before him, that he may believe, not that he may not be tempted to the contrary, but he sees that they are but temptations. O saith the soul, I see I am unwilling to do good duties, what of that? if thou wouldst be willing, the promise is free, may be, saith the soul, I am full of stubbornesse, and rebellion, and unprofitablenesse, what of that? that is nothing saith the promise, if thou come to me, I can heal thee of this stubbornesse, beleeve in me this is the way to be rid of thy stubbornesse, and to have a better heart, and more abilities, as long as it is a burden to thee; beleeve in me, it comes in an irrefragable manner, so that the soul can say, I refused comfort all this while, as David saith, Psal. 77. comfort was propounded to me, but I would not have it, I was sullen and peevish and put it off, and withstood my own comforts, now the soul seeth its putting off of Gods mercie, and the forsaking its own mercies, and the gracious proffers tendred to it, I say when the Spirit speaks this voice to the soul, it speaks in a marvellous great and convincing manner, it speaks in a prevailing manner, it speaks over and above all, it speaks in a ravishing manner, it makes the soul see a cornucopia of all good, an abundant treasury of all mercy in the ways of God, and in the promises of the Gospel, it makes a man see that whatsoever the heart can wish and desire that is good, it is there to be had, and no where else to be attained, it speaks in an uncontroulable manner to the soul, that the soul can stand out no longer, but must come off.

JOHN

John. 6. 35.

He that cometh unto me ſhall never hunger, and he that believeth in me ſhall never thirſt.

WE have finiſhed the firſt part of Effectual Calling, and now we come to the ſecond, Namely, the anſwer to this Call, for this is the difference between effectual calling, and that which is not effectual, the one makes a man come, and the other doth not, now this coming is by faith, and this we have here in the text, He that cometh unto me, &c. Now before I come to handle this point, I muſt premiſe ſomething concerning faith, Namely, that it is not only a bare aſſent of the minde that all good things are in Chriſt, but it is a confidence for the having of all the good things that are in him, it is not only the firſt act of faith: Namely, an aſſent to the truths of the Goſpel, that God hath put all treaſures of eternal life in his Son, this I will not ſpeak of, becauſe all, both Papiſts and Proteſtants agree in this, that faith is an aſſent of the minde, this is a controverſie on neither ſide, therefore I will omit it. But it is the ſecond part or act of faith, which is the believing that in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt he ſhall have eternal life, which is an act of the heart, and this is that which I will ſtand upon, it is a confidence in God and Chriſt for all good things, when a man doth not only believe that all the promiſes of God are yea and amen in Chriſt, but when a man doth fiducially and confidencially bear himſelf, and reſt upon Chriſt for all theſe things, he comes to Chriſt for all good he looks for, this I will prove to be an act of a juſtifying faith, and that I may not be miſtaken, I will diſtinguiſh,

2. Confidence, in natural man.

1. In the power of God.

1. There is a confidence in the power of God, a natural man may believe the power of God, and yet not have a juſtifying faith, all that had miraculous faith did believe the power of God, but the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Cor. 13. 2. If I had all faith, that is all miraculous faith, even to the removing of mountaines without charity it were nothing.

2. Unrooted in the will.

2. Secondly, there is an unrooted confidence of the will, which may be in a natural man, as a natural man may believe that Chriſt is the only hope of Glory, the only way, the Truth and the Life, the only one, for whoſe ſake he ſhall be accepted, as he may aſſent to this ſo he may have a kinde of unrooted confidence in theſe things, which may procure a great deal of peace to his conſcience, this is that which Divines call a temporary faith, Mat. 13. for a time they do believe, &c. A natural man may not only believe Chriſt, but believe in Chriſt in ſome ſenſe truly he cannot, but in an unrooted manner, there may be ſuch an act put forth, though it be not rooted in the heart, this you may ſee, John 2. 23, 24. Many believed on Chriſt, ſaith the text, yet he would not commit himſelf unto them; he would not truſt them with mercy, and grace, and favour, he would not truſt them in regard of his own body and ſafety, they were not right for all that, and yet they did not only believe Chriſt, but in ſome ſenſe, and in an unrooted manner they believed on Chriſt, therefore there is not only a firme aſſent to the truth which may be in a natural man, but alſo ſome kind of confidence.

3. Presumptuous.

Thirdly, there is a presumptuous confidence in God and Christ for salvation which the workers of iniquity may have, they may not only believe the general truths of the Gospel, but have some kind of confidence in Christ, though not so good as the former, for that reformes a man, and makes him follow Christ till persecution come, and may be in persecution too, till he be weary, but this is not so good, you shall have a drunkard, a prophane person, he hath confidence in Christ that God heares his prayers, accepts his duties, and will provide for him, our Saviour Christ speaks of such, Matth. 7. 22. He tells us of many that shall be confident in him, how they have done wonderful works in his Name, and eate and drank in his presence, and have heard him preach in their streets, and yet are but workers of iniquity, I do not mean this neither, these are but false confidences.

2. Confidence in the godly.

1. Special perswasion of Gods love,

Now there are two godly confidences, gracious ones such as are only in Gods Elect, and not in all Gods Elect neither, but only in such as are effectually called, and yet come not within this definition of faith. The first is that full special perswasion of the heart, a man may have true justifying faith though he never attaine to this, for justifying faith is a confidence in Christ for justification, now this special and full perswasion of the heart, is not only an affiance in Christ for justification, it doth not only apprehend Christ for justification, but it apprehends justification it self, now this must needs be after justifying, a man must needs be justified before he can confidently apprehend justification, he must first be justified before he can say he is justified, the object must be before the act. Thus it goeth, justifying faith must needs be before justification, and justification must be before the sense and feeling of justification, before a man can feel and apprehend he is justified, the cause goeth before the effect in order of nature, for a man is justified by faith, Now if a man know he is justified, then the thing must be true before he knows it is so, now here they differ, that faith is a confident apprehending of Christ for justification, and the full special perswasion of the heart is not only a confident apprehending of Christ for justification, but an apprehending of justification it self: Now true justifying faith may be without this, Job. 13. 15. Though he kill me, yet I will trust in him, That is, suppose that I were at an utter losse, that I knew not whether God will slay me, yet slay me, or not slay me, perish, or not perish, I will trust in him; Imagine God deliver me up, and will none of me, yet though he kill me, I will trust in him, I do not say I am at this losse that he will kill me, blessed be God I am not in this case, but if I were at this losse, that he would kill me for ought I knew, yet I would trust in him, so that we see this confidence may be without this full perswasion of heart.

2. A constant expectation.

Secondly, there is another good confidence that comes not within this definition of faith, and that is a constant expectation, and this is the daughter of faith, Ephes. 3. 12. This confidence whereby the soul hopes in God, differs from the confidence of faith, for this confidence is an effect of faith, it is by faith, Now these two differ thus, the confidence of hope is that which a man hath for the future having of those things that for the present a man believes, now the confidence of faith is the confident apprehending of Christ for the having of them, John 3. 36. He that believeth in Christ hath eternal life, he that believes in Christ hath a present possession of that he believes in Christ for, eternal life is his for the present, he hath present justification and acceptance with God, and hath a title to all good and all the mercies of the Covenant of grace.

Confidence in Christ for life and salvation is true justifying faith.

Now we come to prove this, that this confidence is a true justifying faith, and the Arguments to prove it are these, and the first is taken from the several expressions of faith in Scripture, Psal. 78. 22. it is called a trusting, they believed not in God; Why? They trusted not in his salvation; so that faith is a trusting in God, when a man hath confidence in God, and can fiducially leane upon

Arg. 1. From the several expressions of faith in Scripture.

3. Trusting

upon God for all good things. As Alexander trusted his Physician, when his Physician gave him a Potion, before he took it, a friend of his wrote unto him, do not take the Potion, the man is set to poyson you, if you take it you are a dead man, he read the letter, and then took the Potion, and then gave the letter to the Physician, and said, I have trusted to your faithfulnes, and cast my self upon you, if you have given me poyson you have killed me, you see by the letter I have witnes of it, but I trust you, and suppose you have not done it. So faith is a trusting upon God, when the soul resolves to follow God in all wayes, and when the world and the flesh come in and object, if you be so strict and follow these courses, you will undo your self, and be laughed at, and loose your friends, your very living depends upon such a course, and you will be a begger, and will never have any delight, you are given to pleasure and laughter, but all these must be gone, farewell all carnal pleasure, Well, but the soul now believes in God, God bids him come to him for comfort, for friends, for delight, for pleasure, for the satisfaction of all his desires, and he shall want no manner of good, he trusts upon this, and he will never leave God, never leave his wayes, this is rooted in him, and now he can go to God and say, the Devil told me I should loose my friends, and I should never have comfort, never be able to live, my flesh and my own heart said so, but I have trusted thee, and if friends go, so, farewell friends, if means go, so, farewell them, I am told so, flesh and blood say so, but I believe in thee is eternal life, and in thee is all peace, and happinesse, and comfort, and this is that which drawes me to thee, and keeps me to thee, and I rest upon thee for all good, thus you see that faith must be an affiance in God, because it is a trusting in God.

Secondly, it is called a relying upon God, as Asa, when the Aethiopians and Lubims came against him, the Scriptures shewes that he believed in God, now mark how the Scripture expresseth his faith, 2 Chro. 16.8. Because thou didst relie upon the Lord, therefore he delivered them into thine hands; May be the world might tell him, what do you think to overcome these enemies, with strictnes and fasting, and praying. 2. Relying on God.

You had more need make a league with the King of Syria, and take some other course, but he relied upon God, and if he failed him, he failed him, he would relie upon him, and therefore faith must needs be an affiance in God.

Thirdly, faith is called a staying upon God, when a man stayes himself upon God, Isa. 50. 10. there faith is expressed by staying a mans self upon God, He that sitteth in darknes and seeth no light, let him trust in the Lord and stay himself upon his God. It is a similitude taken from a staffe, an old man that dares not trust to his own legs, but thinks I shall fall and get some mischefe, he takes a staffe and stayes himself upon it, now is this all that he looks upon, that he conceives the staffe is able to bear him? so a man that hath no faith knows that such a staffe is able to beare him that is not the thing, but this man doth not only believe the staffe is able to beare him, but he commits himself unto it, and leanes upon it, and if he falls he is content, he laies the bulk of his body upon the staffe, and dares leane upon it, so it is with faith, it is not only an assent to this, that God is wise and omnipotent, and gracious, and an hearer of prayers, and that he comforts them that mourne for sinne, and satisfies them that hunger for righteousnesse, he not only believes there is a Christ, and salvation in him, he not only assents to these things, but he staies upon them, and commits himself to them. 3. Staying upon God.

Fourthly, it is expressed by a mans rolling himself upon God, Psal 37. 5. We translate the words, Commit thy way unto the Lord, but in the Originall, it signifieth to roll a mans way upon God, so Psal. 22. 8. He trusted God would deliver him, it is the same word is used here, he rolled himself upon 4. Rolling ones self on God.

God; this is a similitude taken from a Cart-wheele, that rolls it self about the Axeltree, and staies it self upon it, and helps it self in its motion, it could not move, but for that, and by vertue of that it moves to and fro. So this is true faith, not only when a man assents to the promises of God, but rolls himself upon God, moves his soul upon Christ, and commits himself unto Christ in all his wayes.

5. Adhering unto God.

Fifthly, faith is expressed by adherence and sticking unto God, Psal. 119. 31. I have stuck unto thy Commandments, Lord put me not unto confusion; as who should say, Lord, here I hang, here I hold, here I will stick fast, I will ever fear thee, I will ever obey thee, here I hang and hold, and will keep my hold, Lord put me not to confusion; that is, Lord I hope thou wilt do as thou hast spoken, Lord let me not be confounded, let me not be scoffed at in the world, if I be put to shame I am confounded, doth this man now only believe the promises in general? No, but he relieth upon these promises, he dares go and take this Bear by the tooth, and dares venter upon those harsh duties that are crosse to a mans will, and seeme to have no good in them; What, because he assents to the promises that they are true? No, but because he is confident that the promises shall be performed. So Deut. 4. 4. there saith Moses to the Israelites, You that did cleave to the Lord your God, you are all alive at this day; as who should say, though your brethren went away from God, since to satisfie their lusts, as in the matter of quailes and flesh-pots, and others to humour their fancies, as in the matter of the calf, and others to fulfill their filthy delights, as in the matter of Baal-Peor, your brethren went away from God as if they might have comfort, and delight, and good elsewhere, they went from God, but you cleave to God, and are all alive to this day; that is, as you did look for good in God you had it; your brethren looked for good elsewhere, and they are disappointed, where are their profits and pleasures? They went away from God and are dead, but you followed God, and are alive to this day. So 2 King. 18. 6. it is said of Hezekiah that he cleave to God, &c. that is, he did not only conceive that the chief good was in God, but he did stick to God in all his wayes, he did cleave to God and would not go a way.

6. Beleeving on God.

Lastly, a true justifying faith is expressed in Scripture by believing on God, or believing in God, a phrase that is not used in any Greek Author, but only in the Scripture, and those that have been acquainted with the Scripture; now why doth God pick out a new phrase, but to imply a new work? What is it only to assent to the truth? Then the old phrase would have served the turne, but when a man believes on God, or in God, this is the expression of a justifying faith, as you may see, 1 Pet. 2. 5. So John 3. 16. God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, &c. So Rom. 4. 5. and Rom. 3. 26. What do all these phrases import, onely a naked consent and belief, that all the things in the Gospel are true? No, but when a man can believe on these things, when a man can submit to all the Ordinances of God, and embrace Christ in all his wayes, and believe that all the good things spoken of in the Gospel are to be had in him.

Arg. 1. From the offer of Christ.

I confesse sometimes simple believing Christ, without on, or in, is put for a justifying faith, as Ro. 4. 3. it is said that, Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousnesse; he doth not say he believed in God, but that is the meaning of it, and if you look into Gen. 15. you shall find through the story that he beleived in God, he did not only believe that God was good, but he committed himself to God in all his wayes, and did relie upon him, that God was Almighty, and that made him walk before God in uprightnesse, and that made him live a different life from all the rest of the Country, this shews that it was a confidence and affiance in God, that was accounted to him for righteousnesse.

The second Argument is taken from the offer of Christ, which is the giving of Christ to be a propitiation for sin, and to be a Mediatour between God and man, to be the only means of eternal life, this is the offer of Jesus Christ in the Gospel, Christ is given to be a redeemer to them that do believe, now what can answer this giving? Can only an act of the mind answer this gift? 'Tis true indeed, he is the only Mediatour, the only Messias, the only way, the truth and the life, and he is freely offered and given in the Gospel, I believe this and assent unto it, is this taking? No, this is only believing he may take him, therefore true faith must be a taking of Christ, that only answers to the giving of Christ, giving is a relative which answers to taking, a gift is no gift except it be taken, the nature of the gift returns back again to the giver if it be not taken, so it is here, God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever believed in him should not perish but have everlasting life, He gave his only begotten Sonne, that hath a relation to taking of him, he gave him, that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, that is, God gave him that whosoever takes him might not perish but have eternal life, though a man offer himself to a woman, yet if the woman do not take him, he is not her husband, the match is made up by taking: so though Christ be given to the world in the Gospel, yet Christ is not ours but by taking of him, when you take Christ, then you are in the number of those that shall not perish, but have everlasting life, when you take Christ, that is, when you take him to be your chiefe good, when you take his promises to be your stay and prop, to be the life and comfort of your hearts, when you take his Commandements to do them, when you take his ordinances to walk in them, when you take his people to have society with them, when you take Christ, and all Christ, now you shall have everlasting life, this is to take Christ, though the woman assent fully that the man is a proper man, and a goodly man, and a godly man, and a rich man, this makes not up the match, but when she takes him to be her husband, then she hath interest in his person, and all that he hath, so when a man takes Christ, then he hath title to Christ and all the good things, that are in him.

Arg. 2. From the offer of Christ.

It is said of the faithfull, that they did not only see the Promises afar off, but they did embrace them, Heb. 11. 13. the word signifieth they hugged them, they kist them, many see the Promises afar off, but embrace them not, they embrace the things of this present world, they hugg them, but never take the promises of God home to their soules, true faith therefore is such a faith as takes Christ, and then it follows, that it cannot be an act of the mind, but an act of the heart in relying and taking the thing to himself, to hang upon it, and live by it.

The third argument is this, Faith is an act of coming unto Christ, Christ you know is the righteousnesse of God, now when a man is come to it, he hath it, now what motion of coming is this? is it only a motion of the mind, a Contemplation of the mind, when a man seeth Christ afar off? I may see a goodly man, a goodly thing afarr of, my eye sight may go to it, but if my whole man do not come to it, I am not come to it, this cannot be only the Contemplation of the mind, when the eye of a mans understanding discovers Christ, for this makes him the more foole and the more inexcusable, if he comes not to him, so this motion of coming unto Christ, it is a spirituall motion of all the whole man, a mans minde goeth to Christ and a mans heart, and a mans affections, and all the strength of a mans soule goeth to Christ, this is coming to Christ, Mat. 11. 28, Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, that is believe in me, he puts it into that phrase, this true faith makes the soul come to Christ, so 1 Pet. 2. 4. to whom coming as to a chiefe corner stone: There are two termes in this coming to Christ, the one from whence a man comes, from all his owne wayes, from all his owne desires, from all his owne ends and aimes, Arg. 3. Because faith is a coming to Christ.

and

and the other tearme is, to what a man comes, and that is to Christ, not his promises, to his Commandements, to live and dy with him, this is coming unto Christ, as you may see Act. 26. 18. there both these tearmes are set down. to open their eyes saith the Text, and returne them from darknesse to light, that they might receive forgivenesse of sinnes. It is this coming that receives forgivenesse, not only an act of the mind, when that goeth to Christ, but an act of the heart, when that goeth to Christ, when a man comes from darknesse to light, from pride to humility, from the world to God, when a man passeth from the one tearme to the other tearme, and so cometh to the righteousnesse of God in Jesus Christ, now he is come to Christ, and now he shall receive forgivenesse of sinnes, so that you see faith is not only an assent of the mind, but an affect of the heart, both these together make up this coming of the soule to Christ.

Arg. 4. Because the object of justifying faith is no proposition, but Christ himself.

Fourthly, true justifying faith, the proper object of it, is no sentence, no proposition in the Word, I mean the act of a justifying faith, in that act whereby it justifieth, the proper object of it, is no sentence or proposition in the Word, no complext truth in the Word, but it is Christ himself, 'tis true, a man must believe that the Word of God is true, and the promises true, and Yea and Amen, but that act doth not justifie, it may be in a reprobate, or in a Devill, therefore it cannot be an assent of the mind, for that supposeth that the object must be a proposition, neither can it be a sure and certain perswasion, that God hath elected me, and intended Christ to me, this may be the act of an after faith, but not the act that justifies, but Christ himself, the object of a justifying faith, I am the way, the truth, and the life, I my self, it is God, it is God by Christ, when a man believes in Christ, or by Christ believes in God, this is the object of a justifying faith, it is no proposition or text of Scripture that is the object of a justifying faith, that is, the thing that is a justifying faith, as it justifyes, doth assent unto, but the object of a true justifying faith, as it justifies, is Christ himself, the cause of forgivenesse of sinnes, the cause of eternall life, the cause of the derivation of all these blessings to us, it doth it all in Christs own person, 'tis true, the propositions of the Scripture about Christ, are the ground of a justifying faith, as he that believes in Christ shall be saved, that is the ground of a justifying faith, but these propositions though they must be acknowledged at the time by faith, yet these propositions do not justifie a man, for a wretch may do this, but when a man believes in Christ, that is propounded and tendered in the Word, when a man hath affiance in him, and commits himself to him, faith seekes for all good in Christs own person, first, it layes hold on the person of Christ, and taking him, it takes all good things with him, indeed it takes the propositions of the Word for its ground, because the Word saith thus, and thus, that eternall life is in him, and he openeth the Kingdom of heaven to all believers, and he is a sufficient Saviour, this is the ground of faith, but the object of a justifying faith, is Christs owne person, so that believing cannot be an act of the mind, but when a man believes in Christ, and is rooted and built upon him, it is the person of Christ. I will make this appeare to you, you know God doth count it Idolatry for a man to believe in any creature, when a man believes in the Son of man, God forbids this, as an Idolatrous thing, for a man to believe and put his confidence and affiance in any creature, now what is the meaning of this? what is this Idolatry, to assent to such a creature? to believe that such a man is his friend and tenders him, and is faithfull unto him, this is a truth about a friend, is this Idolatry? No, but when a man makes a friend his staffe, a creature his staffe, when a man makes riches his Idol, is this onely to assent that riches can do much in the world, can buy meate, and cloathes, and lands, and inheritances, is it the knowing these things are so? No, but when a man makes riches his prop and stay, and believes in them, and that is the stay that he hath, it is not the beleiving theſe things about riches, for ſo a man that believes only in God may know theſe things about riches and a friend, Jer. 17. 5. Curſed is he that maketh fleſh his arme, he doth not ſay, curſed is he that apprehends that a man is his friend and willing to releive him, but curſed is he that maketh fleſh his arme, that leans upon this man, that truſts unto him, that is the thing, ſo what is the meaning that we muſt not truſt in Chariots and in horſes? doth the Scripture mean that we may not aſſent and affirme theſe truths about them, that they are many, and ſtrong, and potent, that they are admirable horſes? is this it? No, but, woe be to them that go down to Egypt for help, and put their truſt in Chariots and Horſes, Iſa. 31. 1. When a man rides a journey and makes his Horſe his ſtay, when a man goeth about a buſineſſe, and makes his purſe his prop, when a man walks from day to day, and the creature is the thing he hangs upon, he doth not ſee God, and draw near to God, he doth not ſet his heart upon God, he doth not relie upon him, to have God with him in his journey, and what he goeth about, No, he hath an Horſe with him, and means, and maintenance with him, and God ſhall have a prayer may be now and then, but he makes not God his arme, and this is idolatry, ſo our believing, it is not the believing the propoſitions about a thing, but when a man believes in the thing it ſelf, and makes the thing his ſtay, his buckler, his aide, his help and comfort.

the

Laſtly, the maine Argument is this, true juſtifying faith is a faith of union, it is ſuch a faith as unites a man to God and Chriſt, and in him to God; the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 John 5. 20. We know that we are in him that is true, his meaning is, we are in him by faith, that is, we have ſuch a kinde of faith, whereby we do not only aſſent to him, that he is the Sonne of God, and all things are true that are ſpoken of him, but we are in him, we are in him that is true, that is, we are united to him, and 2 Cor. 17. 5. Whoſoever is in Chriſt is a new creature, and Paul ſaith of Andronicus and Junia, they were in Chriſt before him, Rom. 16 7. So Chriſt is ſaid to be in them, Know ye not that Chriſt Jeſus is in you, except you be reprobates? it is the faith of union, He that hath the Sonne, hath life, 1 John 5. 12. That is, he that believes in the Sonne of God, that is, ſo believes that he hath him, and is united to him, that man hath life, and none elſe, ſo that it is a faith of union that juſtifies a man, not as though faith of it ſelf doth this for its own worthineſſe, as though it were able to unite a man to Chriſt, it is only by vertue of Gods Ordinance that faith unites a man to Chriſt, God of his infinite mercy and goodneſſe hath appointed faith to be ſuch a thing, that upon putting forth of that act, he ſhall preſently have relation to Chriſt, and Communion with him, by grace are we ſaved through faith, ſaith the Apoſtle, we are ſaved through faith, but not for any worthineſſe of faith, but by grace, this is the thing, the Lord hath appointed ſuch a kinde of faith ſhall juſtifie as ſhall unite a man to Jeſus Chriſt, Nay, if faith did not do this, faith could not juſtifie, and ſanctifie, and purifie, and intitle a man to Heaven, for it doth all theſe by vertue of union, firſt, it unites a man to Chriſt, and makes Chriſt one with him, and him one with Chriſt, and ſo he comes to have right and title to all the merits, and all the good things that come by Chriſt, ſo then, if thou haſt not this faith of union, though thou haſt all faiths beſides hiſtorical faith, temporary faith, and if it were poſſible miraculous faith; Nay, if thou hadſt ten thouſand thouſand faiths more, if it were poſſible; yet if thou haſt not ſuch a faith as to be united to Chriſt, thou art in thy ſins, and art under the law, and under the curſe of the law, and under Gods juſtice; if thou ſhouldeſt pray never ſo much, and give thy body to be burned, yet if thou do not dwell in Chriſt, and Chriſt in thee; if thou be not one with Chriſt, and Chriſt one with thee, thou art nothing but as ſounding Braſſe, and as a tinkling Cymball; though thou haſt been a profeſſor theſe twenty yeares together, and haſt been taken for a godly

Arg. 5 Becauſe true faith is a faith of union.

ly man through Town and Countrey; yet if thou art not in Christ, thou art still in thy sins, faith doth unite a man to Christ through the Ordinance of God, by the Grace of God it doth unite a man to Christ, 1 John 4. 15. What confession doth the Apostle meane there? Only a confession of historicall faith: when a man believes that God is so and so, and confesseth him; No the Apostle expounds himself, 1 John 3. 24. as who should say, it is such a faith as wholly resignes a man unto God, to be ruled and guided by him as well as saved by him; it is such a faith as makes a man with minde, and heart, and will, and all that is in a man, to cast himself upon Christ, so that all obedience, and all conformity to the Sonne of God will follow, he that hath this faith to keep his Commandements, dwelleth in God, and God in him. Now what kinde of faith can this be? can it be only the act of the minde whereby a man believes all the truths concerning Christ? doth this unite a man to Christ? It were blasphemy to say so, for by this Argument, the union between Christ and a true believer, were no better then the union between a true believer and the Devil, because a true believer believes all the truths and assents unto them that God hath spoken concerning the Devil, as well as concerning Christ, this doth not unite a man, there is a kinde of union indeed in the minde, but that union is only notional, and intentional, and rational; as for example, when I think of an horse, or a tree, there is an union of the tree with my minde, for the tree is in my minde in the notion of it, but this is a bare intentional and simple union, the maine union of all is in the heart, when the heart is united to a thing; an heavenly minded man, he may have an union of his understanding with the things of this world, he may understand carnal men, understand their courses and wayes, and there is a notional, intentional union with these things in his understanding, but he is not truly united to those courses except his heart be set upon those courses, then he takes them up, so untill the heart is set upon Christ, a man is never heavenly, never godly, never a true Christian, till he is thus united into Christ. Nay, I will tell you more, and I will prove it, and it is a thing to be considered, that were it possible, Suppose God should reveal, (he might if he would) to any man, that he is elected before he is converted; Suppose this, I do not say God doth thus to any of his Elect, but suppose an Elect man that is yet unconverted, and yet out of Christ, he is a natural man, and yet an elected man; Suppose I say, God should reveal to this man, thou art elected to eternal life, I have intended from all eternity to give my Son to thee, all his merits, and death and passion, I have intended them to thee, and I have intended thou shalt have fellowship with him, God reveales this, and the man firmly assents to the authority of the Speaker, that he is elected to eternal life, doth this faith justifie a man? A man is in his sins, yet for all this, though he knoweth, and God hath revealed such a thing to him, that he hath intended Christ to him, (so long as he hath not revealed that he is in Christ) this doth not put him into Christ, this sheweth him that he shall be in Christ, but this act of believing doth not put him into Christ; therefore the children of God that are converted, and are believers, and can believe that God hath elected them, and eternally intended Christ to them, this act of their faith doth not justifie them, this only is an act to know that they are justified already, and converted already.

I will shew you an excellent place for this, 2 Tim. 1. 12. For which cause, saith the Apostle, I also suffer these things, for I know in whom I have believed, and that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day. Mark here, I know in whom I have believed, there is the act of faith, I have believed in him, he expounds himself there, he means I have commited my self to him, all I have, all I am, this was the act of justification, and intitling him unto him; but now saith he, I know this, this is an act of assurance whereby he reflects

Vſe 1. Then no abſurdity to ſay faith is in the heart as well as in the minde.

Obiect.

Anſw. 1.

2.

4. Fourthly, it is no absurdity to say, the faith is in the heart, and in several powers of the soul, because faith is such a thing as doth purify the whole man, and all the powers of the soul, it justifies, and sanctifies the whole man, its faith that renews the whole man, therefore no wonder to such a thing that the whole man must put forth itself in it, like leaven. Matth. 13. 33. That leaven is the whole dough, so faith is such a thing, that he which hath purified himself, himself is the agent, all himself is the patient, all himself to strive against sin and to please God, and so draw the whole man to God, himself is both the agent and the patient, faith comes in to justifie the whole man, and sanctifie the whole man, and renew the whole man, no wonder it is so then if the whole man doth put forth, not only the mind by assenting, the heart by relying, and the affections by placing themselves upon God.

5. Fifthly, the abundance of graces bestowed upon, that are in all the parts of the soul, as likelihood in the whole, and unblameableness, 1 Thess. 5. 23. and perseverance is in the whole man, so also the mind must not only persevere in saving knowledge, but the heart also in saving obedience, perseverance runs through all the soul, and why not faith, many graces have a complex and compounded nature, in one regard they may be said to be in the mind, in another in the heart, in another in the memory, in another in the affections, in another in the body, so it is with faith, in one regard, in regard of assent it is in the mind, in regard of confidence and affiance it is in the will.

Use. 2. A belief ver may not be sure in regard of sense.

Have we seen that though faith be the sine qua non of salvation and justification, and of the event, yet it is not always sensible in regard of sense and feeling, for true faith, is not the apprehending of salvation it self, but the apprehending of Christ for salvation, when a man places all his affiance in Christ, and all the good he doth, for spiritual good, temporal good, help, comfort, means and assistance, and particularly the pardon of his sins, this is justifying faith, though for sense and feeling it be in much uncertainty, faith is certaine for the event, the man that believes is justified, and shall be sanctified, and saved; but in regard of sense and feeling it is not always certaine, for as he that says, whosoever believes shall have eternal life, but whosoever believes in me he shall have it, though he be afraid he shall not have it, yet if he believes in me he shall have it certainly, if with heart, and mouth, and all, he resigns up himself to me, to be guided and ruled

by

Arg. 1. The event is not the object of justifying faith.

looke is for. Now the object of a justifying faith is not the event, that is that shall out thus with him, he commits this to God, he believes in the generall that all that believe shall be saved, and that is a probable way to believe, but this event that he shall be justified and saved, is the object of a justifying faith, when a man hath justifying faith, this is the object of it, but he commits himself to Christ for justification and salvation, but why believes this man shall be, that they which truly believe shall be justified and saved, and God will help their infirmities, and pardon their sinnes, &c. but now justifying faith apprehends not the event that comes afterwards, but faith commits it self to Christ for the event, as I will shew you by a similitude, a man resolves to leane upon a staffe, what is in this mans minde? true, he object this, that he shall not slip nor fall? no, he findes by experience that he may fall for all his staffe, but he casts himself upon his staffe, fall or not fall, and though he do fall, he will not fling away his staffe. Nay then he will be better to himself afterwards, he knows the fault was not in his staffe, but in his own managing of it, therefore he commits himself to his staffe still, and resolves to leane on it, he is not sure he shall not fall, but though he do fall, he will up again, and help himself with his staffe in his going still, he knows the staffe is not the fault, but himself, maybe he doth not leane upon it, or he knows not the right way, but he is still leaning upon his staffe, that is meaning upon his staffe, so I say true saving faith doth not truly apprehend he is justified, as if a man could not be justified, unlesse he did believe it, this is the event, justifying faith is the committing himself to God for the event, Heb. 11. 23. By faith Abraham being called of God, went out of his own Country, &c. By faith he cast himself upon God, did he believe now whether he should goe he could not tell, he believed in the generall, that God would not faile those that trusted in him, but for his own particular he knew not whether he should go, but he casts himself upon God, whether soever God will have me to go, I will go, he commits himself to God in all adventures, this is true faith, and yet the event all this while may not be known, but a man may be much troubled about assurance.

2. The event is conditional till a man believes.

Secondly, the event, that a man shall be justified, and sanctified, and saved, is conditional until a man hath believed; Suppose a natural man, and an Elect man of God, what must this man believe? must he believe that he shall be justified, and sanctified, and saved? No, there is no such thing in the Scripture, take any natural man in the world, and look from the beginning of the Bible to the end, there is no one text that saith a natural man shall be saved, but justification and salvation are conditional till a man believes, but when a man hath believed, his justification, sanctification, and salvation is certain, but he must believe before he can be said to be justified, now, before a man believes justification is upon condition, if a man believes he shall be justified and saved, so may Judas and Saul, Magus, Rom. 10. 9. Tis true, this is the condition, if thou believe in the Son of God, if thou take up his crosse and follow him, thou shalt be saved; this is but the condition of the Law, when a man hath believed, he is justified, and shall be saved, it is absolutely him, but he believed first, therefore justifying faith doth not believe he shall be saved and justified, for he must have faith first, or true, if a man have saving and justifying faith, there is the truth of the Word for it, that he shall be saved, therefore justifying faith must be the casting off a mans selfe upon Christ for salvation.

Argument, 3. Thirdly, the event, that a man shall be justified, and sanctified, and saved, this cannot be the thing, that a justifying faith in the act of justification and apprehend, because then we could not say to every man, if thou believest thou shalt be saved, that must be the object of a justifying faith, that may be applied to any man, for else how should we preach the Word? we should expect our ſelves to cavils, and open the mouthes of blaſphemers, we muſt ſay then this is faith; you muſt believe you ſhall be ſaved, and that you are in the favour of God, and then we could not bid every man believe if it were ſo; where the Goſpel comes we are to bid every man to believe, what, to believe that every ſhall be juſtified, and ſanctified, and ſaved? No, that were a lie, God commands no man to believe a lie, but he commands every man to believe in Chriſt for juſtification, and for ſanctification, and for ſalvation; Now, there are two things that God requires of every man where the Goſpel comes.

Firſt, he requires that he beleeves the Word, which ſaith, that whoſoever believes in Chriſt ſhall be ſaved.

Secondly, he commands him to believe in Chriſt for ſalvation, and this is faith, the other comes in afterwards; I will make it plaine, the Lord ſaid to Ahaz, Iſa. 7. 9. Believe and thou ſhalt be eſtabliſhed, what muſt Ahaz here believe? Doth God bid him believe that he ſhould be eſtabliſhed? No, for that was a lie, for when all came to all he was not eſtabliſhed, but he muſt beleeve God, and then he ſhould be eſtabliſhed; but he not believing in God, could not be eſtabliſhed; ſo God told Adam, if he believed, he ſhould live, did God now bid Adam beleeve he ſhould live for ever? No, for then it had been a lie, but he biddeth him believe, that if he obeyed his voice, he ſhould live for ever; he was not to believe that he ſhould live for ever; ſo God doth not command men to beleeve they ſhall be ſaved, but to believe in Chriſt for ſalvation.

Fourthly, the event is known another way, and not by a juſtifying faith; 'tis true, ſome men know the event that God intends to ſave them, and that they ſhall be glorified for evermore, but this is known by another thing, and not by an act of faith; the act of faith is the committing of a mans ſelf to God for this thing. I will ſet it out by a ſimilitude, ſuppoſe I have a great buſineſſe to do at London, I am condemned to be put to death, and except I have a pardon got to morrow, I ſhall be executed; I cannot go my ſelf, for I am in hold; but I have a friend at London, and I truſt to him to go to the Court to procure me a pardon, in the mean time the buſineſſe goeth forward againſt me, and may be I am going to the place of execution; but ſtill I caſt my ſelf upon my friend that he will get me a pardon; now if my friend ſend me a letter, and ſend me a pardon under the Kings Seal, now I know I have a pardon, but my truſting my friend was nothing, but my caſting my ſelf upon him, and reſting my ſelf upon him, I was confident in him; Now, when he ſends down a token, and a Seal under the Kings Majeſties hand, now I know the event, that I have gotten a pardon. So it is with a poore creature that is under condemnation, and the wrath of God is gone out againſt him, and the juſtice of God is threatned againſt him, which way ſoever he looks he can ſee nothing but hell and damnation, and the Goſpel hath told him of a friend, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt he can help him to a pardon, and he truſts to him, the Law may be proceeds againſt him, and fears, and terrours, and may be he is upon the ladder ready to be turned off; yet he hangs upon Chriſt, a pardon will come, he truſts upon Chriſt, he will not go to the world and to carnal company to pacifie his conſcience, a pardon will come, he caſts himſelf upon this; and yet he is not certaine it will come, he hath affiance in Chriſt that it will come; now, if it be ſo that whereas he believes in Chriſt for forgiveneſſe, ſo Chriſt ſends him a token, there is peace of conſcience for thee, and joy in the Holy Ghoſt for thee; and as he depends upon him for heanes and maintenance, ſo Chriſt ſaith, there is ſomething for thee to live upon, or patience to bear poverty; as he believes he ſhall be accepted of God, ſo here is a token, thy prayers are heard: Now he hath a token, now he may know it, Pſal. 22. 4. They truſted in God and they were delivered; that is, they truſted trusted in thee, and thou diddest send them a token; now they knew they were delivered; 'tis true, a man might know this though God should send him no token, he might know that he is justified and pardoned and hath title to all the mercy in Christ; he might know it without this, but that for his own weakneſſe, and that by two things. First, by looking into the Word, there he might find, that he which trusts in Christ, and commits himself to God shall be saved; Another thing is, to reflect upon himself; there he shall find that he truly goeth out of himself, and casts himself upon God, then here he may know it, he that believes in Christ shall be saved, but I find that I believe in Christ, therefore I shall be saved, but this is not the act of faith, but the knowing of it.

Arg. 4. The event is known another way.

*Arg.*5 Not the truth, but strength of faith apprehends the event.

Fifthly, it is not the truth of faith, but the strength of faith that apprehends the event, let a man believe in Christ, and cast himself upon him in all his ways, and follow him in all his Commandments, this is faith, be it never so weak, and this doth intitle to justification, and sanctification, and salvation, though it be never so weak; yet while it is weak it cannot apprehend the event, it will be much afraid in regard of that, as suppose a man were learning to swimme, he beleeves that if he could but spread his armes and legges the water would beare him up; now when he begins to learne, he commits himself to the water, and spreads his armes and leggs, but this is with much feare and misgiving, and he sometimes sets one leg on the ground, and he hath but little sense and feeling of the waters bearing him, because he commits not himself to the water, but the more and more he commits himself to the water, the more he finds the water beares him, and now he can fling away his bladders, and swimme where he did believe before that the water would beare him, but when he did commit himself to the water he had a great deal of feare, and could not swim to any purpose, but when he had learned the art, then he committed himself to the water, and then he could spread his armes, and leggs, and swimme; so when a man comes first to believe in Christ, he thinks I should be the happiest man in the world, I should be in a better estate then Kings and Princes if I could believe, and withal it makes him to believe in Christ, and to deny himself, and cast himself upon Christ, plucks up both his feet, and commits himself to the water, and fling out himself upon Christ, sink or swim, yet at the first this is very weak, and sometimes he doth it, and sometimes he doth it not, and sometimes he is feelling for this, sometimes for that, and sometimes he doth not pray well enough, and is not humble enough, this is nothing but trusting to himself, may be a pleasure comes, he cannot deny it, he cannot commit himself to Christ, the weakneſs of this is the reason why he cannot apprehend the event, for a strong confidence in Christ carries all along with it, it will reflect upon it self, and gather all these things, and be assured he will not only have confidence in Christ, but also be confident for the having of those good things he believes in him for.

HEB.

HEB. 11. 8.

By faith Abraham being called to go out into a place which he should afterwards receive for an inheritance, obeyed, and he went out not knowing whither he went.

WE have spoken of Effectual Calling, what a great mercy it is, that God should vouchsafe this unto us, and the abundance of benefits it brings to a man, we have shewed how it is differenced from in-effectual Calling, How a man may know whether he be effectually called, yea or no, and so we came to shew you how a man answers this call, and he answers it only by faith, and so we made a digresse to speak of faith what it is, that it is an affiance in Christ, not every affiance, but a rooted affiance in Christ, and now we come to take up the point again, that it is only faith whereby a mans calling is made effectual, when a man is first called out of darknesse into marvelous light, out of the Kingdome of sinne into the Kingdome of God, it is only faith that answers that call, and so it is ever after, whatsoever God cals a Christian to do, or to leave undone, it is faith that makes a man obey this call.

The Apostle in this Chapter doth set out many commendations of faith to exhort the Hebrewes, and all Beleevers, and all persons to the getting of it, and to labour to have it grow in them, and to make much of it, as being a most excellent Grace of God, and he commends faith two wayes.

First, by the description of it in the first verse, Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen; a Believer hopes for great matters, though he seeth not any of them, may be he is yet a poore miserable contemptible creature in the eyes of the world, yet he hopes for great matters, he hopes for a glorious reforrection, and for an excellent triumph over sinne, and death, and hell, and to have his body and soul for ever in the Kingdome of Christ Jesus, you will say he seeth none of these things, he hopes that God will blesse him in all his wayes, and be with him in sicknesse, and in health, in misery and prosperity, and in all estates, and that he will do him good while he lives, and when he dyes he seeth none of these things? No, saith the Apostle, Faith is the substance of things hoped for, and the evidence of things not seen, though many think there is no substance in these things, yet faith doth deliver the substance of them unto him, and it is an evidence that he shall certainly have them, and it is as it were a Sacrament, therefore the Fathers call it the Sacrament of faith, and the Sacrament of hopes, and the Sacrament of repentance, because they are certaine and sure tokens and pledges of those things that a Christian looks for.

Secondly, the Apostle commends faith by a long Catalogue of believers, of Holy Fathers, and Patriarchs, and Prophets, and Judges, and Worthies from the beginning of the world, and he shewes there was no worth in them, but it did proceed from faith; and this he doth,

First, generally, in the second verse, By it the Elders obtained a good report, he speaks of them all ingeneral, he calls them Elders, a reverend grave company, and he amplifies this by giving a general ground and reason why faith can build upon nothing as it were to see to, and yet is able to gather great matters, though to see little or nothing, verse 3. You may see this (saith he) by Historical faith, For, through faith we understand that the worlds were made by the Word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appeare; though nothing was before a mans eyes, yet through this faith he might see an whole world out of nothing, so, though the world, and flesh, and blood see nothing, yet he that believes in God he is able to raise a world out of nothing, he may look for these things at the hands of God though for the present he sees nothing.

Secondly, he doth divide these believers into foure Ages, and he instances only in three, for all the rest, as Abel, Enoch, Noah, Noah, &c.

Secondly, the Holy Patriarchs from the Flood to the time of Christ, and he instances in five, not as though there were no more, but he mentions such these, Abraham, Sara, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, from ver. 8 to the 23.

And then in the third place, he takes all those Worthies from Moses to the time of the entrance into the Land of Canaan, and he doth instance in Moses Parents and then in Moses, then in the children of Israel, then in Rahab, from Ver. 23 to 31.

In the fourth place, he reckons up all those Heroes, from that time to the time of the Maccabees and Names Gideon and Barach, and Samson, and Jephtah, and David, and Samuel, and then he reckons them up only in generall, the Prophets, and Martyrs, and Confessors, under the persecutions of cursed Antiochus. Now in all this Catalogue, he shewes the admirable effects of true justifying faith, what faith is able to do when a man is a true believer in God, what great matters he is able to atchieve, it gives a man the testimony of a good conscience, and makes him able to do the things acceptable to God, it makes a man believe things incredible to sense and reason, it makes a man forsake all and follow God, it makes a man do or suffer any thing for Christ, it makes a man so precious, that the world is not worthy that he should dwell among them, that there should be any such person in such a base place as the world is, it is an excellent thing, and it is set out most admirably, what glorious things faith doth enable a man in the strength of God to do, and his scope in all this is, to exhort them to abound in faith, and they that have it not to use all meanes for the obtaining of it, and come by it, and lye at God, and to be trading in the meanes of Grace, and never be at quiet till they have it, and when they have it, to endeare it, and labour to abound in it, and persevere in it to their dying day, now among all this grave, and venerable, and reverend Society of believers that he here reckons and summes up, up, he calls out Abraham in this text to speak of him; and that he speaks of him in this place is this, that when God called him to leave his Countrey, and Kindred, and Fathers house, to leave his inheritance, and all his friends and acquaintance, by faith he was able to obey this call, by faith (saith he) Abraham being called that he should go into a place which he should afterwards receive for an inheritance, obeyed, and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

Doct. So that the Doctrine which I observe from hence is this, that it is faith that makes a man obey the call of God, the command of God, whether it be the first call and command for the coming out of sinne, or all after commands whatsoever, it is faith that makes a man obey them; if a man have faith, though he had never so stubborne and perverse an heart before, though he were never so set upon his lusts, and sinfull courses before, faith is that which will make a man lay it downe and disavow it, and oppose himself against it, and he shall no longer live in it, assoone as ever faith comes into the soul it makes a man obey God, it brings a man home to God, to do his will and to walk according to his directions, and to be at his dispose, and to commit, and commend, and resigne himself wholly to God in all his wayes; this is the onely thing that heales a mans backslidings, this is the onely thing that drawes a man home to God, this is the onely instrument whereby a man is tyed to God himself, whereby a man doth fetch downe all the graces from above, so long as a man is stubborne and perverse, and walks after the flesh, and goeth on in any evil way, he hath no faith, as the Psalmist speaks, Psal. 78. 32. For all this they sinned yet still, and believed not his wondrous works; that is, they were disobedient, therefore certainly they had no faith, for if faith once looked into their hearts, it would have made them to discard their sinnes, and it would have made them obedient to God, it would have pared them from the flesh, and weaned them from their owne desires, and would have made them to give up themselves to God, therefore seeing they went on in their sinnes, it is certaine, they did not believe, for faith only makes a man obey God, and wheresoever it is, a man obeyeth God.

Doct. It is faith that makes a man obey the call of God.

Reas. 1. Because faith seeth an indissolvable couple of attributes in God, that cannot be separated and severed, as it seeth his grace and mercy to draw him forward, so it seeth his purity, and justice, and holinesse, and righteousnesse, that it dares not but obey God, as it doth discerne his grace and mercy to make him perfectly to trust in God, so it seeth another thing in God, that God is of that nature that he must be served, and worshipped, and obeyed. Therefore you shall see Noah, though the building of the Ark were an endlesse work, and a costly and chargeable work in the eyes of men, it would cost him many yeares to build, and he could not look after his calling, and after the world, but it would take him up for an hundred and twenty yeares, and set all the world a talking of him, and mocking at him for it, yet when God commanded him to do it, faith made him do it, and how did faith make him do it? Heb. 11. 7. By faith Noah being forewarned of God of things not seen as yet, moved by feare, prepared an Ark; feare moved him, faith made him do it, but how did faith make him do it? It moved him with feare, and so made him do it, it made him see God was an holy and righteous God that would not be dallied withal, and this moved him with feare, and he durst not but do it; whatsoever it put him to, he durst not omit it, faith makes a man that he dares not but live with God, it takes away the impudency of the heart, and the wantonnesse of the soul, as long as a man doth not believe, he dares make bold with such Commandements of God, as he likes not, he will omit them for all him, but when faith comes it reveales God to the soul, and shewes who he is, and what nature he is of, and that he is such a one as will not be dallied with, but his Commandements must be done, and his will must be obeyed, or else woe to that man, it shewes to a man the infinite Majestie of God, and sets it before a mans face, that he dares not go on in any thing contrary to Gods will, but obey God in whatsoever he commands him, and abstaine from whatsoever God forbids, as Paul saith, We dare not make our selves of the number, or compare our selves with some that commend themselves, 2 Cor. 10. 12. He knew God had forbidden it, and he durst not but obey. So, 1 Cor. 6. Dare any of you having a matter go to Law before unbelievers? as who should say, you are not beleevers if you do it, faith would shew you what God is, and what an inglorious, and what a bitter thing it is for you to do it, how dare you do it?

Reas. 1 Because faith seeth Gods purity and mercy to be inseparable attributes.

2. Because faith looks on Christ not only as a Saviour, but as a Lord

Secondly, Faith doth not onely look upon Christ as a Saviour, and a Redeemer, but also as a Lord and King, when Christ comes to a man, when faith comes into the soul: Christ is called our Lord Jesus Christ, as he is a Jesus, so he is a Lord, and faith doth not only receive him as a Jesus, but submits to him as to a Sovereigne. Faith takes them both together, faith will not let a man live Lordlesse, it knowes he must take Christ as a Lord as well as a Redeemer, as faith takes off the guilt of sinne, so it puts the yoake of Christ on; Is Christ divided? saith the Apostle, 1 Corinthians 1. 13. So I may say, is Christ divided? Can he be dissoyated himselfe from himselfe? Can people mangle Christ in pieces, and divide him asunder? May be thou wilt have him as a Jesus, but thou wilt not have him as a Lord, then thou canst not have him at all, as Peter saith, Acts 2. 36. Be it known to all, that God hath made the same Jesus whom ye have crucified both Lord and Christ; As he hath made him a Christ by anointing him to be a Saviour, to bring men from sinne, and to bring them to Gods Kingdome, and save them from wrath, so he hath made him a Lord, he hath set him up as a King upon his Holy Hill of Zion; look as it was with Jephtah, when the Gileadites would have him to save them from the Ammonites, shall I be your head then, saith he? and he made them to sweare before the Lord that they would make him their Head, or else he would not deliver them, so if thou wilt have Christ to deliver thee out of the hands of thine enemies, sinne is an enemy, and the Law is an enemy, and the Devill is an enemy, and the world, and thine own flesh is an enemy, if thou wilt have Christ to deliver thee from these enemies, shall he be thy Head? He hath sworne an Oath, That we being delivered from the hands of our enemies should serve him in holinesse and righteousnesse all the dayes of our lives, Luke 1. 73. He hath sworne with an Oath, that that man whom he delivers from his enemies shall serve him in holinesse and righteousnesse, and shall not live as he list, he shall not live Lawlesse, he shall take Christs Lawes as well as his Merits, as well Christs Government as the imputation of his truth and righteousnesse, he shall take the one as well as the other; Now, it is an easie thing for a man to believe by a presumptious faith that Christ is is a Jesus, but here is the difficulty to take him as a Lord. No man can call Christ a Lord but by the Holy Ghost, saith the Apostle, 1 Cor. 12. 3. He doth not say no man can say Christ is a Jesus, the Devill and presumption can make a man say so, and every man hopes, and bears himself upon this, that Christ is a Jesus, but no man can truly confesse him to be a Lord, but by the Holy Ghost, unlesse the Holy Ghost enable him, as our Saviour saith, David by the Spirit called him Lord, he speaks of himself, Matth. 22. 43. It is a great matter to submit to Christ as a Soveraigne, as well as to take Christ for a Saviour, now faith workes both must be done, it must take Christ under both relations, as he must take him under the relation of a Redeemer, so under the relation of a Lord as to be saved by him, so to be guided and swayed by him in all his wayes, and to be at his disposing in all his courses, thus faith workes Christ is propounded in the Gospell, and thus Christ embraceth him, it cannot have him in one respect, but it must also have him in the other, and so faith brings in obedience.

3. Because faith gleweth the heart to the Commandements as well as to the promises.

Thirdly, Faith workes another couple that cannot be disjoynted and severed one from another, and that is this, as faith tyeth the heart to the promises, so it gluеth the heart to the Commandements, these go together, and when faith reacheth forth the hand to the one, it reacheth forth the hand to the other, they are tyed with bonds of adamant that cannot be severed, Psalme 119. 56. When faith will go to God in vertue of a promise to do this or that for him, he reacheth forth the hand to the Commandements too. I am the Lord thy God, thou shalt have no other Gods but me; As who should say, if you will look upon me as your God by faith, then look that you have no other gods but me, look that you honour me in all my wayes, and stoop to me, and obey my Word, as the Lord propounded the one, so he set before them the other, a man forgets that God is his God by faith, if he keeps not his Commandements, Exodus 5. saith Moses Dost thou forget the Lord thy God is not keeping his Commandements. How can a man believe in God, when he forgets that which he should believe? When a man forgets to be subject to God, and to give up himself in all his wayes? The Promises and Commandements are tyed together with bonds of adamant, and no man can pull them asunder, as it is with sinne and the threatnings, if a man go on in sinne, he shall be sure to have the threatnings light upon him, they are bound together by bonds of adamant and everlasting cords, let a man do what he can, if he howle and roare to God to take away his plagues, to take away Hell fire and damnation, if he go on in sinne, it will never be, they hang together in an everlasting truth, The way of the wicked shall perish, and if a man soweth iniquity he shall reap misery, saith the Wiseman, As a man soweth, so he shall reap, do not deceive your selves. We are marvelous apt to season as Eve did, to put in perhaps, perhaps you shall dye, Nay, assuredly we shall dye if we go on in sinne, and will not live that life which God hath set before us, the life of faith, the life of God, the life of Heaven, the life of true Holinesse and righteousnesse, if we will not submit to this and give up our selves to be brought under it, we shall assuredly perish, never did any man live and goe on in sinne, but he dyed in perdition. Never any man lived a wicked and ungodly life, but had a wicked, wretched, and damned death, if a man do go on in sinne he shall be sure to have the threatnings of God light upon him, he cannot avoyde them, so it is on the other side, the Promises and the Commandements go together, and if a man do observe the Commandements of God by a true and lively faith, he shall assuredly have the promises, and if he reject the Commandements, or be unfound in the doing of them, he cannot have the Promises, if he have the one, he must have the other, he can never make a faithfull Plea for Peace, for Pardon, for Heaven, on any thing that God hath promised, that binder not himselfe ever to God to do his will in every thing, nay the strength of Faith puts forth it selfe in as strong an act towards the Commandements as towards the Promises, and if there be any difference, it is on the Promises side, for the Practises are more supernatural then the Commandements, for they were once written in the heart, therefore the Commandements are not so supernatural, a man was once acquainted with them, but the Promises of Mercy, and Pardon, and Redemption are more supernatural, and we see this in poore weak beleevers that go on and are enabled to make good conscience of their wayes, and to be very carefull of sinning against God, and walk in very good strictnesse, diligence, and circumspection, and yet have much ado to apply the Promises, and appropriate them to themselves. I say, broken-hearted people that are weak in faith, in regard of personall confidence, may yet notwithstanding be very strong in the doing of the Commandements of God. The reason is, because obedience flows from a direct act of faith, and this bearing a man upon the Promises from a reflect act of faith, it flowes from a consciousnesse of obedience, when a man is conscious that he is sincere, then, and never before can a man have confidence that the Promises are sealed to him, this is a reflect act of faith, but it is a direct act that makes a man obey Gods Commandements, so that faith must needs work obedience, for if these be the blessed couple propounded to the soule in the Gospel together with the Commandements, Faith looking on both takes one as well as the other.

4. Because faith looks to a fitnesse for heaven as well as a title to heaven.

Fourthly, there is another close couple that faith looks upon, and that is, as upon a Title to the Kingdome of Heaven, so also to a fitnesse for the Kingdome of Heaven, and one is as needfull as the other, as things without which a man cannot enter into the Kingdome of God. Now Faith as it helps a man to a title to Glory, so it helps a man more and more with fitnesse, because it seeth it cannot be otherwise; When David had committed his two foule sinnes of murther and adultery, though he had not lost his title to the Kingdome of Heaven, yet he could not enter into it, he could not have actual possession of it; Why? Because he was unfit, Heb. 12. 14. Without holinesse a man cannot see God, though a man hath all the titles in the world, though he be elected to it before all worlds, yet till he is made fit for it, he cannot enter into it. Flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God, as the Apostle Peter speakes, it is an inheritance holy and undefiled, and a man must be holy before he can be made partaker of it, Joseph must shave himself before he come before Pharaoh, Ahasuerus women must be prepared, and purified with spices and odours and mirrhe, Hest. 2. 11. And then they came before the King, when they were prepared and adorned, and made sweet and perfumed. So a man must first be prepared and fitted for the Kingdom of heaven, or else there is no admission into it, heaven is too fine a place for adulterers rers, and drunkards &c. As soone as ever the Angels of heaven, though glorious creatures, began to sinne against God, God thrust them out of heaven, they left their habitation it was too fine for them, and do you think the Lord will admit the Devill into heaven againe in his members? what a thing it is when every drunkard, and prophane person shall think himself meet company for the blessed trinity? it cannot be, God will never take such foule loathsome creatures into fellowship and Communion with him, they are too neare him already in the world, and therefore he will fling them out of his presence into Hell, in Heaven is nothing but beatifical vision, viewing of God and delighting in God, and not thinking a thought but of God, and therefore no roome for those that are empty of grace, and not fitted and prepared for it, now faith knowes this, and believes this, and therefore as it layeth hold on Christ for life, so it never leaves till it hath gotten himselfe from Christ, as the Apostle speakes, Col. 1. 12. Giving thanks unto the Father who hath made us meet, &c. God makes all meete for Heaven that he brings thither, and till they are so they cannot be admitted thither, if a man will go to heaven he must be a vessel of honour, 2 Tim. 2. 21. Therefore Faith purifies the heart, pares off a mans flesh, weanes a man from the world, and knocks off a mans cursed corruptions more and more, and pulls downe a man before God, makes a man stoop to Gods Covenant, and to the holy and righteous as he is; it knows, unlesse he be made fit for Gods Kingdome, he can never come there, we should look to this, and it should make us fearfull and tender, and looke to our selves, for unlesse we be fit for the Kingdome of Heaven we shall never have abode there, John 3. 3. Except a man be borne again, &c. That is, except a man be made meet for the Kingdome of God he cannot come into it; Except he have Heavens frame and disposition, and Heavens conversation, except his conversation be in Heaven here he can never come there, and this is the reason we are so often called upon to be godly in Christ Jesus, to walk in puresse and holinesse of living, because no uncleane thing shall enter into the heavenly Jerusalem, without are Doggs, the Lord counts them Doggs that shall never enjoy his presence, this is another reason why Faith workes obedience, because if he will have Title to the Kingdome of Heaven, he must look to be fitted for the same.

Fifthly, because Faith is eminently all that a man is to do, it is the whole work of a Christian, John 6. 29. This is the work of God, &c. That is, this is eminently all the workes of God. But is there no work but this? Yes, there are many other workes, but this is the work of God that we believe, because this is eminently all that God looks for, as the Apostle speaks, 1 John 3. 23. This is his Commandement that we believe, &c. Is there no other Commandement but this? is this all we must do and no more? No, but this is eminently the Commandement, there are other Commandements, but all are included in this of beleiving, so faith is eminently all graces, all other graces are but the daughters and parts of faith, they grow out of faith as out of the spring and root, so that do this and do all, do but believe in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and what will you not do? it will make thee give over thy sinnes, and be humbled and mortified, it will make thee give over vaine company, and delight in all goodnesse, make thee zealous and fervent, and teach thee how to pray and be thankfull to God, it will fill thy mouth with laughter, and thy tongue with joy, it will make thee do any thing if thou believe, Acts 16. 31. As who should say, believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and this will make thee do all, there will be nothing left, as Christ saith, If thou believe, all things are possible; So I may say, if thou believe all things will be done, and thou wilt stick at nothing, be backward in nothing, but wilt be brought to obey God in every thing, it is like the turning of the Cock, if the Cock be turned, the water will flow forth, so if a mans heart be opened by faith, all the heart runnes to God, a Wind-mill, if the Sailes go, the stones and all go, so if faith be once working and operating, all the soul is turning it self towards God, though never so Heavy, and Carnal, and Vaine, and Earthly before, yet now all is going in the wayes of God. As the Mother of Christ said to the servants of the marriage, Whatsoever he bids you do, do it, So faith saith thus to all the soul, look whatsoever Christ commands, look you do it, minde those things he bids you minde, affect that he affects, retaine that he bids you remember, it is like Abner, that brought all Israel to be the servants of David, so faith when it comes into the soul, it brings all the faculties of the soul of the whole man to be subject to the Lord Jesus Christ, thus you see that faith works obedience in a man.

5. Because faith is eminently all that a man is to do.

John 2.

The first Use is this, to answer a demand that will arise out of the hearts of people, when they heare that Faith makes a man to obey.

Quest. How doth it make a man obey?

Answ. I answer, by setting before a man the corruptions of his owne heart, and what woeful stubbornesse is in the same; it makes a man see those innumerable corruptions in the soul, and how deeply they have eaten into the soul, it makes a man see what a loathsome creature he is, and what a deal of rebellion there is in his will, and minde, and thoughts, and affections, and what oppositions there are against the doing of Gods Holy Will, he seeth that if he will obey God what little help he shall have from himself, from his own will, his own reason, his own parts, his own nature, though he had never so good a nature, Nay, how he shall be hindered, and hampered, and opposed by himself, faith lets him see this, and so pulls him down before God, to abhor himself in dust and ashes, it was thus in Paul, Rom. 7. 24. O miserable man, &c. It made him finde this, that he could not do the good he would, thus faith empties a man of himself, and makes him to renounce himself, and makes him not to stand upon his own feet, never to stand alone, never to go about any thing but with the help of Christ, it makes a man see what a damned will he hath, what a damned reason he hath, what a damned heart and disposition he hath: O! saith he, here's Wisdome indeed, here is a disposition indeed, I will never be ruled by this disposition, and he looks upon himself as an undone creature if he followes his own desires, here be desires indeed, and thoughts indeed, and here is an horrible frame, and this makes him renounce himself, and thus faith works obedience in a man, by driving of him out of himself, and dividing a mans self from himself, that he will not be led by his own thoughts, nor carried by his owne imagina-

ons

ons, it seeth Hell in all these, and that he can do nothing without Christ live in his heart by faith; without faith you can do nothing, saith Christ, and faith tells a man this, it makes him know what a wretched creature he is, and what a damned nature he carries about with him, and that he must not follow, and please, and give satisfaction to that at any time. Now, a natural man may see his insufficiency of himself, and the vilenesse of his nature, but conscience only shewes him this, but because he hath not faith, it doth not humble him; and put him down, but he will follow his own thoughts, and go after his own reason for all this, he hath not true and saving faith, to reveal these things in power to him, but when faith comes into the soul, it doth it to the purpose; it makes a man not to be a little affected with his sinnes, but soundly affected, and makes him see that he is undone for ever if he go on in that course he was wont to do; and thus faith working in this fashion delivers a man over to Christ, by taking a man off from that which was his Pilate and guide before, and making him to be guided by Christ.

Secondly, Faith works obedience by carrying a man to God, it makes a man seek to God how to obey; Teach me O Lord to do thy will, Psal. 143. 10. Faith carried him to God, so faith doth wheresoever it is, it brings a man to God, that God would be pleased to strengthen our apprehension, that so we may look upon his will, and to fortifie our understandings that we may conceive of all his wayes, with a Divine and heavenly understanding, and to fortifie our wills, that the feebleneſse of them towards God may be removed, it crieth to God from day to day, that he may not do as he hath done, nor live as he hath done; faith wheresoever it is, drives the soul to God, and to lie at him from day to day, to guide him, and teach him, and instruct him, and shew him his wayes, and reveal unto him his Statutes; as David, Psalme 119. 35, 36. Incline my heart to thy Testimonies, and not to Covetousnesse; As who should say, Lord, here is my heart, will, and whole man, I beseech thee make me walk in thy wayes, I am very loath and untoward, I beseech thee put some strength into this will of mine, when I go to thy Word, let me heare it with trembling; when I go to prayer, let me go to it with an heavenly minde, encline my heart this way, and make it stand bent this way; 'tis true, when naturall men are convinced that all strength is from God, they pray too, but this is not faith in prayer, but faith makes the soul that it cannot be quiet, but it must obey and stoop to him in all his wayes.

2. By carrying a man to God.

Thirdly, Faith works obedience by making a man improve all the abilities that God hath given him already, and this is the best way to encrease them, Matth. 13. 12. When a man hath grace, hath a Talent, and makes use of it, and hath it to some purpose, and layeth it forth, that man shall encrease his Talent and abound, God will give him more, now as faith works obedience by shewing a man his own wretchednesse, that he must not yield to his own desires, and be carried by his own vaine imaginations, that for his part would conclude such a course is lawful, and why not? Though God saith the contrary, faith makes him consider that, and so drives him to God, and so also it makes him go and improve those gifts, and parts, and strength that God hath given him already, that he may lay it forth,

3. By making a man improve all his abilities.

and uſe it to the uttermoſt, as if a man be haunted and baited by any luſt, deadneſſe, ſecurity, coldneſſe in duty, or ſome other luſt. Now, Faith when it would make a man obedient to God, to crucifie theſe luſts, it makes a man look out to ſee what power God hath given him, what abilities God hath lent, what helps and furtherances God hath reached out unto him, and he takes all to fight againſt that luſt, hath he underſtanding? that he employes to think of the evill of the ſinne, to conſider of the danger of the ſinne, how he may avoyde it, and what courſe he may take to overcome it; if God hath given him a memory, he layeth it forth to remember and recollect ſuch things as he hath heard, and hath been told of, he layeth all his Talents forth that ever he can to maſter that luſt, and ſo works obedience, as faith drives a man to God for help, ſo look what help God lends, and what Talent God puts into his hand, he layeth all forth for the working of obedience, he will not let any one lye idle, but will employ all to help him forward in obedience.

4. By making a man relie on Chriſt.

Fourthly, Faith doth work obedience, by making a man to relie upon Chriſt, it doth look unto an union with Chriſt, it doth make a man to caſt himſelfe upon Chriſt for power againſt his ſinnes, it doth extract vigour from Chriſt againſt corruption, it doth diſtill and draw down graces from him, faith is the pipe whereby grace is conveyed from Chriſt to the ſoul, and faith opens the paſſages of this pipe that it may deſcend down to the heart from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, faith is a marvelous excellent thing, it doth extract efficacy, and validity, and power, from the life and death of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for the crucifying of the fleſh, for the mortifying of the deeds of the body, and thus, it changeth the heart, and brings willingneſſe to every duty by doing thus. I ſay, faith goeth to Chriſt, and caſts it ſelf upon him for all things it wants, for the performance of all good courſes and wayes; Thus David got power againſt his carnal feare, when he was afraid of Saul on one ſide, and the Philiſtins on the other ſide; how doth he fence himſelf againſt this, Pſalme 56. 4. I put my truſt in God, and therefore need not feare what man can do unto me; and ſo faith was able to root out his feares; So it was with the remnant of Iſrael, Zeph. 3. 13. They ſhall do no iniquity; you will ſay, how can that be? Can fleſh and blood do that? As long as a man is fleſh and blood he will be doing ſome iniquity or other; how ſhall a man be able to do no iniquity, and let no iniquity have dominion over him? it goeth before in the twelfe verſe, They truſt in God, They truſt in God, and ſo ſhall do no iniquity; When a man doth truſt in God, and hath faith to relie upon him, and diſtill down power and ſtrength from Chriſt, this will help him to do no iniquity, and help him to oppoſe himſelf againſt all his corruptions, and fight againſt the ſtrength of all his luſts, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Rom. 3. 13. let us therefore caſt off the workes of darkneſſe. You will ſay this is very ſtrange, are we able to do this? can we tame our own hearts, or change our own minds? are we able to purge out theſe corruptions? is this poſſible? how ſhall a man do this? Why? put on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, (in the next words) go to him by a true and lively faith, and then you may be ſtrong in Chriſt, and able to do every good Duty, and ſubdue every ſinne, receiving ſtrength from Chriſt; when a man is to go through thornes and briars, a man is not able to go through; but if he put on his Bootes

and

and his Gloves, &c. he may; ſo when a man goes on in his owne wayes he cannot avoide ſinne, pride, and covetouſneſſe, and vanity, how ſhall he avoide theſe things? 'tis true, he cannot avoide them if he go naked, but if he put on Chriſt he may; it is a ſimilitude taken from a garment, and that in two reſpects.

Firſt, it muſt be fitted, and then it muſt be put on; ſo Chriſt firſt takes meaſure of all the infirmities, and frailties of his people, and communicates to them a ſutable grace; are they troubled with afflictions, then he meaſures out patience to beare them? are they perſecuted, then he makes them able to ſtand for his Name? are they to pray, to deny themſelves, to fight againſt Satan, he meaſures them out a ſutable proportion of his grace and Spirit to him? and now when a man hath his Gloves, and all proviſion on, he may go about hedging, or ditching, or any buſineſſe; ſo when a man hath put on Chriſt, and is armed with grace and ſtrength from him, what is it but a man may do? In that very moment wherein a man caſts himſelf upon God in Chriſt, and doth lay hold upon Chriſt by a true and lively faith, this grace is made over to him the ſame moment, may be the grace of victory he muſt ſtay for a while, but there comes a grace of ſincerity from God that very moment that he believes in Chriſt, though may be there comes not that power from Chriſt he would have, yet that power, that he ſhall be ſincere, and will never let corruption make him a ſlave; he ſhall never walk after the fleſh, never be ſtubborne and worldly, never do as the wicked do, never depart from God as unbelievers uſe to do; he ſhall depend upon God, and waite upon him, and adhere, and cleave unto him, and continue a faithfull Souldier to Chriſt, fighting againſt ſinne and corruption to the death; a man ſhall have power from Chriſt to do this, if he have a true and a lively faith, By faith, ſaith the text, Hebrewes 11. 5 Enoch walked with God; how is it poſſible? could he walk with God? what a ſtrange kinde of life is this? How averſe is the heart of man from it? People cannot abide ſuch ſtrictneſſe to have commerce, and ſociety, and communion with God, to keep cloſe to God, and not go away from him, how could he do this? Why? By faith he walketh with God: So Abraham, God bade him leave his Countrey and all he had; you muſt think a thouſand things were objected to him; you muſt think he had abundance of reaſonings to and fro in his minde; I am in yeares, unfit for travell, and I ſhall now travell God knowes whither; and I am now where I was bred and brought up, and I have hear meanes, and maintenance, and friends, and know how to live; and for me to go into a ſtrange Countrey where I know no body, and I know not what may become of me; and for me to leave certainties for uncertainties, all the world will count me a foole; how did he do this? By faith he obeyed, ſaith the text, &c. Faith helped him with power to look up unto God, and caſt himſelfe upon God, that helped him againſt all difficulties, that helped him againſt all the backwardneſſe and dulneſſe of his nature; he committed himſelf to God, and would do it, he packt up himſelf, never once ſtanding upon the matter, but away he goeth; By faith he obeyed, &c. So, By faith Abel offered up a more acceptable ſacrifice then Cain, Hebrewes 11. 4. How is that poſſible? Was he not made of the ſame mettall Cain was? was he not borne out of the ſame wombe, digged out of the ſame pit? As apt, and prone to ſerve God after an earthly manner as Cain? How was he able to offer up a more acceptable ſacrifice? He had no better ſheep then Cain. Why? it was done by faith, he had faith in God, he renounced himſelfe, and was divided from himſelfe, he was united to God by faith, and reſolved to hang upon him, and ſo leaned upon him for every thing he had promiſed, and ſo got acceptance with God. So Rahab, by faith entertained the ſpies, Hebrewes 11. 31. It was a hard piece of ſervice, a marvelous difficult piece of buſineſſe; you muſt think ſhe thus reaſoned with her ſelfe, ſhall I entertaine Traytors? Shall I betray my owne Countrey? The Town will ſee it, it will come to the Kings eare, and I ſhall become a Traytor to my Countrey and Prince, and a thouſand to one but I ſhall loſe my life if I ſuffer them to be here, but how did ſhe overcome this? By faith, by faith ſhe entertained the ſpies, for all it was ſo hard, for all death was at the doore, yet by faith ſhe was able to do it; What ſhall we ſay to Gideon, Barnch, &c. Who by faith ſubdued Kingdomes, &c. Hebrewes 11. 37? Out of weak they were made ſtrong; How, did they work righteouſneſſe? They were as weak as others, but faith made them of weak, ſtrong, faith ſtrengthened their wills to that which was good; faith corroborated their reſolutions and purpoſes towards the pleaſing of God; and reſiſting corruptions faith made them ſtrongly reſolve that they would not be led by their owne wills, they believed in God, and ſo were able to do it. What ſhall I ſay of Moſes, Hebrewes 11. 24? This is a wonderful thing, that he ſhould refuſe to be called the ſonne of Pharaohs daughter, a meane man born, and yet refuſe to be called King Pharaohs Grand-childe! who would refuſe ſuch excellent hopes of honours and preferments? may be he might be King afterwards? Nay, when he was come to yeares to do it; if he had refuſed it when he was a childe, before he had come to yeares it had been no ſuch wonder, it might have been attributed to his childiſhneſſe; Nay, but he was come to yeares, and was a learned and underſtanding man; what man would have done this? Indeed rare are ſuch perſons that are able to renounce themſelves in this faſhion, but you ſee what faith can do.

Queſt. How doth faith fetch power from Chriſt.

Queſt. Thus you ſee how faith doth work obedience, and now if you would know how faith doth fetch power from Chriſt to do theſe things.

Anſw. 1. As an inſtrument.

I anſwer, it is by two wayes.

First, Faith is an inſtrument whereby God doth by the acting and placing of it aright upon him, let out that power which is in Chriſt to a poore ſoul; that that power which is in Chriſt is to him, and that goodneſſe which is in Chriſt is to him, that he ſhall have grace for grace, an anſwerable grace, for every grace in Chriſt, Epheſ. 1. 19. The exceeding greatneſſe of his power, to us-ward that believe; When we believe the exceeding greatneſſe of his power is to us-ward, it is not only a power in God, but it is for us, and we may take that power and fetch it from God, and obtaine of him to put it forth. You know that Chriſt hath promiſed to take away the ſtony heart, &c. He hath made ſuch promiſes as theſe, to pull down ſtrong holds, to overcome Satan and all the enemies of our ſoules, to poure out his Spirit upon his people, as water upon the thirſty ground; now as ſoone as ever faith comes into the ſoul it goeth to theſe promiſes, and takes hold of them, Lord here is ſuch a promiſe, Lord make me a new heart, make me obey this Commandment, and overcome such a sin, and all the power that is in God, it is to him-ward.

Secondly, Faith doth fetch down power from Heaven in a moral manner, by considering the exceeding greatnesse of the recompence of reward, as its said of Moses, Hebrewes 11 25. I say, faith looks unto Christ, looks unto the favour of God, unto the forgivenesse of sinnes, and Title to Gods Kingdome, it looks unto eternal life, unto those admirable joyes that are at Gods right hand for evermore, which are promised to them that believe; it seeth these things, and this makes him able to deny any thing, to overcome any thing, to go about any thing; shall I have Heaven, the favour of God, a Kingdome, shall I be happy for ever? shall I have all these things if I will pray and heare the Word? Obey God, and give over vaine company, and joyne to Gods people, and hate all manner of evil, if I will labour to crosse my own thoughts and desires and approve my selfe to God in all my wayes, shall I have all these things? this makes him able to do it; he looks to this, and so goeth about it, and when the flesh shall object hardnesse, and difficulty, and opposition, and losse of comfort, and losse of carnal ease and delight, faith goeth and sets these admirable things against them, it sets Heaven, and the Kingdome of Heaven, and Christ, and the joyes of Gods right hand against them, and this makes him do it; it sets the will of God against his will, the favour of God against the favour of men, the joyes of Heaven against carnal joyes, eternal happinesse for evermore against the sufferings here for a moment, weighs one in one scale and the other in the other, and so works with them. 2. In a moral way.

Here we may see what little faith there is among people, certainly there is but little faith, because if there were much faith, there would be much obedience given to God; we should have admirable Towns, gracious Congregations; we should have never a drunkard, never a prophane person, but all Saints, and holy men, and women, every one would be thinking of God and his wayes, and heavenly minded; if there were much faith, people would have their lives changed, and their conversations altered; as Christ saith, When the Sonne of man comes, shall he finde faith upon the Earth? So may I say, if the Sonne of man should now come among us, should he find faith among us? He should find it very rare; for this is certain, there are not very many that professe faith, drunkards, and the greatest company of prophane persons are such as have not the face of holinesse and faith; and amongst this little number that professe it, how few are there that have true faith indeed? You see none have true faith but those that are obedient unto God; true faith doth bend the soul to God, it makes the soul spiritual, and holy, and humble, and cleane another man from that he was before, that he shall be resigned over to God, to live at his dispose, this is true faith, therefore faith is hardly to be found upon earth, it is a pitiful thing to see how little Gods will is regarded up and down; and though God be our Maker, and his hands have formed us, though we professe we are his people whom he hath redeemed, though we know he hath sent Christ into the world, and the blood of his own Sonne is cried up and down in the streets, and calls upon men to believe, and take hold on it; though we do know these things, yet for all this equity of obedience to God, and notwithstanding the necessity of obedience, how do people sleight the will of God? it is his will we should be fruitful under the meanes, heavenly in holy duties, fervent in calling upon his Name, that we should have the true feare of his Name before our eyes, it is his will that we should serve him in sincerity all the dayes of our lives, that we should stand for him, and glorifie him before men; that we should walk with God and be strangers upon earth, and wean our selves from the world, and be taken up Use 2. See what little faith is in the world.

with him, more then with any thing in this life, that we should count nothing deare for him, and deny our selves in every thing, it is his will for us to do these things, but who looks after these things? As if we were possessed with a legion of Devils, we go slighting, and contemning, and breaking all bonds of equity, and necessity of obedience, and Gods will is not obeyed, his worship is not promoted, his name is not feared, few give their minds to do these things, if God had not thrown millions of devils into hell for sinning against him, if God had not revealed his wrath against sinne and iniquity, and all unrighteousnesse, if God had not shewen how jealous he stands upon keeping his Lawes, and observing his Commandments, and his holy and heavenly Word, if God had not revealed himself unto us, it had been another matter, but he hath revealed these things, yet how secure are we? He hath made it appear, Rom. 2,9. Tribulation and anguish shall be upon every soul that doth evil, and cursed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this Covenant, Jer. 11.63. And he will come in flaming fire to render vengeance upon all that obey not the truth, 2 Thes. 1.8. These things are spoken and delivered, and we know these things, and confesse them; yet God is not respected for all this. Nay, such is the impudency of men, that they will acknowledge that God ought to be obeyed, and served, and it is good to serve him, and it is a dangerous thing not to serve him, and yet for all this they will not do it, as if it were nothing to be damned, and as if they would try whether they can bear hell, nay, such is the impudency of mens faces, that notwithstanding they have heard they are unconverted, and their hearts are not subject to God, yet they hope they have true faith in God, and their sins are infirmities, whereas you see it cannot be true faith unlesse it make a man to be obedient to God in all his wayes, and binde a man in a perpetual bond to God for ever, never to depart from him.

Use 3 For examination.

Thirdly, it may be an Use of examination, to see whether we obey God or no, for if our faith be the faith we hope it is, it will make us obedient.

Evidences of true obedience.

1. Willing and hearty.

First, then true obedience is a willing, affectionate, hearty obedience, Prov. 3.1. My son, let thy heart keep my Commandments; the Lrod will have such obedience as proceeds from the bottome of the heart, not when a mans heart is dull, and dead, and hangs off, but when the heart poures forth it self in his wayes, and performing his gracious pleasures from day to day; this the Lord requires, that it be done with the affection of the heart, as well as the thing be done, in the thing done, & the wicked may go as far, nay, further then the sincere, they may multiply duties as well as the other for the things done; but here is the thing, a wicked man doth duties heartlesly, unaffectionately; but a child of God doth them sincerely, and willingly, and lets out his heart and affections upon them all; God loves a chearful giver, 2 Cor 9.19. He loves a giver that gives with all his affections; so he loves a chearful comer to Church, that is glad to hear a Sermon, and his heart leapes to hear the Word of God, and he is affected with it, he loves a chearful praying, one that in prayer poures out his soul before him, he loves a chearful comer to the Sacrament, that delights to shew forth the Lords death till he comes; God doth not love a man unlesse he doth this with all his affections; as it is said, it is good to be zealous in a good matter, the worship and Commandments of God are good matters; now, it is good to be zealous in these matters; nay, to have the creame, and flower, and chief of our affections set upon these things, we are acquainted with the wayes, and histories of grace, and we can speak thereof, but it doth not sink down into our hearts, it doth not warme us, nor put any heat into our souls, we are not quickened and moved by these things; we know Gods attribute, his power, and wisdome, and mercy, and justice, &c. But none sink

ſink down into our hearts, they affect us not as they ought to do, where are our affections in prayer? We pray, and come to Church, and to the Lords Table, but where are our affections in all theſe things? The Lord cares not for theſe ſervices, that have not affections to ſpice them and ſweeten them, and beautifie them; the Lord loves when a man ſerves him with all his heart; when the will hangs off, it is baſe ſervice, and the Lord regards it not; as the Lord loves that we that are Miniſters ſhould preach with a ready minde, 1 Pet. 5. 2. That we ſhould preach with gracious affections, and be affected in the Pulpit, and deſire from the bottome of our ſouls to do good to the people, and yearne over the people; the Lord loves theſe things when we do them willingly and heartily; ſo he delights in people when they heare and call upon his Name with affection; when we go about Gods Commandments as a Bear to the ſtake, God abhors it; may be God commands a man to do ſuch a thing, he doth it, but it is hard ſaith he; when money is to be fetched out of his purſe for good duties, it is hard ſaith he; and when he muſt go againſt the wicked, and pull the ill will of the Countrey upon him, may be he doth it, but it is hard; the Lord diſtaſts this, the Lord loves a chearful giver, and a chearful worker, a chearful Miniſter, and chearfull people; now if faith comes into the ſoul, it will not only work obedience, but chearful obedience, and from the bottome of the heart.

Secondly, true obedience makes a man reſigne himſelf to God, it makes a man to be altogether at Gods diſpoſe; I am thine, ſaith David, he looked upon himſelf as if he were altogether at Gods diſpoſe, as if he were his, and not his own; You are not your own, ſaith the Apoſtle, you are bought with a price, 1 Cor. 2 6. So that is true obedience, when a man gives up himſelf to God; many will do things that God commands, but they know not how to do them with reſignation, to be altogether at Gods diſpoſe; they love to be called Gods ſervants, but they will be only retainers, as many will get to be ſervants to ſome Gentleman, but it is only for their own advantage, to ſave their purſes, to have the Gentlemans countenance, theſe will not dwell with the Gentleman, but in their own houſes, and when he hath ſome great ſtrangers at a Feaſt, or when he rides abroad in ſtate, then they will attend upon him, but yet they will live at home, and be their own men; ſo moſt people are but the Lords retainers, this is no obedience at all, it is none of faiths obedience. 2. Works reſignation to God.

Thirdly, true obedience puts forth all a mans ſtrength to God, Thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and all thy ſoul, and all thy ſtrength, Praiſe the Lord O my ſoul, and all that is within me praiſe his Holy Name, Pſal. 103. True obedience lets forth all that is in a man to Chriſt, Mat. 4. 20 When Chriſt called Simon, and Andrew, they flung away their nets and followed him; it was all the living they had, and yet they flung away all to follow him; ſo when he ſpake to Matthew a Publican, ſaith came no ſooner into his ſoul but he followed him preſently, Mat. 9. 9 Though it was a rich office, he was a Knight by his place, as Cicero ſpeaks, it was worth five hundred pounds a yeare of our money, yet as ſoone as ever Chriſt called him, he left his place and went after Chriſt; ſo when a man will part with purſe and friends, and all he hath, and fling all at Gods foot, and give up all to him, this is true obedience, now if we have not this, we have not faithful obedience. 3. It puts forth all a mans ſtrength to God.

THE KILLING POVVER OF THE LAW.

Rom. 7. 9.

For I was once alive without the Law, but when the Commandment came, Sin revived, and I died.

IN theſe words the Apoſtle ſhewes Two things; Firſt, What a jolly man he thought himſelf to be whilſt he was a Phariſee, before the Lord wrought upon him by the Law: Secondly, What a miſerable wretched creature he ſaw himſelf to be when the Lord took him in hand, and diſcovered his ſins unto him: before the Law came home unto him, and convinced his Conſcience, he thought himſelf to be alive; but when the Commandment came, Sin revived, and he died. The Diviſion of the Text.

1. In the former we may obſerve Two things:

Firſt, The jolline ſs of the Apoſtle, he thought himſelf to be alive; I was alive without the Law, I was a Phariſee, and thought my ſelf to be alive; I faſted twice a week, and prayed every day, and made long Prayers each day: when he conſidered how he walked thus in all the Ordinances of God, he thought, if this was not to be alive, he knew not what it was to be alive; I was alive once without the Law.

Secondly, We have here the cauſe why he had this good conceit of himſelf, it was becauſe he was without the Law, the law of God had not convinced him, it had not diſcovered his miſerable and wretched eſtate unto him;

though he had some understanding in the literal sense of the Law, yet the Law was not yet come home unto him, he was as yet without the Law, and that was the reason of that good conceit he had of himself, he did esteem himself to be alive.

And then again in the latter part; When the Commandment came, Sin revived, but I died. There we may also observe Two things.

First, The Law shewed him what a wretched estate and condition he was in, for all his self-conceitedness, sin revived, and I died: Though I thought before I was alive, yet when the Commandment came, sin revived, and I died: I saw I was a dead man, when the Lord took me in hand to deal with me, and let me see how my case stood before him. Howsoever I thought my self to be in a good case before, now I saw I was but a dead man; I did not see such evil, and such a masse of corruption before; but when the Lord discovered my self unto my self, and when I saw the Spiritualnesse of the Law, then I saw that sin was alive in me, and I died; when I saw how I ought to behave my self in my affections, and in my inward man, then sin revived, and I for my part was a dead man, I was fain to come down from those high conceits, and imaginations I had before.

Secondly, We have here the Cause why he was thus brought down, it was because of the Commandment of God which came home unto him, the Law of God came home unto his Conscience, and discovered unto him, how it was with him, and it made him to shake in the apprehensions of his own estate, that he was but a dead man, and that he had gone to Hell, and perished everlastingly, if he had continued in that estate and condition.

I intend at this time to treat of the former part, Without the Law I was once alive: And here Two things must be opened: First, what doth the Apostle mean, by without the Law. Secondly, What doth he mean when he saith, I was once alive.

1. For the First, When the Apostle saith, he was without the Law, he doth not mean simply, that he did think himself without the Law, that is, without the binding Authority of the Law, for so no reasonable creature is, yea, indeed no creature at all is without the Law of God, for there is a Law of Obedience imposed upon all the Creatures, and the unreasonable Creatures do keep the Law that is imposed upon them by God, and howsoever reasonable Creatures depart from this Law and break it, yet they are under the binding power of this Law, therefore the Apostle doth not thus mean that he was without the Law, therefore we must know, that to be without the Law is taken Four wayes:

First, To be without the Law, is meant, to be without the promulgation and publishing of the Law, and so the Heathen only are said to be without the Law, as we may see, Rom. 2. 12. there the Heathen are said to be without the Law: that is, without the promulgation of the Law, it was published only to the Jewes upon Mount Sinai, and so Paul was not without the Law.

Secondly, It is taken in regard of the literal knowledge of the Law, and so ignorant people are said to be without the Law of God; they know not the Law of God; and in this sense Paul was not without the Law, he was trained up in the Law, he was learned in the Law, for he was brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, Acts 22. 3. so that he had the logical meaning of the Law, and was able to speak of the points of Religion, better then a thousand millions of carnal men, he had the literal knowledge of the Law.

Thirdly, It is taken in regard of the moral Obedience to the Law, and so wicked men are said to be without the Law, as we may see, 1 Tim. 1. 9.

The

The Law is not given to a Righteous man, but to the Lawless and DISOBEDIENT; wicked men are lawless, they live as if there were no Law; Drunkards and Prophane persons, as they are said to live without God in the world, so they are said to live without the Law, as if there were no Law to bind them; they are people that are not to be held within any compass, they take notice of no command to rule in their hearts, and actions their lives; and in this sense Paul was not without the Law neither, for he lived after the most strict and exact Sect of the Pharisees, Phil. 3. 4, 5. If any man think he hath whereof he may trust in the flesh, I much more, circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews, as touching the Law a Pharisee; He was one that fasted and curbed himself, yea, he kept two Fasts a week, (as those Pharisees did, that were of the better rank) he Prayed daily, and performed the duties of Religion, and there was no outward Ordinance of the Law which he performed not; he was one that was conformable to the letter of the Law, according as he understood the Law, he was Morally Obedient to the Law, he was no extortioner, nor unjust person; no, he did the works of the Law, and those things contained in the Law; nay, there was no body that could challenge him with any blame; none that were familiar with him, could say any thing to tax him withal, when he was in his ignorance, and blindness; therefore in this sense he was not without the Law.

Fourthly, Therefore in the Fourth place, we are said to be without the Law in regard of the spiritual sense of the Law, and so Paul was without the Law; he did not clearly understand the divine and spiritual sense of the law; he did not see the glory and the beauty of the Law of God, how it did discover all the breaches of Righteousness, how it reached to all the inward parts, how contrary the Law of God was to all his nature; thus Paul understood not the spiritual nature of the Law, he had not the spiritual understanding of the Law, and thus he was without the Law.

2. Now for the other words, I was alive once.

1. It is meant here spiritually towards God; he doth not mean naturally, for he was alive naturally, both before and after the commandment came; but the meaning is, he did not think himself to be such a wretched cursed creature as he was; he thought he had the fear of God in him, and true Obedience in him; he thought he had a spiritual kind of life, as we may see Rom. 6. 11. Ye are dead (saith the Apostle) to sin, but are alive to God in Jesus Christ. And, Rom. 7. 13. Give not your members as weapons unto sin, but give your selves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead. i. e. As those that have the pure and spiritual life of grace in them: So Luke 15. 24. This my son was dead, and is alive again; that is, spiritually alive again; he was a dead creature, he was departed from his Father, which is the fountain of life; he was dead in sins and trespasses, he was a dead man, but now he is alive again, he hath spiritual life again.

2. To be alive is taken to be conceitedly so, alive in his own conceit, he hath no true life in him, yet he doth imagine that he hath life in him, he thinks he hath life, and is dead, Rev. 3. 1. I know thy works, thou hast a name thou livest, but thou art dead: Here the Church of Sardis did imagine she was alive, and others conceived so; she seemed to be alive, and yet notwithstanding was dead, she had no true life in her: she seemed to be alive, not only in the sight of others, but in her own apprehension; she seemed to be alive, and yet was dead; now this is the meaning of the words, without the Law I was alive once; that is, I thought my self to be alive; I apprehended my self to be no dead man, no damned man; I thought not my self to be under the wrath of God, and one that should perish evermore, if

I continued in that estate wherein I was; I hoped better things of my self, I saw these signs of Grace and Life in me, and I thought I was alive indeed, till the Commandment came, till the Law of God was pressed upon my Conscience, and shewed me the contrary; I thought my self to be a very live man, and one that had some hope of eternal happiness, and one that might enter into glory, I took my self to be alive; Thus we see the meaning of the words.

Obser. Now the Point I intend at this time to insist upon, is the livelinesse of a carnal mans heart, before the Law comes home to him, and is pressed to him, and shews him his damnable estate, and that he is dead in his sins and trespasses, he hath some colour of Righteousnes, that he is moral and civil, and orderly, and he hath something that is like Grace and Life, he hath some hope towards God, and hath some kind of obedience, he seems to be obedient to the commandment of God; before he is humbled by the Law of God, he is a live creature. Here St. Paul shews it by his own example, Without the Law I was once alive; noting out unto us, how it is with every unhumbled man, with every unmortified man, that is not yet converted to God, he hath many things to say for himself, but he doth not understand the pureness of the Law, the Law hath not yet killed him, it hath not yet pulled him flat down before Almighty God; A man that is unhumbled by the Law of God is a live man, he will not be perswaded, that he is a dead, damned creature; he doth apprehend and hope he hath life: it is so with men, before their Conversion, they will not believe that they are damned creatures, and they think it uncharitableness in any to say they are damned creatures, and dead creatures, they will not believe it; so long as the Law is not charged upon their Consciences, so long as they see not how it is with them, they do verily apprehend that they have life in them, their hearts are not killed, their spirits are not dead within them, they are not pulled down in the apprehension of their own cursed estates before Almighty God: this is the thing I intend to insist upon.

2. For the Proof of the Point, we may see, 1 Tim. 5. 5. there the Apostle speaking of VVidows that lived in pleasure, saith, She that liveth in pleasure, is dead while she is alive; that is, dead in pleasure, dead in sin, dead in the vanity of her own heart, and yet such a VVidow liveth, she liveth not only a natural life, but she is alive in her own conceit in regard of a spiritual life; for if she conceived she were a dead creature, a damned creature, such thoughts would kill the heart of any creature under heaven, it would break the neck of all her pleasure, but in that she took her pleasure, it was a plain token that she was not killed.

Now for the Opening of the Point, I will do these Three things:

First, I will shew what this livelinesse is, and wherein it consists.

Secondly, I will shew what the Effects of it are.

Thirdly, The Uses.

First I will shew what this livelinesse is, and it consists in these Three things; I could branch them into Four, but I will reduce them into Three Heads.

1. First, It consists in the non-appearance of a mans dead, and damned estate: So long as a mans dead and damned estate doth not appear unto him, so long a man thinks he is alive, and that he is not a dead man, he is not a man that hath the sentence of condemnation lying upon him, so long as the Law hath not come, and shewed a man his wretched estate, and made his damnable estate appear in its own colours unto him, why he is alive man, he conceives himself to be alive because the Law of God hath not convinced vinced him of the contrary: if the Law of God doth ſeiſe upon a mans heart, and in its own colours appear to a mans eyes, and hold it ſelf as a glaſſe to a mans underſtanding, and ſhew him his wretchednesſe, and what a curſed eſtate he is in before God, this will kill his very heart, and break the livelineſſe that is in him, and make him burſt out into out-cries, Oh! I am a dead man, I am a damned man; ſo that the livelineſſe that is here ſpoken of, conſiſts in the non-appearance of a mans dead and damnable eſtate: As for example, an Adulterer, his damdable eſtate doth not appear to him, he knows not that he is a dead man, as Prov. 9. 18. He knows not that the dead are there, and that her gueſts are in the depth of hell: When he goes to lie with his Whore, and commit his wickedneſſe, he doth not think that they are dead and damned men that are there, nor that they are in the pit of Hell. Though his Conſcience may tell him, that he is wicked, and ſinful, and wretched, and that he is half dead; yet he is not a dead man, he is not abſolutely a dead man, he doth not know this: It may be he will confeſſe it, Lord, I am a dead man, Lord, I am a damned man; it may be he will confeſſe this in his Prayer, becauſe he hath ſome light: but yet his heart is not taken down, the livelineſſe of his heart is not killed. I will prove it to you: for let another man, a Miniſter of God, or a child of God, ſay he is a dead man, a damned man, one that lies under the wrath of God, he will deny it, and ſay he is uncharitable, and judgeth hardly, and why may he not be a live man, and a good Chriſtian? he hopes he is, he doth not know that he is a dead man; as the wiſe-man ſpeaks, Prov. 14. 12. There is a way that ſeemeth right to a man, but the iſſues thereof are death: that is, there is a way that ſeems to be a way of life, and a man ſeems to be alive that walks in that way; but the truth is, it is a way of death, and a man that goeth in that way is a dead man, and a damned man; but yet in the mean time, while he walks in that way, it ſeems to be a way of life unto him; there is a non-appearance of the deadneſſe, and damnedneſſe of a mans eſtate and condition that walks in that way, and therefore it ſeems to him to be a right way, and a way of life, and there is great hope in him that he ſhall live for evermore, and many men do walk in that way, and therefore it ſeems to him to be a right way, and a way of life; it ſeems right to a man, but the end thereof is death: And this is the Firſt thing, wherein this livelineſs conſiſts, The non-appearance of a mans dead and damned eſtate.

2. Secondly, It conſiſts in Performance; he is able, as he conceives, to do the duties that God commands; he hath wiſdom and ability at home to go about his Affairs; he hath underſtanding and ſupply at home; he hath life, and ſufficiency to go about theſe and theſe duties and performances; let the Law tell him, he muſt be ſober, he hath life to avoid the Ale-houſe, and if he commit a Drunken Act, he would have you think he hath grace to be ſorry for it; and let a man tell him, he is a dead man, he hath no grace in him, no life in him; he will tell you, he doth thus and thus, he hears Gods Word, and he Prayes to God, and he Truſts in God, and he Believes in God; your telling of him this, doth not kill his heart, he thinks he is alive for all this; nay, let the Law of God, come and tell him, He is a dead man for all his doing; this will not kill him neither, ſo long as the Lord himſelf doth not open his eyes, and clear his eye-ſight, and diſcover his ſins, and convince his Conſcience; though the Law ſay he is a dead man, and a damned man, this doth not kill him, he can wait upon God and perform theſe and theſe duties. Then let the Law of God ſay, He is a dead man for all this, he muſt deny himſelf: why ſo he will; I confeſſe, Lord, I am an unrighteous man, a wretched man, a ſinful creature, and all my righteouſneſſe is as menſtruous raggs; and now he thinks all is well, but the

Law

Law of God, hath not yet come home unto him, and ſhewed him his heavie eſtate, but he is alive in regard of the performance of the duty, and thinks verily he hath life at home in him; whereas, if the Law of God did come home and charge his eſtate upon him, and ſhew him, what obedience the Law requires, what ſeverity, and truth in the inward parts, it would break a mans heart, and kill him, notwithſtanding all performances: but in the mean time that a mans heart is not killed, and the Law hath not given him his deaths VVound, he thinks he is alive: Cry aloud, (ſaith God) lift up thy voice like a Trumpet, ſhew my people their Tranſgreſſions, and the houſe of Iſrael their ſins, Iſai. 58. 1. there the Lord looks upon the people as dead, wretched ſinners, and abominable people, but yet notwithſtanding they thought they were alive in performances, as we may ſee, verſ. 2. Yet they ſeek me daily, and delight to know my wayes, even as a Nation that did righteouſly, and had not forſaken the Statutes of their God: they aſk of me the Ordinances of Juſtice, they draw near to me, ſaying, We have faſted, and thou regardeſt it not. We ſee here they take delight in approaching unto God, they take delight in Gods Ordinances, and ſeek God early, they can do thus, and thus, and are alive in all performances; but that man whoſe ſpirit the Law hath pulled down, and the Lord hath convinced him of his infinite inability to perform the Law, he cannot ſee any livelineſs in him, unto any performance. Let any duty come, it kills his heart: I ſhould now hear the VVord of God, but my heart is unprepared, and my ear uncircumciſed, and I cannot hear aright. Let an opportunity be offered to Pray, it kills his heart; I ſhould now call upon the Name of the Lord, but I have ſuch a curſed heart I cannot Pray, I cannot ſpeak one right word before God. Let an occaſion be offered of holy Conference, it kills his heart, Alas, ſaith he, I want pure language, my tongue was never touched with a coal from the Altar, my lips have not ability to drop forth ſavoury ſpeeches, I am not able to ſpeak one ſyllable aright to Gods glory; it kills his heart, he ſees no life at all in him, unleſſe he can have life from without, and ability from without, he is dead, all is nothing to him, the law hath taken away the livelineſſe that was in him: But he that is not humbled by the Law, he is alive, he hath life in himſelf, it is nothing with him to Pray, and go to Church, and hear Gods Word, it is nothing, but thruſting to do the duty; he hath life in him to do duties, and wait upon God in his Ordinances, but when the Law comes home to him, it plainly lets him ſee that he hath no life in himſelf to do any good, he muſt ſeek for life and abilility from without, elſe he is a dead man, he can do nothing in this caſe: David in this caſe cannot look up: Mine iniquities are gone over my head, I cannot look up, Pſal. 40. Moſes, he is a man of uncircumciſed lips, and cannot ſpeak unto Pharaoh; Paul cannot do any thing that is good, In me dwelleth no good thing. Rom. 7. And ſo for the reſt of Gods people, when the Law hath killed them and laid them dead, in regard of any performance, they muſt have life from without, there is no life at home, no grace at home, no underſtanding at home, they muſt go out for all: but a carnal man, he is alive unto all performances. Many a man is like unſavoury Salt, good for nothing, but to throw upon the dunghil. He never received the Holy Ghoſt, and yet he will be inducted into a Living, and take a Paſtoral Charge upon him, as if he were able to perform the Duty of a Miniſter, and take the Charge of Souls upon him. So Ananias will be a Husband, and Sapphira a VVife; Athalia vvill be a Queen, and Nimrod a King; and Abimilech a Judge; they are alive to diſcharge all theſe Duties:

thus

thus men are alive, the Law of God hath not killed their hearts, and pulled down their ſpirits, it hath not made it appear unto them, what wretched, curſed Creatures they are. This is the Second thing, wherein this Livelineſs conſiſts.

Thirdly, This Livelineſſe conſiſts in a preſumptuous hope, he conceives that he is juſtified before God, and that God will not damn him, but forgive him his ſins. There is nothing can make a mans heart more full of life, than to think that he is righteous before God, and that God will not impute his ſins unto him: there is nothing can make a man more alive, then this. If they think they are juſtified before God, they have then a lively hope, 1 Pet. 1. 3. Bleſſed be God (ſaith the Apoſtle) even the Father of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again, to a lively hope, by the Reſurrection of Chriſt from the Dead. So theſe men have a hope, that makes them lively, and full of life; as a poor man that hath ſome grounded hope of an Earthly inheritance, it makes the heart lively: Poverty deads the heart; he that hath nothing to maintain himſelf, and thoſe that belongs unto him, it deads his heart; but if he hath ſome hopes of an hundred pound a year, and his hope is grounded, if he hath ſure hope of it, and he makes no doubt of it; it makes his heart full of life: ſo when a man doth believe that he is in a good caſe, that he is delivered from death, that he is in the eſtate of grace, when he hath ſome probability that God hath juſtified him from ſin; this breeds an hope in him of an eternal Inheritance, and this hope, the conſideration of it, makes the ſoul full of life; There is nothing can make a man more lively, then a hope that he is juſtified before God, and that God will not impute his ſins unto him. Now when a carnal man conceives he is righteous before God, and that God will forgive him his iniquities, that God will not damn him, nor count him a dead and a damned man; ſo long as a man doth imagine this, he muſt needs be a lively man; he is alive in his own apprehenſion; nay, all the delights in the world, cannot make a man ſo full of life, as this hope. It is not mens following their pleaſure, that makes their hearts ſo full of life; as to have hope that the Lord doth not account them dead men, that they are juſtified men, and righteous men, that they have ſalvation to ſhew for, Heaven and eternal happineſſe, to ſhew for, that they ſhall go to heaven. But if now the Law were charged upon a man, if he knew that he were a dead man, a damned man, it would pluck down his ſpirits, and make his ſpirits dead, for all his pleaſures. It is the conceit that men are Juſtified, that makes them ſo full of life; ſo long as the Law doth not come home to a man, and point him out in his colours, and make it appear to him, that he lyeth under the wrath of Almighty God, that the Lord doth account him an abominable, wretched Creature, ſo long as he doth not apprehend this; eſpecially if he have any good Gifts, and Parts, and Qualities, and Moral Obedience to the Law; doing good Duties, and a general laying hold upon the Promiſes, and a hope they belong to him; this makes him alive, Phil. 3. 9. Paul when he was a Phariſee. and did Moral Duties, and performed Moral Obedience to the Law of God, he thought he had Righteouſneſſe of his own; he calls it there, his own Righteouſneſſe, he ſo apprehended of himſelf: now this is that which makes men alive, when they conceive, that they have ſome Religion, and ſome Grace. You ſhall have many men and women that hate the Servants of God, and yet think they are godly men, and have Grace and Life in them. We may ſee it, Acts 13. 50. there it is ſaid that the Jews ſtirred up certain devout and honourable women, and raiſed Perſecution againſt Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their Coaſts;

Coasts: Though they hated Paul and Barnabas, yet they are said to be devout, and honourable women. They imagined they were very Devout, they conceived they were Religious; How many men and women are there, that think they are Righteous, and they will do many Duties, and take many good Courses; in so much, that it would pity a man to think they should go to hell? they will be very Zealous, they will be very Earnest against Drunkennesse, and cry out against the abominations of the times; they are marvellous Devout and Godly, and yet a man that is Devout and Godly in truth and in deed, they cannot abide him, but hate him. Now if the Law should come home unto them, and discover how indeed it is with them, it would humble their souls, and pull down their spirits, and make them dead, so that this presumptuous hope, that men are in good terms with God, and that God will be merciful to them, and forgive them their sins; this makes them to be alive.

2. We come now to the Second thing, and that is the Effect of this Livelinesse, what Effects it works in the heart; And the Effects of this Livelinesse are Four.

1. First, It makes them sound and heart-whole, like a Boyl unlaunced, it is yet sound. The true sight of sin, and wrath of God in the soul, is able to break the heart of any man, it is able to dead his spirit, and kill all the Livelinesse that is in him, and make him have little life to go on as he doth. But so long as the Law of God is not come home to a man, though he have no Title to Heaven, though Hell be the Portion of his Cup, yet he is as sound as can be, as heart-whole as may be: Let carnal comfort come, he can take it, let pleasures come, he is able to delight himself therewith, and go on in his course as if he ailed nothing. Prov. 18. 14. the Wise man saith, The spirit of a man will sustain his infirmities, but a wounded spirit, who can bear? When the Lord comes to wound a mans heart with the sight of his sins, and the fearful condition he is in, what a cursed creature he is, having no Mercy, and being out of Christ, having no Pardon, no Grace, no Holinesse, but lyeth under the Curse of God: If the Law thus come home, and wounds his Conscience, he is not able to bear it; this man, let carnal Comforts come, he is not able to take them, it kills the heart. Look as it is with the Stomack, if it can take meat, and digest it, it must needs be alive; for if the Stomack be dead, it can digest nothing. So for the Taste, If a mans Palat, and all the instruments of the taste be dead, he takes no delight in any meats: So there is a kind of soundnesse in the Soul, that is the reason why a man can delight in carnal pleasures, in Drinking, and Sporting, and in Profit and Gain. There is a kind of soundnesse, and livelinesse in the Heart, the heart is not yet broken: If the Law come, and take the Hearts life away, this will pull down the Heart, it will make a mans heart even break, it will pull down his spirit: But a man whom the Law hath not yet humbled, and shewed him his damned estate, his heart is yet whole, and sound. When the Law of God had but a little killed Ahabs heart, you might see it in his very gate, he went softly, he could not tread so confidently upon the ground, as he was wont to do; it tamed his very steps, it is wonderful how his heart was broken, it appeared in his very going up and down. When the Law comes home to a man, it is able to kill his heart, and makes him Soul-sick, and makes him cry out, O the wretchednesse of my heart; it makes a man sick at the heart, it lyes like a heavie Plague upon the heart and conscience, it will make a man at deaths door with his sins; it will make him say with Paul, when the Commandment came, sin revived, and I died. But another man, though he hath evident demonstration that he is a dead man, yet the Law of God hath not pulled down his heart; heart; ſickneſſe will pull down a mans Stomack: ſo when the law of God comes home to a mans conſcience, and makes him ſick, it makes him yield, and pulls down his ſtomack. Many men are crazy, and ſickly, and yet they lye not by it, but walk up and down, and go abroad, but if they were heart-ſick, it would pull them down, and make them lye by it. So many a carnall man, may have ſome qualms of ſin, but yet their hearts can go abroad after profits, and pleaſures, after vanities, and delights, they can go abroad for all this. But when the law comes home, it will pull down a mans ſpirit, and make him heart-ſick. This is the meaning of that place, The whole need not a Phyſician, but the ſick. Mat. 9. 12. Every carnal man, ſo long as he is not humbled, and broken under the ſight of his ſins, his heart is yet whole, his ſpirit is yet ſound, he is not yet wounded; as the Prophet Iſaiah ſpeaks, Iſa. 1. 6. From the crown of the head, to the ſole of the foot, there is nothing, but wounds, and ſwellings, and ſores full of corruption; there is no ſoundneſſe in him. He is indeed full of wounds, but the skin is yet ſound, it is not broken, he feels it not; the law hath not yet diſcovered his eſtate unto him. This is the firſt effect of this livelyneſſe, it makes men to be ſound, and heart-whole.

2. The Second effect of this livelyneſſe, when a man is alive in the non-appearance of his dead and damned eſtate; alive in performance, alive in preſumption, and ſelf-juſtifying, and ſelf-hopes. The effect of it is, that he is fearleſſe; the more lively, the more fearleſſe. Firſt, the Object muſt dead the heart, before it can make the heart fear; ſo long as the heart is ſtout, the livelyneſſe that is in the heart, is able to keep out fear: So the livelyneſſe of a ſinner, makes the heart fearleſſe and ſecure. A man would wonder how any creature durſt provoke God, it is almoſt beyond the reach of true reaſon, how any creature ſhould dare to provoke God, to conſider what infinite danger he is in, to have the wrath of the God of heaven and earth to hang over his head, to be under the hand of revenging Juſtice, to pull down all the Woes, and Plagues, and Comminations of God upon the Soul, that a man ſhould do this, and yet be ſecure, it would make a man wonder at it. But a man that hath this livelyneſſe, he can provoke God, and yet be ſecure, as Jeb 12. 6. thoſe that provoke God are ſecure, the reaſon is, the law of God hath not taken down their hearts, the law of God hath not deaded their ſpirits; they are alive in preſumption and imagination, and therefore though they provoke God, they are ſecure, and fear nothing. It is the diſquietneſſe of a mans heart, that makes him fear; therefore ſo long as a mans mind is quiet, and is not diſturbed, he is fearleſſe: So long as the law hath not diſquieted a mans mind, nor broken the reſt of a mans Soul, nor diſturbed his conſcience, but tells him, go on in quiet, he ſpends his dayes in ſecurity, he fears nothing, whereas, fearfulneſſe, and trembling, and horrible dread, would overwhelm him, if the law of God ſhould come and take away his life: It is fear that deads a mans heart, as we may ſee, Mat. 28. 4. when the Angel of the Lord rolled away the ſtone from Chriſts Sepulchre, it is ſaid, For fear of the Angel, the Keepers trembled, and became as dead men: There is the effect of fear; if the law did but open mens eyes, and paint out before them, how it is with them, how they are liable to Gods wrath, and under the ſentence of condemnation: If they were once thus feared, it would make them ſeem as dead men: the Drunkards would be ſo afraid, that they would become as dead men: All wretched men, all ungrounded Chriſtians, all that are not truly alive towards God, it would make them become as dead men, and it is the deadneſſe of the heart that makes men fear, and ſuch a man cannot be ſecure. Careleſſeneſſe and fear, are two contraries, as Ezek. 30. 9.

In that day shall Messengers go forth from me in Ships, to make the careless Ethiopian afraid, and great pain shall come upon them; The Prophet there makes these two contraries; they shall be full of fear, to rouze them out of security; so the cause why men are careless to get Repentance careless to get deliverance from sin, careless of their walking with God, the reason is, because of this damnable livelinesse that is in their hearts, they are not yet deaded by the Law.

3. Thirdly, Another effect of this livelinesse is this, it makes the heart stiff, what a deal of stiffnesse is in the hearts of carnal men? Let God forbid sinne, they are stiff, and will still continue in their sins, as the Prophet speaks, the heart of this people is mixed stiff, their hearts are marvellous stiffe; the reason of it is, because the Law of God hath not taken away their livelynesse, it hath not humbled their hearts and pull'd down their spirits: whereas if the Law had past upon them, and the consideration of their estate were rooted in their minds, it would make their stoutnesse to yeild, and their stiffenesse to come down; infinite is the stiffenesse of a man for want of this work of the law: Tell a vain gallant of his locks, how stiffly will he reason for it? Tell a prophane person of the lewdnesse of his course, how stiffly will he argue for it? This is for want of this killing work of the law.

4. Fourthly, The last effect of this livelinesse is this, it makes the heart peark, and brisk; what a deal of briskenesse, and pearkenesse do we see every day in the hearts of men, because their hearts are not taken down? I will give you two or three Instances; If a man have a little knowledge more then others, he is proud, and brisk, and peark, and he will be some-body, he will be talking, and thinks he hath such a deal of knowledge: what is the reason of this, that he is so peark? It is because the Law hath not made it known unto him, that he knows nothing as he ought to know. 1 Cor. 8. 2. There saith the Apostle, If a man think he knows any thing, he knows nothing as he ought to know. If the law of God did shew him he were a beast, and a brute for all his understanding, if it did discover unto him, his blockishnesse, and blindnesse, and ignorance, that he knows nothing of the Mysteries of Grace and Salvation, this would pull down his pearkenesse; take another man, that hath more knowledge, and can speak better a thousand times, if the law hath shewed him his estate, and truly humbled him, all his briskenesse is taken away, the law hath taught him such a lesson, that he cannot be peark: Oh! saith he, I know nothing, there is no man more foolish then I, I have not the knowledge of the most High in me; though he have never so much knowledge, and gifts, and parts, yet the law hath discovered his estate unto him, and pulled down the pearkenesse of his spirit. Again, another man is ready to carp at every word, every little occasion will make him on the top of the house, his heart is so brisk, that it is up upon every little occasion, but when the law comes home unto him, this will pull down all his pearkness; alas, he angry at a word speaking? The law hath told him how he hath offended God, and provoked his Spirit from time to time, he is now cooled from being so peark, to be angry at every word. So take a man that is full of pleasure and voluptuousnesse, and is ready to be vain and foolish, every pleasure puts life into him; but now let the law come, and be charged upon his conscience, and then all his pearkenesse is presently down, he is not able to look up, he seeth so many sins discovered by the law, that he is not able to look up: Jam. 5. 1. Go to now ye rich men (saith the Apostle) weep and howl for the misery that shall come upon you. If the law were charged upon rich men, it would make them weep and howle; rich men are fullest of pleasure and delight, and farthest from weeping and howling; but if the Law were charged upon their consciences, it would make them weep and howle, and have little heart to be so pleasant.

and

I come now to the Uses; and the First Use is for Instruction, to shew us the reason, why there are so many men and women among us, that think themselves alive, that are so secure, and fearlesse, and careleſſe, that have their hearts so sound, and their spirits so unbroken; the reason is, because the Law hath not yet come home, and killed their hearts, 2 Cor. 3. 6. The very letter of the Law is able to kill as many of us as are in this estate and condition; therefore the cause of this liveliness, and security, is because we are strangers from the Law of God, our eyes were never open to behold it, the Law of God never came home unto our hearts. Use. 1.

The Second Use is this, When we find our hearts to be brisk and peark, let us pray unto God that he would be pleased to charge his Law upon our Consciences: Let us buy precious eye-salve, that we may be able to look into the Law of God, this will make our hearts that they will not be so wanton, and our spirits, that they will not be so brisk; though they would never so fain mind earthly things, they cannot. If the Lord would be pleased but to charge his Law upon the heart, it would make the stoutest spirit to yield. Use. 2.

Thirdly, This takes away the imputation that is laid upon the Word of God; many think hardly of the Word of God, it takes away the spirits of men: the Preaching of the Law, it pulls down the spirits of men, and breaks mens hearts, it makes men have no spirits, as they said of Jeremy, thou makeſt the knees feeble: so the Law infeebles the knees, and takes away the spirits of a man; why here we see that the Law of God will do so, it is the Property of the Law to do so, whereſoever it comes, it kills the heart, and pulls down all the pearkneſſe of it. The Law, it will ever break a mans bones, as David speaks, Let me hear of joy and gladneſſe, that the bones which thou haſt broken may rejoyce, Psal. 51. The Lord had broken his very backbone by the Law, and now he could not rejoyce, Isai. 57. 15. I the Lord dwell with him that is of an humble and contrite ſpirit, to revive the ſpirit of the humble: When the Law of God hath broken a mans heart, and made him contrite, he is a dead man, till the Lord comes to revive him, and raiſe up his spirit. Use. 3.

I come now to the Second part of the Text, When the Commandment came, ſin revived, and I died. The latter part of the Text Opened.

Here also, as in the former part, are Two things to be expounded:

First, What doth the Apoſtle here mean by reviving? When the Commandment came, ſin revived.

Secondly, What doth he mean by dying, I died?

When the Law and Commandment came, and discovered me to my self, and shewed me what a damnable thing sin was, and what a wretched dead creature I was for committing the same, and how I lay under the guilt thereof, ſin revived, and I died. Therefore, What doth the Apoſtle mean by sin revived? I Answer, The Apoſtle doth not mean here, as if sin were indeed dead in him, before the Commandment came: for sin is alive in every carnal mans heart, before the Commandment comes, and therefore he cannot mean thus, when the Commandment came, ſin revived, as if it were truly, and really dead before; for his sins were not dead in him, when he was a Phariſee, his sins were not mortified, when he was in his unregenerat d eſtate and condition sin was not dead in him, that cannot be the meaning, as if sin were dead before, and now revived: But he speaks of the Appearance of the death of sin, though it were not dead before, yet it did appear to be dead; as a Snake in cold weather, though it be alive, yet it appears to be dead, the life of it is in a swound; though it hath life, yet the cold benums it, and keeps it from appearing: So before the commandment came, sin was in Paul, but it seemed to have no life but when the commandment came, and discovered plainly, what a dead creature he was, then the life of sin came indeed to be manifested.

Now the Law of God doth manifest the life of sin Three wayes, it manifests Three lifes of Sin: There are three lifes of sin, that appear to the soul, when the Law comes.

First, There is the life of Aggravation; the Law of God doth aggravate and point out sin to the full life of it, it makes sin appear in the true nature of it: the true nature of every thing is the life of the thing; the nature of a man is the life of a man: Now the Law did shew him the nature of his sins, it painted them out to the very life, in their lively colours, this made him see how his sins were aggravated: what a cursed and damned thing sin was, and what a person it was committed against; this made sin appear unto him in the very life of it; therefore in the 13. verse of this Chapter, the Apostle saith, Sin, that it might appear sin, wrought death in me, that sin might become sinful by the commandment: that is, when the commandment comes, and is manifested to the soul, it makes the life of sin appear, the life of sin is then manifested, the Law of God like a glasse, doth shew the life of the Commandment, and the very nature of all sinning, and transgressing. Now before the Law came thus home unto him, he could not thus see sin, he could say, he was a sinner, addicted, committed these, and these sins: But what these sins were, and the exceeding sinfulnesse of these sins, he did not see that. He had a dead kind of picture of his sins before, but the life thereof was not manifested: but the Law of God did make his sin revive, and made him see his sins in the life of them.

Secondly, There is the life of Irritation, as I may so call it, or of itching, and egging a man. This is another life of sin, whereby it is full of Operation, and Working in the Soul. The Operation of a thing, is the life of a thing. Now before the Commandment came, sin seemed dead, it wrought indeed many evils in him, but he did not think his heart had been so full of life, and so full of activity against Gods Law and commandments. Sin seemed to lye dead before, but now when the Commandment came, and set upon his heart, and began to charge him with better Obedience, now his heart grew itching, and marvellous full of life unto lust. Hereupon sin egged him the more on to lust. It is like water, when a man goes about to stop it, it runs the more violently. So it is with sin in the heart, the more the Law of God goes about to stop it, and hinder it, the more eager it is, and the more full of life and working, as the Apostle speaks, vers. 8. without the Law, sin was dead: there was no such working of sin in my mortal body then: but when the Commandment came, when the Law was charged upon my heart, then sin took occasion hereby to be the more violent, and wrought in me all manner of Concupiscence: before I committed sin without any check, I had vain thoughts, and foolish counsels, and many a lust in my soul, and I went to it as if it had been a good thing, not as if it had been evil: But when the Law of God came to shew me the sinfulnesse of my Obedience, and to controle me, and convince me, and to stop the course of sin, it wrought all manner of Concupiscence in me, it wrought before in Paul, for it wrought all his security, and all his hardnesse of heart, and all his vain thoughts and imaginations: but this was but a dead kind of working, in comparison of that which it wrought after the commandment came. There are none that have such active Rebellions against the Law and Commandment of God, as those to whom the Law comes; it eggs a man forward, and makes him itch unto Rebellion. If a man had asked Paul before, whether he had such a divelish heart against God? he saw no such matter, he never meant God any hurt when he went on in his course, he thought not that he was so stubborn and Rebellious, he did not feel this stubbornesse and rebellion: But when the Law came once, it shewed him the venome, and cursed nature of his sins.

which

3. The Third life of sin is the worst of all, and that is, the life of Imputation: for here sin is so full of life, that it is not only able to discover unto him, that he is a sinful wretch, and an abominable creature, but to bind him over to wrath and send him to Hell, and everlasting destruction. Now it is the Law of God that discovers this life of sin: before the Law comes, a man hath many vain hopes, that God is mercifull, and Christ died for sinners, and that God will forgive him his sins: he doth not see the imputation of sin: the imputation of sin lying upon the Soul is not clearly discovered, before the Law come; for where there is no Law, there is no imputation of sin, Rom. 5. 13. there saith the Apostle, Unto the time of the Law was sin in the world; but sin is not imputed, while there is no Law. Before the Law is charged upon the heart, the heart never dreams of the imputation of sin, as if he should answer for sin, and be damned for sin for ever: He thought the contrary before, but now the Law discovers the life of sin unto him, and sin revives, and appears to have life to damn him for evermore. Sin now appears to have life to cast him off from God, and to bind him over to Everlasting vengeance. Thus it was with Paul, When the Commandment came, sin revived: I saw sin was alive indeed, and I saw the life of Aggravation, I saw the hellish nature of sin, it was painted out to the full; I saw the life of Irritation, I saw the infinite egging, and itching of sin, how it did work in me; I saw the life of imputation, how all my sins were imputed unto me, and did all lye upon my conscience, and so sin revived, that is the meaning.

Now for the meaning of the Second word, I dyed; that is, I saw I was a dead man; I saw plainly, and clearly, that I was but a dead man; I thought I was alive before, because I did good duties, and walked in the Ordinances of God; and I thought that I might go for a Christian, and Servant of God, as well as another. I did not think I was a dead man, I thought I had some goodnesse in me, some hope of eternal life in me; I did not conclude that I was a dead man. But when the Law of God humbled me, and discovered my estate plainly unto me, then I saw I was a dead man indeed, my heart failed me, and the livelynes that was in me before, departed from me. I saw I was a dead man, and had not the Spirit of Christ come and quickned me, I had been a dead man to all eternity; I now saw that sin began to revive in me, and I began to be a dead man. Thus we see the meaning of the words.

Now the Theame I propounded to you was this, namely, how the Lord converts the will; and the first work that prepares a man hereunto, is the work of pulling down the will, and the pulling down of a mans heart, for the will of a man is full of obstinacy, full of livelinesse against the truth and commandment of God, full of livelinesse in sin, and conceives it self to be in a better estate and condition, and so the will is obstinate still. Now when it pleaseth God to convert a man, first he pulls down the will of a man, and pulls down his spirit, now here is a Doctrine to make way for this.

Namely,

Obſer. Namely, That when the Lord takes a man in hand to pull him down, to pull down his will, he doth ſhew him what a dead Creature he is. The Lord by pronouncing a man in his own Boſom, a dead man, a damned man, one that can no way help himſelf, he is dead, abſolutely dead in his own eſtate, and in Gods account, all his hopes are rotten, he is meerly a dead, damned man: hereby the Lord pulls down his Will. We may ſee this in Paul, before his Converſion; his Will was full of Obſtinacy and Rebellion againſt God, he would go and make havock of the Church, he would not ſubmit to the Will of God; but when the Lord came to work upon him, Saul, Saul, Why perſecuteſt thou me? It is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks: What wilt thou that I ſhall do Lord, ſaith he, Act. 9. 6? Now his Will is come down: but mark how the Lord puts him off; Go to ſuch a place (ſaith he) and there it ſhall be told thee what thou ſhalt do. The Lord puts him off, and would not give him an Anſwer preſently, what he ſhould do; as who ſhould ſay, Thou haſt as yet an obſtinate Will, thou wilt not do as I command thee: I will not tell thee as yet, what I will have thee to do, but go to ſuch a place, and I will Arreſt thee there, and charge my Law upon thy Conſcience, and ſhew thee thy dead, and damned eſtate. And now his Will is come down; he bids him be Baptized, and he was ſo; he bids him go and Preach the Goſpel, and he did ſo; now his Will is come down.

So the Prodigal, his Heart was marvellous Obſtinate againſt his Fathers commandment; he would be gone from his Father, he could not abide to ſtay in a houſe where there were ſuch ſtrict courſes, he would have his Goods and Patrimony in his own hand, (as it is the Property of every carnal man) he would have his Inheritance in his own hand; he would have Power, and Strength, and Ability, and theſe Gifts, and Parts, in his own hand: but when he is humbled by the Law, he is content to have all in Gods hand, he is content to have all his VViſdom there, that he may come thither for it; he is content to have all his Righteouſneſſe there, and all his Ability, Strength, and Sufficiency there, that he may come thither for it; all is there, and he ſees himſelf a beggar, if he comes not to God, and keeps cloſe to God, and keeps faſt to his Covenant, he is a very beggar. But this man would have all in his own hands, and go and ſquander away all upon his Luſts and Pleaſures, and he would not ſtay at home with his Father. Now when the Law of God came home to him, to ſhew this man to himſelf, when he came to himſelf, as the Text ſaith (his Father did eſteem him a dead man before,) but when he came to himſelf, and ſaw he was a dead man for going away from his Father, the Father of Life: Novv his VVill is come dovvn, I will go to my Father, and ſay, Father, I have ſinned againſt Heaven, and againſt thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy Son; make me as one of thy hired ſervants, Luke 15. 17. Here his VVill is come dovvn; he vvould be gone from his Father before, he could not abide to be held in ſo ſtrictly, he vvould fain be gone, and be at liberty; he had no mind to ſtay in his Fathers houſe: But vvhen he came to himſelf, vvhen the Lavv ſhevved him, he vvas but a dead man, for going from his Father; and going after his Luſts and Pleaſures; novv his VVill is brought dovvn, and it ſubmits, and yields; and novv he vvill go to his Father, and humble himſelf before his Father, and ſay, Father, I have ſinned againſt heaven, and againſt thee, &c. Novv I deſire here to ſhevv you Three things, as I did in the former Point.

Firſt, VVherein this deadneſſe conſiſts.

Secondly, VVhat be the effects of this deadneſſe, and how it pulls down the heart. And.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, The Uſes we are to make of it.

1. For the Firſt, Wherein this deadneſſe conſiſts: and it conſiſts in Three things.

Firſt, In deadneſſe in being.

Secondly, In deadneſſe in Gods account.

Thirdly, In deadneſſe to all doing.

1. Firſt, It conſiſts in deadneſſe in being. When the law comes, it ſhews a man indeed to be a dead man, 2 Cor. 3. 6. the Letter killeth, ſaith the Apoſtle: the very letter of the law, without the Spirit of life, which Chriſt doth inform it with, when he comes to work upon his children; The letter alone, without the Spirit of God, kills a man: now when a man is killed, he is a dead man; he is then fully dead, he hath the very being of a dead man, he is a dead man; that is his Eſtate and Condition. So when the law of God comes home to a man, it ſhews him indeed that he is a dead man. The property of the law, when it is let in to work upon the heart, is to ſlay a man, I have ſlain them by the words of my mouth, Hoſ. 6. 5. The law which proceeds from Gods mouth, is able to ſlay a poor ſinner, and kill him at the heart, and lay him for dead before Almighty God, that he can ſtrive no more; the reaſon is, becauſe the law doth charge the truth of God upon a man. Now the truth is, that every ſinner is a dead man, this is the very truth of it, Rom. 8. 6. To be carnally-minded is death: That man is a dead man, there is the very death of ſinne, and hell, and condemnation in that man, that is a carnal-minded man. Now the law of God when it comes, doth charge this Truth upon the Soul, it diſcovers a man to be in this eſtate and condition, wherein in truth he is.

2. Secondly, It conſiſts in deadneſſe in Gods account. For all a mans preſumptions, for all a mans vain hopes that he is juſtified, for this is the nature of man, before he is convinced by the law of God, to juſtifie himſelf, (you are they that juſtifie your ſelves,) not that he is indeed juſtified; but he falſely applies juſtification to himſelf, and he hopes he is juſtified before God, he is apt to pronounce this hope unto himſelf. Let a Miniſter tell him of his ſins, here is his Salve, God is merciful, and Chriſt came to ſave ſinners. Let Sermons beat upon him from day to day, to humble him, he cannot imagine that he is in a damnable eſtate: Preachers are too harſh, and cenſorious, and the like. But when the Law comes, it ſhuts up a man that he cannot get out, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Gal. 3. 22. The Law hath concluded all under ſin: that is the nature of the word of God, to ſhut up a man, that a man is not able to get out: before the law is charged, the heart hath a thouſand ſtarting-holes. Denounce hell, and damnation againſt it, it hath this ſtarting-hole, that Chriſt dyed for ſinners: diſcover plainly that he is a dead man, he hath theſe ſtarting-holes, he hopes he ſhall have peace, and he hopes he is not ſo vile before Almighty God, and he hopes he hath better righteouſneſſe then you would bear him down with; and ſo he hath an evaſion to get out: but when the law comes, and ſhuts him up, this will tame him. As we uſe to tame Lions, and Bears, and ſuch like fierce and cruel creatures, by ſhutting of them up, ſo the Lord tames the heart of a poor creature, when he would pull him down, he ſhuts him up, and layes him in the priſon, and in the Gaole, and he hath no way to get out, he is a dead man, and there is no way to get out, no evaſion to eſcape, but ſtill he is a dead man, and a damned man, he cannot open his mouth any more, Ezek. 16. 63. That thou mayeſt remember, and be confounded, and never open thy mouth any more, when I am pacified towards thee, for all Luke 16.

that

that thou haſt done, ſaith the Lord God. The law indeed works thus in the Regenerate, though the Lord be pacified towards them, yet they ſhall never open their mouths, never cavil againſt Gods precepts more, never be ſo brisk any more. But ſo long as a man is in his ſins, the law doth not only convince him that he is dead in himſelf, but that he is alſo dead towards God; that God accounts him a dead man, that God is not pacified towards him, but he lies under the wrath of God, and this puts him down, and ſtops his mouth. A carnal mans mouth will not be ſtopped, but he will have ſome thing to ſay, ſome vain hope, or confidence, or other, ſome pleading, or excuſing or other. His mouth will never be ſtopped, till the law of God comes; and when that comes, that will ſtop his mouth, and make it appear, that he is guilty before God, Rom. 3. 19. the Apoſtle ſaith, Now we know, that whatſoever the Law ſaith, it ſaith to them that are under the Law, that every mouth might be ſtopped, and all the world may be culpable before God. But before the law comes, a mans mouth will not be ſtopped. Gen. 20. 3. God came to Abimilech by night, and ſaid, Thou art but a dead man, becauſe of the woman which thou haſt taken, for ſhe is a mans Wife: He was a dead man, but he little thought it; he would not believe that he was a dead man: As the Text there ſpeaks of temporal death. So it is true of the other, carnal men are indeed dead men, but they will not believe that they are dead men, and damned men; they hope for mercy, and cry, peace, peace to their ſouls; but when the law comes, that knocks off all mens hopes, and layes them for dead in Gods account.

3. Thirdly, This deadneſſe I here ſpeak of, it conſiſts in regard of all manner of doing; when the law of God hath charged it ſelf upon the conſcience, and diſcovered to a man, that he is a dead, and a damned man. It makes it now appear unto him, that he is utterly unable to do any thing; he is in the depth of miſery, and he is unable to cry mercy aright, he is not able to make a prayer, no more then a dead man: he ſeeth he can no more keep a Sabbath as he ought, than a dead man. So for any duty of Religion, he ſeeth he hath no more life to do it, then a dead man hath to do the actions of the living: as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Gal. 2. 19. I am dead to the Law, that I might live unto God. God made Saint Paul alive unto him, but firſt he charged his law upon his conſcience, and made him ſeem to be a dead man to the law: That he had no life or activity to do any thing pleaſing to God: but when the Lord made him alive to himſelf, then he could do ſomething; nay, he was able to do all things, through the Lord Jeſus Chriſt that ſtrengthned him. But in himſelf, both ſtill, and before, he was altogether dead to the law of God; ſo that when the law comes, and ſhews a mans eſtate unto him, it ſhews him his utter inability to the performance of any good duty. The Phariſee will to the Temple as well as the Publican; Saul will Sacrifice as well as Samuel; Prophane people will take up the Ordinances of God, as if they had life to go through them, as well as the people of God. But when the law comes, it plainly convinceth a man; it makes him feel and underſtand, that he hath no activity, or life to perform any thing pleaſing to Almighty God; a dead man can do nothing, he is cut off from all the actions of the living; dead men they cannot deviſe ought, they cannot purpoſe ought, they cannot work ought. So when the Law of God is charged upon a man, and ſhews him that he is but a dead man, and a damned man, now he ſeeth, he can as well create a world, as make a prayer, he can as well remove a Mountain, as do any thing acceptable to God. Such a man will ſay, I am a dry tree, and cannot grow, I am loſt in the wilwilderneſſe of ſin, and cannot get out again. Thus we ſee wherein this deadneſſe conſiſts.

2. Now I come to ſhew you the Effects if this deadneſſe, how it pulls down the heart: this will pull down the heart of a man marvellouſly, when the Law chargeth this upon him, that he is but a dead man; though the will of man be infinitely unruly, it is wild, it is like the mad man in the Goſpel, that the Divel was in, no man was able to bind him, no Chains were able to hold him, no Creature could tame him, Mark. 5. 34. So it is with the will of an unregenerate man, his will is marvellous wild, he breaks all bonds, and ſnaps all cords in pieces, and caſts off the yoak from him. Let God bid him do this, he will not do it; let him be in a good mood, he is preſently out of it again; let him be convinced of his vain hopes, and let him ſee what a wretched Creature he is, he will have vain hopes again; his will is infinitely unruly, and deſperately wild, the very Divel in hell hath the rule of it; it is full of life againſt God and his Commandments; and will never yield while the world ſtands, till now the Lord comes with his Law, and ſhews a man, that he is a dead man, and a damned man, and ſhews him that he is under the wrath of God; the Law is able to do this, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Rom. 4. 15. The Law cauſeth wrath, It makes a man appear to lye under the wrath of God, under Gods everlaſting diſpleaſure, and in the mouth of hell and damnation; and if God be not merciful to him, and more merciful then to a world of men, he ſeeth he is a dead man, utterly loſt, and undone for ever; now this will make his ſpirit yield, and make his heart begin to come in; as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks concerning Princes, He ſhall cut off the ſpirits of Princes, he is terrible to the Kings of the earth, Pſal. 76. 12. Kings and Princes have ſtout ſpirits; now when the Lord ſends but a little terrour into their hearts, he is able to ſnib their ſpirits, for all their ſecurity, and for all the height of their magnanimity; he is able to cut off all; by ſending his terrour into their hearts, ſo the Law ſends terrour into the heart. Can there be a greater terrour then to have the Law denounce a man to be a dead man? and that the wrath of God is gone out againſt him? and that he lyeth in the very mouth of all the Canons of the fury of the moſt High? This will break the heart of a man, if his heart were made of braſſe, this would break it. Look as it was with the Moabites, 2 Sam. 8. 2. They were ſtout againſt David, and would not yield and ſubmit unto him; but when David ſmote them, and meaſured them with a cord, and caſt them down to the ground; when he meaſured them with two cords to put them to death; and with one full cord to keep them alive; then ſaith the Text, the Moabites became Davids ſervants, and brought him gifts. So it is with a prophane creature, whileſt God lets him go on, he is ſtout, and will not ſerve God, but his will is altogether croſſe, and contrary to Gods will and Commandments; he will not take up thoſe courſes that God commands, he will not ſubmit himſelf to the preciſeneſſe of the Goſpel, his will is infinitely croſſe in this kind, and marvellous obſtinate. But if the Lord takes him in hand, and charges his Law upon his conſcience, he puts ſuch terrours into his heart, that he is willing to ſubmit unto God upon any terms. I confeſſe the Law cannot do this of it ſelf; it cannot thus bring down the will of a man, and mortifie a mans ſins: For if the damned in hell were let looſe again, to live here upon earth, they would forget all their former Plagues, and Torments, and ſin would revive again in them. The Law of it ſelf, can only lay ſinne in a ſwound, it will up again if it be looſe: the law cannot do this of it ſelf; but I ſpeak now of the Law, as it is Gods Inſtrument. Hereby he pulls down the heart of a man, and pulls down his Spirit; labour will pull down any mans ſpirit: when a man is in labour, and pain, and affliction, it will make a mans ſtomack come down; as we may ſee, Pſal. 107. 11, 12. Becauſe they rebelled, againſt the words of the Lord, therefore he humbled their heart with labour and heavineſs; then they fell down, and there was no helper: Before they were ſtout againſt the Lord, and would not hearken unto him, and obey his Commandments; now the Lord brought down their heart. But how did he bring them down? he pulled them down by laying labours upon them; labour, and ſorrow, and heavineſſe pulled down their hearts. So when the Law makes the heart labour under the wrath of God, it lies labouring, and quaking, and making, and weltring, and bleeding under the wrath of God; this pulls down the will. And now I come to ſpeak of the Effects it works, in doing of it.

1. The Firſt Effect is this, It caſts the heart into thoſe woful privations ver. 12. of, there are abundance of comfortable things, which the man which is alive in his own conceit, thinks himſelf to have. Now when the Law comes to deaden him, it knocks him off from all thoſe comfortable things he ſeemed to have; whereas he ſeemed to have ſome admittance to God in prayer, he could pray to him before, but now he ſees he is an out-caſt, and dares not lift up his eyes to heaven: Before he hoped that God would have mercy on him, and that he had ſome intereſt in Chriſt, and hope of ſalvation; but now he ſeeth he is loſt: Before he ſeemed to have liberty, and freedom; he could do this, and that, and had a thouſand evaſions; but now he ſeeth himſelf a meer captive: before he thought he had ſome riches, ſome goodneſſe; but now he ſeeth he is but a poor begger: before he had ſome Fig-leaves to cover him, but now he ſeeth he is altogether naked: before he was heart-whole, and ſound, he had peace, and comfort, and quietneſſe within him, but now he is altogether broken. This is the effect of this deadneſſe, it brings all theſe privations into the ſoul; death is a privation it ſelf, and it brings an hundred privations with it; even a privation of all the priviledges of the living: this the Law doth when it comes. All this while the Soul is loſt, and captived, and poor, and blind, and miſerable, and naked, and an out-caſt; it is utterly undone, and altogether unable to help it ſelf; and this as it doth make a man an Object of the Goſpel, one for whom Chriſt dyed, as it points out ſuch a man; ſo there is a Finger of the Goſpel in it alſo, when the ſoul underſtands the goodneſſe of the Goſpel, and ſees it ſelf to be loſt for want thereof; yet notwithſtanding the firſt ſtroke is given by the Law, the firſt ſtroke that caſts the Soul into this privation is done by the Law, and if the Lord means to convert, there the Goſpel begins, Luk. 4. 18. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath annointed me, that I ſhould preach the Goſpel to the poor; he hath ſent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the Captives, and recovering of ſight to the blind, that I ſhould ſet at liberty them that are bruiſed. When the Law hath humbled a man, and thus brought down his will, then begins the work of the Goſpel. As we uſe to ſay of Natural Philoſophy; where Natural Philoſophy ends, there Phyſick begins; So where the Law ends, the Goſpel begins. Thus we ſee the firſt Effect of this deadneſſe.

2. Secondly, When the Law hath done this, when the deadneſſe the Law hath wrought, hath produced this Effect; then the next Effect is this, the Law holds the heart there: when a man is dead, the effect of death is to hold a man there. There is no redreſſe, no return, without the Almighty power of God: there is no return to his former life. So when the Law hath deaded a man, it holds a man there, though a man would never never ſo fain get out, he cannot; he will be ſnatching at a Chriſt, and looking at the promiſes, and be preſuming that there is mercy for him; he would fain be brisk again. But if the Law hath killed him, and made him a dead man, he cannot get out. Rom. 7. 6. the Apoſtle ſaith, We are delivered from the Law, being dead unto that wherein we were holden. St. Paul could not get out to his livelyneſſe again, but the Law held him. So it is with the Law, when the Law of God hath humbled a man, and made him a dead man, it holds him there; let the Divel come with all the comforts he can, there is no evaſion; let his vain neighbors bring what Scriptures they can to cheer him, there is nothing can lift that ſoul up: let all profits and pleaſures come, they cannot take off his heart, they cannot make him alive again, unleſſe it pleaſe the Lord to quicken and revive him.

2. The next Effect of this deadneſſe is, that it makes the heart ſtiff: when the body is dead, all the members are ſtiff, the beatings of the pulſes ceaſe, and all are ſtiff. So when a man is killed by the Law, it makes his head ſtiff, it breaks off all his arguing, and reaſoning, and diſputing againſt the Law of God; That is againſt my profit, and that is againſt my pleaſure, and that is againſt my credit; thus the heart is full of life and activity before. But when the Law comes, and ſhews him he is a dead man: now he is not able to ſtir, now he can ſay, what if it be againſt my profit, and pleaſure? what if it be againſt my credit? what if men make a mock at me? I am a dead man if I live not in this courſe. Pſal. 36. 12. There ſaith the Text, They are fallen that work iniquity, they are caſt down and ſhall not be able to riſe. So when the Law of God comes, and preacheth righteouſneſſe to a man, and ſhews him againſt whom he hath ſinned, it makes him a dead man, he cannot ſtir any more; if the Divel bids him reaſon for his luſts, he dares not do it; if his old company perſwade him to his former life and converſation, he dares not do it. Iſai. 41. 21. Stand to your cauſe ſaith the Lord, bring forth your ſtrong reaſons, ſaith the God of Jacob. You could be reaſoning, and pleading for your luſts, let us now hear your ſtrong reaſons, and arguments. Now this man is a dead man, and a damned man; he hath no reaſon, no plea to alledge, to go on in his former courſe, this man is killed now.

4. Fourthly, This deadneſſe makes the heart yield; before the Law comes, the heart is marvellous obſtinate, but now when the ſtiffneſſe of it is gone, and the Law hath made him a dead man, now he will yield, 2 Chron. 30. 8. As Hezekiah ſpeaks; Be not now ſtiff-necked as your fathers, but give the hand to the Lord, and come into his Sanctuary. So when the Lord hath broken the neck of a mans ſtiffneſſe, and hath broken his back-bone, that he cannot ſtand ſtiffly out, and hath taken away his livelyneſſe, which was his whale-bone as it were, to uphold him in his ſtrength, and courage, and in his ſins Now his heart is made to yield to God, he cannot now but yield to the Lord. Thus it is with a poor creature, when the law works upon him, he cannot ſtand out any longer: It is moſt true, before the Lord converts a man, he doth take away his ſtiffneſſe, and make a man a dead man. But you will ſay, when a man is dead, all his joynts are ſtiff, his body is cold, and grows ſtiff; but when a man is alive, his joynts are lithe and lively. I Anſwer, It is true, the law of God cannot take away a mans natural ſtiffneſſe, but his voluntary ſtiffneſs is taken away. The voluntary ſtiffneſſe is taken away when he is dead; when a man was alive, he could ſhut his hand, and hold it ſo; he could ſtretch out his arm, and hold it ſo: but when a man is dead, he cannot do ſo. So it is in this caſe, although the ſtiffneſſe of nature remain ſtill, yet the voluntary ſtiffneſſe is taken away; the will and heart of a man is out of life; It cannot be ſtiff towards God. I confeſſe, the Lord doth not take away all ſtiffneſſe, no not out of his Saints; but he takes ſo much ſtiffneſſe out of the heart, as to make it a patient, he ſhall not be voluntarily ſtiff, he ſhall not be overcomingly reſiſting. Divines uſe to ſay, that in the firſt converſion of a ſinner, he is meerly a Patient; firſt the Lord makes him a patient, and then converts him, Jer. 31. 19. After I was converted, I repented, after I was inſtructed, I ſmote upon the thigh, &c. firſt God made him a patient, and inſtructed him, and afterwards converted him.

The Uſe of the Points is this, Is it ſo that the law of God doth make a man a dead man? Then here we may obſerve the wonderful power of the law; a man hath ſo much livelineſſe in him, ſo much life and activity, and ſo many ſtrong conceits, that it is wonderful hard to make him dead; therefore the word of God is mighty. It is ſaid of Apollo, that he did mightily convince the Jewes, Act. 18. 28. for he was mighty in the Scriptures; there had need be might in the Scriptures to do this. What ſtrong reaſons had they in regard of fleſh and blood, that Jeſus was not the Chriſt? What, he the Chriſt that was born in a manger, and hath none but a beggerly company to his kindred? Are not his brethren and kinſfolk with us? None but the tag-rag and refuſe of the Country follow him. What, he that had no form or beauty in him, the Saviour of the world? The Word of God was marvellous powerfull, that could convince them of this; ſo a man that goeth on in his ſinful eſtate and condition, it is a marvellous hard thing to convince him that he is a dead man: he hears the Word conſtantly, and goes on in his Calling diligently, and he hopes that Chriſt died for him, he is afraid of ſin, and his heart trembles to commit ſin, and he is ſorry for his ſins, he is thus, and thus: he that hath ſo many things to plead for himſelfe, what, he a dead man? It is impoſſible. Therefore if the law of God be able to convince a man, and make a man a dead man that is ſo full of life, the law muſt needs be mighty that can do this: to dead this man, and kill this man, is a mighty work. So that we may ſay, as the Pſalmiſt ſaith of the Sea and the Mountains, Pſal. 114. 5, 6. What ayled thee, O Sea, that thou fleddeſt? O Jordan, why wert thou turned back? Ye Mountains, why leaped ye as Rams, and ye Hills as Lambs? So I may ſay, What ayleth this poor man that he is now driven from his former courſes, and like the Sea, out of his own Channel? what ayls thoſe Mountains of luſts and corruptions, that were ſettled upon his ſoule, as a Mountain upon his Baſe; what ayle theſe to move, and ſtir, and fall away? What ayls the man that was ſo full of life before, that at one Sermon he is killed? What ayls the man? he came briſk and peark into the Church, and who but he? He was immoveable from his ſinful luſts, and corruptions, and he had this Plea, and that confidence, and was full of life, but by one hours diſcourſe (which it may be another heard as well as he, and went away as briſk as before, but) this mans ſpirit is deaded, and his heart taken down; what ayls the man now? why the law of God hath done it: See therefore the marvellous power of the law.

I told you formerly, That when the Law comes home to a mans ſoule, and is charged upon his Conſcience, it caſts the heart into all thoſe woful privations we read of in Scripture; a man before he is thus deaded by the law, thinks himſelfe to be poſſeſſed of abundance of comforts, but now he ſeeth himſelfe to be an out-caſt, and utterly loſt, to be a captive, and poor, and miſerable, and blind, and naked, he lies under all theſe privations:

And

And as the Philoſopher ſaith, That Privation is one of the Principles of Nature: Every body (ſaith he) hath Three Principles, Matter, Form, and Privation: No natural thing can have this or that Form put into it, but it muſt be deprived of all other Forms, as if fire be turned into air; firſt the form of fire muſt be taken away, before it can be turned into air, ſo it is in Grace, Privation is one of the Principles of Religion; before the life of Chriſt can be brought into a man, there muſt firſt be a Privation of all other contrary lives: the life of the fleſh, that curſed livelineſſe of the fleſh, the life of ſin, and the life of the world, whereby a man lives unto the world, and the things of the world. A man muſt be deprived of all other lives, of all other forms, he muſt have a Privation of all other forms, before the life of Chriſt can be formed in him. As for example, Take a man that is worldly wiſe put him upon civil Affairs, he is wiſe enough to order all his buſineſſe; in eating and drinking, he is wiſe enough not to diſtemper himſelf, wiſe enough to keep a good diet: Put him upon matters of Religion, he is wiſe there too, he will not be ſo preciſe as ſome are, that are more nice then wiſe; he will be moderate, and wiſe in the ſervice of God Tell him, that he is one that doth not pleaſe God, that he walks to hell-ward, that he hath no care of his Salvation; he thinks that he is wiſer then ſo. Would you make this man a wiſe man indeed? you can never make him truly a wiſe man, till you bring a Privation upon him, till he be firſt deprived of all that worldly wiſdom that is in him; If any man among you ſeem to be wiſe (ſaith the Apoſtle) let him become a fool that he may be wiſe. 1 Cor. 3. 18 Let him have firſt a Privation of all the ſeeming wiſdom he hath, of all the wiſdom of the fleſh and carnal reaſon, he muſt firſt be a fool, or elſe true wiſdom is not able to enter into him: So if a man would be high, he muſt firſt be humbled, and brought low, before he can be truly high; a man muſt be naked, before he can be cloathed; a man muſt be loſt, before he can be found; there are none of you that live in your ſins, but you muſt be ſtripped of all the forms that are in you; there muſt be a Privation come into you, before true Grace can be formed in you. Privation is one of the Principles of Religion, and unleſſe you be deprived of all other forms, you cannot have the eſſential form of Religion come into you; it is the poor that receive the Goſpel: when a man is deprived of all other forms, then is he fit to receive the forme of the Goſpel. When a man is deprived of his own wiſdom, he may then receive the wiſdom of the Goſpel; when a man is deprived of his own ſelf-confidence, of his own ſtrength, and ſufficiency, then he may receive the ſtrength of the Goſpel; when a man is deprived of all other contrary livelineſſe, and contrary forms that are oppoſite to all theſe, when a man is deprived of all theſe, he is capable of the true life of Chriſt, and the Goſpel. I will Inſtance onely in one thing which I named before, and that is poverty; a man can never receive Chriſt, or any impreſſion of the true form of Chriſtianity, till firſt his Heart be emptied, and his Will and his Mind be emptied and his Conſcience be emptied, till all other forms be voided out, and he begins to be made poor and nothing in himſelf, till every room in the ſoule be naked, and empty, there is never a room for the kingdome of God to come into the ſoule, the kingdom of God is a great thing, and will take up a great deal of room where it comes, therefore the Heart, and the Mind, and the Will, and the Affections muſt be emptied: the ſoul muſt be rid and void of all other things, or elſe there is no room for the Kingdom of God. As our Saviour ſaith Matth. 5. 3. Bleſſed are the poor in ſpirit, for theirs ſhall be the Kingdome of God: Then there is room for the Kingdom of God, when the heart is made poor, and all is voided out, the world, and the fleſh, fleſh, and all ctanal delights, and pleaſures, and all ſelf-conceitedneſſe, which the heart was full of. When it was full of the world, there was no room for Gods Kingdome; but when a man is made poor in ſpirit, when he hath a Privation of thoſe things wherewith his ſoule was filled; now there is room for the Kingdom of God; the reaſon is, becauſe a man can never be brought to Chriſt, till he is pinched with theſe Privations; before he can never come to Chriſt, his heart can never be brought to bid ſo much, and ſtake down ſo much for Chriſt, as he muſt do, if ever he come to attain him; unleſſe his heart be pinched with poverty, unleſſe his heart be void of all theſe high imaginations he had of himſelf, he will never come to Chriſt. It is plenty that brings down the market, and ſcarcity that makes it riſe: plentiful years, will make Corn of no price almoſt; but if there be famine, and ſcarcity, and no bread almoſt to be had, but men are ready to dye for hunger, then they wil give any thing, they will give ten ſhillings a buſhel, twenty, nay fourty ſhillings hath been given for a buſhel of Corn, as I have read in Chronicles; it is poverty that makes men come to a price. So muſt the heart be pinched with Spiritual poverty, elſe it will not come to Chriſt; men will give nothing for the Kingdom of God, they will not part with a ſingle groat for Chriſt; the prophane Gallant will not part with a look for Chriſt; the proud vain fool, will not part with a fooliſh lace, a fooliſh faſhion for Chriſt; the drunkard will not foregoe a pot for Chriſt, men will not part with any thing for Chriſt; they will not part with a paultry luſt, or baſe affection for Chriſt; People will not ſtir, they will not open their purſes, they will not open their hearts to give any thing for Chriſt; the reaſon is, their hearts are full already. People count their profits, and pleaſures, and luſts, and vanities, and delights, their Jewels, a man muſt be poor, before he will part with his Jewels; but if a man be throughly pinched with poverty, he will part with his old Gold, and Rings, and Jewels, and all; but he will never part with his Jewels, till he be forced to it by extremity. So all the luſts of the heart, all the things of the world, that the mind and affections run upon, men account them their Jewels, and they will not part with them, till they be pinched with poverty. Thus it was with the Jaylor, Acts 16. 30. when he was pinched with this poverty, he cryes out, Men and brethren, what ſhall I do to be ſaved? when his heart was pinched with this poverty, he was content to part with any thing, he was willing to do any thing, to hearken to any terms that he might have mercy: So that it is neceſſary for a man to have all theſe Privations wrought in his heart, and be made poor, elſe he will never take Chriſt upon thoſe terms whereupon he is offered.

Secondly, Suppoſe a man ſhould conceive worth to be in Chriſt; ſuppoſe he ſhould put a great price upon him, yet if a man be not under theſe Privations, if he be not pinched with poverty, with Spiritual need and want; he will never uſe all means for the attaining of the Kingdom of God. He will never betake himſelf to all thoſe courſes that God hath commanded himſelfe to be ſought in. It was need that made Ahab ſend up and down all Countries, and Soiles for water; it was need that made the rich Women of Shunem to hazard her life, and her family, and houſhold in a forraign Country; ſhe would not have gone a mile of that Jonrney, but for her poverty, as Divines uſe to ſpeak. Let two men go to the market, the one hath need, the other hath not; he that hath need will go whatſoever the weather be, though the weather be never ſo foul, he will go; bread he wants, and bread he muſt have, and bread he will have; and if he cannot have it at an eaſie rate, he will part with any thing; thing; he will pawn his very cloaths from his back for it. Why? Because he, and his Wife, and his Children want it. But the other he will go according as he likes the weather, if the weather be anſwerable to his mind, it may be he will go, and it may be not; and when he is there, it may be he will buy, and it may be not, according as the price goeth, becauſe he hath no need of it. So it is in Grace, let two men be called upon to ſeek out for Grace, one doth not feel any great need, he is not pinched with the want of Faith, and Repentance, and Pardon, and Peace of Conſcience: though he want theſe, yet he is not pinched with the want, his heart is yet full, he is not yet come to this Spiritual poverty. It may be he will come to a Sermon, it may be not; it may be he will part with a Luſt, and it may be not; it is according as the bargain pleaſeth him, he will never uſe all means, nor take up all courſes that are preſcribed: But a man that is ready to ſtarve for want of Chriſt, as Siſera ſaid, Give me drink or elſe I periſh; ſo, give me Chriſt or elſe I periſh: This man will take any courſe, uſe any means, he muſt have Chriſt, and will have him; when he comes to the Word, Chriſt he wants, and Chriſt he will have, and muſt have; all Sermons, and all hearing, are but as Oile to the fire, they do but pinch his Soul ſo much the more, till Chriſt comes, he muſt have Chriſt in his Ordinances, becauſe he is ſenſible of his Spiritual poverty. So that it is he which is loſt that will be found, it is he which is a captive that will be freed, it is he that is blind that muſt have his ſight, and it is he that is naked that muſt be cloathed; he that lies under theſe woful Privations, he muſt have the form, he looks after it, he cannot be without it. Thus we ſee that Privation is neceſſary for Religion, the true life of Religion can never come into a man, till he be layed under all theſe woful Privations we read of in Scripture.

But now here is a Queſtion which will ariſe, which thoſe that are godly would be glad to have reſolved, and that is this: Whether theſe Privations that the Apoſtle here ſpeaks of, makes a man the formal Object of mercy? Saint Paul was alive once before the Law came, but when the Law came, and was charged upon his Conſcience, it deprived him of his livelyneſſe, and made him a dead man; I dyed ſaith he. Now the Queſtion is this, Whether is ſuch a man the formal Object of mercy? When the Law hath deprived a man of his conceited riches, and made him a poor man, and hath proclaimed him a bank-rupt, and a begger, and made him a captive, that he is not able to ſtir one foot, he is not able ſo much as to think a good thought, but he lyeth under wrath, and is not able to get out: Whether is ſuch a man the formal Object of mercy? I mean, whether is he ſuch a one, as the Goſpel hath promiſed deliverance unto? When a man by the Law is made a dead Creature, and is altogether deprived of life and health, he hath no life actually, and there is no life actually to be had for him, (for ſo the law leaves him without any hope of getting any life.) Whether is this man the formal Object of mercy? whether is he ſuch a one as the Goſpel doth make promiſe to of quickning, and enriching, and gathering, and finding, and ſaving, and comforting, and the like? whether is this man the formal Object of mercy? Every man is the Object of mercy, but whether hath this man got thoſe properties that belong to the actual Object of mercy? Queſt.

The reaſon why I propound this Queſtion, is this, Becauſe the Scripture ſeems to make ſuch a one the formal Object of mercy, ſuch a one as mercy is promiſed to, ſuch a one as the Goſpel looks upon, as the proper and actuactual Object of mercy; for the Goſpel is ſaid to quicken the dead, and to give them life; it is the Letter that killeth, and the Spirit that giveth life, 2 Cor. 3. 6. It giveth life to him that was before a dead man, to him that was killed by the letter. So for poverty; Luk. 4. 18. To the poor the Goſpel is preached, the Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath anointed me to preach the Goſpel to the poor, he hath ſent me that I ſhould heal the broken hearted, and preach deliverance to the Captives, and recovering of ſight to the blind: So that when the Law hath made a man a poor man, and hath ſtripped him of all his conceited riches, and hath made him a begger, it ſeems that Chriſt is anointed to preach mercy to ſuch a one; it ſeems that ſuch a one is the formal Object of the Goſpel. See Pſal. 147. 2. He gathers the out-caſts of Iſrael: when the Law hath made a man an out-caſt, it ſeems he is the formal Object of mercy: The Goſpel undertakes to gather ſuch people ſo far loſt. The Son of man is come to ſave that which is loſt, Mat. 18. 11. he is come for that purpoſe, it is his Commiſſion, he is ſent to ſave that which is loſt; when the Law hath made a man to be a loſt man, that he ſeeth he is utterly undone without mercy; Chriſt is come to ſave ſuch people, and to look upon them as the formal Object of mercy.

So for death it ſelf, when a man is made dead by the Law; The houre ſhall come ſaith our Saviour, and now is, that the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that do hear it ſhall live, Joh. 5. 25. It ſeems that the Scripture makes ſuch as are made dead by the Law; and poor, and blind, and naked, and wretched, and miſerable, by reaſon of the Law being preſſed upon them, and pulling them down with terrour and conviction; it ſeems ſuch a one is the formal Object of mercy, ſuch a one to whom mercy is promiſed. I do not mean that he is the formal Object of the invitations of the Goſpel, that is moſt certain, there is no queſtion of that, Come unto me all ye that are weary, and heavy laden, and you ſhall find reſt to your ſouls. Come unto me, all you that are poor, and blind, and naked, and dead, and I will give you life; have you a hard heart, that you cannot free your ſelves from, come unto me, and I will free you from it? have you no power to repent and believe? come unto me, and take mercy upon my terms, and believe in me; whatſoever weakneſſe is in you, I will ſtrengthen you; whatever diſcomforts and wants lye upon you, I will relieve and chear you. This is certain, the more a man ſeeth himſelf a dead man, the more he is the formal Object of the invitation of the Goſpel. But the Queſtion is, Whether he is the formal Object of the promiſes of the Goſpel?

Anſw. I Anſwer, No; There is a great deal of difference between legal Privations, and theſe Privations as they are Evangelical, as the Goſpel makes them before it quickens a man: there is a great deal of difference between a man that is dead, and poor, and blind, and naked, and miſerable by reaſon of the Law; and a man that hath theſe privations wrought in him by the power of the Goſpel: when a man is made dead by the Law, and ſees himſelf a loſt creature by reaſon that the Law plainly ſhews him his eſtate and condition, this man may be a Reprobate for all this, and go to hell; there is no promiſe in the Word that God will quicken him, and raiſe him up, Chriſt is free from any promiſe in this kind, he may quicken him if he will, and not quicken him if he pleaſe. I may ſay in this ſenſe, as Chriſt himſelf ſaith, Joh. 5, The Son of man quickens whom he will; He is free to quicken whom he will, though a man be made a dead man by the Law, and cry out he is a dead man, and a damned man, though he hath the works of the Law, and be terrified, and gaſtered, and humbled by the Law,

yet

yet Chriſt is free from any promiſe he hath made to theſe people; there is never a Promiſe in all the Word, that Chriſt hath bound himſelf by to theſe people to quicken them: they cannot ſay there is ſuch a Promiſe in the Word that Chriſt ſhall quicken them. There are plain places in the Scripture, wherein the Lord invites ſuch people, upon condition they will come and believe, and ſubmit to the Goſpel; there is a conditional invitation upon theſe terms: But that theſe People ſhall be quickned, and ſhall have eternal Life given them, there in no ſuch Promiſe; the Lord is free, the Lord hath not bound himſelf to it; but when a man is dead according as the Goſpel makes a man dead before it quickens him, and when a man is poor according as the Goſpel makes him poor, and when a man is blind according as the Goſpel makes him blind, now a man is within the compaſſe of Gods Promiſes, he is one that is the formal Object of Mercy, he is one that ſhall have Mercy, and ſhall have Salvation, and Redemption by Jeſus Chriſt; theſe dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and ſhall live; the tongue of theſe ſtammerers ſhall ſpeak plain, the eyes of theſe blind ſhall ſee, theſe out-caſts ſhall be gathered, theſe naked ſhall be cloathed, theſe loſt ſhall be found, theſe poor ſhall be enriched; when a man is dead, ſo as the Goſpel deads a man, before it quickens a man (for the Lord damns a man before he ſaves a man, and kills a man before he quickens him) like a good Surgeon, that cuts before he cures; or like a good Phyſician, that kills a man almoſt with Phyſick, ſo the Lord doth bring a man to deaths door before he quickens him; it is the Goſpel that truly humbles him, and works theſe Privations; and now he is within the compaſſe of the Promiſe: now he hath a Promiſe that he ſhall be quickned, and have ſupply in regard of all theſe Privations; but ſo long as theſe Privations are only legal, he hath no Promiſe that he ſhall be quickned, for many are humbled and made dead as it were by the Law, and yet ſhake it off again, and go to their profits, and pleaſures, and delights, and hardneſſe of heart again; many a man hath been gaſtered by the Law, and cryed out of his damned eſtate and condition, and yet hath got up again, and recovered himſelf by the world and the things of the world; and it was ever ſo of old, as we may ſee in Cain, the Law had diſcovered him to himſelf to be a dead man, and a damned man: I ſee my ſins are greater then can be forgiven, or are forgiven, or ſhall be forgiven: he ſaw his puniſhment was intolerable, his condemnation was more then he was able to bear; From thy preſence am I caſt out, and a Vagabond ſhall I be upon the face of the earth, Gen. 4. 14. Yet he was not the formal Object of Mercy; the Goſpel did not quicken him, nor convert him: he was not the formal Object of Mercy, for he ſhook off theſe terrours again, as we may ſee in the very ſame Chapter, and went to building of Cities, and inventing of Muſick, and other Arts and Sciences; and this quickned, and revived him again: but he never came to true Life. So it is with many men, though they be terrified, and gaſtered, and humbled, and caſt down by the Law, yet they get up again, and run after the world, and after ſecurity, and hardneſſe of heart again; ſo that ſuch a man is not the formal Object of Mercy.

2. Again, We ſee many, though they be wrought upon thus by the Law, and their Eyes be enlightned, and their Conſciences awaked, and they ſee that they are in a wretched and damned eſtate; yet they ſcrape together a company of vain hopes, and ſo heal themſelves again. When they have been terrified by the Law, they ſeek preſently for Promiſes, and how they may get up again, and they would fain get up; and they lye at catch at every Sermon, and at every Chapter, and at every Word which a good man ſpeaks, and if they can get any hold, they catch at it; and ſo get up again and go on: And when they have got a little comfort, and think they ſhall do well, they are as careleſſe, and as ſtubborn, and as ſecure as ever they were; they may go on in the profeſſion of Religion, but yet their latter end is worſe than their beginning: The unclean Divel may be caſt out, but the Devil transforms himſelf into an angel of light, and enters into them, and they go on in doing good duties, but they never have the power of Religion.

Again Thirdly, Many that are humbled by the Law, they run away, and never come to Chriſt, as Judas when he ſaw he was condemned, he went and hanged himſelf, Matth. 27. 3, 5. Some expound it of Chriſt, when he ſaw Chriſt was condemned; but others expound it of himſelf, when Judas ſaw himſelf was condemned, and that ſeems to be the meaning of the place; for Chriſt was not condemned, nor ſo much as accuſed; there came not any witneſſe againſt him, till Judas had hanged himſelf, as we may ſee if we read that Chapter. But whether that be the meaning or no, this is true and certain, he ſaw he was a dead man, he ſaw he lay under the guilt of his ſins, and he deſpaired of Mercy, and went and hanged himſelf.

Again Laſtly, If ſuch a man were the Object of Mercy, then all the damned in Hell were the formal Objects of Mercy; for there is never a man in Hell, but the Law hath its work to the uttermoſt upon him; it can work a man no lower, it can ſink a man no deeper, it can make a man no more miſerable, then thoſe that are in Hell. Now if a dead man by the Law ſhould be the formal Object of mercy, then the damned in Hell ſhould be the formal Object of mercy, which cannot be; for from thence there is no Redemption, Go ye curſed into everlaſting fire, prepared for the Divel and his angels, Matth. 25. there is no quenching of that fire. So that we ſee, the legal killing of the Law, doth not make a man the formal Object of mercy. But yet ſuch a man hath a great deal of advantage, he is before a world of other men, that live ſecure; if men were in this eſtate, they were in a thouſand times more likelyhood to be ſaved. If I could hear of people that were gaſtered, and caſt down by the Law; that ſaw themſelves without Chriſt, and without Mercy, in the power of Satan, and in the bond of iniquity; if they cryed out, I am a dead man, and a damned man, if I dye now at this preſent I ſhall go to Hell, if People were in this eſtate and condition, there were more hopes of them a thouſand times: there is no hope of people that do live ſecure in their ſins; ſo long as the Trumpet of the Law hath not ſounded in their ears, ſo long as the Hammer of the Law hath not ſounded upon their hearts, there is no hope of mercy for them. Therefore now for the clearing of this a little more, let me ſhew you, Firſt, What it is to be dead, according as the Goſpel makes a man to be a dead man.

Secondly, What is the difference between Legal Privation, and Evangelical; and when theſe Privations are Evangelical, and put a man under the actual title to Mercy, under an actual intereſt in the Promiſes.

Thirdly, VVhat Uſe we are to make of it.

For the Firſt, VVhat it is to be Evangelically dead: To be Legally dead, is not to be half a quarter ſo much dead, as to be Evangelically dead, ſo as the Goſpel makes a man dead before it quickens him. VVhen a man is Evangelically dead, it makes him more dead by a thouſand degrees, then all the Law in the world can make him, it makes him more dead by odds; when a man is Legally dead, and ſees himſelf to be a damned creature, and whereas he hoped to have mercy, he ſeeth now he hath none; and whereas he hoped to go to Heaven, he now ſeeth the Gates are ſhut againſt him; and whereas he hoped he had ſome good in him, now he ſees he hath nothing in him: a man would think this were a dead man, but his livelineſſe is only in a ſwound, the Law lying upon him, will not let his livelineſſe appear, and if the Law ſhould lye upon him for ever, it would never let his livelineſſe actually appear; but yet he is not throughly dead all this while: as for example.

to

1. Self-conceitedneſſe, it is not deaded when a man is killed by the Law: you would think his conceitedneſſe were gone: he was conceited he was a good Chriſtian; but now he ſees no ſuch matter: he was conceited before, that he would repent, and God would be merciful to him, but now he ſeeth, he is utterly deprived of mercy, and lies under the wrath of God: you would think now that all his conceitedneſs was gone; but it is but only in a ſwound all this while, he lies for dead as it were, but he is not dead. So take a man that is in Hell, all his good conceits of mercy, and of himſelf, and his profits, and pleaſures, and vanities, and delights, they are all gone now. What doth Pride profit me? What good do Riches do me? What have all my Pleaſures and Delights done me good? All my labour is vanity, and all my delights folly; one would think all his conceits were clean gone; but they are only in a ſwound. If a damned man were out of Hell, if the Lord ſhould take off the laſh of his Law from him, he would have as good a conceit of his Profits, and Pleaſures, and Riches again, as ever he had; and he would have his carnal Reaſons againſt the ſtrictneſſe of Religion again, as rife as ever he had; they are only laid in a ſwound, indeed there they ſhall lie: a man can never get up again, becauſe the Law lies continually upon him, he is continually under the laſh of the Law; and the Law holds this picture before his eyes, and ſhews him his damned eſtate and condition: but upon ſuch a ſuppoſition, that he might come out of Hell, his conceits would riſe up again. Prov. 5. 12, 13. Solomon there brings in a man wrought upon by the Law, the Law diſcovered him to be a dead man. How have I hated inſtruction, and deſpiſed correction; and have not obeyed the voice of them that taught me, nor inclined my eare to them that inſtructed me? His carnal Reaſons are now all gone, they are in a ſwound; they were true Inſtructions that I have hated, they were true Reports that I have deſpiſed, and they were baſe and damned Courſes which I have followed. How have I lived? One would think all his fooliſh conceits now were gone: they are in a ſwound indeed, and cannot get up. But the Goſpel will give a man his deaths wound; a man can never have that good conceit of himſelf he had before; nor of his luſts, and vanities, and profits, and delights; his ſelf-conceitedneſſe hath now got his deaths wound.

Secondly, For ſelf-confidence, when the Law hath humbled a man, his ſelf-confidence is only in a ſwound; when he ſeeth in Hell under the laſh of the Law, he ſeemeth to have no power in himſelf, no life, or activity to any duty. He ſees that he is poor, and weak, and rotten, and wretched. A poor creature he is, he ſeeth it plainly, and all his ſelf-confidence ſeems to be gone, but yet there is a great deal of ſelf-confidence actually in Hell, for though they are in Hell, yet they think if they were alive again, what they would do; I would hear the Word, and call upon God, I would repent, and not live in ſin, and not do as I have done; they think they would do thus, and thus, as it was with Dives, Luke 16. 30. I have five brethren (ſaith he) if one ſhould come to them from the dead, they would repent, and not come where I am. If they knew but as much as I know, they would repent, I am ſure if they were in my caſe, they would, if they were in hell where I am, if they knew how certain it is, that they ſhall come to hell where I am when they die, unleſſe they do repent at the preaching of the Prophets, and hearken to the voice of Gods Miniſters, and yield and ſubmit to God, they would do it, I would, if it were my caſe. This is ſelf-confidence, for ſelf-confidence is only laid aſleep in Hell, and it cannot riſe again. It is true, the Law may dead a man, and give him three deaths wounds. There are Three Wounds that the Law gives a man.

Firſt, It makes it appear that a man is worthy of death, the Law makes him ſee his guiltineſſe.

Secondly, The Law pronounceth upon a ſinner the ſentence of death, as Paul ſaith of a natural death, I received the ſentence of death, 2 Cor. 1. 9. that is, I was a dead man, I took my ſelf to be a dead man. So the Law doth make a man to be a dead man, it pronounceth the ſentence of death upon him; it doth not only make it appear that he is worthy of death, (for ſo it may do, and yet he may have hope of mercy) but it makes a man receive the ſentence of death, and to be a dead man: If a man be once condemned, if the ſentence of death be paſſed upon him, then he is without hope that the Judge will ſave him, becauſe the ſentence of condemnation is paſſed upon him. A man may ſee himſelf worthy of death, and yet hope for mercy, Rom. 1. 31. Therefore the Law doth pronounce the ſentence of death upon him, and makes a man in a ſecond degree dead.

Nay, Thirdly, The law makes a man ſee there is no hope of return; as it is with a dead man, when a man is truly dead, there is no return from death, there is no riſing again; as the Wiſe-man ſpeaks of the ſtrange women, Prov. 2. 18, 19. Surely her houſe tendeth to death, and her paths unto the dead, they that go unto her return not again, neither take they hold of the wayes of life. Here the Wiſe-man ſets forth the infinite miſery, and damnable eſtate of ſuch a creature, and the irrecoverableneſs of ſuch a perſon, without the extraordinary mercy of God. Ordinarily, ſuch perſons are ſeldom, or never brought to repentance: ordinarily they are irrecoverable. So the Law makes a man ſee he is guilty of death, and it paſſeth the ſentence of condemnation upon him, and it makes him ſee there is no repeal of that ſentence; thus the law leaves him. Now a man would think, Can a man be more dead then thus? How can a man be more dead? Yet he may be a thouſand times more dead; for the livelyneſſe of a man is but in a ſwound all this while; a man cannot be brisk, and pearl, and ſelf-conceited, he is now laid in a ſwound, but is not ſtark dead. But when a man comes to be Evangelically dead, he is more dead a great deale. And I will ſhew you it in theſe three things.

1. Firſt, He is moſt dead that is hardeſt to recover: Now when a man is legally dead, it is eaſie to recover that man; let but the laſh of the law be taken off, let but God let him alone, and the profits and pleaſures of the world, will make him alive again, his friends, and vanities, and delights, will put life into him again, it is an eaſie matter to recover this man; but let a man be evangelically dead, when the Goſpel hath deaded a man, he is a thouſand times more dead, and a great deal harder to recover, nothing can recover that man but Chriſt; let all the profits in the world come, they cannot cheat him without Chriſt, if the devil ſhould come and put into his mindе all good conceits, and the good opinion of the world; If the Miniſters ſhould tell him he is in a good eſtate, they cannot quicken his heart, he is dead ſtill, he is harder a thouſand times to be revived then the other, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Col. 3. 2, 3. Set your affecti- affections on things that be above, not on things that are on earth, for ye are dead, and your life is hid in Christ. The Gospel hath made you dead, and you cannot be revived by any thing but Christ, your life is hid with Christ; do not you set your affections on things that are below, they can never put life into you, therefore let not them take up your minds and affections any more, for your life is in Christ alone.

2. Secondly, He is most dead that life it self cannot make alive: When a man is but legally dead, the law hath made him a dead man, and killed him, and shewed him he is a damned creature, this man let him have but a little life, or any thought of life come into him, let him have any affections towards God, any seeming desires, it will make him think I am alive: But if the Gospel once have made a man a dead man, life it self cannot quicken him, Christ himself cannot make this man a live man in himself, though life come into him, and though he hath life from God, yet he himself is dead. I am dead through the law, (saith Paul) that I might live unto God; thus I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me, and that life I now live in the flesh, I live by Faith in the Son of God, Gal. 2. 19, 20. When the Gospel had made him dead (for that is the meaning of the words) he was not only dead by the law, but by the power of the Gospel working by the law: Now, saith he, though I have life, and Christ be come into me, and lives in me, yet I do not live: I live, but not I, but it is Christ that liveth in me: I live, yet do not mistake me, I am a dead man, I have no life, it is Christ that liveth in me: when a man is evangelically dead, it makes a man content, that God should keep life in his hand, and keep the purse in his hand, and all in his hand, it makes him content to be without strength and ability, and to have nothing in his own hand, but to have all from the Lord, and he saith, I am a dead man, and if I ever have comfort, I have none in my self, I must go to Christ for comfort, and life, and strength, and ability; and so for power and activity, and riches, and means, and maintenance, and every thing; it is not my parts and gifts that can help me to them, but I must go to Christ to fetch them: now it is the desire of mans heart to have life at home, he cannot abide to have life in anothers hands: and though the law, and hell it self proclaim a man a dead man, and make a man see himself a dead man, yet it cannot kill this Principle, a man would have life and strength in his own hand, and ability, and sufficiency in his own custody; we may see this Principle in Gods own Children, though this Principle be begun to be killed, yet it rests partly in Gods children, there is still a secret lust in their hearts, to have life, and grace, and strength in their own keeping; and if any child of God be negligent in coming to God, it is because of this Principle that remains in him.

3. Thirdly, He is most dead that death hath most power over: Now when a man is legally dead, and the law hath made him a dead man, though he be a dead man, yet death hath no power over him, his heart is stubborn still, and will not look toward Christ and the Gospel, he is still as stubborn as ever he was, he will roar and howl, and hear every Sermon, but still he hath a hard heart, the law hath not power to break his heart to powder, and to soften his heart: but when a man is evangelically dead, when the Gospel hath made him dead, as it doth before it quickens a man, it breaks the sturdiness of a mans heart, and shatters a man all to pieces, that is the meaning of that place, Psal. 147. 3. He healeth those that are broken in heart, and bindeth up their sores: Now he is this made a dead man, it makes his heart to burst under the weight of his sins, and it beats him to powder: but a man that is onely legally dead, he is heart-

whole

whole ſtill, and his ſpirit is as ſtout againſt the kind working of the Goſpel as ever it was, nay, worſe a great deal; there are none more hardened then thoſe that ſee themſelves dead, damned creatures, by the power of the law, without the power of the Goſpel. But when the Goſpel comes, it breaks the heart to powder, Iſa. 57. 15. Thus ſaith the high and lofty one, He that inhabiteth Eternity, whoſe name is Holy, I dwell in the high and holy place, and with him who is of an humble and contrite ſpirit, to revive the ſpirit of the humble, and to give life to them that are of a contrite heart. This man is the object of Mercy that is evangelically dead, he is the formal object of mercy: Why? becauſe he is dead with ſuch a kind of death as hath gotten power over him, power to break his heart, to make it an humble and contrite heart: now ſaith the Lord, I will revive ſuch a man. This man is the formal object of mercy, and into him eternal life will come.

2. The Second thing I promiſed to ſhew you, is the difference between theſe two, between legal and evangelical Privation. Between one that is legally dead, and one that is dead as the Goſpel deads a man before it quickens him.

1. Firſt, He that is legally dead lies all along in his death: but when the Goſpel makes a man a dead man, it makes him ſtand up that he might have life, Epheſ. 5. 14. Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ſtand up from the dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee life: He doth not mean, ſtand up from being dead, but ſtand up from the dead, and then Chriſt ſhall give thee life; he means ſuch a ſtanding up from the dead, as before Chriſt gives him life: the Goſpel doth thus far awaken a man, though he be more dead a thouſand times, then he that is dead by the law, yet thus far it quickens him, that he ſtands up from his ſecure eſtate: when the law comes and ſhews a man that he is a dead man, he ſtill lies under his ſins, he is a dead man, and cannot ſtand up that Chriſt may give him life. That is the Firſt thing.

2. Secondly, He that is legally dead, made dead only by the law, he is deaf to the Goſpel: but when a man is evangelically dead, it boars his ears and makes him hear the voice of the Word, and not only ſo, but the voice of Chriſt in the Word, Iſa. 55. 3. Incline your ears and come unto me, hear and your ſoul ſhall live: He calls thoſe that were evangelically dead, Hear, and your ſoul ſhall live; they are made able to hear: Let their profits, and old courſes, and old companions come and tempt them to walk as they have done, they are deaf of that ear, they cannot go that way to work, no, now their ears are open heaven-wards, ſeek the Lord, and you ſhall live, Amos 5. 6. They are made to ſeek the Lord, thus much life they have: though they are more dead in regard of their own miſery, then one that is dead by the law; yet thus much life they have put into them, that they will go and ſeek unto God in the uſe of the means, and follow him up and down, and nothing will ſatisfy the heart but Chriſt, they leave no ſtone unroled, they ſeek up and down every where.

3. Thirdly, He that is legally dead, it is a kind of death to love; but he that is evangelically dead, it is a death of love; when the Church in the Canticles was but ſenſible of the countenance of Chriſt, ſhe was preſently ſick of love, I charge you, O ye daughters of Jeruſalem, if ye find my welbeloved, tell him that I am ſick of love, Cant. 5. There is a great deal of difference between ſickneſſe and death, death is a total privation of life; ſickneſſe is but a partial privation: now when the Goſpel hath wrought upon a man that he hath ſome of Chriſt, and is not deprived of all, that privation makes him ſick of love; but when the Goſpel makes a man ſee he is dead, and altogether deprived of Chriſt, now he is dead of love: when a man is legally dead, this is his death that he is damned, and must go to hell; this is his death that he hath no mercy, not that he hath not grace, and holiness, and Christ; but if a man be evangelically dead, this is his death, that he hath not Christ.

a man

Use. The Use is this, If there be any that the law hath made dead, rest not there, but labour that the Gospel may make you dead also; when thou art humbled by the law, thou mayest think that mercy is prepared for thee, but thy lusts may recover again, and that damned life that is in thee may recover again, therefore labour to be more deaded by the Gospel, that thou mayest have a total death begun in thee, that thou mayest have thy deaths wound given thee deep, not only to be in a swound, but to be dead indeed. Joh. 11. Christ staid four dayes after Lazarus was dead before he would raise him, because he would have him irrecoverably dead before he would raise him: Lord, (saith Martha) he stinketh, for he hath been dead four dayes, vers. 39. If he had raised him sooner, his glory had not been so great: so thou must labour to be dead in deed, and to be buried, and to be loathsome and abominable, and then Christ will quicken thee: It is certain, that Gods Children have some of this death wrought in them, before they are quickned at all; for death is before quickning in order of nature: there must be a corruption of one thing, before there can be a generation of another; there must be a privation of one form, before there can be an introduction of another: A child of God must be dead before he can be quickned. Now then, if he will have more life, he must labour to be dead more and more: now thou must labour to have this death truly begun to be wrought in thee, thou must labour to have the love of this world and self-conceitednesse altogether dead in thee. Hos. 6. 2. After two dayes will he revive us, and the third day will he raise us up, and we shall live in his sight: A man may be alive, though he have been seemingly dead twenty four hours; therefore it is a good custom among us to keep men near two dayes before we bury them, that we may be sure they are throughly dead; for there are many have been buried alive: so after two dayes he will revive us, and the third day he will raise us up: when a man is dead indeed, and hath his liveliness throughly killed in him, then God will revive him; if he should revive him before, his glory would not be so great, if he should revive him before he were quite dead; when Ahab humbled himself, and put on sackcloth, and went softly, a man would have thought he had been dead; but in the next Chapter we may see he is alive again. So Ananias and Sapphira, one would have thought their covetousnesse had been dead, (whether they were any of the three thousand that were pricked at Peters Sermon, I dispute not; but they were pricked and made sensible of their damned estate, and pretended to lay down all at the Apostles feet, one would have thought their covetousnes had been dead) but yet it was alive: therefore labour that the Gospel may make thee throughly dead.

1 King. 21.

Acts 5.

THE

THE SPIRITUAL WATCH.

2 Tim. 4. 5.

Watch thou in all things.

IN the verſes going before we have, 1. The charge that the Apoſtle gives to Timothy, ver. 1. I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that ſhall judge the quick and the dead. There are many duties we are loath to come unto, and are tempted from; ſo that we have need of all ſtrong cords to draw us to them.

2. We have the thing he gives him this charge for; and that is, ver. 2. Preach the Word in ſeaſon, and out of ſeaſon, &c. which duty ſtrongly lyeth upon the Miniſters of the Goſpel, to hold forth the Word of God, to edifie and convert mens ſouls.

3. Here is the reaſon why he gives him this charge, and that is in the third and fourth verſes, For the time will come, when they will not endure ſound Doctrine, &c. The more danger there is among people, the more inſtant ſhould Miniſters be, to preach the Word unto the conſcience. Now in the verſe I have read unto you, the Apoſtle perſwades Timothy to watchfulneſſe; as who ſhould ſay, Though others be careleſs and negligent, yet I would have thee to be watchful, conſider, thou art a Watchman. Every Chriſtian is to watch over his own wayes, and thoſe that are committed to his charge: but Miniſters are watchmen over their people, therefore here is a double reaſon to move him to watchfulneſs; both in regard of his own ſoul, and the people he was ſet over, Mark. 13. 37.

our Saviour ſaith, What I ſay to you, I ſay to all, Watch. And what Paul ſaith here to Timothy, I may ſay to all Chriſtians, Watch in all things.

For the better handling of this point, I will ſhew you,

Firſt, What it is to watch.

Secondly, The things we muſt watch.

Thirdly, The reaſons of it.

Firſt, What it is to watch. And to watch in Scripture is taken two wayes, Literally, and Spiritually. What it is to watch.

Firſt, Watching ſometimes is taken Literally, and then it ſignifies a waking, when the time, or nature calls not for ſleep; for there is a difference between watching, and waking: we are all awake at this time, or elſe ought to be, but yet we cannot be ſaid to watch; but this is to watch, when time or nature calls for ſleep. When a man awaketh all night, or the greateſt part of the night, as Luke 2. 8. The Shepherds were watching their flocks by night: And this is two fold, either Ordinary, or Extraordinary. Literally.

Ordinary watching is contrary to immoderateneſſe in ſleeping. As when a man is ſober in eating, and drinking, and other lawful things; ſo we ought to be ſober in our ſleep, for it is a dangerous thing, if we ſuffer immoderate ſleep to fall upon us. Ordinary.

Now Extraordinary watching is contrary to ſleep it ſelf, as ordinary watching is contrary to ſleepineſſe; for it takes away our natural ſleep, which otherwiſe we are to have. And this is for two reaſons: Extraordinary.

The firſt is for a Civil end, when we watch with thoſe that are ſick, as a duty of Charity; it is fit that thoſe that are well, ſhould break their natural ſleep and reſt, to be helpful to thoſe that are ſick; this is a Civil end. For a civil end.

Secondly, There is a Spiritual end of extraordinary watching, and that is, when a man is not only moderate in ſleeping, but abates himſelf of that reſt he may lawfully take, for a Spiritual end. As Saint Peter ſaith, Watch unto prayer, 1 Pet. 4. 7. and the Church, Lament. 2. 19. watched to humble their ſouls under Gods hand. For ſometimes we have need to break our very natural reſt, for the good of our ſouls. Though we be never ſo careful, and conſcionable in the day time, yet it may ſo fall out, that the day will not be enough, but we muſt entrench upon the night alſo, to ſeek the Lord extraordinarily; but this watching is not here meant, though it be ſometimes required. But a Spiritual watching is ſpecially meant, which includes Three things in it. For a Spiritual end. Spiritually.

Firſt, It doth note a readineſſe of minde to be drowzy; for as in natural and literal watching, it doth note a natural proneneſs to be drowzy, either through the darkneſſe of the night, or the heat of the weather, or the like; ſo this ſpiritual watching ſignifieth unto us, that we are naturally ſubject to be ſecure ſpiritually, and vain, and idle, and negligent, and have need to be rouzed up: for indeed all Commandments ſince the Fall, are ſuch as do not agree with our nature: as when he commands us to ſeek the Lord while he may be found, that intimates, that we are by nature apt to put it off, and to be careleſs of making our peace with God; and when the Lord ſaith, pray alwayes, it doth imply, how backward we are to that duty, how apt to neglect it, or to ſhuffle it over, and to be luke-warm in it: before the Fall when God did bid man do any thing, the bidding of him did imply, that if he were not careful, he was in a poſſibility of breaking the commandments; it did not argue a proneneſs to break them: but ſince the Fall, the commandements of God, whatſoever God hath commanded us to do, either for matter or manner of it, it implyeth, how backward to, and untoward we are in doing it. It implies proneneſs to be drowzy.

Endeavour to ſtir up our ſelves.

Secondly, Watchfulneſſe doth imply a labour and endeavour in our ſelves, to take off this ſinful proneneſſe to evil that is in us, and to be ſeriouſly ſtirred up, to look after our Duty, whatſoever it is, both towards God, and towards man, we ought to ſhake off all untowardneſſe of Spirit, whereby we are unfit to Watch; Watchfulneſſe implyeth this alſo, Epheſ. 5. 14. Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ſtand up from the dead: as who ſhould ſay, Shake off thy drowzineſſe, and labour to break off this folly of heart, whereby thou goeſt dreaming on, and rouze up thy ſpirit, and ſtand upon thy guard.

It is an intentive Conſideration in all Caſes.

The Third and main thing: This Watchfulneſs doth include ſome further buſineſſe or duty to be done that is not yet performed; for watchfulneſs is an act to help forward ſome further act: As for example, We are bound to remember God in all our wayes; the want of this, is the reaſon we ſo often ſin againſt God; now if we did remember God, if we did remember his Holineſſe, if we did remember the greatneſſe of his Power, and the ſtrictneſſe of his Juſtice againſt Sin, if we did remember our Death, and what account we are to make before him, this would be a great help to keep us from ſin; now if we would remember this, a ſpecial way to help us, is to watch, as Acts 20. 31. Watch and remember, ſaith the Apoſtle; he being deſirous that they ſhould remember the admonitions which he had propounded, he layes down this as a ſpecial means to help them hereunto, to watch: So we are to be watchful, that we may be ſober in eating and drinking, and all lawful things; for how ſuddenly do diſtempers break in upon us, unleſſe a man look to himſelf? now watchfulneſſe is an excellent help to Sobriety, 1 Theſſ. 5. 6. Let us watch and be ſober: We had need to watch whatſoever we go about, that we may be ſober in it; whatſoever wordly buſineſſe we go about in our Callings, we had need to have this watchfulneſſe, that we be not overwhelmed, and over head and ears in the world, that we may not be intemperate in our eating and drinking, that we may not give our ſelves too much liberty and freedom in talking and diſcourſing of the things here below; ſo we are bound to keep our garments, that our nakedneſſe may not be ſeen, that the ſins that are up and down in the world do not defile them, that the temptations, and allurements, and occaſions we meet withal, and the examples of the times, and ſuch like, do not take away our righteouſneſſe from us: now watchfulneſſe is an help hereunto, as we may ſee, Rev. 16. 15. the text ſaith, Bleſſed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments: So that watchfulneſſe is an excellent help for a further act to be done: when a man hath ſome duty or other to be done, which the Lord requires ſhould be done with care and diligence, watchfulneſſe is a help thereunto, as Hab. 2. 1. the Prophet knowing there was ſome Prophecy to be beſtowed upon them, the Prophet laboured to be in a fit caſe to receive it, and that he might ſo be, I will watch ſaith he: in a word, watchfulneſſe, is an intentive conſiderateneſſe of the heart, when a man doth conſider how he is to do every thing, leſt he be ſurpriſed either by Satan, or the world, or by his own ſubtil fleſh, when a man is conſiderative, and takes heed to himſelf, to his thoughts, and his words, and all his actions, as our Saviour ſaith, Take heed, Watch, and Pray, Mark. 13. 33. When he would deſcribe watchfulneſſe, what it is, he ſets another phraſe by it to open it to us, Take heed, watch and pray. There is a kind of heedleſſeneſſe that is apt to cleave to the heart, whereby the heart is careleſſe what ſnares are before it: now watchfulneſſe doth take off this, and maketh a man to take more heed in whatſoever he doth, ſo that there can be no opportunity of doing good, but he takes it; no good motion is ſuggeſted, but he lyeth at catch to receive ceive it, for this is watchfulneſſe. Prov. 8. 33. Bleſſed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates; here you may ſee watchfulneſs is expreſſed, when a man comes into the preſence of Chriſt, waiting to hear whatſoever ſhall come from Chriſt, and there is nothing that drops from the Miniſter that concerns him, but he is ready to receive it; when a man waits to be ready to obey whatſoever commandment the Lord delivers, and to take heed to avoid whatſoever the Lord forbids. This is watchfulneſs.

Now the ſecond thing is, what we muſt watch? I Anſwer, We muſt watch our ſelves, and all the duties of Religion, and time. What we muſt watch.

Firſt we muſt watch over our ſelves. Ponder thy pathes, ſaith the Wiſe man, Prov. 4. 26. as who ſhould ſay, Look to thy ſelf; take heed to every ſtep that it be ordered aright: How ſoon may a man be turned out of the way? How ſoon was David carried away into thoſe two great ſins of Murther and Adultery? How ſoon was Peter put beſides his Reſolution in the high Prieſts Hall, for want of watchfulneſs? If he had watched and remembred our Saviours item, he had never denied his Maſter: A man is marvellous ready to be carried away, therefore we muſt watch our ſelves. Our Selves.

Firſt, And in particular we muſt watch our own thoughts: naturally all our thoughts are idle and unprofitable, our minds are apt to ſpend themſelves upon that which will do us no good: we had need therefore to watch over our thoughts, Deut. 15. 9. Beware (ſaith the text) that there be not an evil thought in thy heart: Take heed that vain thoughts come not into thy mind, idle thoughts, or wordly thoughts will dead us, and dull us to the ſervice of God, and poyſon the heart, and no good thing can dwell in us, if we do not look unto our thoughts: the eyes of the Lord are upon our thoughts, therefore watch over thy thoughts. Our thoughts.

Secondly, We ſhould watch over the Heart it ſelf: The heart is the very ſpring, there be the very iſſues of Life and Death, the actions flow from thence; therefore, Prov. 4. 23. the wiſe man ſaith, Keep thy heart with all keeping: as who ſhould ſay, Thy heart is deceitful and deſperate, it will make thee believe thou art going to heaven, when it leads thee to hell; if thou be never ſo well affected for a time, this heart will fly off, it ● naturally ſo naught and reprobate to what is good; Therefore keep thy heart with all diligence. Heart.

Thirdly, Watch over thy Words: Pſal. 141. 3. Set a watch, O Lord, before the door of my lips. We muſt watch our lips, and have a care that our words be agreeable to Gods Word, and ſeaſoned with ſalt, and that we ſhun all manner of communication, that doth not miniſter grace to the hearers; we muſt take heed leſt idle words proceed out of our mouths, for which we muſt give an account at the day of Judgement; how many times do ſuch words proceed out of our mouths that we would give a world to recal again, onely becauſe we do not watch over your words, that they may be ſuch as may tend to edifying, and expreſſe the grace that is within? Words.

Fourthly, Again, we ſhould watch over our Senſes, we ſhould make a covenant with our eyes, as Job ſpeaks chap. 31. 1. not to look upon a maid; when our eyes are looking up and down, though they be not caught with adultery, or ſuch groſſ ſins, yet there is danger to be caught one way or other; for when a man looks upon the Objects of the world, as good, and the like, how ready is his mind to be carryed after it? Men are led by their eyes, they carry the mind and heart with them, therefore we ſhould have a care, that whatſoever comes to our eyes, we make a good uſe of. Senſes. Eyes.

Ears. Fifthly, Again, we ſhould ſet a watch before our Ears, we ſhould take heed what we hear, when we come in company, leſt we be infected by what is ſpoken; we ſhould have an hedge about our ears, to ſtop them from unſavoury things. Doth not the ear taſte words, ſaith Job? We ſhould have taſting ears, that ſhould be able to taſte and reliſh the good words that are ſpoken, and hate the contrary, and diſtaſte them.

Whole ſelves. Laſtly, We ſhould watch our ſelves, over the whole man: Only take heed to thy ſelfe, Deut. 4. 9. As who ſhould ſay, This is the only thing; have a care of, watch over thy ſelf, leſt thy ſelf undoe thy ſelf; there is no enemie ſo dangerous unto us as our ſelves: the Divel in hell cannot do us ſo much miſchief. How many corruptions are there in us, to draw us from God, and incite us unto ſin? There are abundance of corruptions lying in the heart of man, to make a man unfit for any thing that is good; that is, idleneſſe in the underſtanding, it cannot abide to take pains, and exerciſe it ſelf in Divine matters. There is in the will and affections, covetouſneſs, and abundance of corrupt inclinations, that if a man look not to, it will break forth: So that this is the thing we muſt watch over, our ſelves.

Duties of Religion. Secondly, We are to watch over the duties of Religion; as for example, we are to watch unto prayer, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Pet. 4. 7. we are to watch to meditating, and reading, and hearing of the Word of God. Otherwiſe though we do them for the matter of them, yet we cannot for the right form, and manner of them: though our hearts be in a pretty good tune for the preſent, yet we cannot hold this frame, if we watch not thereunto. Rev. 3. 3. is an excellent place, If you will not watch, ſaith the Text, and hold faſt, I will come againſt thee as a thief in the night: As who ſhould ſay, Stir up thy ſelf and watch, that thou maiſt hold faſt; if thou haſt got any hatred of ſin in thy heart, hold it faſt; if ſtrength againſt corruption, hold it faſt. How ſhall I do that? why watch ſaith he, or elſe Chriſt will come againſt thee as a thief. If a book be in a mans hand when he is drowzy, it will fall out, he cannot hold it faſt; So when a mans heart is drowzy, and ſecure, it will let go comfort, and any thing that God hath beſtowed for the good of the ſoul; therefore we ought to watch it: if we have any ſweet diſpoſition of heart, to go on in the Service of God, and in the duties of Religion, we may go on if we be watchful. And now to branch this into particulars.

Firſt, We muſt watch before the Duty.

Secondly, We muſt watch in the Duty.

Thirdly, We muſt watch after the Duty.

Before Duty. Firſt, we muſt watch before the Duty. Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy, Exod. 20. 8. So I may ſay, remember Prayer, to keep it holy; remember Meditation, to keep it holy; remember all the duties of Religion, to keep them holy, and perform them in an holy manner: think of them before you go about the performance of them; we cannot pray unleſs we watch unto prayer, unleſs we be careful, and have our eyes in our heads, before we go about the duty.

In the morning as ſoon as we awake, we ſhould think of prayer; and when tempted to ſin, we ſhould think of prayer. If I ſin, how can I pray unto God? I have ever and anon need to poure out my prayers before God; now if I commit theſe and theſe ſins, how can I look up to heaven, when my conſcience doth reproach me for ſin? So when we hear the word of God, look to thy foot when thou comeſt into the houſe of God, Eccleſ. 5. 1. that is, Before thou goeſt into the Houſe of God to hear the Word of Salvation, ſee into thine own heart, think whoſe word

it

it is thou heareſt; and that thou goeſt to hear the Word, that ſhall judge thee at the laſt day. When thou comeſt into the preſence of God, take heed leſt thou heareſt as fools hear; and take heed leſt thou prayeſt as fools pray; and comeſt to the Sacrament, as fools uſe to come; we ſhould watch before the duty, that all things may be in a readineſſe, before we come to the performance of it, that we may prevent all things that may hinder us, and be fitted with all things that may help forward the duty; that time, place, and all advantages may meet together for the better doing of it.

Then ſecondly, We muſt watch in the duty, as well as before the duty. In Duty. As the Apoſtle ſpeaks concerning prayer, ſo I may ſay concerning all other duties, Continue in prayer, and watch therein with thankſgiving, Col. 4. 2. As we are to watch before, that we may have preparation, ſo we muſt watch in the duty, that we may rightly diſcharge it; for though a man hath been watchful before the duty, and hath been prepared in ſome meaſure, and fitted, yet you are not without danger. But when you are in prayer, and when you are at the Lords Table, or any other duty; for all your former preparation, if you be not watchful now, you may fail in ſome kind or other, and ſo mar the duty; therefore we ſhould watch in the duty, that our hearts may be waking in it, and our mind attentive upon it, that our hearts may be fixed upon that we are about; My heart is fixed, my heart is fixed, ſaith the Prophet David; he was a joyful man, he repeats it again and again; as if a man ſhould be jocund, and ſay, I have got it, I have got it. We ſhould get hearts fixed upon the duty, that ſo we may not have wavering hearts, half off, and half on the duty; but that the whole man may be employed about it.

Thirdly, We ſhould be watchful after the duty, that we may not loſe the benefit, and reward of the duty, leſt the ſubtilties of Satan, and the wiles of our own hearts, do rob us of the fruits of it; though a man hears very attentively, and pray, and perform all other duties very enlargedly, yet when he hath done all, he may loſe the comfort and reward of the duty. Therefore when we hear the word, we ſhould watch over our hearts, that the fouls of the ayre may not pluck it out again, that if we have any quickning, we may not loſe it again; if we have heard any thing that hath helped us forward in Grace, we ſhould take heed that we loſe not the ground again; As the Publican, as ſoone as he had prayed to God, and performed an Ordinance aright, how careful was he not to loſe the benefit thereof? He went to the Temple to pray, and he was watchful before the duty; thinking, I am now going to pray, and power out my ſoul before God. He was watchful in the duty, for you may ſee how humbly, and feelingly, and penitently he did pray; ſtanding a far off, and ſmiting upon his breſt, and not lifting up his eyes to heaven, bewailing the hardneſs of his own heart, and rowzing it up, Lord be merciful to me a ſinner: and when he had done this, he was careful afterwards, for the Text ſaith, Luk. 18. 14. As he had prayed for mercy, ſo he was careful to carry it along with him. He prayed that he might be juſtified, and as he prayed for it, ſo he was careful to carry home juſtification in his boſome. So when we are at a Sermon, we ſhould watch, that we may go home quickned, and bettered: and when we are at conference, we ſhould watch that we may return home with the fruit and benefit of the duty: So for all other Ordinances, we ſhould be careful and watchful, that we may not loſe the reward, for the Divel is crafty, and our own hearts are ready to betray us, therefore we had need be watchful; and that is the ſecond thing we ſhould watch, the duties of Religion.

Thirdly,

Time. Preſent time.

Thirdly, We ſhould watch times and ſeaſons; God knows what miſerable things are a coming, therefore what time the Lord allots us, we had need improve it to the beſt advantage, that we may redeem the time. How many hours do run from us, before we are aware? How many dayes, and months, and years, have we let ſlip away, and we are little the better? Our time is a ſpecial thing, and therefore we had need to watch it, that we may improve it to the beſt advantage, that we may be no longer fools, but wiſe in the imploying of it.

Time of Gods wrath.

Secondly, We ſhould watch all the times of Gods anger and diſpleaſure; it is a miſerable thing when a man paſſeth on like a fool, and Gods anger comes forth, and a man is not provided, hath not a defence for it. There be dayes of anger, and viſitation, when God comes to viſit people for their ſins; to viſit a pariſh, to viſit a family, to viſit a perſon; and what a woful thing is it, for a man to be drowzy and negligent, when Gods anger burſts forth, and ſo he hath no evidence of comfort to his ſoul; he knows not how to meet God in the field? But when the wrath of God breaks out in any kind upon his Goods, or Wife, or Children, or Body, or Friends, or any thing, he is at a loſſe, and knows not what to do; he is fain to ſink under the hand of God, and hath no refuge to flie unto; therefore we ſhould watch againſt the day of Gods anger.

Time of Grace.

Thirdly, We ſhould watch over the times of Grace: for there be gracious and acceptable times, as the Apoſtle calls them, 2 Cor. 6.21. Many times good motions come in: Now if we do not watch, to keep them, and nouriſh them in our hearts, the Lord will paſſe us by at another time, and we ſhall not be moved. Sometimes God affects thy heart at a Sermon, and puts in a good reſolution to forſake ſin, and lead a new life; now have a care to keep theſe reſolutions, and let them not periſh in thee, and go out like lightning. The Lord hath given many a bleſſed ſeaſon, and oportunity of mercy, the water was moved, if he would have but ſtepped in, if he would but have taken hold of the mercy, he might have had it; but afterwards, he may go mourning, and thirſting, and longing, and never have the mercy offered more; and it is well if he can be humbled for miſſing of that mercy, by his neglect, and watch for the future the times of Grace.

Death.

Again we ſhould watch the times of Death; we are all mortal men, muſt die, and Bleſſed is that ſervant, whom his Lord when he cometh ſhall find him ſo doing, Mat. 24. 5. If any of us ſhould dye, before we are converted, and brought home to God, we periſh for ever: Whoſoever thou art, if thou die in thy ſins with thy dead, hard, unſanctified, unregenerate heart, thou art damned, thou goeſt to Hell. Therefore watch for the coming of death, that ſo when it comes, it may not be the King of Terrours, and an amazement to thy heart.

Judgment.

Againe, We muſt watch for the day of Judgment; as Death leaves us, ſo Judgment will find us: Therefore we ſhould conſider with our ſelves ſeriouſly, the ſtrictneſſe of the account we are to give at the dreadful day of the Son of man, when all works ſhall be brought to a Touch-ſtone, and all ſecrets ſhall be Preached on the Houſe top. It is an excellent thing, when a man doth conſider theſe things before hand; when a man hath looked upon his thoughts, for they ſhall be Judged; and upon his ſpeeches, and upon all his wayes, for they ſhall all be brought before the Judgment Seat of God; and according as a man hath done, ſuch reward he ſhall receive for evermore.

Reaſons. Our proneneſs to be drowzy.

The next thing, is, the Reaſons why we are to Watch.

And the Firſt Reaſon is, Becauſe we are marvellous prone to be Drowzy

in

in Spiritual things. In temporal things we are watchful enough; for Covetouſneſſe, and Pride, and the like, we are very watchful, but in Spiritual things, how ſubject are we to Drowzyneſs? Paul himſelf was fain to complain, I know that in me, that is, in my fleſh, dwelleth no good thing, Rom. 7. 18. Is thy heart better then Saint Pauls? If he were left to himſelf, he ſhould be as miſerable, and proud, and untoward as another; and have as vile an heart as another: and therefore that made him watch. Therefore we had need to watch, for how loath are we to be brought to watch? And how unwilling to take ſuch an hard piece of ſervice to do? we are marvellous apt to be ſecure. If Jonah had watched, if he had had a watch over his heart, he would have gone to Nineveh; but for want of watchfulneſſe, he ran away. Cant. 5. 2. I ſleep, ſaith the Church, it was not like the ſleep of the wicked, and ungodly, for her heart waked, but ſhe was aſleep, ſhe was proud, and marvellous ſecure, there was a great deal of untowardneſſe of ſpirit grew upon her: And as we are untoward to that which is good, ſo we are prone to that which is evil; we are glued naturally to the world, and the things of this life, it is an eaſie thing to draw us away into evill, therefore we had need to watch. As it is ſaid of the Diſciples of Chriſt in regard of temporal drowzineſs, ſo it is with us, in regard of Spiritual drowzineſs, Matth. 26. 43. He came and found them aſleep again, for their eyes were heavy: Though Chriſt had awakened them, and jogged them, yet they were aſleep again, for their eyes were heavy; So though the Lord hath awakened us, even now we were awakened by a Croſſe, by Sickneſſe, by a Sermon, by a Reproof, ſomething or other God hath been pleaſed to waken us by, but all on the ſuddain we fall aſleep again, for our hearts are very heavy: as it is with an heavy brain, what a doe he hath to keep himſelf awake? though he pinch himſelf, and rowze up himſelf, yet he hath much adoe to keep his eyes open; ſo the heart of man is ſo drowzy, that he hath much adoe to keep any Grace alive in himſelf; we are ſo apt to be ſo ſecure, that we had need to watch. Zech. 4. 1. the Prophet complains of the drowzineſs of his heart, The Angel that talked with me, came again and waked me, as a man is wakened out of his ſleep: when God was talking with him, he fell into a ſleep. So when we are in Prayer, we have much adoe to hold out in the duty, we have ſuch vile natures, and curſed diſpoſitions. How ought we then to watch over our ſelves?

Secondly, Another reaſon why we ſhould be watchful, is, becauſe our life is a Warfare, and we do not lie like two Armies in a field, removed one from the other; but we lie in the midſt of our enemies round about us, and ſo they are ready to ſurprize us. Chriſtians life is a Warfare.

The greateſt meahs of doing us miſchief, are moſt commonly thoſe things we have need of; as our meat, and drink, and affaires, and callings, we cannot go to prayer, but worldly thoughts are ready to intangle us; we cannot go to the Houſe of God, but a man is in danger to be intrapped. There is danger in every thing we go about, by reaſon of the worlds powerful enticements, therefore we had need to ſtand upon our guard, and be careful, for elſe how can we avoid to be ſuprized, and led away? This is the reaſon, why ſo many ſink into Perdition; Many that have given good hopes, many that have promiſed excellent things, have come to nothing, but have fallen away as the fall of a leafe. Whence comes this, but becauſe they have not been careful and watchful? The world an Enemy.

The Divel is watchful, to inſnare and intrap us, therefore we ſhould watch to avoid his ſnares; As the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Pet. 5. 8. Be ſober and watchful, for your Adverſary the Divel, goeth about like a roaring Lion, ſeeking whom he may devour: The Divel is alwayes buſie, and therefore we had need The Divel watch and buſie our ſelves, and be careful at all times: when we are ſecure, and conſider not God, and conſider not the good of our Souls, and the peace of our Conſciences; Satan preſently hath advantage againſt us; If the Divel had any thing elſe to do, it were ſomething, but the Divel hath nothing to do, but to hurt us, and lay Siege againſt us; All his practice, from the beginning of the world to this day, is to go roaming and ranging up and down to do miſchief, it is all his employment, from the beginning of the day to the end thereof; If he get us alone, he will enſnare us there; if not there, he will enſnare us in company; if he cannot get us there, he will get us in a Sermon, and if any thing falls againſt our luſts, he will cauſe our hearts to riſe againſt it. Now when we do not watch over our ſelves, we are led away by Satan; therefore we had need be careful, for the Divel is alwayes watchful, therefore we ſhould labour to be alwayes provided to reſiſt him.

watch

Again, we have the fleſh that is continually about us, it is an enemy within us, it is that which doth betray us to the World, and the Divel, even our own hearts do betray us, and therefore we had need be careful; we have enemies from without, and our own hearts within, and all to undo us. Take a man that is in a good way, and hath all means, and helps to make him Godly, though there be no temptation from without, yet he may de damned from his own heart, if he be not delivered from it. Jam. 1. 14. Every man is tempted by his own luſts, and Jam. 4. 5. The Spirit that is within us luſteth to envy, and covetouſneſs, and ſecurity, and vanity, and carnal eaſe, it luſts after theſe things, and therefore we had need to watch.

The certain advantage of Watchfulneſs.

A Third reaſon is, Becauſe it will do us a great deal of good: for as if we do not watch we are eaſily ſurprized, ſo if we do watch it is an eaſie thing to ſtand; all our miſcarriages in the duties of Religion, lye in ſecurity, whereas if we were watchful, and would walk with eyes in our heads, and would conſider the ſnares that be laid for us, and conſider Gods threatnings, and Commandments, the duties of Religion would be eaſie: For if we do not watch, the Divel, and the World, and the Fleſh have advantage againſt us; but if we do watch, this is as it were a fence to the heart, to hedge a man in to keep him ſafe. Rev. 3. 2. There is an excellent place, Be watchful, and ſtrengthen the things that remain; it is the ſtrength of the ſoul. When a man watcheth, let a man have but a little grace, ſuppoſe a man be marvellouſly fallen off, and hath but a little good remaining, a few graces in him; a little faith, a little hope, a little ſanctified deſire; he hath but a little ſtrength to go on againſt ſin, if a man doth but now watch, if a man do but husband this little, how ſtrong will he be? A little Faith is able to overcome all the Divels in Hell, well managed: a little hope is able to keep a man above water from ſinking: a little ſtrength is able to maintain the Combate: a little affection to goodneſs, if a man have a carefull heart to improve it to the uttermoſt, will go a great way; if a man did but watch, it would ſtrengthen the things that remaine. Though a man were never ſo infeebled, and come to never ſo low an ebb, watchfulneſſe is a ſtay and ſtrength to the heart.

We cannot elſe expect help or pardon.

Fourthly, Again if we do not watch, we cannot ſo much as pray to God to forgive us: our conſciences tell us, unleſſe the Lord ſave us, we cannot be ſaved; now how can we expect that God ſhould ſave us, if we do not pray unto him? And we cannot pray to him to ſave us, unleſſe we watch: it is to tempt God, to pray to him to preſerve us from evil, when we do not watch over our ſelves: it is to tempt God, to pray to him to quicken us, when we deaden our ſelves: to intreat God to give us an holy mind,

mind, when we our selves let in vain thoughts. Therefore see what Christ speaks, Mar. 14. 38. Watch and Pray, that ye fall not into temptation: As who should say, You cannot Pray that you may not enter into temptation, you tempt God if you intreat him to do any thing, if you do not watch over your own souls. Though a man hath no Activity to do any good, yet God will have him be watchful; if he mean to purifie a man, he will make him purifie himself; if he mean to keep him from pride, he will make his own heart resist pride: therefore watch, that thou enter not into temptation, if thou mean to pray to God, not to lead thee into temptation.

But you will say, All a mans watching will do no good, except God watcheth over him, Psal. 127. 1. Except the Lord keep the City, the Watchmen watch in vain. Object.

I answer, 'Tis true indeed, unless the Lord keeps a mans soul, all a mans watching is nothing. But I tell thee, If thou watchest, thou hast Two watchers, thou hast God to watch over thee, and thy self to watch over thee; thou hast God to watch over thee, and keep thee in all thy wayes, and then thou watchest over thy self, and art sustained by God, so that thou hast two watchers, God above, and thy own soul within thee employed about this work. Answ.

A Fourth Reason is, Because this is the very means prescribed by God to do us good: It is the very remedy that the Lord of Heaven hath appointed unto us to save us from danger, and keep us from falling; the Lord hath sanctified this means to this very end and purpose: therefore when our Saviour Christ would dissuade his people from carking and caring for the things of this life, Luke 21. 36. see what means he prescribeth and layeth down to do it, Be watchful (saith he) and pray: the world is ready to get in, therefore watch (saith he) and pray always, that you may be accounted worthy to escape those things: So that we see this the means prescribed by God himself, to escape the falling into sin. Gods appointment.

Fifthly, Again, We should be so much the more careful in this watch, because no other can watch for us: in outward things one man may watch, while another sleepeth; as in sailing, when all the rest are asleep, there is one watcheth; so in war, when all the Souldiers lye in their tents asleep, it may be some few are watching, that the rest may take their rest: but it is not so in regard of our souls, one man cannot watch while another man sleeps, but every man must watch over his own heart: If we do not watch our own souls, we shall perish; and if we do not perish everlastingly, we shall have miserable temptations, and evils, and many inconveniences we shall be exposed unto. None can Watch for us.

But some may say, Are not Ministers to watch over us? How then is every man to watch over himself? Ministers are Watchmen: Son of man, I have made thee a watchman over the house of Israel, saith the Lord to the Prophet Ezekiel, and Heb. 13. 17. The Apostle speaking of Ministers, saith, They watch for your souls? Object.

I Answer, The word in the Original is not for your souls, but over your souls; to watch for a man, is to watch for another that he may not watch; as when a man watcheth for his neighbor that his neighbour may not watch: but the Ministers are not so to watch for the people, that the people may not watch, but the Ministers are to watch over the people, that they may watch: as when a man watcheth Deer, or Hawkes, he watcheth them, that they may watch and not sleep, that so he may tame them: as a man that watcheth with a man which is sick of the Lethargy, which is such a Disease, that if a man be let sleep, he goeth away in his sleep, therefore their friends Answ.

ſtand about them, to watch over them, that they may not ſleep, knowing that if they do ſleep, their lives are hazarded; and if they ſee them but to ſlumber, they awaken them, leſt in their ſleep they die, and go away? So it is with the Miniſters of the Goſpel, we ought to watch over your ſouls, that you may not ſleep: for you are all ſick of the Lethargy of ſin, and if ye ſleep, you go away, if you be not careful for heaven, and heavenly things, if you follow vanity and ſecurity of heart, and do not take heed to avoid ſin, your ſouls will die, therefore the Miniſters are to watch over you, and keep you from ſleeping, and ſhew you the danger of it, and labour to awaken you, and keep your eyes waking.

Uſe. Condemning the general neglect of Watchfulneſſe.

The Firſt Uſe is, To condemne the infinite ſecurity that is grown upon people: that though it be ſo excellent a duty for a man to watch, yet where is the man almoſt, that is careful of it? They put this duty over to God, as if it did not belong to them, they will watch over outward things, for plowing, and ſowing, and reaping, and the like; but for the good of their ſouls, they never acquaint themſelves with this watching; their hearts are like the wilderneſſe, as the wilderneſſe is open for all wild beaſts, ſo their hearts are open for all temptations, that is the reaſon they have ſuch dead hearts, and cold affections, that is the reaſon they look ſo little after ſalvation and eternal life, becauſe people never look after this duty of watchfulneſs; nay, they are ſo far from watching how to be ſaved, that they watch how the divel may take them; when a man ſins, he wiſheth the Divel would help him to more ſin: a covetous man is ſo far from watching over his ſin, that he would have more opportunities, and more occaſions of getting; the Devil cannot come faſt enough to fill his heart with theſe things: So if a man be given to pleaſure, he thinks he cannot have enough, but would have more ſtill. Thus people would have the Divel put more corn into the hopper: They are ſo far from watching for good, that they watch for evil, they deviſe evil upon their beds, as the Prophet Micah ſpeaks: They are poſſeſſed with the ſpirit of ſlumber, they have eyes and ſee not, they have eares and hear not, hearts and underſtand not; they do not know what watchfulneſſe is, if they do, they are the leſſe excuſable, becauſe they practice it not, they do not watch and wake unto Prayer, that they may not enter into temptation, but are carried away with the world and ſin.

Reproving the godly's too great neglect.

The ſecond uſe is, To them that are Godly in ſome meaſure; that we cannot ſay they altogether do not watch, yet how negligent are they in this duty! Many Chriſtians are there among us that have ſome goodneſſe in them, yet how doth this duty lye unpractiſed? whence come all the vanities in our minds, and untowardneſſe in the Ordinances of God? Whence comes all unfruitfulneſſe in our meetings, and unſettledneſſe in our Conſciences? It is becauſe we do not watch: Whence comes it that we are no more ready to good duties? When we are called forth on the ſudden to pray or do any thing for the good of Gods Church and People, that we are ſo unfit to do it, and ſo backward, it is for want of watchfulneſs. Nay, what is the reaſon that we perform not the Worſhip of God in our Families better, but becauſe we do not watch: the very Regenerate themſelves, what a world of miſchief do they do to their own ſouls for want of this duty of watchfulneſs? How do they ſwell in ſin, and are ſlack in goodneſſe, and ſlubber over Gods ſervice? How do they favour themſelves too too much, and ſuffer the diſhonour of God, by the wicked? and ſuffer their own hearts to diſhonour him too too much?

Directing how to watch.

Thirdly, The next Uſe ſhall be to ſhew you the Rules that are to be obſerved in watching, and the Rules are theſe: If you would watch over your ſelves.

First,

First, Count watchfulneſſe your very life, and think if you let watchfulneſſe go, you let your life go; for if once watchfulneſs go, hovv dead are you in Prayer, and hearing the Word of God? So that the ſecurity of the heart, vvill be the death of the heart; vvherefore if vve vvould go on in vvatching, let us labour to keep this Holy diſpoſition; count it your very lives, and think vvith your ſelves, I let Life go, if I let Watchfulneſſe go. We uſe to ſay of Sleep, that it is the brother of Death, and 1 Theſ. 5. 6. vve may ſee the Phraſe uſed by the Apoſtle, vvhere vvaking is put for living, and ſleeping, for dying, that is the meaning of the vvords. So that as ſleep, natural ſleep, doth lively repreſent death; ſo it is vvith Spiritual ſleep, vvhich is the death of the ſoul. Therefore doſt thou find thy ſelf to be out of frame, and not vvatch over thy vvayes? then think vvith thy ſelf that thou art a dead man, and take up thy vvatch as faſt as thou canſt again. Account watchfulneſs our life.

Secondly, Thou muſt let thy watch ſtand Catholically, univerſally in all duties, and all times; vvatch thereunto, and perſevere therein; vve muſt not only watch, but Perſevere. Be careful in the morning how vve may begin our vvatch; in the day, hovv vve may ſpend it; at night, hovv vve may end it. So vve muſt vvatch in all duties; vvhen vve go to Prayer, vve muſt vvatch in prayer; vvhen you go about your Callings, vvatch about them; vvhen vve are alone, vve ſhould be vvatchful; and vvhen vve are in Company, vve ſhould be vvatchful, for the Divel, and our ovvn ſouls, plot a great deal of miſchief againſt us, vve muſt vvatch in all places; in our houſes, and vvithout doors, and in the fields; vve are ſtill in danger vvhereſoever vve are. Watching in all things.

Thirdly, We ſhould proportion our watch, according as the duty is we take in hand, ſo our vvatching may bee; there is one kind of vvatching for one kind of duty, another for another. If vve be to go about our callings, then our vvatching muſt be againſt diſtruſtfulneſſe, and covetouſneſs, and diſtracting cares; that ſo vve may not be over head and ears in the vvorld. If our duty be prayer, vve muſt have an eye to the promiſes, and take hold on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and come in his mediation and his onely. So vvhatſoever duty it be, if it be hearing of the Word of God, there is a vvatchfulneſs to be proportionable to it. A man ſhould think, the vvord vvill do me no good, unleſſe the Lord meet vvith my luſts: I have an unmortified heart, and unleſſe the Lord vvork upon me, I ſhall never lie dovvn under him. Therefore vve ſhould be vvatchful, that vve may practice, and be able to apply vvhatſoever is ſpoken to us; vve are to keep a due vvatchfulneſs, for that vvhich is due to one thing is not due to another; that vvhich is ſufficient for one, is not for another. Proportioning it to what we are about.

Fourthly, Take heed of all things that may hinder Watchfulneſſe. Avoiding hinderances.

And firſt, Take heed of vain Company. If vve will be watchful, we muſt exerciſe our ſelves vvith thoſe that are godly. To be vvith ſecure Chriſtians, is the vvay to be ſecure; this vvill hinder a man: A man had better be alone, then be in bad Company, as the Prophet David ſaith, Pſal. 102. 7. I watch and am alone as a Sparrow on the houſe top: he was alone, and yet he was watching. A man when he is alone may be watching, rather then when he is in ſuch Company: a man can never look to himſelf well, unleſſe he prize the Communion of Saints. Vain company.

Secondly, A man ſhould be ſober; Take heed of Spiritual Drunkenneſs: Take heed of the cares of this life, and that you be not immoderate in any lawful thing; we ſhould ſtand upon our guard, and keep our hearts with all manner of keeping; if our hearts grow drowzy and idle, and if we neglect Sobriety, then we are gone, therefore in Scripture theſe are Spiritual drunkenneſſe.

put together, be ſober, and watch, 1 Theſſ. 5. 6. 1 Pet. 5. 8. I do not mean Drunkenneſſe with Wine, for there is a Drunkenneſſe, and not with Wine, as the Prophet ſpeaks, a man may be drunk with the love of the Creature: if thou loveſt thy eaſe too well, or any thing in the world too well, thou art drunk with it, thy heart is giddy, thou art no more able to Pray, or do any thing that's good, then a drunken man is.

Setting God before our eyes.

Fifthly, If thou wilt Watch, then ſet the Lord alwayes before thy eyes: Set the watchman of Iſrael before thy face. God is called a watcher, Dan. 4. 23. Now if thou wilt watch over thy ſelf, ſet God before thy face, as David did. Pſal. 16. 8. I have ſet God before mine eyes; ſo alwayes ſet the Lord before thine eyes.

Uſe. Exhorting to watchfulneſſe.

Now I come to the laſt thing, which is an Uſe of Exhortation; To exhort us to be careful of this Duty, and there is great need of it.

Motives. Becauſe otherwiſe it will be ill with us at laſt.

Firſt, We all deſire to do well: Now how can we do well at laſt, unleſs we watch well all our life time? What is the reaſon that many are without comfort, not like the Servants of God, full of horrour, and fear, and quaking? It is becauſe they do not watch, as it was with the Five wiſe Virgins, they were ſomething wiſe, not like the fooliſh, but they ſlumbred too; Now when the bridegroom came, there was a cry; they made an out-cry, and a ſhrieking, and an howling, they were undone, the bridegroom was come: one would have thought, they ſhould have rejoyced that the bridegroom was come. What godly Chriſtians, and Religious People, when the bridegroom comes to fall a howling and a crying? This was becauſe they ſlumbred, whereas if a man be watchful over his life, and careful to keep an humble heart, and to honour God, and ſtudy how to die comfortably at laſt, he may rejoyce at the coming of the bridegroom; but becauſe they were in a ſlumber, there was a cry, therefore as the Apoſtle Peter ſaith, 1 Pet. 4. 7. The end of all things is at hand, therefore be ſober, and watch unto prayer; the Apoſtle brings this as an Argument: ſo I may ſay, the end of all things is at hand, therefore be ſober, and watch; as a Traveller, when the day is almoſt ſpent, and he hath a great way to go, he puts ſpurs to his Horſe, and rides the faſter; ſo the end of all things is at hand, therefore we had need to be the more diligent and watchful, that we may have all things ready; the end comes upon us: We have had the Goſpel a long time, and God knows how ſoon we ſhall have an end thereof; therefore how ought we to be careful? as a man that is to write a Letter, may be at firſt he is ſomething careleſſe, and writes his lines ſomething broad, but when he comes near to the end, and hath a great deal to write, he writes his lines cloſe, and crowds them together: So now when we are coming towards an end, we cannot look that God ſhould alwayes ſtrive with us, we ſhould now therefore labour to write cloſe, and to make our Duties thick, and to be enquiring after Grace, whereſoever we come, we think the time is long, but we may juſtly fear it is ſhorter then we imagine; as when an hour-glaſs is almoſt out, a man that ſits below, will think there is a great deal to run, but the ſand is hollow, and is run out before a man is aware; ſo the Lord ſo carries himſelf towards people, that they may think there is a great deal of Patience more, and a great deal of Mercy more to be extended towards them, but when all comes to all, they ſhall find it lyes hollow, and will be out before they are aware.

Becauſe our ſouls are ſickly.

Secondly, Conſider how ſickly and diſeaſed our Souls are; how apt they are to fall into ſin: Sickly men are moſt careful; Now our Souls are ſick of ſin, ſick of Pride, ſick of Covetouſneſſe, and Earthly-mindedneſſe, eaſily carried away with the ſins of the times; they are ſick of proneneſſe

to

to do evil, and indiſpoſedneſſe to that which is good, therefore we had need to watch over our ſouls, we had need be our own Porters. Mark 13. 34. our Saviour Chriſt doth compare every Chriſtian to a Porter. The Lord of the houſe takes a great journey, and commands the Porter to watch. We ſhould all be Porters, and keep the gates of our Souls, for we are alwayes in danger.

Thirdly, Conſider that God hath awakened many of us already, and therefore it is a miſerable thing for us to ſleep again. Indeed men that were never converted, and healed, and awakened, and wrought upon, they go to Hell and damnation in a ſleepy ſecurity; but when a man hath been once awakened, and hath ſhaken off ſleep, and God hath made him look about him, to ſee how he might be ſaved; if this man fall aſleep again, it is a moſt miſerable thing; the latter end of that man will be worſe then his beginning. We are already awakened.

Fourthly, Conſider the badneſſe of the Times, and Places, and Families we live in; they are all ſecure, and therefore we had need be ſo much the more vvatchful; and you knovv it is a very hard thing, for a man not to do as others do; therefore the Apoſtle, 1 Theſſ. 5. 6. vvould not have them ſleep as others do, as vvho ſhould ſay, Others do ſo; and therefore you have ſo much the more need to look to your ſelves, that you may not do as others do. Badneſs of the times, and careleſſneſs of the moſt.

THE NEVV BIRTH.

Joh. 3. 6.

That vvhich is born of the Fleſh is Fleſh, but that vvhich is born of the Spirit, is Spirit.

MY Purpoſe is to ſpeak of the ſeveral VVorks of Gods holy Spirit in the hearts and minds of his choſen; they are Gods peculiar people, and therefore he vvill vvork greater Mercies for them, then for any elſe: Novv the Firſt grand diſtinguiſhing vvork of the Holy Ghoſt in the Elect is Regeneration; he is the Author of Spiritual life in them, they are born of him, though by nature they are born of the fleſh, and ſo are fleſh; and in that eſtate can never enter into the kingdom of God: yet vvhen the Spirit of God comes to regenerate them, they come to be Spirit, they come to have a nevv life, and the Spirit of God gives it them: it is true that Chriſt is the Author of this life, he procured it by his death, he quickens whom he will, as he told his Diſciples, Joh. 14. 19. Becauſe I live, ye ſhall live alſo: Life is derived by Chriſt to all the Members of Chriſt; for as all in Adam died, Adam is the general root of all, in his loins, and by him they come to be dead in ſin; ſo Chriſt is the Second Adam, and all that are in his loins, all that are in him, he is a quickning Spirit to them, 1 Cor. 15. 45. The firſt man Adam was made a living Soul, the ſecond Adam was made a quickning Spirit: Chriſt is the ſecond Adam, and is a quickning Spirit to all that are in him;

God

God the Father hath appointed him to be the Prince of Life, as Peter tells his Hearers, Act. 3. 15. The Lord Jesus Christ, he is the Prince of life to all the people of God: and therefore Saint John saith, He that hath the Son, hath life; and he that hath not the Son, hath not life, 1 Joh. 5. 12. He is the Father of this new Birth, and he is the daily and continual Father of it: He is not a Father for one, or two, or divers years, but Isa. 9. 6. he is called, An everlasting Father, to regenerate a people to God; and he doth it by his Resurrection, 1 Pet. 1. 3. This must needs be granted, That Christ must be the Author of this new Life.

Now you will say, Then why is it attributed to the Spirit? The Text gives it to the Spirit of God, the Holy Ghost; now if Christ be the Author of this new Birth, and the giver of this new Life, and God the Father hath appointed him to be so, Why is it then here said, That the Spirit doth it?

Regeneration attributed to the Spirit,

I Answer: It is given to the Spirit for Three Reasons:

First, Because Christ doth it by the Spirit: Whatsoever Christ doth without, he doth it by the Spirit: when he cast out Divels here upon Earth, he did it by his Spirit; all the outward VVorks that he wrought, he wrought them by his Spirit; and therefore the Spirit is called, the Finger of God, Luk. 11. 20. Now if Christ do this VVork by his Spirit, if he do Regenerate all his people by his own Spirit, there is Reason why they should be said to be born of the Spirit.

Because Christ doth it by the Spirit.

Secondly, Another Reason is, Because though this life be all from Christ, it is he that begets it; (it is he that is the soul of every Believer, as I may so speak) yet it is the Spirit that is the Bond of Union; it is the Spirit that joyns Christ and them together, it is the Spirit that tyeth the knot, it is the Spirit that unites and puts them together into one; though Christ be life, and eternal life, yet notwithstanding they are all Aliens from Christ, they are all out of Christ, that the Spirit doth not joyn together with Christ: they that have not the Spirit of Christ, they are none of his; they are all out of Christ, they are like dead branches out of the Vine; it is the Spirit that is the bond of Union between Christ, and those that are Christs.

Spirit is the bond of union between us and Christ.

Thirdly, Another Reason is, Because the Spirit quickens the word, whereby this is done: The people of God, the thing that they are born of again, it is the immortal seed of the VVord, 1 Pet. 1. 23. You are born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible; Now this seed is sowen in all mens hearts, scattered among all the Congregation, but yet it doth not Regenerate all the Congregation: The Reason is, where the Spirit comes, that makes it fruitful, and that makes it to quicken the heart, and thus you see the meaning of the words, That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit.

Because the Spirit quickens the word whereby we are born again.

Now here are Two Points:

First, That the Spirit of God, or the Holy Ghost, Regenerates all the people of God; whosoever is born again, is born of the Spirit.

The Second Point is this, That all that are Regenerate, all that are born of the Spirit, they are Spirit; that is, they are spiritual, they are like the Spirit.

The First is, That it is the Spirit of God, the Holy Ghost, that doth Regenerate all the people of God; this is that which makes them to be new Creatures, to be new men, to be altogether different from that they were before; this is that which doth distinguish them from themselves, even as much as white from black; this is that which doth alienate them from the courses of the world; this is that which doth make them to be singular

That the Spirit of God doth regenerate all the Saints.

and

and odde fellows, as if they were of another world; this makes them lead a different kind of life, and follow a different kind of way from all their neighbors, because the Spirit of God works in them; as Ishmael and Isaac, though Ishmael was born after the flesh, yet Isaac was born after the Spirit, as the Apostle alludes, Gal. 4. 23. that is, one took one kind of course, the other another; one was born one way, the other another way; the Spirit begat one, the Flesh the other, and this made Ishmael to persecute Isaac, because Isaac could not abide his courses, they were of different Natures and Dispositions, one was born after the Spirit, the other after the Flesh.

Now here be Six Things I would shew unto you:

First, What Regeneration is.

Secondly, Why it is so called.

Thirdly, Wherein it consists.

Fourthly, The Reasons why the Spirit of God only works this work.

Fifthly, How he works it.

And Lastly, The Uses.

What Regeneration is.

First, What Regeneration is: And it is thus much, namely, The renewing of the whole man, and by degrees compleated after the Image of God in Jesus Christ: This is Regeneration; and there be Five Things to be opened in it:

A Renewing.

First, That it is the renewing of a man; It is not every change, there may be abundance of changes and alterations, and yet a man for the main may be the same man he is; a man may be changed from a Drunkard to be sober, from an Adulterer to be chaste; yet still he was the same man he was before, though there be changes wrought in him: but Regeneration is the renewing of a man, the making of a man another man, as the Apostle speaks, 2 Cor. 5. 17. Old things are passed away, and all things are become new: The Lord doth take away the old frame, and the old affections, and the old inclinations, the old acquaintance, the old course and conversation, all these things passe away, and the Lord puts in new things in the room thereof, till all things become new; thus it is in this work, as the Apostle speaks, Tit. 3. 5. According to his mercy he saved us by the washing of Regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; the Lord removeth the old rubbish, and puts a new fabrick in the room; as a Goldsmith, he takes a vessel of dishonour and melts it, and makes it a vessel of honour. God doth undo the old workmanship, and makes a new: as David saith, Create in me, O Lord, a clean heart, &c. Psal. 51. 10. David thought he had lost all, therefore he prayeth to God that he may be new cast, that he may be taken all to pieces, as a VVatch-maker takes a VVatch that is out of order, he takes it all to pieces, and sets it together anew again; so he prayes God to deal with him, he had lost all in sense and feeling, and would have God make him a new workmanship, it is called the renewing of a man. Ezek. 11. 19. there is an excellent place, I will give them a new heart, &c. The Lord puts out, and he puts in, even just as a Sister doth when she works cut-works, she puts out the cloths own threds, and puts in needle-work; so the Lord puts out the old heart, and puts in a new heart; he takes out that which was stark naught, and puts in that which is good and agreeable to his mind: the old heart is corrupt, and the old man is stark naught, there is nothing good in it; these the Lord takes out, and puts in all new: A man is altogether naught and reprobate before; what poor creatures are all people that are not Regenerate? they are all proud, and vain, and foolish, and wordly, and earthly, and harden their hearts, and are careless of Gods wayes, they have have no fear of God before their eyes, they are altogether rotten, how ill-favouredly do they pray? How worldly do they go on in their callings? How unfruitfully do they come to Church? They are all rotten and refractory, they do nothing that right is; now when the Spirit of God doth make them up, he puts out all old things, and makes them new. This is the First thing, Regeneration, is the renewing of a man.

Secondly, As it is the renewing of a man, so it is the renewing of the whole man: It is not only in some things, for Saul was another man in some sense; but Regeneration is the renewing of the whole man, as the Apostle saith, The God of peace sanctifie you throughout, in body, soul, and Spirit, 1 Thess. 5. 23. it is a work upon the whole man; our Saviour Christ compares it to leaven, which a woman took and leavened the whole Lump: It is like unto Original sin, as Original sin infects the whole man; so Regeneration doth repair and renew the whole man; it is as general and universal, as original sin: the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodnesse, Ephes. 5. 9. It is in all goodnesse; in the goodnesse of a mans mind, and in the goodnesse of a mans affections, in the goodnesse of the inclination and disposition, in the goodnesse of the whole man; the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodnesse; indeed it begins in the goodnesse of the mind, as the Apostle speaks, Ephes. 4. 23. Be renewed in the Spirit of your minds: Where he calls upon them for this new work; Put off the old man (saith he) and be renewed in the Spirit of your minds; that is the First thing, when a man hath a new mind given unto him, a new knowledge put into his understanding, a man is renewed in knowledge, Col. 3. 10. This is the first thing, when God renewеth a mans knowledge and apprehension of things, when a man begins to know the plagues of his own heart, and the evils of all his own wayes, now a man begins to see through these things, and now he begins to see the wayes of God, and to dive deep beneath the irksomnesse of them, to know the amiableneſſe of them, the sweetnesse of them: the delights of them are hidden from a man, so long as he is unregenerate; but when God doth begin to regenerate a man, now he begins to discover them to him, that a man seeth what they are: he could say before that the wayes of God were good, but he could never taste and find them so; but when a man is renewed, now he seeth the lustre and amiableneſſe of them; so also, he seeth the uglineſſe of sin, this was covered before, sin deceived the heart, and carried him after it; but now sin begins to be laid stark naked, and a man seeth the deformity of it, here begins Regeneration in the mind, for the understanding is the key of the Soul, the key of all the Faculties of the Soul, it is like a sluce or flood gate, pull up that, and the water goes out and runs all abroad; so when the Lord doth pluck up this sluce, and lift up a mans heart, and mind, and understanding: now the waters of life flow into the soul: this is against them now, that have plenty of knowledge, and yet notwithstanding go no further; that have new minds, and old wills and affections, there is a new brain, but an old heart; this is not regeneration: regeneration (it is true) begins in the understanding, but it runs along in all the soul, it descends into heart and mind, and all the whole man, and therefore it is called a new creature, whosoever is in Christ is a new creature, Behold, I make all things new, (saith Christ) Rev. 21. 5. As Regeneration is the renewing of a man, so it is the renewing of the whole man.

A Renewing of the whole man.

Thirdly, It is done by degrees: Though Regeneration be in all parts, yet it is not in all degrees at once, the spirit of God doth renew more and more, and beget a man more and more; there is of the old birth a great while, but he doth eat it out more and more, as the Apostle speaks,

By degrees perfected.

2 Cor. 3. 18. And we all with open face, &c. Mark here, he calls this change glory, because it is a glorious creature; as long as a man is not renewed, he is a base creature; but when he is renewed, he is a glorious creature: Now saith he, when the Lord doth this, he doth it from glory to glory, from one degree to another; as this is done by the Spirit of God, so he doth it more; he proceeds from little beginnings to greater perfections; it was not so with Adam, God made him in his full stature at the first, he was a man at the first dash; but this new creature, is as a Babe conceived in the Womb, it begins there, and so grows up; As new born babes desire the sincere milk of the Word, 1 Pet. 2. 2. He is a babe first, and so growes, though it be not a starveling but grows, yet it is but a weak one at first, and must grow and come to its strength more and more: it is like a good husband that begins with a little, and ariseth up to a great estate in the end; so Regeneration makes a man a good husband, puts a little stock into his hands, and makes him rise to a great matter.

According to Gods Image.

Fourthly, This is according to the Image of God: It is not all kind of Renewing: A man may have a new work that he had not before; but the work of regeneration, as it is a renewing, so it is a renewing after the image of God; man had quite and clean lost the Image of God, which consisted in Righteousness and Holiness; Now when Gods Spirit comes to regenerate a man, that reneweth him according to this Image: As the Apostle speaks, Ephes. 4. 24. That ye put on the new man which is created after his image: and how is that? In Righteousness and Holiness. As it is in Nature, though a man be never so godly when he begets a man, he begets him after his image, as he is by nature polluted and unclean: Gen. 5. 3. So Adam begat Seth in his own image: so when the Spirit begets a man again, he begets him after his own image, he makes him merciful as his heavenly Father is merciful, Luke 6. 36. and perfect as he is perfect, Matth. 5. ult. There are none regenerate and born again, but those that are like God, the Lord stamps upon them his own similitude, and makes them like to himself.

In Jesus Christ

Fifthly, This is the Image of God in Jesus Christ; who is the express image of his Father; he is the pattern after which this frame is made: nay, God did order it should be so from eternity, Rom. 8. 29. Whom he did fore-know, he did predestinate, that they should be conformed to the image of his Son: 'Tis true, this similitude is not presently made out, it is but by halves as it were; it is but a poor first draught, and never perfect in this life, but it shall be made perfect, 1 Joh. 3. 2, 3. We know when he appears, we shall be like him, and shall see him as he is; then we shall be perfectly like him, and see him as he is, and know him as he is, as Paul saith, Col. 3. 2, 3. You are dead, and your life is hid in Christ, &c. Here the work is hardly come to its glory, there is a great deal of baseness and old rubbish still, but it shall be glorious before God hath done, it shall come to be perfect then; in the mean time, it is but by degrees, but the work of regeneration puts a man to go to Christ, and believe in Christ, That he follow him in Regeneration, &c. saith our Saviour, Matth. 19. 28. When a man is regenerate, regeneration puts a frame into a mans heart to be like unto Christ, and to follow his steps, and his example, that as he hath done, so he may do more and more: this is the work of regeneration, That the Spirit of God works in Gods people, conforming them to the Image of Christ: Yea, Regeneration doth more than repair a man, more than reduce a man to that estate wherein he was in Adam's loins before the Fall; it is the ingrafting of a man into Christ, and the estating a man into the Merits and Priviledges of the

Lord

Lord Jeſus Chriſt, it is a greater matter, then the bare reſtoring of a man to that which he loſt, it is the reſtoring of a man to a better eſtate; this differences it from Sanctification. Thus we ſee what Regeneration is.

Why called Regeneration.

Now the Second Thing is, Why it is ſo called? Why this ſame bleſſed work of the renewing of the whole man after the Image of God in Chriſt Jeſus is called Regeneration. There be Two Reaſons of it.

To ſhew the great Corruption of Nature.

First, To ſhew us how marvellouſly we are corrupt by Nature: Until the Spirit of God take us in hand, a man is quite rotten, there is no ſoundneſſe left, there is nothing in him will ſerve, it is not a little melting will ſerve the turn, it is not a little plaiſtering, or patching, or piecing will do the deed: though there be a thouſand changes in a man, yet if a man be not another man, if he be not a new creature, it is to no effect, it will never bring a man into the kingdom of God; what ſaith Chriſt, Joh. 3. 3. Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God: As who ſhould ſay, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, a man is all to ſhatters, all to pieces, all rotten, and unleſſe he be born again, and made a new creature, it is impoſſible he ſhould enter into the kingdom of God; though a man be never ſo much altered, he is not in the eſtate of Grace till he be a new man, till the Lord hath given him a new frame, and a new inclination: except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the kingdom of God, he cannot ſee the kingdom of Grace: that is the firſt dowry of the kingdom of Grace, to give a man a new Being that he never had before: a natural man is juſt like an old rotten houſe, that hath not one piece that will ſerve the turn; but a man that will make it an habitable houſe, muſt take it all down to the ground, and build it up from the ground: ſo it is here, there is not one piece will ſerve the turn; though ye ſee admirable things in men, though they ſeem excellent in the eyes of men, yet they will not ſerve the turn, they are rotten and ſtark naught; there is an abſence of all Good, Rom. 7. 18. Nay beſides, there is an univerſal indiſpoſition in a man, like to a thing that is all rotten and marred, and can never be made up again, except it be made ſpick and ſpan new; and ſo it is with a man, he is altogether corrupt, as the Prophet ſpeaks, Iſa. 1. from the ſole of the foot, to the crown of the head, nothing but bruiſes and putrified ſoars; take a man that is never ſo civil, and of fair carriage, ſo long as he is not a new creature, this is nothing for the entring into the kingdom of God, and being amiable in his ſight: Nay, Gen. 6. 5. the Text ſaith, The thoughts of the heart of man are only evil continually, there is nothing ſound in a man, though he daily think of Grace, and think of God, his thoughts cannot be ſaid to be good, for the mind whereby he thinks of theſe things is rotten, and unſavory; though he ſpeaks of never ſo good things, the ſame things the Saints of God ſpeak of; though he doth the ſame actions the people of God do; though he hears the ſame VVord, and receives the ſame Sacraments, he cannot do them aright, they are abomination in Gods ſight, therefore when God regenerates a man, he muſt make him another man then he was before. This ſpeaks natures corruption.

The work well expreſſed by the Name

Secondly, Becauſe the things of Regeneration are admirably ſet out by way of this ſimilitude: Natural Generation is generally, ſweetly anſwered in this VVork of Regeneration.

Father, both in Natural and Spiritual Generation.

First, As a man cannot come into the World without Parents, but he muſt have a Father to beget him, ſo it is in this new Birth: as in the other there was an earthly Father, ſo here is an heavenly Father, as the Author to the Hebrews ſpeaks, Heb. 12. 9. How much rather ſhall we be ſubjected to the Father of Spirits? There are two Fathers, an earthly Father, the Father of the natural and corrupt man, and God the Father of our Spirits, that is, the Father of our ſpiritual Nature, as many excellent Divines do expound it: though it may be expounded the Father of our Souls; yet this is more likely, becauſe here is an oppoſition between the Father of the Fleſh, and the Father of the Spirits: God himſelf is the Father of this new work.

A Mother in both.

Secondly, Here is a Mother too; That Jeruſalem which is from above, is the Mother of them all; they are all Zions Children, here is the Womb that theſe new creatures lye in, Chriſts Spouſe; the Lambs wife is their Mother; though the world hate them and her too, yet they love her; nay, though the woman be thrown out into the wilderneſs, yet their hearts run after her; the Regenerate only are the true born, this is their Mother.

Firſt, Conception, and then Birth.

Thirdly, As it is in the Natural Birth, There is a ſhaping in the Womb, before there is a coming into life: ſo it is here, as the Apoſtle ſaith, there is a conceiving of a man in the womb, before he is, Gal. 4. 19. My little Children, of whom I travel in Birth, till Chriſt be formed in you; There is the Conception; 'tis true, wicked men have many Conceptions, but they do not bring forth, Chriſt is not formed in them; they may have many ſtirrings that way, but they periſh in the Birth; but Zion travelt and brings forth Children, Iſa. 66. 8.

Pain accompanies both Births.

Fourthly, Again, As it is in the Natural Birth, None is brought forth, without the pains of travel; So there be pains in this new Birth, legal terrours which the Reprobate are killed with and die under, but the godly come forth from under them ſafe and bettered.

Both come to a Being they had not.

Fifthly, Again, As it is in the firſt Birth, the Child that is born and comes into the world, he comes from no Being to a Being, from no Exiſtency to an Exiſtency; ſo it is here in this new Birth, thoſe which were no people, are now made the people of God; thoſe that had no being in Chriſt, now have a being in him; they are come into a new world, into a new heaven and a new earth; others live in this world, but they live in a new world.

New Kindred follows both.

Sixthly, Again, As it is in the firſt Birth, A man comes to have Children, to have Brothers and Siſters; ſo in this Birth, a man comes to have new Kindred, all the Godly in the world are of his Conſanguinity; though they be counted the Puritans of the Pariſh, yet they are of his bloud, and Chriſt himſelf is their Brother, and Abraham is their Father (under God) and Sarah is their Mother; there is a new Kindred. Indeed here is the difference, that the Children of the firſt Birth they are viſible, and their lives and courſes are viſible, and their alliance and kindred is viſible, and all that they are and do is viſible; but the Children of the ſecond Birth are not viſible: indeed their perſons are viſible as well as others, but their life is an inviſible thing, their excellency, their glory, this new creature in them, this is inviſible, it is like that River in Spain, which runs fourteen miles under ground; whence they have a Proverb, That the Bridge over the River is fourteen miles long: So there is a River in Surry that is juſt the like, it runs under the ground inviſible, they cannot ſee it; ſo theſe new creatures they cannot be ſeen, their lives run under ground, their lives are hidden with God, indeed their perſons, and outward actions and courſes may be ſeen; nay, wicked men may do thoſe very outward actions which they do; they may Pray together with them, and come to Church together with them, but this new workmanſhip they cannot ſee, that runs along under ground, the world ſeeth it not, neither can they know it, becauſe they know not Chriſt the Author of it: Thus we ſee the ſecond thing, namely, Why it is ſo called.

Now

Now the Third Thing is, Wherein this bleſſed Work doth conſiſt: and it conſiſts in Two Things, Joh. 1. 12. The Evangeliſt ſaith, To as many as received him, he gave power to become the Sons of God. Here be Two Things, and both theſe Regeneration conſiſts of: Wherein Regeneration conſiſteth.

Firſt, A Paſſive receiving of Chriſt, Whoſoever receives him.

Secondly, An Active Title to God, as to a Father, They have power to become the Sons of God.

First, A Paſſive receiving of Chriſt; To as many as received him: for he came to his own and they received him not; his own, even his own Elect, would not receive him, till he made them receive him; but as many as received him, as many as were made paſſively to receive him, did receive him alſo actively: ſo that this word implyes the Paſſive receiving of Chriſt; for there is none can receive any thing, except it be given him from above, Joh 3. 27. That is, except there be firſt a paſſive reception of it: It is a ſtrange phraſe, No man can receive Chriſt, till Chriſt is firſt received of him; he can never take Chriſt, till Chriſt come into him, till Chriſt ingraft himſelf into him, and him into Chriſt; this is an act of God, it is a paſſive receiving of Chriſt: the reaſon is, becauſe all the Graces, and all the Activity of Gods people flowes from this, their Faith, and all; for Faith is an act, which receives from the paſſive receiving of Chriſt, as Paul ſpeaks to the Coloſſians, As you have received Chriſt, ſo walk in him; Faith receives Chriſt, that is an active receiving of Chriſt, but there was a paſſive receiving of Chriſt firſt; for a man is in Chriſt firſt in a paſſive manner, before he is in him in an active manner, Chriſt hath taken him already, before he can take Chriſt actually: This is the firſt Thing wherein this work of Regeneration conſiſts, The Paſſive receiving of Chriſt. Paſſive receiving Chriſt.

Secondly, It conſiſts in having an active power and title to become a Son of God; together with Jeſus Chriſt; Theſe are the Two Things wherein Regeneration conſiſts. I know many Divines branch it otherwiſe, and make Regeneration to conſiſt otherwiſe: An active power to become a child of God.

Firſt, Of Mortification.

Secondly, Of Vivification.

Firſt, Of Mortification: Whereby the Spirit kills the Luſts of the Fleſh more, as Rom. 8. 13. If ye live after the Fleſh ye ſhall die, but if ye through the Spirit mortifie the deeds of the Fleſh, ye ſhall live: Mark; here is Mortification, and it is done by the Spirit; if you through the ſpirit mortifie the deeds of the body.

Secondly, There is Vivification; that is, when a man doth not only die unto ſin, but riſe up again to a new life, Rom. 6. 11. Likewiſe reckon ye your ſelves to be dead unto ſin, but alive unto God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. This is the other work of Vivification, when a man is made alive unto God, and is made able by the ſpirit of God to be alive unto God, and to wind himſelf out of death into life, by the ſpirit of the holy One. Theſe be the Two Parts whereof many Divines make Regeneration to conſiſt of; but though they beat at the ſame thing, yet I rather make them the Effects and Conſequents of Regeneration, as flowing from Regeneration; this paſſive work goeth before, a man never goeth on in mortifying the works of the Fleſh, and never raiſeth himſelf up to this heavenly life till he be Regenerated; ſo that regeneration is the firſt ingrafting of a man into Chriſt, whereby he is alive, that he may do all theſe things; it is a power put into him whereby he may believe and repent, ſo that Believing, and Repentance, and Mortification, and Vivification are acts of the new creature; a man muſt therefore be a new creature firſt, now this is by Regeneration, ſo that Regeneration conſiſts only of theſe Two Things:

Firſt,

First, Of a passive receiving of Christ the Son of God. Secondly, In having a title to be the Son of God; and Regeneration doth not only bring a relative change, but a real change to a man: If you would know the meaning of the phraſe, A relative change is this, when there is a change in a man, from that he was before; but the change doth not lye in a man, as the change of Juſtification: before he was not Juſtified, now he is Juſtified, the man is changed; but he is not changed in himſelf, but it ſtands only in Gods imputation; he is not juſt in himſelf, but by imputation juſt. Now the real change is, When God doth puriſie and make up the defects in a man more and more, that is a real change; ſo that I ſay, Regeneration is not only a relative change, whereby God accounts a man as a child; but it breeds a real change in a man, it gives a man a ſpiritual Being; for the Spirit of God when it comes to work this work, is a fruitful principle of all good in that man more and more: Therefore the Apoſtle ſaith, The fruits of the Spirit, are joy, peace, long-ſuffering, &c. Gal. 5. 22. 'Tis true, the Spirit doth not bring forth theſe Graces till after a man is regenerate, but by working that Regeneration, which makes the ſoul to bring forth theſe fruits, and making the heart an honeſt heart, and ſo a good ground to bring forth theſe ſeeds; the Spirit is a fruitful principle of all good in that man. Thus you ſee the Third Thing, viz. Wherein Regeneration conſiſts.

Reaſons why the Spirit worketh Regeneration.

Now the Fourth Thing is the Reaſons of this Point, Why the Spirit of God doth work this work of Regeneration.

It is the good pleaſure of God

The Firſt Reaſon is, Becauſe it is meerly according to the Will of God: Man hath no power at all, man hath no activity, it is meerly at the pleaſure of God, whether he will do it or no; Jam. 1. 18. Of his own Will begat he us; he only had an hand in it, he only did it, and it was meerly at his good Will and Pleaſure, he might have choſen whether he would have done it or no; it is no fruit of our liberty, it is no brood of our breeding, it is meerly the free act of God in a man, Joh. 6. 44. No man cometh to me except the Father draweth him; There Chriſt ſheweth it, this bringing of a man to be in Chriſt, it cannot be from any man, except the Father draw him; except he ſend forth his heavenly Spirit, he can never come to Chriſt; all our ſufficiency is from God, we cannot ſo much as think a good thought, we cannot renew our thoughts, we cannot renew our inclinations, or our wills, or our affections; we can do nothing of our ſelves, it is only his work; therefore ſeeing it is ſuch a ſpecial work, it muſt be only the Spirit of God that muſt work it; it is a glorious work, a ſupernatural work; this new Birth, is ſuch a Birth as comes from above, Pſal. 110. 3. Thy people ſhall be willing in the day of thy power, &c. ſaith the text, that is, all that are born of God, they are brought forth in the day of Gods power, in the day wherein God is pleaſed to put forth his power in them; therefore they are called the ſeed of Chriſt, Iſa. 53. 10. They are his ſeed, but unleſs he begets them by his Spirit, they can never be ſo. Therefore if we conſider the greatneſs of the work, it ſheweth plainly, it muſt needs be the effect of the Will of God, and his good Pleaſure towards man, and therefore muſt be wrought by the Spirit.

No other agent can do it.

Secondly, Another Reaſon is, Becauſe it is not a work of this world: It is a work of another world, it is none of the creatures of this life, it is beyond the ſphere of the activity of any natural agent, they cannot reach it, Joh. 1. 13. Which were born not of the will of the fleſh, nor of blood, &c. It is not of mans Will, he cannot ſo much as Will it, or Deſire it effectually, he cannot wiſh it truly, nay, his heart had rather have the world; nay, ſaith he, It is not of the Will of the Fleſh, that is, a man may go and beget beget another Child in the world, becauſe it is of the Will of the Fleſh, it is in the power of the Will of the Fleſh, Gods power going along with him, but this is not ſo, whatſoever a man be, though he hath never ſo many excellent parts, it is not in the Will of the Fleſh to do it. Then again, it is not of Bloud, it is no terrene or earthly thing, this new creature is otherwiſe made, than any new creature in the world beſides, therefore he concludes, it is only born of God, it is God only that is the great Author of this great work, it deſcends down meerly from above.

Thirdly, Becauſe it is ſo far from being wrought by any power in man, or any counſel in man, or any endeavours in man, it is ſo far from that, as that a man is totally againſt it; A man is an enemy unto it, a man hath reluctancy and repugnancy againſt it, he would not be regenerate; when a man doth think he deſires heaven, and to be regenerated of God, he doth apprehend Regeneration in a wrong way, and heaven in a wrong way, ſo as he apprehends it, he doth Will it; he thinks of heaven as of a fine place, and a place full of pleaſure, and therefore deſires it; but that he ſhould alwayes be with God, that he ſhould alwayes be praying and thinking of God, and minding of God, and have his heart weaned from all other things, and ſet it on God, this is heaven, but he hates theſe things, and ſo hates heaven, ſo he Wills that which he apprehends to be Regeneration; but Regeneration, is when a man hath a new heart, and when he is a new man: he was wordly before, but he is now brought to be ſpiritual, he was proud before, but he is now come to be humble, but the heart cannot abide this, therefore let the Lord fling in abundance of throws into a natural mans heart, to begin ſome preparatory work this way, to make a man begin to look out towards heaven, he flings all away, he is weary of them quickly; as a man at a Sermon, perhaps may have throws concerning the new birth, but the corruption of his heart will throw all way, he cannot endure them, they are contrary to the corruption of a mans nature, nay, when God comes to work upon his own people, what a deal of pleading is there with the world, the fleſh, and the Divel, that they may not be caſt out: Therefore when Peter ſaw that through the grace and power of God, this work was wrought in thoſe he wrote unto, 1 Pet. 1. 3. Mark how he ſpeaks, Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again to a lively hope, by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt from the dead: He lifts up his hands to heaven, and bleſſeth God that ever this work was wrought, he ſaw ſo much adoe, and ſuch a ſtir, and ſuch a deal of oppoſition, this is a plain ſign that it is not of man, it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God which ſheweth mercy, Rom. 9. 16. Neither can man Will, neither can he run, neither go, nor ſtir towards it, nay, though God make him go, how apt is he to laggar in the way, and draw back again? So you ſee the Fourth Thing, why it muſt needs be the Spirits work.

Man is totally againſt it of himſelf.

The Fifth Thing is, How the Spirit of God works this work. It is after an unſpeakable manner: Who can declare the noble acts of the Lord? The works of God in Nature are marvellous. David himſelf, when he looked upon his natural birth, the Conception of him in the Womb of his Mother, he wondered at it, Pſal. 139. 14. That was a wonderful work, how much more is this unſpeakable, and unutterable? As it is ſaid of our Saviour Chriſt, Who can declare his generations? So may I ſay in a lower ſenſe, of this Work, Who can declare this Regeneration of his people? But yet thus far the Scripture doth authorize, and warrant us to go,

How the Spirit worketh Regeneration.

First,

By the Word of Life.

First, That he doth it by the word of Life; By the Gospel of Salvation, by the Preaching of it, or otherwise according as he pleaseth, that is the immortal seed, 1 Pet. 1. 23. Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, &c. And as Paul saith to the Corinthians, Though you have ten thousand instructers, yet you have not many Fathers, for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the Gospel, 1 Cor. 4. 15. As who should say, You are begotten and born again, and you are born again by the Word, and I was an instrument under God of your new Birth, by the Word which I have Preached among you; and therefore, 1 Tim. 1. 2. he calls Timothy, His own Son, So Tit. 1. 4. he calls him, His Son in the Faith: that is, he was an instrumental Father under God, by the Doctrine of Faith, to bring him to be a Child of God: So that I say it is done by the Word, Of his own Will hath he begotten us by the Word of truth, Jam. 1. 18. The Spirit of the Lord sanctifies the Word when he is pleased to convert a man, the Word shall shew him what a miserable creature he is by nature; it sheweth him that flesh and bloud cannot enter into the kingdom of God, it sheweth him that he is utterly forlorn in himself, and past all recovery, and shews him where life is to be had: namely, in Jesus Christ, discovering his worth, and excellency, and necessity, and that all Grace and good is in him, and shews him the freedom of this gracious offer: Thus the Spirit of God, when he propounds the Word to the soul, holds it before the eyes and conscience, and sanctifies it, and puts a power into it, to enter deep into the soul, that it may Conceive in the soul.

By a secret and supernatural power.

Secondly, The Lord doth it by an unspeakable working: There is a Divine work which the Lord worketh; The Spirit comes into the soul after the manner of water; as Christ saith, Joh. 3. Except a man be born again of water and the holy Ghost, &c. that is, unless he be born of the Spirit, which worketh in the spirit of a man, as water doth in working upon a foul thing. Now what this working is we cannot tell, but we can tell you the effects of it; whereas the soul was rotten and naught before, and impotent to all good, now it begins to have a better disposition and a new power: And whereas it did savour of the things of this life before, now it savours of the things that are above: but this is a secret kind of working in the soul, therefore it is called the washing, and the laver of it: And the Apostle speaking of the Corinthians, what miserable creatures they were before Regeneration, he nameth Drunkards, Idolaters, Adulterers, &c. and all manner of filthy persons, Such were some of you, (saith he) before your Regeneration, but now you are washed, and justified, and sanctified in the Name of Christ, 1 Cor. 6. 11. That same washing there, he means by that you are Regenerated; so that Regeneration, it is a supernatural, an unspeakable kind of washing of the soul by the holy Ghost, whereby the soul hath its Corruption washed from it in part, and made clean in part, and way made for all the Graces of Gods Spirit to come in now, and all the fruits of the Spirit to be brought forth: Thus the Spirit of God works this work, he works it in an ineffable manner by the word of Life, and by a secret kind of washing.

Use. 1. Of Confutation of Pelagians, &c.

I come now to the Application of this Point; And first of all, If the Spirit of God be the Regenerater of Gods people, then we may here see the error of the Papists, Pelagians, &c. That set up the Will of man, and put any activity in the Reason, and Judgement, and Wisdom, and Election of man. This Doctrine of theirs is unsound, and contrary to the working of Gods holy Spirit; If it be such a work as God sends his own Spirit to do it: What man can do it? It is called Regeneration, and this shews

ſhews it is not of man: who is able to beget himſelf, and ſhape himſelf in the womb, and diſpoſe of his own body in the belly? Nay more, Can any man beget himſelf again? The very name of Again, ſhews that it is a work only of God, none but he can do it; and we ſee it plainly, it is wrought no where, but where God himſelf doth it, and they that have it are able to ſpeak it, that they did not chuſe God, but God choſe them; I was found of them that ſought me not; all the ſouls of his people will ſubſcribe, That it was not in them that willed, or in them that ran, but in God that ſhewed mercy: It is God only that is the Author of this thing, and none but he.

Information. Of our continual need of the Spirit.

Secondly, Again, This ſhould teach us to conſider that we have alwayes need of the Spirit of God: If the Spirit of God hath begotten us again, then we have alwayes need of him; it is not in this as in the firſt Birth; when the Child is born, though the Father be gone, the Child may ſubſiſt; but it is not ſo here: but the Spirit of God as he begets a man, ſo he is fain alwayes to ſtand by him and bear him up, and give him ſupplies of Grace from day to day: As it is with the Air, the Sun doth not only enlighten it, but it doth every moment give light to it: for ſuppoſe the Sun ſhould ſhine four or five hours in the day, yet if the Sun ſhould with-hold its light, the Air would be dark preſently; it is not as it is with Fire, let a man heat the water, though he take away the Fire, the water will keep its heat a while after; but do but with-hold the light of the Sun, and all is gone in the ſame moment; ſo it is with this new Creature and the Spirit of God, he doth dwell in the ſoul, as the Sun in the Air; his preſence warms the ſoul, and quickens the ſoul, and inables a man to good, and gives a principle of life, and enables to all actions that are good; therefore how ſhould all Gods people carry themſelves towards this Spirit? They ſhould have a care that they quench him not, nor go againſt him in any particular.

Exhortation 1. Not to grieve the Spirit.

The Third Uſe is for all Gods people, in whom God hath wrought this bleſſed work; the Spirit of God hath regenerated and begotten them again. I ſay to all ſuch perſons, Let them endear this Spirit of God, let them not grieve, or offend, or diſpleaſe him, ſeeing he is ſuch a gracious worker in them: Epheſ. 1. 13. The Apoſtle makes this very Inference, in whom after ye believed ye were ſealed by the holy Spirit of Promiſe: that is, whereby you were Regenerated; Regeneration is the firſt ſeal of the Spirit, whereby he ſeals Gods good will to a man. Now, hath the Spirit of God ſealed you? Then do not grieve him, nor cauſe him to take any indignation againſt you; for though he will never depart from them, whom he hath made new Creatures, yet notwithſtanding he may hide his face for a time if we diſpleaſe him. Yea, Conſider, Will any natural Child willingly diſpleaſe his loving Father? The Spirit of God is our Father, therefore we ſhould have reſpect to him.

2. To do any thing for God.

Again, This ſhould be a Motive to Gods people, to be willing to do any thing for God; becauſe he hath made them, as David faith, Pſal. 100. 3. This very Conſideration, That God hath made us, and re-made us, he hath done that for us that all our own wits could never have done, that the whole world hath not the like (the Lord gener-ally lets the whole World ſink in ruine and damnation) ſhould be a Motive to you, to be willing to ſerve him gladly, and to call upon his Name, to be ready preſt to execute any of his Commands, to enter into his preſence upon all occaſions, ſeeing it is he that hath made us, and not we our ſelves.

3. To the Unregenerate to pray for the Spirit.

To them that are Unregenerated: Here we ſee where to have Regeneration; it is only in God, and in the Spirit of God, to renew a man, and make make a man up again: As David prayed when he had the Spirit, Lord, take not thy holy Spirit from me, Pſal. 51. 11. So when a man hath not the Spirit of God, he ſhould pray to God, Lord, Give thy holy Spirit to me, and ſend down thy holy Spirit into my heart, that may work this work in me. But it may be many of you will think that you expect this, and deſire it, and with it, and uſe ſome means. I Anſwer, Then ſhew it by thy coming unto God for it, from day to day; will any man ſay, That Noah did expect that God ſhould deliver him from the Deluge, if he had not took that courſe which God appointed? If he had not built an Ark, certainly we may juſtly ſay, That he did not look that God would deliver him. Therefore it is ſaid of Noah, That as he did expect that God ſhould keep him; ſo being warned of God, he built an Ark, &c. Heb. 11. 7. So when a man ſhall ſay, That he looks that God ſhould deliver him from his natural eſtate and condition, that God ſhould renew him by his Grace and goodneſs, yet if a man will not prepare an Ark: if when a man is Commanded and directed by God what to do, yet he will not come to God, to do that which ſhould be done for him, theſe men do but deceive their own ſouls, and treaſure up indignation againſt themſelves. I remember the ſtory of Moſes, Exod. 14. when the Children of Iſrael were in Pi-hahiroth, and the Egyptians were behind them, and the Mountains were on the ſide that they could not paſs, and the Sea was before them, and there was notable crying out, Oh! that God would deliver them, now they were dead men, the Egyptians were come out to deſtroy them, the Mountains were on the ſide, and the Sea before them: Now mark what an Anſwer God gives to their cry; cauſe the people to go forward, you keep a crying to me, I pray go forward, you are not yet at the red ſea, but go to the red ſea, and when you are there, then cry to me; you are idleing, and lazing, and miſtruſting me; though the red Sea be before them, yet cauſe them to come thither, and when they are there, then cry for help to me: So thou ſayeſt thou deſireſt that God would Regenerate thee, and quicken thee, and turn thy heart, and vouchſafe thee his holy Spirit: do you ſo? I ſay it is very well, the thing is very good, but if the deſire be ſincere, you will take that courſe God bids you: art thou come to the utmoſt difficulty? Are not many things to be done which thou refuſeſt to do? Muſt thou not ſeek God more, and more carefully? Go forward, go forward, if thou meaneſt to have help and aid from God, otherwiſe it is in vain: if thou wouldſt go on in the wayes of God, and do what God Commands thee, thou ſhouldſt be quickened and renewed.

Of Examination, whether regenerated, or no.

First Signe, When doing good is natural.

Fourthly, Another Uſe is for Examination: To examine our ſelves whether the Word of God hath wrought this for us, yea or no. And the firſt ſign is this, If thou beeſt born again, if thou haſt this new Nature, then it is natural to thee to do good duties, to follow good courſes, and to yield obedience to the commandements of God; it is not enough for a man to do good duties: a natural man, an unregenerate man may do them, but whether is it natural to thee? A proud man may do the actions of humility, a proud man may pull off his Hat, and give the time of the day, and ſpeak meanly of himſelf; a proud man may ſuffer another to do him wrong, and put up baſe language, he may do theſe things, but the man is a proud man ſtill, he hath no humble nature; but the queſtion is, whether it be thy nature to do this? May be thou doſt theſe things for fear, or ſome by-reſpects: A worldly man may ſpeak of heavenly things, but is thy nature heavenly? A man may think of God, but is thy nature godly? Here is the thing, If a man be regenerate, there is Grace got into a mans Nature, Jer. 31. 33. When God Regenerates his people, he ſaith, He will will write his laws in their inward parts; he doth not only ſay they ſhall do theſe duties, but their very hearts ſhall carry them, their very hearts ſhall go to a Sermon, their very ſouls ſhall go about the duties of God; as it is with the fire, water may heat, but not by nature; but it is the nature of fire to heat: So if a man be Regenerate, it is natural to him to do good duties, Rom. 2. 14. A man by nature may do the things commanded in the Law: but here is the queſtion, Whether he doth them with this new nature, this heavenly nature? The old creature may hear, and pray, and be ſober, and moral, for by nature the Heathen did the things contained in the Law: But if a man be Regenerated, as he doth the things contained in the Law and Goſpel, ſo he doth them with a new nature, as Deut. 5. 29. when the Children of Iſrael had ſpoken admirable ſpeeches, All that the Lord ſaith to us we will do; they made goodly profeſſions: now mark what God ſaith, Oh that there were an heart in this people to keep my commandments! As who ſhould ſay, Theſe are very good words, and I know that you think what you ſpeak; but Oh that this were written in your hearts, that this were natural to you; this will not hold, your hearts are not carried this way.

Secondly, If the Spirit of God hath Regenerated a man, then the heart begins to be a good ſoyl for Grace, and the heart begins to be ſutable, ſo that the heart is fit for Grace; A natural heart is not a proper ſoyl for Grace: As if a man ſhould bring a Plant from Spain, and ſet it here in England, it cannot thrive, unleſſe a man meet with a ſoyl that is fit for it: So Grace, if it come into the heart, and the heart is not a ſoyl for it, it can never thrive there, unleſſe the heart be Regenerated, and unleſſe there be a new nature: There may be admirable things in a natural man, excellent good purpoſes, and reſolutions; God may come to him, as a Paſſenger that lodgeth for a night, but he is gone the next morning; he may come as a ſojourner, to endure for a while, but here is no dwelling for him; theſe reſolutions, and purpoſes, and deſires cannot laſt long, that heart will ſquander them away; it is like the putting of a new piece into an old garment, Matth. 9. 16. When a man puts a new piece into an old garment, a fine new purpoſe into an old heart, a new good deſire into an old mind, the rent will be worſe, for that man will return back again, and will have his luſts, and will be worſe then he was before, for the heart is not able to hold theſe: 'tis true, in the beſt hearts of Gods people, is a great deal of unnatural ſoyl for Grace; but there is ſome of this good new ſoyl, that Grace now can hold, and ſhall hold, ſo that the gates of Hell ſhall not prevail; it is not for any goodneſſe of the heart, but for the goodneſſe of Grace in the heart: there may be tranſient acts of goodneſſe in a wicked man, as Prayer, and ſuch-like tranſient acts; but when the tranſient act is done, there is a concluſion: but nature is permanent and an enduring thing, it is not only to come to Prayer, and then be dead; to come to a Sermon, and then be dead; but it is a permanent thing, a man is godly between Prayer and Prayer, and religious between Sermon and Sermon, and in all his wayes he ſets himſelf to be good, and well diſpoſed all his dayes. God complains againſt thoſe that give him tranſient acts of goodneſſe, Oh Ephraim! what ſhall I do to thee, that art as a morning cloud, &c?

The heart's a good ſoil for Grace.

Thirdly, If the Spirit of God hath made a man a new nature, then he cannot live in ſin, As the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Joh. 3. 9. He that is born of God, ſinneth not, &c. he is born of God, and it is againſt his nature to go on in ſin; a man cannot go againſt his nature: 'tis true, a man for a little time may go againſt his nature, as Moſes, though his nature was mild and meek,

He cannot live in Sin.

meek, yet he was transported very much, Hear ye rebels, and shall I bring water out of this rock? He was carried away in his passion, but he could not hold on in that strain, for it was against his nature; so if a man be overcome with any other sin, yet when a man is renewed, as a Spring clears it self of the mud, so this new nature is so opposite and contrary to sin, that he cannot go on in sin.

It is pleasant to do the will of God.

Fourthly, If the Spirit of God hath wrought this work in thee, Then it is pleasant to thee to do the will of God; Look what a man is naturally inclined to, it is marvellous pleasant to him to follow it: As for example, If a mans nature be gluttonous, how pleasing is it for him to satisfie his Appetite? And if a mans nature be given to Intemperance, how pleasing is Excess unto him? And if a mans nature be proud, how pleasing is it to be flattered, and spoken fair, to be reverenced and respected at every word? A man loves these things a-life, because they suit with his nature: So if a man have a new nature, and partakes of the divine nature, how pleasing will Prayer be? And how pleasing will the Word be? how pleasing will Counsels and Exhortations be? how pleasing to be corrected and reproved for sin? How sweet are thy words unto my mouth, saith the Prophet David, Psal. 119. 103. As our Saviour saith, Joh. 4. 34. It is my meat and drink to do his Will that sent me: So I have longed for thy Commandments (saith David) I have loved to know wherein I might glorifie thee, and be serviceable to thee: Now when it is irksom for a man to obey, he cannot abide strictness and preciseness, and he counts it a disgrace to him to deny himself in such a thing, and he goeth to duty like a Bear to the Stake, and he hath no forwardness, it is a sign he hath no new nature.

Grace gets the upper hand.

Fifthly, If a man be born again, Grace will get the upper hand; when a man meets with lusts, and concupiscence of Soul, though they may exceedingly bear a man down for a time, and transport a man beyond himself, yet in the end Grace will have the victory and prevail, 1 Joh. 5. 4. He that is born of God, overcomes the world, all temptations of the world, all pul-backs and draw-backs, he that is born of God, he will have the mastery; so 1 Joh. 5. 18. the Apostle saith, The wicked one cannot touch a man that is born of God, that is, with a deadly touch, as he toucheth wicked men; he toucheth wicked men so, as he infects them, and poysons them, and carries them away.

He loves the people of God.

Sixthly, He that is born of God, he is one that loves the Children of God: If there be any Saint in the parish, any Child of God, there is his affection and bowels most; I speak of spiritual affections, for otherwise Grace doth not take away nature, but set it up, having refin'd it. But I speak of spiritual love, if a man be born of God himself, he loves all others that are born of God, 1 Joh. 5. 1. Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ, is born of God; and he that loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten. If a man loves God that begets, he must needs love them that are begotten of God.

He loves Spiritually to profit others.

Lastly, If a man be born again, then a man labours to do good, and to spread the Knowledge of Jesus Christ, to the glory of God: He loves to be communicating that he hath; he that hath this Spirit, loves to be breathing upon others, and would fain scatter his sweet things up and down where he goeth, and would fain leave a sweet savour of himself where soever he comes; this is the nature of him that is born again and regenerate, to beget others: That man is unworthy to be born, by whom another is not born, as we say, when a man is born again, he labours to beget others to God, to be generative, and fruitful, and abundant in doing good up and down, he labours to beget his Children, and Family, to God;

God; and to draw his neighbours and acquaintance unto God: he would fain have people know Christ, and obey him, and ſubmit unto him. Thus you ſee the ſigns whereby we may know, Whether we be born again, or no?

CHRISTIANS
Ingrafting into CHRIST.

1 Cor. 12. 13.

For by one Spirit are we all Baptized into one Body, whether we be Jews or Grecians, whether we be Bond, or Free, and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.

WE have ſpoken of Regeneration, which is a work of the Spirit, and the firſt implanting of a man into Chriſt: Now we come to ſpeak of a new work of the Spirit, The implanting of a man into the Church, the Body of Chriſt, when the Spirit makes a man to be a Member of the Myſtical Body of Jeſus Chriſt; and this is done all under one; for being once ingrafted in Chriſt, we come to be fellow-Members with all thoſe that are Chriſts; and this we have here in the Text, By one Spirit we are all Baptized into one Body, &c. The Apoſtles meaning is this, All we that are the people of God, we are all one Body; and the efficient cauſe of this, is the Spirit of God, it is by the Spirit that we

we are made thus, and the inſtrumental cauſe, though it be not here expreſſed, yet it is implyed, and that is Faith; and the means of confirming this Faith are the Two Sacraments: Firſt. The Sacrament of Baptiſme, We are baptized into the ſame Body. Secondly, The Sacrament of the Lords Supper, intimated in one part of it, namely, the Cup, which is put for the whole, and are made all to drink of the ſame Cup, we are all of one and the ſelf ſame Body; as many as are in Chriſt, are endued with the ſame Spirit; not one endued with one Spirit, and another endued with another Spirit, but by one Spirit we are Baptized into one Body; our Baptiſme is one, and our Food one; it is altogether one, though our condition in the world be never ſo different, bond, or free, though our Countrey, and Nation, and Pariſh be never ſo various one to another, one of one, and another of another, Jews and Gentiles, we are all baptized into one Body, and this is done by one and the ſelf-ſame Spirit.

Now to ſpeak of the putting of a man into the Body of Chriſt: We will ſhew you theſe Five things.

Firſt, What this Body of Chriſt is.

Secondly, What this putting of a man into it is.

Thirdly, That this is done by the Spirit of God.

Fourthly, How the Spirit of God doth it: How a man is made part of the Body of Chriſt.

Fifthly, The Application of the Point.

VVhat this Body is.

For the Firſt, What is this Body of Chriſt, which the Spirit of God doth ingraft his people into? In a word, It is the inviſible Church of God: which is a peculiar company of men and women, out of all Nations under heaven predeſtinated to eternal life, gathered together by the Word, and made all one in Chriſt. This is the Body of Jeſus Chriſt: ſo that here are Five Things that are to be opened.

The inviſible Church of God.

Firſt, It is the Church of God; as the Apoſtle ſaith, Col. 1. 18. He is the Head of the Body, the Church: So that the Church is the Body of Chriſt, that ſame peculiar company of men and women, as Saint Peter calls them, You are a choſen generation, a peculiar people, a royal prieſthood, 1 Pet. 2. 9. The Author to the Hebrews calls them, The Aſſembly of the firſt born, Heb. 12. 23. And Chriſt himſelf calls them, A little flock, in regard of the multitude of other people that is in the world, and are not of this brother-hood: Now I call this inviſible, for though their perſons, and courſes, and manner of life be ſeen and known, and they may be known who they are, yet all of them were never known, nor ever will be; there may be more then we can tell, and fewer then we think of; The foundation of God is ſure, having this ſeal, The Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. The Lord had ſeven thouſand in Iſrael that had not bent their knees to Baal, when Eliah could ſee never a one: So that this is the Firſt Thing, it is the inviſible Church of God.

Gathered out of all Nations.

Secondly, It's ſuch a company as is gathered out of all Nations under heaven; As Saint John ſpeaks, Rev. 7. 9. After this, behold and lo, I ſaw a great multitude of all Nations, and Countryes, and Tongues, &c. Though it be a little Flock in reſpect of the Reprobate; yet it is a great multitude conſidered in it ſelf: and they ſtood before the throne, and before the Lambe, with long white Robes, and with Palms in their hands: This white Robe is the Righteouſneſſe of Chriſt Jeſus imputed, which begets another Righteouſneſſe which is inherent in ſome meaſure; and the Palms in their hands, is the ſign of Victory over Sin, Death, and Hell; and this is a great multitude: and it was out of all Cities, and Nations, and Kindreds of the world; and therefore our Saviour Chriſt, ſpeaking of his own taking of this this company home unto himſelf at the laſt day, ſee what he ſpeaks, Mat. 24. 31. He ſhall ſend his Angels with a great ſound of a trumpet, and they ſhall gather his Elect from the four Winds, from the one end of the Earth to the other: The Lord gathers here one, and there another, as a man would gather a Poſie in a Garden, here a flower, and there a flower. This is Another Thing in the Body of Chriſt: it is a Company gathered out of all Nations, and People, and Places, at one time, or other.

Predeſtinated unto life.

Thirdly, This ſame godly Company, are a Company of Predeſtinated men unto Eternal life. For there are none but the choſen of God that are the true Body of Chriſt; this is a company only of Elect men, and women, and babes; therefore they are called Elect, Rom. 8. 33. They are ſuch a company as are written in the Lamb's Book of life, Rev. 21. 27. Therefore all thoſe that ſeem to be of God, and go a great way with the people of God, and yet turn back, as Orphah from Naomi, Ruth 1. They were never of this number, 1 Joh. 2. 19. They were not of us, they went out from us; if they had been of us, they would have continued with us: So that it is only the Elect of God that are of this Company, that are the Members of this Body.

Begotten again by the VVord.

Fourthly, It is ſuch a godly Company as is gathered by the Word of God: The Word of God gathers them together; they, as well as other people by nature, are of another Body, of another Corporation, as vile, and as wretched, and as miſerable in themſelves, if left to themſelves; but God found them when he paſſed by them, and ſaid to them, Live; they were defiled as well as others in their bloud, but the Lord turned their hearts by the Word, and doth beget them again thereby: This is that immortal ſeed whereby God doth beget them again unto eternal life.

Fifthly, They are ſuch a company as are made one, knit and combined together in Chriſt; though themſelves are never ſo many, and never ſo remote and diſtant from one another, may be they never ſaw one another, nor ever heard of one another, one lives in one Country, another in another; one in one pariſh, another in another, and have little bodily communion, and are not known one to another; may be ſome of this company are in heaven already, and ſome upon earth; yet they are all one in Chriſt, they all meet together in one heart and ſoul in Chriſt Jeſus, they are all of one minde in him, as being all one body, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Cor. 12. 12. And they are all one ſeed, Gal. 3. 16. Now to Abraham and his ſeed were the Promiſes made. He ſaith not, To ſeeds, as if they were many; but, To thy ſeed, as of one, that is Chriſt: that is, which is Chriſt, and all that are Chriſts; they are one ſeed, the ſeed of the woman; indeed all men come forth of the womans loins, the wicked as well as the godly, only here is the difference, The one is the ſeed of God, the other of the Serpent: Now Chriſt, and all that are Chriſts, are one and the ſelf-ſame ſeed; though they are different in Place, different in Countrey, different in eſtate and condition; ſome Jews, ſome Gentiles, ſome Bond, ſome Free, ſome Noble, ſome Mean; yet they are all one in Chriſt Jeſus, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Gal. 3 28. There is neither Jew nor Grecian, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Chriſt Jeſus. 'Tis true, you are different among your ſelves, one is a maſter, another a ſervant, one is a rich man, another a poor man, ſo there is a difference; but they are all one in Chriſt Jeſus, they have all one and the ſelf-ſame Faith, they have all one and the ſelf-ſame Father, there is but one Lord, and one Spirit to quicken and unite them all: Thus we ſee what this Body of Chriſt is.

Now

VVhat putting into this Body is.

Now in the Second place, What it is to be put into this Body; to be implanted into it, to be knit into this Body: I Anſwer, in a few words it is this:

It is a part of a mans Ingrafting into Chriſt by Faith, whereby a man is ingrafted into the Body of Chriſt, having one common life with all the reſt of the Members for mutual conſent, and profit, and care, and help, and ſympathy, or fellow-feeling.

A part of our ingrafting into Chriſt.

Firſt, It is a part of a mans ingrafting into Chriſt; For the ingrafting of a man into Chriſt, and into the body of Chriſt, are not Two things, but God doth them by one and the ſelf-ſame act, as you may ſee, Rom. 12. 5. We being many are one body in Chriſt, and every one Members one of another: that is, by being Members of Chriſt, and by being ingrafted into Chriſt, we come to have fellowſhip, and conjunction, and joyning one with another: it muſt needs be the ſame work, for the putting a man into Chriſt in whom are the other Members, that very act makes a man to have fellowſhip with Chriſt, together with all the other Members, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Rom. 11. 17. Though ſome of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wilde olive tree, waſt grafted in for them, and made partaker of the root: When a man is ingrafted into this Olive tree, he is ingrafted with the reſt of Chriſts Members, and he doth partake together with the other Members of the ſame root, and of the ſame Gifts, and Graces, God doth both under one: Therefore though I handle this after the other, it is becauſe I cannot handle them both at once. Saint John ſaith, 1 Joh. 1. 7. If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowſhip one with another; So that if a man be in Chriſt, he hath communion with the Body of Chriſt; if he hath fellowſhip with Chriſt, he hath fellowſhip with the Body of Chriſt; ſo that you ſee the Spirit doth both by one and the ſelf-ſame act, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Epheſ. 2. 12. Ye were at that time without Chriſt, and aliants from the common-wealth of Iſrael: It is all one thing to ſay that a man is out of Chriſt, and an Aliant from the common-wealth of Iſrael, without that corporation, without that Body, he is no Member of that Body; therefore it follows on the other ſide, If a man be in Chriſt, and ingrafted into Chriſt, then he is of this ſociety, he is of the common-wealth of the Iſrael of God: So that this is the Firſt Thing, It is a part of a mans ingrafting into Chriſt.

V Vrought by Faith.

Secondly, This likewiſe is done by Faith: When a man is ingrafted into Chriſt, he is ingrafted into him by Faith: As the Apoſtle ſaith, Rom. 11. 23. And they alſo, if they abide not in unbelief, ſhall be grafted in, for God is able to graft them: As who ſhould ſay, If ever they have Faith, they are ingrafted into Chriſt; it is Faith that ingrafts a man into Chriſt, and the ſame Faith that makes a man to be of the Body of Chriſt, that puts a man into the number of the Members of Chriſt; as Paul ſaith, To Titus my Son in the common Faith, Tit. 1. 4. that is, it is ſuch a Faith as doth not only ingraft this man into Chriſt, but the very ſelf-ſame Faith, another man having it, it doth ingraft him into the Body of Chriſt too: So that it is a common Faith, whereby one is ingrafted into the Body of Chriſt as well as another; as Act. 2. 44. They were all of one minde, and one heart, they all hung together as one body, they imparted their gifts, and things they had, even to their very Lands and Goods, one to another; here was a ſweet communion: but then, what was the reaſon of this? What was the Inſtrument that wrought this? It was Faith; for the text ſaith, they were believers, or elſe they could not have done it: And therefore as we are ſaid to come to Chriſt, ſo to the Body of Chriſt, as Heb. 12. 22. But ye are come to Mount Zion, to the City

City of the living God, the celeſtial Jeruſalem, and to the company of innumerable Angels; and to the congregation of the firſt born, which are written in heaven. You are come, he ſpeaks of a ſpiritual coming by Faith: So that this putting into the Body of Chriſt, is by Faith.

Making us have common life with other Members.

Then in the Third place, It makes a man have a common life with all the reſt of the Members of Jeſus Chriſt: As you may ſee, Col. 3. 4. When Chriſt which is our life ſhall appear, ye alſo ſhall appear with him in glory. Chriſt who is our life; We that are the people of God, Chriſt is our life, we have one and the ſelf-ſame life, all one and the ſelf-ſame minde in the wayes of God; As it is ſaid, Act. 4. 32. The multitude of them that believed were of one heart and one ſoul; all the people of God in the whole world would quickly be acquainted if they were brought together; for they are all of one and the ſelf-ſame diſpoſition and mind; As our Saviour ſpeaks to his Father, Joh. 17. 21. That they all may be one, as thou art in me, and I in thee, ſo that all they may be one in us: As the Three Perſons in the bleſſed Trinity are three diſtinct Perſons, and yet are all one, ſo in ſome ſenſe, the Members of the Body of Chriſt, though they be of ſeveral callings and conditions in the world, yet they are all one, that they may be all one as we are one, verſ. 21. They all live by the ſame rule, and walk by the ſame rule, they are all guided by the ſame Word, and ſwayed by the ſame Commandment, they all walk in one Way, they all Pray by one and the ſelf-ſame Spirit, they have a life that is common: look as one lives, ſo lives another; look as one repents, ſo another repents; look as one believes, ſo another believes; and look as one apprehends of God, and comes before him with affection, and fear, and trembling, ſo doth another; though they never ſaw one another, yet they all meet in the ſame life, for they have the ſame root of life, the ſame cauſe of life.

It makes of one conſent with all the people of God.

In the Fourth place, It makes a man to be of one conſent with all the people of God every where; As you may ſee, Zeph. 3. 9. For then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the Name of the Lord, to ſerve him with one conſent. The Lord helps them all to Pray after one pure language, and gives them all one pure conſent in the Service of God (though it is in different degrees indeed, one ariſeth to an higher pitch than another) therefore the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Cor. 1. 10. Now I beſeech you brethren, by the Name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that ye ſpeak all the ſame things, that there be no diviſions among you: As who ſhould ſay, All the Members of Chriſt are ſo, I beſeech you endeavour to have this ſign of being Members of Chriſt, be all joyned together in the ſame mind; it is true, that this union, and conſent, and agreement, and oneneſs of heart and mind (as I may call it) is very imperfect, but in ſome it is more imperfect then it is in other; ſome have attained to a further degree, there is a great deal of unlikeneſs of affections, a great deal of unlikeneſs in Prayer, a great deal of unlikeneſs in Obedience, there is a great deal of jarrings now and then through weakneſs; but as the Apoſtle ſaith, As far as we have attained, let us be thus minded, Phil. 3. 15, 16. Let us walk by the ſame rule, and mind the ſame things; the Children of God throughout the whole world, they are of one mind, as far as they have attained, though in Faith, in Repentance, in new Obedience they differ gradually in their attainments, yet they all agree in this conſent of judgment, That ſin muſt be hated, that a man muſt live in no ſin, that a man muſt yield Obedience to all Gods commandments, that a man muſt deny himſelf in all things, that in all things God muſt be glorified; they all agree that we are Members one of another, and that we muſt love one another, and forgive one another, as God for Chriſt's ſake hath forgiven us; they all agree in this, They are all of one mind: and as one is mortified, ſo is the other; and as one is meek and gentle, ſo is the other: It is true indeed, one hath attained further then another; but whereunto they have attained, they are all alike minded: Now whereunto we have not attained, God will reveal it in his good time unto us, ſaith the Apoſtle: May be one ſeeth ſuch a thing is a duty, which another doth not, yet all ſee that it is their duty to fear God, and obey him in all their wayes, and they all ſet themſelves to hate and oppoſe all manner of known ſins: As far as they have attained, they are all of one minde.

For mutual care and help.

Fifthly, All this is for mutual profit, and help, and care, and ſympathy, as you may ſee delivered by the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 12. That it muſt be for mutual profit, ſee the ſeventh verſ. The manifeſtation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal; that is, when the Spirit of God doth manifeſt himſelf in one man one way, and in another man another way; he gives one man (may be) the gift of Teaching, to another man the gift of Knowledge; ſome have excelient gifts in one kind, ſome in another (but all have the gifts of new Obedience.) Now look whatſoever gifts they are, whenſoever the Spirit doth manifeſt it ſelf to any Member of the Body of Chriſt, it is to be helpful and uſeful to others, ſo that the Members of Chriſt need one another: that you may ſee, verſ. 21,22. The eye cannot ſay to the hand, I have no need of thee: nor the head to the foot, I have no need of thee, &c. We cannot be without the pooreſt, and vileſt, and contemptibleſt Member in the Body; nay, the very life of the Body may depend upon the vileſt Members.

So again, That they are to care for one another; That you may ſee in the 25. verſe; Leſt there ſhould be any diviſion in the Body, but that the Members ſhould have the ſame care one for another. You ſee how it is in the Body of a man, the head hath care of the feet, it guides the feet; and the foot hath care of the head, to hold it up, and carry it up and down; and the hand is uſeful for the relieving of any part, they have all the ſame care one of another, ſo it is in the Body of Chriſt. And for a Sympathy, ſee it in the 26. verſe, Wherefore if one Member ſuffer, all ſuffer with it; and if one Member rejoyce, all rejoyce with it; all have a fellow-feeling of one anothers neceſſities and comforts. Therefore when the Spirit of God doth implant a man into the Body of Chriſt, it is all one with the implanting a man into Chriſt, he doth give him a common life, one minde and heart, he doth give them all natural help, and natural care one of another, for they have need one of another.

That this is the Spirits work.

In the Third place we muſt ſhew, That the Spirit doth this, And why he doth it.

Firſt, That it is the Spirit that unites and tyeth all theſe Members together; This makes them hang together; therefore it is called, the unity of the Spirit, Eph. 4. 3. He exhorts the Epheſians that were the Members of Chriſt, to keep the unity of the Spirit; becauſe as the Members of Chriſt are united to Chriſt, ſo they are united mutually by the Spirit; Therefore take heed (ſaith the Apoſtle) to keep the unity of the Spirit, that you may be of one mind, and one heart: Therefore the Apoſtle ſpeaking of the Body of Chriſt, he compares it to a building; A building conſiſts of divers bricks, and ſtones, and timber, which being joyned together, make up an houſe: So the Members of Chriſt being joyned together, make up an houſe for God to dwell in: But who makes this? The text ſaith, the Spirit of God, Eph. 2. 22. The Spirit of God makes up this bleſſed building, all the elect of God, all the faithful, all the heirs of Grace in the world, are as an houſe or body: though there be never ſo many parts in it, yet they they make all but one body or house, so it is here; Now the Spirit unites these, and layes them artificially together, so that they may prop one another. Ezek. 11. 19. The Lord there speaking of his Elect, I will give them (saith he) one heart, and make them of one mind; How will he do it? I will put a new Spirit within them; And so he makes them to be of one and the self same mind.

Now the Reason, Why the Spirit of God doth do this, is,

Reasons why the Spirit of God doth thus unite to the Body of Christ.

First, Because none else besides the Spirit is able to do it: For by nature we are wofully and fearfully different from the Body of Christ, we are of another nature, of another kind, of another life; nay, we are contrary to it: all the Members of Christ, they are as young sucking children; but wicked men, and all men by nature are Lions, and Leopards, and Bears, and Tigers, as the Prophet speaks, Isa. 11. 6. 7. Now the Prophet there speaking how Christ means to effect it, is to unite these together, to make the Lion and the Lamb to have communion together, to make the Bear and the Kid to lye down together: Mark how he sheweth how Christ will do it, in the second verse of the same Chapter, the text saith, The Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him; he speaks of Christ; that is, whereas this requires a great deal of power to do this, to make a man to be clean contrary to his nature; whenas a mans nature is carnal, and wicked, and earthly, to make him of the Body of Christ; therefore saith the text, The Spirit of Might shall be upon him, &c. There is a great deal of Might required to turn their dispositions: it is a mighty thing to change a man that is a drunkard, a proud person, a wicked wretch; to turn this man topsie-turvy, to make him mind other things, to make him clean another man; this requires infinite wisdom: Therefore the Spirit of Wisdom shall rest upon him to do it; and the Spirit of Knowledge, and the Spirit of the Fear of the Lord; that is, the Lord Jesus shall put in the Spirit of Fear into mens hearts, and this will turn them, this will alter mens minds, and conversations.

None but the Spirit is able.

Secondly, There is none so fit as the Spirit of God to do it: For this Body of Christ, it is a company of Sons and Daughters that God hath up and down in the world, that are able to cry, Abba Father: now who is so fit to do this as the Spirit of the Son? As the Apostle saith, That he might redeem them that were under the Law, that they might receive the Adoption of Sons, Gal. 4. 5.

None but the Spirit is fit to do it.

Fourthly, How the Spirit of God doth this; and that is Two ways, as the Scripture reveals to us.

How the Spirit doth Unite to Christ's Body.

The One is, By being one and the same Spirit in all the Members of Christ: He comes into them, and dwells in them as one and the self-same Spirit, and so makes up this union: The same Spirit that was in Paul, was in Peter; and so all the rest of the Members of Christ one and the self-same Spirit is in them, 1 Cor. 3. 16. Know ye not that yeare the Temple of God, and that the Spirit dwelleth in you? Therefore look what Spirit of Faith one man hath, another comes to have the same Spirit of Faith; as the Apostle speaks, 2 Cor. 4. 13. We having the same Spirit of Faith with them, as it is written, I believe, and therefore I speak; so we believe, and therefore we speak.

By being one and the same Spirit in all Members.

Secondly, The Spirit doth this by uniting and tying a knot between these Members: He doth unite them, and make them hang together in one; he makes them to be of one heart, and of one soul by knitting and combining of their hearts all together: Therefore this fellowship is called the fellowship of the Spirit, Phil. 2. 1. Though Paul were far off from Philippi, yet he could adjure the Philippians by the fellowship of the Spirit.

By tying a knot between all the Members.

But you will say, How can this be? Can the people of God have communion and fellowship one with another when they are so far asunder one from another, and may be never saw one another, may be never heard one of another? How can this be? I say, Very well: for the Spirit of God hath a long arm, and is able to make the people of God shake hands though they be a thousand miles asunder; it is the Spirit that tyeth this knot, and unites them together: As Paul speaks, Col. 2. 5. Though I be absent in the Flesh, yet I am present with you in the Spirit; and methinks I am in your company and meetings, when you meet together, I see you in my mind methinks, and I joy in your order: The Spirit makes the communion between the people of God; and hence it is that they can love one another, because all the Members are tyed together by one knot; and they come to help one another, and do any thing one for another; even by the very love of the Spirit which they have one towards another, Rom. 15. 30. The Apostle had some need of the good Romans to help him: Now see how he doth intreat help from them: he desires them by the love of the Spirit, to pray heartily for him: he knew that the love of the Spirit would be a great motive to them: you know you and I are joyned together by the same Spirit, for the love of the Spirit pray for me. Thus we see,

First, What this Body of Christ is.

Secondly, What the putting a man into this Body is.

Thirdly, The Reasons why.

Fourthly, How the Spirit doth it.

Now I come to the Uses.

Uses.

The want of the Spirit is the cause of difference.

And First, Is it so that the Spirit of God doth unite all the Saints of God together in one Body? Then here we may see the reason of the difference of men in the world: The difference of our Congregations, some companies that hang together are of one mind, another of another mind, the reason is, they have a different Spirit; but all the Saints of God have the Spirit of God which makes them hang together, and the wicked, they have another Spirit.

Let none put asunder what the Spirit joyns.

Secondly, Doth the Spirit of God joyn all the Saints of God together in one Body? Then that which God hath joyned together, let no man put asunder. It is spoken in regard of man and wife; if it be such a horrible thing to part man and wife, then what a horrible thing is it to part Saint and Saint that are joyned together by the Spirit of God; this blessed communion of the Spirit, what a fearful thing is it for a man to root it out? When there shall be heart-burnings and strivings between those that are the children of God, what a fearful thing is this? Is the number of those that fear God so great, that we can spare any? Or are the Graces of Gods Spirit Wilderness Graces, that can walk alone and need no help from, or can do no good to others? Therefore the Apostle prayeth God in the behalf of the Corinthians, That the Members of Christ may be of one minde, and live in peace, 2 Cor. 13. 11.

To try our acquaintance hereby.

Thirdly, Here we may see how to try our acquaintance, and whether the company we joyn our selves unto, be good or no: If our company be right, the Spirit of God tyeth the knot; therefore the Apostle will tell you, whether you have the right communion and fellowship, or no; try the spirits, whether they be of God or no, saith he, If the fellowship we have one with another be not of God, if the Spirit of God do not knit us together, our fellowship is not right. 1 Joh. 1. 3. there is an excellent place, That they may have fellowship with us (saith he) and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ: As who should say, We would fain have you have fellowship with us; and I tell you what kind of fellow-

fellowſhip you muſt have, if you be acquainted with us, you muſt have fellowſhip with the father, and with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for our fellowſhip is with the Father, and his Son Jeſus Chriſt; ſo that we may ſee, whether our Company be right or no, by this.

The Laſt Uſe is this, Is it ſo that the Spirit of God joyns all the Saints of God together in one Body? Then we ſhould have a fellow-feeling with all the Members of Chriſt: Do not ſay thou art a Member of the Church of England, and not of France, or Germany, do not ſay thou art a Member of this Pariſh, but not of another, do not ſo, for if thou art a Member of Chriſt, there is one Body, and one Spirit, Eph. 4. 4. If there be one Body, there muſt be one Spirit; and therefore we ſhould have a fellow-feeling.

To ſtir up a ſympathy amongſt the Saints.

But how ſhall we have a fellow-feeling with the Members of Chriſt?

How to work, maintain, and expreſs this ſympathy.

I ſay, Firſt, We muſt inform our ſelves as much as we can concerning one another; As when the Ark of God was among the Philiſtims, old Eli, though he gave way too far to his Sons wickedneſs, yet was he very careful of the Ark and people of God; and therefore (1 Sam. 4. 13, 14.) he went out and ſate in the high-way, that ſo he might hear, in the firſt place, what was the news; and you know how his heart trembled when he heard that the Ark of God was taken: So it was with David, when any came out of the Camp of Iſrael, he ſaith to them, What is done I pray thee? 2 Sam. 1. 4. So we ſhould enquire concerning one another.

By informing our ſelves concerning one another.

Secondly, We ſhould viſit our fellow-members: As it is ſaid of Moſes, though he were a great Courtier in Pharaoh's Court, yet he went out to look upon his Brethrens burthens, Exod. 2. 11. he would be ever and anon ſteping out to ſee how his brethren fared, and how did this affect his heart with their trouble?

By viſiting our fellow-Members.

Thirdly, We ſhould lay to heart their Afflictions: It is a ſtrange thing how the people of God in all ages, have been affected with the Afflictions of the Church; nay, though they have not ſeen it, but only fore-ſaw what would be afterwards; As Eliſha wept when he fore-ſaw what cruelty Hazael would uſe towards the People of Iſrael, 2 Kings. 8. 11, 12. So Daniel, Dan. 8. 27. when God revealed the Afflictions of the Church to him two hundered years before it ſhould come to paſs, yet when he heard of the Affliction that ſhould fall out, the text ſaith, that Daniel fainted, and how can we think that the Spirit of Chriſt hath united us into one Body, when we have not this diſpoſition in our ſouls?

By laying to heart their afflictions.

OF

OF THE SABBATH.

Exod. 20. 8.

Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it Holy.

THAT which I intend to ſpeak concerning the Sabbath at this time, I will caſt into theſe Propoſitions:

Propoſit. 1. A ſet time for worſhip.

The Firſt is this, That there muſt be ſome ſet time for the Worſhip and immediate Service of God.

Now the Reaſon why there muſt be ſome ſet time for Gods immediate Worſhip, is, Reaſ. 1. Firſt, Becauſe all Actions cannot be done at once, but by ſucceſſion, firſt one, and then another: for a man to perform the duties of Gods Worſhip in an inſtant, and to get down the knees of body and ſoul before his Maker in an inſtant, this cannot be. Eccleſ. 3. 1. There is an appointed time for every Action under the Sun: Then if there be a time for all actions, ſurely there muſt be a time for the Worſhip of God.

Reaſ. 2. Secondly, There muſt be a ſet time; Becauſe ſuch is our dulneſs in the duties of Gods Worſhip, that we had need to have times ſet apart for Gods Worſhip; there is a great deal of ado required to fix a mans Thoughts upon heaven, to have a fixed apprehenſion of the Preſence of God, theſe do not only require time, but a great deal of time.

Propoſ. 2. Some ſet time for worſhip every day.

Secondly, The Second Propoſition is this, That as there muſt be ſome time for Gods immediate Worſhip, and Service; ſo there muſt be ſome ſet time every day, all the dayes of our lives; there muſt be ſome defined and determinate time for Worſhip of God every day, at the leaſt morning and evening. David, though he were employed in great affairs, yet he had three times a day to glorifie God in, in his holy Ordinances; Three times in the day will I praiſe thee, Pſal. 55. 17.

The

The Reaſon of this is, Becauſe men live like Beaſts without daily invocation upon God, 2 *Chron.*13.10,11. Abijah there ſpeaking againſt Jeroboam the King of Iſrael, though himſelf had no great goodneſs in him, he ſaith, The Lord is our God, and we offer ſacrifices, and burn ſweet incenſe every day; Every day they did it; as who ſhould ſay, it were a ſign that God were not amongſt us, if we did not this: he takes it as a principle written in the conſcience, though he were a natural man, yet he doth reaſon thus, that where there is not every day ſome time for Gods Worſhip, God is not amongſt them. Reaſ. 1.

Another Reaſon is, Becauſe every morning God reneweth his Mercies, and every evening they are continued to us, as the Church ſaith in the Lamentations, ch.3.23. Every morning his mercies are renewed to us, and in the evening his compaſſions fail not; therefore every morning we are to ſet our ſelves before God, to ask of him the forgiveneſſe of our ſins; every morning and evening we are to do this. Pſal. 92. 1, 2. David ſaith, It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, to ſing praiſes to thy Name, O thou moſt High; To ſhew forth thy loving kindneſs in the morning, and thy faithfulneſs every night. *Reaſ.*2.

And then again God is the Alpha, and Omega, he is the beginning, and the ending of all things, and of all actions we do; God ſhould therefore have the beginning and ending of every day, that the Worſhip of God may have the ſtart of all other actions; it is neceſſary it ſhould be ſo: when a man firſt awakes in the morning, God ſhould be the firſt thought that ſhould come into his mind; As David ſaith, Pſal. 5. 3. My voice will I lift up unto thee in the morning; as ſoon as ever he awakes in the morning, his heart is lifted up to God: ſo it is good for a man to make the firſt part of the day holy, that the reſt of the day may be thereafter: and ſo as we are to begin the day with the ſolemn Worſhip of God, ſo we are to end it in the evening, that we may reckon up all our accounts, and make even with God; as the Apoſtle ſaith, Epheſ. 4. 26. Let not the Sun go down upon your wrath: ſo let not the Sun go down upon a dead heart, upon a carnal heart, upon a worldly heart; but as the Sun goeth down upon our bodies, ſo let the Sun of Righteouſneſs ſet upon our hearts, that we may lye down in peace, having all our reckoning made even, and all ſcores cancelled. *Reaſ.*3.

The Third Propoſition is this, As there muſt be ſome time for Gods immediate Service, and there muſt be every day ſome ſet time, at leaſt morning and evening, ſo likewiſe every whole day, all the dayes of our lives, ſhould be in ſome manner a Sabbath day to the Lord, we ſhould be holy every day; The Apoſtle finds fault, *Gal.*4.10. That they obſerved times, and ſeaſons, and dayes, and months, and years; we muſt not be earthly-minded one day, and heavenly-minded another; but we muſt be every day holy to the Lord. *Propoſ.*3. Every day in ſome ſort a Sabbath.

The Firſt Reaſon is, The Covenant which God hath made with us doth require it: that is the end why God ſaves a man from his ſins, and brings him into the kingdom of Chriſt, he takes a ſolemn Oath from him, That being delivered from the hands of his enemies, he ſhall ſerve him without fear, in holineſs and righteouſneſs all the dayes of his life: Every day muſt be a Sabbath day, whenſoever a man gives himſelf up to God, there is an Oath hangs upon him, and he breaks this Oath, if he ſet not upon it with all his might, that every day may be a Sabbath day; he is to be careful to live godly, and religiouſly in all places, and at all times, and in every action he puts his hand unto; a man is not only to make conſcience on the ſeventh day, but every day of his life. *Reaſ.*1. Luk.1.74,75.

The

Reaſ. 2. The Second Reaſon is, Becauſe not to make every day an holy day, is the brand of an Hypocrite, it is hypocriſie, Job. 27. 10. Will he alwayes call upon God? To be holy ſometimes, and not at another time, is the trick of an hypocrite; will he alwayes call upon God, will that man alwayes obey God and worſhip him, will he alwayes ſet himſelf to keep cloſe with God? No, an hypocrite will not do ſo. You may know an hypocrite, he hath his fits, and his pangs, and his moods; but a godly man, a ſincere hearted man, is one that doth compoſe himſelf to keep a conſtant courſe in Gods worſhip; as Act. 24. 16. There ſaith Paul, Herein do I exerciſe my ſelf to keep a good conſcience alwayes, both towards God and towards man: And as it was the practiſe of Paul, ſo of all the Elect people of God, of all ſincere Chriſtians in the world, Act. 26. 7. all the Elect of God, all the beloved of God, they did inſtantly ſerve God day and night.

Reaſ. 3. Thirdly, Becauſe bleſſedneſſe doth conſiſt in this, In keeping every day in ſome kind as a Sabbath day, as the Holy Ghoſt doth pronounce him bleſſed, that feareth the Lord alwayes, Prov. 28. 14. and that doth righteouſneſs at all times, Pſa. 106. 3. It is true, the Servants of God are ſometimes out of the way, they have their ſwervings and failings, but their reſolution is to keep a conſtant courſe in Gods Worſhip, and they do ſtrive to humble themſelves under the hand of God for their failings, and to be the more wary becauſe of them.

Reaſ. 4. Laſtly, This is the Sum and Scope of all the Law of Righteouſneſs; it is the very drift and end of all the Ten Commandements, the Lord hath ſet down in the Decalogue his whole Will and Pleaſure, what we are to do all the dayes of our lives, this day, and that day, as long as we live; and there is no ſet time, but that we ſhould alwayes obey it; and this is the practiſe of the godly, alwayes to keep his Commandments, as David, Pſal. 16. 8. He ſet the Lord alwayes before him; that is, every day he did make it an holy day, that he might walk as in Gods preſence, and live as in Gods Courts, that he might do all his worldly buſineſſe as in the preſence of God.

Propoſ. 4. A particular ſpecial day for Gods worſhip. The Fourth Propoſition is this, As there muſt be a ſet time every day, and we are to keep every day as a Sabbath day in ſome ſenſe, ſo there muſt be a particular ſpecial day, ſet apart for Gods immediate Worſhip and Service: This is the next Propoſition I will prove unto you; for though every day is to be a Sabbath day, yet we have particular callings, and we have buſineſſe in the world to employ our ſelves about, ſo that we cannot be every day hearing of the Word, and employing our ſelves in Prayer and ſpiritual exerciſes, though every day we are to keep it holy, yet we cannot be vacant wholly and totally every day; Now therefore I ſay, That there is a ſet day that the Lord hath called for to be devoted unto him: The very School-men themſelves do acknowledge this, and the very Heathen have found it out; They have ſet a day apart for the Service of their Gods, which they call their holy day, wherein they lay aſide all other buſineſſe, and ſet themſelves apart to honor and worſhip their Images and Idols, according to their manner. Now I will make this good by many Arguments, that God will have a ſet day, beſides the every day Sabbath, he will have a ſet particular Sabbath for his Worſhip and Service.

Reaſ. 1. The Firſt Reaſon is, Becauſe he will have a little emblem and picture of the kingdom of heaven among his Saints and Children in this life; in the kingdom of heaven there is no buying and ſelling, no eating and drinking, no worldly buſineſſe, there is nothing but prayſing and glorifying of God, and ſpeaking of God, and ſinging of Halelujah unto his holy Name; there is nothing but enjoying communion with the Lord, and feeding upon him continually, there is nothing but this in the kingdom of heaven; Now God will have a little picture of this among his Saints here upon earth: You know there remains a reſt for the people of God, Heb. 4. 9. It is an expreſs place, the word in the Original is, There remains a Sabbath for the people of God. As who ſhould ſay, There is a glorious Sabbath that all the Elect of God ſhall have, and they are preſerved for it, and that is reſerved for them, and they ſhall enter into it, when this body of death is laid down, and they ſhall enjoy God face to face, to all eternity, they ſhall behold him as he is, and have communion with him; now the Lord will have a little picture of this here in this life; we cannot have it altogether in this life, for we have mortal bodies, that muſt be fed, and cloathed, and ſtand in need of the creature; for mans ſin is not yet purged away, but there is a great deal of rubbiſh ſtill left, therefore this cannot be complete here: but yet God will have a little picture of this, even in this life, and that is the Sabbath day, wherein they are to lay aſide all the works of their ordinary callings, and reſt from all ſervil labours, this is Gods day, and we muſt now call upon him, and hear what he ſaith, and wholly employ, and occupy our ſelves about him, as neer as we poſſibly can; but now, this we cannot do every day, for we have Children to look after, and Families to provide for, and there be an hundred occaſions to call a man away; it may be a man thinks to go into his Cloſet, and ſeek God in private, and one occaſion or other calls him aſide, that he cannot go on; but the Lord will have a little emblem and expreſſion of the kingdom of heaven upon the Sabbath day: therefore the Apoſtle ſaith, It remains for us, ſcil. in the life to come.

is

The Second Reaſon, why the Lord will have a ſet day for his Worſhip and Service beſides the every day Sabbath, is becauſe the honour of God doth ſo require, it doth require that there ſhould be a ſolemn day for Gods Service; as Kings, though their ſubjects are to obey them every day, and keep their Laws every day, and if a ſubject tranſgreſs the Laws at any time, he is in danger of the diſpleaſure of the King; but he will have one day of ſolemnity to his Majeſty: So God Almighty, though every day we are to tremble before him, and ſtand in aw of his Word, and take heed we do not err from his Commandments; yet he will have one ſolemn day for the honour of his Name, he will have a ſolemn day, wherein his people ſhall have nothing elſe to do, but to ſet themſelves apart for his Worſhip; therefore this ſet day is called, The honourable of the Lord, Iſa. 58. 13. that is, we muſt count the Sabbath day an honourable day, a day of honour, wherein Gods Servants ſhould from morning to evening fall down before him, and confeſs that great is the Lord God: We ſhould wholly dedicate it unto him, ſeeking of him in Publick and in Private, that we may ſtore up holy affections for all the week following. Reaſ. 2.

Thirdly, Becauſe God ſometimes calls for an extraordinary day, and an extraordinary day hath ever relation to an ordinary; if I ſay this is my extraordinary food and diet, I imply that I have ordinary diet; ſo if the Scripture tells us that God calls for extraordinary dayes, it is an evident Argument, that there be ordinary dayes which he calls for. Reaſ. 3.

Now that God calls for extraordinary dayes, it is plain,

1. Firſt, He calls for extraordinary dayes of rejoycing; when God compaſſeth us about with ſongs of Deliverance, and works wonderful Mercies for us, we ought to ſet a part a day for rejoycing, and delighting in his goodneſs and favour towards us, and this day is to be an holy day, as Nehemiah 8. 9. This day is holy unto the Lord your God, mourn not, nor weep; So that when we are to rejoyce towards God for any ſpiritual favour towards us, we ought to keep this day an holy day, we ought to employ the hours of the day in labouring to affect our hearts with his kindneſſe, and labouring to make his goodneſs to have impreſſion upon us, that we may with cheerfulneſs run over all our dayes afterwards, that we may adhere unto him the better all our life time.

2. Secondly, As he calls for extraordinary dayes of rejoycing, ſo he calls for extraordinary dayes of Faſting and Humiliation, and that in Four Caſes.

1. Firſt, When we fear ſome heavie judgement to come upon us, or elſe when ſome judgement is already upon us: may be ſome heavie judgement is upon us, or elſe we fear it to come upon us, and now we are to ſet an extraordinary day apart to ſeek the Lord; as 2 Chron. 20. Jehoſaphat proclaimed a Faſt, when the Land was in danger: Suppoſe the Lord ſhould take away the Goſpel, and the feet of thoſe that bring glad tydings ſhould be turned from us, then ſhould we Faſt in thoſe dayes, we ſhould grieve before God, and bewail the loſs of his Mercies and Favours; that we may have his Goodneſſe to quicken us, and keep us, and uphold us in the want of them.

2. Secondly, In caſe that we want ſome Mercy that we cannot well be without, in ſuch a caſe as this, if ordinary ſeeking will not do the deed, we ought to ſet apart an extraordinary time to prevail with God; as Ezra, he was in danger of the enemy, and if he ſhould go to Jeruſalem, the enemy would ſet upon him; now, thought he, if I ſhould go to the King, though he were very great with the King of Perſia, at that time, yet thought he, if I ſhould go to the Kigng for a Band of Souldiers, he would think our God were a weak God; I have told him what a ſtrong God we have, and that he is ready to help all thoſe that truſt in him; now if I ſhould go to him for a Band of Souldiers, he might think that our God were not able to deliver us, and it would be a great diſhonour to God; therefore he ſet a day apart for a Faſt, and laboured to get aid and help from heaven, Ezra 8. 21. So when a Child of God is exceedingly afflicted with any croſſe or temptation, and he ſhall wonderfully diſhonour God, and caſt a ſnare upon them that fear his Name, in this caſe he is bound to ſeek God extraordinarily, and if the ordinary means that God hath appointed will not prevail, he is to ſet apart a Faſt to ſeek him extraordinarily.

3. Thirdly, If we be aſſaulted from hell, and Satan, and our own hearts, with ſtrong temptations, then we are to ſeek God extraordinarily, as it was with Paul, when the Meſſenger of Satan was ſent to buffet him, when he lay under ſome heavy temptation, either unto Pride, or Luſt, or Uncleanneſſe, ſome prick in the fleſh, that the Lord ſent upon him, and let him be encountered withal; then Paul fought God in a ſolemn manner, more then ever he did at other times, 2 Cor. 12. 8. For this I beſought God thrice.

4. Fourthly, If caſe a man is to do ſome notable ſervice, he is to enter into ſome new Calling; or if the Lord doth put him upon ſome new ſervice, that doth require ſome more then ordinary help; now a man is to ſeek God by Faſting and Prayer, as you may ſee it was with Barnabas and Paul when they entred into the Miniſtery, Acts 13 3. Now the reaſon why I name theſe things is to ſhew you, that ſometimes God will have an extraordinary ſet day for his immediate worſhip and ſervice, when we are to lay aſide all other buſineſſe, and ſet our ſelves apart, to call upon his Name, and ſeek him. The thing I gather from hence is this, If there be an extraordinary ſet day, then there muſt be an ordinary ſet day for Gods immediate Service.

Ano-

Another Argument is taken from the Equity of it, and that ſtands two wayes:

Reaſ.4.

1. Firſt, It is very equal when as we have ſix dayes to provide for our ſelves, and for the maintenance of our bodies: God gives us divers dayes for that; now Equity doth require that we ſhould give one day to him, we having ſeveral dayes, it is equity that he ſhould have at leaſt one for himſelf: Therefore this doth aggravate our ſins exceedingly, if we give not this day to God. Did not this aggravate the ſin of Adam, in eating of the forbidden fruit? in that God gave him liberty to eat freely of all other trees in the garden, and forbad him only the eating of that one? Now what excuſe could Adam have for not abſtaining from that one? So here, God having given us divers dayes for the good of our bodies, and for means and maintenance of the things of this life, duty requires, that we ſhould not touch Gods day, nor ſet our foot upon it, nor turn our eyes away from it, we ought to remember it, as Joſeph ſaid in regard of his Miſtris, when ſhe enticed him to folly, mark how he anſwers the temptation, My Maſter hath put all things into my hand, that are in the houſe, he hath with-held nothing from me but only thee his Wife, and that is equal, and reaſonable, how therefore ſhall I do this great wickedneſs, and ſin againſt God? Gen. 39. 9. So ſhould we ſay, when we are tempted to break the Lords day, we ſhould ſay, The Lord hath not impoſed any day beſides, the Lord hath given us all the ſix daies for our uſe, how therefore ſhall I do this great wickedneſſe, and ſin againſt God with worldly thoughts, and ſpeeches, and actions upon that day? It ſtands with very good equity that it ſhould be ſo.

2. Secondly, It ſtands with equity, in regard of our Souls; if our bodies which are the worſer part, have ſeveral dayes for their uſe, then how much more ſhould the ſoul have one day, which is a thouſand times more worth then the body? You know what Chriſt ſaith, What will it profit a man to gain the whole World, and loſe his own ſoul? Matth. 16. 26. Our ſouls are more worth then our bodies, and we have more need to ſeek out for Holineſſe and Grace for them, and to be well provided for in regard of them, then for any thing in this preſent world, if we want meat, we can but ſtarve, if we want cloaths, we can but famiſh, if we want outward things, we can but temporally periſh, but if we want Grace and the Favour of God, we periſh for ever. Now if there be ſix dayes allowed for the good of our bodies, how much more ſhould we be willing to have one day for the good of our ſouls ſpecially conſidering what need we have thereof? This Argument our Saviour Chriſt uſeth to prove the Sabbath, Mark 2. 27. The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath: The Sabbath was made for man, as meat was made for the body, and a man cannot be without food, no more can the ſoul be without the Sabbath, ſo that we ſee, there muſt be a ſolemn day ſet a part for Gods Worſhip and Service.

Propoſ.5. One day of ſeven to be ſet apart for Gods worſhip.

The Fifth Propoſition is this, That as there muſt be a ſet day for Gods Worſhip and Service, ſo this day muſt be one of ſeven, not one of eight, of nine, or five, or four, but one of ſeven; and this, though it be not naturally moral, yet it is poſitively moral, though it be not natural, written in the heart of man, as a man: if he had no teaching, his conſcience would find out that he ſhould not be idle, and ſteal, and commit murther, the Conſcience will grope out theſe Ordinances and Statutes of God, and the Conſcience will find out that there muſt be a ſet day for Gods Worſhip and Service, the light of nature will find out that, but that it muſt be one day of ſeven, that it cannot find out, but I ſay, that that it is the positive law of God, that it must be one of seven.

Reas.1. Now, Because it is not written in the heart of man, but in the Commandment of God positively delivered to us, and required of us; I can give no other Reason for it, but only the reason taken out of the Scripture; there can be no reason taken from the judgment of man, as other Lawes, the very law of Reason will enforce them; but there can be no other reason for this, but only out of the Word of God. The Lord hath commanded, six dayes thou shalt labour, and being his Will, it must be performed; for God might require six dayes for himself, and leave us but one day; God might have ordained it so; but God intending we should live by the sweat of our brows, the Lord was pleased to allow us six dayes; now he giving us six dayes, doth reserve unto himself one of seven.

Reas.2. Secondly, Another Reason is this, As the Lord hath commanded this seventh day, so he saith it is his day, The seventh day, is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; Now then if the seventh day be the Sabbath of the Lord our God, then we must not divert any of the hours, or any part of the day away, when our minds run into the world, we must curbe them and remember that the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord our God.

Reas.3. Thirdly, Another Reason is, That our Cattel, and Servants, and Children, may rest as well as our selves, they are to labour six dayes, and one of seven they are to rest.

Reas.4. Another Reason is, Because he hath sanctified it; therefore the Lord blessed the seventh day, and hallowed it: Now then, if the Lord hath sanctified the seventh day, and appointed it, if he hath set it apart for that purpose, for spiritual employments, and not to be filled up with any thing else, we are guilty of Sacriledge, if we do not give him this, as Levit. 27. 28. the Lord saith, Whatsoever is devoted unto the Lord, that is most holy unto him; now God saith, he hath devoted the seventh day to himself, therefore we are to keep it holy: Nebuchadnezzar, a very heathen, when he knew that the Vessels came out of the Temple of the Lord, he would not employ them to a common use, Dan. 1. 2. He put them into the house of his god, which was the holiest place he had.

Reas.5. Fifthly, This is necessary, because we are apt to be worldly, and carnal, and non-resident from Prayer, and from the Word, and serious humbling of our selves before God, if we be never so little taken off, how suddenly do our minds cleave unto the world, and grow vain, and unfit, and distempered? Now if God should not once in seven dayes, have a day to take us off from the world; as six dayes are employed in worldly affairs, so if there were not a seventh day to take us off, there would be no hold with us; therefore there must be a whole day to accustom us, and habituate us to the Service of God, otherwise we should drown our selves in the world.

Propos.6. That day of the seven to be kept holy, on which God rested.

The Sixth Proposition is this, That as it must be one of seven, so it is not indifferent which of the seven dayes we keep holy, but it must be that day whereupon God rested, therefore it hath the name of a Sabbath; Sabbath is nothing but rest: The reason of the name is Two-fold, First, Because God rested upon that day; And Secondly, Because we are to rest upon that day.

Propos.7. All that is in the Fourth Commandment, is not essential to it.

The Seventh Proposition is this, That all that is in the fourth Commandment, is not essential to the Commandment; the fourth Commandment delivers only these Two things; First, That God will have a seventh day; Secondly, That this seventh day is to be the day of Gods rest: This is the whole meaning of the fourth Commandment: now all other particulars

in

in the fourth Commandment, are not eſſential to the fourth Commandment; as that God made Heaven and Earth in ſix dayes, and reſted the ſeventh day, &c. It is not eſſential to the fourth Commandment, but becauſe at that time when God delivered the Decalogue, there was no greater work then the Creation; and the reſt from that work, was the reſt from the greateſt work in the world; therefore it was kept upon the laſt day of the week, upon which God reſted from the Creation: Now the meaning of the fourth Commandment, is in the eighth Verſe, all the other particulars, are but Commentaries to open it to the Jewes, Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy; this is the fourth Commandment: The Sabbath, that is, the day that God reſted on, and the day that we are to reſt upon: this is the holy day that is devoted to the Lord; now it was kept upon the laſt day of the week, becauſe God created heaven and earth, and reſted upon that day; and the Creation of heaven and earth was the greateſt work that God then had done.

But then you will ſay, Why doth the Commandment ſay, That in ſix dayes God created Heaven and Earth, and reſted the ſeventh day? Queſt.

I Anſwer, 1. It is no ſtrange thing, to ſee ſome things in the Commandments which are not eſſential to them, becauſe the Commandments were delivered to the Jewes: though they concern the whole world, yet the perſons, that actually ſtood before God, when the Decalogue was delivered, were only the Jewes, Deut. 5. 22. God ſpake to the Jewes; now no wonder, that God, ſpeaking to the Jews, did ſpeak divers particulars according to them, and in their phraſe, which if we had been alive, and they to ſucceed us, God would have ſpoken according to us, as he did according to them. Anſw.

2. Secondly, We ſee plainly, there are ſome things in the Commandments, which do not concern the whole world, but only the Nation of the Jewes, as in the firſt Commandment, I have brought thee out of the Land of Egypt, out of the houſe of Bondage: [Thou ſhalt have no other gods but me:] That is the Commandment, but though they, together with the other, were put into the Tables of Stone, yet it concerns only the Jewes. 'Tis true indeed, it is a type of our deliverance, that we are delivered from Hell, and Sin, and Satan, as they were delivered out of Egypt, and the houſe of Bondage; but literally theſe words belong only to the Jews, and the Commandment is this, Thou ſhalt have no other gods but me; So it is for the fourth Commandment.

Again, There is ſomething in the Fifth Commandment, that doth not concern us, but only them, Honour thy Father and thy Mother, &c. [That thy dayes may be long in the Land which the thy God giveth thee] that belongs only to the Jews, it is meant particularly of the Land of Canaan. This then is the effect of the Commandment, Honour thy Father and thy Mother, that thy dayes may be long in the Land of Canaan. So that the firſt words are the Commandment, and the later part belongs only to the Jewes: So Deut. 5. 14. the Fourth Commandment, it was put into the Tables of Stone thus, Remember the ſeventh day to keep it holy, for the ſeventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou ſhalt do no manner of work, thou, nor thy Son, nor thy Daughter, &c. that thy man-ſervant, and thy maid-ſervant may reſt as well as thou; that belongs to us, as well as to them; but then it follows, Remember thou wert a ſervant in the Land of Egypt: Here you ſee the Jewes have another Argument, beſides the Arguments that we have; but though we have not that Argument, yet the Commandment ſtands ſtill, and the Commandment is only thus much much; namely, That there must be a Seventh day, and that seventh day God rested upon: now whereas the Jewes kept the last day of the week, that was only by a temporary Commandment, because the making of heaven and earth, was the greatest thing that God had then done, and God rested from that upon that day; but now if God work a greater work then the Creating of heaven and earth, and rest from that, then by vertue of the fourth Commandment, we are to keep that day holy, upon which he rested from that work.

Propos. 8. The 4th Commandment continual, alwayes to abide in the Church.

Now I come to the Eighth Proposition, That this Fourth Commandment, concerning a Sabbath day, concerning the keeping of a Seventh day holy, is a continual Commandment, alwayes to abide in the Church of God; I will prove it by divers Arguments, that it was not to continue only in the time of the Jewes, but it is to abide alwayes in the Church to the coming of the Son of man; there is not a jot of Ceremony in the fourth Commandment.

Reas. 1. The First Reason is, Because God did institute the Sabbath before there was any room for Ceremonies; it was commanded to Adam in his Innocency: Now all Ceremonies did prefigure Christ; and before Adam fell, there was no Promise of the Seed of the Woman, nor no need of it, and so no need of a Figure to represent it; but before Adam fell, the Sabbath was prescribed, Gen. 2. 2, 3. On the seventh day God rested from all that he had made, so that God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it: So that you see God having rested upon this day, he sanctified it, and put holiness upon it; therefore we are not to name that Common, which he hath named Holy; now though we do not read of Adams keeping this day, nor Abels, nor Enochs, nor Noahs, nor Abrahams, nor Isaacs, nor Jacobs; yet it doth not follow it was not kept: for Moses doth not take in hand to set down the actions of the Fathers, but only generally; for you see what a short story we have of Methuselah, a good man, though he lived a thousand years almost, yet we have scarce Three Syllables concerning him. Now sith Moses did not undertake to set down all that they did, therefore they might keep the Sabbath, though he did not set it down: neither afterwards doth he set it down for 319. years, and 111. years, which 430. years, to the time of the Judges, we have nothing spoken of concerning the Sabbath; therefore seeing God did Institute it to Adam in his Innocency, that is enough; but what though the Fathers had not kept it holy, doth it therefore follow that we must not keep it holy? They had many wives, doth it therefore follow that we must have many wives? So, suppose they did not sanctifie the seventh day, (though wee can see no proof that they did not) yet this is enough, That God did sanctifie it before any Ceremony was.

Again, Though we do not read that they practised this, yet the Scripture doth intimate to us that they did it.

Reas. 2. The Second Argument to prove this, is out of Exod. 16. 23. before the Law was delivered upon Mount Sinai, before the Commandment was spoken from Horeb, yet you may see that the Sabbath is spoken of, and the Lord doth finde fault with Israel, for not keeping of it, which intimateth it was a day they well knew, and the Lord saith afterwards to Moses, How long will ye refuse to keep my Laws and Statutes? As in vers. 28. the Lord there speaks of a Sabbath, as a day well known unto them, that it was commanded to be sanctified by them, and this was before the delivering of the Ceremonial Law, therefore it is not a ceremonial Law, but a positive Law, equipollent with the moral Law.

Reas. 3. A Third Reason is, Because it was written by the finger of God in Tables bels of ſtone and put into the Ark, Exod. 31. 18. and Deut. 10. 4. the Commandments were written upon Two tables of ſtone, and by the finger of God; Now all Divines, in all ages, agree upon this, that the writing of this Commandment in the Two tables of ſtone, is an evident Argument of the morality of it. For as a Reverend Divine ſaith, Not to think the Fourth Commandment to be moral, is the way to all Atheiſme, for if one ſhould ſay the Fourth Commandment is not moral, but ceremonial; another might ſtep up the next year and ſay the Second, and the Fifth, is not: So that whereas the Law is written by the finger of God in tables of ſtone, if we root it out of the tables of ſtone, we ſhall root it out of the heart of man; therefore the writing of it in the tables of ſtone, is an evident Argument of the morality of it to all ages.

Reaſ. 4. A Fourth Argument is this, The Lord doth urge this Commandment, more then any other Commandment in the Decalogue; ſo that a man may queſtion the Firſt, or Second, or any of the Ten as well as this; for firſt we know that God hath made this Commandment larger then any of the reſt: Secondly, hee hath made it ſtronger, and urged it with more arguments then any of the reſt. 3. He hath fixed a memento, remember before it: As who ſhould ſay, Be carefull of this, and take heed of forgetting it, take heed of thoſe that ſhall teach you the contrary, that this Commandment is not morall. 4. It is negatively delivered, and affirmatively; the other delivered only one way, either affirmatively only, as the Fifth, Honour thy Father and Mother: or elſe negatively only, as all the reſt: There is never a Commandment delivered both negatively and affirmatively, but only the Fourth, as, Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy; there it is delivered affirmatively: And afterwards it is delivered negatively, In it thou ſhalt do no manner of work, thou, nor thy ſon, nor thy daughter, &c. The Lord hath delivered it both wayes; noting, that this Commandment is equall and equipollent with the other: and the Lord did this in infinite wiſdome, becauſe he had not written this Commandment in the heart of man by the light of nature, therefore the Lord did urge it more with Arguments, that what was wanting in the light of nature, might be ſupplyed by the preſſing of Arguments.

Reaſ. 5. 5. Another Argument is, Becauſe if this be not morall, then we have not Ten morall Commandments, there are but Nine: now this is falſe, for the Scripture tels us, that the Commandments are Ten, as Deut. 10. 4. it is not an Eccleſiaſticall thing, but the Lord hath ſaid it, as you may ſee there: And he wrote upon the Tables according to the firſt writing, the Ten Commandments, which the Lord ſpake unto you in the Mount, out of the midſt of the fire. The Lord ſpake Ten Commandments; now if the Fourth Commandment be not morall, there be not ten Commandments: And you may as well deny the Articles of the Faith, and the Petitions of the Lords Prayer, as the ten Commandments.

Reaſ. 6. The Sixth Argument is this; Chriſt tels us plainely, that it is a morall Commandment, Matth. 24. 20. Pray (ſaith he) that your flight be not in the winter, nor on the Sabbath day. Our Saviour Chriſt here propheſied of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, which was forty yeares after Chriſts Aſcenſion, when all Ceremonies were ceaſed, as Paul had proclaimed before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem. That if any man would be circumciſed, Chriſt ſhould profit him nothing, Galat. 5. 2. That is, if he would keep the Ceremonial Law: Now Chriſt bids thoſe that ſhould live forty years after the Ceremonies were ceaſed, I would have you have a care of the Sabbath, and delight in hearing of the word of God, and meditating upon it, and ſo forth, and if any occaſion come that you fall into Gal. 5. 2.

into the hands of your enemies, pray that your flight be not in the Winter, nor on the Sabbath day: as who ſhould ſay, If it be in the Winter, that will do hurt, and be troubleſome to your bodies: and ſo if you fly upon the Sabbath day, that will trouble your conſciences, if you regard Gods commandment and the good of your own conſciences; if you regard or fear Gods name, it will grieve you to fly on the Sabbath day, whereby you ſhall be deprived of the Congregation of Gods Saints; therefore pray that your flight be not upon that day: Intimating, that it was Morall; for if it had been Ceremoniall, he would not have wiſhed them to pray that it might not be upon that day.

Now whereas our Saviour doth ſo often condemn the Phariſees in regard of their ſtrictneſſe of the Sabbath; it is not as if he did diſallow the keeping of it; but they were fooliſhly preciſe, they ſtrained at a gnat, and ſwallowed a camel; they crowded out, and regarded not Mercy and Judgment, they would not pull a poor beaſt out of a pit, or relieve a poor man upon the Sabbath day: they found fault that a man ſhould be helped from deaths door by our Saviour upon the Sabbath, this was their folly. Now our Saviour did not condemn ſtrict keeping of the Sabbath, but he did condemn their Superſtition; for ever ſince Adams time, it was lawful to do works of Mercy on the Sabbath, it was Lawful to pull a beaſt out of the pit, and do works of Mercy, and Neceſſity upon the Sabbath day. And, whereas the Law ſaith, The Jewes might not kindle a fire on the Sabbath day, if we were in their caſe, we might not neither; for they were in the Wilderneſſe, in an hot Countrey, where they needed no Fire, and having their Food provided to their hands. And being in an hot Countrey, if they kindled a Fire, it was out of wantonneſſe, but if it had been a cold Countrey, in Adams time, and Abrahams time, and in all times, it was lawful to kindle a Fire.

Exod. 35. 3

Reaſ. 7. Againe, another Argument is this, The very Heathen themſelves have ever kept a Sabbath day, though they could not tell which the day was; ſome kept the Eighth day, and ſome the Ninth, yet they ever kept a Sabbath day: Yea, it is certain, many of the Heathen themſelves kept the Sabbath after their manner. Alexandrinus, a godly Father, that lived but a little after Chriſt, ſaith, That the Heathen did count the ſeventh day, an Holy day. And it is related of Alexander Severus Emperour of Rome, though he were a Pagan, and Infidel, yet every Sabbath day, he retired from his Warlike affaires, and went up into the Capitol to worſhip his gods. And it is reported againe in Heathen Hiſtories, our boyes go not to School upon the Sabbath day, neither are Humane Arts taught on that day; but we have a Reſt upon that day: Nay, ſome of the Heathens tell us, That they keep it from the Creation; therefore Philo tells us, That the Sabbath day, is the Creation day: and divers other poor people, that never had Scripture, or Prophet, or Miniſter among them, but went meerly by the light of Nature, and what they had learned from their Anceſtors and Fathers, they did keep the Sabbath day. Nay, one of them ſaith, That on the Seventh day, all the Hoſt of Heaven and Earth was finiſhed. Therefore ſeeing the very Heathen have learned to keep this day Holy, it is an Evident Argument, that this is a Moral Commandement. I conclude the Proof of this Point, with the ſaying of our Saviour Chriſt, Mat. 5. 18. Heaven and Earth ſhall paſſe away, but not one jot or title of the Law ſhall paſſe away: Marke, our Saviour ſaith there, that there ſhall not one jot or title of the Decalogue paſſe away. As for the Ceremonial, and Judicial law, they ſtand not ſtill, but the whole compaſſe of them is removed, the Ceremonial Law is quite and clean aboliſhed, and the Judicial Law, in many particulars; ticulars, therefore our Saviour meant it not of thoſe two Laws, but he ſpeaks of the Decalogue, and he ſaith, Heaven and Earth ſhall paſſe away, before one jot of it ſhall paſſe away, much leſſe an whole branch be rooted out. And Gal. 3. 10. the Apoſtle ſaith, Curſed is every one that continues not in all things that are written in this Law to do them: not only he that continueth not in the firſt, or ſecond, or third Commandment, but he that continueth not in the fourth, and fifth, and all the reſt. And Jam. 2. 10. the Apoſtle there ſaith, If a man ſhould keep the whole Law of God, and be guilty only in one point, he is guilty of all. Suppoſe thou didſt keep the Three firſt Commandments, and all the Six laſt, if thou keepeſt not the Fourth Commandment, thou art guilty of the breach of all the Commandments.

I let this paſſe, and come now to the laſt Propoſition, which is this, That though the laſt day of the week were kept for the Sabbath, till the coming of Chriſt, yet the firſt day of the week, that ſeventh day, is now the Lords Day, and is ſo to continue to the end of the World: I frame it thus, The change of the ſeventh day, to the firſt day of the week, is not by Eccleſiaſtical Law, or by the Law of man, or Apoſtolical Tradition, but it is by the Inſtitution, and expreſs Commandment of God. Propoſ. 9. The firſt day of the week was the Lords day, and ſo to continue to the end of the world.

The firſt Argument to prove it, is taken out of Pſal. 118.24. It is an Argument uſed by the Church of God in all Ages, ever ſince twelve hundred years agoe. Saint Auſtin did uſe it in his time, the Pſalmiſt Prophecieth of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, the Stone which the builders refuſed, is become the Head-ſtone of the Corner, this is the Lords doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes. (Our Saviour Chriſt, Mat. 21. doth expound it of his Crucifying, and Reſurrection) This is the day that the Lord hath made, we will be glad and rejoyce in it. The Pſalmiſt ſpeaks here of the Reſurrection of Chriſt; now ſpeaking of this very day, ſaith he, This is The day that the Lord hath made: And we for our part, that are godly, and deſire to be built upon this Corner Stone, we will be glad, and rejoyce in it; we will keep it as a glorious day, a day of Thankſgiving, and Rejoycing in God. The thing is plain, ſee Iſa. 56.1,2. the Prophet Propheeyeth of the Day of Chriſt, and ſaith, They are bleſſed that keep the Sabbath, thus ſaith the Lord, Keep Judgement, and Juſtice, for my Salvation is at hand to come, and my Righteouſneſs is to be revealed: Bleſſed is the man that doth this, and keepeth my Sabbaths. This is a Propheeie of the day of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, and he pronounceth a bleſſing upon thoſe that keep the Sabbath in thoſe dayes. Again, Iſa. 11. 10. it was Prophecied of old, that the firſt day of the week, ſhould be the Sabbath day, the Lords day: In that day, there ſhall be a Root of Jeſſe, which ſhall ſtand up for an Enſigne to the people, and the Nations ſhall ſeek unto it, and his Reſt ſhall be Glorious: Not only the Fathers Reſt ſhall be glorious, when he had Created Heaven, and Earth, and reſted the ſeventh day, but Chriſts Reſt alſo ſhall be glorious; for all Divines agree, that the Prophet ſpeaks of the Reſt of Chriſt, from the work of Redemption; now his Reſt ſhall be glorious. As God the Father Reſted from his work, and his Reſt was glorious for four thouſand years together, ſo Chriſts Reſt from his work ſhall be glorious, there ſhall be glory and honour put upon it, as well as upon the Reſt of the Father, when he Reſted from making of Heaven and Earth. Reaſ. 1.

Secondly, Another Argument to prove this, is out of Rev. 1. 10. there Saint John ſpeaking of the firſt day of the week, the Spirit of the Lord calls it the Lords Day, I was in the Spirit on the Lords Day, ſo that it is not by Apoſtolical Tradition only, but by the Inſtitution of God himſelf, he doth call it the Lords Day, I was in the Spirit upon the Lords Day, he calls the firſt day of the week the Lords Day, by the ſame reaſon that the Sacrament Reaſ. 2.

is called the Lords supper. Now the Sacrament is so called, because the Lord Instituted it, and therefore it must be Holy: so the Lords Day is called so, because the Lord Instituted it, and therefore it must be kept Holy.

Reas. 3. Another Argument is this, Our Saviour Christ himself doth Intitle himself to be the Lord of the Sabbath, and therefore able to alter it, and change it, and appoint what businesse is to be done, and what not to be done, upon that day; he doth openly profess, that he is Lord of the Sabbath, Mark 2. 28. and John 5. 23. he saith, They shall Honour the Son, as they Honour the Father; As they honour the Father with a Sabbath, in regard of his Rest from the work of Creation, so they shall honour the Son with a Sabbath, in regard of his Rest from the work of Redemption, which being compared with Rev. 1. 10. where it is called the Lords Day: These two being put together, do plainly prove it.

Reas. 4. Fourthly, Christ himself did command his Apostles to keep this day, it was not by the Apostles counsel, as if they would set up this day in the Church, as some would have it; but Christ did command them so to do; for the Apostles did deliver nothing Generally to the Church, but what they received from the Lord, as Paul saith, What I have received from the Lord, that I declare unto you, 1 Cor. 11. But I will prove it was the Commandment of Christ to them, by this Argument, Because the first day of the week was alwayes kept for the assemblies of the people of God, before the Apostles durst order any thing in the Church: the Apostles never durst undertake to set up any order in the Church, until the Holy Ghost fell upon them in fiery tongues, and that was fourty dayes after. Now the first day of the week was kept long before this, John 20. 19. they kept the first day of the week: and again the next week, ver. 26. they kept the first day of the week, and Luke 24. they kept the first day of the week. And if you compare three or four places of Scripture together, as Mat. 28. 16, 20. together with John 20. 19, 26. we shall see plainly in John, that they did meet upon the first day of the week, and in Mat. 28. we shall see that Christ appointed them to do, it was by his Commandment.

Reas. 5. Fifthly, Another Argument to prove that it is by Divine Institution, and not by Humane Ordinance, is this, Because the Wisdome of Jesus Christ, would never have committed such a weighty thing as this is to the Judgement of man. Certainly the Lord Jesus Christ, before his ascending up unto his Father, would never have left things so raw, and uncertain, and imperfect, as to leave such a Branch of such a Sacred Ordinance, to be at the Arbitrament of men, being so apt to take liberty, and so negligent to keep any day Holy, surely the Lord would never have left it to the Arbitrament of men. Therefore we may well conclude, it is to be found in Scripture by Ordination of God; for mark what the Apostle saith, As Moses was faithful in all his house, so Christ is faithful in all his house, Heb. 3. 2, 3. He proves that Christ is more faithful then Moses: Now Moses was faithful, for he delivered the whole mind of God to the people of Israel, there was nothing left out, for time, or place, or manner; there was not any Ceremony in the worship of God left out, but he delivered all to them, he was faithful. So Christ is faithful in his house, therefore seeing Christ knew how ready men were to neglect, and prophane the Sabbath, plain reason tells us, that he would order it himself.

Reas. 6. Again, Who should Institute any Ordinance in the Church, but only he that is the Head of the Church?

Reas. 7. Again, Another Argument is this, It hath been the Practice of all holy men since the Apostles daies, to keep this day. That it was the practice of the Apostles, that you will grant, that they kept the first day of the week.

Now

Now if there were no Argument but this, that the Apostles did keep it, this were enough to prove the change of the day, unless we find that the Apostles did sanctifie this day, also more proof enough to stay mens minds: for certainly they had a more infallible guide and direction then we have, and they acted upon this day, as Gods day. And they ordained, and set the Divine hope this day, though he were in the grave of his humiliation, and could bear no fruit upon, but meer glory; yet he would make the Sabbath, on the first day of the week, and the Lord rewarded his sanctifying of that day, by sending the Revelation into him, to incourage all good people to go on in keeping this day. But to leave these, and come to the time of the ancient Fathers, immediately after the Apostles, they all agree upon the first day of the week: Ignatius doth so; and Saint Austin saith, on the Virgin Mary is a dog-day indeed, for the first day of the week, among days, as she was blessed above women, so is the first day of the week blessed above dayes: Not a man that takes conscience of his wayes, but shall find a blessing upon every day, but God hath blessed this day in a more peculiar manner, and the soul that takes conscience of the keeping of it, may by the Covenant of God expect a blessing.

Now to come to the dead times of Popery. If ever the Sabbath was out of memory, and out of date, then was the time; for then there was a great falling away, a great forsaking, a great declining, and people learned to Doctrines of Divels, and Damnable Heresies, and the whole world groaned under Popery: Yet in the dead times of Popery there were abundance of Prophets, the Lord did keep their Judgements entire in this thing, as Gerson, and Silvester, and others, though they were Superstitious Papists, yet they say, That the change of the Sabbath, from the last day of the week to the first, is by Divine Institution. Now to come to the times of Reformation, here we have abundance of Reverend men beyond the Sea, both in Germany, and France, that maintain it is by Divine Institution.

Another Argument is taken from the Judgements of God. If men will not hearken to reason, and the examples of the Saints, and Judgement of Divines in all ages, yet the Lord will make it appear from heaven, that this is the Lords Day, and the Lord hath sealed it. Reas. 8

First by his Judgements, for the wrath of God hath been revealed from heaven upon those that have prophaned this day: the Stories in all ages shew it. In the Councel of Paris, where Divines out of all Countries in Christendome were met together, to consult about matters of Religion, Millers stepped up, and made complaint, concerning the Sabbath: Let us make a Canon for the sanctifying of the Sabbath day, for to our knowledg, the Lords wrath hath broken out upon the Country for the breach of this day; and one related one story, and another, another, as one told a story of a Miller, that grinding upon the Sabbath day, a fire brake out, and burnt Mill, and Man, and all. Another, of an Husbandman, that going into the field to fetch home his Corn upon the Sabbath day, thunder and lightning brake forth, and burnt him and his corn. Many such stories were related in that Councel, and the Magdenberg: have a story of a Noble man, that using to Hunt upon the Sabbath day, the Lord brought it so to passe, that his Wife brought forth a child, with a head just like a dog. I could relate abundance of Stories beyond sea, but we have enough here at home: the Town of Stratford, in Warwick shire, as it is related in the Practice of Piety, was Burnt three times upon this day. And the Story of the Paris Garden, 1583. they were gathered together this day, to see the sport of the Beasts fighting together, and the Scaffold fell down, and eight were slain, and abundance hurt. So there are many more such Examples, I remember my self above a dozen within the half year; the Lord hath revealed his displeasure from heaven, for the breach of this day.

Secondly, Again the Lord hath sealed this in the consciences of his people.
For who are they that break this day, but prophane, and vaine and prophane men?
And who are the consciences of all but those that most fear God, those that God hath most crowned with Righteousnesse and Sanctification? they delight in this, and Sanctifie it, for they come it Holy to the Lord, and the more a man fears God, the more careful he is of the keeping of this day, and the more he is grieved to see it prophaned, or over-ther, by himself or others. Because he hath experience of the blessings of God upon the keeping of this day, no man doth Sanctifie this day conscionably, but he shall find a blessing, therefore it is surely from the Lord.

Vse. 1. The First Vse is this, Is the first day of the week the Sabbath by Divine institution? then here we see, that we are to keep a whole day. The Divell, if he cannot make men keep no day, then it is his policy to make them keep it by halves. Oh, say they, Do we not keep the Sabbath? Do we not come to Church, and hear the word, and Divine Service Morning and Evening?
Is not this to keep the Sabbath? But if the Lord hath Instituted this day, then certainly he hath Instituted a whole day. It is madnesse, and want of reason for a man to think the contrary. Suppose I hire a man to labour with me for a day, do I not make account he should work one whole day?
Suppose I hire a servant for a year, do I not mean a whole year? though I put not in the word whole, yet I suppose he must dwell a whole year with me. And if I hire a man for a day, it is for a whole day: so that in Grammatical sense, when the Scripture saith, Thou shalt Sanctifie the Sabbath day, it is meant a whole day. It is not in this, as in other words; any piece of a stone is stone: but in things that signifie the whole, it is not the same, as a day, a part of a day, is not a day: the least part of water is water, or of fire is fire, but a part of a day, is not a day. Remember thou keep holy the Sabbath day, and I was in the Spirit on the Lords day, and they met together on the first day of the week: it is a day, therefore the meaning of the scripture is, that it should be a whole day, and it is so in reason, and therefore we are to keep an whole day: therefore we should not curtail the Lords day, as the servants of Hanun did the garments of Davids servants. You know what became of Ananias, and Saphira, that brought but part, when they should have brought the whole, they should have brought the whole price of their inheritance, but they brought but part, therefore the Lord smote them with death: so when the Lord requires a whole day, and we give him but a part, we shall bring vengeance upon our own heads.

1. There are divers arguments for it: First the weeke consists of seven dayes, and he hath given six to us and reserves one day to himself: now we wil grant that we have not part of six dayes, but six whole dayes. If you aske a man what do you work all day? why yea, the Lord hath given us six dayes, therefore six whole dayes. Now by the same reason God must have an whole day, if we take any part of the seventh day, then we have more then six dayes, which is contrary to the scripture.

2. Another reason is this, God rested the seventh day: now looke what time God rested, that time we must sanctifie: now God rested the seventh day, all of it, he left none of the creation to do upon the seventh day; he had finished the creation in six dayes, and rested all the seventh day, therefore we must keep the whole day. Thirdly, because this is the nature of a Sabbath to

3. bee 24 houres, not to be an artificiall day, but to be a naturall day, 24 houres together, as you may see Lev. 23. 32. you shall keep the Sabbath from evening to evening, then the dayes were reckoned from evening to evening

from

from the creation, although none under the Gospell because Christ rose in the morning, they are to keep the morning of the day, now come from the worke villeously, and prophanation of this [illegible] holy dayes 4 what Church; [illegible] the Church of Rome hath made holy dayes, as Sunday Nicolaes day, which is to be kept in the fore noon: so they have other dayes that are to be kept in the after-noone, but in the fore-noone, they may do what they list: so heathens did, as Ovid saith, the former part of the day is holy, the latter part of the day is not holy, the Lord hath no such days as these, but all holy dayes in scripture: if God ever appointed a fast, or new moon, or feast of Tabernacles, whatsoever holy day, he did institute, it was an whole day, and not a part of a day, therefore much more this solemn day.

Again, the judgment of all Divines in all ages hath been concerning an 5.
whole day. I could instance in the fathers, as in Irenæus, who saith, we are to continue in the Sabbath all the day long, for the Lord hath required all the day to be kept holy unto him, and the saints of God have alwayes kept an whole day: so saint Austin saith, It is not enough, that wee keep three or four houres of the day, but that we rest the whole day. And what rest? not only to rest from our bodily labours for the beasts keep this Sabbath, not the rest of sport and pastime, for that is the Sabbath of the gentiles, they ate and drink, and rose up to play: No, but that thou mayest be vacant to God all the day in prayer and serving of him. So in the Councell of Mexicon there was an assembly of ministers out of all nations in Christendome, and they ordained a canon concerning the Lords day, We ordain, that people keep the whole Lords day holy, and that they set themselves the whole day to pray to God, and delight in God, and heare his word: and if a countreyman servant breake this day, his punishment shall be to be beaten with severe blowes, [ictibus gravioribus, are the very words of the Councell;] and if a Lawyer offer to plead this day, he shall not have the benefit of his pleading or cause; and if a minister breake this day, he shall be excommunicated half a year, and thrown out of the Church, and shall not be received into the Church again, but upon great humiliation. This was the judgment of Divines in all ages and it is the observation of a reverend Divine, Musculus, upon Exod. 20. God doth not say, Remember the Sabbath, to keepe it holy; he that keeps it an hour or two, keeps it holy: but, Remember the Sabbath Day, to keepe it holy; he will have a day kept holy: Nay Calvin, whom they take to be on their side, to be a patron of their liberty, he himselfe writing upon Deut. 6 upon these words, Remember the Sabbath day, he saith, we are to keep this day, (speaking of himselfe, and all the people of God,) we are to keepe this day; and not a part of it, but all of it.

The second Use is this: we may hence see that sports and pastimes are not Use. 1.
agreeable to the Lords day; for if the Lord hath forbidden our weekly works on that day, then surely he hath forbidden sports and pastimes.

The reason is good, first because our weekly works, are things Commanded at other times, now sports and pastimes are never Commanded by God, but onely permitted: now if things commanded, and things that are good at sometimes, if these notwithstanding may not be done upon the Lords day, then much lesse must those be done that are permitted onely.

Secondly, because weekely works do lesse distract a man from God, then sports and pastimes. I appeale to any man here present, if he be not more heavenly and better employed, and lesse distract from good thoughts, and gracious affections, when he is plowing, or sowing, or threshing, then when he is diceing, and carding; sports and pastimes beat a man further off from religion, and let a man go to prayer after sports and pastimes, he shall find

THE END.